The kind of Suits and Overcoats that are made by the best city Merchant Tailors at from $50 to $75 are sold by us at from $3 95 to $20, and we pay expressage, and ship to you C. O. D. Our big new Clothing Book, with large cloth samples for Suits, Overcoats and Trousers, is yours for the asking. We guarantee to fit you, and to sell you High-Art Clothing at about one-quarter regular prices. Address this way:

JULIUS HINES & SON,
BALTIMORE, MD. Dept. 218

HANDSOME ILLUSTRATED REAL ESTATE Catalogue, describing beautiful estates in Shendoah Valley and Piedmont Region. Send 5c. for postage.
McIlhany & Hilleary, Staunton, Va.

FREE—BOYS' SUITS

Consisting of Jacket and Knee Pants, given Free for a small order of our Teas, Coffees, Soaps, Extracts, Perfumes, Baking Powder, Starch, etc., among your friends. No money required with order. We pay express.

Illustrated Catalogue FREE.

G. A. Folsom & Co., 192 Hanover St., Dept. S Boston, Mass.

Big Drop in Sewing Machines.

For $12.75 you can now buy the same make of high grade, improved, 20-year guaranteed, beautiful oak cased sewing machine that your dealer asks $40.00 to $50.00 for, and a far better machine than those now being so widely advertised at $18.00 to $25.00; shipped on three months' free trial to anyone, any place in the United States; no money to be paid until after received. For full particulars, special machine catalogue and special price offerings, cut this notice out and mail to

SEARS, ROEBUCK & Co., Chicago

BANDED TO SUCCOR INDIA

Mayors of Cities Lending a Hand—Ministers, Merchants, Newspapers, Men and Women and Little Children Helping : : : : :

STANLEY LYONS

MATTIE DAVIS

STANLEY CROCKER

ALTA BUDDENBAUM

EVERETT PHILLIPS

THE American life-saving band which is putting forth such noble effort to save India's dying multitude, enlarges day by day, as the flood of letters containing generous gifts and telling stories of earnest endeavor, abundantly testify. Out of these letters, which are such striking testimonials of the greatness of the American and the sincerity of Christian charity, we can only select a few here and there from which to publish extracts typical of them all. Many which for lack of space we cannot give are worthy to be printed as apples of gold in pictures of silver.

Messrs. W. S. Close, J. D. Kirkpatrick, V. O. Finch, Charles Rosell, Will Starkey, John McIntosh, Famine Relief Committee, of Kokomo, Ind., send $188.71; "the donation of the good citizens of Kokomo, who had intended to send a carload of corn, but could not get it off before the Quito's cargo was made up." From Dublin, Pulaski Co., Va., comes a gift of $50, with these good words from Mr. H. C. Wysor: "We hope to get in another remittance next week. We are a small, scattered agricultural community, but are trying to save as many lives as possible."

Nebraska does not weary in well-doing. Rev. G. L. Hosford writes again:

Brethren: Enclosed find draft for $1,000, an additional contribution from Nebraska, making $5,000 I have collected here under direction of Dr. Hobbs. More to follow.

A. R., West Chazy, N. Y., sends $6.45, "raised in a few minutes."——E. L. M., Saybrook, Conn., encloses a $20 bill to help the famine sufferers.——John Howland, Treasurer Local Famine Relief Committee, Leadville, Colo., sends $56.70, saying: "A few of our young people, headed by Mr. Percy McGeorge, got together and started the work here."——Mr. George Peck, Costello, Pa., writes: "Tom Ripple and myself got up an entertainment for India with the help of the young people; the proceeds were $7.35; when older church members saw what we had been doing, they wanted to help the cause along, so we took up a collection of $14.75. I know we have started the work now. We want to organize a committee and send more."

MARION AND MYRTLE CROCKER

A novel and pretty plan for pleading India's cause was followed in Chatfield, O. Mr. F. H. Barth describes it:

I organized a local Relief Committee of seven little girls, ranging in age from nine to twelve, equipped each with a white sash with a cross in color on the end, and each wore on her shoulder a shield with the inscription, "I. H. N."; they went from house to house, rending a program which began with a little poem of which these are the first lines:

We're a band of earnest laborers,
Working for our Master King.

After this, they recited Moody's "appeal," then Matt. 25: 34-41 inclusive; then read what two cents, one dollar, and so on will do in saving life in India; one little maid, who was cashier, asked for contributions and took down the names of donors. Singing "From Greenland's icy mountain, from India's coral strand," the little band marched out and on to the next house. They raised $60, which find enclosed.

The very babies are helping, and a little lad gives his bicycle money:

India Currier, $1. "I am a little girl, named for India." Myrtle and Winnie Weddel, $23.18. "We are two little girls, aged nine and seven. We felt so sorry for the poor starving people. Mamma asked us to go out in our village and see what we could get, and we got this one evening after school." Helen N. Hushey, Walla Walla. "I am five. My mamma said I could send some money out of my bank to feed some poor little starving girl or boy."——Little Ray Thomas, four years old, sends $2 and says: "I don't want the little children to be hungry and die. God loves them. When I get big I'll send more."——Mrs. C., Ross, N. J., $2: "From my little sons, Edward, four years old and Charlie, two. When Edward saw the picture of the poor starving people, he at once asked me to please send the money in their bank which they were saving for a bicycle. He said: 'Hurry, mamma; I can save again for a bicycle.' So I hope their self-denying may be a blessing to some poor children."——Mattie Davis, Mo., 36 cents. "I was given some money to go to a show, but I send it to the sufferers in India."——Alta Buddenbaum, 20 cents, for the starving people.——Myrtle, Marion and Stanley Crocker, 50 cents each for the starving Hindus.——Stanley Lyons, Illinois, $1. A gift from a little fellow four years old.——Ida May Cook, Wisconsin, $1.50: "I went around and collected after school hours. My papa is dead; he was a minister. I know he would like me to do this."——Everett Phillips, $3.27: "I read a great deal about the starving people. It made me feel so bad that I had to go and beg money to help them."

IDA MAY COOK

If one hundred papers would follow the noble lead of these:

The Way of Life, Rev. John M. Pike, editor, Columbia, S. C., sends a second check of $200, making $400 in all, contributed by its readers. Mr. J. A. Boyd, manager of the Wilkesbarre Record, sends $300, making a total of $1,000 collected through his paper, and writes: "The givers are farmers, bankers, merchants, lawyers, clerks, Sunday Schools, churches, mission bands, C. E. Societies, Epworth Leagues, public school children, and not a little of it came from those who earn their bread by working in and about the coal mines in this valley. There have been over 300 individual contributions received, the largest of which was $50 and the smallest two cents, which came from a little school boy and may have been his all." The Record has given each day nearly a half column of space in appealing for funds. Since the above was written $500 has been raised, making a total of $1,500. The Recorder, Bandon, Ore., D. E. Still, editor, $60.——The Associate Reformed Presbyterian, Due West, S. Carolina, Rev. O. Y. Bonner, editor, sends $275, raised through its columns.

The following letter from Kewanee, Ill., illustrates the excellent service which can be done the cause through the influence of the Mayors of American cities:

Inclosed find draft for $278.80, collected from the citizens of the city of Kewanee at a meeting called by the ministers of the Baptist, Congregational, Primitive Methodist, Methodist Episcopal churches and by myself. We send it to you to be used only for the relief of the starving people.

(Signed) FRANK F. WHIFFEN, Mayor.

The efficiency of a Mayor's sanction and interest is also shown in the good work done by the Newark Famine Relief Committee, which has raised $3,900 for the starving. Rev. Dr. McFarland, pastor of the Bethany Presbyterian church of Newark, wrote fifty invitations to a called meeting of as many prominent citizens, laid these before the Mayor and requested his signature, which was cordially given. The resulting convention called a mass meeting at which systematic work was undertaken. The entire state of New Jersey has quitted itself nobly in this good work for a famine-stricken people. The state Christian Endeavor Society has contributed over $360. North Dakota is helping generously too. Through Rev. Frank Harper Hays, pastor First Presbyterian church, Grand Forks, N. Dak., $1,750 has been sent in. Georgia continues to do her part. Hon John Phinizy, treas. India Famine Relief Fund, Augusta, Ga., sends $406 87, saying:

The Sunday Schools of Richmond County S. S. Association of Georgia, have requested me to forward to you their offering for famine-stricken India. May the Lord use it for his glory and the good of humanity is my prayer.

One gentleman, Mr. McPherrin, Clearfield, Ia., gave ten per cent. of the sales in his store one day to the famine. His offering comes with that of other generous citizens of the place through M. J. K. Hamilton. Mr. Arthur J. Wright, Clark Mills, Oneida, N. Y., writing in behalf of the employees of the Hind & Harrison Plush Co., says:

I circulated amongst the work people your urgent request for aid for the famine sufferers, addressed to my wife, with the result that the sum enclosed, $60.90, was subscribed in about five hours.

Through the combined efforts of the Presbyterian, Episcopal and Methodist Churches of Ellicottville, N. Y., $57.67 have been sent in by Lois H. Bryant, Treasurer. —— J. A. Leavell, Cashier Home Savings Bank, Fulton, Mo., sends $141.56. "collected Sunday evening at a union service of our churches for the India sufferers."——T. I. Laird, Dumont, Ia., sends $60, the offering of the United Brethren Church, with the "best wishes of the people and the prayer that God's richest blessings go with it."

THE VALUE OF CHARCOAL.

Few People Know How Useful it is in Preserving Health and Beauty.

Nearly everybody knows that charcoal is the safest and most efficient disinfectant and purifier in nature, but few realize its value when taken into the human system for the same cleansing purpose.

Charcoal is a remedy that the more you take of it the better, it is not a drug at all, but simply absorbs the gases and impurities always present in the stomach and intestines and carries them out of the system.

Charcoal sweetens the breath after smoking, drinking or after eating onions and other odorous vegetables.

Charcoal effectually clears and improves the complexion, it whitens the teeth and further acts as a natural and safe cathartic.

It absorbs the injurious gases which collect in the stomach and bowels; it disinfects the mouth and throat from the poison of catarrh.

All druggests sell charcoal in one form or another, but probably the best charcoal and the most for the money is in Stuart's Absorbent Lozenges; they are composed of the finest powdered Willow charcoal, and other harmless antiseptics in tablet form or rather in the form of large, pleasant tasting lozenges, the charcoal being mixed with honey.

The daily use of these lozenges will soon tell in a much improved condition of the general health, better complexion, sweeter breath and purer blood, and the beauty of it is, that no possible harm can result from their continued use, but on the contrary great benefit.

A Buffalo physician in speaking of the benefits of charcoal, says: "I advise Stuart's Absorbent Lozenges to all patients suffering from gas in stomach and bowels, and to clear the complexion and purify the breath, mouth and throat; I also believe the liver is greatly benefitted by the daily use of them; they cost but twenty-five cents a box at drug stores, and although in some sense a patent preparation yet I believe I get more and better charcoal in Stuart's Absorbent Lozenges than in any of the ordinary charcoal tablets."

HYOMEI
ANTISEPTIC
SKIN SOAP

Made from the fresh green leaves of the Tasmanian Blue Gum Tree.

The only PERFECT SKIN and TOILET SOAP known.

Sold by all druggists or sent by mail.
Price, 25 cents. Sample cake, 5c.

THE R. T. BOOTH COMPANY, 45 Ave. D, Ithaca, N. Y.

This is the season when a blood purifying medicine like Hood's Sarsaparilla will do you much good. The blood needs purifying and the system a toning up. Hood's Sarsaparilla will do it.

On Jellies
preserves and pickles, spread a thin coating of refined
PARAFFINE WAX
Will keep them absolutely moisture and acid proof. Paraffine Wax is also useful in a dozen other ways about the house. Full directions in each pound package.
Sold everywhere.
STANDARD OIL CO.

Dyspepsia

One of the many causes of dyspepsia is the use of cereal foods improperly prepared. People fancy that grain food is simple, and consequently healthful. Whole grains, wheat, oats, etc., contain quite largely an element as indigestible as wood and no more nutritious.

CREAM OF WHEAT

being entirely free from indigestible matter is peculiarly adapted to such as require an easily digested diet.

When buying Cream of Wheat ask for our beautiful gravures of northwestern scenery. Your grocer gives one with each purchase of two packages.

Cream of Wheat Co., Minneapolis, Minn.

SUMMER HOMES IN VERMONT ...AND ON... Lake Champlain
$4.00 and upward per week. Send 4c. postage for Illustrated Book.
A. W. Ecclestone, S. P. A., 353 Broadway, N. Y.

Welch's Grape Juice is just the pure Juice of fully matured Concord Grapes. Without a drop of water or a particle of alcohol, it furnishes the life of the Grape in a most convenient form for use. It is a nourishing food for sick people and well people. Sold by druggists and fancy grocers. Write the Welch Grape Juice Co., Westfield, N. Y., for free Booklet

BLYMYER CHURCH BELLS. UNLIKE OTHER BELLS SWEETER, MORE DURABLE, LOWER PRICE. OUR FREE CATALOGUE TELLS WHY. Write to Cincinnati Bell Foundry Co., Cincinnati, O.

Individual Communion Outfits. Send for free catalogue and list of users. SANITARY COMMUNION OUTFIT CO., Dept. 6, Rochester, N. Y.

D. L. MOODY'S LIFE, WORDS and WORK (2560 PAGES) TWENTY VOLUMES of his Latest Sermons, Bible Studies, Anecdotes, etc., carriage paid anywhere. Agents wanted. A. P. FITT, Supt., 250 LaSalle Ave., CHICAGO, or EAST NORTHFIELD, MASS. $2.00

DEAF OR HARD-OF-HEARING ADULTS CAN ACQUIRE LIP-READING AT HOME in six weeks. Easy, practical, interesting lessons by mail. One hour daily for study and practice. Results uniformly satisfactory. Terms moderate. 39th year. DAVID GREENE, 1122 Broadway, New York.

ALUMINUM NOVELTIES, HOUSEHOLD AND TOILET ARTICLES. Rivals Silverware in appearance and durability. Gold Aluminum Jewelry the wonder of the 20th Century. Our beautiful illustrated catalogue upon application. FREE L. & H. SUPPLY CO., 44 Commercial Ave., - - Binghamton, N. Y.

The Natural Body Brace advertised in this paper in the first issue of this month, is a delightful, certain remedy for ailments peculiar to women and girls. It makes walking and work easy; gives good figure and light step. Write the Natural Body Brace Co., Box 171, Salina, Kan., for free illustrated book.

OPIUM MORPHINE and Liquor Habit cured in 10 to 20 days. No pay till cured. Book of particulars free. Address Dr. J. L. Stephens, Dept. R. 5, Lebanon, Ohio.

$75 Month and Expenses; no experience needed; position permanent; self-seller, PEASE MFG. CO., Stat'n A, Cincinnati, O.

HAIR INSOLES keep feet clean and dry. Prevent jar in walking. Relieve Rheumatism, Callous, Tender and Perspiring Feet. 10c., 3 pair 25c., postpaid. The Wm. H. Wiley & Son Co., Box D, Hartford, Ct.

A Great Hymn-Writer's Centenary

THE centenary of the death of William Cowper, the immortal hymn-writer, was celebrated April 26, at Olney, England, where the poet spent much of his later life, and where a large number of his beautiful hymns were written. Representatives of many religious denominations gathered at Olney on the date mentioned, and the memorial ceremonies were of great interest.

WILLIAM COWPER

William Cowper was the son of Rev. John Cowper and Anne, his wife. He was born at Great Berkhamstead, November 26, 1731. When he was six years old his mother died, an affliction which made a lasting impression upon the sensitive child. It is said that his lines addressed in later years to her portrait have drawn more tears than any other poem in the English language. Soon after her death, he was placed at a school where he was very miserable. Destined for law, he sought to fulfil the expectations of his relatives, but his inclinations were in another direction; he was a templar, loving literature, and hating his profession. The first serious onset of the malady which later clouded his brilliant intellect resulted from the nervous strain of trying to face the necessary examination to secure an excellent post offered through influence of friends.

The poet's life was one of much disappointment and of varied sorrows. Some of his most famous hymns, showing where he found comfort in moments of profoundest depression, have brought consolation to hundreds deeply troubled. Upon how many a sore and doubting heart have these words from "Hark, my soul, it is the Lord," breathed a blessing!

> Can a woman's tender care
> Cease towards the child she bare?
> Yes, she may forgetful be,
> Yet will I remember thee.

Or these, from "God Moves in a Mysterious Way":

> Ye fearful saints, fresh courage take;
> The clouds ye so much dread
> Are big with mercy, and will break
> In blessings on your head.

In early manhood he had loved his cousin, Theodora, but parental objections on account of his poverty prevented their union, and they had parted, not to meet again on earth. She never married, and preserved the poems he wrote to her, which were published after her death in 1824. This, his business troubles, the death of his father, the coldness of some friends whom he trusted, the severity of critics who did not appreciate his genius and even his malady failed to rob him of the sweetness of spirit and gentle playfulness which endeared him to almost all who knew him. He sought relief from his own sorrows in ministering to others, and was a sort of a lay-curate to his friend, John Newton, who had taken orders in what was then beginning to be known as the evangelical branch of the English Church; he visited the sick and the dying, and helped the poor of Olney, by whom he came to be much beloved. He diverted himself, too, with tending plants and looking after his simple pets, two tame hares, which have been immortalized by his graceful, humorous pen. His pew in Olney church is still intact and is visited by thousands of pious tourists. At Yardly Close is the famous oak upon which he wrote his celebrated poems. Arrangements are under way to convert his house into a museum of relics relating to him.

COWPER'S HOME AT OLNEY, WHERE HE WROTE MANY FAMOUS HYMNS

He Will Save India, Too

"The great throng, assembled by invitation of THE CHRISTIAN HERALD, stood with bared heads as the blessing of Almighty God was implored to rest upon the gift, the givers and the recipients. Our government chartered the ship, at an expense of $40,000, to bear this gift gathered from Christians from every State in the Union, by THE CHRISTIAN HERALD. As we witnessed the departure of the good ship, our mind reverted to the history of the little starving colony at Jamestown, almost three hundred years ago, when the relief ship sailed up the James River into port at the last hour of their extremity. God saved that colony for the establishing of a nation where his Word is free."—Good Tidings.

EATS ANYTHING
Since Leaving Off Coffee

"I wish to give my experience with coffee for the benefit of other people. I used coffee for several years and was a terrible sufferer from dyspepsia. The doctor told me not to use coffee or tea and put me on a lighr diet, and I felt better.

"Then I commenced to drink coffee again and had the same trouble come on.

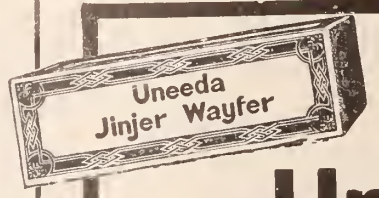
"One day I told a friend about it, who said if I would stop drinking coffee altogether I would feel better, and advised me to use Postum Food Coffee in its place.

"I tried the Postum, but did not like it, so I told him about it and he said I didn't cook it right, that is, didn't boil it enough and that I should use cream instead of milk, and to make sure I would use it, he sent a package to the house.

"After I used that package, I would have no more coffee in the house. Now I don't know what it is to have dyspepsia and I can eat anything. I also give Postum to my two children and they are the healthiest children you could find anywhere. The youngest is a boy 13 months old and we have been giving him Postum for seven months, three times a day. He weighs 30 pounds, and I know that Postum is what keeps both of them so healthy.

"I think all people who have dyspepsia get it from coffee drinking.

"Yours truly, Mrs. Jno. Stringer, 29 S. Florida Ave., Atlantic City, N. J."

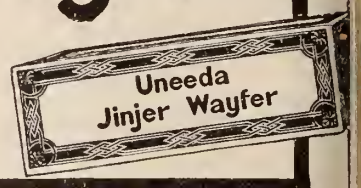


The crispest, tenderest and most piquant morsel that ever melted in one's mouth

Uneeda Jinjer Wayfer

Sold by grocers everywhere in air tight packages like those in which Uneeda Biscuit come to you

NATIONAL BISCUIT COMPANY



WALTHAM WATCHES

The factory of the Waltham Watch Company is the largest and most complete establishment of the kind in this or any other country.

Waltham Watches are the most accurate pocket time-pieces it is possible to make.

Waltham Watches are for sale by all retail jewelers.

Comfortable and Cool

The Ferris' Waist is made of summer net cloth, for Children, Misses and Ladies. Soft and yielding, yet gives requisite support to the body. Ladies' waists have side and back steels covered with rubber to prevent rust.

FERRIS' GOOD SENSE
Corset Waist

is made also for Ladies and Misses, with high and low bust, long and short waist, to suit all figures. The Ferris Book of Photographs mailed free.

Children's, 25c. to 50c. Misses', 50c. to $1.00. Ladies', $1.00 to $3.00. Always superior in quality and workmanship.

For sale by all retailers.

Manufactured by THE FERRIS BROS. CO., 341 Broadway, New York.

AGENTS WANTED.
$2.50 Sample Outfit FREE.

$1.10 Postpaid

Dr. Scott's Electric Corsets; a perfect fit and Nature's own remedy for backache, nervousness, indigestion, headache, liver and kidney trouble; complexion tonic, salve and soaps. Dr. Scott's Electric Hair Brushes for falling Hair.

GEO. A. SCOTT, Room 7 842 B'dway, New York.

It Is a Certainty That Catarrh

can be cured. You will believe it after using a sample of Dr. Blosser's Catarrh Cure. Mailed free. Address Dr. J. W. Blosser & Son, 50 Broad St., Blosser Building, Atlanta, Ga.

The IDEAL Steam Cook
Cooks a whole meal over one burner gasoline, oil, gas, or common cook st
Reduces Fuel Bills One-h Makes tough meats tend Prevents steam and odors. Whis blows when cooker needs more wa
Dinner Sets, Bicycles, Watches, other Valuable Premiums given w order for Cookers. Send for illustr catalogue. We pay express. Agents Want
TOLEDO COOKER CO., Box 16, Toledo,

Corns removed free. Sen postal for trial box of A-Corn Salv
Giant Chemical Co., Philadelphi

Husband and Wife Co-Pastors

REV. H. W. THOMAS, of the People's Church, Chicago, Ill., and his wife, Mrs. Vandelia Varnum Thomas, hold an agreeable and unique position as co-workers in the same pulpit. Dr. Thomas organized the People's Church twenty-five years ago. The services are held in McVicker's Theatre, and his pulpit has been for years one of the best known in the West. Mrs. Vandelia Varnum Thomas was ordained as assistant preacher to her husband, Dec. 7, 1899. At the ordination, a number of ministers and the members of different congregations attended. Associated also with the pastor and his wife is Rev. Hedley A. Hall, who joined the First Illinois Regiment, and served with the Chicago Soldiers at Santiago, under Gen. Bates.

MRS. VANDELIA V. THOMAS REV. MR. THOMAS

Mrs. V. V. Thomas has long been known on the lecture platform. She chose as a subject for her first sermon in her husband's pulpit, "The Cost of Right," from the text, Matt. 20: 21: "Are ye able to drink of the cup that I shall drink of and be baptized with the baptism that I am baptized with?" Mrs. Thomas said in an interview: "Count me as one who loves humanity, who believes in God and Christ. I think we are largely molders of ourselves and co-workers with God."

Our Eternal Destiny*

The Final Separation of the Wicked From the Righteous to be Made by Unerring Discrimination

PROBABLY there are very few who sincerely believe that there is no life for men after death. There are many who act as if that was their belief, but there are times in their lives when the conviction, or at least the suspicion, that there is such a life is forced upon them. The thought comes to every man that the nature and purpose of life require a future beyond death. Apart from revelation—and if there had been no revelation—we must have inferred that the grave was not the absolute termination of existence. Our lives are too much like an education, a preparation for something beyond, to leave us satisfied with a theory that ends them abruptly at a time when all that we have learned is of the greatest use. Then, too, the existing moral and social conditions demand compensation or readjustment, which seldom comes in this life. We see good and admirable men suffering, we see bad men at ease and triumphant; we see the hero perish without reward, the martyrs dying in the flames, the slave dying under the whip—all these spectacles and others of like character cry out for a future in which wrongs will be righted and righteousness vindicated.

This intuition, or inference, or expectation, is confirmed by Christ. He brought life and immortality to light. Without him we might have hoped or feared, but now we know. Not in all its details. There is much that we wish we knew. He did not tell us all. Even to the men who had the inestimable privilege of being near him and hearing his words, he had to say of many things that he might have revealed, "ye cannot bear them now." They nor we probably could have understood them if he had revealed them. But there were certain broad principles that he could reveal, and one of them is this that he lays down in the parable of the drag-net. It is the principle of separation. The good are gathered into vessels and the bad or worthless are cast away. So the knowledge we have is advanced a stage. Not only do we learn that there is another life, but that there is to be a division among men. We have divisions in this life, division of races, of social conditions, of rank and fortune; but this is a division on another principle. It is the intrinsic worth of the man that determines whether he shall be gathered or cast away. Not what he has, not his nationality, not his associations or connection is considered, but whether he himself is worth saving. The picture of the fishermen sitting down to examine their haul is a very vivid one. The net may be the haul of death, as some contend, or the church with its worthy and unworthy members as others contend, but the end is the same; the wicked are severed from among the righteous.

The information is very solemnizing. In our present life matters are very different. If a man is not a criminal we allow him to mix freely in society. Murderers and thieves we exclude and shut up in jail, but if a man refrains from breaking the laws, he may associate with others though at heart he may be a villain. But Christ tells us that it will not be so after that separation; the wicked will be severed from among the righteous. And by the wicked we must surely understand not only the men of open wickedness, but the men who have wicked natures; those who have sufficient cunning to avoid coming in conflict with human justice but who are bad at heart. That is why conversion is all-important. There must be a change of nature, a new birth. No creed, no rite, no ceremony, no church connection will avail here. It is not what a man believes, nor what he does that is the question, but what he is. If through faith in Christ and the operation of the Holy Spirit he has become a new man, even after an evil life, there are infinite potentialities of goodness in him, because he has the divine nature and when the wicked are severed from among the righteous, he will be accounted worth saving.

*Topic of the Christian Endeavor Society, Epworth League and Baptist Young People's Union for June 24. Matt. 13: 47-50.

A "CHANGE" BREAKFAST

Getting Ready for Warm Weather

A complete change in breakfast would, at this time of year, improve the health of anyone.

Meat, potatoes and coffee become tiresome. The system calls for a change, but what to? Hot and half-cooked pastry and starchy cereals are unattractive.

Vegetables taste good but furnish too little nourishment to sustain one until the next meal, particularly if brain work is required.

A most appetizing, convenient and healthful breakfast can be made on Grape-Nuts (a ready cooked food), a little cream or milk, some fruit and perhaps two soft eggs.

(Pint tin cup of sharply boiling water, put in two eggs, not one nor three, cover and set off stove, serve in just nine minutes. Whites will be like cream and half digested). The Grape-Nuts food is concentrated and but three or four teaspoons should be used at one meal, that amount furnishes full strength and nourishment up to the next.

A change from the old breakfast to one like this will refresh and invigorate the system in a surprising manner.

Good food in proper variety and a contented mind, solves the whole health problem.

Over 250,000 Copies Already Sold

CHURCH HYMNS

AND GOSPEL SONGS.

Examination almost invariably results in adoption.
Sample Copy, 20 cents. Price, $25 per 100.
All ROYALTIES paid to Mr. Moody's Schools.
THE BIGLOW & MAIN CO. New York and Chicago.

Soap-sprung

—Pearline. Came from soap—an improvement upon it; a sort of higher development of soap, just as man is said to have been developed from the monkey. Every virtue that good soap has you'll find in Pearline. All the soap is in it that's necessary. Pearline isn't meant to be used with soap, but to take the place of it. Everything that soap does, Pearline does, and does it better. 584

Millions NOW USE Pearline

THE IDEAL SIGHT RESTORER

WE RESTORE SIGHT!
CLASSES RENDER DEFECTIVE VISION CHRONIC.
Write for our ILLUSTRATED TREATISE, Mailed Free.
THE IDEAL COMPANY, 239 BROADWAY, NEW YORK.

How many sufferers from stomach troubles are longing praying for just such relief as has come to Mrs. Amelia Allen, of Turin, Lewis Co., N. Y. For over five years she suffered all the miseries attendant upon this disease, sought vainly in all directions for relief, employed the most skilled physicians, but they failed her, and she had despaired of help when through a friend she learned of the medicine that saved her.

Her remarkable story is here given in her own words:

"For five and a half years I was afflicted with nervous dyspepsia, was compelled to diet myself rigidly and could scarcely keep anything on my stomach. Palpitation of the heart set in and I soon became so thin and wasted that I was a mere shadow. I was treated by all the leading physicians in this section of the state, but without permanent benefit. I was so discouraged that I had no faith in any doctor or medicine.

"When a friend, Mrs. George Mott, recommended Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People, I had no idea of receiving any benefit from them. I tried them, however, and to-day I am well, have regained my weight, and am strong and vigorous. I began to see the good effects of the pills while I was taking the first box. Altogether I took them about a year and a half and was entirely relieved. I cannot say too much in praise of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People.

(Signed) Mrs. Amelia Allen.

Subscribed and sworn to before me this 6th day of February, 1900.

A. C. Miller,
Justice of the Peace,
in and for the County of Lewis.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold in boxes (never in loose bulk) at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50, and may be had of all druggists or direct by mail from Dr. Williams' Medicine Company, Schenectady, N. Y.

Surveying

is one way to a successful career as a Civil Engineer. Mechanical and Architectural Drafting are stepping stones to paying professions. Busy men can prepare by our method of teaching by mail to

Take a Better Position

No interruption of work. No loss of salary. Courses in Bridge, Steam, Electrical or Civil Engineering, Architectural or Mechanical Drafting, Architecture, Book-keeping, Shorthand, English Branches.

THE INTERNATIONAL CORRESPONDENCE SCHOOLS, Box 861, SCRANTON, PA.

A Safe Investment at Six per cent.

Money producing less than 6 per cent. may be reinvested at that rate through this Company in sums of $50 or more. Ample security and no risk.

Assets, $1,150,000. Surplus (accumulated in seven years), $150,000. Our securities are bonds and mortgages on improved real estate in New York and Pennsylvania non-fluctuating, not speculative. Subject to supervision and regular annual examination by the State Banking department.

We refer, by special permission, to many clergymen and other prominent professional and business men.

Please apply for information in detail.

Industrial Savings & Loan Co.,
1133 Broadway, New York.

THE DECLARATION OF INDEPENDENCE AND AMERICAN EAGLE WITH STARS AND STRIPES

Send fifty cents in stamps for magnificent steel engraving of Eagle and Flag, and a fac-simile of Declaration. An exact copy of original (now retired from public view) showing signatures of signers. Both mounted on extra heavy cards, over tints, 11x14 in. Every American home and school should have these. Sent secure by mail upon receipt of price. LONDONDERRY CO., Dept. O, 32 Central Street, Boston, Mass.

STARK TREES

BEST by Test—74 YEARS. Largest Nursery. Fruit Book free. We PAY CASH WEEKLY & want MORE HOME & traveling salesmen
STARK BRO'S, LOUISIANA, MO.; Dansville, N.Y.

WATCH AND CHAIN FOR ONE DAY'S WORK.

Boys and Girls can get a Nickel-Plated Watch, also a Chain and Charm for selling 1½ doz. Packages of Bluine at 10 cents each. Send your full address by return mail and we will forward the Bluine, post-paid, and a large Premium List. No money required.
BLUINE CO. Box 3 Concord Junction, Mass.

RUPTURE

The Improved Elastic Truss is the only Truss in existence that is worn with absolute comfort night and day, and it retains the rupture under the hardest exercise or severest strain, and will effect a permanent and speedy relief. Competent lady always in attendance for ladies, or to answer correspondence from women. Our goods are not sold by agents or druggists. Send for free pamphlets to the Improved Elastic Truss Co., 768 Broadway, New York. ESTABLISHED 18 YEARS.

What brings release from dirt and grease? Why, don' you know?

SAPOLIO

SATCHEL NO 94 FOR SELLING 1 DOZ.
RING NO 2 FOR SELLING 1 DOZ.
VASES NO. 112 FOR SELLING 2 DOZ.
WATCH NO 191 FOR SELLING 2 DOZ.
RING NO 2. FOR SELLING ½ DOZ.
CLOCK NO 133 FOR SELLING 2 DOZ.
MANDOLIN NO 10 FOR SELLING 2 DOZ.
J. ARDINER No 34 FOR SELLING 2 DOZ
GUITAR NO 22 FOR SELLING 2 DOZ.
SHOT GUN No 18 FOR SELLING 6 DOZ.
MACKINTOSH No 6 FOR SELLING 2 DOZ.
MIRROR No 125 FOR SELLING 6 DOZ.
BED No 136 FOR SELLING 8 DOZ.
REFRIGERATOR No 87 FOR SELLING
DESK NO 133 FOR SELLING 4 DOZ.
CARPET SWEEPER NO 4. FOR SELLING 1 DOZ
KITCHEN CABINET No 69 FOR SELLING 4 DOZ.
TEA SET No 107 FOR SELLING 2 DOZ.
LAMP No 100 FOR SELLING 2 DOZ.
TOILET SET No 6 FOR SELLING 2 DOZ.
BICYCLE No 71 FOR SELLING 12 DOZ.

No Money Required

THESE handsome and useful premiums given ABSOLUTELY FREE to readers of the CHRISTIAN HERALD for introducing to their friends our great "hold fast" waist and skirt supporter, which is the only AUTOMATIC supporter yet invented.

REQUIRES NO SEWING ON of hooks, buttons or anything else. All that is necessary is to put the supporter on and it "does the rest."

It is what everybody is looking for. Every lady and girl in the land needs one.

Every supporter sold brings two more customers. They only cost 35 cents, so are within the reach of everybody.

WE DO NOT ASK YOU TO INVEST ONE CENT OF YOUR MONEY. If you would like to get one or more of our handsome premiums for using a few moments of your time in our interest, all that is necessary to do, is to write saying, "you would like to earn a premium."

We will then send you, charges paid, the supporters. When you have sold them, you send us the money and obtain your premium WHICH WE SEND TO YOU, FREIGHT CHARGES PREPAID ANYWHERE IN THE UNITED STATES. SO, FROM FIRST TO LAST, YOU DO NOT INVEST A PENNY OF YOUR OWN MONEY.

You take no risk. We trust you with our goods and take back what you can't sell. We have premiums for selling one-half dozen up to one gross. We send a large premium list with first lot containing over 100 offers, all useful as well as ornamental; and we wish you especially to note that when you have earned the premium, it is sent to you PREPAID, if you live in the U. S. So you are actually out only your time. Such an offer has never been made BEFORE.

BETTER WRITE US TO-DAY and be the first to show the great invention in your town.

Address this way:

THE COLVER COMPANY,
DEPT S 815 SCHILLER BLDG., CHICAGO.

NOTE:—If you would like to see our supporter before ordering a quantity, we will send you one, postage paid, on receipt of 35 cents in stamps.

RUBIFOAM

FOR THE TEETH

Fragrant and Pure, Its use adds Sweetness to Soundness.

25c. A BOTTLE.
SAMPLE VIAL FOR 2c. STAMP.
E. W. HOYT & CO.
LOWELL, MASS.

What's Your Opinion about the President

There can be but one opinion about the President Suspender. It is the easiest, freest, most comfortable suspender in the world. Try them.

$1500.00 For Your Estimate.

$1,500 in prizes will be distributed among purchasers of the President Suspender for nearest estimates on forthcoming presidential election. Sold 50 cts. everywhere. Full information with each suspender, or direct from us.

The C. A. Edgarton Mfg. Co., Box 209, Shirley, Mass.

A $12 Bath Cabinet FOR only $5.00

Our new 1902 style Square Quaker guaranteed best of all cabinets at any price. Has real door on hinges, steel frame, best materials, rubber lined, folds flat, lasts 20 years. Turkish and Vapor baths at home 3c each. Open the millions of pores, sweats poisons out of the blood, keeps you clean and healthy, beautifies complexion. Physicians recommend it for Colds, LaGrippe, Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Obesity, Female Ills, all Blood, Skin, Nerve or Kidney troubles. Money refunded after 30 days use, if not as represented. Price with heater, directions, formulas, $5.00. Face Steamer $1.00 extra. Order today. Write us. Valuable Book FREE. Big Wages. Splendid Seller. Agents Wanted.

World Mfg. Co., 87 World B'ld'g, Cincinnati, O.

RIDER AGENTS WANTED

One in each town to ride and exhibit sample 1900 bicycle.

1900 Models, best makes, $11 to $2[illegible]
'99 & '98 Models, high grade $8 to $[illegible]
500 Second-hand Wheels all makes and models, good as new $3 to $10. Great Factory Clearing Sale at half factory cost. We ship anywhere on approval and trial without a cent in advance.

EARN A BICYCLE distributing Catalogues for us. Many earned a wheel last year. Our 1900 proposition is even more liberal.

Write at once for our Bargain List and special offer. Address Dept. 41 H

MEAD CYCLE CO., Chicago

Steel Wheels

Staggered Oval Spokes.

BUY A SET TO FIT YOUR NEW OR OLD WAGON

CHEAPEST AND BEST

way to get a low wagon. Any size wheel, any width tire. Catal. FREE.

Electric Wheel Co., Box 136 Quincy, Ills.

ORNAMENTAL LAWN FENCE

Cheaper than wood. Special Prices to Churches and Cemeteries. Strong, Durable and Cheap. Catalogue Free

COILED SPRING FENCE CO. Box D. Winchester, Indiana.

Money Maker

And saves Print your own cards circular hook, newspaper, with our $5 or $18 printing press. Type setting easy, printed rules sent. For man or boy. Send for catalog, presses, type, paper to factory.

The Press Co., Meriden, Conn

BOYS PAPER FREE if you will send names of 5 boy friends over 12 years of age we will send you the Star for 3 months free. Greatest boys' paper published. Address with stamp, THE STAR, Dept. 30, OAK PARK, ILLS.

$27 with reservoir.

"WHAT FOOLS THESE MORTALS BE"—Puck.

to pay $40 to $60 for a Steel Range that does not cost over $12 at the Factory to build, the difference being profits and expenses of an Army of middlemen. Such folly no longer necessary, as we offer our at one-half agents prices. Guaranteed for 5 years. Money refunded if not entirely satisfactory. Send for big free catalogue of Sewing Machines, Buggies, Harness, and 1000 other Implements at ½ dealers prices.

Peerless Anti-Trust Steel Range

Address HAPGOOD PLOW CO., Alton, Ill. Box 811.

The only Plow Factory in the world selling direct to the farmer.

WHY

Can we Save You Money on a vehicle, harness, fly net or saddle?

Because we have no agents.

Can we really do it? We say yes. Can we prove it without cost to you? We can. How? We will ship you a harness, saddle, or vehicle, without you sending a single cent, and let you look it over at your freight house and if you don't find we have given you the biggest bargain you ever saw or heard of, return the goods to us at our expense. We give with each vehicle a 2-year iron-clad guarantee, protecting you from poor material and workmanship. Our vehicle catalogue describes the largest line of buggies, road wagons, phaetons, surries, spring wagons and carts, harness, fly nets and saddles ever shown in one book. It's free. Send for it.

Marvin Smith Co. 55-59 N. Jefferson St. U-83, Chicago, Ill.

BICYCLES FOR EVERYBODY. NO MONEY IN ADVANCE.

Shipped direct to anyone and guaranteed as represented or money refunded. Save agents large profits and get a wheel at rock bottom wholesale price. Our Arlington Model K is the greatest bargain ever offered; in lots of one or more at $14.85

$35 "Arlington" $16.50
$40 " $18.50
$50 "Oakwood" $21.50

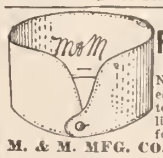
Good wheels $12.50, $11.00 & $10.00 Stripped Wheels $7.00

the Arlington & Oakwood are strictly high grade and the best that can be made. Thoroughly tested and fully guaranteed. Over 100,000 riders can testify to their superior quality, style, construction and workmanship. Illustrated catalog free. CASH BUYERS' UNION, 162 W. Van Buren St., B-18, Chicago, Ills.

DEAD STUCK

kills the eggs and grown-ups of all bed bugs, moths, roaches, ants, etc. Used by the United States Government. Non-poisonous to human life. A liquid powder. As stainless as spring water and as pleasant smelling as tar. 25 cts. per bottle, or in gallon cans for hotels and hospitals. All dealers.

PHILA. CHEMICAL CO.,
2d & Cherry Streets, Philadelphia.



WHITE and FANCY RUBBER COLLARS, CUFFS,

BOSOMS and TIES. Always laundryed; Never wilt; can't be told from linen. Mailed anywhere. Fully patented and guaranteed; Agents wanted; exclusive territory, liberal commission. Send 4 cts. in stamps for Samples. Catalog 150 styles, and terms.

M. & M. MFG. CO., Dept. 17, Springfield, Mass.

OAK BOOK CASE AND DESK FREE

If you sell 30 lbs. Baking Powder at 50c. a lb., with each lb. a Double Steel Roast Pan, 15 in. long, 10 in. wide; (Pan sells at 35 cts. alone); or 50 other articles. Freight paid except to distant points. If preferred 25 per cent. on all sales. We trust you. Illus. cat'e free. C. S. HORNER, 1469 Penn Ave., Pittsburgh, Pa.

CHRISTIAN HERALD

AND SIGNS OF OUR TIMES

OFFICES: BIBLE HOUSE, NEW YORK

Rev. T. De Witt Talmage, D.D., Editor

COPYRIGHT, 1900, BY LOUIS KLOPSCH

NEW YORK, JUNE 20, 1900

VOLUME 23—NUMBER 25

PRICE FIVE CENTS

China's Great Rebellion and our Imperiled Missionaries

1. The Large Photograph Shows a Group of Mission Workers of the North China Mission, Many of Whom are now in Danger of Massacre. 2. Kuang-Kung, a Chinese War God. 3. Principal Gateway of Pekin. 4. Son of Marquis Tseng, a High Official. (See page 515).

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

1. These questions are printed Four weeks in advance so as to afford all our readers an opportunity to answer them.
2. For answers to the questions which appear below, when accepted, we will allow compensation for the matter used at the rate of One Dollar a hundred words. Answers should so far as possible be limited to one hundred words.
3. Answers must be received at this office two weeks in advance of the date in which they are intended to appear.
4. The editor reserves the right to condense accepted answers when necessary, and compensation will be based on the matter as printed.
5. Do not write inquiring if your material has been accepted. If it appears on this page, you will know that it has been accepted.
6. We cannot return any MSS. sent to the Editor of THE MAIL BAG—not even if stamps accompany them.
7. Write only on one side of the sheet and never send on the same sheet anything intended for any other department of the paper. Correspondents answering more than one question should append their name and address to each answer.
8. Address all communications intended for this department, EDITOR THE MAIL-BAG,

The Christian Herald, Bible House, New York

These Questions Will be Answered July 18

1. What should be the attitude of a Christian in regard to labor strikes?
2. Is it consistent with the Christian profession to hold stock in a concern which keeps its employees actively engaged in Sunday labor?
3. What was the origin of press censorship and what was the first instance of its actual operation?
4. What are the leading modern substitutes devised by philosophy for Christianity?
5. How and by whom was the principle of the phonograph discovered?
6. What is the origin of the title Poet-Laureate and who was the first to wear the title?
7. What are the best means a pastor can adopt to hold new converts and develop their spiritual life?
8. Ought a Christian who before his conversion did another a grievous wrong, to atone for that wrong when the only atonement possible would involve the wreck of his happiness and prospects in life?
9. Is a Christian justified in staying at home and reading a good book on a Sunday morning, instead of going to church, if he is sure that he will get more good from the book than from the sermon?
10. What royal prisoner, during his long captivity, made an arithmetical study of the Bible with remarkable results?

Questions of the Week

1. Is there any reason to believe that the spirits of our departed loved ones are with us, and if so, do they have any influence over us?

Paul told the Hebrews that all of God's angels minister to the heirs of salvation, and he represents a line of great saints from earth as "a cloud of witnesses" watching us in the race for the attainment of heavenly honors, but there is not a fairly interpreted passage of the Bible that intimates that our departed loved ones are near to us or have any direct or indirect influence over us. The champions of modern spiritualism teach such presence and influence; but not by Scriptural evidence or the sanction of any branch of the Christian church. S. V. LEECH.

2. What is the origin of the barber's pole and of its decoration in red, white and blue?

The origin of the barber's pole is, according to a late magazine article, as follows: "In the olden days barbers were surgeons as well as hair-cutters, and one of their chief occupations was that of blood-letting, a means of cure much indulged in by the good folks of a century or two ago. In this operation the patient grasped a small pole for the purpose of making his arm tense, in order that the incision in the arm might be more effective. When this pole was not in use it was set up in the window entwined with a fresh bandage of cloth to be used for wrapping about the arm after the next operation. This served the purpose of a sign to the public; and after awhile instead of using the actual pole and bandage for advertising his business, the barber contented himself with a representation of them by putting up at his door a red pole encircled by a spiral stripe of white paint and surmounted with the design of a basin."

J. A. DEMUTH.

Similar answers were received later from several other readers of THE MAIL-BAG.

3. When were playing cards invented?

Authorities differ. Chinese writers say that they were invented in China in the reign of Seun-Ho, 1120 A.D., and that they were first used by this emperor's household. The Brahmins of India claim their invention at a much earlier date. Writers have also ascribed their earliest manufacture to the Arabs, Spaniards, Germans and French. It would promote piety among the young people of our churches if they would abstain from card parties, which greatly weaken spirituality of life.

MRS. ADA L. MCJUNKIN.

4. In Genesis 22: 1, we read: "God did tempt Abraham." In James 1: 13, we read: "Neither tempteth he (God) any man." How may we reconcile these seemingly contradictory passages?

The context shows clearly that the word tempt is not used in the same sense in the two instances. In the first it means test or prove, and we should get the idea by substituting the word try: "God did try Abraham." As, "The Lord trieth the righteous." (Ps. 11: 15). See also, Ps. 7: 9; Jer. 20: 12; I. Thes. 2: 4, etc.

In the second passage it has the additional meaning of exerting influence to effect evil, an idea directly opposed to all his holy attributes. Note that Abraham was not tempted to do evil, but the strength of his faith was tested by the demand to honor the Lord by the sacrifice of that which he held most precious.

MRS. T. W. COSTEN, JR.

5. What is the meaning of the expression, "the law of sin and death," in Romans 8: 2?

It refers to that evil principle in man whereby he is kept in bondage to sin, which is spiritual death, and leads to eternal death. In verse 23 of the preceding chapter he says of this law: "I see another law in my members, warring against the law of my mind, and bringing me into captivity to the law of sin which is in my members." From this law the apostle tells us (in verse quoted in question) he was made free by "the law of the spirit of life in Christ Jesus." W. P. ANDREWS.

6. What was the cause of the Crimean war and under whose generalship was it conducted?

In 1852 Russia and Turkey quarreled about the holy places at Jerusalem, and concerning the protection of Christians, in those countries, on the Danube, over which Turkey ruled. The Russian Emperor, Nicholas, thought the matter might be settled if the English would help him seize these countries, and he, in return, would help them to take Egypt and Candia. England, however, refused and the European Powers tried hard to persuade the Russian Emperor to keep the peace. When the Turks refused to give him power to protect the Christians of Turkey, he sent Russian troops into the Danube principalities. The Turks then crossed the Danube and defeated the Russians on land, while the Russians in return burned the Turkish fleet at Sinope, November 30, 1853. Lord Palmerston, England's Home Secretary at this time, had great influence with the ministers of the crown, and he was very anxious to put an end to Russian power on the Black Sea, so an alliance with France was formed, and the English and French fleets entered the Black Sea to defend the Turks. On March 28, 1854, war was declared by England and France against Russia. The war took place chiefly in the Crimea, a small peninsula jutting out from the South of Russia into the Black Sea. The English general commanding was Lord Raglan, while the French were led by General St. Arnaud. ANNIE MACEDWARD.

7. What is the origin of our secret fraternities and which of those now in existence has the oldest record?

Probably the Freemasons have the oldest record. Discarding as legendary the claim that the order originated with the building of Solomon's temple, we may assume as a fact, for which there is substantial proof, that the order existed in the middle ages, when castles and cathedrals were being built. Masons then traveled from place to place, hoping to find some locality in which a great edifice was being built. In order to prove their standing in their trade, and so readily obtain employment, they passed an examination and were made members of the guild of masons. In an age in which few could write, the method of identification was the knowledge of certain gestures and passwords. This identification also helped the traveling mason to claim the hospitality of other masons during his journeys. The advantages thus secured were so valuable that the mason was threatened with penalties if he disclosed the secrets to other persons. So the secret society developed, and distinguished men who were not masons by trade were admitted. King Charles II. and King William III. of England became masons. The ritual which gave symbolical meanings to the mason's tools and operations appears to have originated in the sixteenth or seventeenth centuries, and to have been in part derived from the Rosicrucians. CHAS. PRITCHARD.

8. How many different kinds of laughter are mentioned or illustrated in the Bible?

1. Laughter of incredulity (Gen. 18: 12). 2. Laughter of joyful wonder (Gen. 17: 17). 3. Laughter of defiance or conscious security (Job 5: 22). 4. Laughter (or in modern parlance, smile) of approbation (Job. 29: 24). 5. Hollow laughter, with undertone of sorrow (Prov. 14: 13). 6. Laughter of derision or scorn, applied by strong anthropomorphism to God (Ps. 2: 4). 7. Laughter of rapturous delight (Ps. 126: 2). AMELIA HOYT.

9. What is the general view among Bible scholars as to the authorship of the Epistle to the Hebrews?

The authorship of this epistle is unknown, but a great majority of Christian scholars from the times of Origen and Jerome have regarded Paul as the author. Luther, Le Clere, De Wette, Tholuck, Dean, Alford and others regarded Apollos as the writer of this epistle; Tertullian, Wieseler, Thiersh and many other Biblical scholars have regarded Barnabas as its author. The Alexandrian church fathers, followed by such great authorities as Forster, Professor Stuart, Dr. S. Davidson and others, have ascribed the authorship to Paul. It has also been ascribed to Clement of Rome, and Luke. A great majority of critics have believed that Paul wrote it. There is an immense literature on the subject.

MRS. ADA L. MCJUNKIN.

10. There is a story told of some emperor or monarch, who asked his chaplain to give him in one word an argument for the Christian religion. "The Jews," responded the chaplain. Who was the questioner in this instance?

It is reported of Frederick the Great, King of Prussia, that on one occasion he demanded of his chaplain a brief argument in support of the Scriptures, when the chaplain replied: "The Jews, your Majesty; the Jews!"

MRS. T. W. COSTEN, JR.

Miscellaneous Questions

Reader, Glen Elder, Kans. Husband and wife, both being church members, the wife wants to go to church and he does not, and is angry if she goes. For two or three days he does not speak to her. Should she go to church with the children or stay at home to please him?

Our first duty is to God and conscience, and it should be performed at whatever sacrifice. There is no law, human or divine, under which a wife can be deprived of exercising the privilege of worship, or attendance at church. It is well, however, to settle such differences quietly if possible and without wrangling.

M. R. Bispham, Earlysville, Pa., writes:

One was sick for whose recovery I was praying, and I decided to acknowledge through THE CHRISTIAN HERALD the recovery, if my prayer was answered. Now that one is so nearly restored to health, I would feel under condemnation if I did not confess to the Almighty power of God.

F. D. C., Smartville, Cal. 1. To whom did Christ refer when he said, "If I will that he tarry till I come. What is that to thee?" 2. Who was the mother of Zebedee's children?

1 To the Apostle John. John 21: 20 plainly shows. 2. Salome. Compare Matthew 27: 56 with Mark 15: 40.

H. C. A., Eaton, Colo. A minister, in pronouncing a marriage ceremony, became embarrassed and omitted to pronounce the couple husband and wife. Are they lawfully married?

We are not familiar with the Colorado laws, but, generally speaking, the omission of the formal declaration by the clergyman does not invalidate the ceremony. The public avowal of the two principals before witnesses, together with the registration, would in most States be held as sufficient.

S. T. C., White Plains, N. Y. Are there many Japanese in the United States?

According to the Federal Census of 1890, there were nearly fifty times as many natives of China as there were natives of Japan in the United States, there being 106,000 of the former to 2,200 of the latter. But since the war between Japan and China, the Japanese immigration to the United States has considerably increased. In the three years ending with 1899, we received 6,600 Japanese immigrants, and still they come, the estimate for 1900 being in excess of 3,000. These figures do not include the Japanese in Hawaii.

M. C., Princeton, Ky. 1. What are the requirements for entering a school for trained nurses, as to age, education, etc. 2. How long after preparation at such a school before one can command wages? 3. What is the cost of training? 4. What are the wages of a trained nurse? 5. Kindly give names of several training schools for nurses.

1. At different institutions requirements differ, and it is not possible to give a rule followed by all. In a general way it may be stated that an applicant must send in two or more responsible references; a physician's certificate as to soundness of health and possession of unimpaired faculties; the age-limit, roughly stated, is between twenty and thirty-five; a good English education, average height, weight and strong physique are usually requisites. 2. The usual term of preparation, is, we believe, about three years. 3. That, we cannot answer, further than to say that at some institutions the services of the nurse, in some hospital or hospitals, with which the training school is in connection, are accepted as an equivalent. 4. A good nurse, upon receiving her diploma from a high-class training school, should have no difficulty in securing work at once. 5. From one dollar to two dollars a day, with board, may be stated as the average, although able, experienced nurses receive as high as twenty-five dollars a week. The life is hard; the average life of sick nurses is short and even a higher salary than the last figure should not tempt a woman to enter this profession, unless she possesses a natural liking for it, together with excellent health and steady nerves. Nurses' School, Presbyterian Hospital, New York City; Nurses' Training School, St. Luke's Hospital, New York City; Illinois Training School for Nurses, Chicago Ill.; St. Luke's Hospital, St. Paul, Minn.; New Orleans, and Louisville in your own State doubtless have excellent institutions, addresses of which could be secured by writing to the postmasters of those cities, or to some clergymen having charges in them.

J. M., Kingman, Kan. 1. Could you publish in THE CHRISTIAN HERALD the last words from the dying beds of some of the most prominent men who have believed in the Bible, and also the last words of those most prominent in attempting to disprove the Bible? 2. Can you give me Christ's definition of the word "everlasting?"

1. Dr. Talmage has given numerous dying words as asked for in some of his sermons over five hundred and twenty of which have just been published by THE CHRISTIAN HERALD in twenty volumes. 2. We have before noted the fact that Christ uses the same word when speaking of the duration of the life of the righteous and the punishment of the wicked. The literal rendering of the speech word (aionios) translated sometimes "eternal," and at other times "everlasting" in the New Testament, is age-lasting. If, with the help of a concordance, you will look up the two words, "eternal" and "everlasting," wherever they occur in the New Testament, you will be able to form a reasonable opinion of Christ's meaning of the word. In Ephesians 3: 11 and I. Timothy 1: 17, the word "everlasting" comes from a slighly different word and in Romans 1: 20, and Jude 6, the word "everlasting" is quite a different word. Omit these four passages, therefore, in your study

E. V. V., Gloversville, N. Y. 1. Where in the Bible is the expression found, "When you are in Rome, do as the Romans do," and of what practical use is it to us, if any? 2. What is the origin of the Apostle's Creed?

1. The expression is not in the Bible. It simply means that so far as practicable one should accommodate himself to the rules and customs of the society in which he finds himself. 2. See this department, question 7, of THE CHRISTIAN HERALD for March 28.

Mr. Arthur Meachen, of Beverley, N. J. writes:

The thought has occurred to me that as the bicycle season is now here, it would be a glorious opportunity for those who love Christ and use the bicycle to take with them as they go on their country journeys a parcel of Illustrated Gospel Tracts and Booklets and some Illustrated Floral Gospel Picture Cards for the children and distribute this good Gospel literature as they go through the country. They will be doing the Lord's work and having the assurance of lightening many hearts and helping to make lives sweeter, brighter and happier. This good Gospel literature may also occasionally be dropped along the road for the next passer-by to pick up. It may also be left at the homes of the people, and the Gospel cards and leaflets may be fastened on trees or fences. Of course, judgment and discretion must be used.

Mr. Meachen's suggestion is one that is capable of practical adoption in many localities. We commend it to our readers.

D. A. P., Jamestown, Kan. What is the meaning of Heb. 6: 6?

1. This text has aroused much discussion but no absolutely and universally satisfactory explanation has been made. Paul did not suggest that he was writing to persons who had fallen into a condition in which salvation was impossible. He says distinctly: "We are persuaded better things of you, and things that accompany salvation though we thus speak" (Heb. 6: 9). Drs. Jameson, Faussett and Brown in their Critical, Experimental and Practical Commentary, say:

A temporary faith is possible, without one there by being of the elect. God's grace is not limited, as if it were impossible for God to reclaim even such a rebel. The impossibility rests in their having known in themselves once the power of Christ's sacrifice, yet now rejecting it; there cannot possibly be new means for their renewal afresh: the means provided by God's love they now, after experience of them, deliberately and continuously reject. Their conscience being seared, "twice dead" (Jude 12), they are past hope, except by a miracle of God's grace. The bar to repentance is in the apostate's present attitude towards God, not in his past history, nor in God's attitude toward him.

J. W. L. We believe there is no institute for teaching the art by mail.

Geo. H. B., Roxabell, N.H. 1. Unfermented wine is now used in many churches. 2. Franklin's is probably the better claim.

W. C. P., Henrietta, Tex. The names of the men who bore the paralytic and removed the tiling to let him down to Jesus are nowhere mentioned in Scripture.

City Missionary S. Foster Grady, 231 Bellevue Ave., Trenton, N.J., would be pleased to hear from any reader of this journal who is specially interested in jail evangelization.

Reader, Wilmington, Del., and others. You can procure leaflets dealing with the question, "Should a Christian play cards?" from Miss Munson, 7 Bible House, New York, at 20 cents a hundred.

W. P. K., Chicago, Ill. We believe it is quite within the range of possibilty that the stage might be so transformed as to become a mighty moral and educational agency. Such a tendency, wherever disclosed, deserves to be encouraged.

A MISSIONARY AT TIEN-TSIN

REV. G. R. DAVIS (METH.) TIEN-TSIN

REV. J. H. ROBERTS AND PARTY, TIEN-TSIN

REV. FRED'K BROWN, (METH.) TIEN-TSIN

MR. AND MRS. HEADLAND

China's Rebellion Spreads

NATIVE CHRISTIANS MASSACRED AND MISSIONARIES IN PERIL ... A MIXED FORCE OF FOREIGNERS TO OCCUPY PEKIN ... REPORTED FLIGHT OF THE EMPRESS

FIERCE fighting is reported from China, where the "Boxer" rebellion is steadily extending. Already the rebels control a large part of Northern China, and having again met and defeated the imperial troops, now threaten to attack the capital itself. Tien-Tsin, the port of Pekin, is surrounded by Boxer hordes, heading toward the royal city. To prevent this, the marines landed by the foreign warships were still manfully striving at last accounts, and two engagements were being fought simultaneously, at points twenty miles apart, between the imperial Chinese soldiery and the fanatical, half-armed mobs of the "Righteous Harmony Fist Society," the name by which the Boxers are designated in China. Russia, jealously apprehensive of Japan, had landed only a small force of troops, but was apparently making strenuous efforts to suppress the rebellion. The British Admiral, at the request of Sir Claude MacDonald, had landed over nine hundred men, and a detachment of British, with machine guns, were trying to force a passage through from Tien-Tsin to Pekin, to protect the embassies. The Chinese General, Neih-si-Chong, with three thousand imperial troops, had been surrounded by the rebels while endeavoring to protect the railroad to Pekin, and another body of imperial troops, sent to Pao-Ting-Fu to rescue the American and British missionaries there, also met with a reverse. The missionaries, however, are said to be safe.

Such is the situation at latest reports, and it is one which gives rise to the gloomiest forebodings. As already explained in THE CHRISTIAN HERALD, the Empress-Dowager and many of the highest officials in China, are at heart favorable to the rebellion.

In his dispatches from Pekin to Washington, U. S. Minister Conger plainly intimates that the Empress-Dowager is insincere in her desire to afford protection to foreigners in China, and that she secretly wishes the success of the rebels. There are about 12,000 Americans in China, including several hundred missionaries. Many of the latter are, with other missionaries and their families, now assembled at Pekin, whither all have been summoned to be under official protection; but a number have not yet reached the capital, and their fate is uncertain.

A STREET IN PEKIN, THE THREATENED CHINESE CAPITAL

TSU-TSI, THE DOWAGER-EMPRESS
From a Chinese portrait

The European diplomats sought a special audience with the Dowager-Empress and made a formal demand for the suppression of the Boxers. U. S. Minister Conger made a similar demand separately. No pledge was given by the imperial government, but its real attitude may be inferred from the tone of an edict lately issued, in which the Boxers are referred to as "honest, but misguided patriots." The edict condemns the action of the Chinese commander, Gen. Neih, whose troops attacked the rebels. Immediately after the issuance of this edict, the Dowager-Empress ordered the withdrawal of all the imperial troops stationed between Tien-Tsin and Pekin, leaving that territory at the mercy of the insurgents. Consequently, our minister has cabled that the presence of a considerable American force is absolutely necessary. It may be decided to send a portion of our army now in the Philippines to the scene of the Chinese troubles; but, if so, it will be for protection exclusively.

It is within the probabilities that the Chinese disturbances may be the precursor of a war of tremendous magnitude, involving Russia with her allies on the one hand, and Japan, with possibly Great Britain and Italy as allies, on the other. Russia, from her great military rendezvous at Port Arthur, conveniently near, is eager to pour an army of Cossacks and artillery into North China, but fears a swift counter-movement by Japan, whose powerful fleet and land forces are held in readiness for instant service. Germany and France could hardly stand aloof, were such a struggle to open. Our own policy, as laid down in the instructions to Minister Conger, is one of strict neutrality, and we shall act independently. Our available fleet will include the Newark, Oregon, Helena, Nashville, Monocacy, Brooklyn, New Orleans and Monadnock.

Latest advices are not reassuring. Disorder is spreading and the people everywhere are befriending the Boxers. Two strong detachments of foreign troops representing several nationalities were on the way from Tien-Tsin to the capital, and preparations were being made to rush forward a combined foreign force of 10,000 troops with machine guns to occupy Pekin. It was rumored that the Empress-Dowager had fled from the palace and sought refuge in the Russian legation. Stories of atrocities by the rebels continue to come in. Seventy-five prominent native Christians have been massacred near Tung-Chow, many being burned alive. Ho Chia Jun village has been attacked and the mission chapel destroyed. The American mission at Pei-Tung-Chow was destroyed and looted, and the missionaries' houses burned. The villagers killed several of the Boxers. The town of Pao-Ting-Fu, already mentioned as the scene of disturbances, is burned. Tung-Chow station has been burned and a number of native Christians massacred. Many converts have been slaughtered at Feng-Tai and Huang-Tsun.

There are rumors that 500 Boxers were killed in a fight near Tien-Tsin, but details are wanting. Our mission station at Neu Pai Tang is wrecked. The South Chihi-li Mission (Rev. H. W. Houlding) is in peril, and a number of American missionaries at other points are said to be in extreme danger.

American interest in the present Chinese troubles is largely focalized on the missionaries. In this connection, the photographs which appear in this issue of THE CHRISTIAN HERALD are especially timely and interesting. They are furnished through the courtesy of the American Board of Commissioners for Foreign Missions, and also by the kindness of Rev. E. E. Aiken and Rev. Mr. Headland, long active in the field. The large photograph on the first page shows a group of members of the North China Mission, of the American Board, assembled for the annual meeting at Tung-chou, near Pekin. The two gentlemen sitting near the center of the picture are, on the right, Rev. Henry Blodget, D.D., founder of the mission, and one of the translators of the Bible into Chinese; on the left, Rev. D. Z. Sheffield, D.D., President of the North China College and Theological Seminary, at Tung-chou, near Pekin, and one of the leading scholars, educators and writers in China. On the left is Rev. Chauncey Goodrich, D.D., Professor in the Theological Seminary at Tung-chou, author of a dictionary of English and Chinese and other works.

The third figure from the left is W. C. Noble, M.D., physician at the Pao-Ting-Fu station of the mission, which is reported to have been attacked by the Boxers last Sunday night. Dr. Noble and his family are at present in this country.

The North China Mission of the American Board has seven stations in North China: Pekin, Tien-Tsin, Tung-Chou, Ralgan, Pao-Ting-Fu, Pang-Chuang and Sin-Ching. Ralgan is on the Great Wall, on the borders of Mongolia; the other six are on the Great Plain. Pao-Ting-Fu is the capital of the province, and is, therefore, a city of some importance. The last two stations, Pang-Chuang and Sin-Ching, are in the western part of the Shan Tung province; all the others are in the province of Chihli. There are forty-four missionaries now on the field in these seven stations of the American Board.

It is earnestly to be hoped that the means now being used by the legations at Pekin will result in the rescue of the missionaries and their families, and will lead to the early restoration of order. In the present crisis, China needs the prayers of God's people for the enlightenment of its rulers and the return of peace to its distracted millions.

DR. E. FLEMING
Miss'y in Choa-Fu

MISS BESSIE McCOY
Pres. Miss'y, Pekin

THE METROPOLITAN PULPIT.

Broadest Comfort

A Sermon by Rev. T. De Witt Talmage, D.D., on the Text, Matt. 14: 12 . . . . .

And his disciples went and told Jesus.

AN outrageous assassination had just taken place. To appease a revengeful woman, King Herod ordered the death of that noble, self-sacrificing prophet, John the Baptist. The group of the disciples were thrown into grief and dismay. They felt themselves utterly defenseless. There was no authority to which they could appeal, and yet grief must always find expression. If there be no human ear to hear it, then the agonized soul will cry it aloud to the winds and the woods and the waters. But there was an ear that was willing to listen. There is a tender pathos, and at the same time a most admirable picture, in the words of my text: "They went and told Jesus." He could understand all their grief, and he immediately soothed it. Our burdens are not more than half so heavy to carry if another shoulder is put under the other end of them. Here we find Christ, his brow shadowed with grief, standing amid the group of disciples, who, with tears and violent gesticulations and wringing of hands and outcry of bereavement, are expressing their woe. Raphael, with his skilful brush putting upon the wall of a palace some scene of sacred story, gave not so skilful a stroke as when the plain hand of the evangelist writes, "They went and told Jesus."

In the first place, I commend the behavior of these disciples to all burdened souls who are unpardoned. There comes a time in almost every man's history when he feels from some source that he has an erring nature. The thought may not have such heft as to fell him. It may be only like the flash in an evening cloud just after a very hot summer day. One man to get rid of that impression will go to prayer, another will stimulate himself by ardent spirits, and another man will dive deeper in secularities. But sometimes a man cannot get rid of these impressions. The fact is, when a man finds out that his eternity is poised upon a perfect uncertainty, and that the next moment his foot may slip, he must do something violent to make himself forget where he stands, or else fly for refuge.

Some of you crouch under a yoke and you bite the dust, when, this moment, you might rise up a crowned conqueror. Driven and perplexed as you have been by sin, go and tell Jesus. To relax the grip of death from your soul, and plant your unshackled feet upon the golden throne, Christ let the tortures of the bloody mount transfix him. With the beam of his own cross he will break down the door of your dungeon. From the thorns of his own crown he will pick enough gems to make your brow blaze with eternal victory. In every tear on his wet cheek; in every gash of his side; in every long, blackening mark of laceration from shoulder to shoulder; in the grave-shattering, heaven-storming death groan, I hear him say, "Him that cometh unto me, I will in nowise cast out."

"Oh," but you say, "instead of curing my wound you want to make another wound — namely, that of conviction!" Have you never known a surgeon to come and find a chronic disease, and then with sharp caustic burn it all out? So the grace of God comes to the old sore of sin. It has long been rankling there, but by Divine grace it is burned out through these fires of conviction, "the flesh coming again as the flesh of a little child;" "where sin abounded, grace much more aboundeth." With the ten thousand unpardoned sins of your life, go and tell Jesus.

Again, I commend the behavior of the disciples to all who are tempted. I have heard men in mid-life say they had never been led into temptation. If you have not felt temptation it is because you have not tried to do right. A man hoppled and handcuffed, as long as he lies quietly, does not test the power of the chain; but when he rises up, and with determination resolves to snap the handcuff or break the hopple, then he finds the power of the iron. And there are men who have been for ten and twenty and thirty years bound hand and foot by evil habits who have never felt the power of the chain, because they have never tried to break it. It is very easy to go on down with the stream and with the wind lying on your oars; but just turn around and try to go against the wind and the tide, and you will find it is a different matter. As long as we go down the current of our evil habit we seem to get along quite smoothly; but if after awhile we turn around and head the other way, toward Christ and pardon and heaven, oh, then how we have to lay to the oars! You will have your temptation. You have one kind, you another, you another, not one person escaping.

It is all folly for you to say to some one, "I could not be tempted as you are." The lion thinks it is so strange that the fish should be caught with a hook. The fish thinks it is so strange that the lion should be caught with a trap. You see some man with a cold, phlegmatic temperament, and you say, "I suppose that man has not any temptation." Yes, as much as you have. In his phlegmatic nature he has a temptation to indolence and censoriousness, and over-eating and drinking; a temptation to ignore the great work of life; a temptation to lay down an obstacle in the way of all good enterprises. The temperament decides the styles of temptation; but sanguine or lymphatic, you will have temptation. Satan has a grappling-hook just fitted for your soul. A man never lives beyond the reach of temptation. You say when a man gets to be seventy or eighty years of age he is safe from all Satanic assault. You are very much mistaken. A man at eighty-five years of age has as many temptations as a man at twenty-five. They are only different styles of temptation. Ask the aged Christian whether he is never assaulted of the powers of darkness. If you think you have conquered the power of temptation, you are very much mistaken.

A man who wanted a throne pretended he was very weak and sickly, and if he was elected he would soon be gone. He crawled upon his crutches to the throne, and having attained it he was strong again. He said: "It was well for me while I was looking for the sceptre of another that I should stoop, but now that I have found it, why should I stoop any longer?" and he threw away his crutches and was well again. How illustrative of the power of temptation! You think it is a weak and crippled influence; but give it a chance and it will be a tyrant in your soul; it will grind you to atoms. What must a man do? When the wave strikes him with terrific dash, shall he have nothing to hold on to? In this contest with "the world, the flesh, and the devil," shall a man have no help, no counsel? Our text intimates something different. In those eyes that wept with the Bethany sisters I see shining hope. In that voice which spake until the grave broke and the widow of Nain had back her lost son, and the sea slept, and sorrow stupendous woke up in the arms of rapture—in that voice I hear the command and the promise, "Cast thy burden on the Lord, and he will sustain thee." Why should you carry your burdens any longer? Oh, you weary soul, Christ has been in this conflict. He says, "My grace shall be sufficient for you. You shall not be tempted above that you are able to bear." Therefore, with all your temptations, go, as these disciples did, and tell Jesus.

Again, I commend the behavior of the disciples to all those who are abused and to the slandered and persecuted. When Herod put John to death the disciples knew that their own heads were not safe. And do you know that every John has a Herod? There are persons in life who do not wish you very well. Your misfortunes are honeycombs to them. Through their teeth they hiss at you, misinterpret your motives, and would be glad to see you upset. No man gets through life without having a pummeling. Some slander comes after you, horned and husked and hoofed, to gore and trample you; and what are you to do? I tell you plainly that all who serve Christ must suffer persecution. It is the worst sign in the world for you to be able to say, "I have not an enemy in the world." A woe is pronounced in the Bible against the one of whom everybody speaks well. If you are at peace with all the world, and everybody likes you and approves your work, it is because you are an idler in the Lord's vineyard, and are not doing your duty. All those who have served Christ, however eminent, have been maltreated at some stage of their experience. All who will live godly in Christ Jesus must suffer persecution. And I set it down as the very worst sign in all your Christian experience if you are, any of you, at peace with all the world. The religion of Christ is war. It is a challenge to "the world, the flesh, and the devil"; and if you will buckle on the whole armor of God, you will find a great host disputing your path between this and heaven.

But what are you to do when you are assaulted and slandered and abused, as I suppose nearly all of you have been in your life? Go out and hunt up the slanderer? Oh, no, silly man! While you are explaining away a falsehood in one place, fifty people will just have heard of it in other places. I counsel you to another course. While you are not to omit any opportunity of setting yourselves right, I want to tell you of One who had the hardest things said about him, whose sobriety was disputed, whose mission was scouted, whose companionship was denounced, who was pursued as a babe and spit upon as a man, who was howled at after he was dead. I will have you go unto him with your bruised soul, in some humble, child-prayer, saying: "I see thy wounds—wounds of head, wounds of feet, wounds of heart. Now, look at my wounds, and see what I have suffered, and through what battles I am going; and I entreat thee, by those wounds of thine, sympathize with me." And he will sympathize and he will help. Go and tell Jesus.

Again, I commend the behavior of the disciples to all the bereaved. How many in garb of mourning! How many emblems of sorrow you behold everywhere! God has his own way of taking apart a family. We must get out of the way for coming generations. We must get off the stage that others may come on, and for this reason there is a long procession reaching down all the time into the valley of shadows. This emigration from time into eternity is so vast an enterprise that we cannot understand it. Every hour we hear the clang of the sepulchral gate. The sod must be broken. The body of the child that was folded so closely to the mother's heart is put away in the cold and the darkness. Widowhood stands with tragedies of woe struck into the pallor of the cheek. Orphanage cries in vain for father and mother. Oh, the grave is cruel! With teeth of stone it clutches for its prey. Between the closing gates of the sepulchre our hearts are mangled and crushed.

Is there any earthly solace? None. We come to the obsequies, we sit with the grief-stricken, we talk pathetically to their soul; but soon the obsequies have passed, the carriages have left us at the door, the friends who stayed for a few days are gone, and the heart sits in desolation listening for the little feet that will never again patter through the hall, or looking for the entrance of those who will never come again—sighing into the darkness—ever and anon coming across some book or garment, or little shoe or picture, that arouses former association, almost killing the heart. Long days and nights of suffering that wear out the spirit, and expunge the bright lines of life, and give haggardness to the face, and draw the flesh tight down over the cheek-bone, and draw dark lines under the sunken eye, and the hand is tremulous, and the voice is husky and uncertain, and the grief is wearing, grinding, exhausting.

Now, what are such to do? Are they merely to look up into a brazen and unpitying sky? Are they to walk a blasted heath unfed of stream, unsheltered by overarching trees? Has God turned us out on the barren common to die? Oh, no! no! no! He has not. He comes with sympathy and kindness and love. He understands all our grief. He sees the height and the depth and the length and the breadth of it. He is the only one that can fully sympathize. Go and tell Jesus. Sometimes when we have trouble we go to our friends and we explain it, and they try to sympathize; but they do not understand it. They cannot understand it. But Christ sees all over it, and all through it. He not only counts the tears and records the groans, but before the tears started, before the groans began, Christ saw the inmost hiding-place of your sorrow; and he takes it, and he weighs it, and he measures it, and he pities it with an all-absorbing pity. Bone of our bone. Flesh of our flesh. Heart of our heart. Sorrow of our sorrow. As long as he remembers Lazarus' grave he will stand by you in the cemetery. As long as he remembers his own heart-break, he will stand by you in the laceration of your affections. When he forgets the footsore way, the sleepless nights, the weary body, the exhausted mind, the awful cross, the solemn grave, then he will forget you, but not until then.

Often when we were in trouble we sent for our friends; but they were far away, they could not get to us. We wrote to them, "Come right away," or telegraphed, "Take the next train." They came at last, yet were a great while in coming, or perhaps were too late. But Christ is always near—before you, behind you, within you. No mother ever threw her arms around her child with such warmth and ecstacy of affection as Christ has shown toward you. Close at hand—nearer than the staff upon which you lean, nearer than the cup you put to your lip, nearer than the handkerchief with which you wipe away your tears—I preach him an ever-present, all sympathizing, compassionate Jesus. How can you stay away one moment from him with your griefs? Go now. Go and tell Jesus.

A little child went with her father, a sea-captain, to sea, and when the first storm came the little child was very much frightened, and in the night rushed out of the cabin and said, "Where is father? where is father?" Then they told her, "Father is on deck guiding the vessel and watching the storm." The little child immediately returned to her berth and said, "It's all right, for father's on deck." O, ye who are tossed and driven in this world, up by the mountains and down by the valleys, and at your wit's end, I want you to know the Lord God is guiding the ship. Your Father is on deck. He will bring you through the darkness into the harbor. Trust in the Lord. Go and tell Jesus.

If you go to him for pardon and sympathy, all is well. Everything will brighten up, and joy will come to the heart and sorrow will depart; your sins will be forgiven and your foot will touch the upward path; and the shining messengers that report above what is done here will tell it until the great arches of God resound with the glad tidings, if now, with contrition, you will only go and tell Jesus.

But I am oppressed, as I think of those who may not take this counsel, and may remain unblessed. I cannot help asking what will be the destiny of these people? Xerxes looked off on his army. There were two million men—perhaps the finest army ever marshalled. Xerxes rode along the lines, reviewed them, came back, stood on some high point, looked off upon the two million men, and burst into tears. At that moment, when every one supposed he would be in the greatest exultation, he broke down in grief. They asked him why he wept. "Ah!" he said, "I weep at the thought that so soon all this host will be dead." So I think of these vast populations of immortal men and women, and realize the fact, that soon the places which know them now will know them no more, and they will be gone—whither? whither? There is a stirring idea which the poet put in very peculiar verse when he said:

'Tis not for man to trifle; life is brief.
And sin is here;
Our age is but the falling of a leaf—
A dropping tear.
Not many lives, but only one have we—
One, only one;
How sacred should that one life ever be—
That narrow span!

IN THE FINAL THROES : : : : OF THE FAMINE

AMERICA'S GIFT OF CORN TO STARVING INDIA EAGERLY AWAITED BY HER PERISHING MILLIONS : : : : :

PROBABLY by the time this number is in the hands of its readers, the good ship, Quito, bearing the magnificent gift of American Christians to the famishing people of India will have been sighted from Bombay. None can tell but those who have witnessed famine what the spectacle of that steamer will mean to the people. It is literally to many the gift of life. To the missionaries it will be as welcome as to the people. It will be an object lesson more potent than their teaching, for it will enforce their teaching and will prove to the starving people that the spirit of Christ is alive in his followers at this day. Every bag of corn will be vocal with the message of the Gospel, and He who fed the five thousand by the shores of Galilee, will bless the gift that is made in his name. The whole cargo will be distributed by the American missionaries who form the Inter-denominational Committee. As with the large sums of money previously cabled, THE CHRISTIAN HERALD has felt that this gift of Christians should be distributed by Christians that the people may know why it is that strangers on the other side the world take pity upon them, and may be led to love him whose spirit inspired the gift.

It is gratifying to learn from an appeal just issued by the distinguished missionary, Mr. Henry St. Dalmas of the Society of Friends, how welcome will be the cargo of American corn. From a summary of the appeal printed by the Bombay Guardian, it appears that Mr. St. Dalmas advises the application of some part of the fund raised by the Mayor of London for the purchase of transmission to India. He also proposes that a public meeting should be held at once endorsing this mode of relief. He advises some of the missionary famine funds to combine and with the help of business men on both sides of the Atlantic arrange for a consignment of corn to be sent to India. Happily one ship-load (that of the Quito) of corn for disbursement by missionaries is already on its way from America to India. Mr. St. Dalmas closes as follows: "This is the third great famine in which it has been my sad privilege to take part in relief measures during scarcely thirty years' residence in India, and I am firmly convinced that immense good could be done by the importation of corn, without hindering for a moment the grand relief measures of the Indian Government, and of others who are engaged in seeking to save the lives of men, in this bloodless campaign against famine and death."

A Foodless Village

In confirmation of this unequivocal endorsement of this mode of famine relief and as showing the urgent need of food Mr. St. Dalmas mentions an incident reported by Mr. Eddy, the College Secretary of the Student Volunteer Movement, who has been traveling in the famine districts. He was at a village in which the people were starving. Some had eaten nothing for days. The missionary could not buy them a handful of grain in that village, for there was none to sell.

Referring to the arrival of Dr. Klopsch in India, which was expected on the day the Guardian was published, that journal said: "We are glad to hear that Dr. Louis Klopsch, of THE CHRISTIAN HERALD, New York, is expected to arrive in Bombay by the incoming mail steamer to-day. During two famines he has exerted himself nobly on behalf of India's suffering ones, and he deserves a warm and hearty welcome. Arriving at a time when the dangers of cholera and plague are added to the burning heat of an overheated Indian May, we shall but voice the feeling of all when we express the hope that Dr. Klopsch may not be injured by these or other dangers."

Relief for Heavy Hearts

Dr. J. E. Robinson, editor of the Indian Witness, also extended a cordial welcome combined with thanks for the funds apportioned to his mission and just then received for distribution among the famine sufferers through American Methodist Episcopal missionaries. He says in an editorial: "Returning to Calcutta with a heavy heart as the result of personal investigation in the famine region of Gujarat, the first thing placed in our hand on alighting from the train was a cable-gram from the New York CHRISTIAN HERALD announcing that a further sum of $5,000 for famine relief had just been cabled in Dr. Klopsch's name. We could only thank God and take courage, and rejoice that help is forthcoming so liberally from various countries, especially from America. According to Reuter's cable dispatches, Dr. Klopsch himself will be in India soon. No foreigner of whom we have any knowledge has done so much for the afflicted people of India as this New York journalist, who has consecrated his paper to the high ministry of succoring the poor and needy of this and other lands."

When we read Dr. Robinson's report of what he witnessed, we are not surprised that he wrote with "a heavy heart."

"It is impossible," he says, "to exaggerate the condition and appearance of those who find their way into the poor-houses. Numbers die on the way. Their strength is unequal to the journey. Straggling in from distant villages to the larger stations where relief is provided by the Government, large numbers reach the poor-houses in the extreme of debility, incapable of assimilating food, and utterly devoid of strength to resist the attack of the first disease that lays hold on them. Poor wrecks are constantly added to the inmates by the police and the dhooli bearers, who find them on the roadsides and under trees and carry them to the poor-house. The impression made upon one by these living skeletons is simply harrowing. Nothing goes to one's heart so painfully as the sight of the little children whose wasted bodies seem beyond all possibility of recuperation, no matter how carefully attended to they may be.

"At the beginning of scarcity the missionaries were among the first to apprehend the coming distress. They clearly saw that a time of exceptional scarcity was at hand, and that there would be widespread distress throughout Gujarat. Their first concern naturally was for the several thousands of their Gujarati Christians who were certain to be among the most severe sufferers. The problem was how to save these poor people from starvation without demoralizing them; how to provide work for them so that they should be able to survive the horrors of famine without absolutely becoming pensioners on the bounty of the mission or the Government; how to secure a food supply sufficient to keep them alive, and to prevent the breaking up and scattering of families, which would simply mean disaster to the work of the mission which might not be repaired in many years.

FAMINE SUFFERERS EXCAVATING TANKS IN A GOVERNMENT RELIEF CAMP IN INDIA

"Rev. Edwin F. Frease [the secretary of THE CHRISTIAN HERALD'S Inter-denominational Committee], resolved to establish food grain depots at several stations, where the people could obtain grain at actual cost, or if necessary—as it was found to be—at a small loss. Capital to allow of the purchase of grain on favorable terms was appealed for and received, although not to the extent that could be desired. About four hundred tons of maize, or forty railway wagon loads, have been sold at these mission depots. Many thousands of villagers have been relieved in their own villages, besides those on relief works. Large numbers have traveled twenty miles for a week's supply, because, as they explained, 'the difference between the rate at which the corn was sold by the missionaries and the local bazaar rate was just the difference between starvation and life.'"

Practical Help

But it soon became clear that the people could not find money to purchase the grain, even at this low price. Mr. Frease then secured money for the purchase of yarn with which he kept six hundred weavers at work, thus supporting over three thousand persons. The product of the looms was turned into the mission and sold, the proceeds being again invested in yarn. In this way the indefatigable missionary has enabled the people to earn the relief provided for them.

An American missionary who passed through Dohad in the course of a journey in the famine district, writes: "By the wayside, scattered over the plain, in little corners here and there, people too weak to walk were lying; near the city were thousands at work cleaning out a reservoir. There was more of this city than in any locality I have yet visited; little children often seen scraping among the dust and filth in hope of finding a grain of food, and greedily devouring any particle found in it. About a mile from the city, I saw the saddest sight I have yet seen. There were seven hundred people, all seemingly as bad as the worst in other places. They were literally living skeletons. The ground was covered with those too weak to sit up; very many of them, especially the children, could live but a few days longer. The poor little children! To see them was the saddest of all; the poor mother too weak to even notice the little bundle of skin and bones lying on the sand beside her. Around about Dohad the people are perishing for want of water as much as for want of food. One does not like to think that it is yet three months before rain can be even hoped for, and six months before any harvest can be gathered; but even though the summer rains be abundant, there will not be either men or cattle in a fit condition to prepare the ground. In some places the people gather bark from trees, grind it, and mix meal or flour with it and make it into cakes; terrible intestine trouble is the result. Many are so weakened from lack of food that when they do receive it, they sicken and die."

Starving in the Streets

In the course of an address delivered a few days ago, Rev. E. S. Hume, the convener of our Inter-denominational Missionary Committee, who is now in this country trying to regain his health, said: "I have read the accounts of the famine published in the American papers. I have seen the pictures, and I have seen the conditions in the famine districts, and I can assure you that the actual state of affairs is much more terrible than printed or pictured. And the worst of it is that no relief can be expected until the crop is gathered in October. I notice cablegrams to the effect that rains have fallen in Mysore. This, however, has little bearing on the famine question. Mysore is on the extreme edge of the famine area.

"At the worst centres, as in Gujarat and Rajputana, conditions are dreadful beyond all description. Before leaving India, I visited the Government relief works at Ahmedabad, and Ghodra, in Gujarat, and saw those awful sights that photographs are making familiar to people here.

"Distress is greatest in the native states, where, on account of their independence, British control is least, and where native rulers are more indifferent to human life. There are 688 native states. More than 500 are in the famine district, and about half of these are in the Bombay Presidency. In the native states particularly, the missionaries, both American and European, are doing heroic work. There are hundreds of brave, devoted men and women rescuers in the field. The extent of their work depends wholly on the means furnished them. There is already a vast number of orphans and deserted children to be cared for. Some missions have taken more than a thousand."

Around the World with Josiah Allen's Wife

COPYRIGHT, 1899, BY MARIETTA HOLLEY

CHAPTER XXIX.

ILLUSTRATIONS BY H. M. PETTIT

Samantha in Palestine

THE next day we started for Jerusalem by way of Joppa and Ismalia. It wuz on a fair evenin', as the settin' sun made strange reflections on earthly things, we entered through the gate into Jerusalem, city of our God. Nineteen centuries since, the Star moved along through the December night and stood over the lonely manger in Bethlehem where a Babe wuz born. The three wise men wuz the first visitors to that Child. Now fifteen thousand visitors come yearly from every part of the world to look upon this sacred place where the Man of Sorrows lived his sorrowful life of good to all, suffered and died, and the heavenly King burst the bonds of the tomb and ascended into heaven.

In these streets did sad-eyed prophets walk to and fro, carrying the message of the coming of the King. They were stunned by the gain-sayin' world, jest as it stuns its prophets to-day, only with different kinds of stuns mebby, but hard ones. Here they wuz afflicted, tormented, beaten, sawn asunder for uttering the truth as God made it known to them, jest as they are to-day, of whom the world wuz not worthy. Just like to-day. Here after centuries had gone by, the truth they had foretold become manifest in the flesh. Jest as it shall be. After hundreds of years had gone by, he whom the prophets foretold wuz born in Bethlehem, and the three wise men, fur apart, knowin' nothin' of each other, wuz warned of his birth and wuz told to foller the Star. They obeyed the heavenly vision and met on the pathless desert, as the souls and heart's desires of all good men and wimmen meet who follow the Star!

Oh sacred place! to be thus honored. What emotions I felt as my own feet trod these roads, my own eyes looked on these sacred places.

The next morning after our arrival we went up to the Mount of Olives, and from a tower two hundred feet high looked down on Jerusalem. The Mount of Olives is a long, low ridge on the east of the city. The Garden of Gethsemine is down on the foot of Olivet near the brook Kedron. Here eight great olive trees much larger than the rest form a sacred grove from whose melancholy shadows might well come that agonizing cry to his disciples for human sympathy and love:

"Could ye not watch with me one hour?"

Memories of Gethsemane

Here did Judas come over the brook Kedron with the hungry, cruel mob and betray him with a kiss. It wuz in this place that our Lord give that glorious promise that lightens life and death:

"After I be risen I will go before you."

Every leaf of the old olive trees seemed trembling and full of memories of that hour. To the west was the valley of Jehosiphet, beyend is the city of the King. Back of you is Bethany, the home of the friends of Jesus where he tasted sometimes the human sweets of friendship, in the home of Lazarus and his sisters, Mary and Martha. A beautiful soul Mary wuz, and Martha, poor creeter! I've always been sorry for her, workin' away doin' the housework when she would much rather, no doubt, set and listen as Mary did, but somebody had to do the cookin'. So she jest drouged round the house.

You can see the Dead Sea and the river Jordan, where our Lord wuz baptized and the Dove descended out of the gardens of heaven and lit on him, whilst the voice of the father God spoke, "This is my beloved Son in whom I am well pleased."

Not far away from there is Jericho. On the southwest rises the Hill of Zion, one of the four hills on which Jerusalem stands. As I looked on it I spoke to my pardner almost onbeknown to me, "Oh, Josiah! how many times we've sung together:

'The Hill of Zion yields a thousand sacred sweets,
Before we reach the heavenly fields or walk the golden streets.'

"But," sez I, "did you ever expect to set your mortal eyes on't?" He wuz affected I could see he wuz, though he tried to conceal it by nibblin' on some figs he had bought that mornin'.

Miss Meechim wuz all carried away with the seen as the guide pinted out the different places. Robert Strong and Dorothy didn't seem to want to talk much, but their faces wuz writ over with characters of rapt and reverential emotion.

Arvilly for once seemed to forgit her canvassin' and her keen bright eyes wuz softened into deep thought and feeling.

AT THE JAFFA GATE

THE HOLY CITY FROM THE MOUNT OF OLIVES

Copyright, 1900, by Louis Klopsch

AT RACHEL'S TOMB

Tommy, who had heard us talkin' about Herod walling in that part of the city, wonnered how any man could be so wicked as the cruel king who killed all the little children, and he wonnered if there ever wuz another king in the hull world so wicked.

And my Josiah soothed his childish feelings by assuring him that all such wicked rulers wuz dead and buried ages ago.

Wicked Rulers of To-day

And so queer is Arvilly's mind since what she's went through that she spoke right up and told Tommy that there wuz lots of rulers to-day jest as wicked and fur wickeder. Sez she, "There are plenty of men in every city in America that get the right from the rulers of the country to destroy children in a much worse way than to cut their heads off."

Sez she, "There are men who entice young children to smoke cigarettes, drugged on purpose to form a thirst for strong drink, then enticed into drinking-dives, where goodness and innocence are murdered and evil passions planted and nursed into life, for the overthrowing of all their goodness, for the murder of their family's safety and happiness and making them the nation's menace and greatest danger."

And Tommy wonnered and wonnered what could make men do so and so did I.

And Arvilly sez, "What is cuttin' off the heads of twenty or thirty babies compared to the thousands and thousands of murders that this licensed evil causes every year?"

Tommy's pretty face looked sad and he sez: "Why do good folks let it go on?"

And Arvilly sez: "Heaven knows—I don't. But I've cleared my skirts in the matter. There won't be any innocent blood on my skirts at the last day."

And Tommy bent his head and looked intently at the bottom of her dress; and I see my pardner furtively glance at the bottom of his own pantaloons; he acted guilty.

The Phylacteries

It is about two milds and a quarter round the city; the walls are thirty or forty feet high; there are thirty-four towers on the walls, and the city has eight gates. It has a population of one hundred thousand, more Jews than any other race; for according to Scripture, jest as the Jews wuz scattered to the four winds of heaven, they have of late been flocking home to Jerusalem jest as the old prophets predicted exactly.

During their hours of prayer, many Jews wear phylactrys bound to their forwards and arms, and Robert Strong said he saw one nailed to a door post.

It is a long, narrer case, shaped some like a thermometer, with a round hole towards the top of it covered with a lid which they can lift up and see a few words of the ancient parchment inside, some as the little boy had his prayer inted on the head-board. and on cold ghts would pint to it, sayin', "O Lord. em's my sentiments."

But these Jews did it to carry out loses' command to bind the words of ie law for a sign on their arms, their eads and their door posts.

THE STAR IN THE CHAPEL

The writing in these phylactrys is so erfect that you can hardly believe that is done with a pen. The Jews are exemely careful in copying the oracles of God. They still write copies of their Old estament Scriptures, and every page ust have jest so many lines, and jest the ame number of words and letters.

Robert Strong said that this was a great roof of the truth of the Scriptures. Sez e: "Our Saviour said that one jot or ttle of the law shall not fail."

"Jot" and "Tittle"

Tommy wanted to know what that eant, and Robert told him that "jot" wuz ie smaliest letter in the Hebrew alphabet, nd "tittle" meant the little horn-shaped ark over some of the letters.

And I sez: "I never knew what that eant before." But Miss Meechim said he did—she always duz know everything rom the beginning, specially after she's earn some one explain it. But to resoom: Ve went to the Church of the Holy Sepulchre, where many different religious ects come to worship. The place where nany think the body of our Lord wuz ain when he wuz taken down from the ross is covered with a slab worn down by the worshipers, and in the little chapel ound it forty-three lamps are kep' burning night and day.

But I felt more inclined to think that he place where the body of our Lord wuz ain wuz outside the city where the rocky ill forms a strange resemblance to a uman skull, answering to the Bible description. Near there a tomb, long buried, as been found lately that corresponds vith the Bible record, which sez: "Now n the garden was a new tomb wherein no nan had been lain." There wuz places in his tomb for three bodies, but only one ad been finished, and scientists say that o body has ever crumbled into the dust hat covers this tomb. Ruins show that ges back an arched temple once covered his spot. But what matters the very spot where his body lay, or from where he scended into the heavens. , Mebby it can't be told for certain after all these ears; but we know that his weary feet rod these dusty roads. And as we traveled to Bethlehem and Bethany and Nazareth, his presence seemed to go before us.

Josiah Explains

It wuz a lovely morning when we left Jerusalem by the Jaffa gate and went down acrost the valley of Hinnom, up acrost the hill of Evil Council, and acrost the broad plain where David fought many a battle and Solomon went about in all his glory.

We stopped a few minutes at the convent of Mar Elias to see the fine view. From here you can see both places where the Saviour wuz born and where he died. It is a very sightly spot, and I hearn Josiah tell Tommy:

"This is a beautiful place, Tommy; it wuz named after Miss Elias; her children built it to honor their Mar; and it ort to make you think, Tommy, that you must always mind your Mar."

"Mar?" says Tommy inquirin'ly. "Do you mean my mamma or my grandma?"

I wuz glad the rest of the party wuz some distance away and didn't hear him. Josiah always jest crowds his explanations, full and runnin' over with morals, but he gits things wrong. I hated to hurt his feelin's but I had to tell Tommy this wuz named. I spozed, from the prophet, Elijah, who wuz, they say, helped by angels on this very spot as he flowed away from Jezabel; they gin him water and food, such good food that after eating it he could travel forty days and forty nights without eating agin.

Jezabel wuzn't a likely woman at all; I wouldn't been willin' to neighbor with her.

Rachel's tomb is a little furder on. It is a long, rough-lookin' structure with a round ruff on the highest end on't. Christian, Jew and Moslem all agree that this is Rachel's tomb. It wuz right here that little Benoni wuz born and his ma named him while her soul wuz departing, for she died.

A New David Needed

I heard Josiah talkin' with Tommy about "little Ben." I hated to have him call him so, but didn't know as it would do much hurt this late day. Right about here dwelt Ruth and Naomi. A sweet girl, Ruth wuz; I always thought she wuz plenty good enough for Boaz, but then I d'no but he wuz good enough for her. 'Tennyrate, her actions wuz a perfect pattern to daughter-in-laws.

Here on these sands the giant, Goliath, strode out pompously to be slain by a stun from a sling sent by David when he wuz a shepherd boy. "How I wished I had some of them stuns to slay the evil giants of 1900," sez I. "If a stun could be aimed at Intemperance and another at the big monopolies and destroy 'em as dead as Goliath, what a boon it would be."

And Arvilly sez, "Where will you git your sling, and where will you git your Davids?"

Sez I, "The ballot is a good sling, that could kill 'em both stun dead, but I d'no where I could git any Davids at present," and she didn't nor Josiah, but I felt in hopes that there would be one riz up, for always when the occasion demands, the Lord sends the right man to fill the place.

Well, presently we arrove at Bethlehem (House of Bread). I mentioned its meaning, and Josiah sez:

"I do hope I'll git some yeast risin' here that will taste a little like yourn, Samantha."

So little did he dwell on the divine meanin' that wuz thrillin' my heart. House of Bread, sacred spot from which proceeded the living bread, that if anyone eat he should never more hunger.

The Church of the Nativity, the place that we sought first in the village is the oldest Christian church in the world. It wuz built by Helena, mother of Constantine, 330 A. D. It is owned by a good many different sects who quarrel quite considerable over it, as they would be likely to in Jonesville if our M. E. church wuz owned too by Baptists and 'Piscopalians, etc.

In the Sacred Grotto

We spoze this church wuz built on the site of the tarven where our Lord wuz born. Goin' down the windin' staircase we come to the Grotto of the Nativity, which is a cave in the rock. There are several holy chapels here, but this one where they say Christ wuz born is about thirty-eight feet long and ten or eleven feet wide, and covered inside with costly carving and sculpture. A star in the floor shows the place where the manger wuz where the Holy Child wuz born, a silver star glitters above it and around the star sixteen lights are burning night and day. All about here the caves in the rocks are used as stables, specially when the tarvens are full, as the Bible expressly states they wuz the night our Lord wuz born. 'Tennyrate way back almost to the time he wuz born, historians accepted this spot as the place of his birth. But as I said more formerly, what if it wuz not this very spot, or some other nigh by, we know that it wuz in this little city our Lord wuz born. It wuz of this city that centuries before the prophets said: "And thou, Bethlehem Ephratah, though thou be little amongst the thousands of Judea, yet out of thee shall he come forth that shall be ruler of Israel, whose goings forth has been from old everlasting."

Then and there wuz founded on earth that invisible and spiritual kingdom so much stronger and mightier than any visible kingdom that wuz ever thought on. The gorgeous throne of Herod and the long line of kings and emperors since him have crumbled into dust, but that lowly cradle in the stable of Bethlehem is onmoved. The winds and storms of eighteen hundred years have not been able to blow a straw away from that little bed where the Baby Christ lay. The crowns of kings and emperors have disappeared, covered by the dust of time, but the rays of light that shone round that Baby's brow grow brighter and brighter as the centuries sweep by. The deepest love, the strongest emotions of the hearts of an uncounted host keep that Bethlehem birthplace green and changeless. The Herods, the Pilates, the Cæsars are dead and buried under the driftin' centuries, but our Lord's throne stands more firm and powerful today than ever before. Hatred, malice, the cross of agony, the dark tomb could not touch that immortal life. Great monarch and tender, overturnin' and upbuildin' empires at will, blowing away cruel and unjust armies by a wave of his fingers, heiping the poor slave bear his heavy burden by pouring love into his heart, wiping the widow's tears, soothing the baby's cries, marking even the sparrow's fall.

Oh, what a kingdom! foretold by ages, begun on earth in that little rocky stable that December night in Bethlehem. And it is secure; it cannot be moved, its white pillers are enthroned in the secret chambers of the soul.

Conflicting Emotions

And how strong and changeless his prime ministers, Love, Justice and Mercy are, who carry his messages and do his will. How quiet and peaceable and yet how strong, makin' no fuss and show; but what majesty is writ down on their forwards as they mirror the will of their Master. How firm they stand, jest as they've stood for ages; no wobblin', no turnin' this way and that to git adherents and followers. No, calm and mighty and holy they stand before that sacred throne jest as they did at Jerusalem before Herod and Pilate.

Oh, how many emotions I did have as I stood in that sacred spot, twice as many at least as I ever had in the same length of time in any other place. I didn't want to speak, I didn't want to see even my dear Josiah. No, I wanted to be silent, to think, to meditate, to pray "Thy kingdom come." Nigh by in the same grotto is what they call the tomb of a relation of ourn on both sides. Yes, they say Adam, our grandpa (removed) wuz buried here. I felt considerable sceptical about that, but Josiah beheld it complacently, and I hearn him say to Tommy:

"Yes, here Adam lays, poor creeter!" And sez Josiah, puttin' down his cane kinder hard, "Oh, what a difference it would have made to Jonesville and the world at large if Adam had put his foot right down just as I put my cane to-day, and not let his pardner eat that apple, nor tease him into eatin' it, too."

And Tommy looked at him in wonder, "Did the apple make him sick, grandpa?"

"Yes, Tommy, it made him sick as death, sin-sick, and he knowed it would."

"Well, then what made him eat it, grandpa?"

And Josiah said, "These things are too deep for you to understand now; when you git a little older grandpa will explain 'em all out to you."

Arvilly Defends Her Sex

And Arvilly sez, "I'd love to be there when you explained it, Josiah Allen. Layin' the blame onto the wimmen, jest as men do from Adam and Alpha to Omega."

Sez Josiah, "We'll walk out, Tommy, and see how it looks on the outside."

But Arvilly kep' mutterin' and kinder scoldin' about it long after they had departed. "Why didn't Adam take the apple away from her and throw it away? He hankered after it jest as much as she did, that's why. Cowardly piece of bizness layin' it all to her."

And she sniffed and stepped round sort o' nervous like, but sweet Dorothy drawed her attention off onto sunthin' else.

On the pleasant hills about the village shepards could be seen tendin' their flocks as they did on the night when the angels and the multitude of the heavenly hosts appeared to them bearing tidings of great joy that that night a Saviour wuz born.

"Glory to God in the highest and on earth peace, good-will to men."

We felt that we must see Nazareth where our Lord's early years wuz spent, and we set off on a pleasant day; we approached it from the north by way of Cana. The road wuz hard and rocky, but on turning a corner we see the little town like a city set on a hill, only this wuz on the side of the hill with hills above it and below it. Nazareth has only a few hundred houses but they are white and clean looking, mostly square and flat roofed. As we drew nigh we see the tall minaret of a mosque, the great convent buildings and the neat houses of the village looking out of gardens of figs and olives with white doves playing about the roofs; there wuz great hedges of prickly pears and white orange blossoms and scarlet pomgranites to make it pleasant.

At the Virgin's Well

On the road we wuz travelin' the child Jesus no doubt often passed in play with other children or at work. I wonder how he felt as he stood amongst his playmates and if a shadow of what wuz to come rested on his young heart? I spoze so, for he wuz only twelve when he reasoned with the wise doctors.

There is one fountain that supplies the town and always has, and we see stately dark-eyed wimmen carryin' tall jars of water on their heads (how under the sun they ever do it is a mystery to me; I should spill every drop), but they seem to carry 'em easy enough. Children often ran along at their sides. And I knew that in this place the young child Jesus must often have come with his mother after water.

Stood right here where we stood! what emotions I had as I thought on't. Dorothy and Robert looked reverently about them and dipped their hands in the clear water just as Joseph and Mary might when they wuz young and couldn't look into the futer.

Miss Meechim said she had a tract to home that dealt on this spot and wished she had brought it, she would have liked to read it here on the spot.

Arvilly said she wuz glad enough to see that they had plenty of good, pure water here and didn't have to depend on anything stronger.

And Josiah said in his opinion the water would make crakin' good coffee, and he wished he had a good cup and a dozen or so of my nut-cakes.

(To be Continued).

CHURCH OF THE HOLY SEPULCHRE

A CHIEF'S DAUGHTER

MAORI GIRLS

A VILLAGE BELLE

A MAORI MOTHER

THE PET OF A MAORI HOME

Life Among the Maoris

.....WHERAHIKO RAWEI, A MAORI STUDENT IN AMERICA, DESCRIBES SOME OF THE CUSTOMS OF HIS RACE.....

HOW many readers of THE CHRISTIAN HERALD know anything of the Maories of New Zealand? Probably very few. Yet a more interesting race of people it would be hard to find in any part of the world. They are worthy of respect, too. A race that knows how to make a good bargain with the white man and to get the full value of its acres, and often a little more than full value; a race which elects its own representatives to the white man's parliament, who sit and vote and speak with good sense and are listened to with close attention; a race whose women marry the white men and preside over their homes with grace and dignity, and whose children are among the most beautiful that any land can show; a race which holds its own, and is not disposed—even if an effort were made—to be improved by civilization off the face of the earth. Such a race deserves more attention than it has received from the people of other lands. It is therefore with pleasure that we have secured some details of the Maori people and their customs from a young Maori, Wherahiko Rawei by name, who is now a student in the Moody Bible Institute in Chicago.

A MAORI IDOL

RAWEI IN NATIVE COSTUME

It is comparatively a short time ago that Dr. Selwyn, having been appointed Bishop of New Zealand, a wit who had read little of the islands save the stories of the early navigators, about the cannibal feasts of their inhabitants, said to the good Bishop as he bade him farewell: "I hope you will not disagree with your flock." The Bishop knew more of the people among whom he was going to labor, but even he was surprised to see the Maori gentleman, not at all disposed to kill and eat him as the wit had suggested, but wearing the ordinary dress of European civilization and speaking to him with grave and dignified courtesy. It is true that his face was bronzed and that tattoo markings were visible, but there was intelligence in the eye and signs of kindliness and sympathetic feeling in the lines of the mouth. Many of the white people have scarcely seen the Maori of the type of the old days, and those who wish to see him in his native guise and tribal surroundings must penetrate to the recesses of the Northern island and must come well introduced and with the special permission of one of the chiefs, otherwise he will be politely but firmly turned back. For the Maori is not at all afraid of offending the white man, but stands boldly on his rights and resents anything like intrusion or patronage. It must be admitted that he does not as a rule take kindly to the white man's religion, preferring a strange mixed creed of his own, in which he has incorporated some of the white man's doctrines in grotesque form.

"To see Maori life in its primitive simplicity," says our friend Wherahiko Rawei "one should go to Te Ruapeka, one of the most weird villages in all New Zealand. It is situated on a long, narrow peninsula, jutting out into Lake Rotorua, a magnificent sheet of water twenty-five miles in circumference. Every part of this strip of land, from one end to the other, is riddled with hot springs, some of which shoot out of the ground from small apertures, while others assume the form of large steaming pools. They are of all degrees of temperature, from tepid heat to boiling point; and while you may cook your dinner in one, you may take a delightful bath in another and get scalded to death in a third.

MAORI CHILDREN BATHING IN THE WARM SPRINGS

"Many years ago a pa [native Maori village], stood at the further end of the peninsula, but one wild night a rumbling noise was heard, then a sound of hissing steam, the trembling earth opened, and the pa, with its unfortunate inhabitants sank bodily into the depths of the lake. All the houses in this district to-day are built of Raupo, a kind of reed, with large recesses in front of the doorways, the woodwork of which is curiously and elaborately carved. The interior presents a strange spectacle; the roof, high and slanting, is supported by an elaborately carved ridge-pole, while the rafters are covered with curiously carved and twisted lines of strange design and endless variety. The lower walls of the building are ornamented with figures representing renowned ancestors of the tribe. These singular effigies appear at first glance to have been carved after the same model; but upon closer examination each is found to have some peculiarity of feature or bodily characteristic for which the particular warrior represented was supposed to have been remarkable while in the flesh. One and all are depicted with distorted features, protruding tongues and a defiant mien, while their large, staring eyes are formed of the pearly shell of the fresh water mussel.

"Near at hand are the Pohutu and Waikiti geysers; the latter plays incessantly, throwing up great volumes of water and steam every ten minutes. The women are peculiarly prepossessing, many of the maidens being exquisitely beautiful. Their clothing consists of a single loose robe, which they manufacture from native flax and toi toi grasses, or the feathers of rare and beautiful New Zealand birds.

"Very destructive and disastrous are some of the old customs which the Maoris still retain as an inheritance from their ancestors. Marriage feasts and tangis [native burials] are the scenes of all that is objectionable. After living closely together in an ill-ventilated wharepuni [native dwelling] for a month, the funeral party disperses, leaving the host thoroughly fatigued and disgusted. He laments the kumaras and potatoes that have been consumed, the precious mats and green stones that his mistaken hospitality has lavished upon his guests; but till next year he is content to starve and go about untidy and half naked. Then, perhaps, another Maori dies, and all the villages around must again send natives of both sexes to weep over his dead body, to condole with his bereaved relatives, to benefit by their misplaced kindness and hospitality, and very probably themselves to receive from the fortnight dead corpse a substantial legacy in the form of typhoid fever and similar bequests.

A MAORI PRINCESS

In many of the native villages, the death of a chief—who in consequence of his rank must be kept unburied for a fortnight or even three weeks—is simply the advance herald to a terrible outbreak of disease and mortality, which carries off hundreds of victims. The perpetuation of such customs is a real danger to the Maori people, and it is in this that the white man's help is needed. The Maoris must be taught to shun evils that are destroying their bodies and exterminating a race once famous for its magnificent physique. Sermon preaching alone, unaccompanied by determined efforts to completely reform the sanitary conditions under which the people live, can be productive only of extremely meagre results. Training schools should be erected and native children taught laws of sanitation and health and other matters calculated to promote their social and spiritual welfare. Educational pursuits for the children will certainly be followed by an improved condition of home life among the elders; and in this way the people may be led to build healthier dwellings and to seek light and salvation. By such means Christ's kingdom could be extended, and a splendid race, possessing many admirable characteristics, might be preserved."

Pretoria Surrendered

AFTER several skirmishes in the neighborhood of the Boer capital, Lord Roberts sent an officer with a flag of truce to demand its surrender. General Botha replied that he had no intention of defending it, and merely expressed the hope that the women and children would be well treated. He sent two officers to conduct General Roberts into the town. The British General entered and took formal possession on June 5. The British flag was hoisted over the government's buildings, and all public property left in the capital was handed over. Then it was clear that the fighting which had taken place was not a serious defence, but was only a rear guard action intended to delay Lord Roberts, while the Boer army, guns and archives were sent away, and as many of the prisoners as possible. Two trainloads of prisoners were being removed when Lord Roberts arrived and liberated them. President Kruger and Secretary Reitz, with other members of the Boer government, halted in their flight at Machadodorp, where they occupied a car on the railroad tracks. Mrs. Kruger and Mrs. Botha remained behind in Pretoria. A guard of British soldiers was placed in front of their house to protect them from molestation and from the curiosity of the soldiers. It is inferred from the fact of Mrs. Kruger remaining that her husband does not intend to make a prolonged resistance, as he would have taken her with him if he expected that the war would continue. It is evident, however, that if he chooses he can hold the Lydenburg country for some time. It is a mountainous district, unsuited to the operations of cavalry, and contains passes easily defended by a few determined men. The advantages to the Boers of such a district are obvious, as may be seen at Laing's Nek, where Gen. Buller has been held in check for several weeks by a small force in a futile effort to penetrate from Natal into the Transvaal. Such a course, however, would involve a great sacrifice of life and would be of no ultimate benefit to the people. President Kruger will doubtless be urged to continue the war, but he will be prudent if he seeks the honor which the wise king described:

It is an honor for a man to cease from strife. (Prov. 20: 3).

THE GOVERNMENT SQUARE OF PRETORIA ON A NATIONAL HOLIDAY

A Wedding Delayed

An amusing oversight disconcerted a wedding party in New York a few days ago. The wedding was fixed for eight o'clock in the evening at an uptown church, about two miles from the bride's residence. There was some little delay in the last items of the bride's costume, which would involve a little waiting, so she asked the bridesmaids to go on to the church and explain, and she would follow as soon as possible. They complied and drove to the church, where explanations were made and the whole party waited patiently for the bride's coming. Nearly an hour passed and still she did not come. At length they became alarmed, and one of the party was deputed to go to the house to ascertain what was keeping her. On his way he met the bride riding in an open buggy. It appeared that she was ready soon after her friends' departure, but they had taken all the carriages, and there was not one left to convey her to the church. While the servants were going from place to place, trying to hire a vehicle, the family doctor passed and the bride signaled to him. He relieved her of her difficulty by driving her to the church in his buggy. Doubtless, it was mere thoughtlessness on the part of the bridesmaids that resulted in the bride being placed in that awkward predicament. It may be hoped that it will never be possible to accuse the church of similarly delaying the coming of the Bridegroom by thoughtlessness or negligence of its duty:

This Gospel of the kingdom shall be preached in all the world for a witness to all nations and then shall the end come (Matt. 24: 14).

A Warning to Claimants

The State Department has issued a warning to people in this country, who have been notified that they are heirs to large estates in England. Its assistance has so often been invoked by people who have put confidence in English lawyers, who are generally aided by a confederate on this side, that the notice has been issued to put our citizens on their guard. The plan usually adopted is for an American agent to select a likely victim whose name is sent to the English lawyer, who promptly advertises in an American journal for his address. The advertisement is sure to be seen by the intended victim, or by some of his friends, and he immediately writes to the English lawyer, who replies that the estate is very valuable and asks for funds to prosecute the claim. The money is generally sent, and from time to time more funds are asked for, until the victim discovers that he is being swindled. More than a thousand such claims have been referred to the United States embassy in London and not one of them proved genuine. Of all the dormant funds in England open to claim, few are worth two thousand dollars and the cost of establishing a claim to any of them would be large. It is astonishing that people who are so credulous as to send money to prosecute claims to estates, are often so unbelieving when they listen to the Gospel offer of eternal riches which Christ promises to his people.

Lay up for yourselves treasures in heaven where neither moth nor rust doth corrupt, and where thieves do not break through nor steal (Matt. 6: 20).

A Boy's Adventure

An extraordinary story of a boy's courage and endurance comes from New Orleans. According to the press report, the boy is ten years old and is an orphan. He had been confided to the care of some relatives in Indiana, but they disliked him and ill-treated him. After bearing their cruelty for some time he determined to run away. But the only other relative he had was an aunt who lived in New Orleans, which was twelve hundred miles away. Probably the boy did not realize the length of the journey, but he set out determined to find his aunt. He was more than a week on the way. Three times he was discovered on trains and thrown off, not having money to pay his fare. Once a railroad conductor was so indignant at the child trying to steal a ride that he drew his revolver and threatened to shoot him. The boy escaped by paying the conductor fifteen cents from his little store. Altogether, he paid fifty-five cents during his journey. When he reached New Orleans he had on only a suit of overalls and was barefoot and without a hat. A kindly official bought him a suit of clothes and new shoes, so that he might present himself to his aunt decently clad. If people who are held in captivity by the enemy of souls, showed such determination and persistence as this little boy displayed how many might effect their escape!

That they might recover themselves out of the snare of the devil, who are taken captive by him at his will (II. Timothy 2: 26).

Disappointed Stowaways

Superintendent Blair, of the Outdoor Poor Department in New York, is investigating the story of two boys who arrived in the city recently on board the Kaiser Wilhelm from Germany. They are sixteen years of age and appear to have been of an adventurous disposition. While living at Winsheim, near Wurtemberg, they listened to the stories of wealth and luxury told by romancing persons, and, being anxious above all things to escape military service, they decided to seek their fortunes over the sea. One of the boys had an uncle living at Jaffa in Palestine and to him they determined to go. He had vineyards and was reputed to be prosperous. On their arrival they were set to work in the vineyards and to their disgust they were required to work hard and for many hours in the day. That was not the kind of life they were looking for; so they resolved to come to America, where, according to the accounts they had heard, money was plenty and easily earned. They stole on board the big liner at Hamburg and concealed themselves in the hold. The vessel was two days out when they were discovered. The captain promptly set them to work and kept them at it during the voyage. In New York they eluded the vigilance of the emigration officers and got ashore. They were bitterly disappointed with our country. In a week they had been able to earn only a few pennies and had been obliged to sleep in the parks. Finally, some sympathetic German citizen heard their story and took them to Mr. Blair who will try to make the steamship company take them home. They probably will be less disposed in future to give credence to stories of the riches and honors to be gained in other lands, but we may hope that their experience will not lead them to distrust the promises that Christ makes to all who come to him of a blessedness that is better than riches.

Seek ye first the kingdom of God and his righteousness and all these things shall be added unto you (Matt. 6: 33).

A Permanent Record

A scientific journal publishes a description of an ingenious device now on exhibition at the Paris Exposition. It is called the telegraphone, and is the invention of M. Valdemar Poulsen, a Danish telegraph engineer. Its object is to keep a permanent record of conversations over the telephone. The apparatus has the appearance of an ordinary telephone, but within the receiver is a highly-magnetized steel wire, wound on a sensitive reel. When the telephone is used, the wire is unwound by the action of the current, or by a clock-work attachment. The impact of the voice is faithfully recorded by the wire, so that at any time by reversing the process the conversation that has taken place can be reproduced, as in the phonograph. The situation of the wire protecting it from extraneous sounds renders its repeating power exceedingly accurate, and in the reproduction there are none of the crackling noises that are heard in the ordinary phonograph. It is easy to remove the record from the instrument and to preserve it or transmit it by mail, so that another person may listen to the conversation repeated in the same tone of voice, just as it actually took place. If these instruments should come into common use, there are many people who would become more careful of the words they use in speaking over the telephone. The consciousness that what they say might be reproduced at some future time would induce caution. But such consciousness might even now be felt if we heeded as it deserves the warning that Christ gave:

I say unto you that every idle word that men shall speak, they shall give account thereof in the day of judgment (Matt. 12: 36).

BRIEF NOTES

It is estimated that two millions and a half copies of the Bible are printed and put in circulation every year.

The statistics of Union Theological Seminary in New York show that one in every twelve of its students becomes a missionary to the heathen.

A report from Russia announces that the Metropolitan of the Greek Church has solemnly excommunicated Count Toistoi, and has ordered the clergy of the church to refuse to him, living or dead the rights and privileges of membership.

Bishop Tucker of Uganda has surprised a German trader who was carrying off seventeen African dwarfs whom he had seized in the forest. The Bishop liberated the frightened people and had the German trader arrested for kidnapping. When the mail left he was in prison awaiting trial.

The death is announced of Rev. John Scudder, M.D., D.D., at Kodai Kanal, India, on Wednesday, May 23. Dr. Scudder was for thirty-nine years a missionary of the Reformed (Dutch) Church in America in connection with its Arcot mission. He was at the time of his death in his sixty-fifth year.

Moravian Churches throughout the world are celebrating the two hundredth anniversary of the birth of Zinzendorf, the famous Moravian leader. Count von Zinzendorf once labored in the old church in Fulton street, New York. His influence on the godly men of other churches bore wonderful fruit and led to movements in the home and missionary field of even greater importance than his own.

The Gospel Tent at Broadway and Fifty-sixth street, New York, is now open for the season. Fully fifteen hundred persons were present at the first services. Dr. R. S. MacArthur, Dr. S. P. Cadman, and Mr. J. H. Hallimond of the Bowery Mission, took part in the services. Mr. William Phillips Hall the business man evangelist and Rev. S. Hartwell Pratt made earnest appeals to the people to come to Christ.

The British Government has been astonished by the unexpected stand taken by the Archbishop of Canterbury on the subject of temperance. He declares that any government which proposes to allow the present system to stand, and makes no effort to promote temperance in the country, will have to regard him as "a thorn in its side." As the Archbishop has a seat and a vote in the House of Lords, he can make his words good.

The New Metropolitan Tabernacle, replacing the one in which Pastor C. H. Spurgeon preached is to be opened on Sept. 19. Mr. Ira D. Sankey is to take part in the dedicatory services. It will accommodate 4,000 persons and has cost $200,000. The number of members on the church roll is 3,861 after the annual revision has been made. Connected with the Tabernacle are twenty-three mission stations and twenty-five Sunday Schools.

"Why Should we Fear Anything with Him Looking at us?"

JESUS WALKING ON THE SEA ∴

BY DR. AND MRS. WILBUR F. CRAFTS

International Sunday School Lesson for July 1: Matt. 14: 23-33 | Golden Text, Matt. 14: 33: Of a truth thou art the Son of God

MOUNTAINS OF FAITH AND SORROW

MOUNT Fear is greatest and darkest of all the Mountains of Sorrow. Just now Mount Famine and Mount War are in the foreground, and we have always with us Mount Drink, which Gladstone said was bigger and darker than both the others, and Mount Pestilence, now appearing ominously in the background. But the world has suffered more than from all these from Mount Fear, though it is only a shadow. Think of the countless fears of those whose very gods are loveless devils that delight to destroy, and must be placated with ceaseless offerings and self-inflicted tortures! If there were no future every motive of humanity would impel us to save the millions of heathendom from this present hell of superstitious fears, and other present sufferings of body and mind. Even in civilized countries there is not a little suffering from superstition. The year 1881 was called by some "the reign of terror," because so many feared that it would bring the world's end in fulfilment of "Mother Shipton's prophecy." When a comet or two appeared, and science, which has banished so many fears, invented new ones, suggesting possible collisions with the earth, I have no doubt that many nervous people suffered as if subjected to mediæval tortures. Of late, science has alarmed the nervous with its microbia, and the advertisements of quack medicines that make every ache a coffin-nail also recall the words of Watts:

Dangers stand thick through all the ground
To push us to the tomb,
And fierce diseases lurk around
To hurry mortals home.

This comedy of fear is a tragedy to the victims. If any person had told us as many lies as Fear, we would never believe a word he says again; but we believe our fears in spite of all their false alarms. Most of us are cowards in fear of imaginary foes, and need this lesson on faith as the antidote to fear.

. . .

The Folly of Fear Three questions speak to us out the successive stages of this lesson:

Why should we fear anything with him looking at us?

Why should we fear anything with him coming to us?

Why should we fear anything in coming to him?

. . .

When he had sent the multitudes away.—They had been convinced by the miraculous feeding of the five thousand that Jesus was the expected Messiah, but a temporal Messiah, who would conquer the world rather than convert it, and they had tried to take him by force and make him their king. The people have always been ready to crown those who would feed them. Christ's physical struggle in resisting this blind folly was accompanied by a greater storm of trouble in his soul that his spiritual mission should be so misunderstood by everybody, including his own apostles. To calm his own storm-tossed brain, he took himself to solitude and prayer, first sending his apostles away in their boat and then dispersing the multitude. Every trial and temptation seemed to cry to Christ, like the voice from Eastern minarets: "To prayer! To prayer!" How much better to climb Mount Faith than to tremble in the shadow of Mount Fear! In the Mount of Prayer Jesus saw his apostles as one of those sudden storms characteristic of this lake sprang like a leopard from Lebanon down through the Jordan gorge and out upon the little boat. They thought themselves deserted and forgotten, but the eye of him who makes the winds his ministers was looking upon them all the while. Christ was out of their sight, but they were not out of his sight. And so it is to-day. "Whom having not seen, we trust," let that be our watchword. In the words of George MacDonald: "Why should we fear anything with him looking at us?" Let us in all our seeming perils adopt the Breton boatman's prayer: "Keep me, my God; my boat is so small and the ocean is so wide."

. . .

In the fourth watch Jesus went unto them. Christ did not go to them at once when the storm rose high and their fears higher. He left them to battle with the winds and waves for nine awful hours, till almost dawn—some time between three and six in the morning. It would not be a real kindness for Christ to save us from struggles. Only by "toiling in rowing" can we be prepared to make the voyage of life; only by such nights can we acquire the strength and sympathy and faith that make the noblest manhood. Let us remember that Jesus is watching, and will come, bringing the morning with him when night has taught his lesson.

"BEGINNING TO SINK, HE CRIED SAYING, LORD SAVE ME!"

Some think this miracle the greatest Jesus had yet performed, but it seems but natural to those who remember it was done by him "through whom God made the world." In the words of Dr. Talmage: "I see why it was so easy for him to hush the tempest; he sank Gennesaret. I see why it was so easy for him to swing fish into Simon's net; he made the fish. I see now why he could open the eyes of the blind; he made the optic nerve. I see now why it was so easy for him to cure the demoniac; he first created the intellect."

And all through his stormy life he was pressing the surges beneath his feet. So may we "while we look at the things that are not seen." In the wilderness of temptation how the storm waves beat about him! But, like Moses, he refused to fall or fear, because he saw the invisible. In Gethsemane again how the waves beat into his boat till it seemed to be full. But, seeing the invisible, again saved him from despair. And on Calvary, his nailed feet pressed the rising waves and made the storm a calm. It is a supreme illustration of the folly of all fears that the apostles were afraid of their Deliverer. Even though it had been Death coming to them, they should have welcomed him as God's messenger and their friend. Through every storm of sorrow he comes to us treading the billows beneath his feet and whispering "Peace." Why should we fear anything with Jesus coming to us?

The Sea of Galilee is also called Chinnereth, meaning a harp, because it is shaped like a harp, and with reference also to the 'chin chin' sound of wavelets playing musically on the beach. Storms are favorite subjects for descriptive music and are pictured by organ and orchestra. But the storm which swept over the harp of Chinnereth that eventful night has caught the ear of the world more than any other storm music, and above it all sounds the divine solo: "It is I; be not afraid." At that word every billow of fear should become a calm in the heart of every one who really believes that God rules the world.

. . .

My Storm-tossed Boats My business is a boat in which I must embark day by day. Storms gather about me; competition threatens to engulf me; there are temptations to deceive; there are fears of failure. But I will not fear for Christ is near.

My home is a boat. It is shaken with the rising winds of affliction. Those whom I love are engulfed in death. Other loved ones are worse than dead, and for both my heart is tempest-tossed. But I will not fear for Christ is near.

My life plan is a boat. I have aspiration to be and do something noble; but my education is cut short; my hopes of employment are disappointed. I seem to be lost at sea, without chart or compass. But I will not fear for Christ is near.

"Bid me come unto thee on the water." The responses of Christ to Peter are his responses to every storm-tossed heart:

"Bid me come!"

"Come!"

"Lord, save me!"

The outstretched hand saves even "little faith."

"O wherefore didst thou doubt?"

. . .

Even "Little Faith" is Answered Why should we fear anything in coming to him, even though it is over the billows of trouble that he bids us come? We hear much of Christ's rewards of "great faith," such as that of the centurion and the Syro-Phœnician mother. But yet more wonderful are his responses to "little faith". When the apostles in another storm had so little faith in his power to save, though he was with them, that it was as nothing, and he was forced to exclaim, "How is it that ye have no faith?" He nevertheless stilled the storm in answer to their prayer. When the father of the demoniac child exclaimed in feeble faith, "If thou canst do anything, have compassion," and then to Christ's response, "If thou canst believe," could only say, "Help thou mine unbelief." Jesus healed his child, illustrating in all these cases the promise that he "would not quench that smoking flax," that is the faith that could not flame, but only smoke. We are not to fear even when faith is failing, but use what remains to get across the billows of doubt to the helping hand of Christ.

. . .

Pride as a Millstone Peter did not answer Christ's question, "Wherefore didst thou doubt?" But can we not answer it? Why did the great faith that led Peter to start out to walk the waves fail him in the midst of the undertaking? When he found himself actually walking the waves one would suppose his faith would be reinforced, rather than give place to fear. It has been suggested—and Peter's conduct in another storm of trial warrants the suggestion—that when Peter found himself walking the waves, he was proud instead of thankful. Nothing kills faith quicker than pride. When faith went out fear came in. "When he saw" it was a wrong look that wrecked him, he looked no longer straight at Christ, but at the raging waves—perhaps glanced backward just to see how his associates regarded his great exploit—and so began to sink. But "sinking times are praying times," and prayer saved him from the consequences of his pride and fears. He forgot himself and looked once more to Christ.

Cautious people may condemn Peter's impulsiveness in this and other cases, but they are themselves guilty of the greatest of mistakes, doing nothing for fear of doing something amiss. Better say a word too much now and then than miss daily opportunities by too much caution. Discount all Peter's mistakes, and there is more left of usefulness than in any other apostle, except the "Sons of Thunder," whose impulsiveness was also liable to overflows. Notwithstanding this liability, it is better to be full of zeal than half full.

From this story of Peter walking the sea, the "stormy petrel" gets its name. Adapting a story of faith by Victor Hugo to this bird, we may say:

Let us be like the bird that walks the sea
And 'mid the tempest sings;
Her feet may sink, but she from fear is free,
Knowing she has her wings.

. . .

Why do you not "Come?" What fear keeps you from coming to Christ? It cannot be fear that you will be unwelcome, for he bids you "come." It should not be fear that you will be unable to hold on and hold out, for "God's biddings are enablings," and he holds out an omnipotent hand to uplift and guide you. A four-year-old child upset in a boat, was strangely free from fear. Being asked why, she said: "I finked of Peter." If you fear you will not be able to walk the waves of temptation or persecution, think of Peter, and especially of Peter's Saviour at hand to help. "Hold thou me up and I shall be safe."

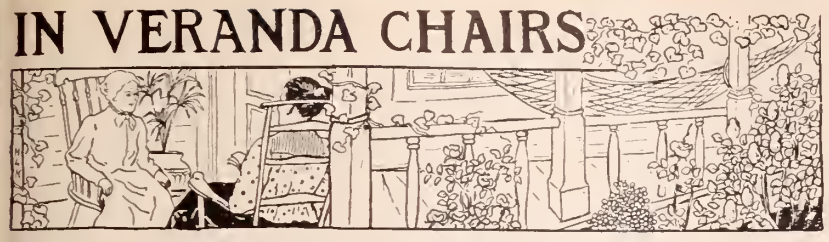
Thou didst reach forth thine hand and mine enfold;
I walked and sank not on the storm-vexed sea;
But not so much that I on thee took hold
As by thy hold on me.

. . .

The wind ceased. The Spanish Testament in the other stilling of the tempest calls the calm that followed the "Peace be still" of Christ, una grande bonanza. The original "bonanza" is the fair weather at sea. To have our troubled hearts filled with the "peace" of Christ is both fair weather and wealth, now and forever. "Great peace have they that love the law." That peace should not be disturbed even when our boat comes into the tossing waves under the shadow of that highest peak of Mount Fear, the fear of death.

DRIFTING ON THE SEA OF GALILEE

IN VERANDA CHAIRS



BY MARGARET E. SANGSTER

The High-tide... ...of the Year

IN the whole round year there is not a time more beautiful than this month of June. Roses garlanding old stone walls and wreathing forgotten graves, roses sweetening the air and rioting in the gardens, roses scattering their velvety petals on the ground and blooming for the adornment of the bride. Roses white, red, yellow, and pink. Roses, the queen-flowers of the floral world. And all over the meadows sown there by God's hand, and springing up by the million, the white and golden daisies, covering the field with a cloth of gold, tempting us to pick them for our houses, for the sick, for the tired and sad, and no matter how many we pick, there are just as many more left behind. And in the woods, the laurel, and by the roadside sweet fern and sweet brier, and everywhere bloom and fragrance and beauty, the high-tide of the year. No other season surpasses it, and the trees and lawns are so freshly green with the spring rains scarcely dried, that nothing can be fairer than the background they furnish for the flowers.

Our beautiful picture shows us girlhood in its rich budding, when the bright eyes, the rounded cheeks, the gladness of life's morning, all rival the roses. This sweet maiden with the roses in her basket and on her head and in her hand, is a type of the dearest treasures we possess, our own fair daughters. What is she dreaming of as she stands holding her flowers? Her eyes are soft with dreams, perhaps of some one who has awakened her to her deeper self, of some one who may yet "lead her by the lily-white hand," as the old song says, and claim her before God and the world for his own. And if he be worthy of so great a bit of good fortune as to win the young heart and wed the young life, he may sing, "My love is like a red, red rose," and vow to adore her with a true faith, "till all the seas gang dry."

Sabbath Keeping

The National Sabbath Alliance is trying to awaken Christian sentiment against the rapid increase of Sabbath-breaking. In a recent meeting, Mrs. Darwin R. James, the President of the Alliance, spoke very strongly against playing golf on Sunday. It would seem as if we in America should uplift a standard against the bicycle riding, golf-playing, and Sunday driving for pleasure, which has become a feature of the period. Men and women who were brought up to honor the Lord's Day, have, little by little, let down the bars until now they have silenced conscience, and can engage without a question in secular recreations on the hallowed day. No amusement has been discovered which compares with golf in its combination of attractions, its opportunity for wholesome exercise, and its adaptation to people of all ages. But it is distinctly a week-day game, and not only do those who play it on Sunday affront the sacredness of the day, present an offensive and indifferent aspect to church-goers, break down the reverence of the young for the Sabbath, but they enlist the services of children, and teach the small caddies to trample on a law of God. If we break one law, openly and safely, why shall we hesitate to break others? If we have no regard for the blessed day of rest, and set aside the fourth commandment, why shall we keep the fifth, or the eighth, or the tenth? We in America, we mothers especially, need to stand fast by the old ways; to assert our convictions, to do what in us lies to prevent the breaking of God's day in our own homes. The day need not be dull or monotonous. It may be sunny, bright and full of sweet thoughts and glad engagements, but these should be religious, not secular. Let us do all we can to discourage Sunday golfing.

The Feeling of a Little Child

A child gathered a bunch of flowers from her own garden, tied them carefully and carried them to a relative of whom she was fond. With childish generosity she almost stripped her garden. When she came home, after making her little call with her offering, her face was downcast and her step was slow. She looked as if she were holding back the tears by a brave effort. But she said nothing; not even when questioned did she explain what had disappointed her. The next day it came out, however, in a talk with her father. "I shall not take Cousin Jane any more flowers," she said. "She gave them away to a lady who called in."

The gift bestowed upon another in the child's presence was a gift despised. People often ignore the fact that a child is easily hurt, is sensitive to expressions of the face, and to tones of the voice; that a child has feelings which should not be disregarded. When you laugh at a child's quaint speech, when you repeat her sayings in a spirit of merriment, when you open her letter before she has had a chance to do so herself, when you untie her package instead of leaving her the pleasure, you are committing a blunder, and sometimes an inexcusable one. We owe to our children the same courtesy, the same constant and gentle consideration, the same respect for personal rights which we show to older people.

Which is the fairer, maiden or flower,
Which is the rarer, in this bright hour?

Aunt Prudence Payson's Catch-all

IRENE. A young woman should not receive visits from a married man, unless he is accompanied by his wife.

—INQUIRER. You ask a question which cannot be answered without a knowledge of all the circumstances. A man who is engaged to a young woman may call upon her as often as she and her parents consider appropriate—every other evening at least. But the calls should not be prolonged until too late an hour. If the young people are not engaged, but are simply very good friends, a call once a week is a sufficient attention for him to pay and for her to receive.

—ISABEL. Send your stories to any paper which publishes stories, enclosing an envelope stamped and addressed to yourself in case of their return. A young man of eighteen is not mature enough to be seriously accepted as a lover, particularly by a girl older than himself. I advise that you both drop your intimate association and simply remain friends. Sell your seeds and bulbs to the nearest floral establishment in an adjacent city. Consult advertisements and write for information.

—JANE DICK. The bride acknowledges her wedding gifts by a gracious little note either just before her marriage, or, if this is impossible, immediately after. Announcement cards are sent out as soon as possible after the ceremony. Silver may be marked with the bride's maiden initials or monogram, which is customary when the silver is given her, or it may have the initials of her new name. Silverware, however, is not marked with the man's initials. It is always a woman's possession in her married and housekeeping life. The linen is also marked with her initials or monogram.

... Tagging Along ...

"SHE'S forever tagging along!" complained Ethel, as her little sister Marjorie begged to go with her and her Cousin Mattie to the post-office. The two older girls were ten, and wee Marjorie was a small dumpling of four. Her devotion to Ethel was touching; she was never so satisfied as when allowed to trot about in Ethel's train or to hold Ethel's hand. And on Sundays, when Marjorie had on a beautiful white frock, and a picture hat trimmed with poppies and her white shoes, Ethel was rather fond of taking her to Sunday School and church; she felt some pride in escorting her little princess of a sister. But on week-days, she often rebelled and called on her mother to keep Marjorie at home.

"I never have a moment to myself. She is always tagging on and always in the way."

"Come here, darling!" said the mother. "Sister doesn't want you this time. Come, help mamma set the table."

Down the street walked Ethel and Mattie, the former very silent, for though she had succeeded in carrying her point, she felt that she had been very cross and selfish, and her conscience pricked her. As they passed a house on the corner of the street, a lady came out and called Ethel.

"Do you know, dear, whether your mother has any white carnations in bloom and can she spare me some rose geraniums? The baby over the way died this afternoon, and I am getting flowers to put in the little casket. The funeral will be to-morrow."

"The baby! Not Eunice Fairchild? why she was playing by the door yesterday."

"Little Eunice; she was three years old, but she was their baby and the illness was very short and sharp. Why, Ethel, don't cry so!"

Ethel's tears fell fast. She and Mattie looked at one another with the same thought in each heart. What if God should call Marjorie home, as he had called Eunice? Ethel flew to the post-office, did her errand, and rushed home, catching Marjorie up and kissing her.

"Oh! Marjorie, you may go with me whenever you like. I will never again say that you are tagging after me; never, never."

I am not sure that Ethel always kept her word, but I know that she was much gentler, much more considerate of her little sister from that time on. It were well for us all to remember that at any time death might come and that therefore we should be "patient with the living." We never regret our kind word or deed to one who has passed away.

The Half-grown Boy

In the life of every youth there comes a period when he is growing so fast that he is awkward, when his clothing hangs loosely on him, and his arms push through his sleeves with such haste that his mother wonders whether a day will ever come when his hands will look in proportion to his size. Patience, mother, and do not emphasize the little difficulties incidental to rapid growth, by your comments and criticisms. Tell the boy when he pleases you, that he is your dearly beloved, and let him still have his share of the petting he likes; big boys need mother-love and kisses just as little ones do. But do not exclaim when he knocks down a chair in his clumsy progress through the room, and refrain from calling attention to any little forgetfulness of his in company. If you have made him your companion, and treated him as if he were a reasonable being, and his sister's equal, from babyhood on, you will not need to be fearful about his ultimate coming out just right. He will be fully grown one of these days, and a credit to you; and in the meantime make home happy for him, and devote yourself to his real interests with an eye to the future. If he likes athletics, so much the better. A boy whose physical life is upbuilt by healthful and regular exercise, will usually make a finer man, mentally and spiritually, than will one who is timid and shrinking, and who recoils from hearty outdoor sports.

GEMS FROM NEW BOOKS

The Interrupted Sermon*

THE words had been rapidly spoken, and the preacher paused, perhaps to take breath, or perhaps to collect his thoughts prior to diverting the current of his discourse into a slightly different channel. At any rate, there was a distinct pause in the flow of language. While it continued, Someone stood up in the body of the hall, and a Voice inquired:

"Who shall know Him when He comes?"

The question was clearly audible all over the building. It was by no means unusual, in that place, for incidents to occur which were not in accordance with the programme. Interruptions were not infrequent. Both preacher and people were used to them. By a considerable part of the audience such interludes were regarded as not the least interesting portion of the proceedings. To the fashion in which he was wont to deal with such incidents the Rev. Philip Evans owed, in no slight degree, his vogue. It was his habit to lose neither his presence of mind nor his temper. He was, after his manner, a fighter born. Seldom did he show to more advantage than in dealing out cut-and-thrust to a rash intervener.

When the Voice asking the question rose from the body of the hall, there were those who at once concluded that such an intervention had occurred. For the instant, the movement in and out of the doors ceased. Heads were craned forward, and eyes and ears strained to lose nothing of what was about to happen. Mr. Evans, to whom the question seemed addressed, appeared to be no whit taken by surprise. His retort was prompt:

"Sir, pray God that you may know Him when He comes."

The Voice replied:

"I shall know as I shall be known. But who is there shall know Me?"

The Speaker moved towards the platform, threading His way between the crowded rows of seats with an ease and a celerity which seemed strange. None endeavored to stop Him. Philip Evans remained silent and motionless, watching Him as He came.

When the Stranger had gained the platform, He turned towards the people, asking:

"Who is there here that knows Me? Is there one?" There was not one that answered. He turned to the preacher. "Look at Me well. Do you not know Me?"

For once in a way Philip Evans seemed uncomfortable and ill at ease and abashed.

"How shall I know you, since you are to me a stranger?"

"And yet you have looked for My coming?"

"Your coming? Who are you?"

"Look at Me well. Is there nothing by which you may know Me?"

"I may have seen you before; but, if so, I have certainly forgotten it, which is the more strange, since your face is an unusual one."

"Oh, you Christians, that preach of what you have no knowledge, and lay down the law of which you have no understanding!" He turned to the people. "You followers of Christ, that never knew Him, and never shall, and would not if you could, yet make a boast of His name, and blazon it upon your foreheads, crying, Behold His children! You call upon Him in the morning and at night, careless if He listen, and fearful lest He hear; saying, with your lips, 'We look for His coming'; and, with your hearts, 'Send it not in our time.' It is by the spirit you shall know Him. Yes, of a truth. Is there not one among you in whom the spirit is? Is there not one?"

The Stranger stood with his arms extended in front of Him, in an attitude of appeal. The hush of a perfect silence reigned in the great hall. Every countenance was turned to Him, but so far as could be seen, not a muscle moved. The predominant expression upon the expanse of faces was astonishment, mingled with curiosity. His arms sank to His sides.

"He came unto His own, and His own knew Him not!"

The words fell from His lips in tones of infinite pathos. He passed from the platform through the hall, and out of the door, followed by the eyes of all who were there, none seeking to stay Him.

When He had gone, one of the persons who were associated with the conduct of the service went up to Mr. Evans. A few whispered words were exchanged between them. Then this person, going to the edge of the platform, announced:

"After what has just occurred, I regret to have to inform you that Mr. Evans feels himself unable to continue his address. He trusts to be able, God willing, to bring it to a close on a more auspicious occasion. This evening's service will be brought to a conclusion by singing the hymn 'Lo, He comes, in clouds descending!'"

* From A Second Coming, by Richard Marsh. A remarkable imaginative work, in which the coming of Christ and the experiences of men unable, because of their sin, to recognize him, are graphically pictured. The book is full of spiritual suggestion and helpfulness. Cloth covers; pp. 305; price $1.50; John Lane, London and New York, publisher.

A New Quarterly Magazine

THE latest candidate for literary honors in the magazine field is a new quarterly publication, entitled The People, the Land, and the Book, an illustrated Hebrew-Christian Quarterly, treating of the old and historic people of Israel, of Palestine, of the Bible and of Jewish traditions and literature generally. In its first issue are many contributions of peculiar interest, including articles on "The Authenticity of the Pentateuch," "The Messiah in the Old Testament," "Rabbinical Preaching," "Zionism," "The False Messiahs" (one of what promises to be a most interesting series), the opening chapters of "Meir Ezofovitch," an absorbing illustrated story of Jewish life in the ancient Polish town of Szybow. The spread of the "Yiddish" or "Jargon" is discussed in another article, with entertaining extracts from a recent book by Prof. Leo Weiner of Harvard University. There are many other attractive articles in this initial issue of the new magazine, which promises to be popular among Bible students, scholars, and all who are interested in the history and progress of "the chosen race." The People, the Land and the Book costs $1 a year to mail subscribers and is published at 922 Fulton St., Brooklyn, N. Y.

A Notable Anniversary

"AND thou shalt remember all the way which the Lord thy God led thee these forty years," was the text from which Rev. Dr. J. Addison Henry proclaimed to his people in Princeton Presbyterian Church, West Philadelphia, Sunday, June 3, the fortieth anniversary of his pastorate. In the course of his sermon, Dr. Henry said: "The pastor stands almost alone now among those who were here forty years ago, there being but four remaining on the communicant roll who were members of the church when he entered upon his pastorate." In the pulpit with Dr. Henry was Rev. Willard M. Rice, who was present at his installation, June 5, 1860. That was the first service held in the main audience room of the new church (known as the "old church," since the present large and commodious structure was reared in its stead about 1877). It was the only installation of a pastor that Princeton Church has ever witnessed—an installation which has proved to be for the pastor that over his one and only charge. The sermon was preached by Rev. Dr. Charles Woodruff Shields, now Professor of the Harmony of Science and Revealed Religion in Princeton University; Rev. Dr. Robert Watts, afterward professor in the Theological Seminary, Belfast, Ireland, delivered the charge to the pastor; and Rev. Dr. Jonathan Edwards delivered the charge to the people. The young minister was fresh from Princeton Theological Seminary; in the seminary grounds on the day of his graduation, the papers conveying a unanimous call from the church, whose shepherd he has been so long, were handed him by its elders. At that time the membership of Princeton Presbyterian Church was small, only some thirty-six names being on the roll of regular attendants. West Philadelphia, now numbering a population of some 200,000 souls, was but a succession of straggling villages with here and there a beautiful country-seat.

REV. DR. J. ADDISON HENRY

For one year after his installation the young church remained on the mission list, where it had found a place when but a little band of worshipers meeting in a frame chapel in 1853. After that year it became self-supporting; and it has since steadily grown in numbers, influence and good works at home and in the foreign missionary field. The number of communicants in 1860 was 36; it is now 710. The pastor has joined many hands in wedlock; baptized many adults and little children, and has made 23,505 pastoral calls. No wonder that he has grown into the hearts and lives of his people; and that the first Sabbath in June—the anniversary of the church, the Sunday School and his pastorate is always a holy gala day in Princeton. The present celebration covered four days: Sunday, the pastor's sermon and the anniversary of the Sunday School; Tuesday, ministerial reception; Wednesday, children's reception and church organization meeting; Thursday, congregational reception. Dr. Henry stands first in continuous length of settlement in the Presbytery of Philadelphia.

ROYAL

BAKING POWDER

Imparts that peculiar lightness, sweetness, and flavor noticed in the finest cake, biscuit, rolls, crusts, etc., which expert pastry cooks declare is unobtainable by the use of any other leavening agent.

ROYAL BAKING POWDER CO., N. Y.

Dr. Talmage's Greatest Books

Manger to Throne—Earth Girdled—The New Beautiful Story—Pathway of Life—all beautifully illustrated. Price $3.50 each. Will be sent postpaid to readers of The Christian Herald for $2.00 each, or $7.00 for the four together. M. E. MUNSON, 77 Bible House, New York.

Scrofula

Is an ancient foe of the race. It attacks the child in the cradle, and, unless expelled from the blood, follows him to the grave. Hood's Sarsaparilla completely overcomes this disease by eradicating its poisonous taints from the blood. Thousands of grateful parents write that their children, who were tortured and disfigured by scrofula, have been entirely relieved by this great medicine.

Hood's Sarsaparilla

Never Disappoints. It is the best medicine Money Can Buy. All druggists.

HOOD'S PILLS cure sick headache, indigestion, 25c.

Libby's Luncheon Specialties

Only One of anything can be superlative. The "Best" always stands alone. For variety, delicacy, fine flavor and general excellence, nothing equals

Libby's Perfect Food Products

Prepared in hygienic kitchens under Government inspection. They are absolutely pure and wholesome. Libby's are the convenient foods for in-doors and out-doors. Put up in handy-sized key-opening cans.

Write for our little book, "How to Make Good Things to Eat." Tells you all about the 71 kinds of Libby's ready-to-serve foods.

LIBBY, McNEILL & LIBBY, Chicago.

"Frozen Dainties" FREE

A dainty book that will help you make the most delicious desserts. By Mrs. Lincoln, author of the Boston Cook Book. Sent free because it commends the IMPROVED TRIPLE MOTION WHITE MOUNTAIN FREEZERS.

WHITE MOUNTAIN FREEZER CO., Dept. A, Nashua, N. H.

KNOX'S GELATIN

is as different from the other as day is from night.

A strong statement, easily proved this way: Send for my FREE 32-page book "Dainty Desserts for Dainty People"—70 delicious recipes. Or better—Send 2 cents (for postage) for book and a full pint sample. For 15 cents a full 2-qt. package. Makes a tempting jelly without odor, and transparent as sparkling wine. Pink gelatine for fancy desserts in every packet.

CHAS. B. KNOX, 96 Knox Ave, Johnstown, N.

WONDER EGG BEATER & CREAM WHIP

Will beat eggs in half a minute.
Will whip cream in three minutes.

Guaranteed simplest and most efficient egg beater made. We are the largest manufacturers of Pure Aluminum, Scotch Granite and Tin Ware in the world. AGENTS, write how to get free this and others of our best selling household novelties. Outfit worth $2.00—Express prepaid. Address Dept. T.

HOUSEHOLD NOVELTY WORKS,
25 Randolph St., - Chicago, Ill. or New York, N. Y.; Buffalo, N. Y.; St. Louis, Mo.; Kansas City, Mo.; Denver, Col.; Seattle, Wash.

HARTSHORN'S SELF-ACTING SHADE ROLLERS

NOTICE NAME THUS Stewart Hartshorn ON LABEL AND GET THE GENUINE HARTSHORN

Young and old appreciate Welch's Grape Juice. There's no other beverage like it—but it is more than a beverage—it is food and drink in one. The Grape sugar and the delicate acid of the Concord Grape are found unchanged in Welch's Grape Juice, and are readily absorbed by the system, producing an immediate vigor from which there is no reaction. Write the Welch Grape Juice Co., Westfield, N. Y., for free Booklet.

5%

Annual Income Guaranteed for Twenty Years is a Feature of the 5% Gold Bond Policy issued by

The Prudential

Rates Low
Protection Absolute Investment Unexcelled

Issued in amounts from

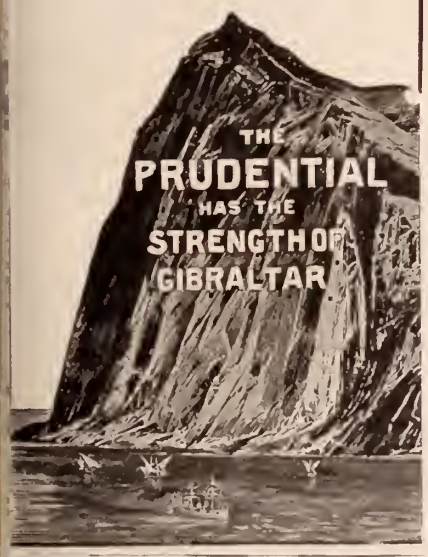
$5,000 to $100,000

on the whole Life Limited Payment or Endowment Plan.

Write for particulars.

THE PRUDENTIAL INSURANCE CO. OF AMERICA

JOHN F. DRYDEN, President. HOME OFFICE: Newark, N. J.



6 PER CENT. Without . . . Speculation

Our despositors receive 6 per cent. per annum, in quarterly payments, on sums on $50 or more. There is no element of speculation in the Company's operations, the dividends being assured by legitimate earnings.

Assets, $1,150,000. Surplus (accumulated in seven years), $150,000. Our securities are bonds and mortgages on improved real estate in New York and Pennsylvania — non-fluctuating, not speculative. Subject to supervision and regular annual examination by the State Banking department.

We refer, by special permission, to many clergymen and other prominent professional and business men.

Please apply for information in detail.

Industrial Savings & Loan Co.,
1133 Broadway, New York.

Death of a Famous Pastor

After a Pastorate of Fifty-three Years Dr. R. S. Storrs, of Brooklyn, N. Y., Passes to his Rest : : : : : :

LOSS after loss is falling on the religious public of Brooklyn, N.Y., and on the Congregational body throughout the country. Following close on the death of Dr. Behrends, comes the announcement of the death of Dr. R. S. Storrs, a minister of the same denomination, and like Dr. Behrends, enjoying in remarkable degree the confidence and respect of his fellow citizens. Though in the matter of years, Dr. Storrs belonged to a past generation, the people of Brooklyn and the members of the denomination in other cities could never bring themselves to so think of him. In all his social habits and his public relations he kept in touch with the people of his time, and while he was conservative by nature, was always in sympathy with new methods of promoting social progress. Even in the pulpit, where he preached the theology of his early manhood and ignored the new ideas of the higher criticism, he showed marked tolerance and had only kind and brotherly words for the men whose conclusions he could not accept. His eminent character, the sweetness of his disposition, his uniform courtesy and tact won him the reverence of all, and were never more valuable to the church than, when from the chair of the American Board, he poured oil on the troubled waters.

THE LATE DR. R. S. STORRS

Dr. Richard Salter Storrs was the fourth in the direct line in his family to enter the Congregational ministry. His father, grandfather, and great-grandfather were all Congregational ministers, and each in his day exercised a potent and beneficent influence on the community. He was born at Braintree, Mass., in 1821, and was therefore in his seventy-ninth year when he died. He studied at Amherst College, and after his graduation served in the law office of Rufus Choate for two years. At the age of twenty he heard the call to the ministry, and leaving the law in which he appeared to be destined to high distinction, he went to Andover for a theological course. At its conclusion, he accepted a call to the pastorate of the Harvard Church, at Brookline, Mass. He remained there only one year, and in 1840 began the pastorate which was to be phenomenal in its length and success, of the Church of the Pilgrims in Brooklyn, N. Y. For fifty-three years Dr. Storrs continued his work in that church, during which it grew to be one of the most influential in the city. His sermons and all his public utterances were characterized by a rhetorical elegance, a peculiar grace of style and dignity of utterance which impressed all his hearers. Dr. Storrs could be depended upon, whether in the pulpit or on the public platform, to say the right thing at the right time, and to allay rising passions and conciliate the most excited opponents. During his presidency of the American Board, he had the confidence of both parties in the Board, and succeeded beyond the most sanguine expectations in preserving the peace and harmony of its leaders.

Dr. Storrs thoroughly identified himself with the social and public life of the city. He held numerous offices, sat on a multitude of committees and delighted to render service to his fellow citizens. They on their part were not slow to avail themselves of his readiness to serve them and even those who have little sympathy with churches and preachers delighted to listen to his words and to work with him for the advancement and development of the city. Not until the loss of his beloved wife, two years ago, did he show the effect of years or begin to diminish his activities. But when she passed away he aged perceptibly, seemed in one year to be twenty years older and showed a loss of nervous energy. In September last, he finally concluded to sever his connection with his church and since that time he has lived in comparative retirement. He died at his home in Brooklyn on June 5, surrounded by his mourning daughters and their children.

Gifts of Corn for India

But if a man be just and do that which is lawful and right . . . and hath given his bread to the hungry . . . hath walked in my statutes and hath kept my judgments . . . he shall surely live, saith the Lord God (Ezekiel 18).

TO those who reached out hands of love and pity to the starving people of India, either in giving grain or money to buy grain that went on the Quito, it will be a matter of great rejoicing to know that her cargo of corn—raised on American soil, given by the American people—will soon be distributed among the starving Hindus, sustaining life in thousands of famine victims.

The Quito carried from Kansas alone twenty-nine carloads of corn; of these, twenty were billed from Topeka, through Mr. T. J. Anderson; seven from Newton, one from Halstead, through Rev. David Goerz representing the Mennonites: one from Americus, through Mr. F. M. Wilson. "Old Kentucky" sent three carloads through Mr. M. D. Stambach. Ohio sent five, three from Tiffin, through Mr. W. E. Woolf; one from the Baptist Temple Congregation, Columbus, through the pastor, Rev. H. H. Barbour; one from Sabina, through Mr. G. P. Austin. Iowa sent two carloads, one from Emmetsburg, through Col. E. S. Ormsby; one from Essex, through Mr. J. W. Simpson. Illinois sent one carload, through Rev. W. S. Lanck, of Cherry Valley. The Mennonites of Minnesota sent one, through Rev. David Goerz. Nebraska sent one, through Mr. Fred S. Ashby, of Elwood. South Dakota sent one from Vermillion, through Mr. John Armussen, of Greenfield.

Many generous friends, to whom it was not convenient to send the corn itself to New York in time for the Quito's sailing, have sent money with the stipulation that corn be purchased with it. Thus, the India Famine Relief Committee, Troy, Ohio, sent, through Mr. John M. Campbell, $736.70—more than enough for the purchase of two carloads; the Pennsylvania Optical Co., Reading, Pa., sent $300 for the purchase of one carload. And multitudes besides contributed sums ranging from ten cents to $500 for the purchase of corn, which have been or will be acknowledged in the usual order.

In other ways our great-hearted people sought to fill that corn-ship; seeds and various other supplies were sent. From Ann Arbor, Michigan, through Mr. L. D. Carr, came a carload of flour; through Mr. W. J. Sherman, Little Falls, N. Y., a carload of wheat. Other givers were Mr. M. S. Blish, Seymour, Ind., representing the Blish Milling Co., of that place; Medora Milling Co., Medora; Donner Milling Co., Columbus; Blue River Milling Co., Edinburg; Trow Milling Co., Madison; Blanton Milling Co. and Acme Milling Co., Indianapolis; New Albany Milling Co., New Albany; F. C. Cook, Crothersville and G. W. Kennedy & Son, Shelbyville. Eberts & Bro., Jeffersonville, sent a carload of excellent flour. Many besides these have been generous.

Tired, languid, dull exactly expresses the condition of thousands at this time. The coming of warm weather finds the system's weak spot. Hood' Sarsaparilla will make you bright and healthy.

A GOOD COMPLEXION

Depends on Good Digestion.

This is almost an axiom, although usually we are apt to think that cosmetics, face powders, lotions, fancy soaps, etc., are the secrets for securing a clear complexion. But all these are simply superficial assistants.

It is impossible to have a good complexion unless the digestive organs perform their work properly; unless the stomach, by properly digesting the food taken into it, furnishes an abundance of pure blood, a good complexion is impossible.

This is the reason so many ladies are using Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets, because they promptly relieve any stomach trouble, and they have found out that perfect digestion means a perfect complexion, and one that does not require cosmetics and powders to enhance its beauty.

Many ladies diet themselves or deny themselves many articles of food solely in order to keep their complexion clear. When Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are used no such dieting is necessary. Take these tablets and eat all the good wholesome food you want, and you need have no fear of indigestion nor the sallow, dull complexion which nine women out of ten have, solely because they are suffering from some form of indigestion.

Bear in mind that beauty proceeds from good health, good health results from perfect digestion and we have advanced the best argument to induce every man and woman to give this splendid remedy a trial.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets can be found in drug stores and costs but 50 cents per package.

If there is any derangement of the stomach or bowels they will remove it, and the resultant effects are good digestion, good health and a clear, bright complexion.

Brought back to life.

This was virtually the case with Mrs. Nellie Cameron, of Lockport, N. Y. She was the victim of a severe case of stomach trouble and was slowly starving to death. She could derive no nourishment from her food, as the stomach was too weak to retain it long enough to digest it. She wasted to a mere shadow, doctors failed to help her and she lost all hope of recovery, until finally on the advice of a friend she began to use Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People and to them she owes her life. Here is her own story:

"In the fall of 1898 I was in a deplorable condition. I had stomach trouble in the very worst form. Nothing at all would stay on my stomach, and I had to almost starve myself. My side pained me constantly. The lack of nourishment caused me to lose flesh rapidly; I dropped from 138 to 97 pounds, growing weaker all the time. There was not the slightest color in my face. I was simply a shadow of my former self. Able physicians treated me, but failed absolutely. I was a complete wreck when a friend told me to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. One box greatly improved my condition; it was astonishing how quickly they built me up. I believe Dr. William's Pink Pills for Pale People saved my life. I was enabled to sleep, and in the morning I felt refreshed and rested. My stomach was strengthened, what I ate benefited me, my weight increased, and I soon regained all that I had lost. I am now well and strong. I cannot speak too highly of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People.

Nellie Cameron.

Subscribed and sworn to before me this 3d day of July, 1899.

Stacy D. Behe,
Notary Public.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold in boxes (never in loose bulk) at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50, and may be had of all druggists, or direct by mail from Dr. Williams Medicine Company, Schnectady, N. Y.

Mason & Hamlin

Church, Chapel, Lodge, ORGANS School and Home.

THE STANDARD OF THE WORLD.

Catalog free. 146 Boylston St., Boston, Mass.

CHURCH HYMNS

AND GOSPEL SONGS.

Examination almost invariably results in adoption.

Sample Copy, 20 cents. Price, $25 per 100.

THE BIGLOW & MAIN CO., New York and Chicago.

Mont-Lawn Ready to Open

THESE are very busy times at Mont-Lawn; a large company of children are coming, and everything must be in perfect readiness for their reception; with from 200 to 300 little folks in the house, there is no time for after-touches. A mother knows what a time she has making ready for the home-coming of the lad and lassie who will be back from their respective schools in June or July. Will she try to imagine what it is to set the house in order for the visitation of between 200 and 300 children, of all sorts and sizes, and from all conditions in life! We wish that every mother and father, and all the good people who are helping us to give a time of refreshment to the children of the poor this summer could see the lighting up of little faces when the message is received that their names are down on the list of those who are to be taken to Mont-Lawn for a ten-day's outing.

When the eager question comes from a company of wee ragged waifs: "Will the country open this summer?" it is such a great pleasure to say "Yes"; to tell them that the doors of the Home will soon swing wide for its dear little guests; that the big dining-tent is about to be spread on the wide, green lawn; that the little white cots are almost ready for occupants; that boxes of little pink and blue dresses and white aprons, and blouses and trousers, and hats and shoes are coming in from friends of poor children: that this and that faithful servant of the Master in Massachusetts, California, Maine and Texas (and all the states between) are not going to forget the tenement waifs this summer, but are already writing letters that pledge help, and others that contain the money to give an outing to two or three or more little ones. The friends of children scattered throughout our country cannot realize, without seeing for themselves, the blessed work they do when cooperating with us in this labor of love for helpless tenement waifs, whose only pleasure, only chance for health and strength, perhaps for life itself consists in the outing to Mont Lawn. In this outing, many have their only glimpse of a pure home-life, others, their only opportunity to hear about Jesus and his love for children under conditions which incline them to believe there is such a thing as love; for while many of our guests are children of the worthy poor, others come from drink-shadowed homes.

APPLICANTS FOR AN OUTING

Never was Mont Lawn more beautiful than now. From the wide veranda, one looks down upon the peaceful blue waters of the Hudson, and up to the wooded hills outlined on all sides against the azure sky. "This place always makes me think," says the Housemother, "of those words of Holy Writ: 'As the mountains are round about Jerusalem, so the Lord is round about his people.'" The green fields seem waiting for the little feet to press them, the daisies for little hands to pluck them; and the birds—well, of course, the birds will be ready with a chorus of welcome! What might be called more substantial tokens of readiness for the children, however, may be seen in the big pantry, where barrels of oatmeal and flour, boxes of crackers and cookies, and other supplies for feeding a childish host, are being stored away. Then, there is the great vegetable garden, which will yield nice, wholesome dishes for hungry little people—to many of whom a fresh vegetable is an unknown quantity.

The pair of unfortunates in our illustration, though better clad than the average, are in many respects typical applicants; they are brother and sister; the little lad is a cripple, the result of a fall received in his neglected infancy; both are motherless; their father, a poor laborer, must need leave them to themselves during the day. The little maid is "housekeeper" of their one hot, tiny room up many flights of dark, narrow stairs.

The following contributions have been received by this journal in aid of the Children's Home:

Prev ack (Corr'd)	$7,556 10	Taylor, Matthew	96
Bateson, Jr, Mrs J.	5 00	Wall, Mrs Dr	1 00
Bickley & wife, F W.	2 00	M J B, Blaine	1 25
Coatsworth, Mrs C	3 00	S T B, Acushnet	50
Connelly, Jos W	10	—, Portsmouth	3 00
Dunning, Mrs Thos	1 00	—, Saco	2 00
Heverly, Mrs S G, & SS c	2 00	For His Sake, Mont	2 50
Long, George	2 00	A Friend, Pendleton	1 00
McMahan, W F	2 00	In mem of nurse M W	1 00
Osmer, Wm	33	W C T U, Warren co	8 00
Pratt, R R	4 00	Total	$7,598 74

A Notable Hebrew Association

TWENTY-SIX years ago, the first Young Men's Hebrew Association in New York City was founded—its model being, to a large extent, the Young Men's Christian Associations, whose phenomenal growth had attracted the attention of the religionists of every creed. The progress and popularity of the parent Y. M. H. A., was such as to induce similar efforts in other cities, and there are Young Men's Hebrew Associations in Philadelphia, St. Louis, Atlanta, Louisville, Cincinnati, New Orleans, Boston, New Haven and San Francisco. Among the many features of the New York Association which afford special advantages to members, are courses of lectures and entertainments, free classes under competent instructors, an excellent library, literary societies, gymnasium, athletic and pastime clubs, conversation rooms and an employment bureau. Many of the leading philanthropic Jewish merchants and business men of New York are among the patrons of the Association, which is doing a very excellent educational work among the young Israelites of the metropolis. As defined by the reports of the parent association, the objects of the Y. M. H. A. are as follows:

That it shall become the foremost educational resort, the haven and home of Jewish young men and Jewish young women, and that it shall benefit and uplift all who come to its doors in every way possible.

Among the notable gifts to the association were $5,000 by J. B. Bloomingdale, $5,000 by Andrew Carnegie, and $10,000 by Mrs. Esther Herrman, all for library purposes. Mr. Jacob Schiff, the well-known banker, gave to the association, two years ago, its new and commodious home. Recently the Association presented him with a loving cup in token of its gratitude.

Saved in Battle by Prayer

Within twenty miles of Augusta, Maine, seven brothers reside, whose ages vary from sixty-three to eighty. They all have a very firm belief in the power of prayer. They are the sons of Enoch and Mary Hallowell Merrill. All but one of these brothers served in the Civil War. During the darkest and most trying days of the war, when five of the brothers were still at the front, their grandfather, Dean Hallowell, of Windsor, Me., was deeply concerned for their safety, as well as for that of his son John, who was also a volunteer for the Union cause. There was much anxiety, much weeping, much prayer for them. One morning the good deacon hastened to his daughter's home and greeted her with these words: "Polly, you needn't worry any more about the boys. God has told me they are all coming back alive, and so is John." His faith had prevailed, and so he could take this welcome assurance to the daughter. James served four years, Enoch and Melvin enlisted twice, and all saw active service. Two only were wounded, but the lives of more than one was despaired of through illness, yet death seemed to have no power to claim them. John Hallowell, the deacon's son, is still living at an advanced age.

In striking contrast to this story of remarkable preservation during the perils of war, was the fate of the seven sons of a near neighbor of the Merrills. These also enlisted in the same war and went to the front, but not one returned alive.

CARRIE H. KENDALL.

THE NEW Y. M. H. A. BUILDING IN NEW YORK CITY

BOXES OF GOLD

Sent for Letters About Grape-Nuts.

330 boxes of gold and greenbacks will be sent to persons writing interesting and truthful letters about the good that has been done them by the use of Grape-Nuts food.

10 little boxes, each containing a $10 gold piece, will be sent to 10 writers of the most interesting letters.

20 boxes, each containing a $5 gold piece, to the 20 next most interesting writers, and a $1 greenback will go to each of the 300 next best. A committee of 3 to make the decision and the prizes sent on July 3, 1900.

Write plain, sensible letters, giving detailed facts of ill-health caused from improper food and explain the improvement, the gain in strength, in weight, or in brain-power after using Grape-Nuts food.

It is a profound fact that most ails of humanity come from improper and non-nourishing food, such as white bread, hot biscuit, starchy and uncooked cereals, etc.

A change to perfectly cooked, pre-digested food like Grape-Nuts, scientifically made and containing exactly the elements nature requires for building the delicate and wonderful cells of brain and body, will quickly change a half sick person to a well person. Food, good food, is Nature's strongest weapon of defense.

Include in letter the true names and addresses, carefully written, and 20 persons, not very well, to whom we can write regarding th efood cure by Grape-Nuts.

Almost everyone interested in pure food is willing to have his or her name appear in the papers for such help as they may offer the human race. A request, however, to omit name will be respected. Try for one of the 330 prizes. Everyone has an equal show. Don't write poetry, but just honest and interesting facts about the good you have obtained from the pure food Grape-Nuts. If a man or woman has found a true way to get well and keep well, it should be a pleasure to stretch a helping hand to humanity by telling the facts.

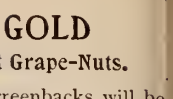
Write your name and address plainly on letter and mail promptly to the Postum Cereal Co., Ltd., Battle Creek, Mich. Prizes sent July 3.

$18 to $35 WEEKLY and Expenses. | MEN and WOMEN, At Home or Traveling.

Mr. Smith, of Ind., made $927.50 first 6 months. Albert Hill, of N. J., $238 first month. Mr. Muncy, of Texas, $12.50 first 2 hours. Carrie Williams, clerk, $144 in 6 weeks. Mrs. Hitchcox, $222, besides housekeeping. Lida Kennedy, $84.00 while teaching.

LET US START YOU—No experience needed. Our agents made over $47,000.00 last month supplying the enormous demand for our famous Quaker Bath Cabinet, and appointing agents. Wonderful Seller. Everybody buys—business men, families and physicians. No scheme, fraud or fake methods. WRITE TODAY for Our Proposition, New Plan, etc., FREE. Address, World Mfg. Co., 47 World B'ld'g. Cincinnati, O.

Acme Medicine Cover AND Dose Indicator 15c



Keeps medicine free from dust and germs, and tells time to take next dose. Fits any glass or makes stand for bottle. Non-corrosive and anti-septic. If your dealer hasn't it, send 15c. for sample.

SHARON MANUFACTURING CO.
134 South 11th Street, PHILADELPHIA

BORDEN'S EAGLE BRAND CONDENSED MILK

40 YEARS THE WORLDS FAVORITE

SEND FOR "BABIES" A BOOK FOR MOTHERS

BORDEN'S CONDENSED MILK CO, NEW YORK.

FREE SCHOLARSHIP IN Electrical, Mechanical, Marine, Stationary or Locomotive ENGINEERING
NUMBER LIMITED. WRITE IMMEDIATELY
AMERICAN SCHOOL OF CORRESPONDENCE, Boston, Mass.

SUMMER HOMES IN VERMONT ...AND ON... Lake Champlain
$4.00 and upward per week. Send 4c. postage for Illustrated Book.
A. W. Ecclestone, S. P. A., 353 Broadway, N. Y.

It Is a Certainty That Catarrh can be cured. You will believe it after using a sample of Dr. Blosser's Catarrh Cure. Mailed free. Address Dr. J. W. Blosser & Son, 50 Broad St., Blosser Building, Atlanta, Ga.

HAIR INSOLES keep feet clean and dry. Prevent jar in walking. Relieve Rheumatism, Callous, Tender and Perspiring Feet. 10c., 3 pair 25c., postpaid. The Wm. M. Wiley & Son Co., Box D, Hartford, Ct.

$2100 in Premiums.

No Lottery. It costs nothing for our customers to compete. Our clothing catalogue with large cloth samples and our lithographed carpet catalogue showing Carpets, Rugs, Art Squares and Draperies in their real colors, both free. Expressage paid on clothing—freight paid on carpets; also lining furnished free, and sewing free. Address this way:
JULIUS HINES & SON, Baltimore, Md. Dept. 218

DITMAN'S SEA-SALT
The Natural Salt of Pure Sea Water
TONIC, STRENGTHENING, INVIGORATING
Used for Quarter Century
Address Ditman, 2 Barclay Street. New York

We furnish samples free to agents F. S. Frost, Lubec, Me; sold $132.79, retailing days. Write for Catalog, new goods, rapid sellers RICHARDSON MFG. CO., 6th St., Bath, N. Y.

MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP for children teething should always be used for children while teething. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain, relieves wind colic, and is the best remedy for diarrhœa.

Good Causes Helped

The following sums have been contributed by our readers for the support of the worthy causes mentioned below:

Bethesda Home.

Prev ack	$150 00
In memoriam R C M, Wallace Bay, Can.	5 00
Lillian T Smith	1 00
Mrs Wm Woodside	2 50
Angusta Lawrence	5 00
Ida Lawrence	5 00
Total	$168 50

Door of Hope.

Prev ack	$27 81
"Wyo"	5 00
Total	$32 81

Foreign Missions.

Prev ack	$36 50
S P Kane	5 00
One of His children, Danville	2 00
Total	$43 50

Home Samaritan

Prev ack	$10 00
H N, Island) Va	3 50
Total	$13 50

Any Good Cause.

Prev ack	$189 06
In memory of J. G. Herbert	10 00
Mrs Elizabeth Smith	2 00
—, Trumansburg	1 00
N A Davis	50
W E Pritchard	1 50
A S Quin	1 00
Total	$205 06

Mrs. Rose H. Lathrop.

Prev ack	$12 00
—, Coram	1 00
Total	$13 00

Clinton St. Settlement.

Prev ack	$51 01
Lucy Whitmore	5 00
Total	$56 01

Mayesville Institute

Prev. ack	$2 00
B M Cutcheon	1 00
Mary E Tucker	1 00
Miss H E Butler	25 00
H T Lay	5 00
H W Winslow,	20 00
Total	$54 00

Miss Emma Nason's Work Among Lumbermen.

Prev ack	$47 00
Mrs Edward Buck	1 00
Total	$48 00

Porto Rico S. S. Work.

Prev ack	$125 05
C E Soc, Lincolnville	2 00
H A Raub	1 00
E Desmarais	2 00
J H Mason	1 00
Alice F Hawley	1 00
S. Phila	50 00
John C Boyd	10 00
Miss Alice Cary	1 00
H M, Va	3 00
Wm Foxwell	65
Mrs G H. Foxwell	1 00
Etha VanArsdale	1 00
Total	$198 10

Christian Herald S. S. Missionary.

Prev. ack	$11 00
"Wyo"	4 00
Total	$15 00

Emilio Olssen's South American Mission

Prev ack	$72 45
H Farnsworth	1 00
Mary J Worth	3 00
Mrs G D Hastings	5 00
Penelope, Rochelle	5 00
Wm Kraemer	1 50
J A M P, Florence	1 00
A N H, Belleville	5 00
Henry Bluemel	2 00
L M Hankes	1 00
Total	$96 95

Armenian Fund

Prev ack	$117 00
Elanor Compton.	2 00
Total	$119 00

Gospel Work in Philippines

Prev ack	$4 00
Mrs A E Metz.	5 00
Total	$9 00

Texas Flood Sufferers

Prev ack	$1 00
Mrs S E V Winslow	50
Total	$1 50

Bishop Hartzell

Prev ack	$6 00
Miscellaneous, Coldwater	20 00
Total	$26 00

Chaplain Chas C Pierce

Prev ack	$2 00
Mrs S M & Miss Laura Sanford	10 00
R L Gress	50
Total	$12 50

American Tract Society

Friend, Pardeeville	$1 00

Rev. Mr. Gillespie

H Trowbridge	$50

Rev. S. F. Grady

H Trowbridge	$50

Rev. Jee Gam

J A M P, Florence	$1 00

Ecumenical Conference

Alfred N L Bennnett	$5 00
R W Sankey	5 00
Friend, Durham	2 00
Frances H Butler	5 00
M H Tarbox	5 00
Lydia B Hilton	5 00
W C Yager	5 00
C O D, Mechanisburg	5 00
Mrs W H Null	5 00
Ralph Venecklasen	5 00
John D Simmons	5 00
Victor B Sweeling	5 00
W B Trull	5 00
Miscell, Coldwater	5 00
Total	$67 00

Gospel Work in Cuba

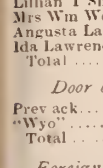
Prev. ack	$8 00
H N, Va	3 00
Friends, Middleboro	1 00
Total	$12 00

East Africa Famine Fund

Prev ack	$445 18
Mrs A E Metz.	5 00
Miss L W Cleare	2 50
Total	$452 68

When is a Nation Safe?*

In Righteousness, not in Tithes and Offerings Lies the Path of Safety



HOW immensely it would simplify our natural difficulties, if the nation could be made safe by the payment of a certain sum annually into God's treasury! Some such idea seems to have been in the mind of the person who chose the topic for this week's consideration, and associated with it the extract from the Jewish law regulating the offering of the firstfruits. It is as if he asked the question: "When is a nation safe?" and answered: "When it does as the Jews were commanded to do in this passage." But can it be possible that any sane person believes that the nation can be made safe by any such means? Can it be imagined for a moment that the Almighty can be hired with an offering to protect the nation? Anyone conceiving a thought so dishonoring to God, must have failed to understand his character, as utterly as he has failed to perceive the real dangers that menace the nation. Not by tithes and offerings, but by righteousness can a nation be made safe.

There is no doubt about the duty of giving, both in direct offerings to the cause of Christ and in gifts to the poor and needy. Though there is no people so generous and liberal in their gifts as the people of this continent, we do not give so much as we should in proportion to our national wealth. But it is not because the gifts are withheld that the country is in danger. Our chief danger consists in the moral deterioration of the people. No nation is safe in which the leaders of society are given up to luxury and pleasure. We are rapidly traveling along that dangerous path. Another danger is in our making money our god. There is a growing tendency to worship success, and to believe in no Gospel but the "gospel of getting on." The nation cannot be safe when the large majority of its people are ready to sacrifice their principles to increase their fortunes and when the boys at school are taught that the one paramount object in life is to accumulate riches. Another great danger, and probably the one most likely to ruin the country, is the growing discontent of the poor. When a man is anxious to work honestly for a bare living, but cannot obtain employment; when having obtained it, he is liable to discharge at the caprice of his employer; when toil as he may, he cannot save enough to pay for his funeral and save his wife and children from going to the poorhouse—it is difficult to convince him that society is as it ought to be and as God intended it to be. If a sufficient number of such men came together and determined to change these social arrangements, there would be trouble which would shake the country to its foundations.

Such are some of the dangers that menace the nation. How are they to be averted? When is a nation safe? We are told that when a man's ways please the Lord, he maketh even his enemies to be at peace with him, and what is true of the individual is true of the nation. But let no nation think that it can please the Lord by the offering of firstfruits, if it is living in unrighteousness. Our nation will not be safe till it is purified. So long as the church neglects its duty and leaves to the saloon the privilege of selecting our law-makers and law-administrators, the nation will not be safe. So long as the church occupies itself with disputes about doctrine and ritual, and leaves the burning question of the relations of capital and labor to adjust itself, the nation will not be safe. When will the nation be safe? When God's people in it cease answering the cry of misery with the words of Cain: "Am I my brother's keeper?" and endeavor honestly and intelligently to relieve the burdens that are making men desperate; when they insist on municipal honesty; when they compel the courts to be pure and fearless; when they devise means of employing the men who are willing to work on the work that needs to be done; when, in short, they shake off their indolence, and, considering the social condition, shall determine that this nation shall be a nation free from indifference and injustice, then, and not till then, will the nation be safe.

*Topic of the Christian Endeavor Society, Epworth League and Baptist Young People's Union for July 1. Deut. 26: 1-11.

COFFEE COMPLEXION

Many Ladies Have Poor Complexions from Coffee.

"Coffee caused dark colored blotches on my face and body. I had been drinking it for a long while and these blotches gradually appeared, until finally they became permanent and were about as dark as coffee itself.

"I formerly had as fine a complexion as one could ask for.

"When I became convinced that coffee was the cause of my trouble, I changed and took to using Postum Cereal Food Coffee, and as I made it well, according to directions, I liked it very much, and have since that time used it entirely in place of coffee."

"I am thankful to say I am not nervous any more, as I was when I was drinking coffee, and my complexion is now as fair and good as it was years ago. It is very plain that the coffee caused the trouble. Please omit my name from public print." Mrs. ——, 2081 Ogden Ave., Chicago, Ill. The name of this lady can be given by the Postum Cereal Co., Ltd., Battle Creek, Mich.

Most bad complexions are caused by some disturbance of the stomach and coffee is the greatest disturber of digestion known. Almost any woman can have a fair complexion if she will leave off coffee and use Postum Food Coffee and nutritious, healthy food in proper quantity. The food coffee furnishes certain parts of the natural grains from the field that nature uses to rebuild the nervous system and when that is in good condition, one can depend upon a good complexion as well as a general healthy condition of the body.

The Natural Body Brace advertised in this paper in the first issue of this month, is a delightful, certain remedy for ailments peculiar to women and girls. It makes walking and work easy; gives good figure and light step. Write the Natural Body Brace Co., Box 171, Salina, Kan., for free illustrated book.

ARMSTRONG & McKELVY Pittsburgh.
BEYMER-BAUMAN Pittsburgh.
DAVIS-CHAMBERS Pittsburgh.
FAHNESTOCK Pittsburgh.
ANCHOR, ECKSTEIN } Cincinnati.
ATLANTIC, BRADLEY, BROOKLYN, JEWETT, ULSTER, UNION } New York.
SOUTHERN, SHIPMAN } Chicago.
COLLIER, MISSOURI, RED SEAL, SOUTHERN } St. Louis.
JOHN T. LEWIS & BROS CO Philadelphia.
MORLEY Cleveland.
SALEM Salem, Mass.
CORNELL Buffalo.
KENTUCKY Louisville.

WHAT is the value of a guarantee that a paint will last if at the end of the time it must be burned or scraped off before you can repaint.

The only paint that presents a perfect surface after long exposure, without special preparation, is Pure White Lead. Employ a practical painter to apply it and the result will please you.

FREE For colors use National Lead Company's Pure White Lead Tinting Colors. Any shade desired is readily obtained. Pamphlet giving full information and showing samples of Colors, also pamphlet entitled "Uncle Sam's Experience With Paints" forwarded upon application.

National Lead Co., 100 William Street, New York.

"Standard of Highest Merit"

FISCHER PIANOS.

THE NEW SCALE Fischer yields a wonderfully pure quality of Tone, combined with great power and durability; it stamps the Fischer Piano with an individuality that no other Piano possesses.

60 Years Established

Over 110,000 Sold

BY OUR NEW METHOD of Easy Payments, every home is at once enabled to possess and enjoy a High Grade Piano. Pianos delivered to all parts of the United States. Write for catalogue, terms and all particulars.

J. & C. FISCHER
33 Union Square—West, New York, N. Y.

THE GEM EMBROIDERY MACHINE

SOMETHING NEW!

This little machine does the finest grades of embroidery now done by hand Embroiders on any fabric; uses embroidery silk or cotton; a child can operate it; an independent living can be made with it at home. As a special introductory offer we will send a sample machine with a full set of stamping patterns and a beautiful sample of embroidery, together with full instructions teaching how to use machine, for 60c. prepaid—regular price $2.00. A 50-page book of embroidery designs, containing upwards of 100 illustrations, free with each machine. Agents wanted.

GEM MFG. CO., Dept. C, St. Louis, Mo.

DEAD STUCK

kills the eggs and grown-ups of all bed bugs, moths, roaches, ants, etc. Used by the United States Government. Non-poisonous to human life. A liquid powder. As stainless as spring water and as pleasant smelling as tar. 25 cts. per bottle, or in gallon cans for hotels and hospitals. All dealers.

PHILA. CHEMICAL CO.,
2d & Cherry Streets, Philadelphia.

Big Drop in Bicycles

For $8.00 to $12.00 you can now buy the same class of bicycles that are being widely advertised by several houses in Chicago and other cities at $15.00 to $20.00.

For $13.75 you can get a high grade, one-year guaranteed 1900 gents' or ladies' bicycle, the equal of bicycles sold everywhere at $25.00 to $40.00, and for $18.00 you can get a genuine Elgin King or Queen, the highest of high grade, a 1900 model, that retails everywhere at $50.00. Shipped anywhere in the United States on 10 days' free trial. No money until after received. For full particulars, complete bicycle catalogue and special price offerings, cut this notice out and mail to SEARS, ROEBUCK & Co., Chicago.

Good Health for $5.00

The Robinson Vapor ...BATH CABINET...

Purify your Blood Before Hot Weather

Positively removes Rheumatism, Kidney and Stomach trouble. It makes you clean and well. The ONLY patent Screen Folding Cabinet made. Get no other. WE WANT GOOD AGENTS EVERYWHERE.

We want bright, energetic men and women to open branch offices for us in every city and town. Most liberal commissions. One representative made $200 in first 20 days, another made $375 in a month, others $5 to $10 a day and upwards. Why work on a small salary when you can make much more money representing us. Write to-day for full particulars.

THE ROBINSON CO.
901-917 Jefferson Street, Toledo, Ohio

Thousands in use in all parts of the world. Is no experiment. A Cyclist using the Morrow for a few weeks would give up cycling rather than give up the Coaster Brake. Ladies' skirts keep down when coasting. Feet always on Pedals. When ordering your new wheel, be SURE to specify the Morrow Coaster-Brake. For sale by all dealers.

Our Acetylene Bicycle Lamp is superior to any yet offered.

Illustrated pamphlet, giving detailed information regarding Brake and Lamp, sent on application.

ECLIPSE BICYCLE CO., Box U, Elmira, N. Y.

GREAT FACTORY CLEARING SALE

6000 new '99 model bicycles carried over, must be closed out at once. Price each, complete $11

SECOND-HAND wheels, good as new; over 50 makes and models. Each $3 to $10

1900 MODELS, strictly high-grade makes, all styles fully guaranteed $11 to $20

We ship anywhere on approval and trial before you pay a cent.

BICYCLE FREE for carefully distributing 1000 catalogues for us. One agent wanted in each town for this purpose. Write at once for our special proposition.

MEAD CYCLE CO., Dept. 41 H, Chicago

$14 If You Want to SAVE MONEY and get the best machine at lowest wholesale price, now is your chance. Buy direct from factory, one profit. All attachments free. 30 days' free trial. WARRANTED 20 YEARS.

$40.00 Arlington for $14.00
$50.00 Arlington for $17.00
$65.00 Kenwood for $21.50
Other Machines at $9, $10.50 & $12

Illustrated catalog and testimonials free. CASH BUYERS' UNION,
158-164 W. Van Buren St., B-18, Chicago, Ill.

"Mizpah" Valve Nipples

WILL NOT COLLAPSE

and therefore prevent much colic. The valve prevents a vacuum being formed to collapse them. The ribs inside prevent collapsing when the child bites them. The rim is such that they cannot be pulled off the bottle. Sample free by mail.

WALTER F. WARE, 512 Arch Street, Philadelphia, Pa.

OPIUM MORPHINE and Liquor Habit cured in 10 to 20 days. No pay till cured. Book of particulars free. Address Dr. J. E. Stephens, Dept. R. 5, Lebanon, Ohio.

RUPTURE

The Improved Elastic Truss is the only Truss in existence that is worn with absolute comfort night and day, and it retains the rupture under the hardest exercise or severest strain, and will effect a permanent and speedy relief. Competent lady always in attendance for ladies, or to answer correspondence from women. Our goods are not sold by agents or druggists. Send for free pamphlets to the Improved Elastic Truss Co., 768 Broadway, New York. ESTABLISHED 18 YEARS.

Eskay's Food

Better than an incubator.

"When my twin babies were born they were quite small. The girl was very feeble, so much so, the physician thought seriously of using an incubator.

I worried along for six weeks; then the doctor claimed they were not properly nourished. Having little faith in artificial food, I reluctantly tried a sample of Eskay's, and was delighted to find it agreed with both, and they commenced to pick up wonderfully.

I have been using Eskay's Food ever since, and, while I have been nursing them all along with scant supply, I cannot speak too highly of the good results obtained from the use of Eskay's Food."

MRS. W. H. SAURER, Philadelphia.

Eskay's Food is a composition of the most nutritious part of hen's eggs and the most easily digested cereals.

How it develops the infant is shown in above picture. It's an equally valuable nutriment for adults suffering from impaired digestion.

Nourishes from infancy to old age.

Sample of Eskay's Food sent on request; also book, "How to care for the Baby."

SMITH, KLINE & FRENCH CO., Philadelphia.

BEWARE OF IMITATIONS.

LEA & PERRINS' SAUCE

The Original and Genuine Worcestershire.

Club men and all good livers appreciate the appetizing relish given to Oyster-cocktails, Welsh rarebits, Lobster Newburgh and all dishes flavored with this sauce.

SIGNATURE on every bottle Lea & Perrins John Duncan's Sons AGENTS-NEW YORK.

FREE YEARS TRIAL

PIANO $155.00 UP

ORGAN $25.00 UP

Money back with interest if not satisfied with your bargain. Write today for our latest catalogue. It is free. It shows you the latest and most up-to date Organs and Pianos on the market. It tells you all about our patent combination actions and orchestral attachments which imitate a great variety of stringed instruments. Something new and novel that never fails to please. A discount of $10.00 on every Organ and $20.00 on every Piano if you get our catalogue now. We sell for cash or on easy payments. No money in advance required. From factory to home. No agents. No middlemen's profits. Write today.

BEETHOVEN PIANO & ORGAN CO.
Box 741 Washington, N.J.

Are You Alarmed About Your Health?

It is an unfortunate fact,—but a fact, nevertheless, that nearly every one wakes up in the morning feeling distressed in some way—not sufficiently rested—bad taste in the mouth—dull headache—stomach ready to revolt at the slightest provocation. Why? There's no use going into reasons—there are as many reasons, almost, as there are people. The condition exists and can be removed. Take a spoonful of in half a tumbler of water immediately after rising. The effect is delicious! Your mouth and throat are refreshed, your stomach is soothed, your breath is sweetened, your bowels will move later on, gently, surely, as Nature intended it should be done. ABBEY'S SALT is Nature's remedy, made from the salts extracted from the juices of pure Fresh Fruits.

Abbey's Effervescent Salt,

"The 'Salt' of Salts,"

DR. F. J. LEONARD, Brooklyn, N. Y., states: "I am extremely pleased with the results I have received from ABBEY'S SALT. They certainly do all that is required. I have used other salts, but they cannot compare with, nor do they act like, your salt."

25c., 50c., $1.00 per bottle.

Sold by most druggists, or sent by mail. THE ABBEY EFFERVESCENT SALT CO., Dept. A, 9-15 Murray St., New York. Booklet free on request.

Artistic Monuments

COST NO MORE THAN PLAIN ONES

in White Bronze Marble is entirely out of date. Granite soon gets moss-grown, discolored, requires constant expense and care, and eventually crumbles back to Mother Earth. Besides it is very expensive.

White Bronze is strictly everlasting. It cannot crumble with the action of frost. Moss-growth is an impossibility. It is more artistic than any stone. Then why not investigate it? It has been adopted for nearly one hundred public monuments. We have designs from $4.00 to $4,000.00. Write at once for free designs and information. It puts you under no obligations. We deal direct and deliver everywhere. Over $28,000 worth of work sold to Christian Herald readers in the last few years.

The Monumental Bronze Co., 70-90 Howard Ave., Bridgeport, Conn.

Bundy

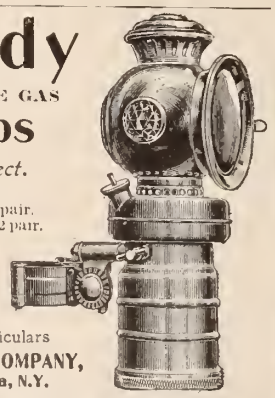
ACETYLENE GAS

Lamps

Are Perfect.

Student, $7.
Carriage, $26 pair.
Runabout, $12 pair.

Bicycle Model "C," $3.00, Prepaid.



Write for particulars

BUNDY LAMP COMPANY,
Box J, Elmira, N.Y.

FOUR GOOD REASONS why you should buy BUGGIES direct from our factory

1st—YOU SAVE the DEALERS' PROFIT.
2d—You get all custom made & best material.
3d—You get our TWO year guarantee.
4th—You pay only after examining. Our $23 Buggy, $47 Surrey or $36 Top Family Wagon are wonders for cheapness. 4 tired Wheels $6.25, Buggy Tops $5.25, Harness $3.95. Catlog free. Purchasers can become successful agents aided by our private selling instructions.

$29.95

U. S. BUGGY & CART CO. P 84, Cincinnati, O.

AFTER HARVEST, FENCING.

Now that your crops are all in, you will have time to attend to that fencing. The best farm fence you know, is

THE ADVANCE FENCE.

It's the one that is sold direct to the farmer at wholesale prices. Nobody can buy it cheaper than you can. Entirely interwoven. No loose ends. Circulars and special discounts free.

ADVANCE FENCE CO., 149 Old Street, Peoria, Ill.

FENCE!

STRONGEST MADE. Bull-strong. Chicken-tight. Sold to the Farmer at Wholesale Prices. Fully Warranted. Catalog Free.

COILED SPRING FENCE CO. Box 47. Winchester, Indiana, U. S. A.

Rheumatic Gout.

A physician in Malden, Mass, writes:

"I have been a sufferer from rheumatic gout for many years; have taken preparations of all kinds, but TARTARLITHINE commended itself to my judgment and I am more than satisfied with the results. I am happy to introduce it to others."

Tartarlithine is supplied in bottles containing 50 doses at $1.00 and can be obtained of all druggists or post-free by mail. Pamphlets with Testimonials sent FREE.

McKESSON & ROBBINS,
91 Fulton Street, New York.
Sole Agents for THE TARTARLITHINE CO.

STARK TREES best by test—74 YEARS. WE WANT MORE SALESMEN PAY CASH WEEKLY Stark Nursery, Louisiana, Mo; Dansville, N.Y.

$75 Month and Expenses; no experience needed; position permanent; self-seller. PEASE MFG. CO., Stat'n A, Cincinnati, O.

I CAN SELL YOUR FARM

No matter where located; send description and selling price and learn my wonderfully successful plan for selling farms. W. M. Ostrander, 1215 Filbert St., Phila., Pa.

CHRISTIAN HERALD

AND SIGNS OF OUR TIMES

OFFICES: BIBLE HOUSE, NEW YORK
Rev. T. De Witt Talmage, D.D., Editor

COPYRIGHT, 1900, BY LOUIS KLOPSCH

NEW YORK, JUNE 27, 1900

VOLUME 23—NUMBER 26
PRICE FIVE CENTS

PREPARING FOR THE GREAT CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR WORLD'S CONVENTION IN LONDON

1. Alexandra Palace, where the Endeavorers will meet July 14-18. 2. Rev. John Clifford, D.D. 3. Rev. T. Brown Morgan. 4. Rev. S. Chadwick. 5. Rev. Handley Moule, D.D. 6. Rev. R. J. Rees, M.A., Wales. 7. J. Willis Baer, Gen. Sec'y. 8. Rev. F. E. Clark, President. 9. Rev. F. B. Meyer. 10. Rev. W. K. Chaplin. (See Mr. Baer's article on page 533)

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

1. These questions are printed Four weeks in advance so as to afford all our readers an opportunity to answer them.
2. For answers to the questions which appear below, when accepted, we will allow compensation for the matter used at the rate of One Dollar a hundred words. Answers should so far as possible be limited to one hundred words.
3. Answers must be received at this office two weeks in advance of the date in which they are intended to appear.
4. The editor reserves the right to condense accepted answers when necessary, and compensation will be based on the matter as printed.
5. Do not write inquiring if your material has been accepted. It it appears on this page, you will know that it has been accepted.
6. We cannot return any MSS. sent to the Editor of THE MAIL BAG—not even if stamps accompany them.
7. Write only on one side of the sheet and never send on the same sheet anything intended for any other department of the paper. Correspondents answering more than one question should append their name and address to each answer.
8. Address all communications intended for this department. EDITOR THE MAIL-BAG.

The Christian Herald, Bible House, New York.

These Questions Will be Answered July 18

1. What is the origin and meaning of the initials V. C. after the names of British generals?
2. What were the three temptations of Jesus described in Matthew 4? In what way did they conflict with Christ's principles?
3. Is a Roman Catholic eligible for the Presidency of the United States? If so, why cannot a Roman Catholic be monarch of Great Britain?
4. What are the principal points of difference between Buddhism and Christianity?
5. Ought a husband whose wife has broken her marriage vow to forgive her and receive her back to his home on her repentance?
6. How do Christian people who do not believe that Jonah was really swallowed by a fish explain his book?
7. Does God really create evil as he is said to do in Isaiah 45: 7?
8. What proportion of the world's letters is written in Anglo-Saxon?
9. What race or people entertains the belief that heaven will be an exceptionally cool place?
10. Why are X's used on barrels of liquor to signify degrees of strength or quality?

• • •

Questions of the Week

1. By whom were the briet summaries of contents over each chapter of the Authorized Version of the Bible supplied?

They appeared in the Genevan Version, begun in 1558 and completed in 1560, and, so far as I have been able to trace, in no earlier version. That version was made by English reformers who found a refuge in Geneva from the persecution under Queen Mary. Among the scholars who prepared it were: Coverdale, Knox and Whittingham. There is nothing to show, so far as I can find, whether the summaries were the production of the whole company, or of one of the members approved by the others. The Authorized Version, published in 1611, retained chapter-headings, and they, with a few emendations, have appeared ever since. The revisers, however, omitted them from the Revised Version of 1880–85, deeming them controversial and dogmatic, and in some cases misleading.

J. B. INFREE.

2. What is the origin of Good Friday and how did it acquire the name?

History dates the observance of the day at the beginning of the third century as a memorial of Christ's crucifixion. The name given was to remind the early Christians of the good and loving act of the Saviour's sacrifice.

MAE CROWELL.

3. What is the smallest seed known to man?

The strawberry seed, which in order to obtain, the strawberry is placed in sand to decay and the seeds are so very small that they generally are sown with the sand. The Bible says (Matt. 13: 32) the mustard seed is the least of all seeds [the strawberry being probably unknown in the Orient.]

S. E. HEAP.

4. Who were the first four kings in the world's history, so far as any records show?

After the flood the sons of Noah, Shem, Ham and Japheth, went out into the world, and from them all nations sprung. The sons of Ham were Cush, Mizraim, Phut and Canaan. Mizraim went forth and settled in northern Egypt. His name became Menes in history. He was made king of Upper and Lower Egypt. He was the first king whose name is mentioned in the world's history. Bockh, an historian, gives his accession to the throne as 5702 B.C.; Unger, 5613 B.C.; Brugsch, 4455 B.C.; Lanth, 4157 B.C.; Lepsuis, 3892 B.C.; Brunsen, 3623 B.C.; Poole, 2717 B.C., and Wilkenson, 2691 B.C. The constantly growing evidences point to the accuracy of the higher figures. The first dynasty in Egypt embraced a period of 253 years in which seven kings reigned. Menes, the first king, reigned sixty-two years. As far as history can show by evidences of monuments, etc., the next three kings who ascended the throne were Tota, Atot and Uenephes. All authors agree that the Chaldean Empire in southern Asia was founded by Nimrod the grandson of Ham, many years after the accession of Menes in Egypt, which gives evidence that the first kings reigned in Egypt.

L. W. BROOKE.

5. What noble traits of character were admired and fostered among the nations of the earth at the time of Christ's birth?

Generosity, fidelity, patriotism, courage (of both sorts), honesty, diligence, friendship, unselfishness, command of affairs, and self-control are all referred to by the orators Demosthenes and Cicero, as honored by their hearers and possessed by some of them. Roman historians speak of the family affections, chastity, temperance (even to total abstinence), and reckless daring of the German savages as if they at least honored such things in others. The praises of filial affection in the "pious Æneas" were sung by Virgil before our Lord's early years. In fact, if there be any virtue now honored, not then placed high, it is the substitution of benevolence for "getting even," and the bearing of wrong and insult.

G. F. GOODENOUGH.

6. Did Dred Scott, the negro, live to receive freedom by the emancipation proclamation and when and where did he die?

Dred Scott did not live to be benefited by the emancipation proclamation. He and his family passed by inheritance to Calvin C. Chaffee, and on May 26, 1857, were given their freedom in St. Louis, Mo., by Taylor Blon, to whom Mr. Chaffee conveyed them for that purpose. He died the latter part of the same year, presumably at St. Louis, Mo., although history is not definite on that point.

MRS. T. J. SUMMERS.

7. Who are the six leading orators of to-day in the English language?

Lord Rosebery, recalling Gladstone; Lord Salisbury, whose every word has weight; Dr. Talmage, the celebrated pulpit orator; Bryan, who attracts the populace; Chauncey Depew, with a genial eloquence all his own; ex-President Harrison, a speaker of magnetic power.

AMELIA HOYT.

8. Can a Christian find anywhere in the Bible justification for self-defence, even though his life is at stake?

I presume you mean defence by force. If a man were accused of murder, or any capital offence, he could find justification for defending himself in court in the example of Paul, Peter, Stephen, etc., who defended themselves by speeches. Paul also availed himself of the provisions of the law of citizenship to save himself from injustice (see Acts 22: 25). I believe that if Paul had been attacked by robbers when he was carrying to Jerusalem the money subscribed by the Christians for the relief of the poor, he would not have given up the money without a fight. But direct justification for taking up arms in self-defence, there seems to be none. Perhaps none was needed. It may have been regarded as the natural course, and as there is no direct prohibition of it, that course may be followed. I do not think that Christ's command that "ye resist not evil" (Matt. 5: 39) applies to self-defence so much as to retaliation.

J. SCOTT.

9. What reason could there be for a dispute between Michael the archangel and Satan about the body of Moses? (Jude 9).

Jude used the incident as an illustration of his argument. It would be familiar to his readers, because the story was contained in an apocryphal book entitled the Ascension of Moses. Origen mentions the book and the story as one credited by the Jews of his time. My theory is that it was necessary for Moses to appear in the body with Elijah at the transfiguration (Matt. 17: 1–13), and that therefore, Michael, always represented as the angel of resurrection, was sent to take possession of his body after his death and revivify it. Satan resented it first because he did not wish any resurrection nor any anticipation of the general resurrection, and secondly because he did not wish Moses to add his testimony to that of Elijah at the transfiguration.

JOSEPH HAMILTON. (condensed).

If the incident was not apocryphal and actually took place, this is probably the best way of explaining it.

EDITOR.

10. Presuming that a boy, ten or eleven years old, already has a Bible, what ten books can be given him that he would be likely to read and which would do him good?

Robinson Crusoe, Pilgrim's Progress, Esop's Fables, Spark's Life of Washington, Plutarch's Lives, Alcott's Little Men, Black Beauty, Lamb's Tales from Shakespeare, Gray's Children's Crusade, Ten Boys on the Road.

R. G. GRIFFITHS.

• • •

"THE TEMPLE OF MUSIC" AT BUFFALO, N. Y.

The Temple of Music, designed by Esenwein and Johnson of Buffalo for the Pan-American Exposition, is to cover a plot of ground 150 feet square, on the north-west corner of the Esplanade and the Court of Fountains. The exterior of this handsome building is treated architecturally after the style of the Spanish Renaissance, octagonal in shape, with octangle pavilions at each corner. Each of the facades of the main building has a richly ornamented colonnade. The balustrades carry tablets bearing the names of noted musicians and composers. On the corners above the pavilions are groups of statuary representing music, dancing etc. In the Temple will be erected one of the largest and finest organs in the United States. The auditorium seats 1.200 persons and in addition the restaurants and balconies give a further seating accommodation for 1.600.

Miscellaneous Questions

J. C. S., Apple River, Ill. Is there any mention of the Romans in the Bible before the appearance of Christ?

Daniel is generally held to have predicted the great power of the Romans (see Daniel 2: 40; 6: 7). The first historic mention of Rome in Scripture is in the Apocrypha. I. Maccabees 1: 10, the date being about 160 B. C.

Subscriber, Chicago. 1. Do you not think a Christian can show an ugly disposition without saying a word? 2. Is it not wicked for a wife professing to be a Christian to encourage her husband working on Sundays?

1. There are, unquestionably, many good people who occasionally give way to fits of temper and some who are afflicted with seizures of "sourness," which make everybody around them miserable. We should think very poorly of the religious pretensions of any one who held that a morose, ill-natured silence was justifiable. Christianity should act as a sweetener of the temper and should enable us to rise superior to ordinary irritations and even to regard them as a part of the discipline of our lives. 2. No Christian wife would encourage her husband or any one else to Sabbath-breaking. One may judge too harshly, however, as the work may be one of necessity, or even of mercy—in either case being justifiable.

Reader, Washington, N. J. Do you think it is proper for a minister of the Gospel to attend a ball game?

The mere fact of his presence at a game of baseball as a spectator, would not be objectionable. To make a habit of attendance at such games, however, might result in seriously impairing his influence.

C. G. L., Worcester, Mass. 1. Will you kindly inform me about the home on or near the Hudson which THE CHRISTIAN HERALD supports and sends children for a week or two in the summer? 2. Also where to send money for the use of that home?

1. It is situated at Mont-Lawn on the Hudson, a short distance from Nyack, N.Y., where we have a beautiful place of twenty-two acres with main building, annexes and chapel, a swimming pool and lovely shady woodlands. The home shelters over 2.000 poor tenement children each season, at an average cost of $3 dollars a child for an outing. 2. Send your contribution to THE CHRISTIAN HERALD, Bible House, New York.

Secretary Chas. A. Glunz of the Y. M. C. A. (Army and Navy Department), writes from Manila that good reading matter is greatly needed in the Association work in the Philippines. He says:

There are in the Philippines 2.000 places where troops are stationed, there being 300 garrisoned towns, and the distance from north to south is 1.000 miles. We have a secretary at Iloilo, Panay, and at Cebu, and they have received their share of the supplies for distribution, but it has been totally inadequate. We could distribute twenty times the amount we receive.

Any of our readers who may desire to "lend a hand" in this very interesting branch of the Association's work among our soldiers and sailors, can address the Y. M. C. A. International Committee, 9 W. 29th St., New York city.

A. E., Sebastopol, Ill. 1. When were the Old and New Testaments combined into the one book which we call the Bible? 2. Why does the Word of God affect different persons so differently?

1. The books of the New Testament were gradually accepted by the Christian churches as worthy of a place with the Old Testament Scriptures. Not till centuries after Christ was the work completed. The subject is presented in great and interesting detail in The World Wide Encyclopedia, under the head of "Canon." 2. Christ answers the question effectively in his parable of the sower and the seed, Mark 4: 3 to 20.

H. W. L., Lebanon, Pa. What islands did Spain cede to Germany since the close of the Spanish-American war?

Spain concluded an agreement with Germany Feb. 12, 1899, ceding the Caroline, the Ladrone and the Pelew Islands. Spain can establish naval, mercantile and coaling stations thereon, which she is to be allowed to retain in case of war.

E. M. M., Mansfield, Mass. 1. Was King Hiram, of Tyre, David's friend, the same Hiram we read of as being Solomon's friend and helper in his building projects?

It is presumed so, by most Bible scholars.

W. H. S., Campello, Mass. Is it sinful and unwise for cousin to marry a cousin?

Such unions, though not illegal nor prohibited in Scripture, are generally regarded as unwise, for physiological reasons.

A. B. R., Baltimore, Md. If a person's death proves the means of another's conversion, will the person who dies be rewarded at the final judgment for being the means of saving a soul?

We do not see why, unless the death was the result of an effort for the salvation of the other.

L. D. S., Maxwell, Ontario, Canada. Sceptics say that a whale's throat is too small to have swallowed Jonah. Is that the case, or have some whales large throats?

Nowhere in Jonah are we told that the fish that swallowed Jonah was a whale. In Matt. 12: 40 the word "whale" is used, but the Revised version gives "sea-monster" in the margin. There is absolute proof that sea-monsters large enough to swallow a man have been found in the Mediterranean.

L. Y. Z. It is a work of the imagination.

O. R. L., Thorntown, Ind. Yes, under proper conditions it is unobjectionable.

P. V. M., Denver, Col. Write to the headquarters of both organizations in New York for all information. Our space is too limited.

T. S. T., Lynchburg, Tenn. You will find a succinct sketch of Judas Iscariot in McClintock & Strong's cyclopedia or in the Schaff-Herzog encyclopedia.

A PEKIN HIGH OFFICIAL AND SERVANT

CHIN-KIANG, WHERE RIOT AND MASSACRE ARE FEARED

CHINESE PRIEST AND SERVANT

CHINA'S CARNIVAL OF RIOT AND MASSACRE

Legations, Churches and Foreign Dwellings Destroyed in the Capital, and Many Native Converts Slain ... The Foreign Powers Act ... Taku Forts Occupied, and a Strong Joint Force to go to Pekin ... Hopes for our Imperiled Missionaries

IF the news the cable brings from China be not exaggerated, affairs are in a more critical condition than at any previous period in the history of that empire. Already the victims of the Boxer rebellion number many hundreds, among them being many active Christian converts, who have been martyred because of their renunciation of idolatry. Rumors are rife of disasters to the missionaries, but these are probably unfounded. It is wholly due to that Divine protection, which has thus far never failed them in the hour of sorest trial and danger, that hundreds of those devoted men and women have not been massacred by the fanatical Boxers. Still, the worst may even yet happen to many of those workers who are isolated and surrounded by enemies in places which cannot be reached at present. The earnest prayers of the whole Christian world are now ascending for their protection and ultimate deliverance.

THE TOWN HALL, TIEN-TSIN

From Pekin, the centre of disturbance, many conflicting reports have been received. The Dowager-Empress is represented as still hesitating between an effort to suppress the rebellion and an open espousal of the cause of the Boxers. Indeed, the imperial troops are reported to have already made common cause with the rebels. Rioting, anarchy and incendiarism have prevailed, and it is asserted that all the offices and quarters of the foreign ambassadors on Legation street have been destroyed. A startling rumor, fortunately unconfirmed, was that Baron von Ketteler, the German ambassador, had been killed by a Boxer mob, the Chinese soldiery looking on stolidly and making no effort to save him. Later news, however, indicates that the ambassador is alive, but a prisoner in the hands of the mob. Many native converts and Chinese servants of Europeans and Americans have been butchered by the fanatics, and the French Cathedral, the American Board Mission buildings and offices, and many others of an official and missionary character, belonging to foreigners, are burned and looted.

Owing to temporary interruption of the telegraph between Pekin and Tien-Tsin, still wilder rumors gained currency and European capitals were thrilled with stories of dreadful carnage, coming through Chinese sources. Later and more reliable information indicates that up to the time of writing no Europeans or Americans have been killed in Pekin, although there has been a terrible slaughter of native Christians, which still continues. British marines and blue-jackets, engaged in defending their legation, are said to have had a fierce fight with the Chinese, in which many of the latter were killed. An international relief force of 1,200 men, including British, American, French, Japanese, Russian and Italian marines—the whole under the British Admiral Seymour—which was sent from Tien-Tsin by rail, has been halted at Lang-Pang or Yund-Sun, where it is confronted by a great army of Chinese troops and Boxers. The force is known to be short of supplies. Three train-loads of troops have left Tien-Tsin to reinforce Admiral Seymour, and even these may not be able to reach him, owing to the destruction of the railroads. A German detachment is marching to Pekin by road, and it is said that a Russian force of 1,500 men with four guns has already reached the capital, all of whose gates are guarded by vast armies of imperial Chinese troops, equipped with repeating rifles and machine guns. Another Russian force of 7,000, with twenty-four guns, on the way. Five of the foreign ministers, deeming the situation hopeless, demanded safe conduct for their embassies from the Tsung-li-Yamen, at the same time notifying that body of the severance of diplomatic relations; but the Tsung-li-Yamen took no steps, and the ambassadors could not get away.

All the foreigners at the capital were huddled together in the legations and very short of food. When the guards opened the gates on Wednesday evening, June 13, to admit the Boxers, the rebels swarmed in, a vast multitude of many thousands, and at once attacked the legations, whose defenders mowed them down with Maxim guns. The imperial troops were passive spectators. A still later report says all the legations were captured in a subsequent attack.

In Tien-Tsin the situation is hardly less alarming. English and American churches, and residences of foreigners, have been burned, telegraphs are destroyed, and Boxers are spreading terror among the inhabitants. Riots are reported at Bun-Chow, Wu-Chow, Kwei-li-Sich and many other places. Incendiary placards have been posted calling for the "extermination of the foreigners." Strong bands of Boxers have appeared, almost as if by magic, at a score of different localities. There is dread of an attack on Chin-Kiang and the banks have been closed. At Tung-Chow, the Boxers have held the city officials for ransom and anarchy prevails.

In view of the impotence of the imperial government, the foreign powers have decided to pacify China by strong measures. On June 17, the foreign warships silenced and occupied the Taku forts, below Tien-Tsin. This is the first step in the new policy of joint action. There is a report that Japan, which has an available army of 400,000 troops, may be asked to assume the lead in the work of restoring order, but Russia may disconcert the entire plan by taking independent action. No solution of the present troubles can yet be foreshadowed. It is quite certain, however, that the naval and military forces of all the powers will be immediately and very greatly increased in China, and our own government will send a strong fleet with marines. The Ninth Regiment is now on the way from Manila to China. Great Britain, Russia and Japan will each have large land and naval forces to protect their respective interests and to co-operate for the purpose of restoring order. 10,000 British troops are on the way to China from South Africa. The Empress is said to have consented to the entry into Pekin of 1,200 foreign troops. In the present condition of affairs, and with China's vast population stirred up to the point of frenzy against all foreigners, a crisis might easily be precipitated which would make all the efforts of foreign nations seem impotent indeed.

THE EMPEROR'S BOAT-HOUSE, PALACE GROUNDS, PEKIN

Although the buildings and other property of the missionary societies have been included in the general havoc and destruction wrought by the Boxers, hopes are entertained that the missionaries themselves may be rescued from the perils by which they are now surrounded. In some of the interior provinces, the American missionaries have been advised to leave; but they cannot do so unless a relief force is sent to protect them. It is quite evident on all sides—unless there should be a marked change in the present temper of a very large proportion of the Chinese population—that the missionary cause must suffer a severe set-back. Under the lead of the Empress-Dowager, the reactionaries have resolved on a policy which is directed very strongly against all Christian missions, and unless the foreign powers unite in compelling China to grant recognition and protection to missionary workers, the path of spiritual effort in that distracted country will be a thorny one indeed. Our own Government, it is understood, will not relax its efforts to assure their full protection, and it is tolerably certain that other governments will adopt a like policy. It now becomes the immediate task of the whole civilized world to save China from self-destruction, to secure for its unhappy a measure of religious freedom and to safeguard the rights of foreign residents in Chinese territory.

THE METROPOLITAN PULPIT.

Grapes or Thorns

A Sermon by Rev. T. De Witt Talmage, D.D., on the Text, Matt. 7: 16 . . . . . } Do men gather grapes of thorns?

NOT in this country. Not in any country. Thorns stick, thorns lacerate, but all the thorns put together never yielded one cluster of Catawba or Isabella grapes. Christ, who was the master of apt and potent illustration, is thus setting forth what you and I well know, that you cannot get that which is pleasant and healthful and good from that which is bad. If you find a round, large, beautiful cluster of grapes you know that it was produced by a good grape-vine, and not from a tangle of Canada thistle. Now, if I can show you that this Holy Bible yields good fruit, healthful fruit, grand fruit, splendid fruit, you will come to the conclusion it is a good Bible, and all the arguments of the sceptic against it when he tries to show it is a bad book, will go overboard.

"Do men gather grapes of thorns?" Can a bad book yield good results? Sceptics with great vehemence declare that the Bible is a cruel book. They read the story of the extermination of the Canaanites, and of all the ancient wars, and of the history of David and Joshua, and they come to the conclusion that the Bible is in favor of laceration and manslaughter and massacre. Now, a bad book will produce a bad result, a cruel book will produce a cruel result.

You have friends who have been in the habit of reading the Bible a great many years. Have you noticed a tendency to cruelty on their part? Have you ever heard any of them come out and practically say: "I have been reading the story about the extermination of the Canaanites and I am seized upon with a disposition to cut and slash and mawl and pinch and murder and knock to pieces everything I can lay my hands on?" Have your friends in proportion as they become diligent Bible students and disciples of the Christ of the Bible, shown a tendency toward massacre and murder and manslaughter? Has that been your observation? Have you not, on the contrary, noticed that all the institutions of mercy were established, or, being established, were chiefly supported by the friends of this book? There is the hospital in war time. There are twenty Christian women. They are binding up wounds, they are offering cordials, they are kneeling down by the dying praying for their departing spirits. Where does the cruelty crop out? Your common sense tells you that a cruel book must produce cruel results. When you can make a rose-leaf stab like a bayonet, and when you can manufacture icicles out of the south wind, and when you can poison your tongue with honey gotten from blossoming buckwheat, then you can get cruelty out of the Bible. That charge of the sceptics falls flat in the presence of every honest man.

Again: Infidels go on and most vehemently charge that this Bible is an impure book. You all know that an impure book produces impure results. No amount of money could hire you to allow your child to read an unclean book. Now, if this Bible be an impure book, where are the victims? Your father read it—did it make him a bad man? Your mother read it—did it make her a bad woman? Your sister fifteen years in heaven died in the faith of this Gospel—did it despoil her nature? Some say there are two hundred million copies of the Bible in existence, some say there are four hundred milllion copies of the Bible. It is impossible to get the accurate statistic, but suppose there are two hundred million copies of the Bible abroad, this one book read more than any twenty books that the world ever printed, this book abroad for ages, for centuries—where are the victims? Show me fifty. Show me ten. Show me two. Show me one! Two hundred million copies of an impure book, and not one victim of the impurity! On the contrary, you know very well that it is where the Bible has the most power that the family institution is most respected.

Again: Agnostics go on still further, and they say the Bible is a mass of contradictions, and they put prophet against prophet, evangelist against evangelist, apostle against apostle, and they say if this be true, how then can that be true. Mr. Mill, who was a friend of the Bible, said he had discovered thirty thousand different readings of the Scriptures, and yet, not one important difference—not one important difference out of thirty thousand—only the difference that you might expect from the fact that the book came down from generation to generation and was copied by a great many hands. And yet I put before you this fact to-day, that all the Bible writers agree in the four great doctrines of the Bible.

What are those four great doctrines? God—good, kind, patient, just, loving, omnipotent. Man—a lost sinner. Two destinies—one for believers, the other for unbelievers; all who accept Christ reaching that home, and only those destroyed who destroy themselves; only those who turn their back upon Christ and come to the precipice and jump off, for God never pushes a man off, he jumps off. Now, in these four great doctrines all the Bible writers agree.

You must remember also that the authors of the Bible came from different lands, from different ages, and from different centuries. They had no communication with each other, they did not have an idea as to what was the chief design of the Bible, and yet their writings, gotten up from all these different lands, and from all these different ages, and all these different centuries, coming together make a perfect harmony in the opinion of the very best scholars of all lands. Is not that a most remarkable fact?

Again: Infidels vehemently charge that the Bible is an unscientific Book. In a former discourse I showed you that there was no collision between science and revelation, and I went from point to point in the discussion; but now let us have authority in this matter. You and I cannot give forty, or fifty, or sixty years exclusively to the study of science that some men give. Let us have authority in this matter.

Who says there is a collision between science and revelation? Well, Herbert Spencer, Tyndall, Darwin. They say there is a discord between science and revelation; but I will bring you names of men who have found a perfect accord between science and revelation—men as much higher in intellectual character above those whom I have mentioned as the Alps and Mount Washington and the Himalayas are higher than the hill back of your house. Herschel, Kepler, Leibnitz, Ross, Isaac Newton. My friends, we are in respectable company when we believe in the Word of God—very respectable company.

Now, I might, as infidels have failed to prove that the Bible is a cruel book, that the Bible is an impure book, that the Bible is a contradictory book, that the Bible is an unscientific book—I might move a nonsuit in this case of Infidelity, the plaintiff, against Christianity, the defendant; but I will not take advantage of the circumstances, for when the sceptic goes on to say that we are a gullible people, when he goes on to say, as he often does, that the greater the improbability the more we like to believe it; when he goes on to say that the Bible is made up of a lot of manuscripts, one picked up here and another there, and another from some other place, and that the whole thing is an imposition on the credulity of the human race, I must reply to that charge.

The Bible is made up of the Old Testament and the New Testament. Let us take the New Testament first. Why do I believe it? Why do I take it to my heart? It is because it can be traced back to the divine heart.

Jerome and Eusebius in the first century, and Origen in the second century, and other writers in the third and fourth centuries, gave a list of the New Testament writers just exactly corresponding with our list, showing that the same New Testament which we have they had in the fourth century, and the third century, and the second century, and the first century. But where did they get the New Testament? They got it from Irenæus. Where did Irenæus get it? He got it from Polycarp. Where did Polycarp get it? He got it from St. John, who was the personal associate of the Lord Jesus Christ. My grandfather gave a book to my father, my father gave it to me, I give it to my child. Is there any difficulty in tracing this line?

"Well," says some one, "now I am ready to believe that the New Testament is from the heart of Christ, but how about the Old Testament? Why do you believe that?" I believe the Old Testament because the prophecies foretold events hundreds and thousands of years ahead—events which afterward took place.

You must remember that Tyre and Babylon and Nineveh were in full pomp and splendor when these prophecies, these old prophecies, said they would be destroyed. Those cities had architecture that make the houses of modern cities perfectly insignificant. Yet these old prophets walked right through those magnificent streets and said: "This has all got to come down; this is all going to be leveled."

Suppose a man should stand up in these cities to-day and say: "There will be harvests of wheat and corn where these cities now stand, and these streets will be pasture for cattle." Such a man would be sent to the insane asylum. Yet the old prophets did that very thing. Where is Babylon to-day? You go and walk over the ruins of Babylon and you will not find a leaf or a grass-blade of those splendid hanging gardens, and in the summer-time the ground actually blisters the feet of the traveler. Babylon destroyed according to the prophecy.

Where is Tyre? In the day of its pomp the prophet said: "The fishermen will dry their nets where this city stands." If you should go to that place to-day you would find that literally. The fishermen are drying their nets on the rocks where the city of Tyre once stood. Tartar and Turk and Saracen, drying their nets on the rocks.

Go up Chatham street, New York, and find the fulfilment of a prophecy made thousands of years ago. Why is it the Israelite is always distinguishable, whether you see him in New York, or Pekin, or Vienna, or Stockholm, or London, or Paris? The Englishman goes to America and after a while he loses his nationality. The American goes to England and after a while he loses his nationality. The Norwegian his, the Russian his, the Italian his, the Spaniard his, the Israelites never. Why? Because this book provided thousands of years ago that the Israelites should be scattered in all lands, and that they should be kept separate, separate, until the Lord took them back to Jerusalem. And ye who persecute the Israelites had better look out. They are God's people, and according to the prophecy made thousands of years ago they are distinguishable, they are kept separate until the Lord takes them to their native land.

How could those old prophets foretell that? How could they know that thousands of years ago? Could human skill have predicted it? Does not that prove beyond all controversion and beyond all doubt that those prophets were inspired of the Lord Almighty, looking down in the future and seeing thousands of years ahead occurrences to take place, just as plainly as I see your faces this morning.

"Well," says some one, "now I am ready to take the New Testament as from the heart of Christ, and I am ready to believe the prophecies. The evidence is beyond all dispute. But you must remember," says my friend, "that the prophecies are only a small part of the old book: you don't expect us to believe all the old book." If you found one of your good, honest letters in an envelope with ten or twenty cruel, lying, filthy letters, how long would you allow that honest letter to stay there? In a half minute you would either snatch it out of the envelope, or you destroy the whole envelope. Now, do you suppose the Lord God would allow these pure prophecies, these prophecies which you admit must have come from the hand of God, from divine inspiration—do you suppose God would allow these pure prophecies to be bound up and put in the same envelope with the Book of Job, and the Book of Psalms, and the Book of Deuteronomy and the other books, if those books were not good books?

Beside all this, you must remember that the most of the writers of this book were uneducated men. How can you account for the fact that when Thomas Babington Macaulay, standing in the House of Parliament in London, wanted to finish off a magnificent sentence, he quoted from the fishermen of Galilee? or, sitting in his house, wanting to finish one of his great paragraphs of history, he quoted the words of the fishermen of Galilee? Why is it that those uneducated men have more influence on modern times than all the scholars of antiquity? Because they were divinely inspired, because God stood back of them.

Beside that, you must remember that this book has been under fire for centuries, and after all the bombardment of the sceptics of all the centuries, they have not knocked out of this Bible a piece as large as the small end of a sharp needle. Oh, how the old book sticks together. Unsanctified geologists try to pull away the Book of Genesis. They say they do not believe it; it cannot be there was light before the sun shone; it cannot be all this story about Adam and Eve; and they pull at the Book of Genesis, and they have been pulling a great while, yet where is the Book of Genesis? Standing just where it stood all the time. There is not a man on earth who has ever erased it from his Bible.

And so the infidels have been trying to pull away the miracles, pulling away at the blasted fig-tree, at the turning of the water into wine, at the raising of Lazarus from the dead. Can you show me a Bible from which one of these miracles has been erased? How marvelously the old Book sticks together! All the striking at these chapters only driving them in deeper until they are clinched on the other side with the hammers of eternity. And the book is going to keep right on until the fires of the last day are kindled. They will not find a bundle of loose manuscripts easily consumed by the fire. When the fires of the last day are kindled, some will burn on this side, from Genesis toward Revelation, and others will burn on this side, from Revelation toward Genesis, and in all their way they will not find a single chapter or a single verse out of place. That will be the first time we can afford to do without the Bible. What will be the use of the Book of Genesis, descriptive of how the world was made, when the world is destroyed? What will be the use of the prophecies when they are all fulfilled? What will be the use of the evangelistic or Pauline description of Jesus Christ when we see him face to face? But I do not think we will give up the Bible even at that time. I think we will want the Bible in heaven. I really think the fires of the last day will not consume the last copy, for when you and I get our dead children out of the dust, we want to show them just the passages, just the promises, which comforted us here in the dark day of interment, and we will want to talk over with Christians who have had trials and struggles, and we will want to show them the promises that especially refreshed us. I think we shall have the Bible in heaven.

Oh! I want to hear David with his own voice read: "The Lord is my shepherd." I want to hear Paul with his own voice read: "Thanks be unto God that giveth us the victory." I want to hear the archangel play Paul's march of the resurrection with the same trumpet with which he awoke the dead. O! blessed book, good enough for earth, good enough for heaven. Dear old book—book bespattered with the blood of martyrs who died for its defence—book sprinkled all over with the tears of those who by it were comforted. Put it in the hand of your children on their birthday. Put it on the table in the sitting-room when you begin to keep house. Put it under your head when you die. Dear old book! I press it to my heart, I press it to my lips.

A · PEACEFUL · INVASION · OF · ENGLAND

The Coming World's Convention of Christian Endeavorers in London

By JOHN WILLIS BAER

JOHN WILLIS BAER

FROM all over the world, Christian Endeavorers will come together in London, July 14-18 for their Second World's Christian Endeavor Convention. Christian Endeavor's banner is now flying in every nation and missionary land in the wide world, and a very large number of these countries will be represented by Christian Endeavor delegates. Australia sends the president of her National Christian Endeavor Union, as will many of the European National Endeavor Unions, and the president of the United Society of Christian Endeavor of Japan has arrived in this country en route to London. The United States will have the largest delegation at London next to those of England, Ireland and Scotland. Already about two thousand have engaged over-sea accommodations with the various Christian Endeavor excursions.

Probably the largest number sailing for London on any one vessel from the United States is the pilgrimage organized under the auspices of the United Society of Christian Endeavor, sailing from Boston July 3, on the ship Saale. The five hundred and more delegates on this excursion will enjoy what will be really a genuine Christian Endeavor convention on their way over. A carefully prepared programme for each day of the voyage will make the journey one long to be remembered by those fortunate enough to sail on the Saale. It is on this ship that the officers and trustees of the United Society sail and many of the American speakers on the London programme. A special train for western Endeavorers leaves the Union Station, Chicago, at one minute past midnight July 2, and is due in Boston, July 3, at 8:30 A.M. A great farewell meeting has been arranged by the Boston Christian Endeavor Union to be heid the evening of July 2, in Tremont Temple, and on the next day a steamer has been chartered by the Boston Endeavorers to accompany the Saale down the bay, and give the last farewell.

. . .

The Meeting-Place The London Convention Committee has thoughtfully provided for the World's Christian Endeavor Convention what we should judge from what we are told, will prove to be as suitable and comfortable a meeting-place as Endeavorers have ever enjoyed in this country. What the Crystal Palace is to the southern portion of London, the Alexandra Palace is to the northern half of the city; and it is here that the convention is to be held. The site is a fine one—on Muswell Hill, and is rendered easily accessible by three lines of railway. A park of two hundred and twenty acres surrounds the Alexandra Palace, and in this park one of our great tents will be erected and used as one of the convention auditoriums. The Palace itself is a splendid affair, and cost $1,750,000 to build. It is about one thousand feet long and five hundred feet wide. At each corner stands a fine tower one hundred and eighty feet high, and near by at either end is a large glass-domed conservatory. The Great Central Hall, our principal meeting-place, is a room three hundred ahd eighty-six feet long and one hundred and eighty-four feet wide, with a central span of eighty-four feet. Two thousand persons can be accommodated on the choir seats alone, and the entire hall will seat twelve thousand, and the acoustic properties of this hall are said to be all that could be desired.

One of the attractions of the great Central Hall is the organ, which is one of the largest and finest in the world. It was built under the supervision of Sir Michael Costa, by Henry Willis. It has four manuals and one hundred and thirty-six stops, and is blown by two steam engines. Besides the great hall, there is a concert room which holds 3,500 people, with a fine organ of its own, and a theatre nearly of the same size, with room for 3,000. On last Easter Monday, it is reported that 63,000 persons spent the day at the Palace, so that our London Committee have found an ample meeting-place.

. . .

The Convention Programme Let me give you a brief outline of the programme of the great convention. Friday, July 13, is occupied with preparatory services in the churches and a great reception by the Lord Mayor of London. On Saturday, at 7 A.M., there are to be held a splendid series of welcome-meetings, in London and at the Palace. All day Sunday the churches of London will be filled, so far as possible, with Christian Endeavor speakers; and in the afternoon, children's services will be held in all the Sunday Schools. At the close of the evening services, there will be Quiet Hour meetings. This will be a Christian Endeavor Sabbath in the world's metropolis, and one certain to be long remembered. The day's meetings are in the hands of a committee, the chairman of which is the pastor of Surrey Chapel, the Rev. J. Tolefree Parr.

There are to be the following interesting Sunday services also at Alexandra Park. It must be kept in mind that several thousands of Endeavorers instead of living in London are going to "camp out" in the beautiful park surrounding the Palace, and this "encampment idea" is a feature introduced for the first time into Christian Endeavor Conventions. From seven to eight, a united prayer-meeting. From nine to ten, a Quiet Hour meeting. At eleven, a sermon by Rev. Theodore Parr, of New South Wales, and in the evening a sermon by Dr. Maltbie D. Babcock, of New York, while in the afternoon there are to be meetings for young men and young women, with many eloquent speakers.

THE GRAND CENTRAL HALL OF ALEXANDRA PALACE

In this Hall the World's C. E. Convention will hold its sessions.

The general subject for Monday will be, "The Twentieth Century Endeavorers on the King's service." The day will be ushered in, as all the Convention days, with Quiet Hour meetings from nine to ten. Among the speakers for Monday morning upon topics connected with the morning's sub-topic, "The Dawning Age and its Problems," are Rev. Charles M. Sheldon, author of In His Steps, Dr. M. D. Babcock of New York, Dr. Geo. C. Lorimer of Boston, Dr. J. Monro Gibson of London, the eminent Bible scholar and Dr. John Clifford, one of the leading Baptist clergymen of England.

The afternoon of Monday will be occupied by denominational rallies, which will be of unique interest this year on account of the meeting of so many belonging to the same denomination, but to different lands. On this same afternoon, after the denominational rallies, there is to be a meeting in the interests of Sabbath observance, where Rev. Cortland Myers of Brooklyn, will speak, together with Rev. J. E. Roberts of Manchester, England and Rev. James Travis of Chester, England. The meetings on Monday evening, to be held in four large auditoriums, have the general subject, "The Missionary Outlook," and the speakers are Rev. Alexander Connell of London, Bishop B. W. Arnett of Ohio, Rev. R. Wardlaw Thompson, the secretary of the London Missionary Society, Mr. D. B. Eddy of New York, the student volunteer, and a number of eminent clergymen from England, India, Australia, Africa, China and the Pacific Islands. The general subject for Tuesday, July 17, is, "Ye Are His Witnesses," and the special subject for the morning sessions, "Demonstrations of World-wide Endeavor." At these sessions, President Clark and Secretary Baer will give their annual addresses and Secretary Chaplin will speak for the British Christian Endeavor Union. Tuesday afternoon contains many meetings among which it will be hard to choose. There is to be a temperance rally, with addresses by Rev. Canon Barker, the chaplain to the Queen; Dr. W. T. McElveen of Boston, and Lady Henry Somerset. There will also be held a Christian citizenship meeting, a pastors' meeting, a meeting in the interest of the Tenth Legion and the Quiet Hour, and an evangelistic service, the latter to be conducted by the famous evangelist, Rev. John McNeil of Scotland. Mr. William Shaw will have charge of the Tenth Legion meeting.

Carrying on the great theme of the day, the evening sessions will bring it to a climax, their topic being "Pentecostal Power." There are many speakers, those best known to Americans being Dr. Handley Moule of Cambridge, England; Rev. G. Campbell Morgan of London; Rev. William Patterson of Philadelphia; Rev. Floyd W. Tomkins, D.D., of Philadelphia; Rev. Theodore Monod, D.D., the eminent French clergyman of Paris, and Canon J. B. Richardson of Ontario.

The Closing Day Wednesday, the closing day of the Convention, takes appropriately for its general subject, "Thy Kingdom Come." One of the morning sessions is devoted to the Bible, and the speaker is Prof. W. W. White, known the world over for his eloquence as a lecturer on Bible study. Another session is to be devoted to messages of the churches, with eminent representatives from the different English denominations as the speakers. Among these is Rev. Hugh Price Hughes, representing the Methodists. This morning also contains a most important session given up to Christian Endeavor methods of work, to be conducted by Mr. Amos R. Wells, the managing editor of The Christian Endeavor World. The Junior rally, the particulars of which are not at hand, will be held this same morning. Wednesday afternoon is reserved for national gatherings. A great meeting is planned for the American rally. It is hoped Ambassador Choate can be present.

Wednesday evening will present four simultaneous gatherings, in each of which a roll-call will be conducted, the leaders being Dr. Clark, Secretary Baer, Rev. E. R. Barrett of Bradford, England, and Rev. E. R. Hasse of Bedford, England. The four closing addresses are to be given by Rev. John Smith, D.D., of Edinburgh, Rev. F. B. Meyer, of London, Dr. Ruen Thomas of Boston, and the well-known poet, Miss Marianne Farningham. Remember, this is only an outline. There are many other speakers to be heard from, well-known on both sides of the Atlantic, among them Rev. J. Hudson Taylor, of China, Rev. Joseph Parker, D.D., of London, and Rev. Canon Fleming.

. . .

A Greeting from Great Britain The Rev. J. B. Morgan, Chairman of the London Convention Committee, sends the following word to American Endeavorers, and I desire to pass it along without delay to the readers of THE CHRISTIAN HERALD:

"It is understood that, owing to the war in South Africa, and the consequent rise in rates, the delegations from the United States and other parts of America will not be so numerous as was at one time anticipated. It is a genuine grief to British Endeavorers to learn that there will be any diminution in the numbers we may expect of our brothers and sisters from over the Atlantic, and if at this late moment a hearty British invitation will induce others to risk some possible inconvenience and certain extra expense, it is hereby extended. Those who do come may rest assured of a hearty reception. They will be well-come—they will be welcome. Young England is right in the van in desiring closer friendship between these two great powers, and while we recognize that there may be perfectly honest differences of opinion concerning the war in which England is now unhappily engaged, we all pray that it may not lessen the growing feeling of cordiality recently so manifest. It will not, to be sure, militate against the warmth of our welcome, and we hope that by the time we meet, the war will be over, and will not cast a vestige of its baneful shadow over our assemblage."

And to this word of Chairman Brown may be added that a hearty invitation has also been received from Rev. F. B. Meyer, the President of the British Christian Endeavor Union. Mr. Meyer calls the encampment with its tents large and small, spread out about Alexandra Palace, "The White City of July — the new Jerusalem come down from God out of heaven."

I am glad to be able to say in closing this sketch of the coming feast in London, that the founder of Christian Endeavor, Rev. Francis E. Clark, D.D., the President of the World's Christian Endeavor Union, who is just completing a tour among Endeavorers in China and Japan will reach London, by crossing Russia, in time to be present.

Around the World with Josiah Allen's Wife

COPYRIGHT, 1899, BY MARIETTA HOLLEY

CHAPTER XXX.

ILLUSTRATIONS BY H. M. PETTIT

Good-by to the Orient

WE visited a carpenter shop which wuz, I spoze, about like the shop of Joseph, lots of different tools on shelves and nails on the side on 't some like Jonesville shops.

But carpenter there has a different meaning from what it has in Jonesville, it means different kinds of work, carving, making furniture, plows, shovels, as well as buildin' houses. In some such a shop as this our Lord worked with aching back and blistered hands no doubt, for he worked faithful and stiddy when he wuz subject to his father, Joseph. I suppose his dress wuz much like other Jewish peasantry save in one thing he wore and this wuz the seamless garment, suggestive I spoze of wholeness, holiness. As I thought on 't I instinctively murmured these words of our poet:

The healing of that seamless dress
Is by our beds of pain.
We feel it in life's care and stress—
And we are strong again.

I looked up to the brow of the hill whereon this city is built, and my mind wuz all wrought up thinkin' of how the Christ stood up in the synagogue and told for the first time of his mission in these incomparable words so dear to-day to all true ministers and lovers of God's words, and all earnest reformers from that day down:

"The spirit of the Lord is upon me because he hath anointed me to preach the gospel to the poor. He hath sent me to heal the broken-hearted, to preach deliverance to the captive, and recovery of sight to the blind, to set at liberty them that are bruised."

Oh, what a divine mission! not to the great and lofty and happy, but to the poor, the broken-hearted, the bruised and the blind. How his heart yearned over them even as it duz to-day. And how did the world receive it? Just as Truth is received to-day, anon or oftener; they thrust him out of the synagogue, dragged him to the brow of this very hill that they might cast him off. But we read that he passed through the midst of them and went his way, just as Truth will and must. It can't be slain by its opposers; though they may turn it out of their high places by force, it will appear to 'em agin as an accuser.

A Musical Evening

But oh, what feelin's I felt as I looked on that very hill, the very ground where he passed through their midst unharmed! I had a great number of emotions, and I guess Josiah did, although his wuz softened down some and dissipated by hunger, and Tommy, dear little lamb! he too wuz hungry, so we all went to a little tarven where we got some food, not over good, but better than nothin'.

The roads all about Nazareth and Jerusalem are very stony and rocky, so we can see how hard it wuz, in a physical sense, for our Lord to perform the journeys he did, for they wuz almost always on foot.

Well, that evenin' at the tarven in Jerusalem, Miss Meechim and Dorothy and I wuz in the settin'-room, and Dorothy set down to the little piano and played and sung some real sweet pieces, and several of the English people who had come on the steamer with us gathered round her to hear the music, and amongst 'em wuz two young gentlemen we had got acquainted with—real bright, handsome young chaps they wuz—and they looked dretful admirin' at Dorothy, and I didn't wonder at it, for she looked as pretty as a new-blown rose, and her voice had the sweetness and freshness of a June mornin' in it, when the air is full and runnin' over with the song of bird and bee, and the soft murmur of the southern breeze amongst the dewy flowers. She wuz singin' old Scottish and English ballads, and more than one eye wuz wet as she sang about "Auld Joe Nicholson's Bonnie Nannie," and "I'm Wearin' Awa, Jean," and the dear old "Annie Laurie."

"HER VOICE HAD THE SWEETNESS AND FRESHNESS OF A JUNE MORNIN'"

Miss Meechim looked worried and anxious, and sez she: "Oh, how I do wish Robert Strong wuz here. Oh, dear! what a trial it is to keep young folks apart."

And I sez: "What makes you try to? It is jest as nateral for 'em to like each other's company as it is for bluebirds and robins to fly round together in the spring of the year, and no more hurt in it, as I can see."

Sez she impressively: "Haven't I told you, Josiah Allen's wife, my wearing anxiety, my haunting fear that in spite of all my efforts and labors Dorothy will marry some one in spite of me? You know how invincibly opposed I am to matrimony. And you can see for yourself just how much admiration she gits everywhere, and one of those young men," sez she, frowning darkly on a handsome young Englishman, "I am sure is in earnest. See the expression of his face—it is simply worship. He would throw himself on his knees in front of her this minute if there were not so many round. Oh, why don't Robert come and protect her?"

Her face looked fairly haggard with anxiety, but even as I looked the anxious lines wuz smoothed from her worried face like magic, and I see Robert Strong come in and approach the group at the piano.

Miss Meechim leaned back in her chair in a restful, luxurious attitude, and sez she: "Oh, what a relief! What a burden has rolled off from me! Robert knows just how I feel; he will protect her from matrimony. Now I can converse with ease and comfort," and she turned the subject round on missionary teas and socials and the best way to git 'em up.

Arvilly is Heart-sick

The next mornin' Arvilly didn't appear to breakfast. I waited some time for her, for I wanted her to go sightseeing with me, and Arvilly wuz as punctual as the sun himself about gittin' up in the mornin', and about as early.

I thought to myself: "Is Arvilly a-goin' to come up missin', as our dear Aronette did?" I wuz agitated. I sent to her room, but no answer. My agitation increased. I then went to her room myself, but my knock at her door elicited no reply. I then spoke in anxious, appealin' axents:

"Arvilly, are you there? And are you sick a-bed? Or are you dead? Answer me, Arvilly, if either of my conjectures are true!"

My axent wuz such that she answered to once, "I hain't dead, Josiah Allen's wife, and I hain't sick, only heart-sick."

Sez I, "Let me in then; I can't have you there alone, Arvilly."

"I hain't alone!" sez she, "Grief is here, and everlastin' shame for my country."

It come to me in a minute, this wuz the anniversary of her husband's death, the day our Govermunt's pardner, the licensed Canteen, had murdered him down in Cuba.

I sez, "May God help you, Arvilly!" And I turned onto my heel and left. But I sent up a tray of good vittles which wuz refused, and I d'no as she eat a mou'ful that day.

At night I went agin to the door, and agin I hearn the sound of weepin' inside.

Sez I: "Arvilly, let me in; I've got a letter for you from Waitstill Webb."

Sweet little creeter! She remembered her agony, and dropped this flower onto the grave of Arvilly's happiness. Oh, how she, too, wuz suffering that day, wherever she wuz, and I wondered as much as Tommy ever did about the few cents the Govermunt received for the deadly drink that caused these murders and the everlastin' sorrow that flowed out of 'em.

Well, Arvilly told me to put the letter under the door, which I did. But nothin' more could I git out of her; and though I sent up another tray of food to her, that too come down untouched; and as I told Josiah, I didn't know as I could do anything more for her, as bad as I felt, only to think of her and pray for her.

"Yes," sez he, "we will remember Sister Arvilly at the throne of grace at evenin' worship." And after we went to our room he did make a able prayer, askin' the Lord to look down onto the poor heart of our afflicted sister, and send peace and comfort to her. It wuz a good prayer; but even in that solemn time come the thought: "If you and other church-members had voted as you prayed, Arvilly no need to be shet up there alone with her life agony."

Josiah Rebuked

But it wuz no time to twit a pardner when we wuz both on our knees with our eyes shet, but when it come my turn I did say:

"O righteous God, do help good men everywhere to vote as they pray."

Josiah said "Amen" quite loud, and mebby he duz mean to vote different. He voted license to help Jonesville, most of the bizness men of the town sayin' that it would help bizness dretfully to have license. Well, it has helped the undertaker, the jail and the poor-house.

Well, the next day Arvilly come down lookin' white and peaked, but didn't say anything about her eclipse; no, the darkness wuz too awful and solemn to talk about. But she showed me Waitstill's letter. In it she said she had been for several days caring for a very sick woman for half the night, and at midnight she would go back to the hospital, and every night for a week she had seen a bent figure creeping along as if looking for something, payin' no attention to anything only what he had in the searchin' eyes of his mind.

THOUGHT SHE SAW ELDER WESSEL

It wuz Elder Wessel lookin' for Lucia, so Waitstill said. It wuz Love waitin' and lookin' out, hoping and fearing. Poor father—poor girl! Both struck down by a blow from the Poor Man's Club. She writ considerable about Jonesville news to Arvilly, knowin', I spoze, how welcome it would be, and said she got it from Ernest White.

Hopes and Fears

Wuz things comin' out as I wanted 'em to come? My heart sung a joyful anthem right then and there. Oh, wouldn't I be glad to see Ernest and Waitstill White settled down and happy and makin' everybody round 'em happy in the dear presinks of Jonesville and neighbor with 'em!

Ernest White wrote to Waitstill how successful his Help Union was and how his dear young people wuz growin' better and dearer to him every day.

And we talked about it how he wuz carryin' everyday reason and common sense into Sunday religion. Sez Arvilly, "He teaches young voters that while prayers are needful and necessary, votes are jest as needful, for bad or careless votin' destroys all the good that Christian effort duz, all that prayer asks for and gits from a pityin' God. Every saloon is shet up in Loontown and folks flock to hear him from as fur off as Zoar and the town of Lyme. He don't have standin'-room in his meetin'-house, let alone settin'-room, and they have got to put on an addition."

And I sez agin what I had often said before, "What a object lesson Elder White's work in Jonesville is, and how plainly it teaches what I have always known, that nothin' can stand aginst the united power of the church of Christ, and if Christian folks banded together and voted as they prayed, the Saloon, the Canteen, the Greedy Trusts, the licensed house of shame, monument of woman's disgrace, would all have to fall."

"But they won't do it," sez Arvilly in a mad cross axent. "They'll keep right on preachin' sermons against wrong and votin' to sustain it, if they vote at all. Gamblin' for bedquilts and afghans to git money to send woolen clothin' to prespirin' heathens in torrid countries, while our half-clad and hungry poor shiver in the cold shadder of their steeples oncared for and onthought on."

I sez, "Don't be so hash, Arvilly; you know and I know that the church has done and is doin' oncounted good. And they're beginnin' to band themselves together to help on true religion and goodness and peace."

"Well," sez Arvilly, "I should think it wuz time they did!"

I see a deep shadder settlin' down on her eye-brow, and I knowed she wuz a thinkin' of what she had went through.

Well, the next day we sot out for Paris, via Marseilles. We had a pleasant trip up the beautiful blue Mediterranean, a blue sky overhead, a blue sea underneath. Once we did have quite a storm, makin' the ship rock like a baby's cradle when its ma is rockin' it voylent to git it to sleep.

I wuzn't sea-sick at all nor Tommy, but my poor companion suffered, and so did many of the passengers. There wuz a young chap who wuz the picture of elegance when he come aboard, and dretful big feelin' I should judge from his looks and acts. But, oh, how low seasickness will bring the hautiest head! I see him one day leanin' up agin' the side of the ship lookin' yeller and ghastly. His sleek clothes all neglected lookin', his hat sot on sideways, and jest as I wuz passin' he wuz sayin' to the aristocratic lookin' chap he wuz travelin' with:

"For heaven's sake, Aubrey, throw me overboard!"

His mean wuz wild, and though I didn't like his words I made excuses for him, knowin' that mankind wuz as prone to wuz buried with pomp and public mourning, and then a few years after taken up and laid with criminals. But good land! he'd got beyend it all. He had gone to his place wherever it wuz, and it didn't make any difference to him where the outgrown garment of his body wuz.

Off to the Exposition

But to resoom: The Cathedral is quite a noble lookin' edifice built so I hearn, on the spot where a temple once stood where they worshiped Diana; not Diana Henzy, Deacon Henzy's sister. Josiah thought I meant her when I spoke on't, and said the idee of anybody worshipin' that cranky old maid, but as I told him it wuz another old maiden or bachelor maid, as I spoze she ort to be called, some years older than Diana Henzy, sez I. "This Diana wuz a great case to live out-doors in groves and mountains." Sez I, "some say she wuz the daughter of Zeus, and twin of Apollo."

And Josiah said them two wuz nobody he ever neighbored with.

And I sez, "No, you hain't old enough." And that tickled him; he duz love to be thought young.

There is a French Protestant church, where the English residents worship, and churches and synagogues where other sects meet.

We went to an Arab school, a museum, library and botanical garden, where we see beautiful native and foreign trees and shrubs and flowers. It has a splendid harbor, consisting of at least two hundred acres. The manufactures are principally glass, porcelain, morocco and other leathers, soap, sugar, salt, etc., etc. The city has had many ups and downs, plagues, warfares, sieges and commotions, but seems quite peaceful now.

Mebby it put its best foot forrerd and tried to behave its very best because we wuz there. Naterally they would, comin' as we did from Jonesville, the pride and center of the Universe and America.

But 'tennyrate everything seemed peaceful and composed.

We only stayed there two days of rest and sightseeing and then rest agin, and then sot sail for Paris.

(To be continued).

ON THE WAY TO PARIS—"HOW LOW SEASICKNESS WILL BRING THE HAUTIEST HEAD!"

DOROTHY AND MISS MEECHIM

Sights in Marseilles

The new city is built round the port and rises in the form of an amphitheatre; the hills all round are covered with beautiful gardens, vineyards, olive groves and elegant country houses. Just acrost from the harbor is the old chateau where Mirabeau wuz imprisoned, poor humbly creeter! but smart. He didn't do as he'd ort to by his wife, and Mary Emily realized it and wouldn't make up with him, though he argued his case powerful in their law suit. But he wuz a smart soldier and writ quite eloquent things. He stood for the rights of the people as long as he could, till they got too obstropulous, as they sometimes will when they git to goin'. But I presoom he did desire his country's good. His poor body rampage round in sickness and act as sparks are to fly up chimbly. But, take it as a whole, we had a pleasant voyage.

We only made a short stay in Marseilles, but long enough to drive round some and see the most noted sights of the city, which is the principal sea port of France.

On the northern part is the old town with narrer windin' streets and middlin' nasty and disagreable, but interestin' because the old Roman ramparts are there and a wonderful town hall. A magnificent avenue seperates the old part from the new, a broad, beautiful street extendin' in a straight line the hull length of the city. Beyend is the Prado, a delightful sea-side promenade.

Samantha Appreciated

CALMAR, Ia.

Dear Samantha:—You must be tired of congratulations, but I wish only to tell you that I thank God that you live. I am reading your story in THE CHRISTIAN HERALD. It is fine. May God continue to bless you and may all you do and say be done to his glory and in his name.

Mrs. M. B. K.

Samantha, a Moral Influence

PICKTON, Texas.

Dear Editor:—Your paper is the best religious paper published, none excepted. Aunt Samantha preaches a sermon, or rather gives a lecture every time she writes. She is doing more good for the cause of temperance than any woman on the American continent.

BELL JAMES.

Manila's American Library

REV. C. C. BATEMAN, Chaplain U. S. A., who recently returned to this country from the Philippines, writes us in the interests of the American Library at Manila. In November 1899, a number of the representative people of California formed an association for the establishment of a library at Manila. Mrs. C. R. Greenleaf, then about to sail for that city, was appointed director; after her arrival other officers were elected; and at a meeting June 19, 1900, the following were among the resolutions adopted as defining the scope and policy of the library:

1. The institution named American Library of Manila, shall be regarded as a memorial to the soldiers and sailors of the American army and navy who have lost their lives in the Philippines. 2. Since the educational project originated in the mind and heart of the lamented Lieut.-Col. J. D. Miley, it is proposed that a department be dedicated to his memory.

The institution is to be undenominational in religious matters; politics are not to enter into its management; the hope is expressed that such an intellectual treasury may be established as shall be the radiating centre of American sentiment and intelligence in the East; and also that it may become a great moral force. Comfortable rooms have been secured on the Rosario, a busy thoroughfare, but the association hopes to secure grounds of its own and to erect a suitable building. Funds are needed for the work, and the co-operation of the American press and public is requested. Any one interested in this worthy undertaking can communicate with Chaplain Bateman, Fort Wright, Washington.

The Coming W. C. T. U. Conventions

The Biennial Convention of the World's W. C. T. U. will be held in Edinburgh, Scotland, June 23d to 29th. The organization in the United States is entitled to 150 delegates. Delegates from this country are in two parties, one from New York, the other from Philadelphia. After the convention, excursions will be made to the Paris Exposition, to Ober Ammergau, and through Northern Italy, Germany and Switzerland.

The World's W. C. T. U. has now fifty countries affiliated with it. The largest auxiliaries are the United States, Great Britain, Canada and Australia. Mrs. S. M. D. Fry, Corresponding Secretary of the National W. C. T. U. of America, reports to the World's convention in part as follows: "Since the last meeting of the World's organization in Toronto, our society has celebrated its twenty-fifth anniversary, and our silver jubilee was observed with a most impressive programme. We have also celebrated the twenty-fifth anniversary of the Crusade, from which sprang our white-ribbon work, and though we have been bereft of our leader since reporting to you last, still the work has been most prosperous."

During the past two years, several colored state unions have been organized, there being now eight of these in all. Alaska has a territorial president, and other officers appointed. This leaves no more territory unorganized in the United States.

The next National Convention is to be held in Washington, D. C., in November.

An Unsurpassed Library

CRANBURY, N. J.

"The Christian Herald," New York City:

I cannot refrain from a word in praise of the manner in which you have given to the world Dr. Talmage's monumental work—one of the most useful that could find its way into a Christian library, and especially into a minister's study. This work is not only a worthy record of the vast labors of one of the world's greatest preachers, but it is the only homiletic encyclopedia of the kind on the doings of the last quarter century, and an unsurpassed library of biography and illustration. The workmanship is faultless. Accept my congratulations.

CHARLES F. TAYLOR,
Pastor Second Presbyterian Church.

Our Children's Home at Mont-Lawn is about to open. Don't forget the little tenement waifs. You have it in your power to make at least one poor, helpless child happy through the whole year. Your contribution will be acknowledged in THE CHRISTIAN HERALD.

THE HUNGER AND THIRST OF THE HEART SATISFIED

JESUS THE BREAD OF LIFE

BY DR. AND MRS. WILBUR F. CRAFTS

International Sunday School Lesson for July 8: John 6: 22-40

Golden Text, John 6: 35: "Jesus said unto them, I am the bread of life"

HAVE you read that wonderful book, The History of a Mouthful of Bread, which shows that such a "mouthful" is full of miracles, and includes a worldful of animal and vegetable life? There must first be a hand, a whole chest of tools in itself, to lift the bread to the mouth; then a sentinel tongue to taste and test it; and a wonderful digestive laboratory to transform it into bone, and flesh, and blood, and nerves, and brain, which last is the servant of the soul to send the food back to the tongue transformed into words, which in turn become food for the hearts of men.

More wonderful is the history of a mouthful of communion bread. That is both a "mouthful" and a heartful. It is not so much to feed the body as the soul; not to feed the animal life, but the spiritual life. It is not taken to make flesh, and bone, and blood, but to create thoughts that will become loving words and a Christlike life of self-sacrifice. It points us back to the Hand that gives us this bread of the Lord's Supper, with a heart of love throbbing through it. That Hand means, for one thing, fellowship, brotherhood. It is too much forgotten, just when conflicts of labor and capital make it important that we should recall it "in remembrance" of Christ, that the Lord's Supper is fundamentally significant of the fact that Christians are all of one family. The Bible speaks of David going to "bless his house." Few seem to know that the reference is to the weekly communion of the Jewish household, such as the writer saw in Jerusalem at the beginning of the weekly Sabbath. The father repeated the Sabbath commandment, with his household sitting reverently about him, and then some comments from the Mishna. Then he gave a fragment of bread to every member of the household, even putting a tiny crumb on the tongue of his little babe. To each he gave also a sip of wine, with a single drop for the baby's tongue. This household were not Christians, but Jews. It was a sacrament of family love, such as Jesus had known from childhood in his home, and when he gave the bread and wine to his apostles he was adopting them into his family and reminding them that they were brothers to him and to each other. This forgotten note in our communion should be sounded out more clearly at this time when in the cities of our Christian land there are more "brotherhoods" than churches, partly because there is too little brotherhood in the churches.

But the Hand to which the broken bread of the Lord's Supper points us is not only a hand with a heart in it; it is a broken hand, and a broken heart of self-sacrificing, atoning love. The Lord's Supper was not only the successor of the weekly family communion of the Jews, but also of their annual Passover of sprinkled blood. The Passover was the Jewish Fourth of July—the nation's birthday—from which we might well learn to put more of thoughtful gratitude to God into our annual Independence Day. At the Lord's Supper, for which Jesus was preparing his apostles in the mystic words of the lesson we are now to study, the Jews who were at once patriotic and devout recalled the bondage of Egypt and the interposition of God, by which they were led to liberty, and especially the night when the destroying angel, that slew the firstborn in every Egyptian family, passed over every Jewish home where a lamb had been slain and its blood sprinkled on the door. "When I see the blood, I will pass over you" was to have yet a deeper meaning, combining patriotism and religion, in the after years, when the Lamb of God should have been slain upon the Cross to take away the sins of the world.

. . .

Seeking a Kingdom of Meat and Drink Ye seek me because ye did eat of the loaves. The spiritual eating of the Lord's Supper even the apostles were not yet prepared to understand, much less the multitudes. They could not even understand his references to the love with which God feeds the hearts of those that love him, and the evil influences that leaven the hearts of the wicked. When he warned the apostles to "beware of the leaven of the Pharisees, which is hypocrisy," they whispered: "It is because we have brought no bread." When he said he had "meat to eat that they knew not of," they exclaimed: "Hath any man given him aught to eat?" But when he fed the multitude with real loaves, miraculously multiplied, that was something they could appreciate and understand. A Messiah that could give them bread, as the Roman emperors fed the idle populace of Rome, was the very king they wanted. They sought to take him by force and make him their king. His popularity reached its highest point there and then. They wanted a kingdom of material banquets and patriotic conquests—a kingdom of meat and drink, not one of righteousness; that is, rightness of life and peace and joy in the Holy Ghost. And so the next morning after the miraculous feeding, when the multitude of the previous day had re-assembled, with large additions from Tiberias, where the news of the miracle had gone, knowing nothing of the night miracle of calming of the sea, and found that Christ and his apostles had left Bethsaida and had hastened to Capernaum, hoping for more miraculous bread, only to receive words of wisdom instead, that might have become food for the inner life, they turned away almost unanimously, and in that turning "the year of popularity" turned into "the year of opposition."

They had come to Capernaum, it is said, "seeking for Jesus," but it was a selfish seeking, such as never ends in really finding. Even to-day there is sometimes a seeking of Christ for the loaves and fishes. "Lord, is it I?"

"JESUS SAID UNTO THEM, I AM THE BREAD OF LIFE"

"Labor not," said Jesus, "for the meat which perisheth, but for that which endureth to everlasting life." This age of luxury and materialism is a time when we need especially to remember that "a man's life consisteth not in the abundance of the things that he possesses." Life is measured by what I am, not by what I have or what has me. The only real value in having is to enrich being. Our havings should be wings, not weights. Better "plain living and high thinking" than "high living and plain thinking." In a true use of the word life there is no "high living" except in "high thinking."

. . .

Faith and Faithfulness This is the work of God that ye believe. The multitude, before they turned away from his words of life, asked: "What shall we do that we might work the works of God?" So always men are prone to ask not, "What shall I be," but "What shall I do?" forgetting that being is the seed and root of doing, as Jesus taught in reply, when he said: "This is the work of God that ye believe." If we are to grow faithfulness, we must plant faith. If we are to have right conduct, we must first receive and achieve, through Christ, a right character. A young girl who had been making rather unsuccessful and discouraging efforts to "do good" was reminded by her teacher that perhaps she had been thinking too much of "doing" and too little of "being," and was asked to search out what the Bible says about being: "Be converted," "Be kindly affectioned," "Be ye thankful," "Be filled with the Spirit."

. . .

Not by Imitation of Christ, but by Impartation What sign showest thou? These Jews wanted at least something more for the eye if they could have nothing more for the mouth. They wanted something that would appeal to the senses, rather than the inner sense. Jesus felt it was time to give less kindergarten teaching to his grown-up pupils, and compel them to use the eyes of the mind and soul and the faculties that feed the inner life.

His feeding of the multitude on the previous day recalled the miracle of the manna. Now they would have him repeat other miracles that God used as object-lessons for a childish race just out of slavery. But Jesus summoned them to higher studies. They must begin to ponder the miracles greater than his matchless deeds, of his matchless words and matchless life and matchless influence—the threefold perpetual miracle that lies before us to-day. He was himself the heavenly manna, and they were to receive his words, his life and love as food for their hearts. How pathetic was their unconscious confession of incapacity to even understand him when they said: "Lord, evermore give us this bread." Peter at least—at the end of the story, when the multitude had turned away from One who would give them only spiritual bread—showed that he had some conception that noblest words are richest food, for he replied to Christ's question, "Will ye also go away?" "Lord, to whom shall we go? Thou alone hast the words of eternal life."

That man has lived a pitifully low life who has not often found that words are sweeter than food, and stronger and mightier in life-building. Into how many lives some word of sympathy, some word of arousement, some word of hope has come like the food that has saved a hungry man! How many a book we have "eaten" with delight, and it has become a part of our lives! Into how many souls a song has come like an influence!

Having ourselves received him who said, "I am the bread of life," we may ourselves be loaf-givers of that same unselfish life. This recalls the meaning of "lady," which is laf-dy, or loaf-giver.

A true "lady" was a young Scotchwoman of rank, whose heart the Lord had opened, and who therefore longed for some opportunity to pass on to others the Living Bread and the Living Water that had satisfied the hunger and thirst of her own heart. But her companions were so absorbed in amusements that she seemed to find no favorable time to be the loaf-giver of the divine love. She would pray daily and anxiously for some open door of opportunity, and then burst into some plaintive song. Shortly after she had finished such a song one day her maid came in and tearfully told her mistress how these songs, heard for days from another room, had melted her heart, which had resisted many spoken entreaties. The singer could not sleep that night for joy, and in the night watches consecrated her talent of song as the golden basket in which she might bear the Bread of Life to others. She studied to make her enunciation clear and unconsciously observed that other much neglected maxim of musical power, "If you would sing sweetly cultivate your heart." She also learned to touch her instruments with utmost skill for the sake of those whose souls she might feed with wonderful words of life. She sang heart songs in halls of wealth and in the cottages of the sick and poor, a true lady, Christ's own loaf-giver. I might tell of a whole choir that, like the apostles of old, helps Christ to feed not only the multitude in the great congregation by singing with a consecrated purpose, but also carries the heavenly food in song to the homes of the blind, the aged and the poor. And even the voices of those who cannot sing seem like music when they bear the words of life to weary and sinful hearts.

. . .

Soul Famine He that believeth on me shall never hunger. We are hearing much of India's famine. Even in good seasons it is said there are forty millions in India who are never able to fully appease their hunger from birth to death. But there are more millions yet in India and in every heathen land whose soul-hunger for truth, and joy, and hope is never appeased, to all of whom we might send the waiting host of consecrated student volunteers in this generation with at least the offer of the Bread of Life, which many would quickly receive. Even in Christian lands and among those who fare sumptuously every day, how much hunger and thirst of the heart is unappeased, partly because the hungry soul refuses the Bread of God, but also because it is not really offered to them—"not a famine of bread nor a thirst for water, but of hearing the Word of the Lord." Nothing but that Word can satisfy the deepest wants of the soul, and develop in us the highest life.

. . .

"A Man may Eat thereof and Not Die" Everyone which believeth may have everlasting life. Jesus reminded his hearers that those whose lives were prolonged by the miraculous manna nevertheless died at last, but that those who receive him as Living Bread into their hearts, at that very moment—not at so-called death—begin an "everlasting life" which death cannot interrupt, a life which is like an unfailing spring bubbling up in the soul. In some old ruined castles one finds the spring as full and clear as when the castle was in its glory. So-called death dissolves the walls of our earthly tabernacle, but cannot touch the unfailing spring of everlasting life, life that is full and joyous and gladdening to all about it.

JESUS

As five loaves, at the touch of Christ, fed the multitudes in Galilee, so the words and life and love of Christ are feeding the world's hungry hearts to-day, and we are called to be the apostles of to-day that shall distribute it so faithfully by our activities at home and through those we may help to send abroad, that all shall eat and be filled—not one soul in all the earth left to perish with soul-hunger. It is strange indeed that men who have an angel side are so many of them content to feed only the animal side and leave the angel part to starve. There is not in all the luxurious fruits that God has made, nor among the dainties that men have invented for kings' tables, any food so satisfying as those fruits of the tree of life: love to God and love to man.

In the Orient, "Eat my bread" often means: "Partake of my doctrine." But when Jesus bade us "eat of his flesh," he meant nothing less than receiving his own Spirit—not imitation, but impartation. We are to become like him who came not to be ministered unto, but to minister by ourselves, putting service above salary, as did the centurion who built the Capernaum synagogue in which Christ preached this sermon of the living bread, in sight of the carving, still seen in the ruins, of the table of showbread. That noble centurion gave to his servant not only wages and food, but brotherly love. That last-named food for the soul let us freely dispense to every brother man—not help for the body only, such as Christ gave in the miracle, but the deeper charity of the sermon that fed the very soul. "The lack of goods for the higher wants is not so sad as the lack of wants for the higher goods." "Blessed are they that hunger and thirst after righteousness, for they shall be filled."

SEEN in the FAMINE CAMPS

A Letter from Dr. Klopsch Containing his Personal Observation of the Ravages of Famine...Quaint Expressions of Gratitude for the Relief Contributed by Our Readers

WELCOME news was cabled from India last week. It was that a steady downpour of rain had commenced. If this continues, and the people can get upon their land with seed, the prospect of the end of the catastrophe will now be within sight. There will, of course, be great and widespread suffering for some time to come, and multitudes will get no relief from the rains because they have nothing to plough with and no seed to sow; but the dreadful hopelessness which hung over the millions like a cloud will be lifted, and the prospect of a harvest in October will give them new courage. We are sure that this encouraging news will be welcome to all who have been sympathizing with the afflicted people and have been keeping them alive by their generous gifts. Another effort, a short continuance in well-doing and the crisis will have passed. The gratitude of hundreds of thousands who are now living and hoping, who but for the help extended by our readers would be dead, will surely be worth having. "I was a-hungered and they fed me," is an acknowledgment which will be heard in heaven, and Christ will say: "Inasmuch as ye did it unto them, ye did it unto me." But let there be no relaxation of relief now. In these glad hours, when the star of hope is beaming in the sky, the good work must go on and the people be supported until hope comes to fruition.

A special cable dispatch from Dr. Klopsch, who went to India at his own expense and without cost to the Famine Fund, that he might personally see the conditions and organize efforts for relief was published in this journal on June 6. The mail now brings us additional details of his journey through the afflicted country, which, as Dr. Klopsch went as their representative, our readers will be glad to see. Dr. Klopsch writes under date of May 18:

We arrived here (Bombay) last Saturday morning at about six o'clock, after spending my last sleepless night on the hot Indian Ocean. My first impression of India was that of a most agreeable surprise. I suppose I re-echo the sentiments of every traveler when I say that I found India the most interesting country I have ever visited. My reception here was certainly most generous, in treatment both of my mission and myself. Lord Northcote, the Governor of Bombay, wrote me a letter of welcome, which was handed to me on board the steamship Carthage before I landed, and it was so cordial and appreciative that instantly all trace of strangeness vanished, and immediately I felt that I was among friends.

Meeting the Missionaries

After breakfast I attended a meeting of THE CHRISTIAN HERALD'S Inter-Denominational Missionary Committee, which lasted until after four o'clock. Dr. R. A. Hume presided. He had come for the purpose from Ahmednagar. I was greatly pleased with the personnel of the committee as I met them face to face; I was more pleased when I became acquainted with each one of them and observed the courteous Christian spirit that pervaded the proceedings throughout, the perfect harmony that prevailed, and the readiness of co-operation that was manifest in every step that was taken, and the careful consideration given to every question that came up for discussion. Not a single member of the Committee manifested the slightest impatience, and in everything personal prejudices and preferences were sunk in the one desire to accomplish the greatest good to the greatest number.

Grateful Famine Waifs

After the meeting was over, at the request of Rev. S. V. Karmarkar, in charge during the absence of Dr. E. S. Hume, I visited the American Mission and School for Girls, all of whom are famine waifs—some rescued in the famine of 1897, and the others during the present famine. A simple little programme of welcome, arranged by the native pastor and his assistants, went off very smoothly, the children entering with spirit into the exercises of the hour. Two garlands of flowers, one intended for THE CHRISTIAN HERALD and its readers, and the other for America and her people and a bouquet of flowers accompanying each garland were presented in native fashion. This was a very picturesque incident although rather embarrassing at the time. However, I submitted to it, as the native pastor told me that the children would be sadly disappointed if I did not. Under the circumstances I submitted, though on a later occasion I refused to repeat the experience. The garlands consisted of native flowers, toy mirrors and leaves strung together. They were thrown over my head and rested on the shoulders, like the sashes worn on festive occasions by the members of the Masonic fraternity and other societies. It was not agreeable to American taste, but who would like to disappoint children who had taken so much trouble to show their gratitude to a representative of the American people? The incident that was most touching was the presentation of a copy of the New Testament, printed in the Marathi language, beautifully bound, with the following inscription on the fly-leaf:

> To Dr. Louis Klopsch
> A Small Token of Love and Gratitude > from the > Famine Children of the American Mission
> Bombay, May 12, 1900

The presentation speech was made by a little girl in the Marathi language, and translated by the native pastor. Not even in the afternoon, when the different members of THE CHRISTIAN HERALD'S Inter-Denominational Committee rose to thank me for the sympathy manifested in my taking so long a journey in such weather to see them in their trouble, was I so affected as I was by this bright little girl's address. I found it very difficult to repress my emotion, and when the little girls—about 150 of them, all rescued through the gifts of the readers of THE CHRISTIAN HERALD to the Christian missionaries here—rose to sing a song, "Welcome to India; Welcome to Bombay," the strain was absolutely intense. However, without breaking down, I was able to thank the pastor and his assistants and the children for their reception. I hope that the children—who could not understand my English any more than I had been able to understand their Marathi—could see the sincerity of my thanks as well as I had perceived from their tones and their cheerful, beaming faces, the sentiments they were uttering.

Afterwards we paid a visit to the Boys' School, where another hearty welcome awaited us. It was six o'clock in the evening before we reached our hotel, and we were thoroughly tired, having been continually at high pressure since the early morning, in a most debilitating atmosphere. Nor was this an exceptional day. During the week I have been here, I have scarcely had a single leisure hour; but it is a satisfaction to feel that much more has already been done in the matter of getting intelligent and accurate information than I was led to believe could be secured in a month. The six days have left on my mind an indelible impression of the loyalty, consecration and diligence that characterize and the unquestioned prosperity which attends the efforts of our Christian workers here.

AN OUTDOOR ASSEMBLAGE OF FAMINE ORPHANS AT LAHORE, IN THE PUNJAB

A Visit to Pandita Ramabai

On Tuesday night at half-past seven we took the train for Poona, where at seven o'clock in the morning Pandita Ramabai met us, and was good enough to send us a cup of tea and a piece of toast to sustain us until we got to Khedgaum, where her principal work is conducted and whither she expected to accompany us. Pandita Ramabai had been at death's door during the past fortnight and even at this time is far from well. I never shall forget her appearance as she met me clothed in spotless white, with a face still showing the effects of illness, very pale and very serious, and handed me a little bouquet of fragrant native flowers, thanking me in a few simple, well-chosen words for considering her work worthy a personal visit.

At Khedgaum we were met by hundreds of people in various stages of destitution, most of whom were employed in the building and well-digging operations initiated for famine relief by Ramabai, who, owing to her illness, had not been at Khedgaum for two weeks. These people had come to the station to welcome her. It was a very touching, very pathetic scene that must have done her heart good; for the expression on the faces of the people and the way the women embraced her and fervently kissed her must have impressed the Pandita as being sincere manifestations of warm-hearted and grateful people. We proceeded from the station to Pandita's home in a tanga, that is a cart drawn by two white bullocks, the driver sitting on the pole with his back to the dash-board, managing the animals by twisting their tails and having no other mean of controlling them. They have no harness. There is a stationary cross-bar near the front end of the pole and that cross-bar fits on the back of the bullock's neck and the halter which each of the animals wears is fastened to this cross-bar. I sat on the front seat next to the Pandita and our two friends Mr. Benjamin Aitken of the "Englishman," Calcutta, who is accompanying us on this trip through India and Mr. Gilson Willetts, my traveling companion, occupied the rear seats, their backs touching our backs.

The Mukti School and Mission are situated about a mile from the station and thither we drove, being saluted deferentially by the people whom we met by the wayside as we journeyed. At last my eyes fell on the great collection of substantial buildings in which Ramabai is conducting one of the most remarkable missionary enterprises of the age, so well known all over India, all over Europe, and all over America. I will not go into the details here. For the present, I will say that I was overwhelmed with the magnitude of the work carried on by Ramabai with a wisdom that is truly remarkable and with a success that is almost incredible. Pandita Ramabai is surely one of God's chosen ones divinely called to her mission and heaven-inspired in its management. I consider it an exalted privilege to have been enabled by the generosity of the readers of THE CHRISTIAN HERALD to contribute during the past year over twenty per cent. or one fifth of the entire expense of her school and mission. May God bless and prosper her as the days go by! I was glad to see that a beginning has been made on the foundation for a church and Sunday School and a more substantial mission building to take the place of the barn-like structure which as yet serves Pandita Ramabai for all the many-sided work that she is conducting.

A Famine Camp Experience

While watching the famine sufferers busy on this work of building, I heard that there was a Government relief camp four miles away, and I availed myself of this opportunity of getting my first famine-camp experience in India. So at three o'clock, with the thermometer ranging in the neighborhood of 130, and with a wind as hot as though proceeding out of the mouth of an active furnace, we drove in the tanga over to the Wurwand camp. For a distance of two miles from the camp huge flat piles of broken stones are piled on either side of the road like small platforms, twelve feet square and about eighteen inches high. We saw girls and women going along the road with large metal basins on their heads. The basins contained broken stones which were prepared by other workers in the

(Continued on page 546)

CONNECTICUT

Avery, H S 1 00
Babcock, Miss ... 25
Barker, N C 1 00
Bidwell, D A 5 00
Bishop, Miss M.. 1 00
Booz, Mrs C S .. 1 00
Bray, Lucy W 5 00
Brown, Mrs F .. 1 00
Buel, Mrs J 50
Buell, Miss M.... 1 00
Carpenter, B F 25
Carpenter, Chas B 1 00
Christian, S 1 50
Clancy, Mrs A E. 1 00
Clarke, Mrs S W. 1 00
Coe, E C 10
Church, I B..... 1 00
Converse, Dr F B 50
Converse, Mrs M L 25
Davis, Mrs T E.. 2 00
De Hart, Mrs M J 50
Dexter, Mrs M C. 5 00
Dorman, Miss E.. 13
Downs, Mrs & Miss Burritt.... 2 00
Dunham, Chas .. 1 00
Ellis, Mr B S.... 50
Ellis, Mrs J E... 1 00
Ellis, Mrs W S... 50
Emmons, D J..... 25
Emmons, J 50
Emmons, Mrs M.. 50
Emmons, Mary J.. 1 00
Fenton, M P..... 25
Foote, Robt & Helen 30
Fox, Amy 50
Gilbert, Mrs J R. 2 00
Goodsell, Mr & Mrs I B..... 2 00
Goodsell, Mrs Jas 1 00
Hakes, I L..... 25
Hale, Mrs 08
Hale, Lily 25
Hall, Majorie A.. 1 00
Hallett, M 2 00
Hanna, John W.. 25
Hills, Mrs Geo.... 50
Hills, Mrs W.... 50
Hutchinsou, Mrs A W..... 1 00
Hutchinson, A .. 50
Hutchinson, A E. 1 00
Hutchison, G C.. 5 00
Hutchinson, Mrs Geo C 2 00
Hutchinson, Mary L 1 00
Jillson, Mrs B A. 25
Jillson, John N... 1 00
Jones, Hansey ... 1 00
Jones, S A..... 1 00
Jncul, Annie 10
Kahu, Geo A..... 1 00
Kempton, Mrs ... 25
Kingsbnry, Mrs A E 10
Kyle, R J & Mrs.. 1 00
Langdon, F H.... 50
Langdou, Mrs P W 50
Lewis, Mrs M.... Hopkins, H .... Wilson, Jno & Jennie 4 00
Loomer, Martha A 2 00
Lord, Miss H.... 1 00
Lord, Mrs H..... 1 00
McBorgiebell, F .. 1 00
Maney, E W..... 25
Mansfield, Mrs C M 25
Minor, Mrs T.... 50
Morse, Geo M...100 00
Northrop, C C.... 10
Ockels, Hermau.. 3 20
Packer, W W.... 1 00
Paddock, M E... 2 50
Palmer, W W.... 1 00
Palmer, Y 1 00
Perkins, Mrs B.. 50
Perry, Mrs C..... 50
Pratt, Mrs Luther 25
Prentice, Mrs F. 1 00
Randall, J C..... 2 00
Robinson, Miss F 10
Robinson, Henry. 50
Robinson, Mrs P E 50
Robiuson, Mrs R S 50
Robinson, W H.. 1 30
Robinson, W H.. 25
Rogers, John J... 5 00
Rossiter, Frances. 5 00
Saunders, Mrs W C 1 00
Sibley, B E..... 3 00
Smyth, Annie 20
Somers, Mrs A... 1 00
Sperry, H..... 50
Sperry, R 50
Stevens, Miss E.. 50
Stevens, Mrs F M 50
Stevens, Jarvis .. 50
Stevens, Miss M.. 50
Stolzenberg, F .. 5 00
Stone, H A C.... 50 Street, Mrs E D. 10
Thanson, Mrs ... 10
Thompson, Robt.. 50
Thompson, Mrs S L 50
Thrall, Bertha.... 50
Tickell, Mrs G W 2 00
Tracy, Frank A.. 25
Turner, R E..... 1 00
Tuttle, Mrs M.... 1 00
Wallcott, Mrs H E 25
Warner, Wm T.. 2 00
Weaver, E M..... 1 00
Weaver, F A.... 1 00
Wheeler, Edward 50
Williams, Miss A M 10 00
Winchester, D .. 25
Woodmansee, W E 10
Yerington, R L.. 1 00
Mrs A D B, Willimantic 1 00
C C, Westbrook.. 5 00
Mrs E, Middletown 1 00
E C W, New Haven 8 00
Mr E H B, Morse Meadow 15

CONNECTICUT—Cont'd.

F N F, Stafford Springs 55
L & E, New Haven 2 00
L I F, Stafford Springs 40
L M Q, Centrebrook 1 00
L C H, New Britain 5 00
M & M, Stafford Springs 30
Mrs M T G, Hotchkiss 1 50
O P J, Glastonbury 3 00
S B I, Fair Haven 2 00
I H N, Gilead.... 25
I H N, Norwich.. 1 00
Friend, Gilead.... 25
Friend, Gilead.... 25
Friend, Gilead.... 25
Friend, Gilead.... 25
Friend, Gilead.... 30
Friend, Gilead.... 50
Friend, Gilead.... 50
Friend, Gilead.... 5 00
Friend, Gilead.... 15
Two Friends, Naugatuck 1 00
Friends, Norwich 50
A Friend, Norwich 5 00
Two Friends, So Britain 3 00
Friend, Suffield .. 1 00
Friend, Waterbury 50
D Y, New Haven 2 00
Subr, E Haven ... 2 00
A Mother & Children, Sharon.... 40
Mother & Daughter, So Norwalk 1 00
Sympathy, So Norwalk 3 00
Bill the Baptist, oS Manchester.. 25
A Gift, —..... 3 00
Widows Mite, Guilford 1 00
E Cornwall Bapt S Sch 2 00
1st Bapt Ch, Lyme10 36
M E S Sch, Westbrook 5 25
Union Bapt S Sch, Mystic 10 00
M E Ch, Copper Hill 5 00
Mrs Geo F Morris' S S Class, Cong Ch, N Woodbury 2 00
Lebanon Bapt C E, Lebanon 5 00
Pratt, J C S Sch Class, Plainville. 2 00
Ep Leagne M E Ch, Copper Hill 5 00
Y P S C E, East Hartland 5 00
C E of Hampton Cong Ch..... 5 00

D. of COLUMBIA

Billing, M M..... 1 00
Cauldwell, G 2 00
Campbell, S L... 2 00
Gentry, Eliz'th .. 50
Love, Mrs S T.. 1 00
McGaughy, M & Ethel McCleary. 4 00
Meigs, James L.. 1 00
Pellew, Mr & Mrs E H.....30 00
Pettit, E L..... 5 00
Rawson, E K..... 2 00
Vinton, Richard.. 50
Winter, John T.. 5 00
Woodruff, E A .. 5 00
Little Ruth, Washingtou 1 00
M H, Washington 3 00
F S, Washington 50
A Friend, Washingtou 1 00

DELAWARE

Alcom, Mrs S.... 1 00
Alrich, Mattie J.. 1 00
Blackiston, J..... 35
Burhr, Mary E... 1 00
Chambers, G W.. 2 00
Collison, J C.... 3 00
Chambers, M J.. 2 00
Fisher, Mrs H C. 2 00
Green, Miss S.... 25
Grime, D & S A. 1 50
Harding, T H.... 1 00
Hart, Lillian M... 10
Hart, Marian ... 05
Hart, Mrs W E.. 1 00
Hoopes, L Y..... 50
Johnston, Kate A & friends..... 2 41
Kerbin, Mrs Jas.. 50
Kersey, Miss M.. 25
Kerbin, Miss S... 50
Outten, Elmer ... 2 00
Peirce, M C..... 1 00
Ross, J J..... 1 00
Shaw, Charlotte.. 50
Waters, E W.... 2 00
Wilkinson, Miss M 25
Wise, Miss A.... 25
C A B, Wilmington 5 00
—, Harrington.. 1 00
A Friend, Middletown 2 00
I H N, Houston.. 1 00
M E Ch, Delaware City 25 00
W C T U, Milford 8 00

MAINE

Abbott, Miss S... 50
Abbott, Mrs C F.. 2 00
Atchison, Dora M. 25
Atchison, E 25

MAINE—Cont'd.

Atchison, Fred.... 25
Atwood, Mrs J F. 2 00
Atwood, Masters R & Newman..... 20
Aundlette, J A.... 2 00
Bates, Albert 2 00
Bartlett, D J..... 5 00
Blanchard, R F... 2 00
Bennett, Clara S.. 1 00
Bryant, Irene V... 1 00
Busber, M E B... 1 00
Carr, Melvin 50
Cates, L B 3 00
Clark, Mr & Mrs Wm 2 00
Cobbett, Mrs Belle & Mrs A Smiley. 2 00
Davenport, A 1 00
Dillingham, C K.. 3 75
Doige, Mrs G..... 1 00
Farin, I S 1 00
Flagg, Mrs M T.. 25
Folley, Fred E ... 1 35
Gardner, E R 2 00
Gile, Mrs E H.... 1 00
Goodwin, Miss M. 2 00
Grinnell, C I 2 00
Glove, R S (M D) 2 00
Gurnee, A C 25 00
Halford, R 50
Harriman, Mary E 2 00
Hathaway, A S... 2 00
Haughton, C N... 1 00
Hawken, Thos.... 5 00
Heald, Mrs B F.. 2 00
Holt, F C 50
Hope, H J 1 00
Horne, Mr & Mrs H A 2 00
Hussey, Edmond.. 25
Hussey, Frank.... 50
Hughes, W J 3 00
Jewett, N 1 00
Johnson, Mr & Mrs J R 5 00
Johnson, Will 50
Jordan, B R.....10 00
Keene, Lydia 25
Kent, Mrs E H.... 1 00
Kerr, Mrs E..... 1 00
Manter, J C 2 00
Martin, Harry ... 50
Martin, Thos 1 00
Mitchell, Lizzie... 1 00
Moody, Mrs H A. 1 00
Nutting, J D 1 00
Newton, Mrs A... 1 00
Prescott, Mrs M A 3 00
Prince, Mrs N E.. 1 00
Poole, Maude 1 00
Pulsifer, L E..... 2 00
Robbins, Nellie M 1 00
Robinson, Mrs A V 2 00
Sargent, Geo R... 2 00
Sawyer, Edw P.... 1 00
Srow, Mary E.... 1 00
Sweetser, Harriet L 50
Stetson, Mrs G C, Coll by 5 00
Strout, Mae G.... 1 00
Swan, Mrs N..... 2 00
Swift, Mrs M L.. 1 00
Thompson, L D.. 4 00
Tweedie, H V (M D) 5 00
Walker, E A 1 00
Walker, Geo 75
Wells, Grace H... 2 00
Wentworth, Patty 1 00
Whittaker, Mary A 2 00
Williams, Mrs M A 10
Wilson, Lottie M. 2 10
Woods, Jos 25
A B G, Anson... 25
C A M, Naples.... 1 00
E A F, Mrs, Rockland 1 00
E E F, Miss, Waltham 1 00
W P A, W Kennebunk 1 00
W C, Casco 1 00
—, Houlton 5 00
—, Kendnokeag.. 1 00
—, Kittery Pt... 2 00
—, Machias..... 1 00
Friend, Exeter ... 2 00
A Friend, Sanford 1 00
Friend, Sargentville 2 00
Friends, Turner... 6 00
A Friend, Waldaboro 2 00
A Friend, Waterville 1 00
Subr, Covinna ... 1 00
A Widow's Mite, Gorham 1 00
Oakland Chapel Friends 3 13
Holy Trinity Ch.. 2 00
Prim Dept M E S S, Rockland..... 1 00
F B S Sch, Edgecomb 2 00
Free Bapt S Sch, Rumford Falls.. 4 00
Cousins Island S Sch 4 00
S C W Sabbath S, Caribon 4 00
Y P S C E of Woolwich & Wiscasset F B Ch..... 1 50

MARYLAND

Ahern, J P 1 50
Amos, H 50
Bamberger, A ... 10
Bird, Mr 25
Black, Mrs J B... 1 00
Bottomley, F S & Cl 2 00
Boyer, Mrs W P. 5 00
Brown, W D 5 00
Campbell, M 1 00
Christian, L A.... 50
Clagett, Mrs M... 2 00

MARYLAND—Cont'd.

Clippinger, J O...12 56
Connell, Mrs J... 50
Connell, Richard.. 25
Connell, Tina 50
Connell, Virginia.. 25
Cook's, H S, class 1 00
Cook, Mrs H S... 50
Dulany, Mr & Mrs H S 1 00
Dulany's, Mrs H S, class 60
Ely, Grace D 5 00
Flynn, A C 1 00
Flynn, H 25
Flynn, J 25
Flynn, Jas 5 00
Flynn, J E 1 00
Flynn, W 25
Frampton, H M.. 25
Freeman, Chas ... 50
Getzendanner, Mrs 3 00
Glann, C H 25
Gomber, J 2 00
Green, Miss M.... 50
Grussendorf, Hy.. 25
Hall, D J 2 50
Hamend, J L 1 00
Hoffman, Calvin.. 50
Hornier, Miss J... 05
Horner, Nina G... 5 00
Hurtt, Mr & Mrs C M 50
Insley, Mrs E..... 10
Jones, Mrs L 25
Lambkin, Mrs O C 3 00
Land, Mrs A W.. 2 50
Legg, Mary 10
Mallalieu, Mrs M E B 50
Meyers, J S 1 00
Newman, Mr and Mrs J S 75
Nice, Mrs C J.... 5 00
Palmer, U G..... 50
Pinder, Ed 25
Porter, Miss M... 5 00
Porter, Robt 50
Powell, Miss D... 50
Powell's Miss H, class 3 00
Price, Mrs L S.... 25
Robinson, A..... 25
Roe, Mrs M J 1 00
Schraeder, A 25
Schraeder, Carl .. 25
Shaw, Lydia C.. 5 00
Shrader, C 50
Smith, Jas H 5 00
Spear, E W 1 00
Spear, J E 1 00
Stansbury, Nellie B 3 00
Steward, Miss J.. 15
Stockbridge, Mrs S L 1 00
Summers, Chas G & Co 2 50
Toadvine, Miss A. 25
Tonkin, Mr & Mrs H & Son 1 70
Tyler, Grace K ... 02
Tyler, J H 25 00
Tyler, K D 02
Tyler, R B 06
Van De Grift, E.. 2 00
Vansant, M 25
Waters, Maria.... 1 00
Waters, Mrs M... 2 00
Waters, Wm A... 1 00
Weisbrod, Walter.10 00
Weist, Jno H..... 1 00
Whitcraft, M F... 1 00
White, C F 50
Wiggin, W F 1 00
Wilson, Mrs W H 2 00
A D, Baltimore... 50
E B H, Baltimore. 2 00
G T M, Sparrows Point 1 00
H A M, Calvary.. 25
J W L, Baltimore.. 1 00
Mrs L E B, Uniontown 2 00
L E B, Mrs, Uniontown 24 00
L M, Montrose.... 1 00
L W M, Calvary.. 25
M E M, Calvary.. 25
M S M, Calvary.. 2 00
W W W, Calvary. 25
—, —..... 50
—, Adamstown.. 1 00
—, Baltimore.... 1 00
—, Baltimore.... 50
—, Donds 1 50
Cash, Millington.. 50
A Friend, Baltimore 1 00
Friend, Buckeystown 1 00
A Friend, Rockville 1 00
Subr, Centreville.. 1 00
Subr, Lapidum... 1 00
Epw Lea, Sykesville 3 27
Harmony Grove C E Soc 5 00
M E S Sch, Rising Sun 10 00
Grace Ch S Sch, Parish, Silver Spring 15 00
Salem S Sch, Fairlee 9 26
Trinity M E Ch, S Millington 10 00
W M Soc Pres Ch, Darnestown 1 80
C E Soc M E Ch, New Market 20 00
C E Soc of Ashland Pres Ch, Cockeysville..... 5 00
Jr Ep Lea M E Ch, Aberdeen...10 00
J C E Light St Pres Ch, Baltimore 1 50
To the Daisy Chain's Brothers & Sisters in India, Baltimore..15 50
Ladies of Hagerstown 5 00

MASSACHUSETTS

Abell, L G 2 00
Adams, Mrs E B. 1 00
Aldrich, Harrison. 2 00
Allen, Ralph C .. 10
Arvidson, A J 1 50
Atwood, Mrs H B 25
Ayles, Maude 15
Babbitt, Lilian.... 25
Bachelor, Mrs J.. 1 00
Bacon, J W..... 5 00
Baker, Geo P 1 00
Bair, R J M 2 00
Barton, A M 1 00
Bateson, Mrs Thos 1 00
Beaman, C B 5 00
Boxwell, Helen... 25
Brault, Jos M.... 10
Brockway, Mrs L G 5 00
Buck, E A 5 00
Bustard, Addie ... 25
Cameron, Eddie H 25
Canney, C W..... 10
Cannon, Mrs G N. 25
Carey, Mrs J A... 1 00
Cairuthers, Jas... 50
Carter, Mrs Edw.. 1 00
Casswell, A J 25
Chase, Ida F..... 15
Chase, W H 2 00
Childs, Miss M ... 50
Chittenden, A J.. 50
Coburn, Mrs C P. 1 00
Codding, E E 1 00
Coldwell, S A 3 00
Conkin, Miss M... 25
Cooper, C E 1 00
Clements, Mrs J J 1 00
Coupe, Thos, Coll by 2 00
Crane, Mrs R R.. 50
Cunningham, Mrs J P 2 00
Daniels, Mrs Jas.. 25
Davis, Mrs C S... 1 00
Dean, Miss C..... 1 00
Devenean, Geo ... 50
Devencan, W T... 50
Dillingham, Mr & Mrs L H 1 00
Dinsmore, Alice... 25
Dinsmore, Frank.. 10
Donhough, Dan... 25
Dudley, C A 10
Dyer, Mrs F..... 5 00
Dyle, W R 10
Earle, J 1 50
Earle, Mrs J H... 1 00
Eddy, Mrs C W... 1 00
Fairbanks, Gertie. 10
Farmer, S 25
Farnsworth, May. 10
Farrand, Mrs Jno. 1 00
Farrell, Jos 80
Farrell, Lizzie J.. 10
Ferguson, Miss R. 25
Ferguson, Miss S. 20
Finley, Mrs 1 00
Fiske, L Louise... 1 00
Fellows, Mrs G O 1 00
Ford, Fred 2 00
Foster, N J 25
Foster, W D 25
Freese, Miss B.... 5 00
French, Mrs R.... 1 00
Gallaway, Chas... 5 00
Garliek, Mrs M... 25
Gerhaid, Mrs L.. 25
Gillis, Miss L B.. 1 00
Goky, Philip..... 2 00
Goodrich, May ... 10
Goodrich, Paul N. 2 00
Gorton, E 1 00
Gonld, J C 50
Graham, Jno 10
Graves, Eunice E. 5 00
Graves, Eunice E.21 00
Green, Mrs S A... 5 00
Griffin, Mrs L R. 1 00
Gunery, R B..... 2 00
Hair, Annie E 50
Hair, Bessie B .. 25
Hair, Florence M. 25
Hall, John 2 00
Hammond, R & De Volson 1 00
Hampton, Miss B B 25
Hampton, H C... 50
Hannon, Benj 25
Harron, Andrew.. 50
Hart, J 1 00
Hartwell, Daisy.. 10
Hartwell, Henry.. 10
Hayes, Mrs P J & Mrs H N Tower. 1 00
Hickox, Mrs S A.. 3 00
Higgins, Mrs H S. 1 00
Hill, Frank P 25
Hogan, Miss M... 50
Howe, C 50
Hunter, E A..... 10
Hurter, M G 2 00
Ingalls, Mr & Mrs Chas T 2 50
Iony, Geo W..... 10
Jerome, Mrs 50
Johnson, Mr 15
Johnson, Mrs C... 1 00
Johnson, Miss L.. 25
Johnson, S W..... 1 00
Kemp, Eugene H. 25
Kendall, Mrs E A 2 00
Kittredge, Mrs O. 1 00
Koenig, Willie.... 25
Kolnig, Lottie 25
Lane, Mrs A E... 2 00
Lannon, Annie.... 20
Larrabee, Lucy L. 1 00
Lawson, E A 10
Learned, H J 5 00
Leonard, Mrs A W 1 00
Loomis, Ethel 3 00
Loring, C E 25
MacAskill, Miss M 25
MacAskill, Miss M B 25
MacAskill, Miss M S 50
McClary, Mrs N... 1 00
McDonald, W B.. 25
McInnis, Miss M.. 1 00
McKinley, John... 1 00

MASSACHUSETTS.—Con.

McLean, Mrs 25
MacLeau, A 10
McLean, Guy 50
McLean, Mrs I, Coll by 15 00
MacLeod, Miss A J 25
MacLeod, K A ... 25
MacLeod, Miss M 1 00
MacLeod, Miss M J 55
MacLeod, Miss S. 25
Malm, Adelia 25
Marchant, R N.... 25
Marrill, J G and family 10 00
Marshall, Emma.. 1 00
Mason, Mrs A G.. 25
Mercer, Mrs 50
Miller, J M 1 00
Moore, Mrs A S..19 79
Moore, J F 25
Morey, Hattie A.. 10
Morey, Minnie E. 10
Morley, K A..... 1 00
Morrison, Lottie.. 10
Morrison, Minnie. 15
Morse, W B 2 00
Murray, Dan..... 50
Newhall, Charlie.. 25
Newhall, Lizzie... 50
Nourse, P A 1 00
Orth, H 10
Orth, H 05
Osgood, Mrs A A. 1 00
Osgood, Mrs L.... 1 00
Orton, Mrs R N.. 2 00
Paine, W B 1 00
Palmer, Mrs M D 5 00
Perry, K G..... 25
Pickering, Alice... 15
Pickett, Chas 25
Pickford, Mrs A M 5 00
Pierce, John W... 1 00
Pierce, Mrs O M. 15
Pitts, Miss Kate.. 10
Pomeroy, Angeline 5 00
Porter, H H..... 1 00
Post, Mrs C B.... 2 00
Powers, Thos W.. 25
Putnam, P O..... 5 00
Ray, J B 2 00
Read, E R 1 00
Reed, Josie S 5 00
Rice, Alvah 75
Richmond, A F... 2 00
Robbins, Ithiel.... 2 00
Roberts, Benj..... 25
Roberts, Geo 25
Robertson, W W. 1 00
Roper, J W 25
Ross, Miss M E .. 1 00
Rowan, Miss E .. 25
Sampson, Miss E T 1 00
Sanford, Mrs T A 1 00
Sayford, S M 5 00
Scott, Alex 2 00
Scott, Robt 25
Searle, Mrs 50
Seagrave, Mrs M A 1 00
Sherer & Co, Miss.10 00
Simmons, W G.... 1 00
Skillin, Mrs E E.. 1 00
Smith, Mrs A C & A Rayden 2 00
Smith, Mrs Ellen.. 1 00
Smith, E R 25
Smith, Mrs F..... 1 00
Smith, Mr & Mrs F W 2 30
Smith, Mr & Mrs F W 2 00
Snow, F A 2 00
Steere, Lena 10
Stetson, J 5 00
Stevens, Mrs A L 3 00
Stewart, E 1 00
Stokes, Edw 25
Sweet, Grace A... 25
Taylor, Mrs M.... 50
Taylor, W C 2 00
Thayer, Mrs N.... 25
Thomas, Mrs F... 2 00
Thompson, C E... 10
Thompson, Mrs T G 2 00
Thornhill, Miss J E, Coll by 2 40
Thurston, Lois.... 10
Tidd, Mrs W T... 1 00
Walker, Myrtie... 25
Wallace, Mrs T... 1 00
Warner, Evelyn L 05
Warner, H M..... 50
Warner, Mrs H M 50
Warner, S F 05
Wells, Geo 10 00
Whitehill, Grace, Coll by 50
Whitehill, Mabel.. 25
Whitehill, Mrs W L 50
Whitman, Frank.. 25
Whitman, Geo ... 25
Whitman, Miss S. 25
Wiley, A L 2 00
Willey, Mable ... 05
Wolcott, Mrs E R 1 00
Wood, E C 50
Wood, Jos 50
Wood, Mrs S G... 1 00
Woodhead, J H... 5 00
Woodward,, I F.. 5 00
Young, Geo U.... 1 00
Young, Mrs Susan 2 00
Harness, Northfield 2 00
Scotia, Holyoke... 5 00
Saxon, Boston.... 1 00
Marguerite, Roslindale 45
Mrs A, Ashfield... 5 00
A A S, Westfield. 1 00
A L B, Sterling.. 2 00
A M P, Florence.. 1 00
B F H, Somerville 05
C W S, Boston.... 05
E G M., Lawrence 10
G K, Rockdale ... 25
H K B, Boston... 10
J N F, Boston.... 05
J P C, Pittsfield.. 2 00

MASSACHUSETTS.—Con.

L J T, Northampton 1 00
L T W, Jamaica Islands 50
L W D, Cottage City 1 00
L W O, Dorchester 2 00
Mrs M A B, Boston 2 00
M E R, Belchertown 1 00
M S, Ware 1 00
Mrs N C E, Worcester 25
V A S, Spencer... 1 00
W L S & A L W, Worcester 2 00
—, Boston 300 00
—, Boston 25
—, Boston 1 00
—, Holyoke 1 00
—, Leominster.. 5 00
—, Lowell 5 00
—, Newburyport. 1 00
—, Quincy 1 00
—, Shutesbury.. 2 00
—, Tyringham... 1 00
—, Wellesley Hills 4 00
Chinese Girl, Lynn 15
In behalf of my 3 children, Worcester 3 00
Three old ladies, Beverly 4 00
I H N, Dorchester 57
School children at Chaffin, Holden. 6 00
School Children, Shelburne 1 00
A friend of the Home, Dedham. 1 00
A Friend, Worcester 15
A Friend, Worcester 10
A Friend, Worcester 50
A Friend, Watertown 2 00
Christian Friend, Barre 1 00
Friend, Allston... 50
Friend, Boston.... 2 00
Friend, Brockton. 10
Friend, Brookline. 25 Friend, Danvers.. 25
Friend, Jamaica Plain 30
Friend, Lowell.... 2 00
Friend, Roslindale 10
Friend, Shelburne. 35
Friend, S Westport 1 00
Friend, W Stockbridge 1 50
Friend, Westville. 3 00
Friend, Woburn .. 25
Northfield Farms S Sch 1 25
S S No 5, Northfield 2 00
Park St Ch S Sch, Boston 10 00
West Farms Un S Sch, Wyben 6 15
Jr C E Soc, Ashland 5 00
Inasmuch Cir K D, Beverly 10 00
Bethany Jr C En, Brookline 5 00
Jr C E Soc, First Chris Ch, Fall River 10 00
Ep Lea, Osterville 9 65
Jr Ep Lea, Plainville 1 00
Ep Lea Bway M E Ch, Somerville..10 00
Memorial Y P S C E, Springfield... 5 00
Mem Ch Y P S C E, Springfield... 3 00
P R, L E & M, Springfield 2 00
C E Soc, Weston..13 00
King's Daughters, Min Cir, Worcester 4 00
Pilgrim C C Y P S C E Worcester 25 00
Friend M, Lawrence 1 00
Friends, Jamaica Island 95
Friend of the cause, Taunton.. 5 00
Friends, W Millbury 10 00
A Subr, N Acton. 1 00
A Reader, Watertown 2 00
Reader & Friends, Cambridge 10 00
Sympathizer, Everett 5 00
Parks St S Sch, Boston 55 85
1st Bapt Ch, Merimac 6 30
Bapt Ch, S Hanson 6 10
Woodhead, J H... 5 00
Prim Sch, Vineyard Haven..... 5 25
3d Grade School, Webster 4 41
Bapt S S, S Hanson 10 04
N Brilierica Bapt S School 10 00

NEW HAMPSHIRE

Bartlett, Nathaniel 45
Bartlett, Mrs N C 45
Bassett, Mrs G S. 50
Bean, J W'..... 1 00
Berry, J E..... 2 00
Burbank, D B ... 1 00
Cochrane, Lilla C. 1 00
Cotton, Mrs L.... 40
Curtice, Almena.. 5 00

N. HAMPSHIRE—Cont'd.
Dore, Mrs L..... 15
Eaton, Charlotte.. 5 00
Ellis, Mrs M A... 1 00
Employees of Boston Store, Nashua 15 25
Estes, Mabel M... 1 00
Fitzwilliam Depot Parish 5 49
Goodwin, H A.... 5 00
Howe, L M..... 1 00
Hurd, Asa C..... 1 00
Kellogg, Mrs M M 1 00
Lane, Chas H 5 00
Lang, W A 10
Lemon, C H..... 2 50
Marden, A D..... 1 00
Mohawk S Sch... 1 50
Nicholl, Mrs 1 00
Parker, Jno 2 00
Petigrew, Rev & Mrs O J 10
Phillips, C H..... 25
Phillips, Mrs C H. 40
Phillips, Mrs N.... 50
Richmond Parish.. 5 51
Roberts, C 10
Roberts, G 10
Ruggles, Mrs E R 1 00
Ruggles, Miss H.. 1 00
St Sauveur, Ethel, Coll by 1 00
——, Salmon Falls 1 00
Sargent, Mrs F.. 10
Sanborn, Mrs R P & Dan 6 00
Smith, N M..... 2 00
Stearns, Mrs A P 2 00
Stevens, C 25
Stevens, Eben.... 1 00
Stockbirge, Mrs... 50
Thomas, Mrs Wm. 1 00
Threadgold, I..... 10
Towle, C A..... 1 00
Towle, J H..... 2 00
Trask, W P..... 1 00
Vickery, M 55
Vickery, S P..... 50
Waldo, Mrs S A.. 1 00
Wheeler, G A..... 1 00
Wheeler, Jno A... 1 00
Wheeler, Mary H. 5 00
Whitney, E N.... 2 00
Williams, Mrs, ——10 00
Woodman, W 1 00
——, Barnstead...12 00
——, Littleton..... 10
——, Meredith 5 00
3 C, Hanover..... 1 00
2 H C S, Wilton.. 5 00
2 H H, Grasmere. 1 00
2 M L..... 50
3 A J, Berlin..... 2 00
2 S F, Troy..... 1 00
M A B, Lyme..... 1 00
S H, Wilton..... 5 00
Friends, Alexandria 1 00
Friend, Alton..... 10
Friend, Alton..... 10
Friend, Alton..... 10
Friend, Alton..... 05
Friend, Alton 10
Friend, Alton 10
Friend, Alton 10
Friend, Alton 10
Friend, Alton 10
Friend, Alton ... 25
Friend, Alton ... 25
Friend, Alton ... 25
Friend, Atkinson.. 1 00
Friend, Bradford. 2 00
A Friend, Bristol. 2 00
Friend, Greenland. 1 00
A Friend, Haverhill 1 00
Friends, Jeffrey...17 15
Friend, Lisbon.... 1 00
Friends of the poor 5 00
A widow's mite, Franklin Falls.. 1 00
One of Christ's Workers, Antrim 50
A Little Boy, Atkinson 10
Mother and daughter, N Hampton. 1 05
Song Ch, Surry... 4 50
Endeavor S Sch, Gravelly Ridge.. 5 00
C E S Sch, Brookline 2 60

NEW JERSEY

Ackerson, Mrs M E 10
Adams, Geo C ... 5 00
Albertson, Grace. 1 00
Alison, E A..... 1 00
Amerman, I S.... 1 00
Anderson, Agnes. 20
Anderson, D M... 1 00
Anderson, Edw & family 2 10
Anderson, Mrs W H 1 00
Apgar, E S..... 2 00
Arnold, Mrs E W.38 64
Ashworth, F W.. 2 00
Bacon, A T..... 2 00
Baldwin, Mrs E E 1 00
Baldwin, Herbt.. 1 00
Ball, Mr & Mrs C W 50
Bartles, J P.....10 00
Bartlett, S 1 00
Barraclough, J .. 2 00
Bates, Mrs W C.. 5 00
Baylor, Mr 05
Beams, Mrs E E.. 50
Beams, Mrs G A 25
Beams, Mrs L V... 25
Beatty, W S..... 2 00
Beekman, J B, (M D) 25 00
Bender, Mr Paul. 1 00
Benedict, W B... 2 00
Berchold, Mrs S.. 25
Bergen, Sadie M.. 1 50
Berry, E P..... 1 00
Betz, Ella 2 00

NEW JERSEY—Cont'd.
Bird, Sarah J.... 1 00
Bishop, Rae 1 00
Bissett, Mrs Jas.. 2 00
Bodenmaun, Mrs C A 50
Bodine, Jno 25
Bogart, Harry 50
Borehan, N M.... 2 00
Bowen, Chas 1 00
Bowers, J F..... 50
Bowmau, D V.... 25
Bray, Jasper 2 00
Bray, Mrs S A... 1 25
Brett, Albert 25
Brodmerkel, C .. 25
Brown, James ... 1 00
Browu, Jas, Jr...25 00
Brupbacher, L ... 50
Bryan, Harry C.. 05
Buechi, Miss A... 5 00
Buechi, Mrs B... 50
Buechi, Miss H... 15
Buechi, Miss H... 50
Buechi, Miss L... 1 00
Bulkley, E M.... 5 00
Burkett, C S.... 2 00
Burnett, Dr & fam 5 00
Butterfield, M A. 25
Canns, Miss A... 10
Canns, M A..... 25
Cauns, Mrs S G.. 25
Carlisle, Mrs A F 1 00
Carlock, Mrs C F, Coll by 2 25
Carter, Mrs 10
Chafey, H V..... 1 00
Chafey, Mrs H V. 1 00
Chalmers, Mrs M Coll by 2 00
Chastney, Jas ... 1 25
Chisum, W J..... 1 00
Christian, I B.... 1 00
Christy, R P..... 2 00
Clayton, Mrs L D 25
Clayton, Robt ... 1 00
Cockefair, Wm B 2 00
Cole, C 10
Compton, Miss E. 2 00
Conditt, I W..... 5 00
Conklin, Miss P..10 00
Connet, A T..... 2 00
Conover, Allen .. 25
Conover, Jennie . 25
Cook, Mrs F 50
Cook, Wm 10 00
Cottrell, Mary ... 25
Cramer, Mrs C S. 2 00
Chamer, J F..... 25
Cramer, Mrs Rena 50
Crane, Mrs C M.. 2 00
Crane, J I..... 1 00
Crone, L H & fds 7 00
Cropper, K 1 00
Crowel, C 25
Cuming, Wm G.. 25
Currin, Mrs T E, Coll by 23 65
Curtis, Mrs A E.. 50
Dalber, L 25
Davis, Miss 1 00
Davis, A E..... 3 00
Davis, W S..... 2 00
Day, J M..... 1 00
De Grote, Mrs E. 1 00
De Moyne, Fannie 25
Denzler, Mr..... 1 00
De Vean, Lillie.. 30
Diament, Geo E.. 5 00
Dickinson, Miss L A, M E & E Ames 3 00
Dingler, Mary ... 25
Dorland, Mrs G H 1 00
Down, Wm 1 00
Dunning, Mrs F.. 50
Egolf, M 5 00
Eldridge, Adda .. 1 00
Elton, J R..... 2 00
Embury, E A....25 00
Errickson, L M.. 2 00
Everson, Jas H... 50
Everett, Rev B S 1 35
Everitt, Edna E, Coll by 1 85
Fawcett, H 10 00
Flanigan, Saml... 1 00
Fletcher, F 1 00
Forsyth, Mrs L H 5 00
Foss, Chris 15
Foss, Jacob 25
Fountain, Mrs E F 3 00
Franklin, G H.... 5 00
Gaff, Mattie 5 00
Gardner, Geo 50
Gardner, Wm ... 1 50
Garrabrant, Mrs J 1 00
Garren, Mrs D... 1 00
Gaskill, T 05
Giebelhouse, K... 1 00
Goelz, Albert 25
Goelz, Eddie 25
Goldsmith, Mrs M F 10 00
Gossweiler, M ... 50
Gould, Eva 1 00
Grace, Deborah E 1 00
Grandin, J F..... 5 00
Grady, S Foster.. 1 00
Grant, Hy 50
Greene, W A..... 5 00
Grell, Julius 25
Griffith, Mr & Mrs M 50
Groff, Mrs Eliza.. 25
Grove, Franklin . 3 00
Gujer, A 1 00
Hageman, J A... 1 00
Haines, Mrs C T. 10
Hale, Mrs L C... 26
Haley, D P..... 1 00
Hall, Miss 1 00
Hammer, Geo ... 25
Hand, Mrs A B.. 2 50
Hand, Constant W 2 50
Hand, James..... 1 00
Hand, Mrs Jas... 1 00
Hann, M M..... 1 00
Harrer, S A & fam 1 50
Harris, Wm J.... 1 00
Haur, Jno 15
Heirimann, H ... 25
Hendershot, Mr W 25
Herbert, Mrs C..10 00
Herbert, J S..... 2 00

NEW JERSEY—Cont'd.
Hersch, E E..... 1 00
Hetnerington, J.. 5 00
Heyer, Jno C.... 10
Higgins, Miss E M 10
Hilliard, Mrs H F 1 00
Hilliard, Miss L.. 1 00
Hoagland, N P & friends 2 00
Hoff, Lovisa 5 00
Holder, J C..... 2 00
Holland, Henry .. 1 00
Holt, A E..... 1 00
Hopper, A W.... 2 50
Hoppock, M..... 5 00
Hour, Geo E..... 5 00
Hoyt, C I..... 1 00
Huber, E 50
Huetsch, Mrs H.. 25
Hulshizer, H F... 5 00
Hulshizer, R W.. 5 00
Inslee, Harry 1 00
Ireland, Mrs 1 00
Jackson, J A..... 1 00
Janeway, Wm R..25 00
Jansen, Miss R R 1 00
Jerdon, Herman.. 10
Johnson, J V..... 1 00
Johuson, Miss S.. 1 00
Johnson, Dr T .. 2 00
Johnson, W L.... 5 00
June, Chas 2 00
Justice, Lolo 4 00
Keevil, Mrs C J.. 50
Keller, Mrs G A.. 1 00
Kemker, W 25
Kemmerer, P L.. 1 00
Kenyon, J C..... 5 00
Kilburn, Jabez ..10 00
Kipsey, Grover .. 60
Kirkpatrick, Mary 2 00
Kleinatland, Aug, through 7 50
Knipe, Rev S W..8 00
Krimic, Mr & Mrs P 2 00
Kronler, E S..... 2 00
Laidlaw, Mrs B P 5 00
Laidlaw, Miss M J 2 00
Lake, Mrs A E.. 5 00
Lampe, Max 1 00
Lane, E A..... 5 00
Lane, Harold B.. 2 00
Lane, Laura I.... 1 00
Lane, Lottie B.... 1 00
Lane, Robt G.... 2 00
Lang, H C..... 4 75
Lanning, Harry . 10
Lanning, Mrs S, Sr 25
Lantz, Carrie 1 00
Larson, R 1 00
Lawrence, M A.. 2 00
Leemann, Tom .. 1 00
Lehman, S 5 00
Lent, John 1 00
Lester, E E..... 1 00
Lines, I 10 00
Lingleton, Mary.. 11
Lippincott, Mrs M A 1 90
Lisk, H J..... 25
Lloyd, Miss A L. 1 00
Lolisen, M C.... 1 00
Loveland, Miss E 1 00
Lyman, Stuart .. 5 00
Lyon, C E..... 1 00
Lyon, James A... 1 00
McCane, J R..... 1 00
McCain, Arthur J 2 00
McCain, Mrs Jas. 2 00
McCain, Jeremiah 1 00
McCain, Lewis M 2 00
McDonalds, G A & wife 2 00
McIntyre, R 50
McKaig, C P..... 1 00
McKay, R E..... 1 00
McKinney, W H.. 20
MacNichols, Mrs E J 2 00
Mahns, Mrs Peter. 50
Marbake, Lila W. 1 00
Marlatt, Mrs W. 1 00
Martin, E 1 00
Martin, Mrs G A. 1 00
Martin, George .. 1 00
Martin, Mrs Margt 25
Mathis, D E.....10 00
Mathis, Mrs J A. 1 00
Mathis, J Frank..10 00
Mazenauer, Mrs T 25
Meeker, Carrie ... 1 00
Meeker, Miss E.. 2 00
Mellor, Mrs M A 2 00
Merrill, Mrs A.... 10
Meyle, M 1 00
Miller, Bertha A.. 5 00
Miller, Mr & Mrs Clarence 2 00
Miller, Morris ... 20
Miller, R S.... .10 00
Miller, Mr Wm.... 50
Moody, D..... 25
Moore, H R..... 2 00
Morgan, Edward. 2 00
Munday, L 10
Narraway, Mrs H B 10 00
Neis, Anna 2 00
Nelson, Mrs J A, New Market ... 25
Newton, H 50
Newton, Mrs J... 5 00
Noe, Jno 50
Norsk, Mrs H.... 1 00
North, Mrs 2 00
Olsen, M H..... 2 00
Orr, M A 1 00
Off, M E..... 3 00
Otto, Mrs 25
Parker, Mrs L... 1 00
Pennell, Jno 75
Pepper, Mrs A... 1 00
Peppler, Thos ... 5 00
Phillips, Mrs E H 2 00
Pike, Mrs M J.. 2 00
Pitts, Daniel 50
Pollard, Mrs L H 1 00
Powell, Frank ... 1 00
Powellson, J J.... 3 00
Powelson, M E... 1 00
Preston & Steele.10 00
Randolph, Geo F. 1 00
Ranlere, Mr 50
Raub, Mrs E V.. 5 00
Reading, Mrs J N 1 00

NEW JERSEY—Cont'd.
Reeves, Mrs A J. 20
Reeves, Isaac B.. 5 00
Reich, Mrs 50
Reid, Eliz C..... 35
Reid, Mrs J S.... 1 00
Reinke, Rev E J. 1 00
Runn, Mrs M M. 50
Richman, Mrs L B 1 00
Ricker, C 1 00
Rideout, Lillian H 2 00
Robbins, E C..... 5 00
Robiuson, Mrs W S..... 1 00
Rocap, Mrs C 1 00
Roe, Ella 1 00
Roe, Fred E 1 00
Rogers, J N 50
Roome, Mrs M R. 2 00
Root, X 06
Ryerson, Miss L. 40
Ryerson, Mrs L J 1 00
Salzenberg, C 1 00
Sarson, Geo 25
Saul, C W..... 1 00
Schulchei, L 1 00
Scott, Edith 1 00
Seaman, J W..... 5 00
Search, S B..... 1 00
Searle, E E..... 5 00
Shallcross, Mrs M 2 00
Sharp, Oscar & John 20
Sherer, Mrs A.... 10
Shinn, Saml 2 00
Shuit, Mrs J F... 2 00
Shumaker, O 1 00
Shuster, E D.... 75
Sickel, Ida 25
Siekel, Kate 25
Sickel, Peter 50
Sickel, Mrs Peter 25
Sigler, Mrs A E.. 25
Sindall, Mr & Mrs 1 00
Skillman, E H.... 1 00
Slater, Mrs A.... 25
Sliker, Mr Jos .. 45
Sloan, L P..... 1 00
Smead, Mr & Mrs E J 7 00
Smith, Mrs Edw.. 1 00
Smith, Mrs E H.. 25
Smith, Isaac 25
Smith, Nelson.... 10
Smith, Miss Rea.. 13
Snyder, Danl 5 00
Snyder, Mrs Jos.. 25
Spangenburg, Danl 50
Speer, Miss L B.. 2 00
Staples, Bessie .. 10
Steelman, B W... 1 00
Stevens, Mrs A.. 5 00
Stockwell, M 50
Stoddard, Mrs E A 1 00
Struble, Mr & Mrs Jos C..... 2 10
Stnckl, Mrs Jno..10 00
Sugnler, Mrs L... 2 00
Swain, Mary 2 00
Sykes, Jennie 2 25
Symonds, A S.... 1 00
Taylor, Mr 10
Taylor, Mrs 10
Taylor, Mrs A.... 1 00
Taylor, E 10
Taylor, Mrs F.... 1 00
Tellkampf, A 1 00
Thomas, Eleanor. 2 00
Thompson, Mrs S 2 00
Thorne, F P..... 1 00
Tobler, Mrs 25
Townsend, A 1 00
Updike, A 1 00
Valentine, S 100 00
Vallerchamp, Jno. 25
Vanderoef, Mrs H 2 00
Vannecta, Mrs Jno 10
Van Saun, Miss J 10
Vorberg, Mr 50
Waldron, Wm A.. 1 00
Ware, Mrs Frank & Mother 3 00
Warne, Jno 10
Wash, H 1 00
Watson, Bert 1 00
Webb, Mrs W T. 3 00
Wehrli, Mrs M... 50
Weleh, Harvey C. 2 00
Weller, Jacob ... 10
Weston, A O..... 2 50
Whitford, W J... 1 00
Wickle, Mrs 50
Wiggins, A M.... 25
Wiggins, Flor 50
Wigglns, Dr H C 1 00
Wigglns, Irene .. 50
Williams, Ruth . 2 00
Williamson, Ed L 50
Wilson, Mrs Wash 2 00
Winsor, Elsie C.. 1 00
Winters, Mrs Ben 25
Winters, John ... 50
Whiters, Murtle.. 10
Whiters, Phillps.. 10
Wiss, Mrs A..... 50
Woodruff, M H C.10 00
Woolever, A G... 50
Woolwer, Eddie.. 30
Woolverton, L L. 2 00
Yates, L E..... 2 00
Yauger, M K.... 25
Yawger, J U..... 25
Yeimer, Mrs Geo. 10
Ynnger, A 25
Zulauf, Robt 25
Zuydhox, E F.... 5 00
Clarence, Montclair 25
A H S & S M S, Lakewood 25
A R B C, Jr, Wardville 5 00
B D L & L W, Eatontown 2 00
B S, New Market 15
C E S, Woodbury 2 00
C S R, New Brunswick 2 00
Dr P H, Allendale 1 00
E A, Bayonne... 1 00
E F P, Metuchen 1 00
E L N, Gallia.... 25
H C G, New Market 1 00

NEW JERSEY—Cont'd.
E M B, Othello.. 1 00
I W R & E B R, Pemberton 2 00
J H, Cranbury... 1 25
K W B, Salem... 1 00
Mr & Mrs A H B, New Market ... 50
Mrs C, Folsom.... 2 00
M E K, W Hoboken 5 00
Mrs E L G, Barnegat 75
M F H, Allendale 2 00
Mrs G, Newark.. 2 00
Mrs H C, Newark10 00
M J H, Waretown 5 00
Mrs J R D, New Market 25
Mrs M L W, Newark 2 00
M S, Rahway.... 2 00
M W T, Salem.. 1 00
Miss R C, Folsom 1 00
Mrs S R, W Hoboken 1 00
Sten C G C, Newark 25
S E C, Ridgewood 15 00
S H M..... 2 00
R A B, Lumberton 5 00
R B, W Hoboken 5 00
——, Boonton 2 00
——, Camden 2 00
——, E Berne..... 1 00
——, Freehold 10 00
——, Hudson 10
——, Lambertville. 1 00
——, New Market. 1 00
——, Newark 1 00
——, Newark 1 00
——, Paterson ... 1 00
——, Redbank 1 00
——, Tennent 25
——, Warren Paper Mills 1 10
Anon, Fairtown.. 2 85
Cash, Atlantic Highlands 1 00
Cash, Fairtown.. 10
Cash, Holmdel... 3 00
Cash, Lambertville 2 00
Cash, New Market 50
Cash, New Market 1 00
Cash, New Market 20
Cash, New Market 50
Cash, New Market 50
Cash, New Market 25
Cash, New Market 25
Cash, New Market 25
Cash, New Market 25
Cash, New Market 25
Cash, New Market 10
Cash, New Market 25
Cash, New Market 1 00
Cash, New Market 25
Cash, New Market 1 00
Cash, New Market 50
Cash, New Market 50
Cash, New Market 25
Cash, New Market 25
Cash, Westville .. 2 50
For Jesus Sake, Middlebnsh 1 00
Friend, Barnegat. 1 00
A Friend, Bloomfield 1 00
Friend, Dunellen.. 20
Friend, Dunellen. 1 00
Friend, Dunellen.. 50
Friend, Dunellen.. 15
Friend, Edgewater 1 00
Friend, Florence. 50
Friend, Irvington 1 00
A Friend, Jersey City 1 00
A Friend, Maplewood 1 00
Friend, New Market 25
Friend, New Market 10
Friend, New Market 15
Friend, New Market 50
Friend, New Market 25
Friend, New Market 1 00
Friend, New Market 75
Friend, New Market 25
Friend, New Market 10
Friend, New Market 50
Friend, New Market 50
Friend, New Market 50
Friend, New Market 1 00
Friend, New Market 25
Friend, New Market 15
Friend, New Market 25
A Friend, Succasunna 15
A Friend, Tenafly 2 00
Friend, Trenton.. 20
A friend of the suffering ones, Pemberton 1 00
Friends, Palmyra. 95
I H N, New Market 1 00
I H N, New Market 2 00
I H N, New Market 25
I H N, New Market 50
I H N, New Market 10
I H N, Roseville. 3 00
A Reader, Peapack 2 50
Reader, W Orange 2 00

NEW JERSEY—Cont'd.
Sympathizer, Jersey City 5 00
A Pauper Poet, Salem 1 00
Mother & Children, Stockton.. 2 00
Grandma, Mama, Charlotte & Wilhemina, Rutherford 2 06
Small Sums, Eldora 6 00
Cheerful Giver, New Market.... 1 00
Three Little Children, Palmyra.. 35
Box 17, Wenonah 7 00
Box 500, Flanders 1 00
Cheerful Giver, High Bridge.... 1 25
Citizens, Delaware 7 00
Little Children, Hammonton ... 1 00
Mother & Daught, Princeton 5 00
A Believer, Hackensack 1 00
Helping Hand, Pt Elizabeth 20
Mem'r of Ewing Pres Ch, Trenton Junction 1 00
Germ Presby Ch, Bloomfield 50 00
Central Pres Ch, Summit 11 68
S S 1st Presby Ch, Cedarville 5 00
M E Ch, Blairstown 30 00
Ref Ch, Belleville 1 00
Pres Ch, of Farmingdale 27 00
S S Holland Ref Ch, Wortendyke 1 42
Coll of S S Mt Pleasant Baptist Ch, Newark 44 10
Pres Ch, Harmony21 25
Minute Cir K D & S Beth Eden Bapt Ch..... 4 00
Ref Ch, & C E, Bellville 5 00
Pres Ch, Stirling.13 50
Ewing Pres Ch, Trenton Junct..20 75
Pres Ch, New Gretna 1 23
Seventh M E Ch, Bloomingdale ..17 05
Prim Class of M P Ch, Paterson, 1 10
Ewing S S, Trenton 1 00
Trenton Junct S S 1 00
Spring Road U S Sch of Vineland.10 00
Bethany Pres S S, Newark 40 00
Beth Eden Bapt S Sch 16 39
M E S S, Orange.12 00
Union S Sch, Oakgrove 22 54
S S of Christian Ref Ch, Hackensack 9 00
Mission S S, Harrington Park ... 3 00
Park M E S S, Elizabeth 17 00
Presby S S, Lyons Farms 23 29
Hudson St Miss S S, Hackensack.13 65
Parsonage S Sch, Home Depart, Princeton Junct 1 50
Y P S C E, Oxford 2 77
Dillon, T H & Boys of No 7 Family of Home for Boys, Jamesburg 3 00
T A & M D B, Blackwood 25
C E Soc, Folsom 88
Y P S C E, Bapt Ch, Passaic 6 75
Liberty Corner C E S, Liberty Corner 8 00
Old Tennent Y P S C E.....10 00
Miss Soc 1st Ref Ch, Bayonne...50 00
Newport M E Congr 16 00
Ladies Read'g Cir, Cranbury 10 25
King's Daughters Whatsoever Circle, Burlington. 2 00
C E Soc of Osborne Mem Pres Ch, Cedarville... 2 00
King's Daughters, Middletown 10 00
Friendship S Club, New Market ... 5 00
Dew Bell Club, Wenonah 5 00
Y W C T U, Blairstown 5 00
Dew Bell Club, Wenonah 5 00
C E Soc, Warren Mills 1 75
W C T U, Moorestown 10 00
B Y P U of Pt Norris 5 35

NEW YORK CITY

Archer, Mrs A.... 1 00
Barsou, W G..... 50
Batten, L W..... 5 00
Beekman, W W.. 25
Blake, J V D.... 25
Blake, Miss M... 25

NEW YORK CITY—Con'd
Blake, Mrs T..... 3 25
Boyle, Mrs P A.. 2 00
Bulmer, E, Brooklyn 1 00
Castle, M 9 00
Chambers, Mrs A C 10 00
Coffin, S D..... 2 00
Crane, J H.....10 00
Crane, Mrs J H.10 00
Cross, Mrs Geo W 5 00
Davies, Mrs L .. 25
Davis, Mrs L K.. 2 00
Devfus, R 2 00
DeWhitridge, W A 50
Dietrick, Miss L. 1 00
Farrell, Mrs G... 1 00
Fechtig, St George 2 00
Fletcher Miss M A 1 00
Frederickson, Mrs 25
Freely, Geo 10
Gault Mr & Mrs J H 1 00
Gold, C B.....25 00
Green, Mrs J I.. 2 00
Harmon, A..... 50
Heiser, E M..... 1 00
Hiss, W H Jr... 3 00
Hoffman, Miss .. 1 00
Hoffman, Albert.. 1 05
Holyrood Ch 1 00
Hume, J H.....10 00
Hutchinson, Mr ..10 00
Jennings, E B... 1 00
Johnson, Mrs 25
Jones, M B..... Strauss, M J.... Brodsky, S M.. Tucker, G E.... 4 00
Kahn, Wm B.... 1 00
Kirk, Robt A.... 25
Knowles, Mary .. 1 00
Konigswald, Mrs F 25
Leclair, C 50
Marks, H 2 00
Maier, Dr Otto... 2 00
Marshall, Robt .. 1 00
Maxwell, I E.... 15
Mathews, Mrs S A 3 00
Meyer, Mrs 25
Meyer, C 25
Meyer, Mrs C.... 25
Meyer, Mrs C.... 15
Meyer, Wm 25
Miller, E C.....35 00
Miller, Mrs E C. 3 00
Mills, Mrs L J... 2 00
Miltenburg, A ... 25
Mix, F H..... 5 00
Moran, Mrs J..... 50
Mordberg, Mrs ... 10
Myland, Mrs 25
Nylund, F, A, C, E & B..... 25
Parker, Mrs E K 1 00
Paulsen, J F..... 1 00
Paulsen, M A..... 50
Peck, Miss V A.. 10
Richardson, Mrs.. 25
Sahlen, N S..... 50
Scanlon, B 2 00
Schultz, Mrs L H 5 00
Seaman, Mrs & Mrs Vanschierck 20
Sinshelmer, J 3 00
Smith, T Wm.... 1 00
Snelling, Mrs W W 25
Stam, L M..... 5 00
Stevens, E T.... 2 26
Strebel, Mrs S... 1 00
Stolre, Rev M.... 2 00
Sweezy, Mrs R L 2 00
Swenson, Mrs ... 25
Sylvester A L.... 2 00
Titus, E, Jr.....20 00
Townsend, R H L.25 00
Upton, Mrs T H.. 5 00
Van Dyke, Mrs M C 40
Wallach, H R & M W 5 00
Warren, B C..... 1 00
Waters, S 1 00
Weber, Mrs 10
Weil, Edmond ... 5 00
White, Ida 25
White, Mrs J ... 25
White Mrs L D.. 5 00
Whitehurst, Mrs J 25
Wilkens, Mrs L.. 2 00
Woiferz, Rev L... 2 00
Woods, Mrs & fam 31
Wilson, Sarah.... 05
Youngblade, E C.. 1 00
B W 2 00
C W, ... 3 00
M C I..... 2 00
Mrs J McT, Brooklyn 5 00
M H B,..... 1 00
N L B, Brooklyn 25
——, Brooklyn.... 1 00
——, N Y City.... 3 00
——, N Y City.... 2 00
——, N Y City.... 5 00
——, N Y City.... 1 00
——, Brooklyn.... 1 00
——, N Y City.... 25
——, N Y City.... 2 00
——, N Y City.... 2 00
Cash, N Y City... 1 00
A Friend..... 2 00
Friend 2 00
A Friend.....10 00
Friend Brooklyn.. 2 00
A Friend..... 5 00
A Friend..... 5 00
A Friend..... 1 00
Friend, Brooklyn. 1 00
Friend 1 00
A Reader..... 2 00
From a Smypathizer, Brooklyn 1 00
In sympathy, Brooklyn 1 00
Classical Sch for Girls 5 00
Three interested Sisters 10 00
One who Suffers.. 10
Some Hebrews of the Spanish & Portugese Syn..20 00

NEW YORK CITY—Cont'd
666, Brooklyn..... 1 00
Two little girls... 60
14th st Presby Ch. 5 25
4th ave Bapt Ch. T E C C, Brooklyn 1 14
Bethany Pres Ch..18 21
Trinity School....10 00
Grace Emm'l S S.56 88
Boys C C Wash Hghts Pres S S 2 00
Chinese S S, 14th St Pres Ch..... 8 00
14th st Pres Ch... 2 10
Barren Isld S Sch. 4 27
1st Union Pres S Sch 10 01
Rockaway av Cong S S..... 5 00
Aged People of Baptist Home.. 10 50
Kings Dau Cir of Earnest Workers of 1st Coll Ref Ch 12 00
Mrs H B H's Music Cl 6 00
Y P S C E, West Farms Pres Ch.. 3 00
Old John St Jr E L 2 70
Dorcas Socy 1st Germau Bapt Ch.20 00
Ladies Aid Soc, Welsh Ch,.....10 00

RHODE ISLAND

Anthony, Mrs H.. 25
Bradbury, M 1 00
Clarke, C F..... 1 00
Davis, Mrs W H.. 1 00
Dinsmore Mrs S. 5 00
Fleming, Mrs 3 00
Greene, J F.....25 00
Harding, Jane E. 2 00
Hatch, Mrs L A.. 2 00
Howard, Mrs.... 25
Hubbard, Nellie . 5 00
Lawson, Edith ... 25
Lyon, Mrs Geo C. 5 00
Munroe, Mrs 40
Orpin, Mrs 25
Peck, Jennie 50
Pond, Sara E.....20 00
Turner J M & wf 2 25
White, Miss S.... 3 34
P E L, Providence 2 00
Mrs S A J, Providence 1 00
——, Westerly ... 1 00
A Friend, Central Falls 2 00
Coll, E Providence 2 10
Jr C E Soc of 1st Bapt Ch, Providence 1 20

VERMONT

Banister, F W.... 25
Bartlett, E J..... 50
Bartlett, S 50
Bartlett, W 50
Barton, R L..... 25
Batchelder, A N.. 1 00
Batchelder, H A. 1 00
Bishop, A P..... 1 00
Bolster, Mrs B E 2 00
Brigham, Emnice.. 20
Brown, Mrs D G 10
Brown, W K..... 1 00
Burr, Mrs E..... 25
Burton, Mrs J W 5 00
Carney, Jno V... 1 00
Carpenter, J T... 25
Carrill, Mrs Lucie 50
Case, Mrs S D... 1 00
Chamberlain, B .. 2 00
Chamberlin, Mrs J 1 00
Chedel, Mrs B B & others 5 10
Clark, Mrs F T.. 1 00
Clark, Rev F T... 2 00
Cleghorn, S N.... 1 00
Comstock, C 1 00
Colby, E J..... 1 00
Cook, Frank 25
Cook, Mrs Geo... 25
Cook, Mrs J B... 25
Cooley, W H..... 25
Corlis, Miss C... 25
Corlis, Miss Elsie. 25
Covell, Mrs M J.. 1 80
Courser, Roena & Scott 50
Crosby, Mrs L P.. 5 00
Crawford, Geo P. 50
Crawford, Mrs A. 1 00
Cutting, Mrs F W 2 00
Dareing, E G.... 1 00
Davis, Mrs I..... 10
Davis, Mrs J E... 1 00
Dean, W D..... 10
Dean, Mrs G..... 10
Denison, G M.... 1 00
Dickson, C E..... 1 00
Duncan, Jean 1 00
Evans, L M..... 75
Everate, Mrs A.. 10
Fligg, Herbert .. 50
Flood, A 1 00
Flood, C 1 00
Fredrickson, Mrs. 50
Griswold, E T.... 50
Greene, Mrs G E 1 00
Gordon, Jennie A 2 00
Hatch, Alvin 5 00
Hicks, Mr & Mrs 50
Holt, Mrs W M.. 1 00
Horton, B E..... 1 00
Horton, Mr & Mrs A 1 00
Hudson, J 1 00
Hutchins, Mr S & family 1 25
Hydell, Dr 25
Jackson, W W.... 1 00
Judkins, Miss A.. 25
Kimball, Mrs M A 25

VERMONT—Cont'd.
Kenyon, Rev & Mrs F T..... 25
Kingsley, F B ... 1 00
Labounty, Mary.. 10
La Flam, G..... 1 00
Lane, Mrs A..... 75
Laughna, Jos'ne.. 25
Lombard, W W.. 1 00
Loomis, Mrs 25
McDonald, Jas .. 25
Maranvill Mrs.... 25
Marshall, B W... 25
Messier, Isaac ... 25
Newton, Mr T J. 3 00
Nolton, Henry D. 5 00
Morgan, M B.... 25
Parker, A W..... 1 00
Perry, Mrs H L... 1 00
Pike, Martin 10
Pitts, Mrs C E.. 25
Phillips, T D.... 25
Plumley, Mrs I.. 10
Putnam, Mrs L C 1 00
Rand, Mr & Mrs W R 2 00
Robinson, S H.... 50
Robinson, Mrs S H 50
Robinson, M H.. 25
Sargent, S J..... 1 00
Sherman, Jennie. 2 00
Sherman, Mrs L G 2 00
Sherman, Mrs L A 2 50
Smart, H 1 00
Smith, A E..... 1 00
Soper, Ralph C... 1 00
Spafford, E 10
Spaulding, S 1 00
Stebbins, Mrs H E, Mrs L A Barney, Mrs B S Miller. 3 00
Stone, C H..... 1 00
Stone, Ira 5 00
Suter, Henry T.. 25
Suter, D, Jr..... 7 00
Taylor, Mrs H B. 10
Taylor, Mrs W E. 1 00
Tetrault, Chas J.. 25
Underwood, M A. 2 00
Vail, Lavina 10
Watkins, Chas C. 5 00
Webb, Mr 25
Weeks, Mr & Mrs J E 5 00
Wels, Mr 10
Weston, Eva, Bertha & Grace.... 2 00
White, Mabel 25
Whitney, M L.... 5 25
Woodbury, Mrs W C 1 00
Worth, Mr & Mrs T 1 00
Wright, W M.... 1 00
Wyman, C W..... 1 00
Benton, Rutland.. 3 50
A B F, Copperfield 1 00
Mrs C C S, Norwich 1 00
A N, Barton..... 35
Mr & Mrs C H Q 2 00
H S, wife & son, Hillwest 2 50
Mrs H, Waterbury 2 00
Mrs H C H, S Burlington 5 00
H M W, Thetford Centre 2 25
L & B, Troy..... 1 00
Mrs J W A, E Dorset 2 00
——, Irasburgh... 7 00
——, Norwich 35
——, Rochester... 5 00
——, Randolph ... 1 00
——, Rutland..... 3 00
Friend, Addison.. 1 00
A Friend, Cold River 1 00
Friends, Montpelier 5 00
Two Friends, Irasburg 1 00
A Friend, W Rupert 5 00
In memory of Florence Rindull 2 00
Three of His Little Ones, Grafton 30
Sndr, Derby 25
Confidential, Brattleboro 5 00
Little Boy, St Johnsbury 10
Loose Coll'n Plainfield 6 33
For India, New Haven 1 00
Methodist Ch, Benson 7 25
Sabbath Sch, Buck Hollow 1 00
S Sch, Lewiston. 2 05
M E C, Elmore.. 7 00
Class No 3 of M E S Sch, Waitsfield 3 00
Helping Hand Soc, of M E Ch, W Addison 4 00
C E Soc, Readsboro 4 25
C E Soc, Perkinsville 1 82
Smushine Band, Brookville 5 00

VIRGINIA

Aker, Warnie ... 50
Anderson, C 20
Anderson, Clara... 15
Andrews, B T & Seth A..... 2 00
Andrews, S M.... 50
Apgar, Mrs Irene. 1 00
Armistead, Miss E 50
Armistead, Mrs M C 25
Armistead, Reba. 25
Atkens, Miss B... 50
Baker, J H..... 20
Banks, Mrs L..... 1 00
Baker, Mrs O S.. 1 00

VIRGINIA—Cont'd.
Bates', Mrs W G, Class 55
Bell, Dr W M... 10
Berry, Walter ... 50
Blackwell, J W... 2 00
Blanton, Ida H, Coll by 55
Bodley, Jas W....10 00
Booth, J M 10 00
Borum, Mrs J A.. 50
Bowers, J H..... 1 00
Bowman, Mrs E.. 20
Breeden, Effie, Coll by 3 25
Breeden, Hettie, Coll by..... 1 65
Brockman, J W.. 25
Brooks, Mrs S.... 1 00
Brown, J D..... 50
Brownley, Miss L F 50
Bruce, R A..... 25
Bryant, Mrs J W C 10
Bullard, C L..... 50
Burroughs, Marion 50
Burroughs, Mrs M 50
Burroughs, Mrs R 50
Butts, Mrs C A.. 50
Cahill, Mrs P C.. 10
Cahill, P C..... 25
Callius, G A..... 25
Callvon, Mrs W R 10
Cather Mrs R E. 25
Cecil, Miss Mary. 1 00
Chapman A & J.. 2 00
Chinn, E V..... 50
Chinn, K C..... 1 00
Chinn, Mrs E V.. 1 00
Chinn, Mrs T.... 50
Clarkson, J N.... 5 00
Clutsam, Mrs M C 50
Coley, H 25
Coley, Wade 25
Compher, Miss L. 1 25
Cootes, S L..... 27
Crump, Miss M & Mrs W A Ashby 2 00
Cutchin, J F..... 1 00
Cutchin, Miss A E 1 00
Cutchin, Mrs B M 50
Cutchin, Mrs O.. 50
Cutchin, Sarah C. 1 00
Cutchin, Mrs W L 25
Davenport, Rev M M 1 00
Davis, W H..... 2 00
Deffenbaugh, B A 5 00
De Shazo Rev J E 1 00
Dickey, Miss S... 10
Diggs, Henry 1 00
Diggs, Miss J A.. 25
Dikeman, Will ... 10
Dills, Mrs Wm.... 25
Douglas Pres Ch.14 50
Eamich, H W.... 1 00
Ebervine, C..... 1 00
Ellis, Mrs N F... 1 00
Enos, Laura L.... 1 00
Ewing I S..... 02
Ferguson, Jane... 20
Filter, L W, Coll by 1 75
Fix, Rev J J..... 25
Foster, Miss Janc. 1 00
Foster, S J..... 50
Francis, Frank .. 50
Frye, Mrs J N... 20
Gabbest, Wm 25
Garland, Bettie .. 50
Garland, S A..... 50
Getridge, Mrs F.. 25
Getridge, Mrs M C 25
Gillespie, Miss L.. 25
Gilmore, Mr & Mrs J 1 25
Gogin, Jno 25
Goodell, S B..... 50
Goodheart, W ... 50
Goodridge, John.. 1 00
Goodwin, Hugh N 50
Goodwin, Willie L 50
Goodwin, Wm H. 1 00
Green, Ed 25
Grooms, Mrs Mary 25
Groseclose, Miss M 50
Hall, T N..... 25
Hammack, Miss A 25
Hammack, Mrs A 35
Hann, Mrs R..... 10
Hardiman, A O.. 25
Hariman, P 25
Harmon's Mrs L N, Class 14
Harmon, M H.... 1 00
Harne, Miss Mary 50
Hartborger, M A.. 05
Hawver, G 1 00
Humphreys, J H.. 50
Hilleary, Mrs S.. 25
Hilleary, W H... 25
Himes, J R..... 1 00
Hinman, Mrs E E 10
Hobach, J L..... 25
Holden, West 2 00
Holland, Mrs W T 10
Housholder, A E & family 5 00
Hott, J W..... 60
Hudgins, Bertha F 25
Hudgins, Colee... 25
Hudgins, Eliz A S 25
Hudgins, Jos 50
Hudgins, Martha. 25
Hudgins, Mr & Mrs J T..... 1 00
Hudgins, W F.... 25
Hudson Mrs M... 50
Hudson, Mrs N... 25
Hull, H E..... 25
Hyslup's, L J, Cl. 66
Iron, Miss Mattie 50
James, Miss Lucy. 1 00
James, Miss V.... 1 00
Jarvis, Wm M.... 50
Jackson, Mrs W.. 50
Johnston, J A.... 25
Johnson, Mrs J T 25
Johnston, W E... 25
Jones, Agnes 10
Jones, Garrie 50
Jones, J T B..... 10
Jones, Mrs Bettie 10
Jones, Miss Edith. 25
Jones, Ruth C.... 25

VIRGINIA—Cont'd.
Jordan, Mrs C W. 25
Jordan, Miss F... 40
Jordan, Miss S .. 50
Journell W H.... 05
Kapp, Miss F.... 25
Karns, Mrs A V.. 1 00
Kendall, A C..... 1 00
Kernan, Dr C K.. 25
Kethley, Mrs L... 50
Kiester, Mrs J.... 10
Kimberlin, G W.. 10
King, Mrs 25
Kirwan, Mrs R... 25
Kohen, L M..... 25
Lafturck, Ellen.. 10
Langster, W 1 00
Larrick, John H.. 50
Larrick, Mrs K... 20
Lawrence, Mrs J H 50
Laws, W D..... 1 00
Lenhart, Mrs 25
Long, Miss S B.. 1 00
Lyons, Miss 1 00
McCay, James ... 75
McCorkle, Mrs E W 10
McLaughlin, C .. 05
Macon's, Z C, Cl Keller 2 55
Mapp's, Miss M L C, Class..... 77
Mapp's, Miss Z, Cl 30
Martin's, Mrs J W, Class 1 00
Martin, Mrs M S & Children 3 00
Mead, Miss U.... 1 00
Mear's, Mrs W F, Class 72
Miles, Ella 1 00
Miles, Robt 3 00
Miller, Jno 25
Moore, Mrs J.... 1 00
Moses, Miss R.... 50
Merrill, Mrs E A. 1 00
Myers, Mrs J W. 25
Omeara, Mrs 05
Orndorff, Miss C. 25
Orndorff, Miss E.. 3 20
Orndorff, Mrs J.. 50
Orrison, T C..... 50
Otey, Mrs K..... 1 00
Parham, C P..... 30
Pastorfield, Mrs J W 2 50
Pearson, Jno W. 1 00
Peters, Ira 05
Peters, J S..... 10
Poiner, Miss L... 15
Potterfield, L H.. 50
Preston, Master.. 05
Pugh, Mrs L..... 25
Pyper, J 1 00
Rae, J 1 00
Rae, M 10
Ramey, Boyd 25
Ramey, Leslie ... 25
Ramey, Mrs A... 25
Ramey, Mrs M I 50
Rawls, Susie 25
Ray, A B..... 50
Reese, Morg 05
Reese, Robt 10
Renneer, Kerr ... 25
Rich, Miss A E Coll by 3 75
Richmond, J B... 50
Rigdon, Mrs 50
Ripley, Robt 25
Ritchie, Mrs E V. 25
Ritchie, Miss M.. 25
Robertson, J M.. 1 00
Rosenberger, Chas 25
Rosenberger, Mrs A L..... 50
Rosenberger, M H 25
Rush, L E & nbrs 2 60
Scarbrow, Mrs .. 1 00
Scherer, Mrs L L 1 00
Schooler, W F.... 5 00
Scott, A W..... 1 00
Scott, Chas S.... 50
Scott, Herbert F. 1 75
Scott, Jos C 25
Scott, Mrs M A.. 25
Scott, Mrs B L.. 25
Sharpe, Mrs H B 4 00
Sheppe, W H..... 15
Sherrill, Dr Z V. 1 00
Short, Mrs R F.. 50
Shuemake, Geo .. 20
Shumaker, J 25
Simmons, Eliz J.. 50
Simmons, Ethel E 50
Simmons, Mary A 1 00
Sipple, S S..... 1 00
Skelton, Rev S D 50
Smith, Frank ... 10
Smith, L H..... 1 00
Smith, Mrs D E. 25
Smith, Mrs J F.. 10
Snead, E H..... 25
Spindle, Shelburne, Coll by 3 52
Starke, Mrs E H. 1 00
Steger, Mrs A E. 2 00
Steire, W I..... 1 50
Stephenson, L ... 10
Stockley's, Mrs F T, Class 73
Stotz, Mary R... 2 00
Stotz, Mr & Mrs H 1 00
Stump, James P.. 65
Sturgis', Miss J Class 1 05
Sutton, Edward.. 10
Sutton, Jerry 25
Swisher, Mrs G.. 25
Tally, Mrs Eliza.. 15
Thomas, Annie E 1 00
Thompson, E ... 1 00
Thompson, J 10
Thompson, J C... 10
Thompson, K H... 50
Thompson, Little Ruth 05
Thompson, Miss A 10
Thompson, Miss L 25
Thompson, Miss M 10
Thornton, Mrs J C 25
Tillar, W T..... 1 00

VIRGINIA—Cont'd.
Tomlinson, Miss A 75
Toupkins, J E, (M D)..... 5 00
Turner, H V..... 3 50
Warner, Little Jas 25
Webster, J E..... 25
White, H P..... 25
White, Miss A.... 10
Whitley, Rev & Mrs J T..... 2 00
Wilburn, Mrs H.. 25
Wilkerson, A 05
Wilkins, P L..... 25
Williams, J R.... 1 00
Williams, Miss S. 1 00
Williams, P J.... 25
Wilson, Kate M.. 1 00
Wolfe, J L..... 25
Wool, Mrs E..... 2 00
Worden, E M..... 2 00
Wright, Miss Ida. 50
Yost, G W..... 50
Young, J T..... 25
B M J, Hampton. 5 00
C H, Spring Bank 2 00
E F S, Jeffersonton10 00
H A S, Tazewell. 2 00
Mrs J H J Berkley 1 00
M D M, Yarreli.. 1 00
Mrs S, Golansville 1 25
S A W, Windsor.. 2 00
——, Bou Air 5 00
—— Dilwyn 50
——, Ivor 1 00
——, Pt Haywood. 60
——, Salem..... 2 00
Cash, Black Walnut 05
Cash, Clifton Forge 10
Cash, Clifton Forge 10
Cash, Clifton Forge 10
Cash, Clifton Forge 10
Cash, Clifton Forge 20
Cash, Clifton Forge 10
Cash, Lovettsville 25
Cash, Marion 10
Cash, Marion 25
Cash, Marion 25
Cash, Marion 25
Friend, Elwood... 75
Friend, Marion... 50
Friend, Marion... 15
Friend, Marion .. 50
Friend, Petersburg 1 00
Friend of the cause Marion 25
Friends, Bonsack.30 00
Friends, Timberville 2 00
A Sympathizer, Penola 35
Prayer Mtg men'rs, Locustville 4 00
A Virginia Lady. 1 00
Two little girls, Roanoke 5 00
One that is interested, Marion... 1 00
Employees of W U Tel Co, Richmond 5 31
Unknown Friend, Milford 1 00
A little girl, True Blue 70
A few Norfolk Co friends 2 00
Home Miss Soc of Park View M E Ch 15 00
Beulah Meth Ch, Pt Haywood.... 9 65
Oak Grove M E Ch So & S S, Keller 5 08
Beth Pres Ch, ..18 50
Bapt S Sch, Hampton 13 52
Garrison M E S S, Keller 2 72
S Sch, Urbanna.. 2 00
Citizens, the Faculty & Students of the Va Polytechnic Institute, Blacksburg 55 83
Ladies Bapt Miss Soc, Afton.....10 00
Cappahosic Epw Lea, Cappahosic 5 00

WEST VIRGINIA

Anderson, Wm .. 1 00
Arbogast, A L.... 25
Arbogast, M V... 50
Armentrant, A .. 25
Armentrant I D.. 1 00
Armentraut, Miss N 2 25
Arnett, J T C.... 50
Ayers, Jno 10
Ayers, K 10
Ayers, Thos 10
Bell, M M..... 50
Brenner, Mrs A M 1 00
Burke, Mrs T W. 3 00
Busey, Mrs Katie 2 00
Caraway, Mrs R. 2 00
Clendening, Mrs W C 10
Crim, Linnie..... 10
Cronch, M W..... 3 00
Daniels, Mrs E.. 1 00
Duke, Mrs M V.. 25
Ellis, Mrs..... 1 00
Fancher, Mrs R M 1 00
Flaharty, Mrs N C 5 00
Felty, E L..... 1 50
Fultz, Rev C W M 25
Gamer, G A..... 25
Gamer, Mrs Mag. 10
Garner, E S..... 10
Gary, J C..... 1 00
Gordon, J D..... 25
Groff, Mrs Elm... 1 00
Hall, M 10
Harbert, S 25
Hayslett, Mrs R.. 25
Herbert, J E..... 1 00
Herbert, Mrs 75
High, B F..... 2 00
Hudson, W J..... 2 00

WEST VIRGINIA—Cont'd.
Hume, L 10
Ice, Dorothy 2 00
Ice Susie 1 00
Kelly, Florence .. 1 00
Laise, Mrs W S.. 25
Legg, Miss Lollie. 50
Lensay, J P..... 10
McGammon, Mrs H L 1 00
McKeever, G S.... 10
McKown, Miss P. 1 00
McKown, Mrs S.. 25
Mahan, Annie, Bertha, Kate & Chas Edgar 1 10
McMillion, Jno .. 10
Manear, M 25
Melton, Mrs C & B E, M & J Meeker 5 00
Morgan, J B..... 25
Neel, Ella 5 00
O'Donnell, T 3 51
Peery, Mrs A M. 50
Raines, G 25
Sammons, Chas .. 50
Sammons, K 50
Sammons, Mrs M 50
Shaffer, E F..... 30
Skiles, F 50
Skiles, W 50
Sloan, E V..... 5 00
Stulting, C & G. 1 00
Sperow, P S 1 00
Sperow, S A..... 1 00
Stanley, Mr A.... 10
Steele, Mrs Ida... 25
Steele, T J 50
Stewart, E H 05
Stewart, Josie 01
Stewart, Tiva 10
Steward, W W... 10
Stover, Rev G W. 50
Strader, A 4 09
Stuckey, Dan'l ... 25
Stuckey, Wm 25
Taylor, M 10
Toothman, F S... 1 00
Tunstill, Mrs L S. 2 00
Thomas, E 25
Turner, J 25
Thomas, W H ... 25
Underdonk, Chas. 25
Wilson, F M, wife & daughter..... 2 40
Wright, C 20
Wright, D F..... 1 00
Wright, Mrs D F. 1 00
Wright, R 20
Wagner, B K ... 25
Wagner, Miss C... 25
Wagner, Mr C ... 1 00
Wagner, Mr C J.. 10
Wagner, Mr E ... 05
Wagner, Mrs E... 05
Wagner, Mrs H C 10
Wagner, H C 15
Wagner, J H 1 00
Wagner, Mrs L... 15
Wagner, R 05
Wagner, Z 05
Waller, Mr J T... 10
Walker, W S..... 50
Watkins, Almira.. 20
Watkins, Josie ... 10
Watkins, Kate ... 1 00
Watkins, Ida Mae. 02
Watkins, S C 01
Watkins, S E 05
Watkins, Z S 20
Weekly, Mr R.... 25
White, J B 25
Whitmore, Miss M 1 00
Wicklas, N O 1 00
Winpegler, Mrs S. 10
Woods, Rev F M.. 50
Woods, F M 50
Workman, Belle.. 05
Workman, Luna... 05
Young, Carrie L.. 10
Young, Dora B... 05
Young, James 10
Zuspan, Miss A... 20
Zuspan, Miss B... 25
Zuspan, Bertha... 05
Zuspan, Beulah... 05
Zuspan, C J 1 00
Zuspan, Ezra 25
Zuspan, Miss L.. 25
A B C, Keyser...10 00
——, Dillous Run. 4 25
Cash, Gerardstown 25
Friend, Greensburg 2 00
In Christ's Name, Woodyard 1 00
I H N, Chas City 1 00
I H N, Wheeling.50 00
School Children, Charleston 1 15
Matt 6:3, Plum... 3 00
Don Aten, Chestnut 35
U P Ch, Cross Creek 15 00
Collier's Assn for Relief of India Fund 9 60
R R Y M C A & Coll, Handley... 5 00
Nameless, ——.... 2 10
Friends, Romney.. 2 50
Friend, Summit Pt 50
I H N, St Marys..11 20
Readers, Ganley Bridge 1 00
School Children, Buchanan 1 30
Easter Offering P E Ch, St Marys. 7 80
Bethel B Y P U, Parkersburg 1 25
W Va Loyal Temperance Union, Elkins 1 75
Infant Cl M E Ch, Philippi 6 00
M E Ch S S, Philippi 5 00
Churches, Cairo...45 00
Epw Lea M E Ch, Philippi 7 00

NEVADA

S Sch, Paradise Valley 6 00

WYOMING

——, Marquette... 1 00

MISCELLANEOUS

Austin, Nathan... 10
Bartlett, L B G. 2 50
Bullan, Mrs M A. 1 00
Carr, H H, Utica 5 00
Carter, Mrs F.... 25
Grover, Mrs 05
Heustis, Mary ... 1 00
Martin, Lizzie ... 1 00
Milne, Maggie L, Eagle Bend 1 00
Osborn, M L..... 1 00
Pullar, C 25
Pullar, G 25
Pullar, O 25
Pullar, R 25
Pullar, W 25
Pullar, Mrs W... 1 00
Raymond, L E... 5 00
Smith, A 5 00
Sparks, Mrs R E. 50
Stanley, H..... 1 00
Taylor, M P, Phila 2 00
Intermediate P S, Vineyard Haven 5 25
Wainright, C 10
Wainright, Mrs C H 10
Wainright, Chas.. 20
Wainright, N 10
Wasson, Leroy S. 50
Wasson, Mrs M J 1 00
Wood, Mrs John, Lauark 2 00
Yarnall, E 1 00
Yarnall, M 1 00
Yarnall, W 1 00
Zuber, Mrs J..... 1 00
A B..... 25
A S B..... 1 00
C C L, ——..... 2 00
J E S..... 1 00
P P P, Montpelier 2 00
T D K, Eureka Junction 2 00
——, Chesaning... 3 00
Anou, ——..... 3 00
Anon, ——..... 2 00
Anon, ——..... 5 00
——, ——..... 35
Anon, ——..... 35
Anon, ——..... 1 00
Anon, ——..... 50
Anon, ——..... 2 00
Anon, ——..... 50
Anou, ——..... 20
Anon, ——..... 7 00
Anon, ——..... 2 00
Anon, ——..... 5 00
Anon, ——..... 50
Anon, ——.....16 00
Friends, Keyport. 4 25
A Friend, Manchester 2 00
Friend, Martha's Vineyard 2 00
A Friend, ——.... 1 25
Friend, ——..... 60
A Friend, ——.... 1 00
From a Friend,—— 1 00
A Friend, ...3 13
Friend, ——..... 1 00
Friend, ——..... 1 00
Friend of Missions, ——..... 50
Friend, Allegheny. 5 00
Friend S J E, Altamont 5 00
Friend, Hopkinton 1 00
From a friend, Johnsburg 1 00
A Friend, Lafayette 1 00
A Friend, Rochester 10
I H N, ——..... 2 00
I H N, ——..... 05
In memory of Carl & Esther, ——.. 2 00
I H N, ——..... 1 00
I H N, ——..... 3 00
In Memoriam, —— 1 00
Reader, ——..... 1 00
Reader, ——..... 2 00
Subscriber, ——... 1 00
Sndr, Elmira 1 00
Subr, Waupaca... 1 00
New Subr, ——.... 1 00
Sympathizers, —— 2 50
Two Sisters, ——. 1 00
For His Sake, —— 25
A Widow, ——.... 1 00
A Shut-in, ——.... 25
Two Bits, ——.... 25
A Christian, ——.. 40
A friend to the needy, ——..... 1 00
Widow & 2 dans, Pottsville 1 00
A Baltimore Lady. 5 00
A Follower, Lottsville 1 00
One who would serve Christ, Chicopee 1 00
Friend of Needy, —— 1 00
I H N, Grinnell. 25
Three Men, Ware 8 00
H Y Zero, ——.. 1 00
A sister in Christ, —— 2 00
To the Master,—— 1 00
John 3:16, ——.... 1 00
Subr, ——..... 1 00
Calman Pres Ch, Calman 4 50
Two Classes in Hill St M P S Sch, Newark 1 10
S Sch, Pioneer.... 50
Santiago S Sch, Mitchellville ... 1 50
Pres Ladies Ind Soc, Calman.... 5 00

Trouble in Ashanti

SERIOUS anxiety is caused by the peril of a number of English people and Swiss missionaries in Ashanti, where twenty-seven years ago there was a similar cause for alarm. Sir Frederick M. Hodgson, the Governor of the Gold Coast Colony, reported in April last that a hostile force of ten thousand men had surrounded the fort at Kumassi, the capital of Ashanti, in which eighteen Europeans, six of whom were missionaries, had taken refuge. Help was needed urgently, as the garrison of the fort consisted of only seven hundred native soldiers, under the command of Major Morris. Since that time a relief force has been trying to penetrate to Kumassi, but has encountered great difficulties. The native forces have been supplied by the French traders with modern guns and ammunition and are disputing the progress of the relief party. The natural obstacles, combined with the deadly climate, are enormous, and they have been increased by the crafty natives who have felled trees and used other means to prevent the advance. The bush is exceedingly dense and at this time of the year the ground is soggy with the heavy rains. It is known that more than one messenger sent by the governor has fallen into the hands of the enemy. A letter received from him on June 4, refers to former letters which did not come to hand. In the latest letter, he says that at that time the garrison of the fort had been put on short rations and that ammunition and supplies were growing scarce. What has occurred since that time is unknown, but the gravest fears are entertained. It is supposed that the hostile force consists of adherents of the former king, Prempeh, whose barbarities were of the most savage nature. He was subdued and made prisoner in 1873, much to the delight of his subjects, but his soldiery have always been restless and there has been much trouble in preventing them killing and robbing the people. It is conjectured that they have now risen against British authority, and having obtained arms from the French are bent on massacre. Of the six missionaries in the fort, three are women. One of them is Mrs. Ramseyer of the Basle Mission. She was one of the prisoners released by Lord Wolseley in 1873, after she had been brutally treated by King Prempeh. Many prayers are being offered that the relief force may reach Kumassi in time to save the lives of the little band. But God does not always answer such prayers. He sometimes allows his servant to die in his cause. But even then they are sustained by the assurance that he gives them:

EX-KING PREMPEH'S CROWN

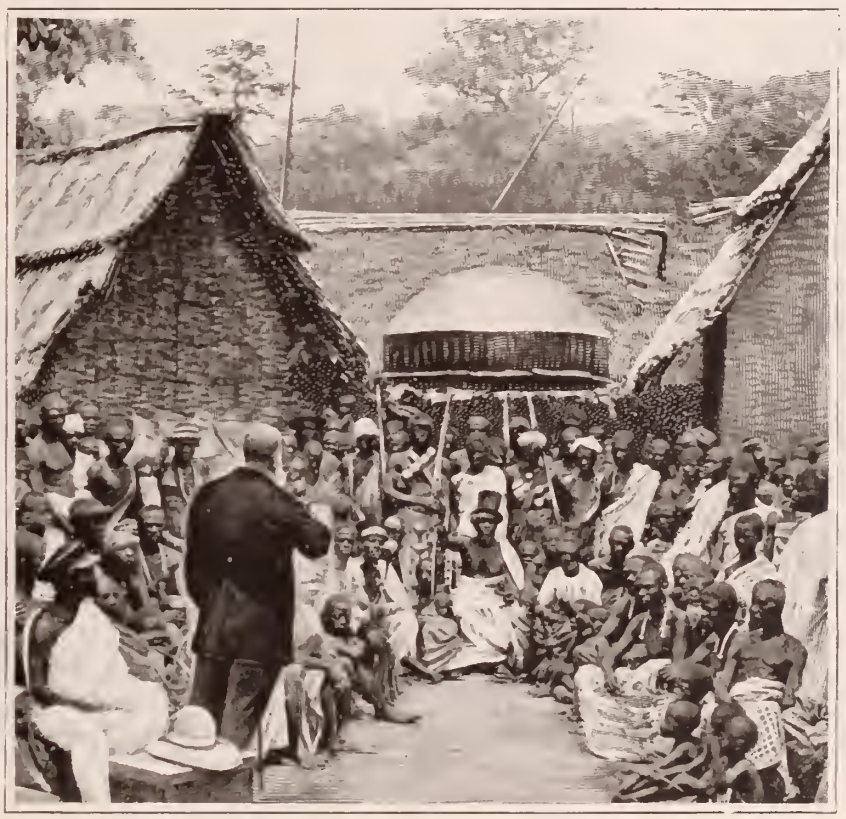
What shall separate us from the love of Christ? Shall tribulation, or distress, or persecution, or famine, or nakedness, or peril, or sword? Nay, in all these things we are more than conquerors (Rom. 8:35).

A Light and Dark Fence

Permission has been asked of the Department of Buildings in New York, to erect a fence eighty feet high, between two houses in the upper part of the city. One of the houses, a seven story apartment house, was built more than a year ago. The owner did not cover all his land, but left a space at the rear, of five feet, to give light and air to his tenants. The owner of the adjoining land on the next street, has now built on his land, the rear of his house looking on the rear of the one before mentioned. He appears to have thought that the five foot space left by his neighbor would be sufficient to give light and air to both houses, so he built on the whole of his land. The other owner thought that it was an injustice that he should have curtailed the size of his house and his neighbor should not have done likewise, but should have availed himself of the space provided for the advantage of the other house. Besides this, the new house had twenty-three windows in its rear, which of course are only five feet away from the windows of the other house. As protests were of no avail, the owner of the house first erected, proposes to remedy the injustice by the erection of a high iron fence on the extreme line of his land, which is not more than two inches from his neighbor's wall. He will have it painted white on his side and black on the other, so that on his side it will reflect the light and make his tenants' rooms bright, while it will be a dark and gloomy shade over his neighbor's windows. There will be some satisfaction in thus punishing his neighbor, but it can do him no good, and if he were imbued with the spirit of Christianity he would not erect the fence, for we are explicitly forbidden to retaliate on a wrongdoer or do anything spitefully.

Why do ye not rather take wrong? Why do ye not rather suffer yourselves to be defrauded (I. Cor. 6:7)?



EX-KING PREMPEH AND HIS COURT GRANTING AUDIENCE TO A FOREIGN ENVOY

A Despairing Convict

The story of a convict who had lost heart and all ambition is told in the Youth's Companion. It was in the Reformatory at Elmira, N. Y., that the man was confined. From the time of his admission he was surly and morose. The rules of the institution were explained to him, and he was informed that all the inmates were clothed in red at their entrance, but that after a certain period of good behavior they had a suit of blue, which was a sign of promotion. After a still further period, if their record was clear, they were allowed to wear citizen's clothes. The convict listened, but made no response. He gave his name, but said it was not his right name. He would not tell that, nor would he disclose any particulars of his past life. Kindness had no effect upon him, and reproof seemed only to make him more stubborn. He was at last set down as incorrigible, and he remained one of the worst set, having apparently no desire to rise or to win the good opinion of the officers. They thought he did not care. But the man was taken ill, and it was soon evident that he would die. The chaplain went to see him and tried to induce him to seek pardon of God. Then his spirit broke down and he showed how much his disgrace had weighed upon him. As they listened to his dying words they heard him mutter: "I belong to the red; I wear the red." What a pity that even then he could not be induced to seek the pardon offered to such as he:

Though your sins be as scarlet they shall be as white as snow (Isa. 1:18).

An Ancient Bell

A Connecticut journal calls attention to the existence of a remarkable old bell, which is in St. Stephen's Church at East Haddam, only a short distance from the Nathan Hale schoolhouse. It bears the inscription in Spanish, "Corrales made me in the year 815 A. D. The Prior being the Most Reverend Father Miguel Villa Murva. The Procurator being the Most Reverend Father Joseph E'Stivan." The archives of the East Haddam Church show that the bell was received early in the century as a gift from Willys Pratt, a ship-chandler of New York, whose wife was the daughter of Captain Oliver Attwood, of East Haddam. It appears that after the war in Spain, when Napoleon I. had sacked the churches of the country, a shipload of choice junk was sent to New York to be sold for anything it would fetch. Among it was the bell, then nearly a thousand years old. Its tone was still good, so Mr. Pratt, remembering that the church where his wife's family worshiped had no bell, bought it and gave it to the church, which has treasured it ever since. It is interesting to think of the events that have been celebrated with its sonorous tones. It was an old bell when the Spanish Armada set sail in Queen Elizabeth's time, and was old when Columbus departed on the voyage which ended with the discovery of America. If bells had spirits, as poetic writers have imagined, what a variety of events this bell could remember! What a contrast between the rejoicing over the sailing of the Spanish Armada and the peaceful calling together of a New England congregation! Yet the bell would give forth the same sweet sound in both cases. It is merely an instrument ready for the use of any who operate upon it. What a pity it is that preachers so often act in the same way, obeying the popular impulses, instead of their consciences, and preaching the thing that is pleasant to their hearers rather than the truth! The influence of such men is meaningless and devoid of benefit.

SIR FREDERICK M. HODGSON
Governor of the Gold Coast

Even things without life giving sound, except they give a distinction in the sounds, how shall it be known what is piped or harped (I. Cor. 14:7).

BRIEF NOTES

The World's Biennial Convention of the Women's Christian Temperance Union is now in session in Edinburgh, Scotland. Delegates from every part of the world in which the Union has organized were expected to be present. American delegates have prominent places on the programme.

Fully eighty missionaries from many lands attended the meetings of the International Missionary Union at Clifton Springs, N. Y. Among the eminent men who addressed the first sessions of the Union were Dr. David Downie, of India; Rev. Peter Whylock, from Africa, and Rev. H. R. Worrall, from Arabia.

Rev. N. B. Randall informs us that his evangelistic meetings during the winter have been more successful than any in his previous experience. He is now resting for the summer at his home, 10 Girard Street, East Orange, N. J. Pastors needing a supply or assistance in revival work may address him there.

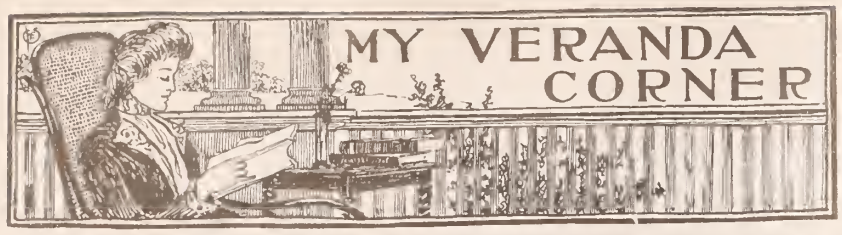
Dr. Geo. H. Dowkontt, who was stricken with African fever while laboring at the Philafrican station of Lincoln, has been staying with Dr. Walter Currie, at Cisamba. Dr. Currie is a physician who graduated in New York and is therefore capable of giving his old friend medical treatment. As Cisamba is nearer to the coast than Lincoln, Dr. Dowkontt will probably return home without going back to Lincoln.

Chaplain Charles C. Pierce, D.D., of the U. S. Army, writes THE CHRISTIAN HERALD while on the U. S. Army transport Logan, in the harbor of Honolulu, announcing his arrival at that port with his family en route to Manila, and thanking THE HERALD "for valuable aid tendered in the presentation of his work to the large army of THE HERALD'S subscribers and readers." The Chaplain's future address will be Manila, P. I.

The Muncie Bible Conference will be held at the Sanitarium, near Babylon, Long Island, N. Y., July 2-6. Many of the Niagara and Northfield teachers are expected to take part. Among the subjects on the programme are: The Inspiration of the Bible, The Atonement and Priesthood of Christ, His Coming Kingdom and Missionary Endeavor. Intending visitors should apply for rooms, rates, etc., to the Secretary, 119 Macon Street, Brooklyn, N. Y.

Mr. Paul Dwight Moody has been elected to the Board of Trustees of Northfield Seminary in the place of his late father. It was stated at the recent meeting of the Board that eighty thousand dollars has been subscribed toward the endowment fund. The current expenses of the year have been practically met, though the outstanding debts amount to about ten thousand dollars. The students, trustees and friends repaired to Round Top and held a service around Mr. Moody's grave.

One of the most remarkable revivals of this year is that which has just been concluded at Springfield, Mo. The meetings have been continued for five months with the interest increasing the whole time. Major Cole, who has had charge of the movement, has received cordial assistance and co-operation from the ministers of all denominations. In all 378 meetings have been held and no less than 2,750 persons have made profession of conversion. Major Cole expects to labor during the summer in Stone and Taney Counties and will probably begin revival work in Kansas City in the fall.



BY MARGARET E. SANGSTER

CONSULT THE MINISTER

IN times of grief, many of us are very thoughtless. This is never more manifest than in the usual custom of appointing the day and hour for a funeral service, without asking the minister what his engagements are, and whether the arrangement will be practicable for him. A minister is a man of many engagements, and it is not always easy for him to accept the hour which his parishioners appoint for a funeral, though, once they have announced it, he is left without a choice in the matter. If the family, who are plunged into mourning, stop to remember that though they are stunned with the blow they have suffered, yet the world's work must go right on as if nothing had happened, they will see that it is a wise and courteous precaution to consult the minister's convenience in this particular thing. Undoubtedly the presence of the pastor at the grave is a comfort, but in cities, where cemeteries are remote, and a half day's journey is involved in going to and returning from the grave, this service should not be exacted. The solemn words of committal to the earth's keeping, "Dust to dust, ashes to ashes," may be said over the casket while it remains in the home.

Most ministers object to funerals on the Sabbath, as that day is already filled with the sanctuary and Sunday School services. On the other hand, many families prefer to wait for the Sabbath, because so many friends are at liberty to attend a funeral on that afternoon or evening. On this mooted point, let me urge you, dear friends, to consult your minister.

Our Duty to Prisoners

No one can have read the touching words of a State Prison Chaplain in THE CHRISTIAN HERALD of May 30th, without asking herself what duty she has to these unfortunate men. Convicted of crime they are, but many of them are by no means hardened criminals, and if they can be led to Christ while in prison, there is no reason why they should not take their places once more among self-respecting men. The trouble is that few of us ever really give them a single loving thought, or send a single real prayer up to God for them, while they are shut up in those grimly barred cells, and when they are released we do not trust them nor give them employment, and finding every door to honest labor locked against them, the released men are often almost forced back to a life of sin again. Especially is the case heartrending when the prisoners are boys.

Maude Ballington Booth, bless her noble womanly heart, is doing what she can to rescue the released convicts from further sin and shame. Others may do what she does. Many of us can send interesting literature, good books and good papers to the men in the cells. Let us not despair of any for whom Christ died. Let us not forget that this bright world has an under side of anguish and pain and humiliation, a woful side even in the deep shadow. When we pray, let us pray for the poor prisoner.

Mothers, Be Fair

I was spending a day with my cousin Jenny, a young cousin with three children. The baby, Ruth, was five years old, at once the despot and the darling of the household. "My dear," I said to Jenny, after watching Ruth's behavior one afternoon, "do you know that Lewis has had to leave his seat three times in an hour, move his books and papers, and go somewhere else. My little Lady Ruth wants his place for her dolly, or her tea party, or on account of her own restlessness, and she has no hesitation whatever in ordering him around at her pleasure. She treats Amy in the same way. It is absurd to let her domineer so, and bad for her disposition."

"The older should yield to the younger," said Jenny.

"Yes, but not to an unreasonable extent. It is wrong to make the younger a tyrant. Even-handed justice should prevail in a family."

Mothers, pray, be fair to all the brood.

THE RUSSIAN CZAR'S CHILDREN READY FOR THEIR DONKEY RIDE

The Little Arch-Duchesses

Recently, while the people were kneeling at communion in a Russian church, a workingman saw that his nearest neighbor, whose sleeve almost touched his blouse, was the Czar; and on the other side of Nicholas, was Alix, the Czarina. They had quietly walked into the church during the service, and remained to communion with the common people. They came and went, unattended, just like one of themselves. The story traveled far and near, going the rounds of all the European papers. For ages, Russia's rulers have gone among the people surrounded by guards and protected by every possible precaution. The present Czar seems to be changing all that, going constantly among his people unattended. His home-life is marked by the simplicity which characterized the manner in which he joined his people in worship. He loves to spend his scant leisure in quiet times at home with his wife and his little daughters around him. The Czarina is a model wife and mother: she is her husband's constant companion and his ever-welcome co-worker. Our illustration shows how the little arch-duchesses enjoy themselves at Tsarskoe-Selo, the Czar's summer palace. They have a very nice donkey, indeed; and their groom is very devoted to his little charges and very careful that no harm befall them on their rides. Olga, the older of the two, is much more accustomed to adventures donkey-back than her little sister, who is yet a bit timid. Tsarskoe-Selo is in the midst of the beautiful Duderhof hills. The town is surrounded by pretty villages. Many people from St. Petersburg spend summers here. The imperial parks and gardens cover 1,680 acres.

The Great Wall of China

China, so long stubbornly closed to the outside world, is rapidly changing, and a new China is bound to come in the course of the new century. Two hundred years before Christ, Chinese engineers projected, and Chinese laborers built, a stupendous wall to keep out Tartar invaders, piling it up brick by brick in massive masonry, to a height of eighteen feet, with a tower twenty-five feet high at short intervals. The foundation was of solid granite, and J. E. Emerson, writing in the Scientific American, says that to calculate time of building or cost of this wall is beyond human skill. So far as magnitude of the work is concerned it surpasses everything in ancient or modern times of which there is any trace. The Pyramids of Egypt are nothing compared to it. In building this immense fence to keep out the Tartars the builders never attempted to avoid mountains or chasms to save labor or expense. For 1,300 miles the wall goes over plains and mountains, and every foot of the foundation is of solid granite. In some places the wall is built smooth up against the bank, or crosses a precipice where there is a sheer descent of 1,000 feet. Small streams are arched over, but on the larger streams the walls run to the water's edge, and a tower is built on either side. On the top of the wall there are breast-works or defences facing in and out, so that the defender's forces can pass from one tower to another without being exposed to an enemy on either side.

THE CHILDREN COMING ON

O! the children, troops of children, ros freckled, tall and short;
Children of the farm and village, of t alley, street and court;
Children growing up like flowers, childr growing up like weeds;
Children who must one day carry all the gre world's pressing needs.

As I hear their merry footsteps, patter, clatt past the door;
As I see them skipping, tripping, list them co
ning lessons o'er;
As I think how soon their childhood with i
joyance will be gone,
All my heart is full of blessings for the ch
dren coming on.

May they serve the dear Redeemer, give hi of their first and best!
Hear His voice full early saying, "Come, and will give you rest."
May they face the adversary fearless in t might of love;
May they follow the great Captain, hold H
name all names above.

Father, in Thy ceaseless wisdom, in the da light, in the dark,
Keep these hosts of children safely, each a
in Thy sheltering ark;
Father, as the swift years hasten, and we, ol
er, must be gone,
Grant protection, grant Thy guidance to th children coming on.

About Foolish Marriages

A marriage which is contracted be tween two sentimental and romantic youn people, on the spur of sudden impulse, and whe they have no assured mean of income, is always a ver foolish one. Edgar an Edith go with a number o excursionists on a picnic
She is beautiful and dear he is very much in love and, so far as principle and training are concerned is a respectable youn man. But Edith is a pen niless girl, and Edgar doe not yet earn enough to sup port himself without hel from his father. It occur to these two that it woul
be a very pleasant thing t marry, and, if they live i a State where a license i not a preliminary, off the go to a convenient minis ter, and the knot is present ly tied which is to hol them fast bound for life. I can think of a half dozer just such silly marriages every one of which ende in a very distressing stat of affairs, not the least par of which was the depend ent position of the newly married pair.

A girl or a man who is worth loving is worth wait ing for. There is no need of waiting for wealth, but marriage is not a mere holiday jest; it is an earn est and serious business, and is the founding of a home. The husband should have steady work and steady wages. The wife should be prepared in womanly fashion to make the most of the joint income. Children may come. That is the most blessed home to which they bring their sweetness, their cheer, their affection. But if they come, they will have to be raised and educated, and though the home be poor, it must not be penniless. Before taking an inevitable step, both maiden and swain should consider ways and means.

Aunt Prudence Payson's Catch-all

—MILTON. A family composed of such elements as yours is naturally inharmonious. You all appear to have strong wills and separate interests. Try, so far as you are personally concerned, to refrain from interference, and do not offer advice. Let the ladies settle their own affairs.

—CORA DRAPER. You are not responsible for the reformation of a bad man. Pray for him. You may refrain from offering him temptation. If you disapprove of his cigarette smoking and drinking you may say so, but as he is thirty-one and you are eighteen, I do not see the fitness of your spending your time with him. Leave him to your father, my dear.

Mrs. Gladstone's Death

ON the evening of June 15th, the bells of Hawarden Church rang muffled peals for Catherine Glynn Gladstone, who had just passed away. Two years ago, in the month of May, they tolled for her husband, the Hon. William Ewart Gladstone, England's "Grand Old Man"; and friends who knew how perfectly they had been united in life, felt that Hawarden's bells, in this merry month of roses, albeit they rang so mournfully, signalled a happy reunion of two, who for fifty-nine years had been beautiful in their lives. "Whatever of success I have attained in my career has been chiefly due to the devoted comforter, counselor, and companion by my side," was the tribute which her husband paid to Mrs. Gladstone in an address to his neighbors in 1889.

THE LATE MRS. GLADSTONE

Mrs. Gladstone was born Jan. 6, 1812, being the first daughter to Sir Stephen Glynn of Hawarden. Her marriage occurred in 1839. She was the founder and supporter of many charities, and was greatly beloved. She has had six children; her eldest son died in 1891, and her second son is Rector of Hawarden. "I desire to be buried where my wife may lie," was a special clause in Mr. Gladstone's will and in accordance with his wishes, arrangements were made at the time of his own interment at Westminster that his wife should be laid by his side.

A Pledge Remembered

A FEW months ago I was holding gospel meetings at S——, in the State of New York. I was introduced to Mr. S——, a business man of about sixty years of age. He was very sceptical concerning Christian character and bitter towards ministers. No arguments induced him to attend the meetings and no appeals seemed to soften his heart. Prayer was our only resource.

On the Sunday after the meetings closed he asked his wife, as she was getting ready for church: "How do I know that Christ is immortal?"

After the family had gone, he heard a voice saying: "You wretch! You deny your God! Do you remember thirty-six years ago to-day you promised God that, if he spared your life, you would serve him?"

When he consulted his records he found that, thirty-six years ago on that day, as he was going into a fierce battle in the Civil War, he promised God that he would become a Christian if spared through the fight. The incident affected him profoundly, and led him to give himself to God. His scepticism and bitterness at once disappeared, and in a few days he made a public profession of faith in Christ. DR. N. B. RANDALL,

East Orange, N. J. Evangelist.

Make the Tenement Children Happy

Do you wish to feel the exquisite joy of delighting the heart of a child? Send some poor, little starveling waif to our Fresh-Air Home at Mont-Lawn. A contribution of three dollars to the work covers the cost of a ten-days' outing and brings a world of exhilaration and pleasure into the heart and life of the waif who is the object of your bounty. We have thousands of such children clamoring for an outing in the green fields. Won't you help to pay for one? Send your gift to THE CHRISTIAN HERALD.

THE CHILDREN'S HOME

Contributions, Disbursements, etc., of "The Christian Herald Children's Home" at Nyack, for the Summer of 1899

DISBURSEMENTS

HOUSE FURNISHINGS AND FITTINGS
Ernest Bros., for House Furnishings, etc	$94.59
John N. Wesel, for Glazing, Painting, etc	143.53
E. W. Devoe and C. T. Reynolds Co., for Paint	82.97
Mayor, Lane & Co., for Bath Tubs	61.50
Geo. R. Wyman, for Plumbing, etc	369.53
John H. Post, for Carpenter Work	237.84
Fred Wesel, for Awnings	23.00
A. A. Vantine & Co., for Lanterns	5.16
Townsend Bros., for Crockery	4.02
John Wanamaker, for Carpet	45.60
Harrison & Dalley, Dry Goods	77.75
Miscellaneous Furnishings	32.95
		$1178.44
CHILDREN'S CLOTHING AND SUPPLIES
Thomas Glynn, for Shoes	39.50
I. Neisner, for Clothing	3 69
I. Eisenstein, for Canes and Whips	30.25
Thos. Floyd, for Fire Works	33.10
Thos. Whittaker, for Books	7.53
Laundry	219.07
Miscellaneous	36.97
		370.11
MEDICAL
Dr. Emily Lewi	55.00
Dr. H. N. Boyd	12.25
Drs. Polhemus and Kline	6.00
C. R. Christy, Druggist	3.65
J. D. Blauvelt, Druggist	10.70
		87.60
FOOD SUPPLIES
Adams & Company, Butchers	321.57
J. E. Morris & Co., Grocers	669.23
M. Robertson, Baker	588.88
Geo. F. Wood, Milk	402.35
Henry Koehler, Butcher	95.19
Randolph Bros., Groceries	74.31
Leydecker Bros. & Co., Groceries	22.93
I. S. Denton, Vegetables	20.20
Miscellaneous Cash Purchases	57.04
		2251.70
LIVERY AND STABLES
E. R. Van Houton, Hire of Horses, etc	23.00
Gaylor Van Houton, Stage Use, etc	52.00
A. F. & J. H. Christie, Repairing Wagon, etc	126 25
L. Mortensen, Harness	18.60
Nassau Stables, for Horses	340.00
Pye & Towt, for Feed	106.57
T. Gaynor & Co., for Feed	54.13
Thos. Ogden, for Blacksmithing	7.25
J. D. Blauvelt, for Blacksmithing	37.15
Miscellaneous	4.35
		769.30
FREIGHT AND TRANSPORTATION
North River Steamboat Co., for Children's Fares	347.55
North River Steamboat Co., for Freight	35.47
Matthews Express	8.00
Traveling Expenses of Caretakers and Others	261.89
Miscellaneous, Expressage	17.24
		670.15
SALARIES AND WAGES
Superintendent of Home	138.06
Caretakers	442.41
Watchman, Hostler, Helpers and Chores	604.34
Clerks at New York Office	96.00
		1280.81
MISCELLANEOUS
W. H. White & Co., Coal, Wood, Lime, etc	51.26
Nyack Ice Co., Ice	44 10
W. W. Hinton, Stationery	6.59
Blauvelt & Morrell, Insurance	22.50
Geo. Hughes & Co., Printing	5.50
F. J. N. Tallman, Piano Rent	45.00
Dutcher Bros., Newspaper	5.90
Telegram and Telephone Use	43.96
Printing Circulars	14.50
Legal Expenses, Incorporation Fees	12.10
Stationery and Postage	29.44
Moving Expenses from Mont-Lawn to Prospect Ground	75.00
Preparing Prospect Grounds	519.17
Cost of Composition, Paper and Printing in issue of CHRISTIAN HERALD, June 7, 1899	745.65
Auditor's Fees	27.00
		1617.67
		$8255.78
Contributions as per acknowledgments in Christian Herald		7598.74
Overdrawn during 1899		657.04
Overdrawn during 1898		861.93
Overdrawn as at Jan. 1st, 1900		$1518.97

PORTO RICO FLOOD FUND

CONTRIBUTIONS

As follows per acknowledgments in The Christian Herald:

Aug. 30, 1899		$204.00
Sept. 6,	"	682.20
Sept 13,	"	609.08
Sept 20,	"	744.22
Sept 27,	"	694.12
Oct. 4,	"	1,167.57
Oct. 11,	"	532.17
Oct. 18,	"	211.10
Oct. 25,	"	944.03
Nov. 29,	"	220.37
Jan. 10, 1900		719 04
Jan. 17,	"	822.96
Jan. 21,	"	968.87
Feb. 7,	"	858.64
Mar. 7,	"	8,717.52
Total		$18,095.89

DISBURSEMENTS

Cash paid to Government Committee (Mr. Warner Van Norden, President of National Bank of North America, New York City, Treasurer)	$16,883.63
Expenses—Auditor's Fee	10.00
Carried forward to assist in work of opening and conducting two native Sunday Schools in Porto Rico, under American missionary, supplying Gospels, hymns, etc	1,202.26
Total	$18,095.89

Public Accountant's Certification

This is to certify that I have carefully examined every item of expense in connection with THE CHRISTIAN HERALD Children's Home and the Porto Rico Flood Funds, and have diligently compared every stub, receipt, voucher and check, and find the same correct and in accord with the above statements in every particular.

Sworn to before me this 19th day of June, A. D., 1900.

W. S. GUERINEAU NOTARY PUBLIC NEW YORK

Wm. S. Guerineau
Notary Public

Louis Housby
Public Accountant,
718 Park Row Building, New York

Gladdening The Waifs

OUR Children's Home is now ready to receive its little guests. By the time this issue is in the hands of our readers, two hundred happy little waifs will be playing on the hillsides, in the fields, plucking daisies, listening to bird songs. They will be growing brown and strong. Last, but not least in measure of delights, two hundred hungry little folks, many of whom never had a square meal before in all their lives, will have eaten in plenty. Children who have been sleeping on the floors of crowded, stuffy tenement rooms, where their poor, overworked mothers have been washing, ironing and sewing all the day long, and where such poor fare as they have to eat has been cooked, will be spending their nights on comfortable cots in great, clean dormitories, whose wide windows let in the fresh air from the hills. Here is a letter from a little lad, who was at our Fresh-Air Home last summer, to Miss Barlow, his teacher:

Mamma has been very sick all winter, and was not expected to live. God restored her. I went to school for a few months after I came home from Nyack, but mamma lost her janitress'place and I had to leave school and go to work in a factory. I work very hard, but I get along pretty well with it. "Be strong in the Lord" is my favorite verse; it helps me to say it in hard times. I'm saving every cent I can get, after helping mamma, to try to come up to see you. But it aint any hardly. Never mind. If it's God's will I can come.

It cost just $3 last summer to give this worthy little laborer an outing of ten days, during which he learned the beautiful lessons of faith, hope and resignation which have sustained him during the winter, and which have inspired him to be so tender and helpful to his invalid mother. A friend has sent in $3 to give him another outing this summer.

Friends of children are writing from many states to assure us of their continued co-operation by prayer and gift in this beautiful work for little ones. One friend sends $5 and signs her name "Invested." Another friend sends $70 "for the poor little tenement children." E. H., Mariposa, Cal., $3 "for one child's outing."

Nelson Congregational Christian Endeavor, Ohio, $1: "to help your poor children's outing."——From far-off Cheyenne, Wyo., Miss E. McC. sends $6, that two little waifs may have a happy ten days in the country.——$5 comes, "In Memoriam," from Wallace Bay, Nova Scotia.——Miss Grace A. B., Pawnee City, Neb., sends $5.——L. V. O., German Valley, Ill., $5. "for the little ones."——S. C. R., San Jose, Calif., $1, "for the little children of the poor, given in the Master's name."——Mrs. E. M. R., Talladega, Ala., $2.50 "for the tenement waifs." So the little children of the poor living in sweltering tenements, where there is not even pure air to breathe, are being remembered by the Lord's followers north, south, east and west in our own country and across the border in Canada.

TENEMENT MOTHERS

IN sweltering alley and stifling court,
The pallid children cry;
And toiling mothers wearily ask:
"Must we watch our little ones die?"

"O, the day is long and the work is hard,
And we have no time to give
From earning rent and a crust of bread
To nurse them and make them live.

"And there's not air enough and to spare
For the children of the poor!"
And then—their faces glow with hope
For a "teacher" stands in the door!

"I am here," she says, "in the name of Christ,
"From a beautiful Fresh-Air Home;
"Where the blessed Master's rule is law,
"And he says: 'Let the little ones come!'

"There are woods and brooks and breezes kind,
"There are birds and fields of flowers;
"And we are the Master's servants there,
"And your children are His and ours.

"I will take your drooping little ones there—
"We will nourish and make them strong;
"We will make them bonny and brown for you,
"And happy as days are long.

"They'll come back well and helpful too,
"Take courage at our word.
"O, toiling mothers of the poor,
"Remembered of our Lord."

LAST DAYS OF THE PILGRIMAGE

AT DAMASCUS—AT CONSTANTINOPLE—OUR PILGRIMS SEE THE SULTAN—IN THE STADIUM WITH KING GEORGE

OUR party tarried four days at Damascus: Damascus, the ancient, invincible, perennial city; the bloody city where twenty thousand Christians were massacred in 1860; Damascus of beautiful gardens and groves and the famous rivers Abana and Pharpar. The home of Naaman, the temporary residence of Elisha and the spiritual birthplace of Paul. Monday we continued our journey toward Beirut, where the Beirut C. E. Society gave a reception to the pilgrims. The beautiful chapel was crowded, and refreshments were served, consisting of lemonade, cakes and "Turkish delight," after which Labil B. Jureidini, the president of the first Syrian C. E. Society said in brief: "On April 23, 1899, the Syrian C. E. Society was formed, and to-day, although a number have gone away, we have a society of twenty active members and sixteen associate. Your presence is a sign to us of God's encouragement."

On Friday we sighted Constantinople, and dropped anchor at the "Meeting of the Waters."

Through the courtesy of the U. S. Consul, and by payment of a fee, we were privileged to see the Sultan, accompanied by ten thousand soldiers and three hundred cavalry, on his way to the mosque. On his return he drove a most magnificent span of snowy white steeds.

On Saturday we started for Piræus, whence we drove to Athens where on Tuesday, April 24, a remarkable privilege was afforded the American party. At every Eastertide (the Greek Easter is ten days later than ours) the King, Queen and royal family review the young men of the public schools in their gymnasium drill at the Stadium. The American party were accorded reserved seats. The five hundred and forty performers marched around the great enclosure and took position. Stately King George, the beloved, with his Queen and the Prince Consort and wife, walked unescorted by any military bands or soldiery to the seats of honor. As they approached, forty thousand people arose and cheered. The Americans waved many American and Greek flags which they carried, and cheered the king, who seemed greatly pleased, for he smiled, touched his hat and bowed in recognition, upon which the immense crowd applauded the Americans, and the daily press spoke in glowing terms of the incident.

The American party were favored with a visit to the king's palace and gardens.

From Athens we made an excursion to Eleusis and visited the Temple of the Mysteries. We witnessed, too, a charming spectacle—twenty-two maidens beautifully attired, with hands joined, arms crosswise, shoulder to shoulder, making a long line, and slowly, methodically keeping step to the music of melodious voices. It was the famous Eastertide Festival.

On Friday, April 27, we started for Naples, sailing upon the waters of the Gulf of Ægina, the Isthmian Canal, and into the Gulf of Corinth, with snow-crowned mountains on the right, and on the left New Corinth, nestling by the water's edge.

Saturday, we reached Corfu, where King George's yacht dipped her colors as we passed. Our mail steamer was in haste, and on we sped to Brindisi where we just missed Dr. Klopsch, who had passed through en route to India. Taking an early train, we rode through Southern Italy, in and out among hills and dales, orchards and vineyards, cultivated fields and vine-clad hills. We are again in Naples. Since February 22 we have visited Alexandria, Cairo, the Nile to Assouan, Port Said, Jaffa, Jerusalem, Jericho, Samaria, Nazareth, Tiberias, Capernaum, Damascus, Baalbec, Beirut, Smyrna, Constantinople, Athens.

Pictures sent give some idea of our life in the East. Mr. G. W. Geiser, Superintendent Lutheran Sunday School, Union Mills, Md., is the pilgrim at the Jordan's source; the pair in Bedouin dress are Mr. C. W. Shoemaker and sister; your correspondent rides the good steed which carried him 250 miles through Palestine; in Dr. R. W. Corwin's tent, Messrs. Chas. E. Brinkman and William H. Obert, of Pennsylvania, and Mr. W. O. Gladden, the "traveling farmer," are taking their ease.

Our party now has its face turned toward home. C. S. MASON.

AT THE JORDAN'S SOURCE

TWO PILGRIMS IN BEDOUIN DRESS

REV. C. S. MASON (OUR CORRESPONDENT)

ENDEAVORERS TENTING IN THE ORIENT

Great Care Required.

HOUSEKEEPERS must exercise great care in buying baking powder, for every kind of scheme is employed to sell the alum compounds, which your physician will inform you are poisonous to the human system.

Royal Baking Powder is well known as an absolutely pure and healthful cream of tartar powder. The U. S. Government tests show this, and also that it is greater than any other in leavening strength. Consumers who are prudent will make sure that no other enters into their food.

Do not, because the alum powders may be a little lower in price (though some of them are not), risk your health by using them.

NEW HAT 3c.
"Hat Bleach" cleans straw hats in 5 minutes. Makes an old hat look as good as new without injuring the straw or thread. Price per box (cleans 8 hats 25c. postpaid. The original Hat Bleach refuse substitutes. Agents Wanted.
Hat Bleach Co., 20 F. Church St. Xenia, Ohio.

The IDEAL Steam Cooke
Cooks a whole meal over one burner, gasoline, oil, gas, or common cook sto
Reduces Fuel Bills One-ha
Makes tough meats tende
Prevents steam and odors. Whist blows when cooker needs more wat
Dinner Sets, Bicycles, Watches, a other Valuable Premiums given wi order for Cookers. Send for illustrat catalogue. We pay express. Agents Wante
TOLEDO COOKER CO., Box 16, Toledo, O.

AGENTS WANTED.
$2.50 Sample Outfit FREE.

$1.10 Postpaid
Dr. Scott's Electric Corsets; a perfect fit and Nature's own remedy for backache, nervousness, indigestion, headache, liver and kidney trouble; complexion tonic, salve and soaps. Dr. Scott's Electric Hair Brushes for falling Hair.
GEO. A. SCOTT,
Room 7 842 B'dway, New York.

WHITE and FANCY
RUBBER COLLARS, CUFFS,
BOSOMS and TIES. Always laundryed Never wilt; can't be told from linen. Mailed anywhere. Fully patented and guaranteed; Agents wanted; exclusive territory liberal commission. Send 4 cts. in stamps for Samples. Catalog 150 styles, and terms.
M. & M. MFG. CO., Dept. 17. Springfield, Mass.

WATCH AND CHAIN FOR ONE DAY'S WOR

Boys and Girls can get a Nickel-Plat Watch, also a Chain and Charm for sel 1½ doz. Packages of Bluine at 10 cents eac Send your full address by return mail a we will forward the Bluine, post-paid, a a large Premium List. No money require
BLUINE CO. Box 3 Concord Junction. Mas

STARK TREES best by test—74 YEARS. WE WANT MORE SALESMEN PAY CASH WEEKLY
Stark Nursery, Louisiana, Mo; Dansville, N.Y.

Peculiar to Itself

Hood's Sarsaparilla is peculiar in combination, proportion and process,—peculiar it its actual merit and in its great record. It relieves a wider range of diseases than any other medicine, effecting marvelous results where other remedies fail to do any good whatever. It conquers scrofula in its worst forms, salt rheum, eruptions, dyspepsia, rheumatism and catarrh.

Hood's Sarsaparilla

Is the Best Medicine Money Can Buy.

It Is a Certainty That Catarrh can be cured. You will believe it after using a sample of Dr. Blosser's Catarrh Cure. Mailed free. Address Dr. J. W. Blosser & Son, 50 Broad St., Blosser Building, Atlanta, Ga.

Want your corns removed? Send address on postal, and get a free trial box of A-CORN SALVE.
Giant Chemical Co., Philadelphia.

Training Tenement Mothers

A Novel Branch of the University Extension Society's Work---Ignorance a Prime Cause of Child Mortality

"DOCTOR, surely you don't mean that there is any harm in a baby's own innocent little thumb?"

"Not as long as you keep it out of he baby's little mouth," says the doctor. "If baby is allowed to suck its thumb constantly, the thumb will become dwarfed and misshapen, the permanent teeth will stick out in ront from pressure forward on the gums, but, vorst of all, the child will get indigestion. The nilk will sour and be rejected, or it will form in reat curdy masses—as useless for nourishing he baby as so many marbles—so that a baby nay really be starving when it gets plenty of nilk."

Next the doctor explained how a bandage, f drawn tightly, will injure the heart, the ungs, and the stomach.

"Doctor, would you use soap on a baby?"

"Certainly; on every part but its face. Better use a washcloth, as a sponge soon becomes illed with decaying animal matter that has been thrown off by the skin. Use a separate loth for the baby's face, on which you never ut any soap, because if we get soap in its yes we cannot get it out. If we get soap in our own eyes the tears flow and wash it away, but a baby has no tears until it is three months old, and soap will injure the eyes."

A GROUP OF MOTHERS AT THE UNIVERSITY EXTENSION SOCIETY LECTURES

A young baby should be fed regularly every wo hours, and at four months of age every hree hours.

"What food should a baby have the first day?"

"No catnip and molasses, gin and water, ennel, aniseed or camomile tea, sweet oil, ugar or butter; no little drops of whiskey to trengthen it. It is better not to give any of hese; the mother's milk contains all the food nd medicine the baby requires. Every child nust be weaned before it is a year old."

"Doctor," says a woman, "ask some one else. I could tell you all about it. I'm the mother of thirteen and I've buried them all but this baby. I've had experience, I can tell you."

"It is a pity you did not have a little before you lost all your children. This learning on our own babies is like learning to sew on our wedding dress."

"Doctor, did you say a child couldn't have pie, cake or candy?" a woman asks. "Indeed, then, I never denied mine anything. I have nothing to reproach myself with now that he is dead and gone. Many a time when he would wake up in the dead hours of the night and cry for pie I would make his father get up and go out and get it for him."

"We should never give a child anything that is bad for it, no matter how much it cries," says the doctor.

* * * *

The above are some of the questions that were asked and answered at the close of a health lecture, given by Dr. Delany, of the People's University Extension Society, at a mothers' meeting. In one of the photographs on this page is seen a typical group of mothers, many with two or three little children, for they must bring with them any who are too small to be in school.

There is no work more beneficial or far-reaching than that of teaching the mother how to care for her children and her home. One-half of all the children that are born die in infancy, and in the tenement district where poverty and ignorance combine, it is often as in the case mentioned above, "I'm the mother of thirteen, and buried all but this one."

The great advantage of the People's University Extension lies in the fact that it is purely co-operative. Missions, churches, settlements and kindergartens are all doing a grand work, but missionaries and teachers cannot all be doctors, dressmakers, cooks and trained nurses. To furnish teachers has been in hundreds of cases the work of the Extension.

Nothing could be more gratifying than the harmony that has existed on all sides. Jews and Christians, Catholics and Protestants, Evangelicals and humanitarians have all expressed the warmest appreciation for the assistance rendered to them by this society. It has on its staff of lecturers some seventy experienced workers, including Dr. Jane Robbins, of the College Settlement; Dr. Isabelle Delany, of Catharine Mission Dispensary, and Dr. Maria Vinton, of the Tribune Fresh Air Fund. Expert dressmakers, who understand cutting and fitting, have taught the sewing classes. This has been a great boon to the mothers.

The cooking classes (of which one of our photographs taken at a working-girls' club, is a good representation), are the special delight of the business men who have so generously aided this work. One of these patrons affirms that a large annual loss to his business through drunken employees might be saved if some one would teach the wives of workingmen how to prepare appetizing, nutritious food.

Another department of the work appeals to every one who has had sickness in the home. In the homes of the poor, not one in a thousand can have the services of a trained nurse. The mother must herself do all that is to be done, and many a precious little life is lost because of her ignorance. The Peoples' University Extension Society have secured the services of a nurse of wide experience, who gives to the mothers a course of lectures on home nursing, with practical illustrations in bathing, bed-making and diet for the sick.

Anyone who is interested in this work can secure the annual report of the society by writing to J. Eugene Whitney, secretary, 244 West Fourteenth street, New York. Those who are interested in some particular branch, can aid that part of the work exclusively if they so desire. Several branches besides those mentioned here, are fully explained in the annual report. Hundreds of applications for instruction are pouring in on the society, but it cannot undertake them unless there is a corresponding increase in contributions toward the support of the work.

THE COOKING CLASS AT WORK

REDUCED RATES TO KANSAS CITY.

Via Pennsylvania Railroad.

For the National Democratic Convention, to be held at Kansas City, July 4, the Pennsylvania Railroad will sell excursion tickets to Kansas City from all stations on its line at rate of one first-class fare for the round trip. Tickets to be sold and good going July 1, 2 and 3, and to return until July 9, inclusive. These tickets will be good on all trains except the Pennsylvania Limited, and must be used for continuous passage.

That Tired Feeling caused by the depressing effects of the changing season and the debilitated condition of the body is overcome by Hood's Sarsaparilla, the best blood purifier and strength giver known.

HARD TO STAY GREAT

Forces in Nature Intended to Level Those who Push Ahead of the Mass.

By brains, hard work and self-denial a man reaches a position of wealth and greatness.

Right then, by a natural law, the contrary forces set to work to tear him down, to prevent his getting too far ahead of the regular evolutionary development.

Think it over and you will remember your own and your friends' experience.

When fortune's face begins to smile, misfortune's iron hand appears, for the man yields to some or many of the "tearing down" forces—anxiety, worry, whisky, tobacco, lust, coffee, etc., etc. Health begins to leave and the man is unable to hold his lofty position.

Only the grim, determined fellows, who recognize the devils that would rob and slay him, and who sturdily and steadily refuse to allow them to work on him, are able to "stay great."

Is it worth while?

You are your own master and judge. You can kill them or you can yield, and they will down you.

A man says, "I can't quit."

There is but one answer: "Get down then to the lower place that the big crowd of 'commons' occupy."

It is only the "masters" who can remain masters.

Coffee is one of the most dangerous sluggers in the list, for it is veiled and seemingly harmless, but its mission is to weaken heart, kidneys and digestion, then slowly follows weakness of purpose and inability, and the victim, all unconscious of the reason, steps backward and downward from his hard-earned place among the great ones.

It is easy to shift the coffee habit by taking on Postum Food Coffee, a distinct and scientific "anti" for coffee.

Postum (well-made) satisfies the coffee taste, and instead of breaking down the heart and nerve centres builds them up in a remarkable manner as the result of the action of the ingredients carefully and expertly selected from nature's storehouse of sustaining and rebuilding food elements.

You can be great and stay great if you have sturdy determination and make use of the discoveries of modern science and research. Postum Food Coffee is made at the famous pure food factories of the Postum Co., at Battle Creek, Mich.

Better Baking Never Known

Cook or baker never produced a more toothsome bit than Uneeda Jinjer Wayfer. Its delightful piquancy makes it the nicest possible sweet for any-time eating or to serve with any beverage or ices. Its wholesomeness makes it the safest of all forms of cakes to give the children. Its freshness is insured at all times — in all weathers—by the patent package, which is identical with the famous Uneeda Biscuit package.

NATIONAL BISCUIT COMPANY.

SACRED SONGS No. 2, FOR SUNDAY SCHOOLS, PRAYER MEETINGS,

$25 per 100. Sample copy mailed on receipt of 20 cents.
THE BIGLOW & MAIN CO. New York and Chicago.

BLYMYER CHURCH BELLS. UNLIKE OTHER BELLS SWEETER, MORE DURABLE, LOWER PRICE. OUR FREE CATALOGUE TELLS WHY.
Write to Cincinnati Bell Foundry Co., Cincinnati, O.

Individual Communion Outfits. Send for free catalogue and list of users.
SANITARY COMMUNION OUTFIT CO., Dept. 6, Rochester, N. Y.

SHORTER LIFE OF D. L. MOODY
by his son PAUL DWIGHT MOODY. Two volumes; 18 illustrations including six of Mr. Moody. 25 cents. AGENTS WANTED EVERYWHERE. Liberal terms. A. P. FITT, Supt., 250 LaSalle Av., Chicago, or E. Northfield, Mass.

PLAYS Dialogues, Speakers, Amusements, Books. Catalog free. T. S. DENISON, Publisher, Dept. 28, CHICAGO.

...State Manager...

WANTED—Ladies or Gentlemen to appoint and manage agents for our Bibles and other books and attend to collections. Fair salary and expenses advanced to the right party. Work can be done at home or by traveling. No snap. Permanent. No investment required. Apply with self-addressed stamped envelope and references to
PROVIDENCE PUBLISHING CO.,
56 C, 334 Dearborn St., Chicago.

SUMMER HOMES IN VERMONT ...AND ON... Lake Champlain
$4.00 and upward per week. Send 4c. postage for Illustrated Book.
A. W. Ecclestone, S. P. A., 353 Broadway, N. Y.

LEARN PROOFREADING
If you possess a fair education, why not utilize it at a genteel and uncrowded profession paying $15 to $35 weekly? Situations always obtainable. We are the original instructors by mail.
HOME CORRESPONDENCE SCHOOL, Philadelphia

Welch's Grape Juice is not a preparation—it is the pure Juice of choice Concord Grapes, pressed on the spot where grown. It not only is a most helpful table beverage, but it is a valuable tonic food for sick and well. Sold by druggists and fancy grocers. Write the Welch Grape Juice Co., Westfield, N. Y., for free Booklet.

In the Famine Camps

(Continued from page 537)

relief camp, and which were now being carried by these to the piles indicated in order to be readily available for the betterment of the roads as soon as the rains, which are now shortly to begin, have subsided. My heart went out for the delicate girls, from eight to fifteen years of age, carrying on their heads basins of broken stones and walking a distance of two miles in order to deposit them, with no chance for rest and not a particle of shelter along the entire journey. As we neared the camp we saw a great number of scantily dressed, emaciated men, divided up into smaller groups, doing nothing but complaining of the hardships of camp life, while the women and children were earning from one to two annas a day by working in the broiling sun with no shelter whatever from its deadly rays. Some women were sitting in the Oriental fashion on the ground; some of them with two or three of their children too young to work. They were evidently a very discontented lot; certainly they had not much in life to incline them otherwise. Their work was breaking the stones, which, when broken, the others put into the basins, lifted them on their heads and walked off to the heaps before mentioned.

The one thing which above all others stands out as a blot on the system which was operated in that particular camp was the employment of nursing mothers, many of whom I saw holding their infants with one arm while they were chopping stone with the other. Then the employment of women about to become mothers was another thing which seemed to me unpardonable, and yet I understand that these women would rather work than be idle. Their lot is certainly a very sad one, many of them having been deserted by their husbands. Their homes are broken up, work cannot be obtained and neighbors are too poor to contribute to their support. Even if the government was willing to give them daily rations without work, as it declares in the code under which the relief camps are operated, very likely they would prefer to work in the broiling sun in order that they might forget their troubles, rather than sit at home and brood over them. Then there is one other thing that impressed me painfully. It was the employment of children, especially of young girls, whose growth must be stunted by carrying these burdens on the head, whose organism must be disjointed and who must now be sowing the seeds of disease and unhappiness for the future. These three phases of camp life were very saddening, and the whole camp was so dejected, there was so much discouragement and so much complaining, that the very atmosphere became almost intolerably oppressive.

We went into the camp where very little children are kept, and I was glad to see that they looked fairly well cared for, and with a few exceptions quite contented. A number of them were blind, and of the others a large percentage was deformed.

Indeed, India seems to me a land full of deformities; humanity takes on the most fantastic shape. There are more varieties of form and features and dress in India than there are of character anywhere else in the world. On the whole, the children presented a satisfactory appearance, and I spoke a few words of commendation to the man in charge, and expressed a hope that should I have occasion to again visit the camp I would find the children in a still better condition. I asked him to show me the food which was dealt out to the children. He brought out a loaf of Oriental bread, which looked as though it was composed of oatmeal and sawdust, fried in the shape of a pancake, sour to the smell and disagreeable to the sight and hard to the touch. I asked him to let me have one of the loaves. He cheerfully consented, but intimated that two children would have to go without their ration in the evening in case I took a loaf with me—the supply was just enough to meet the demand. Not a loaf over in all the camp, and rather than deprive the children of a meal, I went without the loaf. This was my first experience, and I was told that the camp under inspection was a sort of a deserted camp, and that the management had not given satisfaction either to the Government or to the people. There were camps of this kind in the 1897 famine and it was remarkable that in every instance of harsh treatment of sufferers, the guilty officials were not Europeans but natives.

The Power of Little Things*

Great Movements that have Proceeded from Insignificant Beginnings

EVEN yet the power of small things is not realized. "It is only a child," we say, and we pass on, taking little account of the child's sayings or doings. Yet in that child there may be forces which shall yet startle the whole earth by a vast crime or a great benefaction. Perhaps if we realized that latent force better, we might do more to turn it in the right direction. But even now, before its development, there is a power in small things. The child may serve as an illustration again. Who that has been in a house when the advent of the first child of the family occurred, has not been astonished at the power the little creature wields. The whole house is hushed while it sleeps lest its slumbers be disturbed. The man who was formerly considered to be entitled to the first consideration is sent hither and thither, or waked out of his sleep to minister to baby's comfort. The most treasured possessions which no one was allowed to handle, are freely given to the baby if he desires them. He is monarch of the household and none are too oid, or too dignified, to be subjected to his service. And the effect of his supremacy shows his power. Who has not seen a rough, over-bearing man become gentle and kindly when his little child is put in his arms? The miracle of transformation of disposition, which no force nor argument nor appeals can work, is worked by a little child.

It is so in the material world. The little flaw in the iron beam, the little worm in the wooden beam, the little spark in the heap of straw, the little obstruction in the railroad switch: all these and many other little things are directly responsible for dire catastrophes. We know them and the evil they do, so we are not reassured by being reminded that they are little; we say there is a great power in little things. So in the spiritual world, though we are not so ready to recognize it there. The minister and the Christian worker know full well how a promising inquirer is held fast to the world and held back from Christ by some little sin which he ought to give up, but cannot. It is so small, such a trifle, that it is almost contemptible, but it serves the purpose. So in later life, some small concession to the world, some little indulgence, will bring a man of long experience under the dominion of evil and lead to the subjugation of his whole nature. Perhaps a great temptation would have been met and grappled with and overcome. All the forces of Christian character would have been summoned to the conflict, but this little matter enters unnoticed and does its fatal work. The story is familiar of the German infidel who had a great granite slab placed over his tomb and on it a blasphemous inscription implying that God himself could not disturb the grave. But the seed of a tree was in the mold and when it germinated and grew, not even the granite slab could resist the young life, but was pushed aside to make room for it.

In social matters, how the power of littles has shown itself! James Watt watches the kettle's lid being raised by steam, and all our system of travel is revolutionized. A child plays with some discs of glass and the telescope which reveals the mysteries of space comes to its birth. Franklin flies his kite in the thunder-storm, and electricity with all it has meant and will yet mean to the world, enters the field of usefulness. So it has been with great movements. The one poor man giving apples to children to come to him on Sunday afternoons to be taught is the germ of the Sunday School. The little prayer-meeting under the haystack is the beginning of the American Board's mighty agency in foreign missions. The one small circle of young people in Dr. Clark's church becomes the germ of the world-girdling Christian EndeavorSociety.

*Topic of the Christian Endeavor Society, Epworth League and Baptist Young People's Union for July 8. Mark 4: 30-32.

So there is encouragement for the obscure worker in whatsoever field he may be. Small and insignificant service may be the beginning of great things. There is power in the smallest effort that has conscience and a true heart behind it. The one soul won may be the soul of one who will command the world's ear and sway the destiny of millions. Therefore, though our sphere be restricted, though our power seem small, though we ourselves be the smallest of saints, yet to us if the grace be given, may the honor come of doing some great work, or initiating some mighty movement.

The wee children of the tenements look to the kind friends who have remembered them year after year, to help them now. The hot days are here. Three dollars will give one child an outing for ten days in our Children's Home at beautiful Mont-Lawn.

THE VALUE OF CHARCOAL.

Few People Know How Useful it is in Preserving Health and Beauty.

Nearly everybody knows that charcoal is the safest and most efficient disinfectant and purifier in nature, but few realize its value when taken into the human system for the same cleansing purpose.

Charcoal is a remedy that the more you take of it the better, it is not a drug at all, but simply absorbs the gases and impurities always present in the stomach and intestines and carries them out of the system.

Charcoal sweetens the breath after smoking, drinking or after eating onions and other odorous vegetables.

Charcoal effectually clears and improves the complexion, it whitens the teeth and further acts as a natural and safe cathartic.

It absorbs the injurious gases which collect in the stomach and bowels; it disinfects the mouth and throat from the poison of catarrh.

All druggests sell charcoal in one form or another, but probably the best charcoal and the most for the money is in Stuart's Absorbent Lozenges; they are composed of the finest powdered Willow charcoal, and other harmless antiseptics in tablet form or rather in the form of large, pleasant tasting lozenges, the charcoal being mixed with honey.

The daily use of these lozenges will soon tell in a much improved condition of the general health, better complexion, sweeter breath and purer blood, and the beauty of it is, that no possible harm can result from their continued use, but on the contrary great benefit.

A Buffalo physician in speaking of the benefits of charcoal, says: "I advise Stuart's Absorbent Lozenges to all patients suffering from gas in stomach and bowels, and to clear the complexion and purify the breath, mouth and throat; I also believe the liver is greatly benefitted by the daily use of them; they cost but twenty-five cents a box at drug stores, and although in some sense a patent preparation yet I believe I get more and better charcoal in Stuart's Absorbent Lozenges than in any of the ordinary charcoal tablets."

Don't tie the top of your jelly and preserve jars in the old fashioned way. Seal them by the new, quick, absolutely sure way—by a thin coating of pure, refined Paraffine Wax. Has no taste or odor. Is air tight and acid proof. Easily applied. Useful in a dozen other ways about the house. Full directions with each pound cake.
Sold everywhere.
Made by STANDARD OIL CO.

BICYCLES BELOW CO
5,000 HIGH GRADE guarant MACHINES with equipment must be closed 1900 Models, best makes, $11 to $ '99 & '98 Models, high grade $8 to $ 500 Second hand Whe all makes and models, good as n $3 to $10. Great Factory Clea Sale at half factory cost. We anywhere on trial without a cen advance. EARN A BICYC distributing Catalogues for us. M earned a wheel last year. Our proposition is even more liberal. Write at once for our Bare List and Special Offer. Address Dept. 4
MEAD CYCLE CO. Chica

Big Drop in Sewing Machines
For $12.75 you can now buy the same make high grade, improved, 20-year guaranteed, beautif oak cased sewing machine that your dealer as $40.00 to $50.00 for, and a far better machine tha those now being so widely advertised at $18.00 $25.00; shipped on three months' free trial to an one, any place in the United States; no money to l paid until after received. For full particulars, sp cial machine catalogue and special price offering cut this notice out and mail to SEARS, ROEBUCK & Co., Chicag

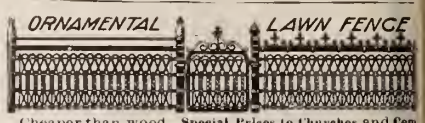
DEAD STUCK
kills the eggs and grown-ups of a bed bugs, moths, roaches, ants, et Used by the United States Go ernment. Non-poisonous to huma life. A liquid powder. As stainles as spring water and as pleasar smelling as tar. 25 cts. per bottl or in gallon cans for hotels and hos pitals. All dealers.
PHILA. CHEMICAL CO.,
2d & Cherry Streets, Philadelphia



Cheaper than wood. Special Prices to Churches and Cem eteries. Strong, Durable and Cheap. Catalogue Free
COILED SPRING FENCE CO. Box D. Winchester, Indiana.

HAIR INSOLES keep feet clean and dry. Prevent ja in walking. Relieve Rheumatism Callous, Tender and Perspiring Feet. 10c., 3 pair 25c. postpaid. The Wm. H. Wiley & Son Co., Box D, Hartford, Ct

OPIUM MORPHINE and Liquor Habit cured in 10 to 20 days. No pay till cured. Book of particulars free. Address Dr. J. L. Stephens, Dept. R. 5, Lebanon, Ohio.

Catalogue of Famous Maryland made-to order clothing free. Lithographed Catalogue of Famous Maryland Carpets free. Freight paid on carpets, expressage on clothing. Julius Hines & Son, Baltimore, Md., Dept. 218.

$75 Month and Expenses; no experience needed; position permanent; self-seller, PEASE MFG. CO., Stat'n A, Cincinnati, O.

For Summer, Porous
Jaeger
PURE WOOL UNDERWEAR
Send for Illustrated Catalogue.
New York: 16 West 23d St. / 166 Broadway.
Brooklyn: 504 Fulton St.
Boston: 169 Tremont St.
Philadelphia: 924 Chestnut St.
Chicago: 74 State St.

The man who wears the President Improved Suspender is ready for a run or a ride, for working or for walking. He has the best equipment in suspenders that it is possible to secure. It does away with belts and buckles. It relegates to the past the old fashioned leather straps that served as suspenders.
President Suspender
IMPROVED
is so constructed that it readily adjusts itself to every bend of the body. Trimmings will not rust. Be sure you get the genuine. Refuse imitations.
$1500.00 FOR YOUR ESTIMATE.
Every purchaser of President Suspender is entitled to take part in the Presidential Vote Contest. $1500.00 in gold as prizes. Full information given with each suspender. At all dealers or direct from us, 50 cts. postpaid. Contest is open now. Closes Nov. 5th.
THE C. A. EDGARTON MFG. CO., Box 209, Shirley, Mass.

"Don't hide your light under a bushel!" That's just why we talk about SAPOLIO

TEDDY · A STORY OF THE FRESH AIR FUND

BY MARY LOWE DICKINSON

THE car stopped at Eighth street and into it scrambled and tumbled a throng of eager children from five to twelve years of age. Pallid with the polluted air of crowded tenements, pasty with lack of food, the little faces were yet bright with eagerness. Little hands, wasted and grimy, even after the unaccustomed wash, clutched their bundles as if they contained the treasures of the earth. All alive with anticipation of their ten days in the country, they yet made a pitiful picture of childhood, stunted in body and soul, cheated of its birthright of cheeriness and fun. So thought a young lady, daintily clad, as she turned away from the car that had not even standing-room for her.

Turning back to the sidewalk with her were two children, a girl of ten and a ragged boy as tall, but evidently not as old as his sister. The girl's old winter dress was faded and scanty.

"I'd have got on if you hadn't held me back," said the lad angrily.

"But they wouldn't let you go right off the street so. You got to have your name on the paper. The man read 'em out. I seen him inside the door there," pointing to the side entrance of the Bible House, from which the little procession had come forth.

"Don't care! Jerry Donegan just wint. He hadn't no name wrote down, nor no new shirt, nor nothin'. He just cut behind like I would, and when they got to the cars they let him in."

"But you wouldn't have a good time if you got it jest cuttin' behind."

"I would, and Jerry did. Why, Nell, there's grass! Can turn all the handsprings you like and ye can go in swimmin' and eat and eat much as ever ye can hold—and——" but a shout from other boys on the opposite corner diverted him from his grievance and set his bare legs flying.

"I'll be back in a minute, Nell," he shouted. The little girl's face took on an aged and worried look.

"Is he your brother?" asked the dainty lady, whose car had come and passed.

"Oh, yes, ma'am," murmured Nell, timidly, "and he's good, Ted is; he helps me a lot."

"Helps you! What can you do?"

"Oh, most all. I washes and keeps the place clean and makes the supper. Father carries his dinner in the pail, and," she added, as if answering an unasked question, "mother's been dead two years." The voice was gentle and the face sweet, but the little worried pucker of the brow deepened into a genuine grown-up wrinkle. "I must get Teddy now and hurry home."

"I think we are going the same way," said the lady. "Ted is keeping his eyes on you. If we move forward he will follow."

Nell looked as if that was too much to expect. Nevertheless they moved on side by side, and Teddy, attracted by the strange companion, was soon trotting on behind. He was a frowzle-pated, rough and tumble sort, not by any means a handsome lad, but Nell regarded him with more than motherly devotion.

"So you lost your chance of getting in to the country?" asked Miss Lee, pleasantly.

The boy hung his head as if he had been caught doing wrong. "'Twarn't no much of a chance You do have to have somebody to get your name in, and we ain't got nobody, Nell and me."

"Perhaps I could manage it for you. I know the people of THE CHRISTIAN HERALD," said the lady, and Ted's face suddenly took a look which the cripple might have taken when he saw the angel descending into Bethesda. He only gasped, "Golly! Ye couldn't, could ye? for me and Nellie, too?"

"But I couldn't go," said Nell. "You forget, Ted, there's father."

"And how could you leave your sister to do all the work?" asked Miss Lee, greatly interested.

"Couldn't! Wasn't goin' ter!"

"But you were all ready to jump on the car, you said."

"No, no," broke in Nell. "He was only foolin'. Ted's good. He did all the scrubs this morning and helped me, oh, lots and lots. But he always goes down there the day the others start, and he wants to go too——"

"Sometimes we play make-believe we both go," broke in the boy, "and then we play what we will cook to leave for father, and once he said he could eat on the corner—and we could go."

"But—but—that wouldn't do," said Nell, a frightened look creeping to her pallid face. It was plain enough why she didn't like to leave her father to be fed at the corner, but she only said, "I don't want to go. I'm real strong, but it would do lots er good to Ted."

By this time the children had halted before the great barrack of a tenement, which was home to the countless ragged and dirty children who fairly swarmed the pavements and played in the vile-smelling gutters. With that true delicacy that will not intrude even upon a child, Miss Lee hesitated. She understood the look of shame and pain in the child's face, and knew she shrank from having her see the squalor of their home. Ted settled it by suddenly taking hold of Miss Lee's hand, and together they went through the narrow passage to the back yard, where the glare of the sun was diminished a little by the washing that swung from window to window of every floor. Under it to the rear building, and then up, up through such smells and such sounds of crying babies, and brawling women and drunken men as never had greeted her ears before.

. . .

A month later the loungers, men and women, on the piazza of one of the fashionable hotels of a northern Summer resort were diverted from their newspapers and their gossip by the arrival of a man, young enough and good-looking enough to prove an enlivening addition. Two days later he went away again, having indulged in neither drives nor dances, golf nor tennis. The hotel register said Horace Burt, M.D.

The Lee family, to which he seemed to devote himself, said nothing, and when he departed, the other girls said they "didn't believe but he came thinking Grace Lee was there with her parents," and all the more they wondered why she who in other Summers had been a leader in all their frolics, should have stayed away. Horace Burt had asked her father the same question, and got for an answer:

"The fact is, Burt, she's got the poverty craze; fairly bewitched with the slum children. I always kept her away from all such places. Didn't know but she might catch something or other." The doctor nodded a grave approval. "But this year a couple of little tramps got hold of her heart-strings and her purse-strings too, I fancy, and nothing would do but she must have the boy off to the country and make a kind of a little sister of the girl. She begged to stay at the Settlement in —— street for a while, and her mother and I had to consent. Thought she'd get enough of it in a week, but there she is, and that little girl just goes round with her, hunting out a lot of other wretched little beings, and getting them out into the country, where they have cottages and a matron and care-takers, and no end of food and fun for the youngsters. I'll tell her mother to read you bits out of her letters. Fact is, she's bewitched—fascinated by the the suffering she finds among the little children crowded in squalid cellars, with the gutters for a play-ground—sleeping on the steps or huddled in stifling rooms these broiling summer nights. It does seem awful, doctor, and I'm always ready to contribute, but I don't like the idea of my daughter making an orphan asylum of herself."

"Where did you say this Children's Home was?" asked the doctor.

"At Mont-Lawn, near Nyack-on-the-Hudson, under the control of THE CHRISTIAN HERALD. In recent years, Grace writes, they have given all that the country and home and love and care means to about thirteen thousand children."

"And yet," said the doctor, writing the address in his note book, "they are only a drop in the bucket, in comparison to the scores of thousands crowding the tenements of our congested cities. I'm not sure but Grace is right. If we care for the saving of souls, if we consider the future homes of the people, if we love our country, what better can we do than to train and save its children?"

"Yes, that's all so," said the old gentleman, uneasily, "and I'm willing to help it along, and my wife is reading Grace's letters to all these furbelowed women here, and they are interested too. The fact is, rich folks have feelings, if you only touch them right, and the meanest man in creation will do something for a suffering child. Trouble is they don't see the suffering, and so they don't think or know."

"Well, Miss Lee can be trusted to make them know the things she is finding out for herself."

"Yes, and I suspect you don't mean to discourage her much when you see her."

"No, I would help her if I could. Having your permission, I mean to win her if I can, and if I succeed, I believe the children will have two friends instead of one."

How he succeeded, and what the "two heads" that proved "better than one" devised for the comfort and joy and training of the children of the poor makes too long a story for our space, but the tale is one over which not only the children of earth but the angels of heaven rejoice.

A Christian Workers' Rest Home

Elim Home, at Bell Island, Conn., the Summer resting-place for Christian workers with limited means — is again open. The Home, which is pleasantly located by the water, and which can be reached in a ride of one hour and a half from New York, has been in operation for four seasons. During that time, a large number of Christian workers, returned foreign missionaries, city missionaries, and midnight workers in the slums, some of whom receive no stated salary, have enjoyed the hospitality of the Home, and have been greatly benefited by the change of air, the bathing and boating. Some Christian young women engaged in secular occupations, who were aiding in the support of widowed mothers and were also invited to enjoy the hospitality of the Home. A number of the guests are entertained without charge, it being the desire of the management to select that class whose limited means prevent them from having a Summer outing. A few generous friends have heretofore aided the Rev. Wm. James financially in meeting the current expenses of the Home. He now desires to enlarge the work and increase the number of guests, and he trusts that additional contributions from other friends may enable him to do so this season. Contributions for the work may be sent to Rev. William James, Bell Island, Connecticut (Rowayton P. O.), who will also be pleased to answer any inquiries concerning the work.

OIL AND GOLD MINES.

Visitors Speak of the Food Used.

Major Desborough, writing from Fresno, Calif., says: "I found Grape-Nuts food 45 miles in the mountains in an old oil camp, where the whole crowd, 10 men, eat it for breakfast every day, and every Sunday have it in a pudding for dinner."

General E. C. Machen, an old Confederate soldier, has just returned from an extended trip through the Southwest and along the Mexican border, investigating mining properties. He says: "No matter where I traveled, I always found it possible to get Grape-Nuts and Postum Food Coffee, of which I am very fond."

The Grape-Nuts breakfast food is especially valued by campers and frontier people, as it is already cooked and ready for instant service, and being concentrated, furnishes unusual strength and nourishment, in a small quantity. It is believed that a man can travel farther and exercise more continuously on a few teaspoons of Grape-Nuts than on like quantity of any other food known.

The reason for this is that there are selected elements in Grape-Nuts that furnish direct to the brain and nerve centres the necessary particles to rebuild the delicate gray matter contained in these parts; therefore a man continuously fed on Grape-Nuts is absolutely certain of a good condition of the nervous system, which is really the controller of the entire body.

The story related by Miss Frances E. Harris, 301 Onondaga, Street, Syracuse, N. Y., fits exactly the cases of thousands of young girls of her age.

Weak and languid, suffering from nervousness and lack of blood, unequal to the slightest task. It is a disease known as Anæmia, a common ailment among growing girls. She says:

"When I was seventeen years of age I became debilitated and run down in health. I was extremely nervous, lost my appetite and my blood became so thin that there was no color at all in my face. Much of the time I was confined to my bed and was so weak that I could only walk a short distance. The least exercise would bring on shortness of breath and pain in side. Sometimes I could hardly breathe.

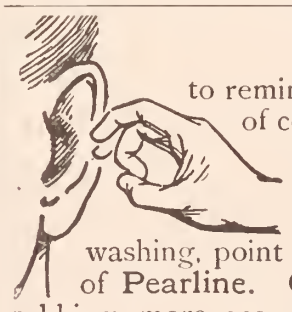
"I tried several different doctors without receiving any benefit. I also tried other medicines advertised to cure troubles such as I had but they did me no good.

"I saw Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People advertised in the papers, and decided to try them. The first box helped me, and I procured some more. My appetite improved, my nerves became stronger, and within a short time I gained over twenty-five pounds in weight. My improvement continued, and in all I took a dozen boxes. When they were finished I was entirely cured and am in good health, have a good color and appetite and am as well as ever.

"I have recommended Dr. Williams' Pink Pills to many others and will be glad to answer any inquiries if the writers enclose stamp for reply."

(Signed) FRANCES M. HARRIS.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold in boxes (never in loose bulk) at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50, and may be had of all druggists or direct by mail from Dr. Williams Medicine Company, Schnectady, N. Y.



A fillip

to remind you that it's time to listen to the voice of common sense. It isn't reasonable to do your washing in the hardest way, when there's nothing to be gained by it. Compare soap-washing with Pearline-washing, point by point, and all the gain is on the side of Pearline. Greater ease and quickness, absence of rubbing, more economy. 585

Millions NOW USE Pearline

RUPTURE The Improved Elastic Truss is the only Truss in existence that is worn with absolute comfort night and day, and it retains the rupture under the hardest exercise or severest strain, and will effect a permanent and speedy relief. Competent lady always in attendance for ladies, or to answer correspondence from women. Our goods are not sold by agents or druggists. Send for free pamphlets to the Improved Elastic Truss Co., 768 Broadway, New York. ESTABLISHED 18 YEARS.

A Remarkable Book by a Remarkable Woman

FRANCES E. WILLARD'S

"OCCUPATIONS FOR WOMEN"

The latest and greatest work from the pen of the woman who did more to elevate her sex than any woman that ever lived.

This exceedingly practical volume shows the tremendous strides already made by women, points out many new fields and opportunities for them, and shows what feminine persistence, push and energy can accomplish.

We have from time to time offered special bargains to the readers of THE CHRISTIAN HERALD, and in each case the demand has been much greater than the supply. So you had better take advantage of this offer TO-DAY.

SPECIAL BARGAIN OFFER

By the purchase of the entire stock of the above book: "OCCUPATIONS FOR WOMEN," we are enabled to put this wonderful book within the reach of every woman reader of this paper. It contains 500 royal quarto pages, elegantly printed on fine toned paper with 100 illustrations; Size 7 x 9 inches when closed and is Bound in Cloth, Illuminated Cover.

Regular Price, = = = $3.75

Special Bargain Price, $1.00

Remember... this special price pays all express charges and delivers this magnificent book weighing 3 lbs., 4½ ounces, size when closed 7 x 9 inches, absolutely free of expense. If the stock is exhausted when your order is received, we will return the money at once, and as we only have sufficient copies to supply a small percentage of the subscribers of "The Christian Herald," we trust you will be fortunate enough to avail yourself of this exceptional offer. Send money by P.O. money order or registered letter. Write name and address plainly, giving nearest express office.

P. B. BROMFIELD & CO., Bible House, New York City

Growing Children

When children are growing they require an excessive amount of food, not only to supply the waste due to their active habits, but to supply constructive material to their growing frames. Cereal foods are among those necessary to the best growth and wheat is the best of the cereals.

CREAM OF WHEAT

is the most nutritious of the wheat food preparation, as it is free from the indigestible husk,contains only a little starch, which is the poorest of foods, and retains all the really nutrient elements.

Cream of Wheat Co., Minneapolis, Minn.

Hearing Restored

by the use of

Wilson's Common Sense Ear Drums

The only scientific sound conductors. Invisible, comfortable, efficient. They fit in the ear. Doctors recommend them. Thousands testify to their efficiency.

Information and Booklet Free.

WILSON EAR DRUM CO.,
223 Trust Bldg., Louisville, Ky.

1 YEARS FREE TRIAL
ESTD 51 YEARS
FACTORY TO FAMILY DIRECT
PIANOS FROM 155.00
ORGANS FROM 25.00
MORE THAN ONE QUARTER MILLION SATISFIED CUSTOMERS
The world famous Cornish plan places a Piano or Organ in your own home on One Year's Free Trial. No other manufacturers anywhere show such faith in the honest goodness of their instruments, that they dare put them to so supreme a test. The Cornish American Pianos and Organs, the very highest consummation of musical experience and skill, are Guaranteed for 25 Years. Moreover, they are sold at prices that cannot be duplicated. Let us place an instrument in your home on One Year's Free Trial. You convince yourself. Over one quarter million have been sold,—not one has been unsatisfactory.
The great Souvenir Catalogue Sent Free. It is lithographed in many colors. It tells all about this famous Cornish plan. It describes the wonderful Cornish instruments fully. It tells how you can secure a Cornish Piano or Organ free of charge by our Co-operative Plan. You should read it, whether you buy or not. Write at once. It's FREE. Don't delay, as a prompt response will secure you a discount of $10 on any Organ, and $20 on any Piano listed in our 1900 catalogue.
ORCHESTRAL ATTACHMENT FREE
CASH OR EASY PAYMENTS
CORNISH & CO. WASHINGTON, NEW JERSEY
REFERENCES: OUR BANK, YOUR BANK, ANY BANK, ANY CUSTOMER.

6 Per Cent. Principal .... Amply Secured.

The non-speculative character of this Company's operations, and its record of successful work, are the features that recommend it. We pay 6 per cent. per annum in quarterly dividends on sums of $50 or more.

Assets, $1,150,000. Surplus (accumulated in seven years), $150,000. Our securities are bonds and mortgages on improved real estate in New York and Pennsylvania — non-fluctuating, not speculative. Subject to supervision and regular annual examination by the State Banking department.

We refer, by special permission, to many clergymen and other prominent professional and business men.

Please apply for information in detail.

Industrial Savings & Loan Co.,
1133 Broadway, New York.

Surveying

is one way to a successful career as a Civil Engineer. Mechanical and Architectural Drafting are stepping stones to paying professions. Busy men can prepare by our method of teaching by mail to

Take a Better Position

No interruption of work. No loss of salary. Courses in Bridge, Steam, Electrical or Civil Engineering, Architectural or Mechanical Drafting, Architecture, Book-keeping, Shorthand, English Branches.

THE INTERNATIONAL CORRESPONDENCE SCHOOLS,
Box 861, SCRANTON, PA.

RUBIFOAM

CLEANSES THE TEETH AND STOPS DECAY WITHOUT THE USE OF GRITTY TOOTH POWDER. A PERFECT LIQUID DENTIFRICE PRICE, 25c. AT DRUGGISTS. E. W. HOYT & CO., MAKERS, LOWELL, MASS.

The Natural Body Brace advertised in this paper in the first issue of this month, is a delightful, certain remedy for ailments peculiar to women and girls. It makes walking and work easy; gives good figure and light step. Write the Natural Body Brace Co., Box 171, Salina, Kan., for free illustrated book.

Immediate Relief from Rheumatism

Mr. W. H. Jenkins writes from Topeka, Kan., under date of August 5th, 1898;

GENTS:—Several years ago I was crippled with rheumatism, and for 162 weeks I was unable to do business of any kind, and in that time I have expended nearly $3,000. I had given up all hope.

My mother saw your advertisement, and we ordered one bottle of your Tartarlithine, which gave me immediate relief.

I have recommended your medicine to a number of parties in this city, who have had chronic rheumatism for years. One of them, a lady 68 years of age, is now doing her own work. So far your medicine has not failed to make a cure. * * *

In conclusion your medicine is just as represented, and has entirely eliminated the disease from my body.

Tartarlithine is supplied in bottles containing 50 doses at $1.00 and can be obtained of all druggists or post-free by mail. Pamphlets with Testimonials sent FREE.

McKESSON & ROBBINS,
91 Fulton Street, New York,
Sole Agents for THE TARTARLITHINE CO.

BICYCLES FOR EVERYBODY. NO MONEY IN ADVANCE.

Shipped direct to anyone and guaranteed as represented or money refunded. Save agents large profits and get a wheel at rock bottom wholesale price. Our Arlington Model K is the greatest bargain ever offered; in lots of one or more at $14.85

$14.85

$35 "Arlington" $16.50
$40 " $18.50
$50 "Oakwood" $21.50

Good wheels $12.50, $11.00 & $10.00 Stripped Wheels $7.00

the Arlington & Oakwood are strictly high grade and the best that can be made. Thoroughly tested and fully guaranteed. Over 100,000 riders can testify to their superior quality, style, construction and workmanship. Illustrated catalog free. CASH BUYERS' UNION,
162 W. Van Buren St., B-18, Chicago, Ills.

ALUMINUM NOVELTIES, HOUSEHOLD AND TOILET ARTICLES.

Rivals Silverware in appearance and durability. Gold Aluminum Jewelry the wonder of the 20th Century. Our beautiful illustrated catalogue upon application. FREE

L. & H. SUPPLY CO.,
44 Commercial Ave., - - Binghamton, N. Y.

BOYS PAPER FREE if you will send names of 5 boy friends over 12 years of age we will send you the Star for 3 months free. Greatest boys' paper published. Address with stamp, THE STAR, Dept. 30, OAK PARK, ILLS.

MADE-TO-ORDER CLOTHING.

EXPRESSAGE PAID.

The kind of Suits and Overcoats that are made by the best city Merchant Tailors at from $50 to $75 are sold by us at from $5.95 to $20, and we pay expressage, and ship to you C. O. D. Our big new Clothing Book, with large cloth samples for Suits, Overcoats and Trousers, is yours for the asking. We guarantee to fit you, and to sell you High-Art Clothing at about one-quarter regular prices. Address this way:

JULIUS HINES & SON,
BALTIMORE, MD. Dept. 218

VIVE Souvenir Camera GIVEN AWAY!

For the purpose of advertising our full line of elegant 1900 Vive Cameras. More than this

We will allow you $1.00 for it at any time toward the purchase of any higher priced Vive at catalogue prices. This splendid little instrument takes large 2½ x 2½ pictures. The lens is a fine warranted one of our own grinding. Drop us a postal for full particulars and sample pictures free VIVE CAMERA COMPANY, 206 Stewart Building, Chicago.

CHRISTIAN HERALD

AND SIGNS OF OUR TIMES

OFFICES: BIBLE HOUSE, NEW YORK

Rev. T. De Witt Talmage, D.D., Editor

COPYRIGHT, 1900, BY LOUIS KLOPSCH

NEW YORK, JULY 4, 1900

VOLUME 23—NUMBER 27

PRICE FIVE CENTS

Celebrating the Fourth at Our Children's Home at Mont-Lawn SEE PAGE 553

Our Mail-Bag

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

1. These questions are printed Four weeks in advance so as to afford all our readers an opportunity to answer them.
2. For answers to the questions which appear below, when accepted, we will allow compensation for the matter used at the rate of One Dollar a hundred words. Answers should so far as possible be limited to one hundred words.
3. Answers must be received at this office two weeks in advance of the date in which they are intended to appear.
4. The editor reserves the right to condense accepted answers when necessary, and compensation will be based on the matter as printed.
5. Do not write inquiring if your material has been accepted. If it appears on this page, you will know that it has been accepted.
6. We cannot return any MSS. sent to the Editor of THE MAIL BAG—not even if stamps accompany them.
7. Write only on one side of the sheet and never send on the same sheet anything intended for any other department of the paper. Correspondents answering more than one question should append their name and address to each answer.
8. Address all communications intended for this department. EDITOR THE MAIL-BAG,

The Christian Herald, Bible House, New York.

These Questions Will be Answered Aug. 1

1. On being introduced to a stranger, when the stranger remarks: "I am glad to meet you;" what is the best form of reply?
2. Was the conduct of Esther in pleading for another day of destruction (Esther 9: 12, 13) worthy of commendation?
3. What is the smallest republic in the world and where is it situated?
4. Do evolutionists expect a higher order of beings will be developed, or that evolution has reached its limit?
5. What parts of the world are inhabited exclusively by men, and what part exclusively by women?
6. What is the origin of the military phrase to "give no quarter?"
7. Is there any way of explaining the miracle of the sun and moon standing still (Joshua 10: 12, 13), seeing that their standing still would not have the effect of prolonging the time for slaughter?
8. What is the history of the letter "J"?
9. When there is a labor strike, on a question of wages or hours, and men are wanted to fill the places vacated by the strikers, is the Christian workingman justified in offering his services?
10. When, where and by whom was the "Passion Play" originated?

Questions of the Week

1. What does the expression, "the Lord's day," in Rev. 1: 10, imply?

The first day of the week, the Christian Sabbath, the anniversary of Christ's resurrection from the dead. On this day Christ appeared to his assembled disciples, and we learn from 1. Cor. 16: 1, 2, that the Christians observed the first day as a day of worship because it commemorated the greatest event in the history of mankind. In Acts 20: 6-11, we learn that the Christians at Troas made the first day of the week their date for public worship. The early Christian fathers say that Christians called this day "The Lord's Day;" and Pliny the Younger, near the close of the first century, wrote to the Emperor Trajan that the early Christians assembled for worship on "The Lord's Day," the first of the week. For nineteen centuries it has been so-called because of the resurrection of Christ.

ADA L. MCJUNKIN.

2. From what reputable institutions in the United States can degrees in art, science and literature be secured by correspondence?

There are several "correspondence" educational institutions, notably those at Dansville, Philadelphia and Scranton, which confer diplomas for successful examinations, but no high class educational institution confers degrees on non-resident students. The Correspondence College at Irvington may contemplate such action. Chautauqua confers degrees for certain special courses of study, which may be conducted by mail.

M. A. RENTON.

3. What is the origin of the expression, "to take a person down a peg or two?"

It originated in a curious custom among the old vikings. They were hard drinkers, and at their feasts would emulate one another in their capacity for strong drink, the horns or flagons of wine being measured off with pegs. These rude seafarers strove to drink down their comrades so many "pegs," which meant so much more liquor. At a given signal, all about the board would raise the immense beakers filled with wine to their lips, to the cry or toast, "Gar-aus," and quaff the contents. From that old Norse, g r aus ("right out,") comes our modern word, "carouse."

C. A. U.

4. In what way should our churches be sustained financially? Are "ecclesiastical entertainment" permissible as a means of raising money for church support?

In my opinion, our churches should be sustained by voluntary offerings. "Freely ye have received, freely give." Throughout the Bible, God's acceptance of gifts, whether for the Temple service or in apostolic times, seems to have been in proportion to the willingness with which they were offered. In Ex. 25: 1, Moses is told to accept whatever is "offered willingly with the heart," and in Christ's commendation of the poor widow who gave two mites the teaching clearly is, that it is the spirit in which the gift is made more than the value of the gift itself that makes it acceptable to God. "For if there be first a willing mind, it is accepted according to that a man hath, and not according to that he hath not," and so far is this willing spirit to go that we are even to provide in advance for our gifts. "Upon the first day of the week, let every one of you lay by him in store," etc.

Ecclesiastical entertainments for raising money ignore this truth so plainly taught, being based on the assumption that we are not willing to give to God's cause without getting something in return for ourselves. So questionable a method of raising money has first an evil effect on outsiders, in that it leads to the belief that one branch of the Church's work is to make money and another to provide entertainment. A further argument against these entertainments—such as bazaars, etc.—is that they are not even conducted on sound business principles, which goes far to belittle the Church in the eyes of the world. Second, this class of entertainment has an evil effect upon the Church itself, as it brings to the front the members least spiritually-minded and gives them a controlling interest in its affairs; it diverts attention from the legitimate work of the Church; it arouses jealousies; it accentuates class distinctions; it places too much stress upon the value of money for conducting religious work; it cannot compete with similar attractions held by secular organizations; it obliterates the line that should always exist between the Church and the world.

I. H. ROBSON.

5. Is a preacher justified in introducing politics into his sermons?

A preacher must teach ethics—the science of human duty, social ethics, political ethics—else he is not doing his whole duty as pastor of a people. A preacher teaches through his sermons; he is justified in teaching all that makes men better, all that tends to uplift the body politic. He is not justified in keeping silent on questions of right and wrong. All great political propositions are moral questions—true or false, preachers must sift the wheat from the chaff but must not stoop to partisanship. Christ taught ethics in his sermons, i. e. our attitude toward our fellowman, as the necessary step to salvatian. Politics is ethics applied to national acts.

SARAH N. LYON.

6. Why do we make the rule to walk on our right-hand side, rather than our left, when on a thoroughfare?

Most of our social customs date back to the days of chivalry, and this is one of them. The helmet was removed in the presence of friends as we remove our hats to-day; but for the opposite reason and because the street was not always safe men chose the right-hand side to be able better to draw and use the sword in case of attack.

VIRGINIA L. PHILLIPS.

7. What is the origin of the term, "the three R's," as applied to the studies of reading, writing and arithmetic?

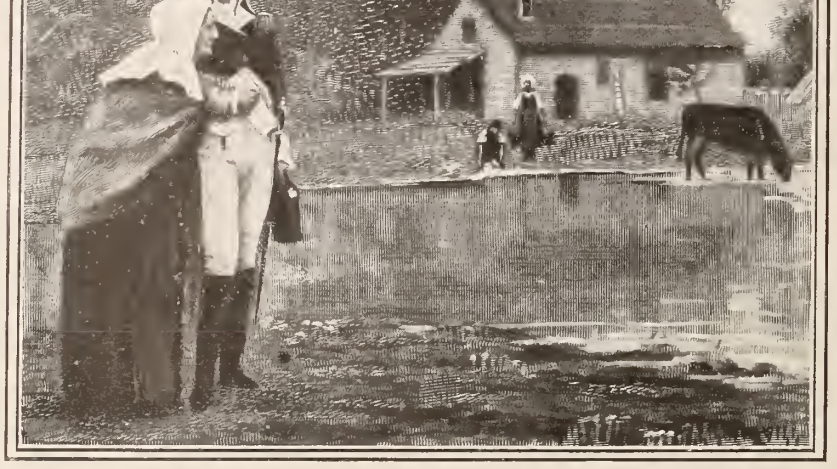
This phrase was originated by Sir William Curtis, Lord Mayor of London in 1795. A writer in Notes and Queeries says "I remember an aged member of the corporation, now deceased, asserting that Sir William Curtis—in the days when Dr. Bell and the Quaker Lancaster were pleading on behalf of increased facilities for the education of the poor—gave as a toast at a city dinner "The three R's." My friend assured me that Sir William Curtis, although a man of limited education, was very shrewd and not so ignorant as to suppose his presumed orthography was correct. He chose the phrase in the above form purely for a jocular reason.

NELLIE M. CUMMINGS.

8. May we suppose that the author of the Messianic Psalms was conscious of their application to the Messiah? Did he at all understand their prophetical character?

It is the manner of many Old Testament prophecies to have an application that is local and near, and another application more spiritual and remote. The author of the Messianic Psalms may have had some dim idea of their application to Christ, like Abraham, who saw his day afar off, like a star dimly shining on the far horizon of time. David's view of the day of Christ may possibly have been not so dim as Abraham's, but it certainly was not clear. How then did he use such graphic language about Christ as, for instance, when he says, "They pierced my hands and my feet?" Because David was a poet, and in describing his own case he used this strong figurative language. At the same time, the spirit was guiding him to use such language as would apply literally to him to whom all the prophets—consciously or unconsciously—bore witness.

REV. JOSEPH HAMILTON.



GEORGE WASHINGTON AND HIS MOTHER

This photograph, from a famous painting, shows the first President on the occasion of a visit to the old homestead in Stafford County, Virginia. His aged mother leans upon the arm of her distinguished son, who regards her with loving reverence. Washington's love for his mother was one of the most beautiful traits of a character, which, as a whole, has deservedly challenged the esteem and admiration of the world.

God of our sires and sons, let other Washingtons
Our country bless,
And, like the brave and wise of bygone centuries,
Show that true greatness lies in righteousness.

9. Who was the author of the expression, "murder will out?"

In the Nonne Prestes Tale, by Chaucer, Chauntecleer is telling a story to Pertelote from one of the gretteste of Auctours (Cicero), in which two fellow-travelers find it necessary to lodge apart. One dreams that his companion has been murdered for gold, and, when morning comes, directly finds the body as he saw it in his dream, thus convicting the murderer.

"O blissful God, that art so just and trewe Mordre wil out, that se we day by day."

MARION HORSFORD.

10. What are the seven so-called Bibles of the world?

The seven Bibles of the world are the Koran of the Mohammedans, the Tri Pitikes of the Buddhists, the Five Kings of the Chinese, the Three Vedas of the Hindus, the Zendavesta of the Persians, the Eddas of the Scandinavians, and the Scriptures of the Christians. The Koran is the most recent of all, dating from about the seventh century after Christ. It is a compound of quotations from both the Old and New Testaments and from the Talmud. The Tri Pitikes contain sublime morals and pure aspirations. Their author lived and died in the sixth century before Christ. The sacred writings of the Chinese are called the Five Kings, the word "kings," meaning web of cloth. From this it is presumed they were written on five rolls of cloth. They contain wise sayings from sages on the duties of life, but cannot be traced farther back than the eleventh century before Christ. The Vedas are the most ancient books in the language of the Hindus, but they do not, according to late commentators, antedate the twelfth century before the Christian era. The Zendavesta of the Persians, next to our Bible, is reckoned among scholars as being the greatest and most learned of the sacred writings. Zoroaster, whose sayings it contains, lived and worked in the twelfth century before Christ. The Eddas, a semi-sacred work of the Scandinavians, was given to the world in the fourteenth century. Moses lived and wrote, as I believe fifteen hundred years before the birth of Christ; therefore, his portions of our Bible are at least three hundred years older than the most ancient of other sacred writings.

ISABEL HOLLAND.

[Similar answers to the above have been received from Mary A. R., Mrs. James R. and several others, all evidently based on the same source of information].

Miscellaneous Questions

W., Turin, N. Y., writes:

In your reply to G. M., Patterson, N. J. (relative to a sentence which includes all the letters of the alphabet), you answer: "J. Gray, pack with my box five dozen quills"—33 letters. Please add thereto: "A quick brown fox jumped over the lazy dog"; "Pack my box with five dozen liquor jugs"; "Quiz Jack, thy frowns vex G. D. Plumb."

Rev. Dr. R. Cruikshank, Oakes, Colo., referring to a recent question in THE MAIL-BAG, writes:

While hypnotism may possibly be used by the medical profession in certain special cases with propriety, yet there are at least two serious objections against public exhibitions of hypnotic experiments: First, nervous persons may be seriously injured by such experiments, and second, the practice of hypnotism for the sake of gain or amusement lies along and even impinges forcibly upon the border-line of quackery and imposture.

A. J., a prisoner in the State Penitentiary, Salem, Ore., writes:

The only chance I get to read THE CHRISTIAN HERALD is when I see copies one or two years old. I wish some of your subscribers in this State would send their papers here after they are through with them. It would do lots of good.

W. T. M., Buffalo, Pa. What was the amount of internal revenue derived by the United States Government during 1899 from spirituous and fermented liquors; also from tobacco?

Distilled spirits, $99,283,543.16; fermented liquors, $68,644,558.45; tobacco, $52,493,207.64. The increase over 1898 in these three items was as follows: Distilled spirits, $6,736,543.39; fermented liquors, $29,129,137.31; tobacco, $16,262,685.27.

Reader, Newark, N. J. Does the law make it necessary that a minister should put a ten cent revenue stamp on the marriage certificate?

The law does not specify who shall affix the stamp. It simply says, "Certificate of any description required by law not otherwise specified in this act—10 cents." The clergyman, the groom, the best man, the bride's father, any friend present, or even the bride herself may do so legally. It is altogether a matter of choice, but good taste would suggest that either the pastor or best man should attend to the matter.

M. T., Dillsboro, Ind. What is the correct pronunciation of the Bible name, "Esther?"

Pronounce it as though written "Ester."

M. D. M., Happyland, Ala. 1. Was Isaac Watts ever an infidel? 2. To what denomination did he belong? 3. What is meant in Psalm 106: 28, by the sacrifices of the dead?

1. No. 2. To the Independents or Congregationalists. 3. Sacrifices offered to lifeless, or dead, idols, in contrast to those offered to the living God.

W. A. S., Shreve, O. Queen Victoria's maiden name was Guelph.

A reader, Aronia, Pa. Your question has been answered in this department before.

Subscriber, Angus, Ia. Write to the mint or the Smithsonian Institute, Washington, D. C.

Mrs. John S., Elston, Mo. We don't know all the facts in the case, and therefore cannot express an opinion.

G. H. S., Chicago. "Quire" is a quantity of paper; "Choir," a body of singers. Anciently, the latter was occasionally spelled like the former.

Mrs. S. M., Calif. The case you mention only goes to show that a man's wife is more to him than all his kin. Yet even that fact is no excuse for injustice and ingratitude.

L. E. B. There are reasons why we do not care to answer your questions in THE MAIL-BAG Department. We cannot answer you by letter, because you failed to send your address.

Albert B., Roseville, O. 1. The prevailing opinion was that, if accepted, it should be applied to rescue and orphanage work only. 2. Yes, by the process of evaporation. 3. Charles Brown, now dead.

THE CITADEL OF PEKIN BOXER PRISONERS WEARING THE "KANJO" THE FRENCH LEGATION AT PEKIN (DESTROYED)

By Permission Collier's Weekly

POWERS UNITE TO RESTORE ORDER

CHINA A PREY TO ANARCHY

GREAT ARMIES TO QUELL THE BOXERS

CHINA'S rebellion is proving a tremendous surprise to the foreign powers. Instead of yielding quickly before the attacks of trained troops, the Boxers, with the imperial Chinese troops as allies, have proved themselves able to repulse any land attack they have encountered up to the present time. The secret of it all is that China learned a lesson from the war with Japan. For over three years she has been accumulating modern rifles at the rate of 500,000 a year; and she has also secured, through what European agency is not made clear, a large number of Krupp guns of heavy calibre. Her troops, and especially her artillery, show the results of European training. In conjunction with the Boxers, they have proved an overpowering obstacle in the way of the repeated attempts by the foreign forces to relieve Pekin and Tien-Tsin. Admiral Seymour's mixed relieving force of 1,500 men is now said to have been cut to pieces before it could reach the capital, and the little detachment of 130 Americans and 400 Russians, sent from Taku to succor the foreign garrison at Tien-Tsin, was surrounded by 20,000 Chinese troops—regulars and Boxers together—armed with repeating rifles and rapid-fire guns. The little force, under Major Waller, was compelled to retire precipitately to avoid utter rout. As it was, four American marines were killed and seven wounded. The Russians are said to have suffered heavily. Another international relief column, 4,000 strong, have started from Taku for Tien-Tsin.

Chinese claims say the Boxers in North China alone number over 3,000,000. What they lack in military training they make up in sheer force of numbers and in their ferocity against all foreigners. Thousands of the Boxers have been slaughtered by the defenders of the foreign quarter of Tien-Tsin and also by the international forces at Taku and in the various engagements that have taken place; but these losses do not seem to have produced any discouragement, for the Boxer hordes are steadily multiplying and threaten to overrun the whole Empire. While the foreign fleets are unquestionably able to control the seaboard, it is clear that only powerful armies, equipped with all the modern enginery of war, can hope for a successful campaign on land against such gigantic numbers as the Boxers can put in the field. At this writing, all the foreign powers are ostensibly working in harmony for China's pacification; but it is, nevertheless, apparent that the ruling passion for territorial gain must sooner or later declare itself. All the powers are now hurrying forward preparations for putting large forces in the field and also for increasing their naval strength in Chinese waters. Our own government has ordered 4,500 soldiers under Gen. R. H. Hall, from the Philippines to Taku, and Admiral Remey will assume command of our squadron in Chinese waters. Russia is putting its Eastern Siberian army on a war footing. Germany, France, Great Britain and Japan will also put large forces in the field.

TIEN-TSIN, WHERE 1,500 FOREIGNERS ARE SAID TO HAVE BEEN MASSACRED

It should be recorded, in justice to our own Government, that, while it is taking ample measures to protect Americans and American interests, it has declared emphatically that it will have no part or share in a war of conquest, and will agree to no policy which aims at the dismemberment of China.

It is significant that, while no word comes from any European or American in Pekin, Chinese sources of information appear to be intact. Minister Wu of the Chinese Embassy at Washington, has received assurances that the foreign legations in Pekin are safe, including U. S. Minister Conger, and the French Minister. Shanghai advices say the Dowager Empress decreed the slaughter of all foreigners, but there is a strong hope that such reports may prove to be exaggerations. There is also hope that Li Hung Chang's visit to Pekin in the interest of peace may produce good results.

Nothing is yet positively known regarding the safety of the various parties of missionaries in the disturbed provinces, but it is not improbable that some of those devoted workers have fallen victims to the fury of the Boxer attacks on Tien-Tsin and the capital. There are rumors of 1,500 foreigners having perished in Tien-Tsin alone; but no details have been received, and there is still ground for hoping that the disaster may not be so serious as it would appear from native rumors. That city was subjected to a continuous bombardment for several days with forty-five heavy Krupp guns and the foreign quarter is said to have been practically obliterated. It is specifically stated that the American consulate and the British and French settlements were levelled. Prince Tuan led the Chinese attack, with 40,000 troops including artillery. The second relief column has now probably reached the city.

METHODIST MISSION HOUSE, TIEN-TSIN (PROBABLY DESTROYED)

A SCHOOL FOR NATIVE CHRISTIANS, TIEN-TSIN (PROBABLY DESTROYED)

THE METROPOLITAN PULPIT.

The Best to Come

A Sermon by Rev. T. De Witt Talmage, D.D., on the Text, John 2: 10 . . . . Thou hast kept the good wine until now

THIS chapter invites us to a marriage celebration. It is a wedding in common life, two plain people having pledged each other, hand and heart, and their friends having come in for congratulation. The joy is not the less because there is no pretension. In each other they find all the future they want. The daisy in the cup on the table may mean as much as a score of artistic garlands fresh from the hot-house. When a daughter goes off from home with nothing but a plain father's blessing and a plain mother's love, she is missed as much as though she were a princess. It seems hard, after the parents have sheltered her for eighteen years, that in a few short months her affections should have been carried off by another; but mother remembers how it was in her own case when she was young, and so she braces up until the wedding has passed, and the banqueters are gone, and she has a cry all alone.

Well, we are to-day at the wedding in Cana of Galilee. Jesus and his mother have been invited. It is evident that there are more people there than were expected. Either some people have come who were not invited, or more invitations have been sent out than it was supposed would be accepted. Of course there is not a sufficient supply of wine. You know that there is nothing more embarrassing to a housekeeper than a scant supply. Jesus sees the embarrassment, and he comes up immediately to relieve it. He sees standing six water-pots. He orders the servants to fill them with water, then he waves his hand over the water, and immediately it is wine—real wine. Taste of it, and see for yourselves; no logwood in it, no strychnine in it, but first-rate wine. I will not now be diverted to the question so often discussed in my own country, whether it is right to drink wine. I am describing the scene as it was. When God makes wine he makes the very best wine; and one hundred and thirty gallons of it standing around in these water-pots—wine so good that the ruler of the feast tastes it, and says: "Why, this is really better than anything we have had! Thou hast kept the good wine until now." Beautiful miracle! A prize was offered to the person who should write the best essay about the miracle in Cana. Long manuscripts were presented in the competition, but a poet won the prize by just this one line descriptive of the miracle: "The conscious water saw its God, and blushed."

We learn from this miracle, in the first place, that Christ has sympathy with housekeepers. You might have thought that Jesus would have said: "I cannot be bothered with this household deficiency of wine. It is not for me, Lord of heaven and of earth, to become caterer to this feast. I have vaster things than this to attend to." Not so said Jesus. The wine gave out, and Jesus, by miraculous power came to the rescue. Does there ever come a scant supply in your household? Have you to make a very close calculation? Is it hard work for you to carry on things decently and respectably? If so, don't sit down and cry. Don't go out and fret; but go to him who stood in the house in Cana of Galilee. Pray in the parlor! Pray in the kitchen! Let there be no room in all your house unconsecrated by the voice of prayer. If you have a microscope, put under it one drop of water, and see the insects floating about; and when you see that God makes them, and cares for them, and feeds them, come to the conclusion that he will take care of you and feed you.

A boy asked if he might sweep the snow from the steps of a house. The lady of the household said, "Yes; you seem very poor." He says, "I am very poor." She says, "Don't you sometimes get discouraged, and feel that God is going to let you starve?" The lad looked up in the woman's face and said, "Do you think God will let me starve when I trust him and then do the best I can?" Enough theology for older people! Trust in God and do the best you can. Amidst all the worriments of housekeeping, go to him; he will help you control your temper, and supervise your domestics, and entertain your guests, and manage your home economies. There are hundreds of women, weak and nervous and exhausted with the care of housekeeping. I commend you to the Lord Jesus Christ as the best adviser and the most efficient aid—the Lord Jesus who performed his first miracle to relieve a housekeeper.

I learn also from this miracle that Christ does things in abundance. I think a small supply of wine would have made up for the deficiency. I think, certainly, they must have had enough for half the guests. One gallon of wine will do; certainly five gallons will be enough; certainly ten. But Jesus goes on and he gives them thirty gallons, and forty gallons, and fifty gallons, and seventy gallons, and one hundred gallons, and one hundred and thirty gallons of the very best wine. It is just like him—doing everything on the largest and most generous scale. Does Christ, our Creator, go forth to make leaves? He makes them by the whole forest full: notched like the fern, or silvered like the aspen, or broad like the palm; thickets in the tropics; Oregon forests. Does he go forth to make flowers? He makes plenty of them: they flame from the hedge, they hang from the top of the grapevine in blossoms, they roll in the blue wave of the violets, they toss their white surf in the spiræa—enough for every child's hand a flower, enough to make for every brow a chaplet, enough with beauty to cover up the ghastliness of all the grave. Does he go forth to create water? He pours it out, not by the cupful, but by a river full, a lake full, an ocean full; pouring it out until all the earth has enough to drink, and enough with which to wash.

Does Jesus provide redemption? It is not a little salvation for this one, a little for that, and a little for the other; but enough for all—"Whosoever will, let him come." Each man an ocean full for himself. Promises for the young, promises for the old, promises for the lowly, promises for the blind, for the halt, for the outcast, for the abandoned. Pardon for all, comfort for all, mercy for all, heaven for all: not merely a cupful of Gospel supply, but one hundred and thirty gallons. Ay, the tears of godly repentance are all gathered up into God's bottle, and some day, standing before the throne, we will lift our cup of delight, and ask that it be filled with the wine of heaven; and Jesus, from that bottle of tears, will begin to pour in the cup, and we will cry, "Stop, Jesus, we do not want to drink our own tears!" and Jesus will say, "Know ye not that the tears of earth are the wine of heaven?" Sorrow may endure for a night, but joy cometh in the morning.

I remark, further, Jesus does not shadow the joys of others with his own griefs. He might have sat down in that wedding and said: "I have so much trouble, so much poverty, so much persecution, and the Cross is coming; I shall not rejoice, and the gloom of my face and of my sorrows shall be cast over all this group." So said not Jesus. He said to himself: "Here are two persons starting out in married life. Let it be a joyful occasion. I will hide my own griefs. I will kindle their joy." There are many not so wise as that. I know a household where there are many little children, where for two years the musical instrument has been kept shut because there has been trouble in the house. Alas for the folly! Parents saying: "We will have no Christmas-tree this coming holiday, because there has been trouble in the house. Hush that laughing upstairs! How can there be any joy when there has been so much trouble?" And so they make everything consistently doleful, and send their sons and daughters to ruin with the gloom they throw around them.

O, my dear friends, do you not know those children will have trouble enough of their own after a while? Be glad they cannot appreciate all yours. Keep back the cup of bitterness from your daughter's lips. When your head is down in the grass of the tomb, poverty may come to her, betrayal to her, bereavement to her. Keep back the sorrows as long as you can. Do you not know that that son may, after a while, have his heart broken? Stand between him and all harm. You may not fight his battles long; fight them while you may. Throw not the chill of your own despondency over his soul; rather, be like Jesus, who came to the wedding hiding his own grief, and kindling the joys of others. So I have seen the sun on a dark day, struggling amidst clouds, black, ragged, and portentous, but after a while the sun, with golden pry, heaved back the blackness; and the sun laughed to the lake, and the lake laughed to the sun, and from horizon to horizon, under the saffron sky, the water was all turned into wine.

I learn from this miracle that Christ is not impatient with the luxuries of life. It was not necessary that they should have that wine. Hundreds of people have been married without any wine. We do not read that any of the other provisions fell short. When Christ made the wine it was not a necessity, but a positive luxury. I do not believe that he wants us to eat hard bread and sleep on hard mattresses, unless we like them the best. I think, if circumstances will allow, we have a right to the luxuries of dress, the luxuries of diet, and the luxuries of residence. There is no more religion in an old coat than in a new one. We can serve God drawn by golden-plated harness as certainly as when we go a-foot. Jesus Christ will dwell with us under a fine ceiling as well as under a thatched roof.

What is the difference between a Chinese mud hovel and an American home? What is the difference between the rough bear-skins of the Russian boor and the outfit of an American gentleman? No difference except that which the gospel of Christ, directly or indirectly, has caused.

I learn, further, from this miracle, that Christ has no impatience with festal joy, otherwise he would not have accepted the invitation to that wedding. He certainly would not have done that which increased the hilarity. There may have been many in that room who were happy, but there was not one of them that did so much for the joy of the wedding party as Christ himself. He was the chief of the banqueters. When the wine gave out, he supplied it; and so, I take it, he will not deny us the joys that are positively festal.

I think the children of God have more right to laugh than any other people, and to clap their hands as loudly. There is not a single joy denied them that is given to any other people. Christianity does not clip the wings of the soul. What is Christianity? I take it to be simply a proclamation from the throne of God of emancipation for all the enslaved; and if a man accepts the terms of that proclamation, and becomes free, has he not a right to be merry? Suppose a father has an elegant mansion and large grounds. To whom will he give the first privilege of these grounds? Will he say: "My children, you must not walk through these paths, or sit down under these trees, or pluck this fruit. These are for outsiders. They may walk in them." No father would say anything like that. He would say: "The first privileges in all the grounds and all of my house, shall be for my own children." And yet men try to make us believe that God's children are on the limits, and the chief refreshments and enjoyments of life are for outsiders, and not for his own children. It is stark atheism. There is no innocent beverage too rich for God's child to drink: there is no robe too costly for him to wear; there is no hilarity too great for him to indulge in, and no house too splendid for him to live in. He has a right to the joys of earth; he shall have a right to the joys of heaven. Though tribulation and trial and hardship may come unto him, let him rejoice. "Rejoice in the Lord, ye righteous, and again I say, rejoice."

I remark, again, that Christ comes to us in the hour of our extremity. He knew the wine was giving out before there was any embarrassment or mortification. Why did he not perform the miracle sooner? Why wait until it was all gone, and no help could come from any source, and then come in and perform the miracle? This is Christ's way; and when he did come in, at the hour of extremity, he made first-rate wine, so that they cried out: "Thou hast kept the good wine until now." Jesus in the hour of extremity! He seems to prefer that hour.

You mourned over your sins. You could not find the way out. You sat down and said: "God will not be merciful. He has cast me off;" but in that, the darkest hour of your history, light broke from the throne, and Jesus said: "O, wanderer, come home; I have seen all thy sorrows. In this, the hour of thy extremity, I offer thee pardon and everlasting life!"

Trouble came. You were almost torn to pieces by that trouble. You braced yourself up against it. You said: "I will be a stoic, and will not care;" but before you had got through making the resolution, it broke down under you. You felt that all your resources were gone, and then Jesus came. "In the fourth watch of the night," the Bible says, "Jesus came walking on the sea." Why did he not come in the first watch? or in the second watch? or in the third watch? I do not know. He came in the fourth, and gave deliverance to his disciples. Jesus in the last extremity!

I wonder if it will be so in our very last extremity. We shall fall suddenly sick, and doctors will come, but in vain. We will try the anodynes, and the stimulants and the bathings, but all in vain. Something will say: "You must go." No one to hold us back, but the hands of eternity stretched out to pull us on. What then? Jesus will come to us, and as we say, "Lord Jesus, I am afraid of that water; I cannot wade through to the other side," he will say, "Take hold of my arm;" and we will take hold of his arm, and then he will put his foot in the surf of the wave, taking us on down, deeper, deeper, deeper, and our soul will cry, "All thy waves and billows have gone over me." They cover the feet, come to the knee, and pass the girdle and come to the head, and our soul cries out, "Lord Jesus Christ, I cannot hold thine arm any longer." Then Jesus will turn around, throw both his arms about us, and set us on the beach far beyond the tossing of the angry, seething billows. Jesus in the last extremity!

That wedding scene is gone now. The wedding-ring has been lost, the tankards have been broken, the house is down; but Jesus invites us to a grander wedding. You know the Bible says that the Church is the Lamb's wife, and the Lord will after awhile come to fetch her home. There will be gleaming of torches in the sky, and the trumpets of God will ravish the air with their music; and Jesus will stretch out his hand, and the Church, robed in white, will put aside her veil, and look up into the face of her Lord the King, and the bridegroom will say to the bride: "Thou hast been faithful through all these years! The mansion is ready! Come home! Thou art fair, my love!" and then he shall put upon her brow the crown of dominion, and the table will be spread, and it will reach across the skies, and the mighty ones of heaven will come in, garlanded with beauty and striking their cymbals; and the bridegroom and bride will stand at the head of the table, and the banqueters, looking up, will wonder and admire, and say: "That is Jesus the bridegroom! But the scar on his brow is covered with the coronet, and the stab in his side is covered with a robe!" and, "That is the bride! The weariness of her earthly woe lost in the flush of this wedding triumph!"

There will be wine enough at that wedding; not coming up from the poisoned vats of earth, but the vineyards of God will press their ripest clusters, and the cups and the tankards will blush to the brim with the heavenly vintage, and the banqueters will drink. And the mother of Jesus, from the wedding in Cana, will be there. And they all will agree that the earthly feasting was poor compared with that. Then, lifting their chalices in that light, they shall cry to the Lord of the feast: "Thou hast kept the good wine until now."

"The Fourth" at our Children's Home

★ ★ ★ A Joyous Host of Little Tots ... Jubilant Patriotism and Grateful Hearts ... A Day of Rare Enjoyment... ★ ★ ★

ANOTHER Fourth of July at Mont-Lawn, the beautiful and beloved fresh-air home of our little tenement waifs, has come and will be celebrated with royal enthusiasm. What a day of delights it is to these poor children, to whom such ays are all too few and far between! In he gray dawn teachers are up decorating he buildings with red, blue and white, and tarry bunting. It is lovely to watch the hildren's surprise on awakening to find heir home so bright and beautiful. As oon as their eyes open they ask, "Teach-r, dey says you gives fire-crackers on de o'rt: is that so?" "Yes." "Teacher, m I goin' to get a pack of fire-crackers." Yes." Then a chorus, "Me too!" "Me oo!" "Me too!"

Children of many nationalities are pres-nt: and the American child, born of merican parents, wants to impress little taly, Syria, Ireland, Germany, France, nd other countries, with the importance f a Fourth of July; and teachers want o make the little aliens feel that their ew country is theirs and must be loved, nd its institutions revered. After the re-crackers are all gone, and the beauti-l lawn a perfect litter, the little men nd women anticipating their afternoon arade and visitors, work like troopers, icking up the debris. There is no need f compulsion. "It's our Home!" they y, proudly, "Our company is coming."

Fourth of July dinner is a glorious feast: ncy roast, fresh vegetables from the arden, bread, utter, milk, fruit nd pie, is the ill-of-fare to hich the hungry ost, after sing-g their little ymn of thanks o God, do full istice. Many of hese children arely sit down o a meal at table, r have enough to at at any one me in all their ves before com-ng to Mont-Lawn: and the apidity with hich edibles isappear before eir inroads on rdinary days is eyond the im-gination of ose who have ot witnessed it: n Fourth of uly, the scene eggars descrip-ion.

The Flag-Drill and Salute

Visitors come rom far and near o witness the fternoon parade nd flag salute and evening programme. he children greet their guests with joyous heers and the sweet, spontaneous hospi-ality natural to childhood, but which the ass of these little ones have never in all heir lives before been privileged to exer-ise. They are ready for parade, faces lean of fire-cracker powder, hands wash-d, hair combed, and—Oh, joy of joys!—rrayed in good, clean clothes, the gifts of any kind friends. A long, glad line it is f happy, grateful little lads and lassies n pink, blue, red, green, and yellow resses and blouses, waiting for the dis-ribution of small flags that are to be iven them. It would make any patriotic eart beat quick to see the eager look of nquiry and desire change to one of pride nd joy as each little one receives its flag ntil every child has one, and the ban-ered line marches, kindergarten tots eading, and all singing:

There are many flags in many lands.
There are flags of every hue,
But there is no flag in any land
Like our own red, white and blue.

The flower-like chain weaves "in and out and roundabout" over the lawn, and draws at last a charmed circle about the big flag floating from a stately flag-pole on the noble terrace overlooking the river. By this time "America," "Columbia, the Gem of the Ocean," and the whole cluster of patriotic songs have been sung, and the children are back again to the "Flag Song"—"There are many flags in many lands." All around the big flag they stand, two hundred children, in double and triple circles, waving their little flags and singing at the top of their voices. Presently they drop like a garland of flowers on the green grass and listen to a few tender, patriotic words, at the end of which they rise and salute the flag, bringing their little hands to their heads and then to their hearts as they utter the words pledging their faith.

Ice-cream and Fireworks

About five, a tea of bread and butter, berries and milk is greatly enjoyed: then the little people scatter about the grounds at their own sweet will, talk to their visitors, cheer all the carriages that come and go, and listen to stories, swing in scups, and every few minutes ask Housemother Collins: "When's next parade?" Presently the bell rings: the little drummer starts a merry rat-tat-tat: blue, pink and red dresses and blouses, with gold, brown and black braids, and curls flying above them, flock pell-mell into line, clamoring for flags: the garland of human flowers repeats itself and settles on the green—pretty enough to tempt the very bees! The crowning glory of the day has come—a treat of ice cream! All are served: nobody is forgotten. Every little face is in full view of the visitors, who are prone to observe: "Did I ever know before what a pleasure it is to eat?"

One of the children's greatest joys that day consists in dispensing the hospitalities of their Home, one feature of which is the serving of ice-cream to their guests. Poor little ones! Many of them never experienced before a single sweet privilege of hospitality. After the cream comes the evening's climax of delights, the fireworks, always the personal gift of Dr. Klopsch, and who, though far away, remembered Mont-Lawn's children this year. As the rockets cleave the sky, a chorus of "O-oh's!" and "A-ah's!" almost stuns the ears of grown-up company who have to laugh at the eager outburst from the little men and women, who almost tumble over each other in expressions of wonder and joy. When fire-wheels and fire-fountains have flashed themselves out, and the last rocket dies a brilliant death in the evening sky, the children are dismissed to their several dormitories, where, after words of thanks to God, and of petition for Divine blessing on all the friends who have helped them to their outings, the little ones sleep the sleep of tired, happy childhood. Many a boy, when he comes to manhood, will look back to this glad Fourth of July as the day of a whole life: the day when patriotism, hospitality and Christianity were revealed to him as beautiful truths and living privileges. That it is the delight and privilege of the law-abiding, Christian citizen to love one's country, is exemplified to them in a Fourth of July at Mont-Lawn, as years of preaching and teaching could not exemplify it.

AN INTERESTED GROUP IN THE VEGETABLE GARDEN——GOOD TIMES UNDER CHERRY-TREES

Our front page shows our happy host, just as, marching from their patriotic recitations in the chapel, they turn their faces to greet the big flag as a pair of proud laddies run it up. Another—an everyday scene—displays a bit of our farm and vegetable garden, where some little folks have a good time every day pottering about in the wake of the gardener and his assistants, and of one of our teachers, who is an enthusiastic botanist, seizing every opportunity to show the children through nature's beneficence the wonderful hand of their Heavenly Father. Of our older boys, a number are acquiring some knowledge of farming and a taste for it through this very practical and attractive agricultural school, as our farm and garden might be called. The cherry-trees are a source of never-ending delight; first by the fruit, now by the leafy shade. It was so pretty to watch the little ones catch the scarlet treasures as they fell that grown-up visitors did not disdain to join in the sport. That cherries, apples and peaches grow on trees is a new discovery to some of our poor street waifs, who never saw fruit before except on push-carts and in grocery stores. "I t'ought apples growed in boxes," lisped a six-year-old maiden, her wonderful eyes uplifted to the miracle of apples on trees.

Will You Help?

Hundreds of poor, tattered, hungry tenement waifs are waiting eagerly for their turn to go to Mont-Lawn. Will not you send one? It costs only $3, which covers transportation both ways, food, shelter, clothing and caretaker's attention for ten days. Can you not interest your friends in this beautiful work? For $36, twelve poor children—a whole colony—can be made happy, and the very lives of some of them may be saved by the outing your kindness provides.

The following extracts from two letters recently received at this office show the character of the beneficiaries of our Fresh-Air work:

Dear Dr. Klopsch:—Will you be so kind as to take a little girl eight years old to THE CHRISTIAN HERALD Fresh-Air Home in the country? Her father dead, her mother lying very ill and cannot recover, I brought this little one home a few days ago and have made some clothing for her. It would be a blessing if you could give her a week in the country. She has never seen the country; never so much as a park. She is a real bright and obedient little child.

Of course this little maid was received. Mrs. St. James, missionary, wrote:

Most gratefully will I bring twenty-five children to you July 2. I may now satisfy the demands of the little folks who have been coming to my door every week during the past winter to ask: "When is that boat going to sail?" or "When is that country going to open?" One of the little girls who has begged so hard to go—offering to wash dishes or to do anything in return for the privilege—awoke one morning a short time ago to find her poor mother lying dead by her side. The woman had supported her large family by washing. Last summer she coveted a "whole Bible, like what was read out of at Mont-Lawn;" I saw that she got one, and great was her happiness. The little Steinbreckers' father died lately; their mother last summer. The poor wasted old grandmother begged me last week to try to "get them away." It is such a blessing to these poor struggling women of the tenements to have their little ones safe out of the streets; to have them fed, sheltered and cared for; the respite from their never-ceasing anxiety, given them through your Fresh-Air work, is a godsend. The Lord will reward THE CHRISTIAN HERALD and its readers.

These contributions for our Mont-Lawn Work have been received:

Prev. ack	$2,709.50	Stern, Mrs A J	1 00
Blauvelt, Emma, through	10 00	Stevenson, Mrs B F	50
Bliss, Mrs G L	3 00	Taber, Mrs M.	5 75
Brookman, W	2 50	Thompson, Alpha	3 00
Brooks, Matilda	1 00	Walker, Edith	10
Colvin, Wm & Ray	1 00	Wedemeyer, Lydia	1 00
Connell, Sarah & V	12	Wedemeyer, O	25
Curtis, Mrs H D	6 00	F O C & EMC, Lowell	2 00
Dowden, Mrs F M	1 00	Lissa B, Monmouth	3 00
Finlayson, C & J	50	J A W, Tidioute	5 00
Forbes, Mr & Mrs W D	5 00	L P M, Tunnehill	1 00
Girod, I	3 00	Q X Z, Pawtucket	6 00
Goodrich, Nellie	10	—, Birmingham	6 09
Graham, R	1 00	—, Georgetown	5 00
Griffiths, O	15 00	Friend	3 00
Hart, Mr & Mrs H	3 00	" Durham	3 00
Hirsch, Mrs J	50	" Evansville	3 00
Hunn, F L	10 00	" N Y City	3 00
Huntington, H	1 00	" Paterson	3 00
Igon, J	6 00	" Republic	15 00
Jackson, Emma	3 00	" Sand Coulee	3 00
Jenkins, Trixie	10	" Waynesboro	6 00
Johnson, Mrs L H	3 00	" Brooklyn	3 00
Johnson, N	3 00	I H N, Dalton	1 00
Lansaw, Jessie	10	" Heislerville	2 50
Leach, Coy	10	In mem'y of Louis P Tibbals	6 00
Little, Mrs & Mary	12 00	In mem'y of Howard Rushmere & Emma Appleby June, Bklyn	5 00
Longstreet, J A	3 00	Sub'r, La Crosse	3 00
Miller family	18 00	Unnamed, Monroe	10 00
Morgan, Le Roy	5 00	2 Dorcas sis's, Edgeley	50
Mulford, Mrs J E	10 00	3 sisters, Bishop	2 00
Needham, Anna	1 00	K Ds, N Newport	3 00
Needham, Mrs E G	2 00	C E s, St. Paul's Luth ch, Allentown	3 00
Nathan, A J	2 94	Loyal Cir K Ds, Immanuel Bapt ch, Albany	3 00
Northrup, A	2 00	K D Do What You Can Cir & others, Cedar Falls	5 00
Oliver, Mrs S A	3 00	Total	$2,994.15
Palmer, W S	9 00
Rushmore, Mrs R	3 00
Sherer, Mrs J W	2 00
Smith, Mrs J P	3 50
Smith, Lillie T	3 00
Stade, A	50

All contributions to the work will be acknowledged in THE CHRISTIAN HERALD.

Around the World with Josiah Allen's Wife

COPYRIGHT, 1899, BY MARIETTA HOLLEY

CHAPTER XXXI.

ILLUSTRATIONS BY H. M. PETTIT

Samantha in Paris

OUR first mornin' in Paris dawned clear and beautiful. 'Tain't often I do it, but I put my cameo pin on before breakfast, thinkin' that I could not assume too much grandeur for the occasion. The pin wuz clasped over a little bow of red, white, and blue, and in that bow and gray alpacky dress I looked exceedingly well and felt so.

Josiah put on a neck-tie bearin' all the national colors, with more flamin' stars on it, I guess, than we've got States, but I didn't censure him, knowin' his motives wuz good.

We all had comfortable rooms to the tarven that Robert had engaged months before. We wuz layin' out to all go to the Exposition together, but jest as we wuz startin' a friend of Dorothy's come to see her, and so she and Miss Meechim wuz belated, and when Dorothy wuz belated Robert wuz, too. They didn't know but we would want to wait till afternoon to begin our explorations together, but I sez to Josiah and Arvilly, "Under the circumstances I don't feel that I can delay a minute, we can start on and they can jine us in the afternoon. Arvilly wuz dressed in black throughout; I hinted to her she ort to wear some badge in honor of the day, and she retired to her room and appeared with a bow made of black lute string ribbin and crape. I felt dretful. I sez: "Arvilly, can't you wear sunthin' more appropriate to the occasion?"

Sez she, "I know what I am about," and her looks wuz such that I dassent peep about it. But mebby she meant it for mournin' for her pardner, I dassent ask. Josiah wuz readin' his Guide Book as earnest as he ever searched the Skripters, and he sez, with his finger markin' the place, "Where shall we go first? There is one place I won't go to and that is the Avenoo of Sufferin'; I suffer enough to hum."

A Patriotic Visit

Sez I, "If we are good Americans there is only one place we could think of visitin' first, and that is the United States Buildin'." Josiah still read on, and Arvilly looked onbelievin', but I sez, "I am willin' to see all the works of art and beauty and industry in France and every other foreign nation, but," sez I, strikin' my umbrell down kinder solid, "I am bound to start out right; I shall pay my respects the very first thing to the United States." Sez I, "If you've got any principle and patriotism, the time to show it is when you are in a foreign land. This is our uncle's birthday, and I lay out to hold up his respectability and dignity jest as fur as I can," and I glanced complacently at my cameo pin in the lookin'-glass.

Sez Josiah, still perusin' his guide book, "I should kinder like to go first to the Hotel of Invalids; I'm more'n half sick, I feel real mauger, and of course they will have everything fixed up there that sick folks would relish—chicken broth, jell, milk porridge and mebby biled dinner and apple dumplin's."

Sez I, "Biled dinner would be splendid food for invalids, wouldn't it? But you hain't got it right. It don't mean sick folks; it means a place, a palace." And agin I sez, "You can do as you've a minter. Josiah and Arvilly, but I shall go straight as my nose can lead me to the United States Buildin'."

Sez Arvilly, "Do you mean the exhibits of the United States?"

"No," sez I, "to his private house; it will be expected of me—the eye of the world is on me—and I lay out to conduct myself accordin'."

Sez she, "I shall switch off into some other country when we get there; usin' me as he has, he won't expect any compliments from me, or get 'em."

Sez I firmly, "I shall pay my respects to him the first thing."

Sez Arvilly, "I shan't pay any respects when I hain't got any; I don't respect him and he knows it," and Josiah stood ready seemin'ly to jine in with her; I felt dretful. I lifted my eyes to heaven and sez, "What would our old four fathers say if they hearn such talk! Jest think how they tended that dear old creeter, Uncle Sam, when he wuz a puny, weak little thing not expected to live; they rocked him in the cradle of liberty, covered his scrawny little limbs with the folds of our glorious flag, fed him and brung him up till he is stout and strong and has his feet on every shore. And now two of his own children hain't willin' to help keep his birthday, when the hull world is proud to celebrate him."

Sez Arvilly, "You don't like all his doin's any better than I do."

Sez I with dignity, "My own folks don't please me every day in the year, but I think my eyes on 'em, and even if we had jest had a spat, I always stand up for 'em before company. Uncle Samuel is my folks, and I hain't goin' to lower him down before foreign nations by not tendin' his doin's; no indeed!"

Sez Arvilly, "It is out of our way, it is way beyend Turkey.

Sez I firmly, "I can't help that; I can't help it if the Turkeys do feel slighted, I shall do as I said."

Tommy, who had been readin' with his grandpa, had kinder got his mind sot on goin' to the Place of Carousal, he likes to see cuttin's up and goin's on like any other child, but standin' firm as I did they agreed to follow my plan.

Well, when we emerged into the open street we see that it looked brighter and gayer than Jonesville ever did on any Fourth of July. The atmosphere seemed charged with gaiety and brightness, and it swep' clost about you and your sperit jined in and wuz gay too, and bright and boyant. Josiah, who still had his specs on and consultin' his guide book, sez, "The main entrance is near the Place of Concord."

"Well," sez I, "that sounds first rate, peace, harmony, we will seek that entrance."

"Yes," Arvilly sez, "if there is such a place on this quarrelsome earth I want to see it."

Josiah as a Linguist

Well, we hired a cab driver to take us; I didn't know what we should do to make him understand us, for I spozed, livin' so fur off, that he hadn't had our advantages and wouldn't understand good Jonesville talk; but Josiah who always rises to a emergency, sez: "You know very well, Samantha, that I have studied French ever sence we left the Holy Land. I am abundantly able to talk to the man in his own language; I will astonish you."

Sez I, "Oh, don't, Josiah, I would ruther walk than be astonished by you, fur ruther."

"Never willin' for me to show off," he murmured. "But I will show off!" sez he fiercely. "I will talk French to my own pardner anyway! Parly voo Fronsy! Steel blue plate? We, we!"

Sez I, soothin'ly, layin' my hand on his shoulder, "You can talk French, Josiah, and you shan't be disputed."

An Artistic Idea

"Or," sez Josiah, brightenin' up under my praise, "if he is so ignorant he can't understand my conversation, I can draw a picture of our necessities; I can engrave you and Arvilly and Tommy and I in a cab and show it to the man."

I sithed deep and sez: "Le's try common English first. And, to our relief, the man talked it as well as we did, only with a strong Irish brogue. Well, he deposited us only a little ways from the great beautiful entrance to fairyland. There are over thirty entrances, but bein' bound to start right, we entered the great monumental entrance. And we found it exceedin'ly massive and grand-looking, risin' up as it did from the beautiful green foliage. There seemed to be four arches, one immense one and three smaller, but all overflowin' with beauty and grandeur, ornament on ornament, but jinin' graceful, and as if they ort to be where they wuz. Above the arches is a big dome with the arms of the city of Paris. And I wuz glad enough to see on top of the hull thing a statue of Peace with a olive branch in her hand. I loved to see her there, but Arvilly and I both said that we did wish that men would spend some of the time they take a carvin' Peace and paintin' her and sculpin' her, to try to help the poor critter to be somebody and amount to sunthin'. As it is, they must know she is a perfect underlin', kep' down and trod on by the great, brutal, noisy villain, War.

Josiah remarked here that it wuz no place to eppisode in such a time as this, and he drawed off my attention by saying, "Do look at that freeze." And it wuz grand and inspirin'-lookin'. On each side wuz the Workers of the World; them who with hard hands and bent backs carry the burdens of the world wuz bearin' to this Universal Exposition the offerings of their labor. Some on 'em had on their shoulders the implements of farmin'; some carried heavy beams of wood; some had big baskets of fruit on their poor, patient backs; some wuz trundlin' big iron engines; some leadin' horses by the bits, but all liftin' some burden that helped the world—old men, stalwart manhood, and—alas!—young ones, too young to be weighted down by such burdens. But all

Copyright, 1900, by Louis Klopsch

"ANON WE COME TO THE ALEXANDER III. BRIDGE"

on 'em—the hull procession—wuz marchin' along with strainin' sinews, their steps keepin' time to the anvil of Labor, rung out by Necessity, and in their faces and steadfast eyes wuz the firm resolve, the sad patience of the toilers of Life.

Sez Josiah as he looked on: "What a oversight it wuz that I wuzn't took loadin' a milk-can or drivin' home the cows! That cow duz look some like old Line Back; but how much nobler I should looked leadin' her onwards, and how much France would have prized my liniment!"

I looked up at that great procession of Labor and sez: "It makes me feel bad agin to think that some of the money spent in deifyin' Labor wuzn't spent in helpin' it with its hard struggle with Greed."

But agin Josiah snapped me up real snappish and sez: "This is no time for metaforin'! I believe you would eppisode on the way to the stake or the gallowses." Sez he: "Do look down that beautiful street!" And indeed it wuz a inspirin' spectacle. Beauty, grandeur and exquisite taste, hand-in-hand, had erected these beautiful buildin's. It wuz a site worthy the attention of the world, and I wuz glad to see that the World and his wife and the relations on both sides wuz there to admire the seen with me. We santered along, seein' enough on every side to make hull days of conversation and description to Sister Gowdey, if I ever see her. Anon we come to the Alexander III. Bridge. It is magnificent; it cost a million dollars, and I wouldn't build it a cent less, nor Josiah wouldn't; we couldn't afforded it, specially if we boarded the holds the first place. It stands at the entrance gate of our nation."

"That is so," sez she, "and our country sends the Liquor Power ahead like a carrier-dove of the fallen angel pattern, a sort of carrion dove, into all our new possessions and territories; why should I shrink back from passin' its headquarters on our way to the United States Buildin'?"

A Ramble Amid Palaces

Arvilly has got good horse sense if you manage her right. And though she did kinder shy off as we passed the place of the great wine exhibit, she didn't falter. Italy, we see, lived in splendid style; I guess she has the handsomest house of any of the nations; it wuz a big long buildin' full of winders, and sort o' lifted up in front some like a big crown, all embellished with stained glass and ornaments, and way up above the double or thrible rows of windows and the crown, wuz a big shinin' dome with a cross on top. Real parabolical for the meetin'-house in the habit of rulin' Italy, and I guess lays out to right along. But to resoom, I had always liked Turkey moderately well, and 'tennyrate I wuz glad they wuz able to have all the peaks and towers and minarets and scollops on their buildin' that they wanted onless they wuz onreasonably fond of 'em. It wuz decorated beautifully inside, and there wuz four bazars where you could buy all sorts of Oriental goods and Turkish tobacco if you wanted it. Lots and lots of Turkeys wuz santerin' round there, as well as folks from every other country on the globe.

I spozed mebby Uncle Samuel's private house would be bigger than any minister's or lawyer's in Loontown, but, good land! the hull inhabitants of them two towns could be accommodated there with plenty of room for Zoar and Shackville folks. It wuz a noble lookin' buildin' and up in plain sight in a alcove on the second story wuz our own noble hero, George Washington. He wuz settin' on a big white horse holdin' up the stars and stripes, and right opposite risin' up out of the railin' that run along in front towered up another immense flag, so we walked along between the folds of Old Glory. Way up above George Washington on the richly ornamented ruff that arched over his benign person stood the Car of Progress bein' drawed along by prancin' steeds and a female goin' ahead tootin' on a bugle. She looked some like Arvilly, and I believe acted some like her; she toots loud to attract attention, and gits stuns and dirt cleaned out of the way of the wheels of Progress. And way up on the very peak of the shinin' dome that surmounted the main buildin' I wuz glad to see our eagle stand a flutterin' out his wings in jest as noble and independent a way as if he wuz in Washington, D. C. He stood high, he could look down on the Star and Crescent and minarets and hooded eagles, etc., etc.

It made me feel good, but not hauty. And our Stars and Stripes wuz wavin' out everywhere blue as the sky, rosy as the fresh light of mornin', and white as purity, and inspirin' strains of music wuz ringin' out, and as I walked along I stepped high and held my head nobly on my shoulders. It wuz my eagle that waved his wings aloft; it wuz my country's flag that wuz wavin' out in the fresh morning air; it wuz "My country 'tis of thee, sweet land of liberty," that the band wuz tellin' on in loud sweet notes. I felt dretful well, and my pardner lifted up his head and his hand and kep' time with the music, and onbeknown to her I see Arvilly reach up sarahuptishusly and take off the crape bow and put it in her work-bag. Inside Uncle Samuel's house wuz all gladness and rejoicing. The rich dresses and uniforms showed out splendid aginst the soft green walls. I wuz glad to see that the Americans wuz all able to git out for they wuz all there, or so it seemed to me, and from every other country on earth. But Josiah and Arvilly and Time wuz passin' along impatient and drawin' me and Tommy along with 'em. We went through Austria and Hungary and Herzegovina and Bosnia at a pretty good jog. Duty demanded a longer stay in Great Britain, and I would pay more attention to 'em whether or no. Their national buildin' looks first-rate; it is copied from a old, old English mansion; I believe it wuz in the time of Queen Anne, or it might be Sally Ann, my memory hain't what it wuz, 'tennyrate Ann knowed what good houses wuz if she drawed up the plans. It stands a little back from the water and is a grand commogious mansion with plenty of gabriel ends and dormer winders and everything else it needs for its comfort, and a high sort of a closed-in piaza with a railin' runnin' along on top and deeped arched doorways goin' under it and lots of folks walkin' along on top and the British flag flyin' as it had a perfect right to on its own private house, and the British Lion appearin' here and there big as life, a roarin' I spoze more or less at France, mebby resentin' things that they had flung out about the Widder Albert lately, and her folks, and mebby visitin' back and forth with our Eagle.

International Amity

They are real friendly now and scream and roar at each other more amiably than they used to, though I spoze inside they still keep up their different naters. It is the lion's nater you know to kinder rule things and switch his tail and step high, and the eagle's nater to screetch loud and flutter her big wings, and show off her Liberty feathers. But they keep in their sanguinary feelin's, if they have 'em, and appear real good and you'd think they loved each other like brothers. It has a picture gallery worth a week's study, containing pictures by Gainsborough and Turner and all the best artists. I could see that the hull kingdom sot store by this buildin' for they wuz the most of 'em there.

Belgium we found wuz built some like the English pavilion on its foundations, but it soared up on one side considerable like a steeple with a high peaked ruff and lots of pinnacles with lace-like ornaments. Norway with its red walls and graceful shape looked well, but what they had so many green fishes on it for I don't know; Josiah thought they probable raised 'em and wished he could git a few to stock the Jonesville creek with.

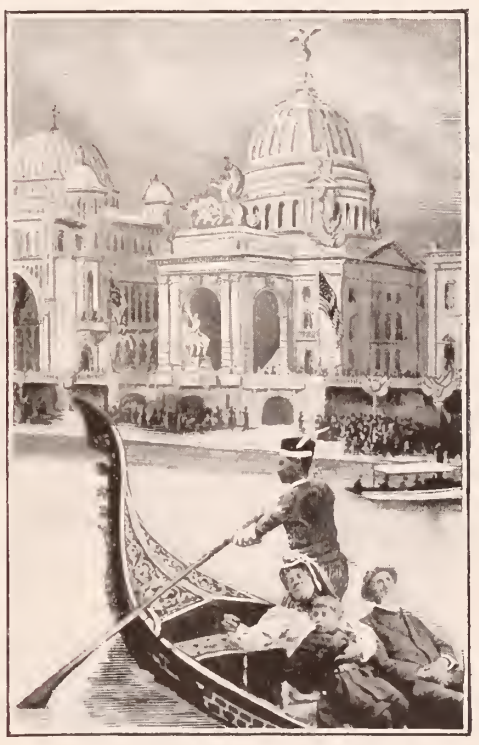
Germany, with its red ruff and bronze turrets, looked solid and handsome, some like a mectin'-house with a big high steeple pintin' way, way up two or three hundred feet kinder tapei in' off and trimmed with stun open work. You see rare treasures of art in Germany sent by the Emperor William, paintings, tapestries, etc. We stayed round there for some time, thinkin' that it would be expected of me, and so I did and would in Spain, though by this time Josiah had got real hungry and wanted to hasten on to Greece (I d'no but the name made him think some of fried cakes), but I sez solemnly, "I shall stay here quite a spell; this is the country that the man sailed from to discover us — do you realize it?"

And he sez, "If he discovered me now, he'd discover a man most dead with starvation." I took two cookies from my handbag and gin him and calmly looked round and took notes of the buildin'. It wuz good-lookin', two stories high some of the way and part four stories, with beautiful big arched windows and embellished and ornamented off, so that it compared favorably with the buildin's round on the outside. Though its underpinnin' didn't seem very solid to me, it looked sort o' open work and as if a big storm might tottle the hull thing down. There wuz a inner court-yard, and a splendid show of tapestries inside, shrines, candelabras, armor, relics, etc., some on 'em sent by the queen. Sweden, with its high steeple all ornamented with wood-carvin', presents a curious and interestin' appearance with its towers, domes and belfries; inside its walls are covered with rich lace and embroidery and some of the most wonderful wood-carvin' that you ever see, and there you can see women makin' the lace and other manufactures of Sweden. Greece and Servia looked first-rate outside and on the inside, and so did Rumania and Persia, Peru and Portugal. I paid attention to the hull on 'em in this section, knowin' the eyes of the world wuz on me and I wuz expected to do the fair thing by the hull on 'em and not make 'em feel hurt by my neglect. After a little rest, and seein' we wuz so nigh, we fell in with Josiah's idees and sought the Hotel for Invalids, though I knowed he would be disappinted when he got there.

(To be continued).

THE ORIENTAL QUARTER

JOSIAH HIRES A COACH IN PARIS



THE UNITED STATES BUILDING

THE CHRISTIAN HERALD

LOUIS KLOPSCH, PROPRIETOR

T. de Witt Talmage
EDITOR.

B. J. FERNIE AND G. H. SANDISON,
Associate Editors

The Christian Herald is published every Wednesday. The subscription price is $1.50 per year, payable in advance.

Subscriptions may commence with any issue.

Remittances should always be made in the safest manner available to the remitter. Post-office and Express Money Orders are always safe and may be sent at our own risk.

Register your letters when you remit by cash.

Foreign Postage.—For each copy to be mailed outside the United States, the Canadas, and Mexico, foreign postage at the rate of one dollar a year should be added to the regular subscription price.

Renewals.—It is always best to renew two weeks before the date on your wrapper, to ensure uninterrupted service.

Back Numbers.—We cannot undertake to supply back numbers, nor to make good omissions caused by tardy renewals.

Change of Date.—It takes two weeks to change the date, after your subscription is renewed.

Expiration of subscriptions. The date on the wrapper indicates when your paper will be stopped unless promptly renewed.

Change of Address.—Always give both your old and your new address when you ask us to change your address.

The Name of your Post-office and of the State you live in should always follow your own name when writing to this office. We cannot find your name on our books unless this is done.

The Christian Herald will not be responsible for the return of unsolicited manuscripts forwarded to it with a view to publication.

Letters should be addressed

THE CHRISTIAN HERALD,
Bible House, New York City.

Entered at the Post-office at New York, as Second-class Matter

Ministers Human

CONGREGATIONS sometimes mourn over dull preaching when themselves are to blame. Give your minister more beefsteak and he will have more fire. Next to the divine unction, the minister needs blood, and he cannot make that out of tough leather. One reason why the apostles preached so powerfully was that they had healthy food. Fish was cheap along Galilee, and this, with unbolted bread, gave them plenty of phosphorus for brain food. These early ministers were not invited out to late suppers, with chicken salad and doughnuts. Nobody ever embroidered slippers for the big feet of Simon Peter, the fisherman preacher. Tea parties, with hot waffles, at ten o'clock at night, make namby-pamby ministers, but good hours and substantial diet, that furnish nitrates for the muscles and phosphates for the brain and carbonates for the whole frame, prepare a man for effective work.

Failing Rich

THERE are men—you know them and I know them—who are sailing yachts, and driving fast horses, and holding membership in expensive clubs, and owning country seats, who would not be worth a dollar if they returned to others their just rights. A crash comes, and there is a reverse, and the man fails, and he retires from the world, and seems about to go into monastic life; but in two or three years he blossoms out again, having compromised with his creditors—that is, paid them nothing but regrets—and the only difference between the second chapter of prosperity and the first chapter of prosperity is that in his picture gallery now he has Raphaels and Murillos instead of Kensetts, and his horses go the mile twenty seconds sooner than their predecessors, and instead of one country seat he has three. I have watched and I have noticed that nine out of ten of the failures in what is called high life leave men with more money after the failure than they had before, and that their failure is only a stratagem to get rid of the payment of honest debts and to put the world off the track while they introduce a more stupendous swindle.

It is most appaling that these things are possible. I blame, first of all, directors of banks and boards having in charge great financial interests. It ought not to be possible for the president of a bank, or the cashier or any officer to carry on a swindle in an institution, year after year and year after year without detection. If a swindle go on one year, two years, three years, four years in a moneyed institution, the directors either have part in the infamy and pocket their share of the theft, or they are guilty of a negligence for which God will hold them as responsible as he holds the acknowledged defrauders. What right have our large business men to allow their names to be advertised as directors, so that the unsophisticated put their money in the institution, or buy the scrip thereof, when the directors do nothing for the safety of that institution? It is a deception appalling and monstrous, and in the name of God and the rights of men I denounce it.

Many with small surplus and with money not needed for immediate use, but which will, after a while, be indispensable, have no friends capable of advising them, and in consequence they take the moral character of men advertised as directors. And there are people who say: "I don't know anything about these things, but there is a man who is in that board of directors, and there is a man, and there is a man, and I know they are all good men, and prosperous business men, and they would not have anything to do with that which is dishonorable." When the bank goes over, then the small earnings and the fortunes of widows and orphans and the helplessly aged go with the bank, and the directors stand with idiotic stare, and when the inquiry is made by the frenzied depositors and stockholders, and when outraged community arraigns them the directors say: "Oh, I thought it was all right; I didn't know there was anything wrong." They ought to have known. They stood in a position where they deluded the public with the idea that they did know, and that they were carefully observant of what was going on. Advertised as directors, they did not direct.

Railroads as Educational Centres

THE farmers of the West are receiving great educational benefits through the railroads. Under the general freight agent of the road, there is an agricultural agent, a poultry agent, a superintendent of dairies, a land inspector, a traveling commercial agent, buyers, salesmen and so forth. These officials give lectures on soil, nutrition, vegetable-growing, trade shipments, poultry-raising, cattle-feeding and other kindred subjects. This work has been going on only seven years and to-day most of the railroads west of Chicago and St. Louis are engaged in it. They secure the co-operation of the U. S. Agricultural Department, have land tested, recommend it for that which it is especially suited, encourage people along the road to engage in raising what will be most profitable, and thus enrich both themselves and their patrons at one stroke.

Diet Affects Character

AMERICAN breadstuffs and American meat transported in such large quantities must have its effect on European character. All careful observers know that what men eat mightily affects their character. The missionary among the Indians, compelled to live on animal food, gets some of the nature of the Aborigines, whether he will or not. The Anchor Line of steamers going to Glasgow take great cargoes of American meat to Scotland. The meat of animals butchered in America is kept on steamers in a cool draught especially arranged for that purpose, and the meat market of Scotland is being revolutionized. The Scotchman eating American beef and American mutton and American venison becomes partially American. Englishmen on platforms and in the newspapers deplore the coming in of so much American breadstuffs. Because of the failure of English crops for two or three years this is becoming more and more so. The Englishman eating American wheat and American rye and American corn must become in part Americanized. And here is an element of safety which political economists would do well to recognize. The cereals and the meats of one nation becoming the food of other nations, it prophesies assimilation and brotherhood. It will be very difficult for American beef to fight American beef, and American mutton to fight American mutton, and American corn to fight American corn, though it may be found on the opposite side of the Atlantic.

The world is gradually sitting down at one table, and the bread will be made of Michigan wheat, and it will be cut with Sheffield knives. The rice will be brought from Carolina swamps and cooked with Newcastle coal, and set on the table in Burslem pottery, while the air comes through the window upholstered with Nottingham lace. And Italy will provide the raisins, and Brazil the nuts, and all nations add their part to the universal festivity. What a time of accord when all the world breakfasts and dines and sups together!

Champion Growlers

IT would be a good plan to have the fault-finding of the world done by delegation or by committee. Take the most powerful "bear" out of Wall Street and let him do the croaking for all the brokers. Take some ecclesiastic, who has swallowed his religion crosswise and got it stranglingly fast in his wind-pipe, to hunt down all the heresy, real or fancied. Get some one newspaper to do all the work of mauling reputations, exposing domestic infelicities, and reporting divorce cases. Let one female "gadabout," gathering all the gossip, put it up in bottles properly labeled and peddle it about from house to house in small vials for those who could stand only a little, or in large bottles, as it may be required. Let her be known as the championess of tittle-tattle. So men and women might delegate to one or more the disagreeables of the world. And, as at different times America and England have disputed with each other for supremacy with yacht, and bat, and rifle, let the champion American growler go forth to dispute with the champion English growler for the belt of the world. Let the day chosen for the contest be a commingling of Scotch mist and English cloudiness and American drizzle. Let them go at each other with threats and annoyances and recriminations. Let all fault-finders the world over stand round the ring, watching the fate of the two nations. The Englishman might draw the first blood, but the American will prove a full match for him at the last. The struggle may be long and fearful, and the excitement surpass that of Creedmoor shooting and Ascot and Derby races, but I think neither would gain the victory. Indeed, I would like to see them both go down together in the contest and both slain. Then would perish from the earth the bickerings and the suspicions, the snarlings and the backbitings of the world.

Bury the two champions in the same grave, their clubs with them, covering them up with a bank of nettles. Read for their funeral service the report of the stock market just after some great failure. Plant at the head of it a little nightshade, and at the foot of it a little nux vomica. For epitaph: "Here lies complaint and hypercriticism. Born in the year 1; died in the year 1900. May the resurrection trumpet, that blows others up into the light, blow these miscreants deeper down into oblivion."

Anti-Canteen Campaign

Progress and Present Status of the Great Moral Crusade Briefly Stated

MOST of our readers will remember that the Fifty-fifth Congress, in response to almost unparalleled petitioning, supported by the testimony of one hundred military officers, including all of high rank that had expressed an opinion, with the welcome exception of Gen. Egan, enacted the anti-canteen law by an almost unanimous vote. The law declared that "no soldier should serve as a bartender, and that no other person should be allowed to sell intoxicating drinks on any premises used for military purposes by the United States," which would include Army and Navy and Soldiers' Homes. Secretary Alger, a layman in law, interpreted this law as meaning nothing except that soldiers could not be bartenders. Three weeks afterward Mr. Griggs adopted and elaborated this opinion, and subsequently President McKinley, after entertaining an appeal, decided it must stand but said soon after the opening of this Congress that if it would reenact the law "in plain terms" the Executive would enforce it. The Secretary of War in his report said substantially the same thing. The anti-canteen forces therefore turned once more to Congress, and by hearings and petitions and personal letters and interviews sought for the enactment of the Bowersock bill that specifically forbids liquor-selling "canteens" in the army and nothing more, the movement being jointly led by the National Anti-Saloon League, the National W. C. T. U. and The Reform Bureau.

1. The House Committee on Military Affairs reached the canteen question about six weeks before the anticipated adjournment of Congress. A motion to report the bill favorably was carried by six to five, but this was immediately reconsidered and reversed on the suggestion to send it to the War Department for an opinion upon it. The Secretary of War had already sent to Congress in his report a very full discussion of the subject, closing with an intimation that if Congress really meant to prohibit liquor-selling in the army, it should say so again. To send the matter back, therefore, at so late a day was unnecessary, if not dilatory.

2. The Executive Department, in the replies of Secretary Root and Adjutant-General Corbin, took the new attitude of aggressive opposition to the reenactment of the law. Both replies gave the impression that the weight of military authority is in favor of the canteen, which the anti-canteen forces at once took occasion to show was as strained an interpretation of the facts as the Griggs interpretation had been of the law. It was shown that the military opinions sent to Congress included only one-third of the officers, who were by no means all in favor of the canteen, and that there was nothing to show that the other two-thirds of the officers had been given opportunity to express an opinion—indeed it was known by letters from some of them that all had not been polled, chaplains and generals, the two classes of witnesses best qualified to speak, being mostly ignored. The War Department quoted only three generals as favoring the canteen, Anderson, Wade and Merriam. The anti-canteen forces cited against these three generals fourteen: Shafter, Wheeler Howard, Henry, Boynton, Wilcox, Rochester, Carlin, Lee, Stanley, Haines, Carr, Graham, Bliss. Unofficially, Corbin and Sternberg were claimed for the canteen, but it was shown that in official letters within two years Corbin (also in two interviews) had stated facts in condemnation of the canteen which could not be set aside. To make the weight of military authority overwhelming against the canteen, the British experiments—worth more than any opinions—were cited; for instance, the theory of those in control of our army that "soldiers will drink," was answered by the fact that in the British army in India 18,663 soldiers were in 1898 enrolled in the Army Temperance Association, and the official statistics of the army as presented by Lord Roberts, show the rate per 1,000 of disorder and disease among the abstainers, as compared to non-abstainers, viz.:

	Abstainers per 1,000	Non-abs. per 1,000
In the hospital	209	302
Court-martials	4.12	36.38
Summary punishments	39.70	92.32

3. These anti-canteen facts and the petitions on that side overmatched the opposition, and the Committee reported the bill, but within less than one month of the expected adjournment, and with the official arguments against the law incorporated in their report, but not the arguments presented in hearings and otherwise on the anti-canteen side. This handicap was increased by an amendment not asked for by the friends of the anti-canteen bill—to make it apply to "all premises owned or used by the United States." This will have the effect of augmenting opposition to the bill, and will make it increasingly difficult to get it through the Senate, even if passed by the House. Christian citizenship should spare no effort to secure this protection for our soldier boys entering on a perilous summer in the tropics, where liquors are even more deadly than at other times and places.

WILBUR F. CRAFTS.

A BRAVE FIGHT ...WITH FAMINE

DR. KLOPSCH DESCRIBES THE HERCULEAN EFFORTS OF THE GOVERNMENT OF INDIA TO SAVE LIFE. THE FAMINE S. S. "QUITO" ARRIVES SAFELY AT BOMBAY

AFTER my visit to Pundita Ramabai's Institution at Khedgaum and to the adjacent Government camp, as described in my letter [published last week], I determined to go to Ahmednagar, where the famine is very severe, and where Dr. R. A. Hume, the Chairman of THE CHRISTIAN HERALD'S Inter-Denominational Committee, is laboring. We arrived there at eleven o'clock, after a railroad journey of four hours. The railroad officials, who have been exceptionally kind, sidetracked our car and allowed us to sleep in it all night. We gladly availed ourselves of their courtesy, for we were not sure of getting hotel accommodation in the town, as there are so many towns in India without hotels or anything serving the purpose of a hotel.

By half past six in the morning we had made a hurried toilet, and were ready to set out with Dr. R. A. Hume, Dr. W. O. Ballantine, Revs. H. and E. Fairbank and two native officials, both Parsees, who came to conduct us to the town. Under their guidance, we made a systematic tour of churches, Sunday Schools, weaveries and other industrial branches of that I ever had the privilege of inspecting. A greater part of the forenoon was spent in going through one place and the other, stopping just long enough to have an intelligent idea as to what that particular branch represented; looking into the faces of poor, emaciated, wan women and children; noting quickly the multitudinous devices employed for the betterment of their condition; wondering at the patience, the zeal, the energy, the enthusiasm, and the consecration of these men and women of God who, ten thousand miles away from home, are laboring in his name for the uplifting of those who sit in darkness, whose lot is truly more deplorable than that of the poorest of the poor in our own beloved land.

The Greatest Missionary Enterprise

There in one room we found thirty-one widows or rejected wives and forty-five children whom Mrs. Bissell had picked up in the districts north of Ahmednagar and into whose dark lives the sunshine of Christian love was now shedding its rays of joy. Then there was a fresh group of famine children, about one hundred and fifty in number, who had just come in, having walked three miles, and who had been gathered by Dr. Ballantine. Another lot of one hundred and fifty, all boys, were brought in by Rev. E. Fairbank. One picture of Christian activity followed another until the mind was fairly bewildered with their variety, their scope and their number. It is impossible here and now in this broiling heat with the thermometer at 130 degrees to attempt to do justice to the Marathi Mission. For the time being, however, you will see that America may well be proud of her missionary representatives at Ahmednagar, who are doing valiant service in the cause of Christ, the chief of whom is Dr. R. A. Hume, one of the most sweet-spirited, untiring and saintly Christians I have ever met.

As the chief object of my visit to India was the inspection of relief camps, and to study the present requirements of those people in the way of relief and the methods best adapted to meet these requirements, I feel that I must not linger too long in this great centre of missionary activity, but must press on to visit the Government relief camp at Kapurwadi, two miles out, and considered one of the best conducted camps in the whole Empire of India. We got there about eleven o'clock, and immediately waited on Assistant Engineer Thomas Watson, who is in charge of the camp and who very kindly gave me all the information asked for. They had eleven thousand people at the camp, nine thousand of whom were workers, the other two thousand being little children and what they call dependants, that is, people who cannot work and who must be supported by the State. They were just building a water-tank on a gigantic scale, which would inure to the advantage of this and the coming generations. There was no smallpox or epidemics of any kind. The family life was encouraged as far as possible by the erection of innumerable huts made of matting, each family having its own hut, and permitted to have within that hut not more than five souls. These huts are in the shape of tents, open at each end, about ten feet long and six feet wide. They are set up on the bare ground, having no flooring or mats. The inmates have a blanket for cover, and sometimes a piece of old carpet for bed.

Life in the Camps

It is surprising with how little furniture the families in India can content themselves. They use the floor to sit, eat and sleep on; in fact all their work is done on the ground, and whether they wash or work or cook, it is all done on the floor, and hence chairs and tables and beds are luxuries which they do not require. Evidently the India Government is not likely to bankrupt its treasury by the purchase of furniture for the use of the famine-stricken in its relief camps. In front of each of these huts there is a little pile of stones which the housewife so arranges that she can use them as stove and oven. Here in the morning, at noon and in the evening the families spend the hours between the end of one task and the beginning of another. Children under age were cared for in the common kitchen, and were fed with cooked food, while the employees received money with which they purchased their food, raw grain, and then cooked it to suit their requirements. The highest price paid for a laborer was four cents a day; women got three and a half cents, and children three-quarters of a cent. This pay was dependent on the quantity of work done, and fifty-one per cent. of the workers earned maximum wages, which are weekly regulated by the price of grain. Every worker has one day off each week at the expense of Government. The pay-bill of the camp is five to seven thousand rupees ($1,666 to $2,333) a week.

The forethought of the Government is best illustrated by the preparations which they make to cope with an epidemic, should any break out. In order to be in readiness for such emergency they erect the camp in sections or quarters so that in case cholera breaks out in one section the huts and rags in that section could be promptly burned and the dwellers could be sent to the other quarters. Then smallpox, cholera and plague sheds are in readiness should they be required.

I stood for an hour watching the people of the camp and I must say that the tone of the camp was directly the reverse of that which I inspected yesterday at Warwand. The People were Cheerful

Some of them sang as they worked. Although they worked hard, they did not seem to be overworked. The employment of nursing mothers and of the young, delicate children was in evidence here as well as at the other camp, and but for these phases I should have considered the camp as an exemplary one. There is no stone-breaking here. These employees are not compelled to sit down on one spot in the broiling sun all day. The hours as aforesaid are from 7 to 6 with two hours' rest in midday which enables them to prepare their food, to eat it and to rest up for the task of the afternoon. Should the Government withdraw its help from these unfortunate people for a single week, I do not believe that one per cent. would survive, and under these circumstances the India Government is at the present day the greatest life-saving agency in existence.

I visited the children's kitchen and was very much pleased with the bright-eyed, cheerful little ones that were there in charge of their caretakers. They are, as far as their clothes are concerned, in a very bad way. Nine-tenths of them have no clothes at all and the other one-tenth is Dressed in Rags and Dirt.

But considering everything, life is tolerable both for children and adults in the camp at Ahmednagar and I went away relieved in comparison with the results of my tour of inspection elsewhere yesterday. In this camp the huts are built in long rows and in this particular camp I should say they cover fifty acres of ground. The camp looks like a soldiers' camp or a camp-meeting with the exception that there are no shade-trees and that the tent is made of matting instead of canvas.

From the camp we went for lunch or tiffin as it is here called, to the mission, and at a quarter after three, the jaunting cart called for me and took me to the poor-house where those who could not work and who were not dependent on those working at the Government camp were housed. The scenes I saw there were sad beyond description. We photographed several groups but I think that THE CHRISTIAN HERALD will not want to publish them, they are so distressing. We went through the hospital where there were a large number of patients, many of whom suffered from guinea-worm, a parasite which works its way out through the leg and other parts of the body. It is caused by bad water, poor and insufficient food, resulting in the running down of the system until the composition of the blood is such as to encourage the development of these parasites. I do not wish to dwell on this description any longer; such a condition of affairs could not exist in any country where the people have even approximately nourishing and sufficient food.

A Contrast

Our visit closed with a call at the Second Christian Church which was packed to over-flowing with an enthusiastic and evidently very attentive and much interested audience. The native pastor, Mr. Modak, introduced me to his charming wife and son, and, as I looked upon that family and upon the crowd assembled outside, I could not help noticing the tremendous difference which Christianity produces in mankind. Here on the one side rough, coarse, unkempt, uncouth, haggard and wan-looking creatures, constantly falling on their faces at your feet adjuring you to give them help and paying all manner of flattering and fawning compliments, ready apparently to sell their very lives for a few coppers, and on the other hand the clean, bright, clear-eyed, neatly dressed and intelligent native family that seemed to rise head and shoulders above all that surrounded them. On the one hand Mussulmans and Hindus and on the other hand children of the Lord. The train took us out of Ahmednagar at five minutes after twelve in the night—our third night on the train—and this brought to a close one of the most interesting days of my life.

I have as yet no opinion to express; I have no criticism to make except with regard to the employment of women and children. One or two visits to the camp will not suffice to furnish that light necessary to intelligently criticize the tremendous charity which the Anglo-Indian Government is conducting. I will say that as a rule people talk very highly of the Government and my own opinion is that an impartial person cannot help being tremendously impressed at the stupendous proportions of this God-imposed responsibility which is unquestionably the most splendid object-lesson bearing on the white man's burden which the world has ever witnessed.

LOUIS KLOPSCH.

FAMINE CHILDREN RECEIVED AT MRS. E. S. HUME'S ORPHANAGE, AT BYCULLA, BOMBAY

A Memorable Day

BY BENJAMIN AITKEN

DR. KLOPSCH spent a very interesting and busy day at Ahmednagar, in the northeast part of the Bombay Presidency and one of the worst stricken of the famine districts. Besides visiting a vast Government relief work, and also the Government poor-house, where people unable to work are fed and cared for, he went over the chapels, schools, industries and institutions of the American Congregational Mission. This Mission, known locally as the Marathi Mission, was founded in 1831, and is exceedingly well organized. Carpet-weaving is one of its principal industries, and Dr. Klopsch was much pleased with the beautiful patterns. Dr. Klopsch was accompanied throughout the day by the following missionaries of the American Board: The Revs. Dr. R. A. Hume, Dr. William Ballantine, Harry Fairbank and Edward Fairbank; also by

(Continued on page 562)

NEW YORK

Lape, S 2 00
Lapp, Mrs H 1 00
Laraway, Ruth... 10
Larcum, Mrs F... 25
Larcum, Mr & Mrs Ira 26
Larkin, J U 1 00
Larkin, O T 50
Lasher, Eliz 1 00
Lasher, O 25
Laurence, Rev A A 25
Lavey, Chas 10
Lawrence, Mrs R. 1 00
Lawson, Alex..... 1 00
Leach, L 10
Lee, James 25
Lee, Mrs J 1 00
Leedom, M 1 00
Leet, Miss C 50
Lenard, F 50
Lent, Ada 1 00
Leonard, Theo ... 5 00
Le Rice, Wm 1 00
Le Roy, Geo H... 25
Levehout, Eliza H 1 00
Lewis, Mrs B..... 1 00
Lewis, Mrs Eliz.. 50
Lewis, Mrs L J... 25
Lewis, Mr L..... 05
Lewis, W F 1 00
Liddell, H E..... 1 00
Lilley, M, Coll by. 2 00
Lily, Leon 05
Linard, Mr & Mrs H 25
Liscomb, Mrs Jennie & Miss Carrie & Josie Tebo.... 2 50
Livingston, S 50
Lobb, Mrs H 25
Lockrow, Jos Y.. 3 00
Loduma Fisher Fund, Orwell.... 4 00
Long, Elliott 25
Long, Mary A 01
Loomis, Jas H.... 5 00
Lott, Mrs Emma S 1 00
Lott, Mrs F M... 25
Lott, Miss Marion 25
Lott, Mrs S..... 1 00
Louk, Alice & Nellie Tero 1 00
Loucks, Mrs 10
Loucks, Hugh A.. 10
Lucas, L 25
Lucia, Geo 10
Lucier, Mrs A.... 10
Luke, Mrs J W... 25
Lyman, Frank.... 2 00
Lynd, D C 1 00
Lynk, Mrs L H... 1 00
Lyons, Rufus 35

McBain, Mrs C L. 50
McChesney, Mrs A 1 00
McClurg, Wm H.. 25
McCrea, F F..... 50
McCullough, Jane. 1 00
McDowell, T 25
McElwan, Mrs ... 25
McGregor, Jno.... 2 00
McIntyre, Lewis, Coll by 4 00
McKaw, Edw 10
McKee, Ida T ... 4 00
McKeuzie, R..... 25
McKerrow, Jno... 1 00
McKerrow, Robt.. 1 00
McKinley, Mrs E A 1 00
McKinney, E A... 50
McLaughlin, J W. 4 00
McLauchlin, Miss M 10
MacMillen, Mrs E W 35
McRea, E E..... 1 00
McSterg, Mrs W.. 1 00

Mack, Mrs J..... 3 00
Mackey ,Mrs C W 1 00
Mackmer, F 1 00
Madden, J C 27
Male, Mrs Ed.... 1 00
Male, Elizabeth... 1 00
Male, Thomas.... 1 00
Male, Tommey.... 50
Macomber, A W.. 8 00
Macomber, M K.. 5 00
Madden, Bessie... 25
Mallory, Julia 5 00
Maloney, M..... 25
Mance, Geo 25
Mang, Ida 1 00
Manger, Chas R.. 1 00
Manning, Mrs M A 1 00
Manning, Sarah... 25
Mapes, Miss J S.. 1 00
Mapes, Mrs M S.. 1 00
Markle, J G..... 3 00
Markle, C N..... 2 00
Marks, Mrs J.... 50
Marlette, Mrs L.. 50
Marsh, Mrs 25
Marsh, Mrs A H. 2 00
Marshall, Mrs R R 1 00
Martell, Henry.... 50
Martin, Bert R... 15
Martin, Mrs F R. 1 00
Martin, Joseph... 1 00
Martin, W W..... 25
Maslin, Miss E... 25
Massett, J S and wife 5 00
Mastin, Mr & Mrs Adam 1 10
Mathias, Alice ... 10
Mathias, Miss G.. 10
Mathias, Miss M.. 10
Mathias, W 1 00
Matthews, Mrs H P 1 00
Matthews ,R 2 00
Mattice, Jas D... 5 00
Mattocks, Le Roy 25
Mattocks, Maude. 25
Mattson, Lydia... 50
Maxwell, Fenton.. 10
Maybuck, Miss.... 15
Mayborn, Mrs H. 1 00
Mayhew, B & J Smith 1 00
Maynard, Mrs F F 10

NEW YORK—Cont'd.

Maynard, Harold. 02
Maynard, W and wife 1 25
Mead, George 1 00
Measnres, Miss H 50
Medford, Mr and Mrs Wm 6 00
Memanns, Emma. 16
Mering, H 25
Merrihew, D A ... 75
Merrill, M B..... 1 00
Merritt, A 2 00
Merritt, Mrs E... 11
Merithen, Willet.. 50
Merry, Mrs 25
Metcalf, Mrs J... 5 00
Metzgar, Harris & Paul 2 00
Metzgar, Laura .. 15
Micheal, Mrs E... 2 00
Middlewiss, Mrs Wm 1 00
Miles, Mrs Hattie. 2 00
Miller, Egbert.... 1 00
Miller, Eleanor... 2 00
Miller, Esther.... 1 00
Miller, F A..... 1 00
Miller, Helen S... 1 00
Miller, Jacob and friends 25 20
Miller, Joe 25
Miller, Margaret.. 10
Millerd, A D 5 00
Miner, Mrs C H.. 10
Miner, H H 20 00
Mintram, E 1 00
Mintram, Mrs E. 1 00
Mintram, Carrie E 75
Mintram, Flora... 25
Mintram, Frank.. 50
Mitchell, Mrs J & others 8 25
Moak, C G 10
Mcak, Mrs C G.. 10
Moak, James N.... 25
Mofatt, Mrs C.... 50
Moffett, F C..... 25
Moffitt, M E..... 25
Mondore, John .. 50
Mondore, Wm 50
Moore, W F 50
Mantle, James ... 2 00
Moot, Mrs E 2 00
Moore, Belle 1 00
Moore, Mrs H.... 25
Moore, Jacob 1 00
Moore, Mr & Mrs P 20
Moore, Mrs Silas. 1 00
More, Miss Anna. 1 00
Morey, Mrs H W. 15
More, Wm M 50
Morgan, Mrs Geo. 10
Morgan, Irma ... 10
Morgan, J 1 00
Morris, Adah 35
Morrison, Wm B. 5 00
Morse, Frank.... 50
Morse, Mrs Geo.. 1 00
Morse, Mrs Geo.. 1 00
Morse, O Belle... 1 00
Morts, Mrs H 1 00
Moses, Mrs A G.. 1 00
Mosher, Mrs M.... 05
Mosher, Mrs S.... 10
Mount, Mrs D M. 25
Moyer, Mrs I..... 2 00
Mulford, F 5 00
Mundy, Mrs M E. 1 00
Munson, Mrs O R 50
Murphy, Mrs 50
Murphy, F B..... 2 00
Murray, Mrs G W 1 00
Mnssen, Henry... 1 00
Myers, Mrs 10
Myers, Frank 10
Myers, Mr & Mrs C J & Mr & Mrs J 5 00
Myers, Jos 15
Namer, Mary and Paul 1 00
Nelson, Mrs David 1 00
Nelson, Miss O... 25
Nelson, P C 25
Nesbitt, Mrs J W 1 00
Newman, A 10
Newman, Geo 25
Newman, G W.... 25
Newman, S L 25
Newman, Z I 25
Newton, Anson .. 2 00
Newton, F J 5 00
Nichols, L P..... 3 00
Nichols, Mrs B... 1 85
Nielson, P, thro' Rev P Mortheus.20 00
Niles, F G 1 00
Niles, Mrs L A... 1 00
Niver, A C 1 00
Noble, Mrs S 1 00
Norton, Adella B. 1 00
Nye, Addie 1 00
Nye, C V 50
Nye, Horace 25
Nye, J B 50
Oakes, C V 5 00
Oatman, E A 1 00
Oatman, Mrs E A 1 00
Odell, Alfred 02
Odell, Ethel 02
O'Grady, Mrs D.. 25
Ogsbnry, J D & family 2 00
O'Hara, Mrs 50
Olin, J 1 00
Olmstead, J L.... 25
Osborn, Mrs 25
Osgood, W D 1 00
Osterhout, Mr and Mrs Elisha 3 50
Ottaway, Addie C 5 00
Owens, Daniel ... 25
Owens, R 50
Paddock, Mrs S.. 25
Paesel, Miss H... 50
Page, C 25
Page, L B..... 2 00
Pair, Helen 02
Palmer, Bret 2 00
Palmer, E 1 00
Palmer, Mrs G E. 25
Palmer, Helen N and others 2 45
Palmer, Mrs J I. 50

NEW YORK—Cont'd.

Palmer, Mrs R... 25
Palmer, Roye V.. 2 00
Pangorder, Mrs C 10
Pardy, Mrs A O.. 50
Parks, Carrie B.. 1 50
Park, Rev Mrs C H 1 00
Parker, Charlotte. 25
Parsons, Mrs F M 2 00
Parsons, Matilda and Mary 5 00
Parves, Mrs Jas.. 3 00
Patrick, W R & Mrs H M 2 00
Patterson, Mrs E. 50
Patterson, Grace. 25
Patterson, Mrs J D 1 00
Patterson, Lotta.. 2 00
Patterson, Ruth.. 10
Patton, S 25
Paul, Royden E.. 1 00
Peaker, Walter... 25
Pearsall, Miss A.. 50
Pearsall, Levi ... 50
Pearsons, Mrs M E 1 00
Pease, Mrs M J.. 5 00
Peck, Chas A 10 00
Peck, Chas F ... 2 00
Peckham, F H... 1 00
Penny, Mr & Mrs Jas W 2 00
Peters, Lizzie ... 1 00
Peters, Miss M... 50
Peterson, Gus ... 25
Peterson, J 2 00
Peterson, J S ... 25
Peyer, Mrs S L... 1 00
Pfeifer, Mrs Geo. 10
Phelps, Mr 25
Phettplace, Jno... 25
Phillips, Ella 02
Phillips, Lottie... 02
Pickering, Alice... 1 00
Pike, Mrs 25
Place, Cora B.... 25
Pool, Mrs Mary.. 2 00
Porteous, Mrs S.. 1 00
Porter, A V 50
Porulsky, Jno 1 00
Post, Frank W .. 25
Potter, Geo 1 00
Potter, Julia 05
Potter, Robt 01
Potter, S A 25
Potter, Wm F ... 50
Pound, Mrs 1 00
Powell, Clarence. 15
Powell, W..... 25
Powlesland, Mrs C 25
Powlesland, Geo.. 1 00
Powlesland, Mrs H C 10
Powlesland, Mrs O 10
Pratt, Mrs R W.. 2 00
Prentice, Mrs L, Coll by 6 00
Prester, Mrs L... 50
Preston, Gertrude F 20
Prince, Mrs B L.. 1 00
Prince, Jas 25
Prince, Jno S..... 25
Prindle, Mrs 1 00
Prisch, D L 10 00
Prnyne, Grace ... 10
Prnyne, Mrs S F 1 00
Pruyne, Rev S F. 25
Pudney, Mrs W.. 1 00
Purdie, Mrs E C. 1 00
Purdy, J 2 00
Pnrvie, Mrs 20
Ramboth, Miss R. 50
Rand, Mrs H W.. 25
Randolph, L A... 4 00
Ranger, Chas 50
Rankin, S 55
Rare, Dora 50
Raymond, Lottie & Howell Lila..... 2 25
Reay, Mrs C 25
Redmond, Mrs I.. 25
Reed, Mrs L P... 1 00
Reed, Mrs M H... 1 25
Reese, Mrs A..... 1 00
Reeton, Mrs Ida.. 1 00
Reeton, Mrs S.... 1 00
Reid, Mrs J M... 50
Reiser, Mary ... 01
Remington, A J... 1 00
Ressler, Mrs 25
Reves, Mrs 25
Rexford, Fannie L 5 00
Reynolds, M 25
Reynold, G 05
Reynolds, Geo ... 10
Reynolds, Mrs G. 50
Reynolds, Mrs H B 25
Reynolds, Mary... 1 00
Reynolds, Milton. 25
Reynolds, T G.... 2 00
Reynolds, Robt C. 25
Reynolds, Royal.. 25
Rice, Mrs S L.... 1 00
Richards, Mrs.... 25
Richards, R W... 1 00
Riehlman, Mrs F. 1 00
Riddle, Mrs A D. 1 00
Rice, Alice I 1 05
Rice, Miss H S... 25
Rice, Mrs H and little girl 1 10
Rice, Wm J 50
Rich, Estella 3 00
Rich, Mrs Sarah.. 2 00
Richards, Mr and Mrs Alex 2 00
Richards, Mrs Wm 50
Richardson, M H. 2 00
Richardson, Mrs Wm H 1 00
Richman, James.. 25
Richmond, Jno.... 25
Richmond, C J.... 10
Ricler, Julia L... 1 00
Rippert, D 25
Rixon, Rev H L.. 1 00
Robb, Miss I 50
Roberts, Calista.. 1 00
Roberts, Mrs J F 25
Roberts, Mr & Mrs R 1 00
Roberts, Sevia ... 1 00

NEW YORK—Cont'd.

Robertson, C M..10 00
Robertson, Jas.... 5 00
Robinson, Bertha & Leonard 1 00
Robinson, E 2 00
Robinson, Eliz 1 00
Robinson, I A 50
Rockefeller, E N. 2 00
Roe, Warren 50
Rogers, Mrs Geo. 2 00
Rogers, Louisa ... 2 00
Rogers, Mrs M... 25
Rolfe, Edwin 05
Roosa, Jason C... 50
Roosa, Harry A.. 50
Roosa, Mrs J M.. 1 00
Roosa, John M... 1 21
Roosa, L A 50
Roosa, Mathew H 1 00
Roosa, Mrs Mary. 1 00
Roosa, Mrs Sarah. 25
Roosa, W D 50
Rose, Fred 25
Rosedale, Sarah E 3 00
Ross, Edward F & Francis C 20 00
Ross, Mrs W E.. 1 45
Rote, Wm 50
Rounda, A F 50
Romndy, Mrs C O. 25
Rounseville, Miss Grace 1 00
Rowley, Mrs Geo. 1 00
Rowley, Mrs H... 1 00
Rowley, J 1 00
Royce, Louisa A.. 1 00
Roys, C K 30 00
Rnbeck, Mrs C... 2 00
Rudy, Jas 1 00
Rugg, Miss 2 00
Runkle, Chas 25
Runkle, Wm 50
Rupert, Mrs J O. 1 00
Russ, Mary 1 00
Russel, Mrs 25
Russell, Geo H... 5 00
Rust, Mrs S..... 1 00
Rutherford, T F. 5 00

Sabin, J W 2 00
Sagar, Carl 11
Sammis, Geo S... 15
Samson, Mrs M... 1 00
Sanborn, Gertie.. 1 00
Sanders, Geo 25
Sanders, Lucia ... 25
Sanders, Sadie ... 25
Sanford, Mr A F. 25
Sargent, Esther... 1 00
Savage, Mrs W D 50
Sawdy, Mrs O E.. 10
Sawyer, Mrs J.... 25
Schenk, Miss S... 25
Schlemmer, Geo.. 1 00
Schmidt, Mrs F.. 50
Schremp, Miss ... 25
Schulz, Mrs Theo. 25
Schupp, Juo 25
Schutt, S 1 00
Schwab, Clara ... 10
Schwab, Lydia .. 10
Schuyler, W H... 50
Scofield, Chase & J 25
Scofield, Mrs I L. 1 00
Scott, Mrs 25
Scott, Mrs Lizzie. 15
Scott, Maria L... 1 00
Scripter, Mrs 12
Scripter, Mrs Jas.. 25
Scram, l N 25
Scram, Mary 1 00
Seaman, Alfred F 1 00
Seaman, Mrs S F 1 00
Secor, Musa 2 00
Seely, Mrs R..... 10
Seibert, George... 25
Selkirk, Mrs N... 2 00
Shaffer, Jacob.... 5 00
Shaller, Milly 05
Shaller, Tillie 10
Shanks, M G 1 00
Sharon, A 25
Sharp, Mrs F E.. 2 00
Shaver, Albert ... 10
Shaver, Miss E.... 50
Shaver, M R..... 25
Shaver, Mrs M R 25
Shaw, Charlie ... 1 00
Shaw, Mrs L S.. 10
Sheldon, John.... 25
Sheve, R A..... 5 00
Sherrif, Floyd ... 25
Sherwood, Mrs T G 1 00
Showers, Mrs D A 1 50
Shuckman, Wm .. 10
Shufelt, Mrs F G 1 00
Shufelt, Mrs W.. 2 00
Shulters, Mrs J J 1 00
Shults, Mrs C.... 1 00
Shnlts, Mrs Jno.. 25
Shumway, Mrs C. 25
Shumway, Ed ... 15
Shumway, Julia.. 15
Shumway, Mrs R H 10
Shutts, Geo 25
Shntts, Mrs Peter 25
Silliman, S D.... 1 00
Silsbee, Lucinda.. 50
Simmons, Mrs .. 50
Simmons, Mary .. 1 00
Simpkins, Mary .. 1 00
Sincerbeaux, Mr & E 25
Sinclair, Miss J.. 1 00
Sippel, Henry ... 1 00
Skiff, Mrs 50
Skiff, Mrs & Mr N M 50
Skiffe, S C & Belle 1 00
Skinner, Mrs J H 1 00
Slauson, Mrs C .. 25
Slater, Geo L..... 10
Slater, John W.. 5 00
Sloat, Mrs W G... 50
Slocum, Chester.. 25
Smeallie, Agnes .. 1 00
Smeallie, W J.... 1 00
Smeller, Mrs J... 4 00
Smith, Mrs Adam 1 00
Smith, Bertha ... 4 00
Smith, C B..... 25
Smith, Mrs Chas J 50

NEW YORK—Cont'd.

Smith, C D..... 50
Smith, Mrs E S.. 1 00
Smith, Mrs Eliza. 1 00
Smith, Elijah J... 1 00
Smith, Miss E A.. 10
Smith, Frances .. 10
Smith, Miss F.... 1 00
Smith, G 50
Smith, Mrs G.... 50
Smith, H B..... 2 00
Smith, Ira 50
Smith, Mrs J E.. 15
Smith, J F..... 1 00
Smith, Mrs L.... 1 00
Smith, Lloyd 10
Smith, M M..... 25
Smith, Mildred .. 10
Smith, Mrs O S.. 1 00
Smith, Ruth 50
Smith, Mr & Mrs Ward 1 00
Snell, Lewis 1 00
Snyder, E M R.. 60
Snyder, Mrs J.... 1 00
Snyder, M..... 25
Snyder, M E..... 1 00
Sohle, Jos..... 6 28
Soper, Mr & Mrs C K 50
Soper, Lottie 20
Soule, Mrs L L.. 1 00
Spangenberg, Mr & Mrs..... 5 00
Spear, Gertrude... 10
Spear, Grace 10
Spear, Hattie H.. 30
Spencer, Chas 50
Spencer, Mrs O.. 25
Spire, George 1 00
Spple, L 1 00
Sprague, Theo ... 1 00
Springett, J H.... 1 00
Squires, Robt M. 50
Stafford, Mrs C... 75
Stafford, Miss R R 50
Stanton, Mrs B S 1 00
Staples, Merritt .. 25
Stearns, Mrs S... 1 00
Stedman, Mrs T B 1 00
Steers, Alice 1 00
Stelwell, Mrs E... 25
St Germain, K B. 50
Stephens, Mrs A D 2 00
Stephens, Ray ... 50
Sterling, Mrs ... 10
Stevens, C H..... 44
Stevens, Mrs F A 1 00
Stevens, H L.... 10
Stevens, Mrs M... 50
Stevens, Mrs O W 1 00
Stevens, Mrs S.. 20
Stevens, Wm H.. 1 00
Stewart, Mrs 50
Stewart, Miss N J 1 00
Stickney, Mae ... 10
Stickney, Mrs S.. 1 00
Stiles, Mrs E S.. 1 00
Stillwagon, E ... 05
Stilwell, Charlotte 25
Stokes, Miss H B 13
Stoll, Mrs James.. 05
Stone, Bert 10
Stone, Fred..... 50
Storm, Mrs Allen. 2 00
Storrs, Mrs F H.. 1 00
Straight, Mrs J... 1 00
Strickland, Edith. 04
Strickland, Vera.. 05
Strong, Ethel & Mother 1 10
Stronigan, Mrs N. 2 00
Strous, Evelyn .. 25
Strous, Merritt... 10
Stuart, I L.....25 00
Stuffbleem, Allen. 50
Stumph, Mr 10
Stur, Mr 05
Sullivan, Miss ... 05
Swanson, Mrs A. 1 00
Swarthout, Mrs M 2 00
Swartz, Miss M.. 20
Swartz, Mr W H 50
Sweney, Jno 1 00
Sweeney, Margt J 10
Sweet, J G..... 5 00
Swift, Alice 50
Sykes, J B..... 2 00
Sykes, Mrs J B.. 1 00
Sykes, H B..... 2 00
Sylvester, C B... 5 00
Symes, Mrs T.... 1 00

Tallman, Mrs A J & Mrs L Westfield 2 00
Talmage, Mrs H S 1 00
Tanner, Mrs A... 1 00
Tanner, J H..... 50
Tanner, Mrs M... 10
Taylor, Mrs E M. 5 00
Taylor, Florence. 10
Taylor, Mrs H... 1 00
Taylor, Mary 25
Taylor, R 25
Taylor, Mr & Mrs Wilbur 25
Tefft, Mrs A M.. 15
Tept, Mr 05
Terry, Sophia E.. 2 00
Terwilliger, Benj. 25
Terwilliger, Mr & Mrs C H..... 1 00
Terwilliger, Ed S. 25
Terwilliger, F ... 25
Terwilliger, Ross. 10
Thomas, Mrs D.. 2 50
Thompson, G 1 00
Thurber, E E.... 1 00
Thurston, Mrs R. 1 00
Tice, Emory 1 00
Tice, L A..... 2 00
Tifft, Mrs O.....10 00
Tinning, A 1 00
Titus, V 1 00
Toby, Anna 10
Todd, Mrs S..... 25
Tomlinson, Thos..10 00
Toncy, Miss S D.. 10
Torner, Ella 50
Towners, C C.... 1 00
Townsend, Mrs S 60
Tracy, A W..... 20
Tracy, H E..... 25
Traphagen, Geo . 10
Traver, Eudora .. 1 00

NEW YORK—Cont'd.

Traver, Mrs R.... 50
Travers, A M.... 2 00
Trinegan, Mrs T.. 10
Trombley, Geo .. 1 00
Truax, Miss H.... 15
Tuller, Miss K... 1 00
Tulmer, E J..... 50
Tupper, E B..... 50
Turnbull, Wm M. 1 62
Turner, Jas A... 25
Turner, Austin .. 2 00
Turner, Jay P... 2 00
Tuttle, K P..... 1 00
Tuttle, Mrs Mary. 1 00
Tymeson, Mrs W G 50
Valentine, Jno .. 85
Valentiue, Frank. 50
Van Aernam, Mrs C, Miss M Hallenbeck, Mrs D Blessing 3 00
Van Auken, C.... 25
Van Buren, Dr... 50
Vandemark, C ... 1 00
Vandemark, C.... 50
Vandemark, M... 25
Vandenburg, B B 30
Van Densen, E... 25
Vanderboegh, I... 1 00
Vanderzee, Floyd. 25
Vanderzee, W ... 50
Vanderzee, Mrs W 50
Vandyke, Mrs D.. 50
Vandyke, David . 50
Van Heusen, A... 5 00
Van Lehaick, R.. 10
Van Leuven, Mrs I L..... 1 00
Vann, Mrs 2 00
Van Nest, H B... 1 00
Van Tassel, Ren . 1 00
Van Tyle, Mrs A. 30
Van Teryl, Mrs... 25
Van Tyle, Wm... 1 00
Van Tyle, Mrs W 1 00
Van Voorhis, D... 1 00
Vau Vrankeu, Mrs S 1 00
Van Wie, Rev & Mrs 1 00
Vedder, Mrs I S.. 25
Vedder, W D.... 50
Verity, Obediah.. 10
Vogel, Albert 05
Vogel, Bertha ... 05
Vollmer, Anna .. 1 00
Vongn, D H..... 25
Voorhees, Mrs ... 10
Vrooman, M 50
Wade, Mrs H..... 1 00
Wagar Mrs D.... 25
Wager, Henry ... 25
Wager, Ira 25
Wager, Mrs J W. 25
Wagouer, Ada ... 10
Wagoner, Miss L. 1 00
Wah, Tong 25
Wahl, Mr Phil.... 1 00
Wainright's, Miss Pupils 76
Wakeley, Mrs E.. 1 00
Waldorf, Mrs G.. 50
Waldron, J H & G Y 1 00
Waldrou, Miss S F 25
Walker, Isabel .. 1 00
Walker, Mrs L... 1 10
Walker, Norah... 1 00
Wallis, Mrs P.... 75
Walrath, Mrs K.. 1 00
Ward, Mrs E J... 50
Ward, Mrs Thos.. 5 00
Warner, Miss C.. 1 00
Warner, Geo 25
Washburn, Mrs H 50
Waterbury, Mrs H 2 00
Watkins, Jas H.. 2 00
Watson, Mrs R T10 00
Way, Mrs H V.. 1 00
Way, Mrs J..... 25
Wear, Thos 1 00
Weber, Kath'ne.. 10
Webster, Vivian.. 10
Wecht, Frank ... 25
Weiler, Miss Katie 50
Welch, Mrs H.... 10
Welch, Mrs J.... 1 00
Welch, Mrs Nettie 10
Weldon, Mrs L M 25
Wellman, Jennie. 1 00
Wells, Celia 07
Wells, Mrs H C.. 25
Wells, Merle 05
Wells, Mrs N M. 25
Wells, Mrs R F.. 2 00
Wench, Mr John. 25
Wentworth, Ed . 2 00
Wentworth, J N.. 25
Werlin, Mrs C... 25
Wessels, Mrs M A 1 00
West, G M..... 1 00
Weston, Sarah A 2 00
Wetmore, L 1 00
Whaling, Mrs M J 2 00
Whallon, Minnie . 10
Wheeler, I H.... 5 00
Whelden, C A.... 1 00
Wheldon, D M.. 1 00
Whitbeck, Leo .. 25
White, E 25
White, Mrs M.... 1 00
White, Mrs S M.. 1 00
Whiteford, Mrs D 1 00
Whiteford, Mrs J J 1 00
Whiteman, M A. 2 00
Whiting, E B.... 2 50
Whitmarsh, H P. 50
Whitmarsh, Mrs H P 50
Whitmore, H C.. 2 00
Whitney, M 2 30
Whitney, O E.... 1 00
Whitson, Saml R. 15
Whorton, E T... 1 00
Wicker, Mrs F A, Coll by 3 15
Wickes, A M.... 2 50
Wickham, Charlie 02
Wickham, Nora .. 02
Wiebel, Wm 25
Wilber, Clarence & Francis 25
Wilber, Eva 50
Wilber, Henry ... 1 00

NEW YORK—Cont'd.

Wilbor, H 1 00
Wilbur, Mrs A B. 2 00
Wilcox, M J J.. 1 00
Wilcox, S C..... 1 00
Wilcox, Miss S N. 1 00
Wilklow, Eliza.. 50
Wilklow, Harry.. 10
Wilklow, Jno 25
Wilklow, Linson.. 10
Wilklow, Wm 10
Wilklow, Phillip.. 25
Willcox, Whitman 1 00
Wileman, Chas H. 10
Wileman, Jno D. 15
Wilkins, Eben ... 13
Wilkins, Miss J.. 25
Wilkinson, W ... 2 00
Wilks, Willie 25
Wilson, L S..... 1 00
Willard, Mrs D.. 1 00
Willett, Mrs M J 1 00
Williams, Abbie.. 1 00
Williams, C E.... 50
Williams, C & B. 2 50
Williams, Mrs D. 1 00
Williams, David.. 1 00
Williams, D W... 1 00
Williams, E M... 1 00
Williams, Mrs H. 50
Williams, J 1 00
Williams, Miss K 1 00
Williams, Mrs L. 50
Williams, S B.... 1 00
Williams, Mrs T D 1 00
Williauson, Geo P 50
Willis, A 2 00
Willis, A 2 00
Willsey, Mrs A A 5 00
Wilsou, Mrs H... 50
Wiltsie, Mrs E... 1 00
Winspear, Mrs .. 10
Winspear, H 20
Wintish, Jacob... 25
Wintish, Peter .. 50
Wisser, Mary 10
Witzeg, Arthur .. 05
Witzig, Edith ... 05
Witzig, Frank ... 05
Wollaber, Mrs J H 1 00
Wood, Mrs 01
Wood, Mrs 25
Wood, Mrs 25
Wood, Ebner 75
Wood, E & family 2 75
Wood, H A..... 1 00
Wood, K S..... 75
Wood, Miss L C.. 10
Wood, Martha ... 50
Wood, Mary 05
Wood, Miss O A.. 1 00
Wood, Mrs T.... 50
Wood, Ralph W. 2 00
Wodoward, Belle. 15
Woodward, Mrs D M 2 00
Woodward, Mrs E 30
Woodward, I C.. 2 00
Woolsey, Dr 50
Word, Welissa .. 5 00
Wright, Frank .. 25
Wright, Mrs G... 4 10
Wright, Gertrude. 1 00
Wright, H H..... 1 00
Wright, Hy 1 00
Wright, Mrs Jno. 50
Wright, L A..... 1 00
Wright, Wm 2 00
Wurz, Ben 25
Wurz, E..... 25

Yerdon, Mrs J H. 1 00
York, Mira 1 00
Youmans, Mrs E. 25
Young, Bessie ... 25
Young, Christian. 2 50
Young, C J..... 25
Young, Hawley .. 25
Young, Lewis 10
Young, Norman .. 10
Young, Mrs O.... 1 00
Zaephel, Mrs 50
Zeh, Mrs R S... 50
Zeiss, Jacob 10
Zepf, Mr John.... 1 00
Zinert, Mrs & Mrs A C Schrader... 6 00
Zink, Herman.... 05
Zipp, Robt 10
Maggie, Sabattis.. 50
Susie, Hancock... 50
Stuyvesant, Stuyvesant 1 00
Vic, Pattersonville 03
A A M, Essex.... 1 00
A J B, Holley.... 2 00
Mrs A J W, Port Jervis 50
Miss A & N W, Gloversville 65
Mrs C, Gloversville 50
C A T, Glen Cove 2 00
Mrs C H, Kirkwood 25 00
Miss C K..... 1 00
C P A, Chatham. 1 00
D C, Flackville.. 20
D M D, Amenia Union 2 00
Mrs E C W, Lestershire 5 00
E H C, Almeda.. 2 00
F C W, Buffalo.. 2 00
Mrs G, Gloversville 1 50
G A B S, Hancock 26
Mrs G D R, Waterloo 1 00
Mrs G M, Gloversville 1 00
H E W S, Hancock 25
H M T, Gloversville 1 00
H & W & Mother 1 00
J A H, Hooslck Falls 1 00
Mrs J E J..... 2 00
J E S, Hancock.. 50
J E W, Port Jervis 1 00
J H C, Schenectady 5 00
Miss J K, Gloversville 1 00
Miss K, Gloversville 2 00

NEW YORK—Cont'd.

Mr K, Gloversville 25
L B C, Huntington 2 00
L C D, Syracuse. 1 00
Mrs M, Cooperstown 1 00
Mrs M, Jericho 10
M B B, Speicertown 50
M L B, Flushing 1 00
M O S, Gloversville 1 00
Mrs N, Gansevoort 25
P S, Ft Montgomery 1 00
P T S B, Brooklyn 1 00
R P R, Binghamton 2 00
R V T, White Plains 1 00
S F C, Sayville.. 1 10
S S, Hicksville... 25
Miss S Z, Tompkinsville 25
Mrs W, Balto.... 1 00
W B, Syracuse... 1 00
Wm J, Buffalo .. 2 00
—, Bridgehampton 10
—, Antwerp 1 00
—, Bergen 3 00
—, Boonville ... 2 00
—, Brier, Hill.. 1 00
—, Brooklyn 1 00
—, Brooklyn 5 00
—, Clarence 2 00
—, Clarence Ctr 1 00
—, Cuba 75
—, Elizabethtown 2 00
—, Etna 6 00
—, Gorham 30
—, Harrisville.. 1 00
—, Jamaica 1 00
—, Johnsons ... 25
—, Little Britain 1 00
—, Luzerne 1 00
—, Malone 4 00
—, Mineville.... 3 00
—, Niagara Falls 1 00
—, N Y C..... 5 00
—, Nnnda 32
—, Olean 1 00
—, Olean 1 00
—, Orient Point. 5 00
—, Orient Point. 5 00
—, Orient Point. 5 00
—, Pike..... 1 00
—, Poughkeepsie 2 00
—, Red Hook... 2 00
—, Swartoutville.10 00
—, Walton..... 2 00
—, Watermill... 1 00
—, Waterville... 1 00
—, Westville ... 1 00
—, Westernville. 1 00
Cash, Amityville.. 55
Cash, Babylon.... 25
Cash, Babylon ... 50
Cash, Babylon ... 50
Cash, Flackville .. 25
Cash, Port Jervis 50
Cash, Port Jervis. 25
For Christ Sake, Greene 1 10
In the name of our Master, W Groton 1 00
Friends, I H N, Andover 8 00
Friends to the cause, Argusville 2 00
Friend, Auburn... 1 00
A friend, Boyntonville 50
A friend, Boyntonville 1 00
Friend, Buffalo .. 25
Friend, Buffalo.. 25
A Friend, Cambridge 3 00
A Friend, Canajoharie 50 00
Friend, Castile .. 1 00
Friend, Caroline Depot 1 00
Friend, Collamer. 15
Friends, Cowlesville 6 25
Friend, E Elma... 60
A Friend, Fabius 1 00
A Friend, Fulton. 2 00
Friends, Glovers-ville 1 10
Friend, Hillsdale.20 00
Two Friends, Hunter 2 00
Friend, Jay 19
A Friend, Lansingburg 1 00
Friends, Lestershire 2 15
Friend, New London 2 50
Friends, Olcott .. 1 96
A Friend, Olean.. 75
Friend, Ovid 5 00
Friends, Pine Plain 2 50
A Friend, Sandy Hill 10 00
A Friend, Schenectady 50
Two Friends, So Westerlo 2 00
Three Friends, Syracuse 2 00
Friend, Watertown 1 00
Friends, Willow.. 10
A Friend, Wyantskill 5 00
In His Name.... 2 00
I H N, Albany... 1 00
I H N, Buffalo.. 10
I H N, Buffalo... 25
In His Name Club, Jamestown 2 35
Inasmuch, Mecklenburg 4 00
I H N, Middleport 10 00
I H N, Patchogue. 1 00
I H N, Rochester 2 25
In Jnses Name, S Columbia 1 00
Sympathizing Fds, Fleming 1 00

NEW YORK—Cont'd.

A Sympathizer... 1 50
In Memoriam, Clyde 5 00
Subr, Elmira 1 25
Subr, New Hartford 1 00
Old Subr, Schenectady 1 00
Subr, Summitville 2 00
Reader, Berne ... 2 00
Reader, Johnstown 4 50
Reader, Manlius.. 1 00
Anon, Binghamton 7 00
Anon, —..... 10
Two Ladies Johnsons 1 50
Two little Sisters, Griffins Corners, 20
From One in Palisades 5 00
One interested, Cowlesville 2 00
People of Cherry Hill, Brokenstraw 1 15
Widow & the fatherless, Coxsackie 1 00
The Sender, Manlius 5 00
Mass Meeting, Moundville 18 70
No Name, Pattersonville 75
Shut in, Mt Vernon 50
Shop Boys, Cortland 2 00
One that loves Jesus, Cornwall... 10
One on the way home, Lansingburgh 5 00
Lover of Jesus, Broadalbin 3 00
A Humble C E, Springs 50
For Christianity, Andover 10 00
Belleville Boys... 1 00
Mother's Girls, Nicholville 1 00
A School Boy, Buffalo 1 00
A Widow, Hempstead 1 00
The Peerless Cooker Co, Buffalo.. 3 75
One who loves the dear Savior, Richmondville . 1 00
Citizens, Whitney Point 17 50
People of Colton. 5 65
For the Famishing, Farmington 1 00
Inmates of Keep Home, Watertown 3 35
M E Sunday Sch, E Meadow, L I. 2 00
Troupe Creek S S of M Pro Ch, Steuben 3 00
S S & Womens Miss S of Bapt Ch, Richburg .. 7 09
Coll of Ref Ch & S S 12 00
Stuart Shanl Bible Cl, Emanuel Bapt Ch, Buffalo..... 4 52
S S Bapt Ch, Cherry Creek 8 00
S S, Glen Wild..13 00
Bapt S S Hton...15 98
Blackmans Corners S S, Verona.... 3 10
2d Ref S S, Schenectady 10 00
Cedar Hill S S.... 7 71
Humboldt Parkway M E S Sch, Buffalo 2 00
Qneechy M E S S, Canaan 4 Corners 2 25
Class No 2 Bapt S Sch, Fort Miller 17
Great Neck Union S School 8 82
M E S S, Wyoming 1 21
Bapt S Sch, New Berlin 3 00
Sabbath Sch, Kenka 5 75
Covert Bapt S S, Trumansburg .. 5 00
C M S S Class, Ithaca 40
Hartfield S Sch, Hartfield 3 06
S Sch, W Wilton. 1 00
Burton's, M L, S S Cl, W Schuyler 1 00
S S & Friends, Orwell 8 75
Bapt Ch, & S S Cl, Blodgett Mills.. 7 00
S Sch at Sanfords Corners 8 00
First Ref'd S Sch, Schenectady ...25 00
Primary Class in S S, Kripple Bush 48
Pupils in Sch, Dist No 15, Sherburne 1 25
Pupils of Sch Dist No 3, Dickinson 1 40
Pupils of 2d Inter Dpt & Teacher, Keeseville...27 41
Dist School, Pine Valley 68
Potsdam R P Ch, Madrid 22 30
Lisbon R P Ch, Madrid 15 75
Coll of Ref Ch, Clarence 6 70
Members & Fds of Cong Bapt Meth & Cath Chs, Madrid 95 00
Welch Cong Ch, Waterville 27 10

NEW YORK—Cont'd.

M E Ch, Deposit.32 25
1st Bapt Ch, Ilion50 00
1st Pres Ch, Gulf Summit 6 13
Bapt Chapel Hamton 2 38
Presby Ch, Unadilla 19 00
M E Ch, Bellport 5 60
Bapt Ch, Almond. 2 00
Ref Church, Glen.13 00
Union S Ser of 3d Ch, Ripley.....22 28
Pres Ch Skaneateles 38 09
Lyonsville Ref Ch, Kripplebush 1 21
Presby Ch, Windsor 14 00
Meth Churches, Cohocton 31 00
Bapt Ch, Fleming 3 00
Friends, Ch Westmoreland 4 41
Bapt Ch, Nicholville 5 15
Pres Ch, Ballston Centre 1 00
Prospect Hill Miss Ch, Schenectady 4 50
Bapt Ch & Frds, Cossayuna 28 00
Covert Bapt Ch, Trumansburg ..10 00
Jrs of Wash Hghts United Pres Ch, New York City.. 1 00
Pres Ch, Glenwood 2 09
Drew M E Ch, Carmel 26 50
Reynold's, Bessie Cl, 1st Pres Ch, Baldwinsville .. 1 30
U B Meth & Bapt Chs, Friensburg15 87
Friends of Bapt Ch, Skaneateles. 2 50
1st Bapt Ch, Bainbridge 17 00
Kent Bapt Ch, Kent 31 60
Ch of Christ Choir Auburn 36 05
Pres Ch, E Pembroke 23 10
M E Ch, Dalton..13 00
Tres of C E Soc, Dnanesburgh ...10 00
The Kings Own Cir of K D of Cornhill M E Ch, Rochester 11 00
G S Graves Bible Cl of Emanuel Bapt Ch, Buffalo 5 00
Y W Aid Soc, 1st Presby Ch, Troy 7 00
Y P S C E, 1st Pres Ch, Gilbertsville 3 00
K D Circle, Lebanon Spgs..... 2 00
Y P C U of U B Ch, Findlay Lake10 00
B Y P U, Delevan 5 00
L A Soc..... 2 00
Jr C E Soc, Windsor 1 50
Island Mission, Cohoes 3 63
Lynbrook Mission.37 00
Hill Top Chapter E L, Ava..... 3 25
Cong Y P S C E, Norfolk 1 00
Vineyard Ave C E Soc, Lloyd 3 00
Delphian Club, Brookfield 8 00
W F M S of State St Pres Ch, Albany 4 61
Ladies Aid Soc Hol Ref Ch, N Y Mills 4 00
Farther Light Cir of Seneca Falls Bapt Ch..... 5 00
Grace M E Ch, Tonawanda 2 50
Jr C E Soc, 1st Ref Ch, Wyantskill 4 50
Y P Soc of C E Presby Ch, Catchogue 5 00
Homer Lockwood, Chap of E L of M E Ch, Madrid 7 00
C E Soc of 1st Pres Ch, Whitehall 13 00
M R Y P S C E, Manorville 1 45
Willing Workers, Luzerne 1 00
King's Daughters, Fleming 5 00
Y P S C E, 1st Ref Ch, Hudson 8 67
Ep League, Argyle 6 35
R R Y M C A, Ravena 10 50
Cong Y P S C E, Morrisville 2 00
Ladies Aid, Bowen 1 08
Endeavors, Orleans 1 00
Jr League, Rushford 5 06
Epw League, Apalachin, ... 1 43
Students of Cazenovia Seminary Cazenovia 20 70
Pres Ch Miss Soc, Union Springs..12 23
Jr Ep League of Floral Park M E Ch 3 00
S S, Ass'n Windsor 2 20
C E Soc, W Wilton 1 75

NEW YORK—Cont'd.

Jnnior C E S, Fort Jackson 1 00
Un Ch En Soc, Rock Stream... 5 00
The Little Daughters of the King, Sag Harbor.... 1 05
Jr League, Burke 3 00
C E Soc, Unadilla 3 26
Ulsterville W C T U 5 00
Jr League, Westhampton Beach. 2 00
Y P S C E Bethel Ch, Pt Ontario. 1 25
Jr C E Soc of Kingsboro Ave Ch, Gloversville 56
Y Lad's Miss Soc, Cuba 4 00
King,s Daughters, Bridge Hampton 5 00
Queen Esther Cir, Bellona 5 00
Deeds of Kindness Cir K D, Hamilton 1 00
Presby Miss Soc, Dexter 15 00
Pres Ch C E Soc, Monroe 50 00
Rescue Mission, Syracuse 10 00
Y W C A, Brooklyn 2 03
C E Soc, Binff Pt 75
Mt Morris W C T U 5 00
C E Soc, Columbia 20 00
Boys Miss Band, Hannibal 50
Ecclesia of Diety, Schenectady 20 00
Ballston Grange No 687, Burnt Hills 7 20
Womans Proh'n League, Lockport 3 00
W C T U & L T L, Farmington.. 5 65
W C T U of Beekmantown 4 08
S Elmira W C T U, Albany 14 15
W C T U, Linolenmville 5 25
W C T U, Millbrook 3 50
Prim Dept U Sch, New York Mills. 2 00
S S Cl of 7 boys, N Y City 2 62
Sundry Employes of Union Pac Tea Co, N Y City.... 7 00
Rescue Miss, Syracuse 6 00
Employers of Utica St Hospital..16 00
Widow's Mite, N Y City 2 00
Well fed ones, New Rochelle 10 00
Cl No 1, Cong Ch, Woodhaven 3 00
2d Pres Ch Choir, Auburn 90 75
Coll in First Pres Ch, Ballston Spa.35 68
Christ Church, Bay Ridge 37 05
Bapt Ch, Bradford 2 50
The Ref Epis Ch, Brooklyn 1 50
Hansom Pl Bapt Ch, Brooklyn....33 00
Wyckoff Ave Bapt Ch, Brooklyn.... 7 00
St Paul's M E Ch & S, Brooklyn... 9 50
Lenox Road M E Ch, Brooklyn ... 9 50
Cropsey Ave Meth Ch & S School, Brooklyn 10 00
St Paul's En Luth Ch, Brooklyn ...10 00
Glenmore Ave Pres Ch, Brooklyn....12 10
Salem Danish Ev Luth Ch, Bklyn.12 60
Prospect Hts Pres Ch & S S, Bklyn.70 01
First U P Church, Brooklyn 5 36
Noble St Bapt Ch, Brooklyn 6 89
Nostrand Ave M E Ch, Brooklyn....27 00
Ridley Mem M E Ch, Brooklyn.... 5 00
Goodsell M E Ch & S Sch, Brooklyn. 6 00
German Bapt Ch, S Brooklyn 5 00
1st Ger Bapt Ch, Buffalo 10 00
Drew M E Ch, Carmel 5 50
Presby Ch, Constable 9 00
1st Cong Church, Crown Point....24 47
Ref Pres Church, Duanesburg 62 55
Presby Chapel, E Irvington 5 00
Wesleyan Meth Ch & Village of Fillmore 52 26
Bapt Ch, Fleming. 1 50
M E Ch, Ft Jackson 2 05
Universalist Ch, Ft Jackson 3 61
Gates Hill M E Ch, Franklintown 1 00
M E Ch, Franklintown 8 00
1st Pres Ch, Franklinville 13 18
Prim Cl Dutch Ref Ch, Greenwich.. 1 70
Pres Ch, Hastings 4 77

NEW YORK—Cont'd.

Wesleyan Meth Ch, Houghton 35 32
M E Ch, Jonesville 7 00
Lafave Baptist.... 25
Bapt Ch of Yates & Meth & Pres Ch, Lyndonville.19 19
3d Meth E Ch, Sodus 47 50
Pres Ch, Malta...12 00
M E Ch, Montour Falls 8 25
St Michaels Ch, New York 1 00
Friend, Burdett .. 25
Friend, Burdett... 50
A Friend, Croton Falls 1 00
Friend, Doraville.. 25
A Friend, Dunkirk 1 00
A Friend, Dunkirk 1 00
A Friend, Dunkirk 1 00
Friends, Dunkirk. 11 40
Friends, Dunkirk. 5 75
Friends, Dunkirk. 6 25
A Friend, Ganscvoort 1 00
Friend, Lawrence, L I 2 00
A Friend, Liberty 1 00
Friend, New London 1 00
A Friend, Panama 3 00
A Friend, Penn Yan 20
A Friend, Sanitaria Springs 5 00
Friend, S Wales.. 25
Friend, Speonk... 2 50
A Friend, Springville 1 00
A Friend, Tarrytown 5 00
A Friend, Tronpsburg 10 00
Friend, Turner.... 1 00
Friend, Waverly... 25
Friends, Albion... 1 00
Tremont Bapt Ch, N Y City 1 00
44th St M E Ch, N Y City 5 00
Ch of Intercession, N Y City 6 00
Ch of the Redeemer, N Y City ... 6 00
Ascension Memorial Ch, N Y City.10 00
Ch of the People & 5 Points Miss, N Y City 10 00
Tremont Bapt Ch, N Y City 10 00
W 33d St Bapt Ch, N Y City 15 00
Swed Bapt Ch, N Y City 27 00
Ascension Bapt Ch & S S, N Y City.16 60
French Evang Ch, N Y City 40 93
French Evan Ch, N Y City 4 07
Pres Ch, N Bergen 9 60
Cong Ch, N Collins 23 25
Bapt Ch, N Hebron 10 83
M Ch Coll, Oriskany Falls 8 15
Pres Ch Parish... 78
Pres Church, Red Creek 13 00
Park Ave Bapt Ch, Cl 40, Rochester 5 00
Coll Park Av Bapt Ch, Cl 41, Rochester 10 25
Pres Ch, Sennett.. 16 40
Bapt Ch, Sennett.21 75
Old S E Ch, S East 7 00
Pres Ch, Stephentown 21 00
1st Cong Ch & S S, Westmoreland ..10 00
Christian Ch, West Shelby 18 00
Cong & Meth Ch, Willsboro 10 00
Elm Valley Union S Sch, Andover. 1 25
Bethany Pres S S, Brooklyn 16 50
Christ Ch S Sch, Clinton Street, Brooklyn 20 00
1st Free Bapt S S, Brooklyn 3 00
St Clements Prot E S Sch, Bklyn. 4 03
St John's S S, Ft Hamilton, Bklyn 5 00
1st M E S School, Brooklyn 10 00
Ross St Pres Ch S Sch, Brooklyn...10 00
Central E D Bapt S S, Brooklyn...12 00
Baptist S School, Brooklyn 15 00
German S School, Brooklyn 50 00
M E Sch, Cameron Mills 1 10
1nf Class Vischer's Ferry, S S, Clifton Park 25
Prim Dept of Pres S S, Dexter..... 5 25
M E S Sch, Edinburg 4 00
Whig St Union S Sch, Elkdale ...14 00
St Paul's Ch, S S, Flatbush 137 43
Bemis Dist S Sch, Gloversville 2 00
A M E Lion S S, Gravesend Beach 40
S Sch, Hornby....11 29

NEW YORK—Cont'd.

All Saints S Sch, Hudson 11 00
S S Dutch Ref Ch, Ger, Jamaica.... 6 00
Holy Trinity S S, N Y City 7 00
Woodland M E S Sch 5 00
Holyrood S Sch, N Y City 1 00
St Michaels S Sch, N Y City 2 50
Swed Bapt S Sch, N Y City 5 00
Friends Ch S Sch.11 25
Cornell Mem M E S S, N Y City...18 00
Eagle Ave S Sch, N Y City 20 00
Brick Ch Branch S S, N Y City...23 19
Woods Mem S S, N Y City 25 00
St Paul's M E S S, N Y City 32 00
Ch of the Beloved Disciple S Sch, N Y City 10 00
Holy Trinity S S, N Y City 42 81
S S of 1st Presby Ch of Throggs Neck, Westchester 5 09
S Sch, Obi 3 36
M E S Sch, Peterboro 10 00
Pres S Sch, Richfield Springs 27 01
Rose Bapt S Sch, Rose 11 75
S Sch, Sherrill....10 00
S S Children of E E Ch, Smithboro 2 12
Union Centre S S. 6 86
Maryette Union S S, W Colesville. 2 00
M E S Sch, West Exeter 1 46
M E S Sch, W Galway 3 27
Ladies Aid, Apalachin 2 18
Golden Rule M B of little children, Andover 2 00
Y P S C E, Barkertown 6 07
Union Y P S C E, Barnerville 12 42
Jr C E Soc of Park Cong'l Ch, Brooklyn 4 00
B Y P U, Belfast. 5 00
Ladies Aid of Beerston 10 00
Bapt S Sch Miss'y Soc, Bennettsburg 3 00
W C T U, Black Creek 2 00
Epw Lea, Brewerton 6 00
Whatsoever Circle of King's Daughters, Brookfield.. 1 00
Judson Miss Com Hanson Pl Bapt Ch, S S, Bklyn.25 00
Y P S C E First Pres Ch, Brunswick 10 00
M E Ch, Epw Lea, Castleton 10 20
King's Daughters of Reformed Ch, Catskill 5 00
Y P S C E of Christ's Pres Ch, Catskill 15 35
W C T U, Churchville 29 64
W C T U, Cuba..31 31
C E Soc, Dansville 1 00
Y P S C E of Pres Ch, Dansville... 2 05
W H M Soc, Dickinson 14 65
C E Soc, E Irvington 5 00
New Prospect Y P S C E, E Pine Bush 7 00
Southside Bapt C E, Elmira 2 40
Southport Pres C E, Elmira 2 85
Y M C A, Elmira. 3 53
Franklin St Pres C E, Elmira.... 4 20
Ger Evan C E, Elmira 7 00
Centenary Meth Ep Lea, Elmira.13 04
First Pres C E, Elmira 21 00
Jr C E Soc Ref'd Ch, Fishkill.....30 00
Epw Lea of Eddyville M E Ch, Fly Mt..... 5 00
Thimble Bee Soc, Germantown ... 5 00
End Soc, Gerry... 2 00
W C T U Soc, Grahamsville ...20 00
Epw Lea of Greenwood M E Ch.. 8 25
Jr Lea Greenwood 2 29
Faithful Circle of King's Daughts, Hamilton 5 00
Y P S C E, Hammond 2 00
Y P C U of Buch Hill, Hartfield.. 5 06
M E Jr Leagne, Hartford.....12 35
Willing Circle K D, Hudson 10 00
Y P S C E, Lakewood 13 25
C E Soc, Lawyersville 22 50

NEW YORK—Cont'd.

Lend a Hand Club of 2d Presby Ch, Lockport 1 50
Grace Chapel Soc, L I C 5 00
B Y P U, Lndingtonville 2 56
W C T U, Lyon Mountain 3 00
Y P S C E, Lyons 8 10
Y P S C E, 1st Cong Ch, Malone 2 00
Y P S C E of Ref Ch, New Concord 1 00
Jr C E Soc 2d Ch of Disciples of Christ, N Y City 1 86
C E Soc of Bethany, Pres Ch... 5 00
Coll of Y M C A.. 5 21
Armitage Girls Club, N Y City.10 00
Cuyler Chap Miss Soc, N Y City...10 70
Friends Evan Ch, C E, N Y City.. 2 00
Jr C E Soc, Nyack 2 62
Jnn En, Oswego.. 2 00
Y P & C E Soc, Oswego 2 50
Wide Awake Lodge I O G T, Otego.10 00
W C T U, Parishville 1 00
Y P S C E of Jay G M Ref'd Ch, Roxburg 6 15
The 2d Milo Bapt Y P S C E, Second Milo 6 00
The 2d Milo Bapt Ch, Second Milo 9 00
Y P S C E of M P Ch, Spring Lake.20 00
Bangall Loyal Temp Legion, Stanford 3 00
Jr C E, Stephentown 1 50
C E Consecration Coll, Texas Valley 7 33
Y P S C E of Ref Ch, Ulster Park. 3 50
Y P S C E, Ulsterville 5 83
Y P S C E, Union Centre 2 42
Jnn E Soc, Waterloo 12 49
C E Soc Bapt Ch, Waterville 15 55
C E Soc, W Falls. 5 33
Jnniors, W Leyden 2 25
Jr C E Bapt Ch, Yates 1 65

MISCELLANEOUS

Barton, R D..... 1 00
Bidgood, Benj ... 1 00
Bidgood, Mary .. 50
Chamberlain, L, Lowell 1 00
Clay, Jos 5 00
Freer, C M, Jerseyville 3 00
Fuller, Mrs Geo, Spartansburg .. 1 00
Hale, Lucy O.... 1 00
Hecke, Ferdinand 2 00
Hollingsworth J L 3 50
Jackson, Mrs C.. 1 00
Lewis, M D, St Louis 7 00
Lewis, Mary M, St Louis 3 00
McCall, J B 1 00
Mitchell, Sarah .. 20
Moncrief, Sarah, Morton 2 00
Prentiss, Mrs J J 25
Tucker, M J..... 5 00
Wadhams, Mrs .. 1 00
E L K, Springfield 2 00
I F R F, Mashuank 10
M J T, Middletown 1 00
W W, —..... 5 00
I H N, Watsonville 6 00
I H N, S Boston. 1 00
—, —..... 10
—, —..... 25
—, —..... 45
—, —..... 50
—, —..... 50
—, —..... 1 00
—, —..... 1 10
—, —..... 2 00
—, —..... 2 00
—, —..... 4 00
—, —..... 5 00
—, —..... 1 50
—, Beaver City. 50
—, Dawson 10
—, Elmira 1 00
—, Newmarket.. 1 00
—, Seabreeze .. 22
Anon, —..... 20
Anon, —..... 20
Anon, —..... 50
Anon, —..... 1 00
Anon, —..... 1 00
Friend, —..... 50
Friend, —.....20 00
Friend, Boston.... 50
Friend, Omaha... 40
From a Friend... 1 00
Friend who wishes could give more. 1 00
Friends of the Master 1 50
Three Sisters,— 25
People of Larimon & vicinity 7 50
For India, —.... 1 04
Jun Leagne, Watertown 50

.. A Mother's Victorious Prayer ..

THE GENTILE WOMAN'S FAITH .·.

BY DR. AND MRS. WILBUR F. CRAFTS

International Sunday School Lesson for July 15: Mark 7: 24-30

Golden Text, Matt. 15: 25: "Lord, help me"

SUMMER brings us face to face with all nationalities, whether our outing be a tour of Europe or a day at some picnic resort. It is therefore a good time to remind ourselves of the real meaning of those words that so many say, and so few live, that "In Christ there is neither Jew nor Greek." We never think of Christ as a foreigner. "Behold the Man!" Nor can we think of Christ as thinking of any human being as a foreigner. The eloquent negro, Fred Douglass, said that Abraham Lincoln was the only white man who ever talked with him without making him conscious that he was of a different race. Lincoln, like Christ, met everyone as a man. Christ, in the lesson before us, going to a foreign coast for rest and quiet hours with his apostles, showed how un-Christlike is race prejudice.

A MODERN SYRO-PHŒNICIAN WOMAN

. . .

Secret Prayer Essential, But Secret Faith Impossible He could not be hid. The feeding of the five thousand had produced two embarrassing results. Patriotic but unspiritual Jews had attempted to force Christ to lead them in a revolt against Rome. That was all "the kingdom of God" meant to their unspiritual natures. They understood no power but physical force. Many others thronged about him, thinking they could live without work on his miraculous bread. He turned from these false disciples to the nearest foreign coast, from which prejudice would hold back the Jewish crowd, that he might teach his more spiritual apostles in a theological retreat the truths they would more slowly work into the hearts of the multitude. Christ had shortly before gone aside to "rest a while," and it is not only our privilege, but in some cases our duty to rest, that we may return to work with increased effectiveness. Rest for such a holy purpose is true recreation. There are no innocent "amusements," except for children; but recreation is a duty, a part of any true "imitation of Christ." When one is in full strength physically, his summer outing should be like the apostles' outing with Christ that we are studying, a Chautauqua of informal training for Christian work.

But there is in this story a hint that though we should resort to secret prayer, we should not and cannot have a secret faith. Even in that foreign coast, Jesus "could not be hid." If he is really in your heart you cannot hide him there. Christianity will out, like perfume from a closed hand. Christ is living courage, and if he is in your heart he will banish the fear that would tempt you to conceal him.

. . .

Saved by a Mother's Prayers Fell at his feet. It is a mother praying for her devil-possessed young daughter. Drummond profoundly traces the development of fatherhood and motherhood from their lowest forms. Everywhere in nature he finds the masculine selfish "struggle for life," and the feminine unselfish "struggle for the life of others." A mother's deepest and noblest "travail" is her agonizing prayer for a wayward son or daughter. It is useless to debate whether demoniacal possession was mere insanity or involved some guilt in the victim which opened the heart's door to the tempter. It is more profitable to consider the daughter of to-day who knows that in her case it was her own guilt that turned her life over to the control of the devil to sensuality or pride or infidelity, or the more frequent case of the son who is thus breaking his mother's heart, is a practical problem. Mr. Moody once said to a young man who, by wilful waywardness, was breaking the heart of his Christian father, "Why don't you take a knife and kill him at once and put him out of his misery, instead of killing him by slow torture with your wicked ways?" He concluded not to do either, but rather turn to Christ. In the companion story of the demoniac boy we have both father and mother in an agony of prayer out of which their boy was born anew into a redeemed life (Mark 9: 14ff.) In that story, as in this lesson, the parent unconsciously expressed utter identification with the child, so that the child's sufferings were counted as those of the parent. "Lord, help me," said the mother; "Have compassion on us," said the father, in the other case, each feeling every pain the child suffered, as if the parent had suffered it instead. When we know at last all the secret forces by which the world has been led forward, we shall doubtless find that one of the mightiest forces of history has been the prayers of Christian mothers.

What a glorious roll the "great mothers" of the Bible make? (Can we tell their children as we name them?) Eve, Sarai, Hagar, Rebekah, Rachel, Leah, Asenath, Jochebed, Ruth, Hannah, Elizabeth, Mary, Eunice. There were, alas, as to-day, mothers of another kind, one who was even her son's counselor to do wickedly. But the true mothers—how the greatest men have taxed poetry and eloquence to picture their high nobility! Coleridge said: "A mother is a mother still, the holiest thing alive." Daniel Webster said: "It is the mothers that make the domestic hearth the nursery of heroes." John Quincy Adams said: "All I am my mother made me." Abraham Lincoln said: "All I am I own to my angel mother." Here are kindred proverbs: "A mother's knee is God's own altar." "Heaven is at the feet of mothers." "A mother's prayers never miss the road to God." The mother in this case prayed, "Lord, help me." Prayer links "me" to the "Lord."

"My weakness is completeness
In another's great strength."

. . .

The little dogs under the table eat of the children's crumbs. It was a Syro-phœnician mother who prayed for her little daughter. The Jews had a deep-seated contempt for the Syro-phœnicians which rested on better grounds than ordinary race prejudice. The ancient Phœnician worship was the vilest licentiousness under the name of religion. And the Jews had been often corrupted by it and so had brought on themselves divine retributions. The memory of that sad story had led the Jews of successive generations to call these people "dogs." But even so good an excuse does not justify race prejudice in the eyes of Christ. He seized this occasion to show that in true greatness, measured by faith, this despised woman excelled those who despised her. To test her he adopted the common attitude and language of his people toward her's. He seemed to despise and disregard her cry. She persisted and at last he said, "Shall I take the children's bread and give it to dogs?" In beautiful and spontaneous humility she answered: "Yea, Lord, even the little dogs under the table eat of the children's crumbs." Faith, persistency, humility, won the day. He put off his assumed manner, and poured praise upon her, "Oh, woman, great is thy faith, Be it unto thee even as thou wilt."

A most perfect illustration of this story is given in the life of Robert Moffatt, the South African missionary. He came one evening to the house of a young and wealthy Boer farmer. He was invited to supper and was then asked to conduct family worship. The Hottentot slaves were not called in, and the missionary, who had worked among them and seen some of them develop beautiful Christian lives, requested that they might share in the worship. "Hottentots!" exclaimed the Boer farmer indignantly. "Let me rather go to the mountains and call the baboons. Or stop, I have it; my sons, call the dogs that lie in front of the door—they will do." The missionary said no more, but proceeded to the singing and prayer and then read the Bible, selecting this story of the Syro-phœnician, and putting special emphasis and explanation upon the reference to "dogs." Presently the farmer interrupted him to say: "Will Mynheer sit down and wait a little? He shall have the Hottentots." They were summoned, and many of them saw the interior of their master's house for the first time in that wondering hour of worship. When they trooped out again the farmer said, "My friend, you took a hard hammer and you have broken a hard head." Let us hope he had also softened a hard heart with some sense of the universal brotherhood of man, against which we offend in every epithet or even thought of race prejudice in which we indulge. God's grace makes beautiful lives in despised races just as skilled smelters have lately been getting great stores of gold from an abandoned mine in Michigan. Here in our picture we have a Syro-phœnician mother of to-day; or she may better represent the grown-up Syro-phœnician daughter, for her coming to Christ in childhood is another story somewhat like that of the lesson. When she was a little barefoot girl in Syria she was induced to join a missionary Sunday School. She became a Christian, which did not please her parents, and to break up her relation to the school they betrothed her when she was twelve years old to an old man of eighty. She escaped from home before the wedding-day and ran away to a missionary school in Beirut where she was educated, and became a teacher in Egypt, and subsequently a missionary lecturer in America.

"SHE BESOUGHT HIM THAT HE WOULD CAST THE DEVIL OUT OF HER DAUGHTER"

Races differ greatly in physical and intellectual qualities, but morally "there is no difference." In every race some are only a little, if any, above the brutes in vice, while others are only a little lower than the angels in Christlikeness. Let us make this lesson practical in banishing, by God's help, every remnant of race prejudice as a demoniacal possession from our natures. "Honor all men."

. . .

Faith is Taking God at His Word O woman, great is thy faith. That is a greatness to which we may all attain. And it is the greatest of all kinds of greatness, because it links us to the great God. When a woman went to visit another woman of lowly life but famous for the strength of her simple faith, the visitor asked: "Are you the woman with the great faith?" "No," she replied; "I am the woman with a little faith in the great God." Faith is not feeling, but taking God at his word. This woman took Christ at his word, "Be it unto thee as thou wilt," and went back to her home, expecting to find her afflicted daughter well, and she was not disappointed.

It is said that one day, when Napoleon Bonaparte was reviewing his troops, his horse bolted, and a common soldier, rushing from the ranks, caught the bridle and saved the Emperor's life. "Well done, Captain!" said the Emperor. The soldier did not doubt or question, knowing well that the word of the Emperor could transform him from a private to a captain. So he merely asked: "Of what regiment, Sire?" and Napoleon, pleased with being taken at his word, replied: "Of the Guards," giving him the most coveted of all.

But when it is God's will that sickness should continue or end only in death, or that our sorrow, whatever it is, should remain upon us, we may show the greatness of our faith by the perfection of our submission to the always perfect will of God.

One summer evening, after Harry and his sister Helen—two flaxen-haired tots—had been put to bed, a severe thunder-storm came up. Their cribs stood side by side, and their mother, in the next room, heard them as they sat up in bed and talked in low voices about the thunder and lightning. They told each other their fears. They were afraid the lightning would strike them. They wondered whether they would be killed right off and whether the house would be burned up. They trembled afresh at each peal. But tired nature could not hold out as long as the storm. Harry became very sleepy, and at last, with renewed cheerfulness in his voice, he said, as he laid his head on the pillow: "Well, I'm going to trust in God." Little Helen sat a minute longer thinking it over, and then laid her own little head down, saying: "Well, I dess I will too." And they both went to sleep without more words.

I do not ask my cross to understand,
My way to see;
Better in darkness just to feel thy hand
And follow thee.

Joy is like restless day; but peace divine
Like quiet night;
Lead me, O Lord, till perfect Day shall shine
Through Peace to Light.

ADELAIDE A. PROCTOR.

MODERN SIDON

Republicans in ∴ Convention

POLITICIANS were not surprised by the action of the Republican National Convention. It was well understood before the delegates assembled in Philadelphia, that President McKinley would be renominated. It was also known that many of the leaders of the party, for certain weighty reasons, both personal and political, wished the nomination for the Vice-Presidency to go to Theodore Roosevelt, the Governor of New York. He was said to be averse to accepting the nomination, as he prefers his present office and would like to have another term; but a Convention is apt to desire a candidate all the more if he does not seek the nomination and in this instance it tendered the honor with unprecedented unanimity. So McKinley and Roosevelt are to be the standard bearers of the party. The scene of enthusiasm at the nomination of each of them was wonderful, even for a national convention. The platform adopted was in accord with the candidates. It opens with an appropriation of the credit for the national prosperity, for the successful issue of the war with Spain, and a new pledge of loyalty to the gold standard. On the delicate question of the "trusts," the platform expresses approval of combinations of capital for the development of business; but disapproval of "combinations intended to restrict business, to create monopolies, to limit production or control prices," and promises to favor legislation to prevent those evils. The usual pledge to maintain protective duties follows, and it is defined as "protection to American labor." The platform aiso favors reciprocity, restriction of immigration, the development of our shipbuilding industry, advocates liberal pension appropriations, a reduction of the war taxes, and the construction of the Isthmian Canal. On the South African question the platform is non-committal. It approves the President's offer of meditation, and "earnestly hopes that a way may soon be found" to terminate the strife. The whole proceedings were so harmonious that it now looks as if the party would go to the polls in November without any division in its ranks and with no section of it aggrieved or sullen. It remains to be seen whether the other great party will similarly succeed in adjusting the differences in its camp, which seem to be of a more serious nature than any that the leaders of the Republican party have had to deal with. The duty of the patriotic Christian to whatever party he belongs is to pray that the nation may be rightly guided in its choice of men, and that God will so direct the popular will that the men who will guide the destinies of the nation during the next four years will be such men as tention. The British steamship Parana from ports on the River Plata, was held because bubonic plague had been prevalent near the ports at which the steamship loaded. The Norwegian steamship Lovstakken was held because she loaded at Hong-kong and other ports in the Orient where bubonic plague exists. The British steamship Accomac came from Alexandria, Egypt, where there is also bubonic plague. In addition to this unusual call upon the services of the disinfectors, the regular list of arrivals was large, and about sixty steerage passengers from the Hamburg-American line steamship Pretoria, who had been detained for the past two weeks on Hoffman Island on account of exposure to smallpox had to be examined, released and transferred to the Barge Office. Being responsible for the health of so large a city, the Quarantine officers are right in taking care that no vessel liable to bring infection shall enter.

THE REPUBLICAN NATIONAL CONVENTION IN SESSION IN PHILADELPHIA, PA.

It is much to be wished that the authorities would take similar care to keep the city free from the entrance of sin, which is also infectious, and as deadly to the soul as the plague is to the body.

Looking diligently lest any man fail of the grace of God; lest any root of bitterness springing up, trouble you, and thereby many be defiled (Heb. 12: 15).

Arrival of Infected Ships

An unusually busy time was passed at Quarantine, in New York, last week. Every man of the Health Department and all the boats were busy day and night. Four steamships from infected ports were detained for disinfection. The Ward line steamship Orizaba, from Mexico and Havana, was held because the ship's barber, who had stolen ashore at Vera Cruz, had developed yellow fever and had been sent to hospital at Havana. The room occupied by the sick man on board the Orizaba was partially disinfected at Havana and sealed up. Health officer Doty ordered the room thoroughly disinfected, and thirty-two of the Orizaba's passengers were sent to Hoffman Island to complete the five days' period of detention. The British steamship Parana from ports on the River Plata, was held because bubonic plague had been prevalent near the ports at which the steamship loaded. The Norwegian steamship Lovstakken was held because she loaded at Hong-kong and other ports in the Orient where bubonic plague exists. The British steamship Accomac came from Alexandria, Egypt, where there is also bubonic plague. In addition to this unusual call upon the services of the disinfectors, the regular list of arrivals was large, and about sixty steerage passengers from the Hamburg-American line steamship Pretoria, who had been detained for the past two weeks on Hoffman Island on account of exposure to smallpox had to be examined, released and transferred to the Barge Office. Being responsible for the health of so large a city, the Quarantine officers are right in taking care that no vessel liable to bring infection shall enter.

Men who had understanding of the times to know what Israel ought to do (1. Chron. 12: 32).

A Hopeless Consumptive Cured

In an address delivered on June 15, Professor Roberts, of Dunham Medical College of Chicago, told the story of the cure of a man suffering from consumption, whose case had been pronounced hopeless by eminent physicians. The man had been taken to a dry climate and set to sawing wood in the open air. An easy chair had been placed near by, in which he could rest whenever he felt fatigued, but he was kept all day in the open air. Gradually his worst symptoms were relieved; each day he was able to do more work, and he is now a strong and healthy man. Professor Roberts expressed the opinion that the great majority of consumptives might be cured by similar means. He said that he himself was an illustration of the fact. When he was twenty years of age, he was given up by the physicians, but he had taken the fresh air cure, and was now sixty years of age, with the prospect of living twenty years more. The New England sufferers, he said, should go to the Aroostook region, and the Westerners should go to Arizona or New Mexico, but any dry locality would do, providing the sufferer would spend his time in the open-air. There have been cases of moral disease which have been considered hopeless, that have been cured by analogous means. The sinful nature is cured not by punishment nor by repression of the evil, but by the impartation of the pure divine life of Christ which is death to all sin.

If Christ be in you, the body is dead because of sin; but the Spirit is life because of righteousness (Romans 8: 10).

A Fatal Burden

A significant accident occurred at Fishkill, N. Y., a few days ago involving the death of a young man of considerable promise. He, with three companions, went out for a day's fishing in a row boat. The party thoroughly enjoyed the day, and when they were ready to return to their home at Newburgh, N. Y., one of them proposed that they first go ashore to get supper. They had a liberal meal, at which a generous supply of liquor was consumed. When returning to the boat they took with them a demijohn containing whiskey. When they had rowed about half way across the river, one of the young men declared he could not row another yard until he had a drink of whiskey. He was standing up holding the jar to his mouth when a lurch of the boat overbalanced him, and he fell into the river. In some way his hand slipped through the handle of the jar, and he could not release it. The weight on his wrist caused him to sink like a stone, and his companions never saw him again. The accident was uncommon, though unhappily it is not uncommon for whiskey to drag a man down in other ways.

COPYRIGHT, 1898, BY ROCKWOOD, N.Y.

PREST. M' KINLEY GOV. ROOSEVELT

The drunkard and the glutton shall come to poverty; and drowsiness shall clothe a man with rags (Prov. 23: 21).

Brief Notes

The friends of Rev. Diteran H. Rajebyan, Armenian minister, will be glad to learn that he has accepted a call from the first Evangelical Church at Hadjin, Turkey, and will sail on July 7 for his field of labor.

Rev. C. H. Yatman is again in charge of the Young Peoples' Meeting at Ocean Grove, N. J. The "Sunshine Hour" is from 9 to 10 every morning. During the camp meeting beginning Aug. 19, there will also be a "Twilight Hour" at 6.30 every evening.

The Rev. Thomas Harrison will lead the Iowa State Camp Meeting at Cedar Lake Park from July 17 to 26. He has just closed his work at Bloomington, Ill., which has been one of the most remarkable of recent years. Over seven hundred persons were at the altar.

Among the speakers at the Muncie Island Bible Conference, Babylon, L. I., who will take part in the proceedings this week are: Rev. Geo. C. Needham; Dr. A. C. Dixon; Dr. R. A. Torrey; J. L. Deering, of Japan; Dr. S. McBride; Rev. Geo. S. Avery and Dr. E. H. Muncie.

Many visitors to Northfield in former years will grieve to hear of the death of Rev. G. H. C. Macgregor, whose addresses there were always marked by great earnestness. He was under forty years of age, and promised a long career of usefulness.

At the Gospel Tent, in New York, on Broadway, at Fifty-sixth street, the services on Sunday, June 24, were conducted by Dr. Wm. Merle Smith; on Monday, by John S. Hallimond and Mrs. Bird of the Bowery Mission; on Tuesday, by Rev. O. F. Bartholow; on Wednesday, by Rev. Joseph Sullivan; on Thursday, by Dr. J. F. Carson and on Friday, by Dr. Charles E. Jefferson. The manager, Rev. S. Hartwell Pratt is greatly encouraged by the number attending and their evident interest.

A cable message received just as we go to press announces the arrival of the "Quito" at Bombay on June 24. Her cargo was in fine condition, and as all arrangements had been made by the Inter-Denominational Committee previous to her arrival, no time was lost in getting the corn into the hands of the missionaries in the interior for distribution.

BRAVE FIGHT WITH FAMINE

Continued from page 557

two Parsee gentlemen, Mr. Eduljee, Vice-President of the Municipality, and Mr. Behramjee Cardmaster, Chairman of the Executive Committee of the Municipality, and by Mr. Shahurao Modak, a legal practitioner, the son of one of the first Brahman converts of the Mission. The heat, in the dry, drought-afflicted climate, was scorching, and the glare of the sun almost unendurable, but Dr. Klopsch faced it bravely and suffered no ill effects.

In the afternoon, the party went to the chief chapel of the Mission, and met twelve hundred native Christians, who filled the building to its utmost capacity, while eight hundred non-Christian weavers crowded the yard outside. A couple of hymns were sung in the Marathi language, and after Dr. Hume had explained the character of the assembly to Dr. Klopsch, pointing out the students, the orphans, and the children of the boarding and the day-schools, Mr. Modak addressed him in the name of the Native Church, tendering him a cordial welcome, and assured him that the people could never forget how much the readers of THE CHRISTIAN HERALD had twice done for them in their time of dire need. "But," he said, "more than for your money we thank you for your men: the contrast between what we are as you see us, and what we were before, has been produced by these servants of God, the missionaries working under the command and by the example of their Divine Master."

Dr. Klopsch then rose and replied to the following effect:

"I thank you heartily for your message of love to the Christian people of my great country, and assure you that it is cordially and sincerely reciprocated. We gave practical evidence of our affection for India many years ago when we sent some of our noblest sons and most saintly daughters to labor for India's good, ten thousand miles away from home, from friends, from delightful associations, but nearer perhaps to the God whom they delight to serve. In 1897 we gave another practical expression to that love; this year we repeated it on a much more gigantic scale, and should there be another occasion of the same kind (which God forbid), you will find us ready again to do all that we can to lighten the burden and relieve the distress.

"What a grand sight to see 1,200 Christians assembled in church in the heart of India. Surely God has graciously blessed the labors of Dr. Hume and his coworkers who have consecrated their lives to the mission of pointing those who sit in darkness to the marvelous light of the Gospel."

These remarks were interpreted in Marathi by Mr. Modak to the assembly, and greatly delighted them.

. . .

A Welcome from the Press

The editors of THE CHRISTIAN HERALD have received the following letter from the editor of the Bombay Guardian:

Dear Friends and Brothers,

It is indeed a pleasure to write and tell you of Dr. Klopsch's safe arrival in Bombay a week ago, and of the joy it was to us to have the honor and privilege of a visit from him.

Before me lies the cablegram dated New York the 4th announcing the sum of $5,000 for relief work—for distribution through the Bombay Guardian Famine Fund. And may I say just here how heartily we welcome the increasing number of Missionary Famine Funds, for within reasonable limits, it seems to me, that the more numerous the centres of distribution the less likely for any to be overlooked, or for some to have to excess.

You will be interested to know that as many as eighteen different missions or branch-missions participated in the apportionment, the number of individual missionaries being much greater. In every case the need was urgent, and the wisdom of the ultimate use of the money assured. One missionary, speaking of about twenty mission stations which he supervised, told us that in each of these stations Rs. 1,000 over and above what he was able to send could be wisely used in relieving real need. So great and so widespread the distress!

But as the tidings of these most generous contributions reaches us we see that long after the cash has been spent, and as we trust times of plenty may again be known, there will be found an abiding and an enduring spiritual fruit. For as the missionaries in scores of centres throughout the famine areas apply your gifts to the saving of life they will delight to tell from whence the help has come.

"HUNGRY AND YE FED ME: NAKED AND YE CLOTHED ME"

God Bless the Donors!

For this reason, if for no other, moneys contributed by Christian people can far more appropriately be dispensed by missionaries than by the religiously-neutral agency of the government.

Permit us, in closing, to convey to THE CHRISTIAN HERALD and its generous readers most hearty thanks on behalf of the missionaries now gladdened by the welcome burden of dispensing so great bounties and also on behalf of those many thousands whose life and health will be restored as they receive.

Yours most gratefully in the love of the Gospel,

F. PERCY HORNE,
Editor of The Bombay Guardian.

. . .

A cable message received just as we go to press announces the arrival of the "Quito" at Bombay on June 24. Her cargo was in fine condition, and as all arrangements had been made by the Inter-Denominational Committee previous to her arrival, no time was lost in getting the corn into the hands of the missionaries in the interior for distribution.

A Night... in the Parks

...By...
J. G. HALLIMOND,
Superintendent of the BOWERY MISSION

IN our ministry to homeless men who night after night congregate in such numbers in the Bowery Mission, we have often had our hearts harrowed by stories of suffering and privation undergone by those who "have not where to lay" their head. I felt a desire to know something more by personal observation of the facts of the case. On a recent evening, therefore, I embraced an opportunity of spending the hours between 11 P. M. and 4 A. M., in Madison and Union Square parks.

I do not claim that it entailed any suffering, or even inconvenience, upon myself, except, perhaps, the loss of a night's sleep, for the weather was by no means inclement, and the instruction, entertainment, and inspiration I received made it one of the most memorable episodes in all my experience of Christian work. Every seat in the parks was more or less occupied. What a motley crowd! Old and young, strong and weak; boys fresh from their homes in the country, to whom the experience of being without a bed was evidently something terribly new; and old men, frowsy and ragged, who had not slept in a bed for months, perhaps for years. Here was a big, brawny longshoreman, who had spent his wages in rum, but to whom, partly on account of his great physical strength, and partly because of his semi-drunken condition, it was no great hardship to spend a night in the park. Here, on the other hand, was one whose hacking cough, and hollow eyes, shining with such strange brilliance in the glare of the electric light, denoted that a cot in Bellevue Hospital would have been a more fitting resting-place for him than an inhospitable park-bench. I went from bench to bench, but did not awaken any of the sleeping men. Poor fellows! What an impertinent intrusion that would have been! But whenever I found a man awake, I sat down beside him and began conversation. They had no idea that I was a missionary, so in that respect I caught them off-guard. They talked with perfect freedom about their troubles, and I was able to bring them, in a natural manner, around to the subject of their spiritual needs.

This is what I found. First, that many of these men are, in regard to God and eternal things, in worse than heathen darkness. They are absolutely without hope. Not a single star shines out in the black sky! Yes, perhaps they once knew something of the truth, but waywardness on their part, and a heartless indifference to their needs on the part of their more fortunate fellow creatures, have long since quenched the flickering flame. The sacred name of God has now no meaning for them. Anything bearing the name of religion or the church they hate with a ferocious hatred. Aims and ambitions they have none. Only the necessities of their physical nature, the maddening gnaw of hunger, or the burning flame of a feverish thirst, urges them to effort sufficient to keep body and soul together. And so they wait on for the end to come—the sad, sorrowful end of death and the Potter's Field. It is only the absence of physical courage that keeps them out of a suicide's grave.

Secondly, many of these men have never seen the inside of a church, mission, or other religious meeting-place. How necessary, therefore, it is for aggressive Christian workers such as the Bowery Mission possesses, to remember the injunction, "Go out into the highways and hedges, and compel them to come in."

Again, I found that many of the most deserving cases of human need never make any claim for help. Will it be believed that some of these homeless ones actually rebelled against my desire to furnish them with a bed for the night, on the ground that they did not care to accept "charity?" Real need is often excessively modest. When philanthropy is dealt out wholesale, a vast proportion goes to waste. If our generous impulses are to be operated upon with the maximum of efficiency we must do what the Master did so often—get at the individual. Such a policy shall, in the future, be more than ever a characteristic of Bowery Mission work.

I concluded my conversation in almost every case with arrangements for shelter for the night, car-fare down to a lodging-house, the wherewithal for a substantial breakfast in the morning, and, finally, with an invitation to the Bowery Mission. I noticed that some of them saved the car-fare nickel by starting off to walk. Probably they introduced little alterations with regard to other items in my well-intentioned scheme, but I was glad to find that several were true to their promise to come to the Mission. Some have since knelt at our penitent form, and are friends of ours for life—for eternity.

My work was done. The night was nearly over. I was very tired and sleepy. It was beginning to rain—a drizzly, oozy rain. So I sat down in Union Square Park, to wait for the car which would take me to my ferry for home. My right-hand neighbor was an old man, a German, pleasant-faced and cheery-voiced, but, alas! a homeless tramp. He held in his lap a bundle carefully, even daintily, wrapped up. I wondered what it contained. Probably relics of bygone days, probably all his earthly belongings. I had barely commenced a conversation with him when I suppose I must have fallen asleep. I was awakened by a very vigorous elbow nudge, imparted by the old man. One glance sufficed to show his kindly purpose. Two young men stood by me, or rather leaned over me, in such close proximity as to leave no doubt in my mind, and evidently none in the mind of old Hans, that they had taken me for some fellow sleeping off the effects of a debauch. Having caught a glimpse of my watch-chain, they concluded that it would be a simple matter to relieve me of my watch and any other little personal effects, while ostensibly sheltering from the rain under the same tree as myself. That this view of the situation was the correct one was, I think, conclusively proved by the two young scamps taking to their heels immediately my eyes opened.

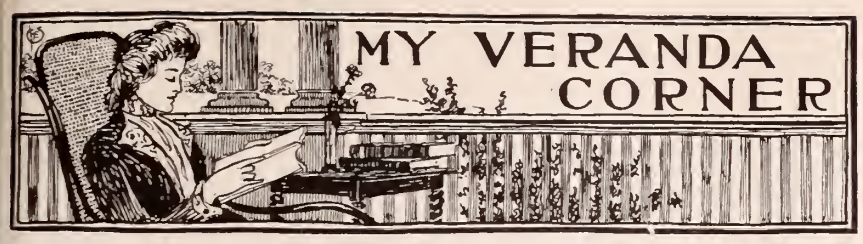
The following evening, while going through our Bowery Mission crowd, to my great delight, I came across my German friend, with his precious bundle tightly clasped under his arm. He often comes now, but never without his bundle. He always takes a rear seat. He is one of those who never accept without a protest. He is too old to work, too proud to beg, and rebels furiously against ending his days in the almshouse. Poor old tramp! With your kindly heart, and cheery voice, who shall say that you are not bravely fighting the good fight of faith? Fight on!

"Rest comes at length; though life be long and dreary,
The day must dawn, and darksome night be passed;
Faith's journey ends in welcome to the weary,
And heaven, the heart's true home, will come at last."

. . .

The following contributions have been received in aid of the Bowery Mission:

Prev. ack	$903 62	Roberts, L K	$5 00
Allen, Mrs L C	2 00	Sauvain Nelson	1 50
Boggan, Lulu C	1 25	Sealey, Mrs A	2 50
Boyle, J T & Mrs G A	10 00	Simonds, Miss S A	1 00
Cooper, Estelle E	20	Weaver, H T	1 00
Covell, Mrs M J	50	Wentz, Robt F and family	10 00
Day, Mrs J E	50	Whitmore, Lucy	5 00
Drew, Mrs	2 00	Wilcox, Mrs Ithiel	50
Gordon, Alletta H	2 00	Williamson, Mrs J F	25
Hatcher, Mrs A	1 00	Woodside, Mrs Wm	2 50
Hayward, Mrs C G	10 00	Mrs A L S, Middlebrook	50
Hill, A A	2 50	F M W, N Y City	1 00
Himes, Martha L	1 00	M H B, Ada	1 00
Hunter, Mrs Dr Jno	25	— Huntsville	1 00
Hunter, Johnnie L	25	— Jeffersonville	5 00
Hutchison, I	50	"Bank," Johnstown	4 00
Jacobson, N	3 50	— Sycamore	50
Langston, Myrtle	25	Friend, Dayton	1 00
Lippelman, Mrs H H	50	Friend, Nantucket	2 00
McCord, Mrs Sallie E	1 05	Subr, Lee	1 00
Mason, J H	1 50	Subr, Summitville	1 00
Noyes, L	1 00	Total	$1,002 62
Peterson, J G	5 00
Randolph, C L	5 00



BY MARGARET E. SANGSTER

The Troublesome Baby

THE little ones cling to the mother
With kisses that softly fall;
But somehow the troublesome baby
Is nearest her heart of all:
Ill and fretful and small,
But dearest to mother of all.

The neighbors wonder and pity,
Hearing its querulous cry;
"She is losing her youth and beauty,"
Say friends as they pass her by;
"Well were the babe to die
And the mother have rest," they sigh.

But over the wee white cradle,
Her pure eyes full of prayer,
Bendeth the weary mother;
And never was face so fair,
Pale, and tired with care—
But the glory of love is there!

Rosy and round and dimpled,
Dewy with childish sleep,
She tucks in her other darlings,
Whom angels watch and keep.
Ah, if a darker angel
Anear this treasure creep!

Bless thee, beautiful mother!
Thy heart hath a place for all;
Room for the joys and the sorrows,
However fast they fall;
Room for the baby small,
That may love thee best of all.

Independence Day

WE are still a very young nation, but we are young with the vigor and strength of a growing giant. To nations which reach back into remote antiquity our Independence Day, July 4, 1776, seems not far off; it is a date of yesterday—a near yesterday. But to us, since we are making such amazing forward strides, being not unlike the vision the prophet had of a nation born in a day, that first brave Fourth looks sufficiently distant to be glory-crowned and venerable. Very brave were those signers of the declaration, who appreciating fully the importance of the step they took, knowing that they were risking all they had, their lives, their liberties and their honors, daringly set their names to that immortal brief of freedom.

Time was that every child in our midst knew that document familiarly. It used to be studied in school, read in the family and commented upon in the pulpit. The air was vibrating and thrilling with enthusiastic patriotism on the Fourth of July. The rolling cannon, the beating drums, the marching processions, the fusillade of musketry, the thunders from fort and fleet, and the continuous snapping all day of the children's fire-crackers and torpedoes were the outward and audible tokens of a love of country which clamored for suitable expression.

We were less fastidious, simpler, if you please, and less easily disturbed thirty or forty years ago than we now are, and few complaints were uttered because the Fourth was noisy. In fact, there are old people among us yet, who are not satisfied when the day is tranquil. They are willing once a year to endure a little inconvenience in the way of celebration, for the sake of sentiment and auld lang syne. They are not anxious to get out of town to escape the jubilation of which they altogether approve.

Where noise does not after all commend itself to common sense as the best way of honoring one's love of country, there are more excellent methods to be found than the incessant sputtering of small explosives, or the louder booming of guns; though with John Adams, all good Americans must always wish the day to be ushered in with the ringing of bells and the resounding thunder of cannon. After the salute to the dawn, we might be contented with silence, if flags should everywhere float and flutter from roof and spire, if soldiers should march and music delight us, and if our children should have their share in the festivity in some patriotic demonstration. At least every child should sing patriotic songs and hear the Declaration of Independence and some orator's eloquent speech on Independence Day. We are not in peril of too much spread-eagle ism in our hurrying and eager period. We are rather in danger of being too little proud of our country and of taking her gifts too much as a matter of course.

If we spend a portion of "The Fourth" in outdoor jaunts, in picnics and excursions, let no one blame us: we are a hard-working nation and not over ready to sport and play. The bow must sometimes be unstrung. It is a good sign that we give more thought than formerly to recreation, and that we are disposed to enjoy our holidays. They are not a waste of time. And this midsummer holiday is our nation's own; and we do well to love and honor it, and to care for the principles which it forever signifies to all the world.

WELCOMING THE GLORIOUS "FOURTH"

The Pastor's Wife

Whether or not she aspire to the position, the pastor's wife occupies a conspicuous place in the congregation, and, by right of her relation to the minister, is regarded by the women of the church as their leader. She is the first lady in the parish. There is, however, no reason why she should be singled out for the bearing of burdens beyond other women, and if she be young and have little folk to bring up she should be absolved from taking an active share in the church work. She is not paid a salary to serve the church. She is simply the wife of her husband and the mother of the parsonage children. No doubt she will of her own free-will help in many ways, but help should not be exacted nor required of her beyond what she is able to give. Nor ought she to be criticized for any omissions or commissions. She has a right to privacy and to her own life.

With Drum and Tambourine

The best of a summer holiday, like our brave Fourth of July, in the children's minds at least, is that it lasts so long. Their parents are not always of the same opinion, and could easily spare the music of drum and tambourine, though when they see Frank and Flossy, with ecstatic faces and joyful steps, treading a measure, as if they were soldiers setting out on a campaign, they smile in sympathy. We have all been children. We have all known the deep bliss of making music for ourselves. True, some of us now and then are oblivious of the way we felt when we were children, and therein we become curmudgeons of the first water.

The little ones are indeed starting out on a long campaign. May it be a victorious one, and may they keep the purity of childish days, by the grace of God, to the very end of their lives.

HITHERTO

To bluest skies that arch the way
I lift my thankful eyes to-day:
The sunlight falls a golden tide
O'er airy forests green and wide;
Sweet odors drift the morning through,
'Tis God has led me hitherto.

No Neighbors

I AM sitting to-day beside a city window, and on every side of me there are neighbors, so close to me in fact, that now, the windows being open, I am compelled to hear and see more than I desire of their daily doings. There is a division fence between my little back yard and the back yards of my neighbors on the next street, and at present this is wreathed and garlanded and heaped with roses, while some of my friends who enjoy pottering about in their gardens have crammed their beds, just narrow borders, with flowering plants. One neighbor has a parrot, a chattering uncanny creature; another has canaries; still another has rabbits in her yard, her children's pets, of course, and as for cats, their number is large, and some of them are very beautiful. One mother has a very sick child; she is lovely in her care of him; another has a fretful child, and alas! she is very cross and fretful herself, and her nervousness reacts upon the laddie and makes him worse. But this is what I am considering, the great contrast between my lot and that of a lady who wrote to me the other day, that her nearest neighbor was five miles off, and that she lived two years in her present home before she spoke with another woman. Think of it, my dears, the silence, the isolation, the quietude of that life! Yet if she had a good husband, as I am sure she had, and a baby to take care of, she was not desolate, and she was certainly very busy, and the busy woman is the happy woman, is she not?

We should prize the weekly visits of our friendly paper even more than we do, if THE CHRISTIAN HERALD were our only pledge of the neighborly spirit of the world. We should not be so ready to complain of the rattling carts and the clamoring street-cars and the city noises against which we rebel, if our homes were miles away from other homes, very close to Nature's heart, but remote from human companionship.

There are people who are sad and morbid in the midst of a great crowd, and there are people again who are bright and blithe and cheery when they have few companions. The well-spring of pleasure is in ourselves. "The kingdom of heaven is within you," said our blessed Lord.

A merry heart is a continual feast. I know a little woman whose lot in life is full of disappointment and privation, but if ever I am tempted to be "blue," I run away to her, for her laugh is a chime of bells, and her gayety does me good like a medicine.

Aunt Prudence Payson's Catch-all

—BENEFITS RECEIVED. Do not economize thanks. A letter of appreciation should be very promptly sent.

—SALLIE BRASS. Are you sure you did not begin the quarrel? Well, here is a Spanish proverb for you to ponder:

It takes two to make a quarrel,
One can always end it.

—R. N. G. A modern corset is a very comfortable article of dress, and needs not to be very confining. Indeed, it seldom is. One never hears of women who lace their stays as tightly as our grandmothers did.

—LEILA AND FRED. Consult your mother, Leila, and yours, Fred, and abide by their decision. You are still too young to think of marriage. Until Fred is through college and Leila out of school, be friends only, not lovers.

—JENNIE. I cannot recommend breakfast foods. Nearly all the wheat, corn, rice and oatmeal foods are good. Try different kinds in succession. You can have seven different breakfasts a week if you like, and then go round again. Most of them require about twice as much cooking as the directions tell you to give.

—F. F. F. In your part of the world, one thousand dollars a year is equal to three thousand a year in New York. A family of six persons, three of whom are children, should live on this amount in great comfort. It would be interesting to hear how you dispose of it. There are many minister's families, living and educating several children on half or three-quarters of this annual sum.

—A little lad of four years, driving with his papa in the country, stopped before a blacksmith's shop, and saw the smith shoeing a horse, while another man kept the flies off with a brush made of a horse's tail. "Oh, mamma," said the child when he came home, "I saw them making horses to-day. They were nailing them together and were just ready to tack on the tail." Aunt Prudence thinks this a very funny little story.

New Methods of .. .. Pastoral Work

How a Country Pastor Found Spheres of Labor in a Rural Charge and Availed Himself of Various Opportunities of Usefulness

MANY a village pastor has been discouraged when he has visited some great city and has observed the vast opportunities there are there of reaching the masses. It has seemed to him that in his little village of two or three thousand population, there is little that he can do. The same faces look up to him in the pulpit every week, and there is no prospect before him of any change, save that the children grow up to young men and women, and the hair of the adults gets gray, and one after another the aged members go to the grave. It seems a dull life with no opportunity of doing great things for the Master. In the city there are thousands of men and women leading lives of practical heathenism. There is intellectual activity, and an eloquent and vigorous preacher may hope to draw large congregations and inaugurate and prosecute aggressive spiritual work. So the village pastor is liable to lose heart and enthusiasm and to seize eagerly the first opportunity that comes of quitting his country charge for work in a city.

REV. FREDERICK CAMPBELL

The wisdom of such a course is doubtful at the best. It very often happens that there are opportunities within his reach in his country charge, that are more promising than any he will find in the city. There is oftentimes a more urgent need of work for Christ in the country than in the city, a greater density of unspirituality and a deplorable lack of effort. There are villages in which no service at all is held on the Lord's Day and where the residents would have to go several miles to find an open church or Sunday School. This is ominous, for the city is recruited from the country, and it is a terrible thing for the youth to go to the city and confront its temptations with no restraining influence in his heart, no knowledge of the Gospel in his mind and no power, derived from his experience in the country, to keep him from falling under the glamor of the mirrored and gorgeously upholstered haunts of vice, with the gay company laughing and drinking and beckoning to him. The village pastor might so work for Christ, that every youth going to the city from his neighborhood might go up well equipped for the fight in which he must engage and thoroughly prepared to resist the evil—"to stand in the evil day, and having done all, to stand."

It is not long ago that a large, scattered community was mourning the unavoidable removal of a pastor from its villages to the city, and there was such sincere regret for the loss of his services, such evident personal liking for the man, and so much regret that his influence and work must be transferred, that THE CHRISTIAN HERALD thought that a brief story of what he had done and of the methods he adopted might be of service by way of suggestion and encouragement to other country pastors, and might lead to other communities being benefited.

This community had its centre at Lowville, the County-seat of Lewis County, N. Y., a village of about three thousand inhabitants. The Presbyterian Church there was to have a new pastor, and had invited Rev. Frederick Campbell, of Chicago. He accepted the invitation and settled down to his new charge with the determination to find out all the opportunities for service within his reach, and to fill them at any cost of energy and labor. The result, after some years of work, has been exceedingly gratifying and has abundantly repaid all the effort expended.

The church, when Mr. Campbell went there, contained 240 members. It had been seventy-five years in existence, and was very conservative in its methods. His first step was to consult the pastors of the Baptist and Methodist churches on the possibility of extending Christian work. He learned that in the Black River region surrounding Lowville there were sections of rural communities utterly without the means of grace. Many of the people neither maintaining religious service in their own localities nor attending service in the churches nearest to them. In some instances there had been churches, in the past, but they had dwindled down to extinction. In one of them there had once been a wonderful work of grace under Rev. Daniel Nash, the "Father Nash" referred to in Finney's memoirs. Sunday Schools were also lacking, and there was little religious interest existing anywhere.

Mr. Campbell secured good maps of the neighborhood, showing all the country roads, the location of the farm-houses, blacksmiths' shops, school-houses and cheese factories, which were important, it being a dairy region. From these maps Mr. Campbell prepared a diagram, a copy of which is here given. Journeys were then planned in the directions marked. Before the close of that season five Sunday Schools were organized at distances varying from three to twelve miles from Lowville. To these a sixth was subsequently added. Mr. Campbell found ready co-operation in his efforts, and was glad to see that one of the six schools was organized independently of his own initiation.

DIAGRAM OF AGGRESSIVE MISSIONARY WORK

The plan adopted was to go first to the schoolhouse and ascertain whether there would be any objection to organizing a Sunday School there. The consent of the trustees had to be secured and where the trustees were Roman Catholics, this was difficult if not impossible. If it was granted, and the good-will of the teacher secured, notice was given that a service would be held in the afternoon of the following Sunday. The next visit was generally to the cheese-maker, whose services in spreading the news of the effort were needed. Nearly all the farmers in the neighborhood sent milk to the cheese-maker, so a word from him was the best kind of advertisement.

On Sunday afternoon, Mr. Campbell would generally find the schoolhouse filled with an interested and attentive audience to whom he would preach a Gospel sermon and sing Gospel hymns to familiar tunes. At the close he would suggest that a Sunday School be organized. The people were invited to speak frankly about it and after some talk it would be put to the vote. Invariably it was carried with practical unanimity and then after a few remarks on the kind of people who make good officers, an election of superintendent etc., would take place.

To show how this worked, let reference be made to the accompanying diagram. At H., a Sunday School was sustained and there was occasional preaching by ministers and laymen; the second year the services alternated between H. and E., two miles apart. At R., there was occasional preaching besides Sunday School, and eventually regular weekly cottage prayer-meetings. There had been no preaching at this point for twenty years. At W., a flourishing school was sustained both summer and winter, together with occasional preaching and excellent prayer-meetings. At O., where there had been no preaching for thirty years, an excellent Sunday School was sustained, occasional preaching was enjoyed. Christian Endeavor prayer-meeting maintained, and singing school established. At C., a point where hardly a dwelling can be seen from the schoolhouse, Sunday School was maintained and occasional preaching was enjoyed. At C. L., on the edge of the Adirondack wilderness, Sunday School was maintained.

The seed having been sown through successive months, it was resolved to prove God and see if he would not open the windows of heaven and pour out a blessing. A layman having already held remarkably successful evangelistic services at C., it was determined to hold eight days' continuous and simultaneous meetings at H., W., R. and M. At the latter point nothing had been done, and there were absolutely no religious services of any kind, prayer and Bible reading being prohibited in the large day-school. Six workers, ministerial and lay, were chosen, and on a given Sabbath the work was opened in all four places, continued through the nights of the week, and, where the interest was not great, closed the second Sabbath. The Spirit of God was manifestly present in each of these places, a large schoolhouse often proving inadequate to the numbers who attended; many were brought under conviction; a goodly number found peace in Christ; and village churches were strengthened by accessions. At M., dark as was the outlook at first, a regular prayer-meeting was established and well sustained, coming under the care of the pastor of a church some miles distant.

But, while thus seeking to solve the problem of the country, that of the village was also resting on the pastor's soul. In Chicago, Mr. Campbell had employed out-door preaching with marked success, and he proceeded to put its usefulness to test in a village. The result amply justified the step. Evening congregations were assembled that would never have been seen in-doors, and among them it was frequent to identify individuals who had long, if not always, neglected the sanctuary. Music was given an important place, both instrumental and vocal, the choir singing their anthem as usual, unless special vocal talent were employed.

One more thing characterized this pastoral effort to reach the people in village and country; this was the constant watchfulness to manifest cordiality to all wherever and whenever met. The annual county fair brought in the entire rural population during four days, at which time the people were being sought out and greeted, wherever they could be recognized upon the fair grounds.

Happily, while this pastor has returned to city work, his successor, the Rev. Geo. B. Van Dyke, intends to follow up this line of work, and the result, in leavening the mass of both village and country, cannot be otherwise than blessed.

Royal Saves Doubly

Do not be deluded by the deceptive claim of economy for the cheap baking powders. Instead of saving, their use results in a wastefulness of the most serious kind.

First, there is the loss of an occasional baking. Flour, butter and eggs cost too much to risk spoiling them with an inferior baking powder. Royal's work is uniformly perfect, and materials are never wasted where it is used.

In the second place, the adulterants which are used to cheapen the cost of the low-priced baking powders have a most harmful effect upon the health. No prudent person will risk an attack of indigestion to save a few cents on baking powder. Royal Baking Powder is absolutely pure and wholesome, and actually adds anti-dyspeptic qualities to the food.

Thus the use of the Royal is doubly economical.

ANY MAKE BICYCLE you want at one-fourth price. 600 Second-hand Bicycles, all makes, good as new $3 to $10. NEW 1899 and 1898 MODELS, High Grade, $8 to $13. 1900 Models, best makes all styles, fully guaranteed $11 to $20. Great Factory Clearing Sale. We ship anywhere for inspection. Send your address. If you are UNABLE to BUY we can assist you to EARN A BICYCLE distributing catalogues for us. Write for agency and commence work at once. MEAD CYCLE CO., Dept. 41H Chicago.

DITMAN'S SEA-SALT
The Natural Salt of Pure Sea Water
TONIC, STRENGTHENING, INVIGORATING
Used for Quarter Century
Address Ditman, 2 Barclay Street. New York

OPIUM MORPHINE and Liquor Habit cured in 10 to 20 days. No pay till cured. Book of particulars free. Address Dr. J. L. Stephens, Dept. R. 5, Lebanon, Ohio.

HAIR INSOLES keep feet clean and dry. Prevent jar in walking. Relieve Rheumatism, Callous, Tender and Perspiring Feet. 10c., 3 pair 25c., postpaid. The Wm. H. Wiley & Son Co., Box D, Hartford, Ct.

BIG PROFITS handling latest improved gasoline lamps; sells at sight; beats electricity; cheaper than kerosene; retails $4 up; 12 different styles; exclusive territory. STANDARD LAMP CO., Manufacturers, 121 Michigan Street, Chicago, Ill.

$75 Month and Expenses; no experience needed; position permanent; self-seller. PEASE MFG. CO., Stat'n A, Cincinnati, O.

Pimples

Are the Danger Signals That Give Warning of Impure Blood

They show that the vital fluid is in bad condition and that health is in danger of wreck. A vast majority of the most serious diseases, like scrofula, salt rheum, sores, boils and all eruptions exist because of impurities in the blood. Hood's Sarsaparilla makes the blood pure, removes the cause of pimples and all eruptions and gives a fair and healthy complexion.

Hood's Sarsaparilla

Is the Best Medicine Money Can Buy.

RUPTURE The Improved Elastic Truss is the only Truss in existence that is worn with absolute comfort night and day, and it retains the rupture under the hardest exercise or severest strain, and will effect a permanent and speedy relief. Competent lady always in attendance for ladies, or to answer correspondence from women. Our goods are not sold by agents or druggists. Send for free pamphlets to the Improved Elastic Truss Co., 768 Broadway, New York. ESTABLISHED 18 YEARS.

The Great W. C. T. U. Convention in Edinburgh

Representation of Oriental Lands — New Fields of Effort—Scottish Hospitalities

SCOTLAND gave warm welcome to the great white-ribboned army, which made peaceful invasion of her beautiful, historic capital, on the occasion of the fifth biennial Convention of the World's W.C.T.U., June 22–29. For months before their coming, local sisters of the order were diligent in preparation to make their reception and the Convention a memorable event in the annals of Edinburgh. The Scottish W.C.T.U. Treasurer sent in for the month of April four times as much money as ever before in affiliation dues—one evidence of the increased interest in the temperance movement awakened in the country at large by the coming of the Convention. Mrs. Lees, Superintendent of the halls and decoration department to the Lookout Tower, Castle Hill, received from all directions more temperance banners and other ornamental devices of the order than there was easily room to place. Mrs. Duncan, in her plans for receptions and other social functions, found that her one trouble lay in not being able to reconcile overwhelming offers of hospitality with the full business programme of the Convention. Mrs. Mitchell and Miss Darling, in the matter of securing homes for special hotel rates for visitors, met with hearty co-operation. Assistance did not fail Mrs. Barclay in providing good musical features; and over thirty-two important churches promptly offered their pulpits through Miss Miller, who had the Sabbath service department in charge.

MRS. LILLIAN M. N. STEVENS, Pres. National W.C.T.U., U.S.A. MISS ANNA A. GORDON, Vice-Pres. at-large W.C.T.U., U.S.A.

The programme, as given out some time ago by Miss Agnes E. Slack, Honorary Secretary, was adhered to, with as few changes as possible. That programme embraced a memorial service to Miss Willard and other "promoted comrades," business sessions, mass meetings, church services and social features, the Scottish W. C. T. U. reception and the Lord Mayor's reception in the Art Gallery being the most brilliant of the last group, and the special service and temperance sermon in the Cathedral, arranged by the Dean, the most notable of ecclesiastical demonstrations. Some of the names announced for the Monday evening mass meeting, Lady Henry Somerset presiding, were Mrs. Stevens, President U. S. A. National W. C. T. U., and Miss Anna A. Gordon, Hon. Assistant Secretary W. W. C. T. U.; Mrs. Rutherford, President Canada National W. C. T. U.; Mrs. Nicholls, President Australasian W. C. T. U.; Mrs. Mackay, President Cape Colony, Africa, W. C. T. U.; Miss Johannessen, President Norway W. C. T. U.; Miss Johannsdottir, President Iceland W. C. T. U., and Miss Watts, President of the Brazilian W. C. T. U.

The convention was one of exceptional interest. Since that in Toronto, much has been accomplished; Bermuda and Mexico have been opened; Jerusalem organized; Clara Parrish has made her brave ventures and wonderful successes in Japan; Mrs. Barney, in her round-the-world journey, has carried inspiration and cheer to countless multitudes; and the accounts of this and other grand work held the eager attention of large audiences. Ireland, for the first time, was represented at a world's convention. Delegates from India, Australia, Iceland, Africa and other far corners of the earth, who had journeyed across oceans and continents to join the "white ribbon encampment" in Edinburgh, testified to the wonderful growth of the temperance movement, and planned measures for extending it to every land under the sun and to strengthening its influence in Europe and America. Mrs. Blackie, the beloved President of the Scottish W.C.T.U., was one of the most attractive personalities of the great gathering. To Lady Henry Somerset, Acting President of the W. C. T. U., as well as to the band of noble women, officers and superintendents of the different branches of the organization of which she is head, great credit is due for the wonderful progress of the W. W. C. T. U. movement and for the success of its fifth biennial.

Congratulation is due, too, to the least unofficial member of the organization, for all have helped to bring about the large results this fifth biennial shows.

It is a mighty sermon in itself, this immense gathering from many lands of noble women consecrated to a work which promises help and blessing to a whole world. They came together, in numerous instances traversing great distances, in order that, reviewing the beneficent reforms they have accomplished, they might devise new and better measures for the deliverance of sons, husbands and brothers from the terrible curse of strong drink.

MISS AGNES E. SLACK, Hon. Sec. World's W.C.T.U. MRS. MARY E. SANDERSON, Treas. World's W.C.T.U.

Little "Fresh-Airs"

"Real grass," "true flowers," milk, swings, cool, shady woods and daisy fields to play in with plenty to eat and fresh, clean dormitories to sleep in—these, together with the kind helpers, are what our tenement children love in our Mont-Lawn Fresh-Air Home. And they never forget to pray for the good, kind friends whose contributions pay for their beautiful holiday. Send your gift in aid of the Children's Home to THE CHRISTIAN HERALD, 92 Bible House, N. Y.

Fifty Years a House of God.

The fiftieth anniversary of the First Presbyterian Church, Austin, Texas, was celebrated May 26-27, by appropriate ceremonies. On Saturday, there were literary, musical, social and historical features under auspices of the ladies, in which papers were read by Mrs. Wm. A. Baker, wife of the first pastor, and Mrs. Maggie Stiles. An interesting historical address prepared by the oldest living male member of the church, Dr. M. A. Taylor, was read by Major Ira H. Evans. "Wake the Song of Jubilee" was one of the appropriate anthems sung. Letters of greeting from Mrs. Amelia E. Barr and other old members and absent friends of the church were received with particular pleasure. This church, as the early spiritual home of one of THE CHRISTIAN HERALD'S best loved contributors will have a peculiar claim upon the interest of our readers, who will wish it another fifty years of service and song and another such Jubilee. On the Sabbath of May 27, the present pastor, Rev. Edward B. Wright, preached from the text, "A jubilee shall that fiftieth year be unto you;" and salutations and greetings from the pastors of other Austin churches and many joyous anthems from people and choir marked as with a white stone the semi-centennial of this house of God.

WHO?

WHO can gather wild roses sweet,
Or follow the fences for golden-rod,
Or tramp through the clover the meadow over
And say to his neighbor there is no God?

Who can assume that the birds and the bees
And all dumb creatures, outdoors and in,
Have never a thought of the hand that wrought
Or the heart that bled for the wide world's sin?

Who can look over wide fields of grain,
That wave like the sea in the wind's fond kiss,
Or into the sky as the night passes by
And say there's no other life than this?

Oakland, N. Y. MARY L. HALL.

INVESTIGATE THOROUGHLY
BEFORE YOU PURCHASE A TYPEWRITER.
THE SMITH PREMIER
Will merit your approval as it fully meets requirements at every point.
ART CATALOGUE FOR THE ASKING.
THE SMITH PREMIER TYPEWRITER CO.
SYRACUSE, N.Y. U.S.A.

DANGER IN EYEGLASSES

Some Recently Discovered Facts Regarding the Treatment of the Eyes, by E. H. Bemis, Eye Specialist.

Diseases of the eyes and defections in vision are seldom removed or corrected by eye glasses. They are simply an artificial substitute to temporarily relieve the strain on the eye. They do not remove the cause of the disease, and consequently can never permanently relieve. Too often it happens that they aggravate rather than relieve a diseased condition. Glasses act as a stimulant on the optic nerve and the muscles of the eye, and, like all other stimulants, require additional strength from time to time in order to keep up the artificial effect they produce. Each new fitting of glasses lowers the power of the eye, and this effect frequently results in the complete destruction of the vision. It is an axiom in medicine that to arrest a disease you must remove the cause. Glasses never have and never will heal diseased eyes or restore failing sight.

A new method of treating this common and dangerous complaint has recently come in vogue, which heals by logical and correct methods. It is not an experiment, but has been used with complete and never failing success for the last ten years. It is known as the Original Absorption Treatment, as used by the Bemis Eye Sanitarium. By their treatment the blood is attracted to the diseased or weakened organ, repairs the wasted and infected tissues in its passage through the innumerable arteries and veins and absorbs all substances which are forming in or on the eyes. It restores the muscles and nerves to their normal vigor and heals the diseased condition by removing the cause. This treatment can be used at home without detention from business or household duties. It is a simple treatment, requiring only a few minutes daily, and is an unfailing remedy for all diseased conditions of the eye or defects of vision. A treatise describing the absorption treatment and its advantages over all other methods will be mailed free to any reader mentioning this paper and addressing the Bemis Eye Sanitarium, Glens Falls, N. Y.

It Is a Certainty That Catarrh

can be cured. You will believe it after using a sample of Dr. Blosser's Catarrh Cure. Mailed free. Address Dr. J. W. Blosser & Son, 50 Broad St., Blosser Building, Atlanta, Ga.

Young People's Weekly

The brightest, largest, best and cheapest Young People's Paper in the World.

A Religious Paper for the Young

PATRIOTIC NUMBER.

The issue of YOUNG PEOPLE'S WEEKLY for July 1st, in addition to the usual variety of stories, sketches, editorials, etc., will contain, under the title of

PATRIOTIC IDEALS FOR AMERICAN YOUTH

Contributed articles, by the following distinguished Americans, written specially for YOUNG PEOPLE'S WEEKLY, accompanied by portraits and autographic signatures:

BENJAMIN HARRISON, Ex-President U. S.
JOHN D. LONG, Secretary of the Navy.
O. O. HOWARD, Major General U.S. Army (retired).
ARTHUR T. HADLEY, President of Yale College.
EDWARD L. EATON, President of Beloit College.
JOHN HENRY BARROWS, President of Oberlin College.
REV. F. W. GUNSAULUS, President of Armour Institute.
W. VAN BENTHUYSEN, Managing Editor N. Y. World.
SAMUEL M. JONES, Mayor of Toledo, Ohio.
HENRY CLEWS, Eminent Banker, New York.
THEODORE L. CUYLER, D.D., Brooklyn, N. Y.
GEN. ALBERT D. SHAW, Commander-in-Chief of the G. A. R.

YOUNG PEOPLE'S WEEKLY is a religious paper for the young, comprising eight to twelve large pages of four broad columns each. It is profusely illustrated with elegant half-tone engravings, some of which are printed in colors.

PRICE.—Single subscriptions, 75 cents per year. To schools and societies, in clubs of three or more, mailed to one address, 50 cents per year. Subscriptions may commence at any time, and for a term of three months or more. Sample copies free. Address,

DAVID C. COOK PUBLISHING CO.,
36 Washington St., Chicago.

Wonderful Remedy for Rheumatism

A physician practising in Olcott, Vt., writes; "Your Tartarlithine has proved a wonderful remedy for rheumatism. I have used a very great quantity of it in the last three or four months, and I have never seen anything like it. I had one patient who had rheumatism all his life, and had taken everything, and nothing completely stopped all the manifestations of the disease like Tartarlithine, one bottle of which completely relieved him.

I had another patient, an old man who travels much on the road peddling, who was lame with rheumatism for five years, and one bottle cured all lameness and he says he has not felt as well in five years as now. These are only the two worst cases of many that I have tried it on."

Tartarlithine is supplied in bottles containing 50 doses at $1.00 and can be obtained of all druggists or post-free by mail. Pamphlets with Testimonials sent FREE.

McKESSON & ROBBINS,
91 Fulton Street, New York.
Sole Agents for THE TARTARLITHINE CO.

DEAD STUCK

kills the eggs and grown-ups of all bed bugs, moths, roaches, ants, etc. Used by the United States Government. Non-poisonous to human life. A liquid powder. As stainless as spring water and as pleasant smelling as tar. 25 cts. per bottle, or in gallon cans for hotels and hospitals. All dealers.

PHILA. CHEMICAL CO.,
2d & Cherry Streets, Philadelphia.

LEA & PERRINS' SAUCE

The Original and Genuine Worcestershire.

Beware of Imitations

Butlers in the best families and all first class cooks can tell you that soups, fish, meats, gravy, game, salads and many other dishes are given an appetizing relish if flavored with Lea & Perrins' sauce.

Signature on every bottle. Lea & Perrins

John Duncan's Sons—Agents, New York.

Support Yourself While Learning a Profession

We can qualify you in a few months to maintain yourself while learning to be a Mechanical Engineer, Electrician, Architect. Write for our new circular, "Support Yourself While Learning a Profession." Sent free.

INTERNATIONAL CORRESPONDENCE SCHOOLS, Box 861 Scranton, Pa.

200,000 students and graduates. Send for circular, stating subject in which interested.

STUDY LAW AT HOME

Takes spare time only. Oldest and Best Correspondence School in the World. Same teachers for ten years. Plan approved by Judges and Educators Adapted to the busy boy or man. Prepares for the Bar. Three courses: College, Business, Preparatory Opens new chances for you. Liberal Terms. Special offer now. Send for particulars.

Sprague Correspondence School of Law 118 Majestic Building, Detroit, Mich.

$2100 in Premiums.

No Lottery. It costs nothing for our customers to compete. Our clothing catalogue with large cloth samples and our lithographed carpet catalogue showing Carpets, Rugs, Art Squares and Draperies in their real colors, both free. Expressage paid on clothing—freight paid on carpets; also lining furnished free, and sewing free. Address this way:

JULIUS HINES & SON, Baltimore, Md. Dept. 218

$14 If You Want to SAVE MONEY and get the best machine at lowest wholesale price, now is your chance Buy direct from factory, one profit. All attachments free. 30 days' free trial. WARRANTED 20 YEARS.

High-Arm

$40.00 Arlington for $14.00
$50.00 Arlington for $17.00
$65.00 Kenwood for $21.50
Other Machines at $9, $19.50 & $12

Illustrated catalog and testimonials free. CASH BUYERS' UNION, 158-164 W. Van Buren St., B-18, Chicago, Ill.

Mason & Hamlin

Church, Chapel, Lodge, ORGANS School and Home.

THE STANDARD OF THE WORLD.

Catalog free. 146 Boylston St., Boston, Mass.

WURLITZER BEATS THE WORLD

Brass Band

INSTRUMENTS, DRUMS, ETC. Reduced Prices. Don't buy until you see new 80-pp. Cat. B. MAILED FREE.

The Rudolph Wurlitzer Co. 126 E. Fourth Street, CINCINNATI, O.

FREE SCHOLARSHIP IN Electrical, Mechanical, Marine, Stationary or Locomotive ENGINEERING

NUMBER LIMITED. WRITE IMMEDIATELY

AMERICAN SCHOOL OF CORRESPONDENCE, Boston, Mass.

Gospel Hymns for Summer Meetings

THE CHURCH HYMNS AND GOSPEL SONGS.

Sample Music Edition, 20 cts. Words only, 10 cts.

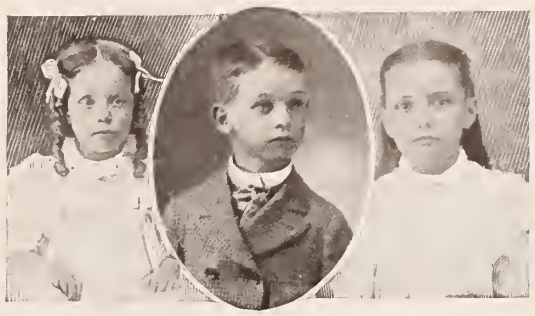
THE BIGLOW & MAIN CO., New York and Chicago.

VERY NICE ROOMS TO BE LET at Derwentwater House, Keswick, Cumberland, England. Address MRS. SWINBURN, Derwentwater House, Keswick, England.

India's Little Helpers

THOUGH their gifts be not always large, is not the example set by these little folks an inspiration to any grown people who might be tempted to remember their own ease and turn a deaf ear to the cry of starving millions?

Sadie Pearsall, Brooklyn, sent $2. Her Mite-Box, 12,795, she keeps in order that she may fill it again.



JOSEPHINE DANIELS RALPH B. WEAVER ENRIE STONE

Sadie's mother makes her own living. The little girl made such pleasant requests of her mother's friends as they came in that they were moved to drop contributions in the mite-box.—Wm. Greer Fisher, $2. Nearly four years old; has done all the collecting himself, and has been very anxious to quickly fill his Mite-Box, No. 9,678.—"A Little Boy," Corona, L. I., put into a mite-box for India eleven bright new pennies—all he had.—Helen Peck, L. I. "She is not three years old; saw pictures of famine children at Sunday School; her mother found her afterwards sitting on the floor dropping pennies, one by one, into her mite-box, saying, 'Feed 'em! feed 'em!' until all of her pennies were in when she said, with a sigh of satisfaction, 'Now, I dess dey'll all be fed!'"

ELLA HOLLAND

Enrie Stone, Kentucky, "fifty cents of her own money to help India."—Josephine Daniels, $1. "Had this money given her for a birthday party, but heard about the poor starving people, and asked that it be sent them." Ralph Bowen Weaver, $1. "All I have left since my papa let me buy two sheep: they each have a lamb." Ella Holland sends all the pennies which she has been saving.

Mrs. M. E. K., Martin, Texas, writes:

My heart just ached for those poor starving creatures until I thought I must send what I could, if only a little. When I told several friends they said they must send, too. Our Sunday School, too, wanted to give and altogether I got $9.60, which I send with the prayer that it may accomplish the saving of some poor souls as well as bodies. God bless the proprietor of THE CHRISTIAN HERALD!

Mabel A. Kelly and Harold Johnson, $2.18: "For our school. Our teacher read us about India."

This is an extract from the letter of a teacher in a fashionable private school:

Our mite-boxes contain about $25, which we are sending. The children are mostly spoiled darlings of wealthy parents. Each has a regular allowance, out of which he or she tried to fill a box. One child "didn't spend a cent for anything, putting every penny in his box." Two grasped the idea of working (though work is so out of their line!) to earn extra pennies; the work ranged from cutting grass and cleaning golf-sticks to running errands and embroidering towels "for grandma." A beautiful little fellow, who returned his box with fifty cents in it, has since gone to heaven. All of my children have been helped by reaching out the helping hand to others.

There are eyes which will grow misty when reading this letter from Rev. Elmer E. Hubbard, founder of the Industrial Home, Matanzas, Cuba:

I showed our forty-five boys pictures of India's starving children. Some of them were scarcely more than skeletons a year ago, and have not forgotten starvation times in Cuba. India's story touched their hearts. The pennies they had been treasuring were promptly given, until their mite-box held eighty-one cents. A visitor gave me $1 to buy them candy, but, by unanimous vote, they cheerfully said, "Send it to buy Hindu children bread."

"An Ark of Refuge"

SUCH is the name which has been aptly bestowed upon the Wayside Mission, of Seattle, Wash., which is now entering upon the most active season of its existence. Its location is in the centre of a portion of the city where vice abounds and where there are many opium dens, not a few of whose victims ultimately find their way to the medical ward of the Wayside Mission. There they are not only treated physically, but are encouraged to abandon lives of sin and accept free pardon through Jesus Christ. Many notable instances have occurred in which these kind ministrations have been followed by genuine conversions.

The Floating Hospital, which Captain de Soto, the founder of the Wayside Mission established a year ago, is also proving a great aid in the Gospel work of the mission, and has also been the means of saving many lives. It is almost always crowded with unfortunates, and many of the city's prisoners on being taken sick are committed to it by the authorities. It is understood that the city council is considering the advisability of making an appropriation toward meeting the expenses of the Floating Hospital, but this has not yet been done, and the entire burden of support rests upon the founder, who has been aided by some benevolently-disposed citizens and a few kind friends throughout the country. Seattle has learned to love the work and appreciate the motives of its founder, who has had calls from San Francisco, Spokane and Vancouver (B. C.), to establish a similar work in those cities. There is an average of sixty patients on the hospital ship.

THE "FLOATING HOSPITAL" OF THE SEATTLE WAYSIDE MISSION

Leading pastors of Seattle have commended this as "the most valuable of Christian work now being done in the city." It is deserving of the cordial support of God's people everywhere.

May his paper long continue its great work of usefulness and of carrying good tidings to many hearts.

A touching message comes from St. Louis, Mo., showing how one little worker has laid down her task. Her friend writes:

Little Hazel, who sent for the mite-boxes for India and had collected some money, has been called home to heaven; all her friends sent her flowers.

Perhaps her friends will carry forward her task. One contributor, whose wife was "called home to heaven," has taken up as a memorial to her, the work which she had commenced for India.

Rev. J.C.C., Va., writes, A little girl, Alma Kay, sends $1.20. She was much troubled and wanted to send some of her own clothes. Hearing that only food would help, she solicited $1.06. She says: "I am very sorry I cannot raise more. If all the little girls ten years old would raise one dollar, it would help so many Hindu girls. Our church has also raised money for India.—Union Sunday School, Potsdam, O., $21.50: "May God bless and strengthen THE CHRISTIAN HERALD in its noble work of saving the starving, is the prayer of our Sunday School," writes the assistant superintendent.—

INTERESTED LADIES.

Working in a Good Cause.

"In the Institution where I am employed as nurse (The Home for Aged Women) we find many ladies suffering from gastric trouble caused by coffee.

"My own personal experience is that since a child I have been a moderate drinker of coffee, but most of the latter years have suffered from acidity of the stomach, sluggish liver and nervousness.

"I finally gave up coffee entirely, about three years ago, using hot water in its place. Of course, after removing the cause, the symptoms disappeared, but I seemed to need a beverage more strengthening than hot water, as my occupation of nurse required considerable exertion. I began to look about for a suitable breakfast beverage and undertook the preparation of one by browning some wheat berries and using that as coffee, but the result was far from satisfactory. Finally I came across Postum Food Coffee, on a visit at my home in Roselle, N. J., and found it exactly fitted the case.

"I have been using it regularly and introduced it to our institution. When it was first served, it was not satisfactory, but I looked into the matter and insisted upon having it boiled fully fifteen minutes after the actual boiling had started, not counting the time that it was on the stove before boiling began. The next time it appeared you would not think it was the same article, it was so much improved. Several of the patients decided to use it to the exclusion of coffee, and I found that its use reduced the number of cases of indigestion. The result has been very gratifying, and for two years now, Postum Food Coffee has been in daily use at the Home.

"Mrs. Matilda Seaver and Miss Anna Merrill are desirous that their names be used to help forward the good cause. My mother has been greatly helped by the discontinuance of coffee. She was formerly subject to cramps, but they have entirely disappeared since she has abandoned coffee and taken up Postum Food Coffee. Respectfully, Miss E. Stryker, Elizabeth, N. J."

THE NATURAL BODY BRACE

REMOVES AILMENTS PECULIAR TO WOMEN

COSTS YOU NOTHING TO TRY IT.

Thousands of letters like this prove our assertions

"Curtis, Miss., Sept 1st, 1898 The brace I bought of you two years ago did all you claimed for it. It freed me from the worst forms of illness peculiar to my sex. Before using the Brace I suffered with prolapsus, periodical cramps, inflammation, constipation, headache, and other things of 20 years' standing. I had spent hundreds of dollars for medicines and doctors before trying the Brace.

"Mrs. Susie Woodard."

Send for full information with booklet, mailed free in plain, sealed envelope Address

THE NATURAL BODY BRACE CO., Box 171, Salina, Kansas

SIMPLE IN CONSTRUCTION COMFORTABLE ADJUSTABLE TO ANY FIGURE

The President Suspender

Improved

The only suspender in the world that absolutely conforms to every bend of the body. The only guaranteed suspender that combines perfect ease, convenience and style—and metal parts will not rust

$1,500 For Your Estimate

A novel competition on the Presidential vote open to all wearers of President Suspenders. Get information from dealer. Handsome booklet sent free. President Suspenders sold everywhere, 50 cents, or direct from us.

C. A. EDGARTON MFG. CO., Box 209 Shirley, Mass.

Acme Medicine Cover AND Dose Indicator 15c

Keeps medicine free from dust and germs, and tells time to take next dose. Fits any glass or makes stand for bottle. Non-corrosive, and antiseptic. If your dealer hasn't it, send 15c for sample.

SHARON MANUFACTURING CO. 134 South 11th Street, PHILADELPHIA

Welch's Grape Juice—the pure Juice of choice Concord Grapes in an unchanged form. You can tell it is pressed from the finest grapes, for it retains the natural Grape aroma and flavor to a marked degree. It makes people well and keeps people well. Sold by druggists and fancy grocers. Write the Welch Grape Juice Co., Westfield, N. Y., for free Booklet.

AVOID UNKNOWN BRANDS

BORDEN'S EAGLE BRAND CONDENSED MILK

SEND "BABIES" A BOOK FOR MOTHERS
Borden's Condensed Milk Co. N.Y.

The following is a plain, straightforward statement of the way in which an aggravated case of rheumatism was conquered. The words ring true; but anyone who is inclined to doubt the remarkable story can easily investigate it, for it is related by Mr. H. L. Burns, of 44 Brinckerhoff Avenue, Utica, N. Y., one of the best known grocers of that city. When seen at his store at the junction of Park Avenue and Mary Street, Mr. Burns said:

"Six years ago this month I began to feel a slight pain in my hips and legs, and as the pain grew worse it extended to my feet. They swelled all out of shape and the pain was dreadful. Finally my feet began to grow numb and I could barely hobble about. One day when I had come down to the store I got to the steps and could go no farther. I tried for several minutes but could not raise my feet. Finally a passerby helped me into the store and I at once put myself in a doctor's care. Electricity was tried, but without relief; in fact the feeling in my feet was so far gone that I scarcely felt the pull from one of the battery.

"One day Miss Kernans, a member of the family of the late Senator Kernans of this city, told me about Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People and asked me to try them. I said I would, and I made up my mind I would give them a fair trial so I bought ten boxes. In my opinion the majority of people are not willing to give a remedy a fair trial. I knew that two or three boxes would not remove as bad a case as mine, but I found that I had bought more than were necessary. I began to find great relief by the time I had used five boxes, and by the time I had finished the seventh box I was entirely relieved. I had no more pain, swelling or numbness than I have to-day, and that was five years ago.

"I have recommended Dr. Williams' Pink Pills to a great many people, for there is no doubt in my mind that anyone who is suffering with rheumatism will be relieved if the pills are given a fair trial."

[Signed]

March 9, 1900. H. L. BURNS.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold by all druggists, or will be sent postpaid on receipt of price, 50 cents a box, or six boxes for $2.50. They are never sold in bulk or by the 100. Address Dr. Williams Medicine Company, Schenectady, N. Y.

THE GEM EMBROIDERY MACHINE

SOMETHING NEW!

This little machine does the finest grades of embroidery now done by hand. Embroiders on any fabric; uses embroidery silk or cotton; a child can operate it; an independent living can be made with it at home. As a special introductory offer we will send a simple machine with a full set of stamping patterns and a beautiful sample of embroidery, together with full instructions teaching how to use machine, for 60c. prepaid regular price $2.00. A 50-page book of embroidery designs, containing upwards of 100 illustrations, free with each machine. Agents wanted.

GEM MFG. CO., Dept. C, St. Louis, Mo.

We furnish samples free to agents. F. S. Frost, Lubec, Me., sold $132.79, retail in 6 days. Write for Catalog, new goods, rapid sellers. RICHARDSON MFG. CO., 6th St., Bath, N. Y.

STAMMER INC. Most Speedy, Perfect, Permanent Educational Cure Guaranteed. Least Expense. Address, Voice School, Salem, W. Va.

How Missions Succeed*

Faith and Prayer the Two Essentials for Successful Missionary Work

EVEN after the Resurrection, the apostles appear to have had erroneous ideas of the principles and programme of Christianity. Their question to Christ: "Wilt thou at this time restore again the kingdom to Israel?" shows that they were still looking for a temporal kingdom, and were expecting Christ to use his miraculous powers in subjecting other kingdoms to the rule of Israel. From the beginning, down to the present day, the common idea of extending the rule of a dynasty or an empire has been that of conquest by force. And, as a matter of fact, most of the world's empires have gained their territories in that way. Christ's kingdom was a new thing in the world. As Daniel saw it, it was a stone cut out of the mountain without hands. It was not to be extended by wars, though it might be the cause of wars. It was not to be built up by royal influence, though royal influence might come to it. No man was to be driven into it, but all were to be willing subjects. The power of the King was to be the power of love, yet no power so absolute, nor so potent had ever existed in the world. It would have no capital, nor seat of government, nor army, nor police to enforce its laws, but no emperor, king or president could boast of subjects so numerous or so loyal.

A clue to the combination that was to achieve this triumph, unprecedented in the world's history, was supplied to the disciples in answer to their question: "Wilt thou?" they asked. "Ye shall receive power," was his answer. The power would be of God, but the workers must be human beings. If they failed to use the power, nothing would be done: if the power were withheld, they could do nothing. It was with inspired men—men endued with power—that this wonder would be worked. They soon began to realize the fact. In every subsequent generation the same principle has been operating. The lame man lying at the gate of the temple might have been lying there until he died and the power of Christ would not have healed him. Men might have uttered incantations over him or administered medicines, and there would have been no effect; but when the disciples, in the name of Jesus, bade him rise and walk, he was healed. There have been times when the church seemed asleep, conversions were few, and the world scoffed at "a religion which had lost its power"; but when Luther, or Knox, or Wickliffe, or Wesley, or Whitefield, or Spurgeon arose, and in Christ's name declared the Gospel, the effects followed. Then the world saw that religion had not lost its power; the power was still there for the use of men who believed in it, and, forgetting themselves, laid hold upon it and used it.

The history of the Church gives that one message to its members in every generation. Of themselves they can do nothing; but with that power there is no bound to their achievements. The Church has had among its leaders men of learning and men of eloquence and they have done good service. God has need of such men in the world; but it is not they who have extended the boundaries of Christ's kingdom. The men who have brought multitudes under Christ's banner have been men of faith and prayer who went forth conscious of their own imperfections and trusting in the power promised, were content to be simply witnesses for him. So it will be to the end. It has been proved by experience that the Gospel is adapted to every race and nationality. The missionary goes to a land which is ignorant of Christianity. He settles down and learns the language, encounters opposition and in some cases persecution, but he stays, witnessing for Jesus. By and by, one or two are impressed and the truth spreads. The work is done without ostentation, and at first the results seem utterly discouraging. Years of labor and ten or a dozen converts to show for it. But the power of Christ is like leaven; it passes from one to another and after a time the converts are a great company. The men who sow the seed often do not see the harvest, but they are sure that there will be a harvest. They toil in unfaltering faith giving their lives for the people to whom they go, as their Master gave his life for the world, and the time will come when they, like him, will see of the travail of their souls and be satisfied.

*Topic of the Christian Endeavor Society, Epworth League and Baptist Young People's Union for July 15. Acts 1:6-14.

Good Causes Helped

The following sums have been contributed by our readers for the support of the worthy causes mentioned below:

Bethesda Home

Prev. ack	$168 50
Lillie T Smith	1 00
Miss A T, Rantoul	1 00
Mary A Sherman	1 00
S C Burnham	2 00
Owain Griffiths	5 00
Mrs M Taber	5 00
Total	$183 50

Door of Hope

Prev. ack	$32.81
2 friends, Long Hill	1 00
Total	$33 81

Foreign Missions

Prev. ack	$43 50
Eliza Freer	5 00
Miss A T, Rantoul	1 00
Mr & Mrs C E Barnes	1 00
Total	$50 50

Any Good Cause

Prev. ack	$205.06
L R B, Waco	1 00
Mr & Mrs C E Barnes	1 00
Josephine B Jacob	50
Total	$207.56

Mrs. Rose H. Lathrop

Prev. ack	$13 00
Mrs Kentgen & Belle Hope	20 00
Mrs J B Koeber	2 00
Total	$35 00

Jerry McAuley Mission

Prev. ack	$15 25
Miss A T, Rantoul	1 00
Total	$16 25

Clinton St. Settlement

Prev. ack	$5.61
1 friend, Sabinal	50
Total	$56 51

Porto Rico S. S.

Prev. acks	$198 10
A C Giver	1 00
Subr E A	3 00
J Van Ostenbrugge	2 00
J H Rickel	50
Owain Griffiths	10 00
Total	$214 60

Emilio Olsen's Mission

Prev. ack	$96 95
—, Lakeland	1 00
H. Farnsworth	1 00
Miss A T, Rantoul	1 00
Miss Alice Cary	1 00
Mr & Mrs C E Barnes	2 00
Owain Griffiths	10 00
Total	$112 95

Armenian Fund

Prev. ack	$119 00
Olivet Cong'l ch, Bridgeport	3 50
Friend at Conference	5 00
—, Lakeland	1 00
Mrs D C Blair	25 00
T L Bersagel	50
K B Sturges	60 00
Mrs Paris	8 25
Mrs F M Bean	30 00
Everett P Wheeler	25 00
Mrs M F, Berlin	1 00
C E Leow	20 00
Friend, Westfield	20 00
Rfd E ch, W Chester	15 06
Friend, Manhattan Cong ch, N Y C	1 00
John Boyajian	5 00
Con ch, Poughkeepsie	23 75
Miss Millard	5 00
M Helen Fray	40 00
Total	$418.06

Gospel Work in Cuba.

Prev ack	$12 00
Elha Van Arsdell	1 00
Total	$13 00

Mrs. Dr. Hall's Corea Mission

Prev ack	$1 00
Mr & Mrs C E Barnes	1 00
Total	$2.00

Bishop Hartzell

Prev. ack	$26 00
Lena Bliven	1 00
Total	$27 00

Elmer E. Hubbard

Prev ack	$16 00
A S Steele	100 00
Mrs M J Covell	90
Eunie Brigham	10
Total	$117 00

Chaplain Chas. C. Pierce

Prev. ack	$12 50
Subr, E. V. Phila	2 00
Mrs F C Davis	1 00
Total	$15 50

E. Africa Famine Fund

Prev. ack	$452 80
—, Lakeland	1 00
M D James & Co	2 00
C, Mont	1 08
Subr, Waukegan	1 06
Total	$458 15

A Beautiful Tribute

At the funeral of Mrs. Gladstone, in London recently, among the floral gifts was a wreath sent by the Prince and Princess of Wales, which was laid on the casket. Attached to the wreath were these lines, written by the Princess:

IN MEMORY OF DEAR MRS. GLADSTONE:
It is but a crossing with a bated breath,
A white set face, a little strip of sea,
To find the loved ones waiting on the shore,
More beautiful, more precious than before.
ALEXANDRA.

This beautiful tribute to a noble woman came with all the more grace in that it was the spontaneous offering of one who has been more widely beloved and esteemed by the British people than any princess of her generation.

SUCCESS

TO hear men speak in thrilling tones
Of the great deeds that you have done,
To know that all the world has heard
Of battles fought, and victories won;
To pass along the crowded street,
And see the eager throng that press
To catch a word, a glance, a smile,
Is this success? is this success?

To write a sweet, a thrilling song [heart.
Whose glowing thoughts shall move the
To know that you possess the power
To make the smile or tear drop start;
To know that thousands yet shall sing
That song, and then the singer bless,
When you have passed from earth away,
Is this success? is this success?

To strive to fill each day, each hour,
With loving words and gentle deeds,
That all may see Christ's love in you,
And never think of sects or creeds;
To guide the erring, help the weak,
Comfort and cheer the comfortless,
To make this earth a happier place
Because you live—this is success.

New Whatcom, Wash. MAY A. HARDY.

Bad blood breeds catarrh, rheumatism, and humors, all of which Hood's Sarsaparilla, the great blood purifier, effectually cures. It also overcomes that tired feeling and loss of appetite.

CHANGE IN FOOD

Works Wonders in Health

It is worth knowing that a change in food can relieve dyspepsia. "I deem it my duty to let you know how Grape-Nuts food has relieved me of indigestion.

"I had been troubled with it for years, until last year my doctor recommended Grape-Nuts food to be used every morning. I followed instructions and now I am entirely well.

"The whole family like Grape-Nuts. We use four packages a week. You are welcome to use this testimonial as you see fit. I am willing to give any information to anyone who desires to see or write me regarding Grape-Nuts." Respectfully, Mrs. C. H. Lowe, 681 Parker St., Roxbury, Mass.

The reason Mrs. Lowe was helped by the use of Grape-Nuts food, is that the food is predigested by natural processes and therefore does not tax the stomach as the food she had been using; it also contains the elements required for building up the nervous system. If that part of the human body is in perfect working order, there can be no dyspepsia, for nervous energy represents the steam that drives the engine.

When the nervous system is run down, the machinery of the body works badly. Grape-Nuts food can be used by small children as well as adults. It is perfectly cooked and ready for instant use.

Libby's

Summer Food Suggestions

Libby's Luncheons are indispensable helps for everyone who plans the meals or does the cooking during the Summer months. They are fire-savers and time-savers. The wholesomeness and purity of these products appeal to every lover of good things to eat.

Some of Libby's Convenient Foods: Veal Loaf, Deviled Chicken, Potted Ham, Pork and Beans, Ham Loaf, Boneless Chicken, Corned Beef Hash, Breakfast Bacon, and our little book, "How to Make Good Things to Eat," tells about sixty more delicious foods prepared by us, — sent free.

$250.00 in cash prizes for Amateur Photographers. Two prizes, $50.00 each, and fifty-eight others in cash. Write for particulars.

LIBBY, McNEILL & LIBBY, CHICAGO.

"Frozen Dainties" FREE.

We have made a handsome little book that is a veritable encyclopedia about all frozen delicacies. It tells just how to make the most delicious Frozen Creams, Sherbets, Ices, Fruits, etc. It is written by Mrs. D. A. Lincoln (Author "Boston Cook Book,") and every recipe is tried and true, practical, perfect and easy.

Because this book says a few words about the world-renowned White Mountain Freezers, we send it absolutely free by post-paid mail. A postal-card request will bring you one if you send to-day, and mention THE CHRISTIAN HERALD in writing. Address,

THE WHITE MOUNTAIN FREEZER CO.,
Dept. A, Nashua, N. H.

Do you know how good it is? If not, I will gladly

MAIL TO YOU FREE

My 32-page book of seventy recipes, "Dainty Desserts for Dainty People." Send your name to-day.

For 5c. in stamps (to cover postage and packing), the book and full pint sample.

For 15c. and the name of your grocer, the book and a full 2-quart package (two for 25 cents).

Pink gelatine for fancy desserts in every package.

CHAS. B. KNOX, 55 Knox Avenue, Johnstown, N. Y.

FAVORITE CAKE SPOON

For stirring and mixing batter of all kinds. It is useful as a skimmer and in one thousand and one ways. Agents send 50cts. postage on free sample and catalog. We are largest manufacturers of Pure Aluminum, Scotch Granite and Tin Ware in the world. AGENTS, write how to get free this and four of our other best selling household novelties—Outfit worth $2.00—Express prepaid. Address Dept. T

HOUSEHOLD NOVELTY WORKS, 25 Randolph St., Chicago, Ill., or New York, N. Y.; Buffalo, N. Y., St. Louis, Mo.; Kansas City, Mo.; Denver, Col.; Seattle, Wash.

WYCKOFF, SEAMANS & BENEDICT, 327 Broadway, New York

"THE 'SALT' OF SALTS."

Effervescing Coolness.

When the warmth of the day has extracted all energy from the system, and breathing seems a burden, there is nothing so delightfully refreshing, cooling and invigorating as a teaspoonful of

Abbey's Effervescent Salt

in a tumbler of water. It soothes the stomach, cools the blood and gratifies the thirst. It may be taken at any time with beneficial results. The regular use of this standard English preparation will keep you in good health and will prevent and relieve Dyspepsia, Sick Headache, Biliousness or Constipation and all similar ills.

Abbey's is Nature's remedy—because it is made from the salts extracted from the juices of fresh fruits. Unlike violent remedies, it doesn't knock out your system or deplete the vital organs. It does its work gently, but effectively—as Nature intended it should be done. Sold by most druggists or sent by mail.

25c., 50c. and $1 per bottle.

The Abbey Effervescent Salt Co., Dept. A, 9-15 Murray St., New York.

Booklet free on request.

ALLEGREE, KY.

"Your Salt works like a charm. It seems to be just what had always been wanting, cooling and refreshing and not nauseating in any particular. I shall never be without it in my office."
W. C. DULMAGE, M.D.

1570 ASBURY AVENUE, EVANSTON, ILL., January 5, 1900.

"Your Salt is a very superior article. Am well pleased with it. Bottle waters no comparison."
DR. WM. B. MANN.

60 CLASSIC ST., HOOSICK FALLS, N. Y.

"Abbey's Salt is perfect. I thank you for putting on the market such a valuable article. It is pleasant and effective."
GEORGE M. LAMB, M. D.

SPRINGFIELD, MASS., January 25, 1900.

"I can truly say that Abbey's Salt is the best preparation of the kind I have ever used and shall continue to use it in my practice."
DR. ERNEST K. PARKER.

To Protect your Wife and Children in the future, or for the accumulation of a fund to comfort and support old age, Life Insurance is a necessity.

The Prudential

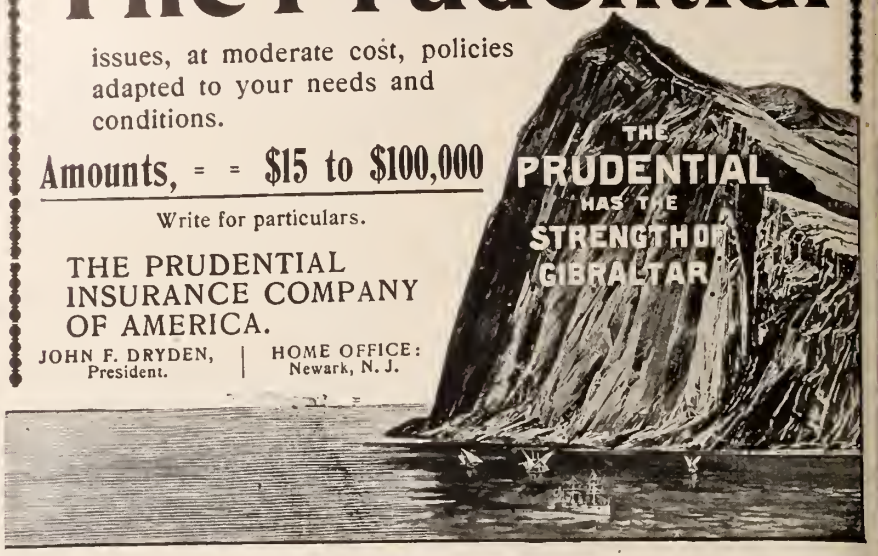
issues, at moderate cost, policies adapted to your needs and conditions.

Amounts, = = $15 to $100,000

Write for particulars.

THE PRUDENTIAL INSURANCE COMPANY OF AMERICA.

JOHN F. DRYDEN, President. | HOME OFFICE: Newark, N. J.



WALTHAM WATCHES

Over twenty-five years ago the American Waltham Watch Company stated that "350,000 Waltham Watches are speaking for themselves in the pockets of the people." To-day EIGHT MILLION Waltham Watches are in use throughout the civilized world.

Waltham Watches are for sale by all retail jewelers.

FREE TRIAL

YEARS

PIANO $155.00 UP

Money back with interest if not satisfied with your bargain. Write today for our latest catalogue. It is free. It shows you the latest and most up-to-date Organs and Pianos on the market. It tells you all about our patent combination actions and orchestral attachments which imitate a great variety of stringed instruments. Something new and novel that never fails to please. A discount of $10.00 on every Organ and $20.00 on every Piano if you get our catalogue now. We sell for cash or on easy payments. No money in advance required. From factory to home. No agents. No middlemen's profits. Write today.

ORGAN $25.00 UP

BEETHOVEN PIANO & ORGAN CO.

Box 741 Washington, N.J.

Artistic Monuments in White Bronze

COST NO MORE THAN PLAIN ONES

Marble is entirely out of date. Granite soon gets moss-grown, discolored, requires constant expense and care, and eventually crumbles back to Mother Earth. Besides it is very expensive.

White Bronze is strictly everlasting. It cannot crumble with the action of frost. Moss-growth is an impossibility. It is more artistic than any stone. Then why not investigate it? It has been adopted for nearly one hundred public monuments. We have designs from $4.00 to $4,000.00. Write at once for free designs and information. It puts you under no obligations. We deal direct and deliver everywhere.

Over $28,000 worth of work sold to Christian Herald readers in the last few years.

The Monumental Bronze Co., 70-90 Howard Ave., Bridgeport, Conn.

MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP for children teething should always be used for children while teething. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain, relieves wind colic, and is the best remedy for diarrhœa.

DR. JAEGERS POROUS

Underwear absorbs perspiration, and prevents colds.

THIS AUTOGRAPH IS NEVER ON A POOR SHADE-ROLLER AND NEVER ABSENT FROM A GOOD ONE.

Stewart Hartshorn

GET THE GENUINE HARTSHORN

GOOD WHEELS

MAKE A GOOD WAGON.

Unless a wagon has good wheels it is useless. THE ELECTRIC STEEL WHEELS are good wheels and they make a wagon last indefinitely. They are made high or low, any width of tire, to fit any skein. They can't get loose, rot or break down. They last always. Catalog free.

Electric Wheel Co., Box 136 Quincy, Ills.

GOING TO FEED CATTLE

or hogs or both this season? There is no better fence made for surrounding feed lots, barn yards, or the farm in general than THE ADVANCE FENCE. Perfectly smooth, all interwoven, safe for stock. SOLD DIRECT TO FARMERS AT WHOLESALE. Nobody can buy it any cheaper. Write for circulars and special discounts.

ADVANCE FENCE CO., 149 Old Street, Peoria, Ill

FENCE! STRONGEST MADE. Bull-strong. Chicken-tight. Sold to the Farmer at Wholesale Prices. Fully Warranted. Catalog Free.

COILED SPRING FENCE CO. Box 47. Winchester, Indiana, U. S. A.

STARK TREES best by test—74 YEARS. WE WANT MORE SALESMEN PAY CASH WEEKLY

Stark Nursery, Louisiana, Mo; Dansville, N.Y.

Thousands in use in all parts of the world. Is no experiment. A Cyclist using the Morrow for a few weeks would give up cycling rather than give up the Coaster Brake. Ladies' skirts keep down when coasting. Feet always on Pedals. When ordering your new wheel, be SURE to specify the Morrow Coaster-Brake. For sale by all dealers.

Our Acetylene Bicycle Lamp is superior to any yet offered.

Illustrated pamphlet, giving detailed information regarding Brake and Lamp, sent on application.

ECLIPSE BICYCLE CO., Box U, Elmira, N. Y.

A $12 Bath Cabinet FOR only $5.00

Our new 1902 style Square Quaker guaranteed best of all cabinets at any price. Has real door on hinges, steel frame, best materials, rubber lined, folds flat, lasts 20 years. Turkish and Vapor baths at home 3c each. Open the millions of pores, sweats poisons out of the blood, keeps you clean and healthy, beautifies complexion. Physicians recommend it for Colds, LaGrippe, Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Obesity, Female Ills, all Blood, Skin, Nerve or Kidney troubles. Money refunded after 30 days use, if not as represented. Price with heater, directions, formulas, $5.00. Face Steamer $1.00 extra. Order today. Write us. Valuable Book FREE. Big Wages. Splendid Seller. Agents Wanted.

World Mfg. Co., 57 World B'ld'g. Cincinnati, O.

CHRISTIAN HERALD

AND SIGNS OF OUR TIMES

OFFICES: BIBLE HOUSE, NEW YORK

Rev. T. De Witt Talmage, D.D., Editor

COPYRIGHT, 1900, BY LOUIS KLOPSCH

NEW YORK, JULY 11, 1900

VOLUME 23—NUMBER 28

PRICE FIVE CENTS

· INDIA · WELCOMES · OUR · RELIEF · SHIP ·

BOMBAY was en fete on the day of the arrival of the Quito, with its life-giving cargo of American grain. A cable dispatch to THE CHRISTIAN HERALD, from the Inter-Denominational Missionary Committee, gives some details of the enthusiastic public welcome accorded to the steamship on June 28. Scarcely had the Quito come to her anchorage, when Captain Baird, his officers and crew, and Rev. Mr. Winsor and his good wife, who made the voyage with the Quito, were the centre of a very interesting demonstration. Flags and bunting were visible everywhere, and a great crowd, which had assembled to witness the vessel's arrival, gave expression to its feelings in a most enthusiastic fashion.

At the formal public reception, which followed, there was a large and representative gathering, including the Viceroy's representative, many high state officials, influential natives, missionaries and business men. Several members of the Inter-Denominational Missionary Committee were also present. In the addresses, the speakers, with one accord, warmly welcomed the arrival of the relief ship, and expressed the deep gratitude of India for the generous gift of the American people, conveyed through THE CHRISTIAN HERALD. It was a princely gift and came at the time of all others when it would be of the greatest service in saving life.

THE CORN-LADEN FAMINE RELIEF STEAMSHIP "QUITO"

Telegrams from the Viceroy Lord Curzon, and the Governor of Bombay, were read to the audience amid tremendous enthusiasm. These messages expressed the warmest congratulations upon the safe arrival of the relief ship and also upon the splendid life-saving work already accomplished in the relief camps, through the Fund supplied by Christian America.

On the hatches being removed, the grain in the Quito's holds was found to be in fine condition, the great care exercised in loading and in protecting it from the elements having preserved it thoroughly. This was especially gratifying to the members of the Missionary Committee. Unloading began at once, and railway cars were soon filled with the precious

(Continued on page 578)

DISTRIBUTING "CHRISTIAN HERALD" RELIEF IN REV. DR. HARPSTER'S COMPOUND AT GUNTER, INDIA

Our Mail-Bag

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

1. These questions are printed Four weeks in advance so as to afford all our readers an opportunity to answer them.
2. For answers to the questions which appear below, when accepted, we will allow compensation for the matter used at the rate of One Dollar a hundred words. Answers should so far as possible be limited to one hundred words.
3. Answers must be received at this office two weeks in advance of the date in which they are intended to appear.
4. The editor reserves the right to condense accepted answers when necessary, and compensation will be based on the matter as printed.
5. Do not write inquiring if your material has been accepted. If it appears on this page, you will know that it has been accepted.
6. We cannot return any MSS. sent to the Editor of THE MAIL BAG—not even if stamps accompany them.
7. Write only on one side of the sheet and never send on the same sheet anything intended for any other department of the paper. Correspondents answering more than one question should append their name and address to each answer.
8. Address all communications intended for this department, EDITOR THE MAIL-BAG,

The Christian Herald, Bible House, New York.

These Questions Will be Answered Aug. 8

1. Should the "world" be invited to support the church, or should the latter rely upon its own resources as a Christian organization?
2. Is it probable that the events described in such Parables as the Good Samaritan and the Prodigal Son were actual occurrences?
3. What is the legend of the origin of the Cypress tree?
4. If a young man had an ambition to spend his life so as to do the greatest possible good to humanity, could he attain his object best in the pulpit, or as a missionary in the slums of an American city, or as a missionary in a heathen land?
5. By what race or nation were wooden swords used in battle and for what reason?
6. In the last verses of the book of Job, the patriarch is represented as being rewarded with double the number of animals that he had at first, but he has only the same number of children. Why was not the number of them doubled, too?
7. What is the origin of the phrase to "throw dust in one's eyes"?
8. Which has the greater influence on the character: heredity or environment?
9. Is a man justified, "for conscience sake," in throwing away his vote on a party which meets his views but which he knows cannot succeed, or should he accept the alternative of giving his support to the better of the two remaining parties?
10. If a Christian saw a man likely to perish by drowning, or burning, or in some other way, and he was morally certain that if the man were saved, he would live so evil a life that his example and his conduct would be mischievous to the community, ought he to risk his own life in trying to save him? Would he not serve society better by letting him perish?

Questions of the Week

1. Which are the five most important bridges in the world?

1. The Tower Bridge—a bascule bridge—crosses the Thames at the Tower of London, cost about $3,500,000. 2. The Niagara Suspension Bridge, 245 feet above the water, and a single strand of 821 feet; built in 1852–5, and at a cost of $400,000. 3. Brooklyn Bridge, across East River, New York; built 1883. About one and one-eighth mile long. Towers, 276 feet high. Three spans—middle span 1,600 feet long. 4. Mississippi and Illinois Bridge at St. Louis, with piers and abutments established on the solid rock by means of caissons provided with air chambers and locks at 110 feet below the surface of the water, where the foundation work was actually performed. This feat is unprecedented in the annals of engineering. 5. The Queensferry Bridge across the Forth, a cantilever, designed to be the largest and most magnificent bridge in the world. Over one and a half miles in length, clear headway under centre 152 feet. Height above same level 361 feet. Among other important bridges may be mentioned the following: London New Bridge, Waterloo Bridge, the Britannia Bridge over the Menai Straits, the Cincinnati, and the Steubenville.

CHAS. D. HANGER.

[Other answers received include the Buda-Pest bridge across the Danube, 1,200 feet in length; the great bridge at Moerdyck, Holland, 4,820 feet; the Volga bridge, Russia, 4,715 feet; Neichsel bridge, Germany, 4,356 feet, and the Parkersburg, W. Va. bridge, 7,045 feet.]

2. What is the origin of the word "laconic" and its derivative, "laconism?"

"Laconic" is derived from Laconia, the country of the Lacedæmonians or Spartans, whose habit it was to be brief and concise in their speech. They carried their fondness for giving short pithy answers to an extreme, so that the word "laconic" has come to carry with it in some slight degree at least the idea of affectation or incivility. Laconism, of course, means a concise sententious style of expression, AMELIA HOYT.

[Other answers give instances of the laconic style of the Spartans. Thus D. Myers writes: "Leonidas on being told the Persians' arrows darkened the sky, said: 'We'll fight in the shade then.'" M. writes: "Philip of Macedan once wrote to the ephori of the capital city, Sparta threateningly: 'If I enter Laconia, I will level Lacedæmon to the ground.' The Spartan's answer was the single word, 'If,'" Mrs. N. C. Alger, writes: "Leonidas' reply to Xerxes' demand to give up his arms, was 'Come and take them.'" etc. etc.

3. In what respect was Cyrus the anointed of the Lord? We read in Isaiah 45:1: "Thus saith the Lord to his anointed, to Cyrus, whose right hand I have holden." Was Cyrus a good man?

Compared with other ancient monarchs, Cyrus the great was humane and generous. Taken all in all, he was one of the best men Asia has given to the world. He was the "anointed" of the Lord, in the sense that through him God's people were permitted to build a temple in Jerusalem, as is shown in the first chapter of Ezra. Cyrus, like Pharaoh and other kings, was the medium through which the Almighty carried out his purposes.

JOHN D. MEESE.

4. Christ, speaking of the faith that removes mountains, adds, "Howbeit this kind goeth not forth but by prayer and fasting" (Matt. 17:21). Does this mean literal prayer and abstinence from food?

The Revised Version, following the most reliable Greek text, omits this verse. The corresponding passage is, however, retained in Mark 9:29, but with the words "and fasting" omitted. Matt. 17:21 may be a spurious insertion from Mark. However, if the verse stands, it can only mean that faith of the strongest kind is necessary for such miracles, and that this degree of faith is attained by much prayer and such fasting as fits the mind for the highest religious exercise and leaves it free to commune with God.

G. E. KRAUTH.

5. Christ says: "When ye pray say, Lead us not into temptation." James says: "My brethren, count it all joy when ye fall into divers temptations." Why this difference in injunction between the Lord and one of his followers?

The language in James 1:2, is explained in the next verses, 3 and 4. These "divers temptations," or "trials of our faith," are essential to the development of a perfect Christian character; and therefore we are joyfully to encounter them. At the same time, conscious of our weakness, and of the possibility of falling into sin, we are earnestly to pray that we may not be led into temptations or exposed to trials too great for us to resist, or from which we may not be safely delivered.

J. G. OSBORNE.

6. What is the latest computation as to the population of the earth and how is it divided among the continents and islands?

The total population of the earth is, to a large extent an estimate, inasmuch as in some countries a proper census has never been taken, while in many the interval that has elapsed since the last enumeration is so long as to reduce it to the level of serving as a basis for a calculation in which estimates play a large part. The following is an estimate in round numbers:

GRAND DIVISIONS

North America	100,000,000
South America	40,000,000
Europe	380,000,000
Asia, including Malaysia	850,000,000
Africa	180,000,000
Australia	3,500,000
Total	1,553,500,000

ISLANDS

Danish America	80,000	Madeira Islands	140,000
Arctic Archipelago	1,000	Ceylon	3,000,000
Newfoundland	200,000	Japanese Empire	50,000,000
West Indies	6,000,000	Madagascar and Comoro	4,000,000
Falkland Islands	2,000	Canary Islands	280,000
Faroe Islands	12,000	Cape Verde	110,000
Great Britain and Ireland	50,000,000	Other African Isl's	560,000
E. Indian Islands including Sumatra, Java, Borneo, Celebes, Philippine & Spice	50,000,000	Tasmania	160,000
		New Zealand	680,000
		New Guinea	900,000
Azore Islands	270,000	Sandwich Islands	92,000
		Other Islands in Pacific Ocean	900,000

CHAS. D. HANGER.

7. How may we harmonize God's three requirements as set forth in Micah 6:8, "to do justly, to love mercy and to walk humbly with thy God" and Paul's answer to the jailer (Acts 16:32), as setting forth the way of salvation?

The one is cause, and the other effect. Justice, mercy and humility are the characteristics of one who believes on the Lord Jesus Christ. The Philippian jailer asked of Paul and Silas, "What must I do to be saved?" They answered, "Believe on the Lord Jesus Christ, and thou shalt be saved." Now, if he had further asked, "What must I do to show that I believe? Must I observe the rites and ceremonies of the Jews?" etc., we can imagine Paul answering, "What doth the Lord require of thee but to do justly, to love mercy and to walk humbly with thy God." "Show thy faith by thy works"—by thy Christian character.

MRS. ROBERT DALTON GILBERT.

8. Is there any reason to believe that the twelve disciples of Christ raised the dead before their Master was crucified?

The clause "raise the dead," Matt. 10:8, is omitted by some manuscripts of the New Testament, and by some able critics is suspected to be an interpolation. The absence of any account of such miracle as performed by them does not really prove anything, for no account is given of any performance during the mission on which Christ sent them. "But the supposition of so great a miracle stands opposed to the general analogy of that state of pupilage in which they remained during the Saviour's life."

AMELIA HOYT.

9. Since Porto Rico is now United States territory, is there any good reason why the same privileges enjoyed by the United States in general, should not be enjoyed by the people of that island?

Technically and actually Porto Rico is a territory, not a State. Congress has exclusive power to make all rules for its government for that reason. (Const. Art. IV, Sec. 3). This power must be exercised under constitutional limitations. Freedom of speech and worship, a fair trial by due process of law, equality before the law, the protection of life, liberty and property, and all constitutional rights secured to citizens of the United States belong to the Porto Ricans. They became citizens when they came under our jurisdiction. The right to vote and hold office are not constitutional rights of United States citizens but are conferred and regulated by the States, though no State can abridge or deny the right to vote on account of race, color or previous condition of servitude. (Const. Amend. XV). These rights Congress may confer or deny in the territories like Porto Rico and it should confer them with great caution in view of the past experience and history of Latin-American countries in respect to self government. A different condition exists in Porto Rico than among Anglo-Saxon peoples with their centuries of active participation in governing themselves.

H. C. UNDERHILL.

10. Different authorities give different dates in Hebrew history. What are its leading dates from the call of Abraham to the birth of Christ, according to the best reputable authority?

Students who try to construct a chronology exclusively from the Bible records, are practically in accord on the date of the beginning of the reign of Saul, the first King of Israel, as being 1093 or 1095 years before the Christian era. Counting backward from that date the question arises how long the country was ruled by the judges. If the judges mentioned were successive, the period between the death of Joshua and the accession of Saul was about 500 years. But if some of those judges governed contemporaneously, the period may not have been more than 334 years. So that some students place the death of Joshua at 1593 B.C., and others at 1427 B.C. Others again, taking Paul's statement (Acts 13:20), make the date 1543 B.C. The results, according to the long reckoning, are as follows: Call of Abraham, 2164 B.C.; migration of Jacob to Egypt, 1874; birth of Moses, 1738; the exodus, 1658, and the death of Joshua, 1593. Deduct 166 from each of these dates, and you have the dates assigned by students who believe that the "times of the Judges" was not more than 334 years. The later dates are: Accession of Solomon, 1013; dedication of the temple, 1003; revolt of the ten tribes, 973; fall of northern kingdom, 722; capture of Jerusalem under Nebuchadnezzar, 587; decree of Cyrus for the return of the Jews, 537; completion of the second temple, 517; Antiochus subjugates Palestine, 218; Antiochus Epiphanes profanes the temple, 170; Jerusalem taken by Pompey, 63. J. B. INFREE.

Miscellaneous Questions

S. M., Harbourton, N. J. What is ptomaine poison, and from what is the name derived?

The name is derived from the Greek word, ptoma, a dead body. Ptomaine is an alkaloid, usually poisonous, derived from decomposing or putrefying animal matter. Some writers use it in referring to similar alkaloids produced by disease germs in the living body.

J. S. F., ——, Kansas. Jesus says the pure in heart shall see God. Surely then the millions who have gone to glory from earth must be pure in heart. Are they to be judged again at the Judgment Day?

Certainly not in the sense of being tested. If they appear before any throne of judgment it is that they may be owned of their Lord and publicly vindicated. It is not conceivable that the question of title and fitness to heaven will be brought up ages after the soul has dwelt amid its glories. Admission to heaven is itself an act of judgment.

H. A., Eureka, N. Y. What is the difference between the Methodist Episcopal, the Free Methodist and the Methodist Protestant churches, in government and belief?

The Episcopacy, that is, government by bishops, is the distinctive feature of the Methodist Episcopal Church. The Methodist Protestants have no higher official than presidents of the annual conferences. The Free Methodists have no bishops, but their general superintendents are elected for four years. The two former bodies hold to the same doctrines. The Free Methodists hold to all the doctrines of the others, but add two articles: one an entire sanctification and the other a future reward and punishment.

W. A. Hurley, S. Dak., writes:

In your issue of May 30 (Question No. 4), "In what States of the Union does Temperance Legislation prevail?" is answered incorrectly—at least as far as two of the States are concerned, viz., Iowa and South Dakota. Each of these had at one time prohibition, but both repealed by popular vote; since which time, we, of South Dakota, have had almost no control of the liquor traffic.

Mrs. J. K., Springfield, S. D. What were the bitter herbs used by the Israelites at the Passover?

Since endive, chicory, wild lettuce, or nettles, were important articles of food to the ancient Egyptians, it is likely that these were the bitter herbs of the Passover feast, more especially as they are at the present time eaten by the Jews in the East.

Mrs. H. S., Watertown, India. Had Christ any own brothers and sisters? If so, where in the Bible are we so informed?

Answered in THE MAIL-BAG, March 14 (Answer No. 7, page 206).

B. L., New Franklin, Mo. Why do the majority of Christians observe Sunday as the Sabbath Day, when that day is the first of the week, and God commanded that the people should observe the seventh day as a Sabbath?

This question is answered in THE MAIL-BAG Department, April 11 (page 304, answer No. 3). It was there stated, among other reasons given for the change, that it was made by the authority of the apostles, delegated them by the Lord (Matt. 16:19).

J. W. S., Mifflintown, Pa., writes:

In THE CHRISTIAN HERALD of May 30 we read of Amos J. Cumming's "Address of the birds." Why can't we have a law passed exterminating the English sparrows? They are driving off or killing our songsters.

The pugnacious little sparrow has its uses, no doubt. We would be pleased to hear from some of our ornithologist friends on this subject, and also as to the progress of the movement to protect our song-birds from the ravages of hunters employed by unscrupulous milliners.

S. R. S., Chautauqua, N. Y. In your paper of May 16 you say that March 22 is the earliest and April 17 the latest date on which Easter can occur. Is not this an error? A few years ago Easter occured on April 25.

The types were in error. March 22 is the earliest and April 25 the latest date on which Easter Sunday can occur.

A reader in Listowel, Ont., writes, apropos of answered prayer:

I prayed for my friend, who was a great sufferer, promising if my prayers were answered to acknowledge the same in THE CHRISTIAN HERALD. My friend recovered, and I now write to redeem my promise.

W. S. R., Cameron, Va. What causes honeydew? Where does it come from and why deposited only on certain top surfaces of vegetation?

Authorities differ as to its origin. It is explained by some scientists to be a glutinous, sweetish substance, which is secreted by various insects in drops that resemble dew. Another explanation is that it is a secretion from the leaves or fruit of a plant, owing to a superabundance of juice in the trunk or stem. There are certain kinds of insects, like plant lice, which suck the juices of plants and then exude a gummy substance known as honeydew.

Mrs. F. H. B., Holyoke, Mass. Probably Welsh, but if you desire accurate information, write to College of Heralds, London, Eng.

P. M. B., Philadelphia. Hawthorne's famous book carries an obvious moral. It is that conscience does not cease to torment the sinner until his sin is expiated and his heart feels the joy of forgiveness.

Subscriber, Stafford Springs. Write to J. E. Jewett, Bible House, New York.

A. N., Freeland. We have no information on the subject.

Rev. E. L. Anderson, Salina, Utah, writes:

In THE CHRISTIAN HERALD for May 2nd, A. E. R., of Hudson, Ala., asks, "Are Mormons Christians? If so, and they do not teach the doctrine of polygamy, why are they so cruelly persecuted by people who claim to be Christians?"

I have lived in Utah four years and have traveled widely and conversed with many Mormons, and in nearly every case those with whom I have spoken have resented having the name "Christian" applied to them. They claim to believe the Bible but set aside every portion of it which does not suit them. They stand in opposition to all other religionists. "We are the people" is their cry. They do teach and practice polygamy. There are active polygamists in this town. Profanity is very common among them in Utah, Sabbath desecration also. Their missionaries go out from Utah and preach a "veiled gospel" very different from their teachings in Utah. If they will go out and tell the real facts of their doctrines, probably they would meet little of what A. E. R. terms "persecution." If Methodist, Presbyterians, or other ministers, were to adopt the same methods of deception and meddling with families that Mormons often do, they would also, probably, provoke antagonism. But for a family or a community, to take measures to protect themselves against deception and fraud is not persecution. Let me advise A. E. R. to procure the articles published by General Eaton in THE CHRISTIAN HERALD and now published in pamphlet form, also to write the Kinsman Publishing Co., of Salt Lake City, Utah, for tracts, showing the teachings of the Mormon Church.

Soul-Winning Under Canvas

The Gospel Tent "Glad Tidings" Reopened in New York—Crowded Audiences Attend the Services

THE Gospel Tent, "Glad Tidings," in which a very successful work was carried on last summer, was opened for services Sunday, June 3d, on the lot corner of Broadway and Fifty-sixth street, New York. The organization under whose auspices the meetings are conducted, is known as the Gospel Tent Association. There are twelve directors, representing several evangelical denominations. The First Baptist, Church of the Strangers, Calvary Baptist, Fifth Avenue Presbyterian, Marble Collegiate Reformed, and Broadway Tabernacle Congregational have each representatives on the Board. Mr. William Phillips Hall, the "Business Man Evangelist," is President; Mr. J. L. B. Holme, Treasurer, and Mr. George E. Bemis, Secretary.

At the first meeting of the Board, Rev. S. Hartwell Pratt, who conducted the meetings last year, was reelected Superintendent for this season, and Mr. F. H. Jacobs, who was Mr. Moody's singer for some three years, was appointed musical director. Twenty-four churches on the west side of the city are in special sympathy with the work and cooperate through their pastors and active workers in various ways. The purpose of those in charge of the meetings is to provide the best evangelical preaching at a season of the year when many churches are closed. It is also their desire to emphasize the fundamental teachings of evangelical religion in this age of doubt, and in order to do this the most eminent and worthy ministers are actively cooperating in the movement.

The Gospel Tent, as a meeting-place, is a great boon to multitudes in summer. It is clean, cool, comfortable and attractive. Many people in the great metropolis never have an opportunity of attending the great religious conventions, which are so instructive and inspiring, and the tent services bring to these stay-at-homes many privileges they would not otherwise enjoy. Mr. Moody, last season, said the tent meetings "pay their cost by keeping many Christians from degenerating in the summer."

The great variety of spiritual talent represented is not only an attractive, but a positive benefit. A lady of culture, who had been a church-member for many years, said: "I enjoy my pastor's preaching, but I have come to understand his habits of mind and method of analysis so well that I can almost construct his sermon when he takes his text, and I find myself greatly helped by the varied evangelical truths I listen to in the tent."

HOLDING A REVIVAL SERVICE IN THE GOSPEL TENT, "GLAD TIDINGS"

SOLOIST F. H. JACOBS

The meetings are all conducted in most reverent and worshipful manner. Sensationalism is not sought nor tolerated in speakers or singers. Nothing is done to draw the people except to preach the Word in power, and sing it with the spirit and the understanding. Following the preaching, an aftermeeting is held for prayer, testimony and inquiry. This meeting is conducted on the same lines that the most conservative evangelical churches would approve. The audiences are made up of people who come, many of them, long distances, and strangers are present at nearly every service from all parts of the country. It is safe to say that the tent services constantly reach a class of people covering a radius of fifteen miles from the city. A lady lecturing before one of the grammar schools of New York, last winter, upon South Dakota, mentioned the benefits many people of that State derived from reading the reports of the meetings in the press. A number of papers in London publish reports of the work. Dr. MacArthur, while speaking in a little village about forty miles from City of Mexico, one Sunday last summer, was asked by a lady at the close of the service "how the Gospel Tent meetings in New York City were getting on." She had read so many of the reports from them that she had become thoroughly interested.

Requests for prayers come from Canada, the Southern states and as far West as Montana. Many persons stopping in the city for a few days, have attended the services and have been converted and carried the spirit of the meetings back to their home churches. The tent is supported by voluntary contributions and subscriptions. Among the preachers who have spoken so far this season are Evangelist William Phillips Hall, Rev. Dr. Purves of the Fifth Ave. Presbyterian Church, Rev. Dr. J. Wilbur Chapman, Rev. Dr. R. S. MacArthur, Rev. Dr. Wylie, Scotch Presbyterian Church, Rev. A. C. Dixon, Dr. Wilton Merle Smith, Rev. John Balcom Shaw, Rev. Cornelius Woelfkin, Bishop Andrews, Rev. J. F. Carson, Rev. Charles E. Jefferson and a number of others who have declared the Word with power. Many ministers who will be unable to preach in the tent before autumn, have expressed their approval of the work and their readiness to share in it. Rev. Dr. Cuyler, Rev. Dr. James Burrell and Rev. Walpole Warren, of St James Episcopal church are among the number.

Mr. William R. Moody has promised to cooperate in every possible way. In a letter he says: "I want to congratulate you on the magnificent work which it is your privilege to conduct again this year." He will aid in choosing for the tent services the best Northfield speakers.

It is proposed to continue the meetings until October, or as long as the season will admit. Requests for prayers from all parts of the country will be welcomed, and remembered before God. Strangers visiting the city are most cordially invited to attend the tent services. Letters, containing requests for prayer or information respecting the work, may be addressed to Rev. S. Hartwell Pratt, Y. M. C. A., W. 57th street, New York City.

BEYOND DARK CLOUDS

NO matter though we cannot see
The dawns behind the clouds,
And though at first we're followed not
By fond, approving crowds,
Keep hope and let us travel on,
In paths we know are right,
If the torch bearers we shall be,
More will behold our light.

So let us still e'er work and pray,
And right will surely win,
Though ere we reach the haven bright
Come many days of sin;
But still a brighter day shall dawn,
When we the storms have past,
For sunshine always is beyond
And clouds can never last.

MARTHA SHEPARD LIPPINCOTT.
Moorestown, N. J.

Commencement at Northfield

ON Sunday morning, June 10, the graduating class of Northfield Seminary attended at the Congregational Church, where Dr. C. I. Scofield, D.D., of Northfield, preached the baccalaureate sermon. In the afternoon, Mr. H. M. Moore, of Boston, conducted the first Round-Top meeting of the season. He said it was the first meeting there since the great leader, D. L. Moody, had been called home. The meetings should be carried on just as Mr. Moody had been accustomed to conduct them. Mr. H. H. Proctor, of Boston; Col. C. A. Hopkins, Mr. G. H. Shaw, Mr. P. B. Keith and others took an active part in the exercises, and so did several students and visitors, among the latter Mrs. Horace Sibley, a missionary recently returned from China and formerly a Northfield Seminary girl.

An eloquent testimony to Mr. Moody's life-work came from one of the young ladies present. Back in 1878, when Mr. Moody was trying to decide upon the advisability of founding a school for girls who were denied ordinary privileges, he was out driving one day about two miles from Northfield and came upon two little girls sitting on a doorstep, braiding straw hats. He found that this was the only means they, with their mother, had of earning a livelihood for a family of five, the father being a helpless cripple. From that moment Mr. Moody bent all his energies toward the establishing of what is now Northfield Seminary, and when a little later it was opened these two girls were among its first pupils. One of these was the young lady who now came forward to pay her tribute to the memory of him who had given her the opportunity of her life.

The commencement address was delivered on Wednesday morning, June 13, by Rev. Wilton Merle Smith, D.D., of New York.

The trustees of the Seminary feel greatly encouraged at the outlook for the school. The Endowment Fund has been increasing rapidly—$90,000 has already been raised by the trustees in cash and pledges. The girls of the Seminary have themselves raised in cash and pledges nearly $6.000, and are confidently expecting to raise $50,000. The year just closed has been the best in the history of the Northfield School, and its spiritual life has been stronger and deeper than ever before.

Miss Gould and the Chaplains

Whenever Miss Helen Gould's name appears in a newspaper, one is sure that the story of some good deed follows it. One of the most recent mentions of this benevolent lady occurs in connection with the army chaplaincy in the Philippines. Our Government failing to provide salaries for chaplains for the new regiments ordered to the islands, Miss Gould pays these out of her private purse, the total being $2,000 a month. Ministers of God are needed with our boys in the East. Many a mother, wife and sister whose dear ones are following our flag far from home and its holy influences, will bless Miss Gould for this characteristic act of Christian generosity and womanly thoughtfulness.

THE METROPOLITAN PULPIT.

A Mighty Antiseptic

A Sermon by Rev. T. De Witt Talmage, D.D., on the Text, Luke 14: 34 . . . . . { Salt is good.

THE Bible is a dictionary of the finest similes. It employs, among living creatures, storks and eagles and doves and unicorns and sheep and cattle; among trees, sycamores and terebinths and pomegranates and almonds and apples; among jewels, pearls and amethysts and jacinths and chrysoprases. Christ uses no stale illustrations. The lilies that he plucks for his sermons are dewy fresh; the ravens in his discourses are not stuffed specimens of birds, but warm with life from wing-tip to wing-tip; the fish he points to are not dull about the gills, as though long captured, but a-squirm in the wet net just brought up on the beach of Tiberias. In my text, which is the peroration of one of his sermons, he picks up a crystal and holds it before his congregation as an illustration of divine grace in the heart, when he says, what we all know by experiment, "Salt is good."

I shall try to carry out the Saviour's idea in this text, and in the first place say to you that grace is like salt in its beauty. In Galicia there are mines of salt with excavations and underground passages reaching, I am told, two hundred and eighty miles. Far underground there are chapels and halls of reception, the columns, the altars, and the pulpits of salt. When the king and the princes come to visit these mines, the whole place is illuminated, and the glory of crystal walls and crystal ceilings and crystal floors and crystal columns, under the glare of the torches and the lamps, needs words of crystal to describe it. But you need not go so far as that to find the beauty of salt. You live in a land which produces millions of bushels of it in a year, and you can take the morning rail train, and in a few hours get to the salt mines and salt springs; and you have this article morning, noon, and night, on the table in your home.

Salt has all the beauty of the snow-flake and water-foam, with durability added. It is beautiful to the naked eye, but under the glass you see the stars and the diamonds and the white tree-branches, and the splinters and the bridges of fire as the sun glints them. There is more architectural skill in one of these crystals of salt than human ingenuity has ever demonstrated in an Alhambra or St. Peter's. It would take all time, with an infringement upon eternity, for an angel of God to tell one-half the glories in a salt-crystal. So with the grace of God: it is perfectly beautiful. I have seen it smooth out wrinkles of care from the brow; I have seen it make an aged man feel almost young again; I have seen it lift the stooping shoulders, and put sparkle into the dull eye. Solomon discovered its therapeutic qualities when he said, "It is marrow to the bones." It helps to digest the food, and to purify the blood, and to calm the pulses, and quiet the spleen; and instead of Tyndal's prayer-test of twenty years ago, putting a man in a philosophical hospital to be experimented upon by prayer, it keeps him so well that he does not need to be prayed for as an invalid. I am speaking now of a healthy religion, not of that morbid religion that sits for three hours on a grave-stone, reading Hervey's Meditations Among the Tombs—a religion that prospers best in a bad state of the liver! I speak of the religion that Christ preached. I suppose, when that religion has conquered the world, that disease will be banished; and that a man a hundred years of age will come in from business, and say, "I feel tired. I think it must be time for me to go," and without one physical pang, heaven will have him.

But the chief beauty of grace is in the soul. It takes that which was hard and cold and repulsive, and makes it all over again. It pours upon one's nature what David calls "the beauty of holiness." It extirpates everything that is hateful and unclean. If jealousy and pride and lust and worldliness lurk about, they are chained, and have a very small sweep. Jesus throws upon the soul the fragrance of a summer garden as he comes in, saying, "I am the rose of Sharon;" and he submerges it with the glory of a spring morning as he says, "I am the light." Oh, how much that grace did for the three Johns! It took John Bunyan, the foul-mouthed, and made him John Bunyan, the immortal dreamer. It took John Newton, the infidel sailor, and in the midst of the hurricane made him cry out, "My mother's God, have mercy upon me!" It took John Summerfield from a life of sin, and by the hand of a Christian maker of edge-tools led him into the pulpit, that burns still with the light of that Christian eloquence which charmed thousands to the Jesus whom he once despised. Ah! you may search all the earth over for anything so beautiful or beautifying as the grace of God. Go all through the deep mine passages of Wieliczka and amidst the underground kingdoms of salt in Hallstadt, and show me anything so exquisite, so transcendantly beautiful as this grace of God fashioned and hung in eternal crystals.

Again, grace is like salt, in the fact that it is a necessity of life. Man and beast perish without salt. What are those paths across the Western prairies? Why, they were made there by deer and buffalo going to and coming away from the salt "licks." Chemists and physicians, all the world over, tell us that salt is a necessity of life. And so with the grace of God: you must have it or die. I know a great many speak of it as a mere adornment, a sort of shoulder-strap adorning a soldier, or a light, frothing dessert, brought in after the greatest part of the banquet of life is over, or a medicine to be taken after powders and mustard-plasters have failed to do their work; but ordinarily a mere superfluity, a string of bells around a horse's neck while he draws the load, and in no wise helping him to draw it. So far from that, I declare the grace of God to be the first and the last necessity. It is food we must take, or starve into an eternity of famine. It is clothing, without which we freeze to the mast of infinite terror. It is the plank, and the only plank, on which we can float shoreward. It is the ladder, and the only ladder, on which we can climb up into the light. It is a positive necessity for the soul. You can tell very easily what the effect would be if a person refused to take salt into the body. The energies would fail, the lungs would struggle with the air, slow fevers would crawl through the brain, the heart would flutter, and the life would be gone. Salt, a necessity for the life of the body—the grace of God a necessity for the life of the soul.

Again I remark, that grace is like salt in abundance. God has strewn salt in vast profusion all over the continents. Russia seems built on a salt-cellar. There is one region of that country that turns out ninety thousand tons in a year. England and Russia and Italy have inexhaustible resources in this respect. Norway and Sweden, white with snow above, white with salt beneath. Austria, yielding nine hundred thousand tons annually. Nearly all the nations rich in it—rock-salt, spring-salt, sea-salt. Christ, the Creator of the world, when he uttered our text, knew it would become more and more significant as the shafts were sunk, and the springs were bored, and the pumps were worked, and the crystals were gathered. So the grace of God is abundant. It is for all lands, for all ages, for all conditions. It seems to undergird every thing. Pardon for the worst sin, comfort for the sharpest suffering, brightest light for the thickest darkness. Around about the salt lakes of Saratoy there are ten thousand men toiling day and night, and yet they never exhaust the saline treasures. And if the sixteen hundred millions of our race should now cry out to God for his mercy, there would be enough for all: for those farthest gone in sin, for the murderer standing on the drop of the gallows. It is an ocean of mercy: and if Europe and Asia, Africa, North and South America, and all the islands of the sea, went down in it to-day, they would have room enough to wash and come up clean. Let no man think that his case is too tough a one for God to act upon; though your sin may be deep and raging, let me tell you that God's grace is a bridge not built on earthly piers, but suspended, and spanning the awful chasm of your guilt, one end resting upon the rock of eternal promises, and the other on the foundations of heaven. Demetrius wore a robe so incrusted with jewels that no one after him ever dared to wear it; but our King, Jesus, takes off the robe of his righteousness, a robe blood-dyed and heaven-impearled, and reaches it out to the worst wretch in all the earth, and says, "Put that on! wear it now! wear it forever."

Again, the grace of God is like salt in the way we come at it. The salt on the surface is almost always impure—that which incrusts the Rocky Mountains and the South American pampas and in India; but the miners go down through the shafts and through the dark labyrinths, and along by galleries of rock, and with torches and pickaxes, find their way under the very foundations of the earth, to where the salt lies that makes up the nation's wealth. To get to the best saline springs of the earth huge machinery goes down, boring depth below depth, depth below depth, until from under the very roots of the mountains, the saline water supplies the aqueduct. This water is brought to the surface, and is exposed in tanks to the sun for evaporation, or it is put in boilers mightily heated, and the water evaporates, and the salt gathers at the bottom of the tank—the work is completed, and the fortune is made. So with the grace of God. It is to be profoundly sought after. With all the concentred energies of body, mind and soul we must dig for it. No man stumbles accidentally on it. We need to go down to the very lowest strata of earnestness and faith to find it. Superficial exploration will not turn it up. We must strive and implore, and dig until we strike the spring foaming with living waters. Then the work of evaporation begins; and as when the saline waters are exposed to the sun, the vapors float away, leaving nothing but the pure white salt at the bottom of the tank, so, when the Christian's soul is exposed to the Sun of Righteousness, the vapors of pride and selfishness and worldliness float off, and there is chiefly left beneath pure white holiness of heart. Then, as in the case of the salt, the furnace is added. Blazing troubles, stirred by smutted stokers of darkness, quicken the evaporation of worldliness, and the crystalization of grace.

Have you not been in enough trouble to have that work go on? I was reading of Aristotle, who said there was a field of flowers in Sicily so sweet that once a hound, coming on the track of game, came to that field, and was bewildered by the perfumes, and so lost the track. Oh! that our souls might become like "a field which the Lord hath blessed," and exhale so much of the sweetness of Christian character that the hounds of temptation, coming on our track, might lose it, and go howling back with disappointment.

But, I remark again, that the grace of God is like the salt in its preservative quality. You know that salt absorbs the moisture of articles of food and infuses them with brine, which preserves them for a long while. Salt is the great antiputrefactor of the world. Experimenters, in preserving food, have tried sugar and smoke and air-tight jars, and everything else; but as long as the world stands Christ's words will be suggestive, and men will admit that, as a great preservative, "salt is good." But for the grace of God, the earth would have become a stale carcass long before this. That grace is the only preservative of laws, and constitutions and literatures. Just as soon as a government loses this salt of divine grace, it perishes. The philosophy of this day, so far as it is antagonistic to this religion, putrefies and stinks. The great want of our schools of learning and our institutions of science to-day is, not more Leyden jars and galvanic batteries and spectroscopes and philosophical apparatus, but more of that grace that will teach our men of science that the God of the universe is the God of the Bible. How strange it is that in all their magnificent sweep of the telescope they have not seen the morning-star of Jesus, and that in all their experiments with light and heat they have not seen the light and felt the warmth of the Sun of Righteousness! We want more of the salt of God's grace in our homes, in our schools, in our colleges, in our social life, in our Christianity. And that which has it will live—that which has it not will die. I proclaim the tendency of everything earthly to putrefaction and death—the religion of Christ the only preservative.

My subject is one of great congratulation to those who have within their souls this Gospel antiseptic. This salt will preserve them through the temptations and sorrows of life, and through the ages of eternity. I do not mean to say that you will have a smooth time because you are a Christian. On the contrary, if you do your whole duty, I will promise you a rough time. You march through an enemy's country, and they will try to double up both flanks, and to cut you off from your source of supplies. The war you wage will not be with toy arrows, but sword plunged to the hilt, and spurring on your steed over heaps of the slain. But I think that God omnipotent will see you through. I think he will. But why do I talk like an atheist, when I ought to say I know he will? "Kept by the power of God through faith unto complete salvation."

When Governor Geary of Pennsylvania died, years ago, I lost a good friend. He impressed me mightily with the horrors of war. In the eight hours that we rode together in the cars he recited to me the scenes through which he had passed in the Civil War. He said that there came one battle upon which everything seemed to pivot. Telegrams from Washington said that the life of the nation depended on that struggle. He said to me: "I went into that battle, sir, with my son. His mother and I thought everything of him. You know how a father will feel toward his son who is coming up manly, and brave, and good. Well, the battle opened and concentred, and it was awful! Horses and riders bent and twisted and piled up together: it was awful, sir! We quit firing and took to the point of the bayonet. Well, sir, I didn't feel like myself that day. I had prayed to God for strength for that particular battle, and I went into it feeling that I had in my right arm the strength of ten giants," and as the Governor brought his arm down on the back of the seat it fairly made the car tremble.

"Well," he said, with a sigh, "the battle was desperate, but after a while we gained a little, and we marched on a little. I turned round to the troops and shouted: 'Come on, boys!' and I stepped across a dead soldier, and lo! it was my son. I saw at the first glance he was dead, and yet I did not dare to stop a minute, for the crisis had come in the battle; so I just got down on my knees, and I threw my arms around him, and I gave him one good kiss, and said, 'Good-by, dear,' and sprang up and shouted, 'Come on, boys!'" So it is in the Christian conflict—it is a fierce fight. Eternal ages seem depending on the strife. Heaven is waiting for the bulletins to announce the tremendous issue. Hail of shot, gash of sabre, fall of battle-axe, groaning on every side. We cannot stop for loss or bereavement, or anything else. With one ardent embrace and one loving kiss, we utter our farewells and then cry, "Come on, boys! There are other heights to be captured, there are other foes to be conquered, there are other crowns to be won."

Yet, as one of the Lord's surgeons, I must bind up two or three wounds. Just lift them now, whatever they be. I have been told there is nothing like salt to stop the bleeding of a wound, and so I take this salt of Christ's Gospel and put it on the lacerated soul. It smarts a little at first: but see! the bleeding stops, and lo! the flesh comes again as the flesh of a little child. "Salt is good." "Comfort one another with these words."

How a Little Work Was Blessed

The Romance of Richard Bailey's Quaint Sunday School, Which Met in Parlors, Railroad Depots and Sheds—Its Success

THIRTY years ago Richard Bailey came to this country from England and located at Melrose Park, a suburb of Chicago, where he found employment. From childhood he had taken a deep interest in religious work, and his father had been noted for his devotion as a teacher in one of the Sunday Schools of the city of Bristol. At the time Mr. Bailey came to Melrose Park, churches were few and far between, and many of the children playing about the streets and alleys had never seen the interior of a Sunday School, nor scanned the pages of a lesson-book. He began studying plans to reach the little ones and lift them up, if possible. His worthy wife ably seconded his efforts. Mothers were induced to allow their children to go to the Bailey home on Sunday afternoons, where the machinist and his wife taught them simple lessons and read chapters from the Bible of a character which they could understand. Later on, the parents were asked to come with the children, and, as a result, the Bailey home was converted into a miniature church, Mr. Bailey taking the lead in the services.

Soon the attendance became so large that the little parlor and dining-room could not hold all who desired to come, and the founder of the Sunday School looked around for a more suitable place. He was unable to rent a large building. The people who came to the services were among the lower classes; only small contributions could be expected from them. One or two of the ministers in the town became interested in Mr. Bailey's work, however, and through their influence, an old tent was procured, where was begun the Melrose Park Sunday School. The different denominations, represented by churches in the vicinity, invited Mr. Bailey to join with them, but he conceived the idea of a school independent of all churches and strictly non-sectarian. For several years, with Mrs. Bailey, he took the work almost entirely upon his shoulders aided by three or four interested men and women. At one time, being unable to pay the rent of the building in which services were held, the Sunday School was literally turned into the street by the hard-hearted landlord. Several persons, however, offered Mr. Bailey the use of their parlors until he could get suitable accommodations. For sometime services were held in the passenger depot of the Chicago & Northwestern Railway, the building being tendered by the company at an hour when trains were not arriving. Other places which were used were vacant stores, the stock-room in a factory, and sheds. At one time services were conducted in a large hall known as the Tabernacle, which was donated for the time by its owner.

As Mr. Bailey's sons and daughters grew up, they took an active interest in their father's work. They got many recruits for the Sunday School, took charge of classes and aided Mr. Bailey as much as possible. By degrees, efforts were made to reach communities outside of Melrose Park. One plan was to make excursions with a number of children who could sing. During the long winter evenings, sleigh-ride parties would be organized to visit the neighboring towns, where songs would be sung and invitations issued to come to their services at Melrose Park. In this way additions were made to the Sunday School from places some of which were ten and even fifteen miles distant.

Mrs. Bailey continued assisting her husband until 1879, when she died. Her daughters, Edith and Alice, endeavored to supply her place, and have been connected with the Sunday School ever since. So has Richard Bailey, Jr., the son. Altogether the father has devoted thirty years of his life to his Sunday School. During that time it has been supported entirely by its own members and individuals, not one dollar ever being accepted from any other church or Sunday School, as Mr. Bailey believed it should be independent of all others. It now has its own Sunday School building, although this is so crowded at the services that plans are being made to enlarge it. It is entirely out of debt, and the contributions each Sunday amount to a considerable sum. The course of study is simple, and has not varied greatly from that arranged by Mr. Bailey in the days when the young organization met at his own home. Special attention is given to Bible study. The school has purchased a fine organ and a special feature is made of the music.

The children of a number of pupils who attended the meetings thirty years ago are now in the school. Many active workers in Sunday Schools throughout the country can remember the day when they first received instruction at the quaint little Melrose Park school. The present officers and teachers of the school are: Richard Bailey, superintendent; A. B. Dunn, assistant superintendent; Raymond Hoffman, secretary; Edith Bailey, treasurer; Emma Lawrence, organist; teachers, Mr. Dunn, Mrs. Skrine, Miss Jenny Boddy, Miss Lizzie Duer, Miss Rose Hauseman and Miss Edith Bailey.

EDITH BAILEY RICHARD BAILEY

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL THAT MET IN A RAILROAD DEPOT

Steadily Gaining

In a recent letter from Dr. W. T. Currie, who is laboring at Chisamba in West Central Africa, he tells of steady gains in his work. He says: "A number of boys and young men from the villages have begun to attend school at this station and we expect a good increase in the number of scholars under our care. A chief named Katateola has settled near us, and at his request we now send young men morning and evening to conduct worship at the ombala; and these meetings are attended by about one hundred people twice a day. Some days ago we had a conference with the old man. He said his boys at this station are doing well. He wished all of his young people to attend school. He would like to learn himself. He wanted to build a schoolhouse. I told him if his young people were ready to work, we would help them; but they must do their share. A site was selected and he is to clear it and get timber before the rains cease; so that we can put up a good sized schoolhouse next dry season."

MR. ALEX. PALMER MR. THOMAS M'CORKLE REV. DR. CHARLES A. GRISE

OFFICERS OF NATIONAL UNION NOONDAY PRAYING CIRCLE

The Noonday Praying Circle

THERE has been recently organized in Wilmington, Delaware, a National Union Noonday Praying Circle, with Rev. Dr. Chas. A. Grise, president; Mr. Thos. McCorkle, treasurer, and Mr. Alex. Palmer, secretary. The conditions of membership are "the desire to lead a better life" and the faithful keeping of the promise on the membership card. The pledge is simply this: "I promise, by Divine help, to spend as much time as possible each day, between the hours of twelve and one, in lifting up my heart in worship and prayer to Almighty God, not for myself alone, but for all the members of this Noonday Praying Circle; that by His mercy and grace our character and life may be a true witness for Christ." The circular sent to this office by Mr. Palmer, states:

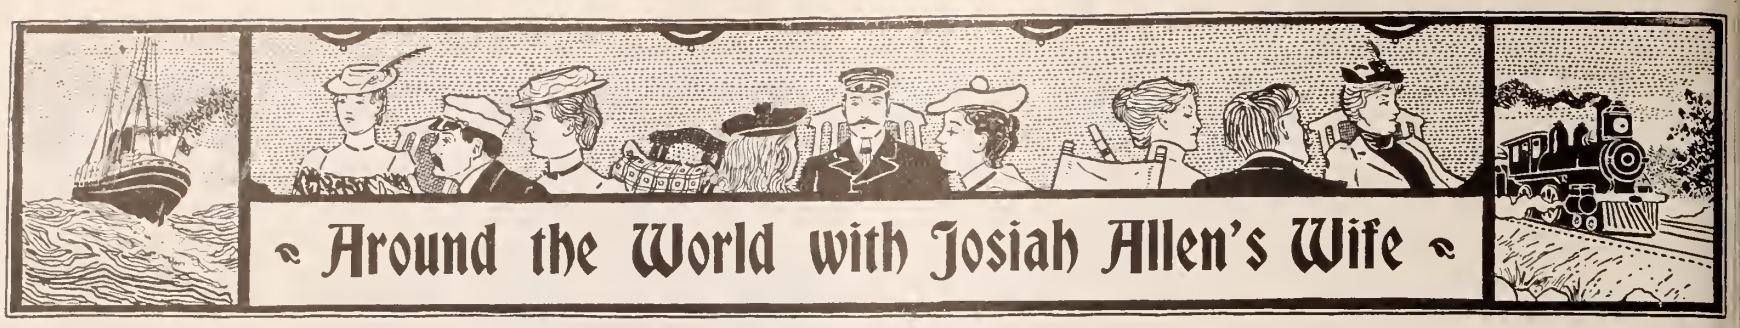
Every church with its Sunday Schools and its Young Peoples' Societies in the United States should form a local branch praying circle. This associated noon-hour worship will be a great spiritual uplift and blessing to all Christians, old and young. Even the children in the primary class will be delighted to have one of these beautiful membership cards. The pastor and Sunday School superintendent are the appointed guardians of church work. So they will, in the love of Christ, take charge of this great means of grace by providing cards. To this end every member of the Sabbath School should each be required to give one cent. One penny will pay for two cards, one to be kept and one to be given away. But these cards should be kept sacred by every member, and no card should be given away except to those who are willing to sign the promise as members.

In a private letter, Mr. Palmer tells us that the people of Wilmington are heartily interested in the Circle, and that the local press is helping to make its object widely known. He adds:

Jesus has given his seal of approval on united prayer with one of his most precious promises: "If two of you shall agree on earth as touching anything that they shall ask, it shall be done for them of my Father which is in Heaven." If when two agree, it is done, how much greater the blessing were a mighty number agreed to ask the same thing at the same hour? United prayer is a force that opens the treasures of heaven. We want no church to be a missing link in this golden chain of prayer. If all churches and Sunday Schools will unite with us, the year 1900 will close with the greatest revival ever known in this country. It requires sacrifice and effort to remember to pray and worship at this unusual hour, but the habit can be fixed, and then the fruitage in strength and beauty of character will more than repay for the struggle. There may be times and circumstances which will prevent even the most faithful member from entering into his closet at this hour; it will be a comfort and help to silently, in the most public place, uplift his heart to God if but for a moment, and to remember that the great circle is praying for him.

Fruits of Missions

In answer to the question often asked, "What are the results of foreign missions?" the Missionary Review publishes the following translation of an article in the Alte Glaube, entitled, "Are Foreign Missions Fruitless?": "North Africa is still the citadel of Islam, but in the South Christian missions are active. In North Africa there are only 7,000 Christians, but in West Africa there are 145,000; in the South, 560,000, and on the islands, 350,000, or over a million in all. The negroes say: 'The Christian religion has power; ours will die.' Within twenty years the Uganda Mission gathered 15,000 converts and 2,400 catechumens, while over 26,000 attended services. Farther India, with Ceylon, has over 700,000 Christians, and other islands have 200,000 more. The Batta Mission on Sumatra has gathered, since 1861, at 23 stations, 33,000 converts. In China and Korea there are 180,000 Christians, converted through 26 societies. Women missionaries are especially prominent even as evangelists in China. In Shantung, the province of Confucius and Laotse, there are 25,000 Protestant and 31,000 Catholic Christians. In Japan, mission work began in 1872 with a church of 11 members, and now there are 50,000 Christians there. In Oceanica there are over 300,000 Christians. In all the fruits of foreign missions aggregate over four million souls."



Around the World with Josiah Allen's Wife

COPYRIGHT, 1899, BY MARIETTA HOLLEY

CHAPTER XXXII.

ILLUSTRATIONS BY H. M. PETTIT

Samantha at the Fair

WELL, when we left the Street of the Nations, to seek, as Josiah said, the Hotel for Invalids, we passed through the beautiful gardens, containing, I guess, every beautiful plant and flower in the hull world. I wanted dretfully to git some slips for myself and Sister Gowdey, but didn't ask, not knowin' how it would be took. Mebby I might have made a dicker with 'em and swopped some of my house plants for theirn, but Time and Arvilly wuz hastenin' away, so I didn't try, but we all entered the great palace containin' displays of the World's Industries.

The French section is on one side and the foreign display is on the other, and containin' on either side enough for months and months of stiddy sight-seein' and study. Everything that you can think on wuz here, and oceans of things nobody ever did think on, to my knowledge. Everything in house decoration, in sculpture, gold, iron, bronze, mosaics, terra cotta, painting, carpets, silk, velvet, leather, marble, tiles, paper hangings, India rubber, gutta-percha, clocks, watches, jewels, silver, enamel, diamonds, tapestries no end to 'em, some old as the hills and some new, but all beautiful and numerous as grass-blades in a June meadow; antique articles of every kind, manuscripts of priceless value, stained glass, granite, ivory, furniture enough to set off a nation.

IN THE GARDENS

Wonders of the Exposition

All these things and millions of others you'll find in the French section, and on the opposite side the foreign nations' exhibit is jest as full and jest as liable to make your head turn round and round if you try to hurry through it—Russia, Belgium, Germany, United States, Great Britain, Austria, Japan, etc., etc. As I told Josiah, you might just as well try to count the drops of water in our cistern as to pay attention to the hull on 'em in less than a month, anyway.

"Yes," sez he, "and I am in a hurry to git to the Hotel for Invalids. And he hurried us along at a pretty good jog, his mind bein' sot on invalid's food, though I pitied his false idees.

Arvilly wanted to see Napoleon's tomb, and to describe understandin'ly the sights we see in that section would take most a bottle of ink, the tomb, the church, the dome, the court, the hospital, the different surroundin' buildin's full of interest and of memories. All the different galleries of relics and of arms and costooms, etc., etc., but we see what we could in an hour.

Napoleon's tomb is a place of solemn grandeur, worth in itself a journey from Jonesville, as Arvilly said. Beneath our feet wuz the names of the great battles Napoleon won: Jena, Austerlitz, Meringo, the Pyramaids, etc. Twelve colossal Victories in marble wuz keepin' guard over him, though they haint needed now; between these wuz the faded standards he captured, Russian, Austrian, English, more'n fifty of 'em.

We leaned on the white marble balustrade and looked down into the last resting-place of that great weak nater that wanted to conquer the world, and couldn't conquer himself, who let his ambition murder his happiness, wove his own net and got ketched in it. Great warrior! ambitious, soarin' creeter! After life's fever he sleeps well. And the world breathes easier now he lays there onarmed. He is surrounded by the people he loved, by the side of his beloved river that used to murmur to him of conquest and dominion, but now whispers of nothin' but rest and mebby of forgitfulness.

Copyright, 1900, by Louis Klopsch

TAKING THE CAR TO ASCEND THE EIFFEL TOWER

Well, not wantin' to git sick the first day (and you know emotion is dretful tuckerin'), we santered along towards the nighest entrance gate and arrived home in good season and partook of a good supper, seasoned with the sass of hunger.

Samantha's Queen Caller

Robert and Dorothy had gone to see some of their young friends, and Miss Meechim wuz in her settin'-room opposite ourn. They hadn't been to the Exposition at all that day. I mentioned more formerly that Paris wuz jest runnin' over with folks, it wuz as full as ever a New York street car wuz, and I've seen them so full and packed that they've drizzled over the sides and hung on by their eye lashes as you may say; Paris wuz so full that it almost seemed that if one more man or woman got there they would break down the camel's back. A strikin' instance of this fact occurred a few days after, Josiah and Tommy had gone out for a little walk, my room bein' at the end of the hall and Arvilly's and Miss Meechim's opposite we sometimes left the doors open between us. And as I sot there in a comfortable house jacket and rockin' chair I hearn a knock at the side of the door and lookin' up see a weary, hopelessly dejected man standin' in the doorway. He leaned up aginst it as if he did indeed need a prop of some kind, he looked too dead tired to speak at all, but he did say in falterin' accents:

An Odd Proposition

"I beg pardon, Mom, but I have searched Paris through and through for a room in vain. Now I am lookin' for a corner. Would you rent a part of your clothes press to a sufferin' human bein', or the table!" sez he hysterically, "or a bureau draw! would you rent a bureau draw at a high price to a perishin' mortal?"

"No, indeed!" sez I, "I haint a goin' to rent no bureau draw and when I go to git a clean collar or handkerchief have a man pop up his head—no indeed!"

He looked round the comfortable room, the good bed and bureau, the easy chairs and centre-table, and groaned a deep holler groan, and sez he with a look of stern resolve:

"I am not a marryin' man: I had planned to go through life a bachelor. I love peace and repose. But all that a man hath will he give for his life." Sez he, sithin' hard, "Will you marry me?"

"What!" sez I, "what did you say?"

Sez he with a look of onhappiness and resignation pitiful to behold, "Will you be my bride?"

"Your bride?" sez I, "and what part do you lay out for Josiah Allen to play in the programmy you're a markin' out?"

"Josiah Allen?" sez he. "Who is he?"

"He's my pardner," sez I, "the grandfather of my grandchildren and the idol of my heart."

"Excuse me, Mom, but my need wuz great, the crisis wuz imminent!" And he glanced down to his dusty feet and almost wep. Anon he lifted his weary head and glanced acrost into the pleasant room of Miss Meechim's and sez he, "Excuse me, but is that lady also married?"

A Forlorn Hope

"No," sez I, "she's a maiden lady, but abhors matrimony to that extent that a husband would be no more of a hamper to her." His face took on a glimmer of hope. He advanced and knocked at the side of her door. I knowed he would offer her marriage; to such a dretful extreme will urgent necessity carry a man, and Arvilly also I knew would receive an offer. But his stay with 'em wuz but short and he come out of her room with a expression of pure hopelessness that wrought up my feelin's terribly. He wuz talkin' to himself as he passed down the hall, "Even a hornet or a wasp has a nest, a muskeeter has some place to stay in, a statter has a pedestal, but I have not a nich or the end of a branch to cling to."

The exact circumstances of his futer career I know not but I feared the worst, for a few days after I met him on the grounds. A gaunt, homely lookin' woman wuz leanin' on his arm with a air of surprised felicity, his face wuz wreathed with gloom but he had lost the weary look and his shues didn't carry such a heavy load of dust.

Well, the next day we all sot out together and we visited first the great picture galleries where our heads wuz rested. Robert is a good calculator and he took us the quickest way to the great Palace of Arts and afterwards to the smaller one. Just the buildin' of this great palace of art is beautiful enough to deserve days and days of stiddy inspection and admiration. On the front are big, bronze figgers, one is Harmony gittin' the better of Discord. Sez I, "Oh how useful such a statter would be in Jonesville and every school district."

And Arvilly sez, "Folks had better vote for it than spend their time sculpin' it enough sight."

Then there wuz Peace out-pacin' Time. And Arvilly sez, "We read that Time is slower 'n a primmer but Peace has never got ahead on it yet, and I don't believe ever will, only in Fancy's field."

Amid the Big Sculptures

"Well," sez I, "they look beautiful anyway. Them figgers wuz more'n forty feet high, seven times the height of my pardner and he towers up in my mind fur beyend all other men, so you can get a small idee of the size on 'em. And inside it looked as if the very ruff of heaven had been arched over and covered with crystal light and gildin' and ornamentation. How grand the big staircase wuz, with its columns of green porphery leadin' to other rooms filled with enchantin' beauty, full of the perfection of ancient and modern art. Outside and inside that palace wuz a dream. One of the bronze groups adornin' it wuz Inspiration guided by Wisdom. Inspiration wuz a-hoss-back ridin' fast and furious but with her arms extended reachin' out after marvels and mysteries, and her rapt eyes on the heavens. How could she guide that prancin' horse? But Wisdom lookin' dretful knowin', but practical and stiddy, had holt of the creeter, kinder guidin' it onward and I knowed they wuz bound for new and glorious paths of discovery. Then there wuz Science advancin' in spite of Ignorance. Science wuz holdin' aloft her blaz' torch and urgin' her horse to take the great leaps it is in her nater to take; Ignorance lookin' skairt and onbelievin' wuz tryin' to hold her back, but good land! it's grasp on that horse's fore-leg couldn't no more stop that boundin' steed than the twist of a creepin' vine could bind a whirlwind. These are only little samples of the beauties of this grand buildin' some as you would pick up an atom of gravel to show what the sile of a farm wuz. And then the pictures inside and the statutes, such a endless number in the great Palace and the smaller one, and as I said to Josiah, "If the hull of our woodlot wuz turned into beautiful picters and statutes there couldn't seem to be any more on 'em." And he groaned and sez:

Josiah Overwhelmed

"Don't say wood-lot: say the boundless forest. I hain't no idee," sez he, lookin' mournfully at the spacious rooms openin' off on either side, full of the choicest treasures of art, "I haint no hopes that there is any end to 'em."

"Well," sez I, "it is a feast of beauty that we may never have a chance to see agin." His face brightened up. "Do you think so, Samantha? Are you sure to-day will be the end on't?" And he seemed to act happier after that. But on how beautiful and enchantin' the seen wuz to me, milds of beauty, grace, inspirin' and liftin' up the soul. To describe what I see there would be like tryin' to describe the sands of the sea-shore one by one; glorious landscapes, sky and sea, faces beautiful, noble, sad pictures, and them heavenly bright, pictures terrible and pictures inspirin'. And the most beautiful thoughts and ideals carved in marble for our glory and delight. Robert and Dorothy walked along like them that see visions and dream dreams; Miss Meechim read her Guide Book diligently that she might admire intelligently and not like anything unless pronounced genteel. Arvilly looked about her with critical eyes, and held her work-bag with the puckerin' strings ready to draw open at a minute's notice at the sight of a possible subscriber. Tommy with his hands clasped behind him under his little velvet blonse, santered along by my side, and I spoze Carabai wuz there too; indeed this wuz his native land.

Floating Down the Seine

Well, Robert took us to see the best pictures and statutes in different places, and then to let us down gradual from ideal beauty to solid manufactures we visited the Horticulture displays. Robert got a boat and we floated down the Seine, he thought it would be a welcome change to us and it wuz. Oh how fairy-like it all wuz, on the Seine and the seen round us, all a part of Fairy Land. The graceful and beautiful buildin's on either side, each as exquisite as an artist's mind and onlimited money could make 'em, and each on 'em demandin' in justice a week's study. As we drew nigh Horticultural Hall, which loomed up like a palace of crystal, we see that the Hall of Congress which stood next, wuz a good-lookin' square buildin' with lots of big winders. I guess they made it so to let light in on their public doin's, you know such houses need lots of light, and I remarked to Arvilly that I wished they had been sot in it when they wuz tryin' Dreyfus, but it wuzn't built then. The Horticultural Hall is so beautiful that I haint any idee that Solomon ever had a buildin' to compare with it in beauty and grandeur, and inside it is a dream of loveliness. "Oh! oh! oh!" I sez, and I fairly sithed, language wuz so inadequate to describe it. The fairy-like arches, the soft, brilliant light streamin' in and the millions and millions of lovely flowers of every kind. As I say, I looked round and my mind vainly sought for adjectives to describe it and when I spok it wuz simply to say, "Oh, how I wish Sister Gowdy could see it!"

The Horticultural Display

Nater had her innings here and showed off what she could do when she sot out. He paintin's can't copy the matchless hues of the rose and the white glory of the lily, nor marble be carved in their delicate and perfect shapes. Flowers enough we see to carpet Jonesville from the lake to the town line, and I guess they would lap over into Zoar and Shackville. And everywhere flower-like faces wuz bendin' over the posies and the flutter of pretty dresses and the happy hum of voices helped make the seen one of enchantment. Of course the talk wuz mostly in language we didn't understand. But what of that on a summer morning, when the air is full of the sweet gay voices of robin and lark and yellow bird; who cares if we can't understand every word? We're just as happy and they are, too.

A Point on Economy

Well, after we left Horticultural Hall we santered along and visited the Hall of Social Economy; we all wanted to go there, but Josiah specially, he sez kinder low to me on our way there, "Economy, Samantha, is one of the most beautiful virtues a woman can possess, to be savin', to be equinomical is to be beautiful. Sez I, "I am willin' to go there but it don't mean what you think."

"It duz mean jest what I say," sez he, "and probable you will learn things there that you can teach Philury that will save me dollars and dollars in the course of a year."

Congress Hall and the Palace of Social Economy was built entirely by workmen's associations and is a elegant and commogious structure. The social economy exhibits, everything you can think on in regard to labor is on the ground floor. It has an immense gallery facing the Seine to be used as a sort of reception-room by the members of Congress. This is a very handsome hall adorned with statutes of noted friends of labor. Josiah thought it wuz an awful oversight that his picture wuzn't taken for it; sez he, "Jest think how France would have prized it, and I could have had Ury took me just as well as not."

"The Palace of Costooms"

There is one immense hall to hold meetings, about three hundred and thirty feet long, and six or seven smaller ones. Plenty of room to air their idees, and I wuz glad on't; it's time Labor should sprunt up and be somebody, and I wuz glad they had such a palace as this to show off in.

Robert Strong enjoyed himself here—yes, indeed! I never see him happier as he looked round and took note of everything. Miss Meechim didn't seem to enjoy herself; I am afraid she didn't think that it wuz quite so genteel and aristocratic a place as she desired to be in. She wanted to go to the Palace of Costooms, and persuaded Dorothy to go with her, and Robert—thinkin', I spoze, that he could come back here again—accompanied them. I didn't care about seein' costooms. Good land! the alpacky I had on wuz good as new, and sot good, and Arvilly turned her nose right up when Miss Meechim mentioned it, so we parted for a time, agreein' to meet at the Eiffel Tower and go home together.

Well, after we left the Palace of Social Economy we walked along and presently come to the street of Old Paris, the ancient city resurrected anew in our day. It stands facin' the river, and a part of it built over it. Part of it is buildings of the fifteenth century and from that time on to ours. To walk through it seems like meeting your great, great-grandfather in knee breeches and buckles and his hair braided down his back and shakin' hands and neighborin' with him, and also your great, great-grandma.

On the Champs de Mars

It wuz a impressive sight, and I would loved to stayed there a hull day in the old-fashioned shops, concert halls, etc., etc. But Josiah was interested in the restaurants, and at his request we got a good lunch, and after a little rest we proceeded onwards, visited a few of the foreign houses in that section, crossed the Seine agin and got right into the Naval and Military section. I didn't stay there long, no indeed! there is nothin' in the arts of war that is pleasant for me to contemplate, no indeed. We santered on to the Champs De Mars, and there we found on each side of the streets enough to see for two months. Everything in mines and metals, and the great industrial section showin' the industries of the world. Oh, what a sight to see! It would wear out the quills of a hull goose, and mebby a gander, too, to describe everything as it ort to be, everything in mines and metals, iron, steel, boilers, cylinders, cannons, clothing and articles of every kind that wuz ever made from velvet, felt and leather to silk and muslin and gauze, and all the machinery that ever made 'em from a silkworm to a big loom and the threads it is made on from vegetable to a spider from a silkworm to a block of wood. You see the silkworms and spiders a spinnin', the silk-weavers workin' and the big looms turnin' and every method of making clothing and every article that wuz ever wore or used from a hat to a shue, from a glove to a umbrell. When we see the cloth made from a spider's-web Josiah said:

"Samantha Allen, I'll set Philury to spinnin' spider-webs out of the woodhouse chamber and the horse barn the minute I git home. How equinomical it will be, and how I shall love to see you dressed up in a spider silk."

Sez I, "It makes me crawl to think on't."

Sez he, "Spiders don't crawl no more than silkworms do, and we've got the webs, and mebby I shall have some neckties or vests made on't; of course they could be colored red or yeller."

Josiah Protests

Sez I kinder short, "Le's go into the Gallery of Perfumery." And oh what a sweet-smellin' spot we got into, as sweet as a perary of rosies and lilies. Perfumes of every kind and their manufacture from flowers and most everything else. And every kind of toilet article that wuz ever invented or thought on.

Then in another gallery we see every color that wuz ever colored, and bleaching, and printing, and lustring and the way to do it all. Four rooms wuz occupied by this, besides another big room for their machinery. All the methods of heat and lighting and motors make a noble exhibit. And I sez, after we see this, "We must visit the Retrospective Museum."

And Josiah sez, "I don't want to retrospect, Samantha; I didn't come here to retrospect, I can do that to hum." But he did go and see the richest costooms, uniforms, etc., etc., etc., from way, way back, to the present time. The historical costooms, pictures, and so forth wuz worth days and days of study.

Then we see machinery of every kind, showin' the means by which the wonders of our century is accomplished, the labor-saving, marvelous inventions of genius and hard research, the result of centuries of severest study and toil. It wuz a sight to see 'em all placed before you in a row and you lookin' at 'em calm and onruffled. Josiah enjoyed himself dretfully at the food exhibition. Before we entered it he sez, "Try, Samantha, to swop some receipts with 'em."

I sez, "They wouldn't want to be bothered dickerin' with receipts."

Sez he, "They ort to prize the chance as one of the brightest prizes of the hull Exposition." Sez he, "Your receipt for fried cakes alone is priceless."

(To be Continued).

Copyright, 1900, by Louis Klopsch

THE WONDERS OF THE PALACE OF ARTS

A RIDE IN A CAPTIVE BALLOON

HIS WILL

THE secret whisperings of God
Within the soul to listening ear,
Is very sweet to all who wait
His loving messages to hear.
The soul responds in secret joy
With telegram from earth to heaven,
"Lord, what wilt thou have me to do?"
The quick return is freely given.

Such joy to live so near to God,
To know that he takes thought for me,
That he will give me work for him,
To share in his own ministry.
This gives to life for God its grace,
Its lofty, true sublimity,
That makes perpetual sacrament
Of each day's common history.

When the sad time of trial comes,
And all looks dark in earth and heaven,
When e'en the love of God seems dim,
And not a ray of hope seems given,
What is there left to cling to, but
The will of the still trusting heart?
A will God-given, which firmly holds—
God will not from his own depart.

Berlin, Mass. PHEBE A. HOLDER.

THE CHRISTIAN HERALD

LOUIS KLOPSCH, PROPRIETOR

T. DeWitt Talmage
EDITOR.

B. J. FERNIE AND G. H. SANDISON.
Associate Editors

The Christian Herald is published every Wednesday. The subscription price is $1.50 per year, payable in advance.

Subscriptions may commence with any issue.

Remittances should always be made in the safest manner available to the remitter. Post-office and Express Money Orders are always safe and may be sent at our own risk.

Register your letters when you remit by cash.

Foreign Postage.—For each copy to be mailed outside the United States, the Canadas, and Mexico, foreign postage at the rate of one dollar a year should be added to the regular subscription price.

Renewals.—It is always best to renew two weeks before the date on your wrapper, to ensure uninterrupted service.

Back Numbers.—We cannot undertake to supply back numbers, nor to make good omissions caused by tardy renewals.

Change of Date.—It takes two weeks to change the date, after your subscription is renewed.

Expiration of subscriptions. The date on the wrapper indicates when your paper will be stopped unless promptly renewed.

Change of Address.—Always give both your old and your new address when you ask us to change your address.

The Name of your Post-office and of the State you live in should always follow your own name when writing to this office. We cannot find your name on our books unless this is done.

The Christian Herald will not be responsible for the return of unsolicited manuscripts forwarded to it with a view to publication.

Letters should be addressed

THE CHRISTIAN HERALD,
Bible House, New York City.

Entered at the Post-office at New York, as Second-class Matter

Wandering Thoughts in Prayer

NOTHING bothers the Christian more than the imperfections of his prayers. His getting down on his knees seems to be the signal for his thoughts to fly every whither. While praying about one thing, he is thinking about another. Could you ever keep your mind ten minutes on one supplication? I never could. While you are praying, your store comes in, your kitchen comes, your losses and gains come in. The minister spreads his hands for prayer, and you put your head on the back of the pew in front and travel around the world in five minutes. A brother rises in prayer-meeting to lead in supplication. After he has begun the door slams, and you peep through your fingers to see who is coming in. You say to yourself, "What a finely expressed prayer!" or "What a blundering specimen! But, how long he keeps on! Wish he would stop! He prays for the world's conversion. I wonder how much he gives for it? There! I don't think I turned down the gas in the parlor! Wonder if Bridget has got home yet? Wonder if they have thought to take the cake out of the oven?" or "What a fool I was to put my name on the back of that note! Ought to have sold those goods for cash, and not on credit!" And so you go on thinking over one thing after another until the gentleman says "Amen!" and you lift up your head, saying: "There! I haven't prayed a bit! I am not a Christian!" Yes, you are, if you have resisted the tendency. Christ knows how much you have resisted, and how thoroughly we are damaged of sin, and he will pick out the one earnest petition from the rubbish and answer it. To the very depth of his nature he sympathizes with the infirmity of our prayers.

Why I Like the Scotch

NEVER did Scotland seem more glorious than now. Glasgow and Edinburgh greeted us with the same old crowds, and every time I preach I preach twice—first from a pulpit and then from an open carriage, or standing on a table outside.

There is something about the Scotch character, whether I meet it in New York, London, or Perth, that thrills me through and through. Perhaps it may be because I have such a strong tide of Scotch blood in my own arteries. Next to my own beloved country give me Scotland for residence and grave. The people are in such downright earnest. There is such a roar in their mirth, like a tempest in "The Trossachs." Take a Glasgow audience, and a speaker must have his feet well planted on the platform or he will be overmastered by the sympathy of the populace. They are not ashamed to cry, with their broad palms wiping away the tears, and they make no attempt at suppression of glee. They do not simper, or snicker, or chuckle. Throw a joke into a Scotchman's ear and it rolls down to the centre of his diaphragm and then spreads out both ways, toward foot and brow, until the emotion becomes volcanic, and from the longest hair on the crown of the head to the tip of the nail on the big toe there is a paroxysm of cachination.

No half-and-half about the Scotch character. What he hates, he hates; what he likes, he likes. And he lets you know it right away. He is altogether Liberal or Tory. His politics decided, his religion decided; get him right and he is magnificently right; get him wrong, and he is awfully wrong. A Scotchman seldom changes. By the time he has fairly landed on his feet in this world he has made up his mind, and he keeps it made up. If he dislikes a fiddle in church, you cannot smuggle it in under the name of a bass viol. We like persistence. Life is so short that a man cannot afford very often to change his mind. If the Israelites in the wilderness had had a few Scotch leaders, instead of wandering about for forty years, they would, in three weeks, have got to the promised land, or somewhere else just as decided.

Those Loaves and Fishes

THE sun was far down in the West, night was coming on, and there were five thousand people tired, hungry, shelterless. You know how Washington felt at Valley Forge, when his army was starving and freezing. You may imagine how any great-hearted general would feel while his troops were suffering. Imagine then how Christ, with his great heart, must have felt as he saw these five thousand hunger-bitten people. Yes, I suppose there were ten thousand there, for the Bible says there were five thousand men, beside women and children. The case is put in that way, not because the women and the children were of less importance than the men, but because they would eat less; and the whole force of the miracle turns on the amount of food required. How shall this great multitude be supplied? I see a selfish man in that crowd pulling a luncheon out of his own pocket, and saying: "Let the people starve. They had no business to come out here in the desert without any provisions. They are improvident, and the improvident ought to suffer." There is another man not quite so heartless, who says: "Go up into the village and buy bread." What a foolish proposition! There is not enough food in all the village for this crowd; beside that, who has the money to pay for it? Xerxes' army, one million strong, was fed by a private individual of great wealth for only one day, but it broke him. Who then shall feed this multitude?

I see a man rising in that great crowd, and asking: "Is there any one here who has bread or meat?" A kind of moan goes through the whole throng. "No bread, no meat." But just at that time a lad steps up. You know when a great crowd goes off upon an excursion there are always men and boys to go along for the purpose of merchandise and to strike a bargain; and so I suppose this boy had gone along for the purpose of merchandise; but he was nearly all sold out, having only five loaves and two fishes left. He is a generous boy, and he turns them over to Christ. But these loaves would not feed twenty people; how much less ten thousand! Though the action was so generous on the part of the boy, so far as satisfying the multitude it was a dead failure. Then Jesus comes to the rescue. He is apt to come when there is a dead lift. He commands the people that they sit down "in ranks, by hundreds and by fifties," as much as to say: "Order, order! so that none be missed." It was fortunate that that arrangement was made; otherwise, at the very first appearance of bread, the strong ones would have clutched it, while the feeble and the modest would have gone unsupplied.

I suppose it was no easy work to get that crowd seated, for they all wanted to be in the front row, lest the bread give out before their turn came. No sooner are they seated than there comes a great hush over all the people. Jesus stands there, his light complexion and auburn locks illumined by the setting sun. Every eye is on him. They wonder what he will do next. He takes one of the loaves that the boy furnished and breaks off it a piece, which immediately grows to as large a size as the original loaf, the original loaf staying as large as it was before the piece was broken off. And they leaned forward with intense scrutiny, saying: "Look, look!" When some one, anxious to see more minutely what is going on, rises in front, they cry: "Sit down in front! Let us look for ourselves." And then, when the bread is passed around, they taste of it sceptically and inquiringly, as much as to say: "Is it bread? Really, is it bread?" Yes, the best bread that was ever made—for Christ made it. Bread for the first fifty and second fifty. Bread for the first hundred and the second hundred. Bread for the first thousand and the second thousand. Pass it all around the circle; there, where that aged man sits leaning on his staff, and where that woman sits with the child in her arms. Pass it all around. Are you all fed? "Aye, aye!" respond the ten thousand voices, "all fed!" One basket would have held the loaves before the miracle. It takes twelve baskets now. Sound it through all the ages of earth and heaven that Christ the Lord comes to our suffering race with the bread of this life in one hand, and the bread of eternal life in the other hand.

Dissipation in Work

SOME religious people are among the worst tempered people of the day, from the fact that they have no rest. Added to the necessary work of the world they superintend two Sunday Schools, listen to two sermons, and every night have meetings of charitable and Christian institutions. They look after the beggars, hold conventions, speak at meetings, wait on ministers, serve as committee-men, take all the hypercriticism that inevitably comes to earnest workers, rush up and down the world, and develop their hearts at the expense of all their other functions. They are the best men on earth, and Satan knows it, and is trying to kill them as fast as possible. They know not that it is as much a duty to take care of their health as to go to the sacrament. It is as much a sin to commit suicide with the sword of truth as with the pistol.

Discouraged Christians

OUR work does not amount to much. We teach a class, or distribute a bundle of tracts, or preach a sermon, and say, "Oh, if I had done it some other way!" Christ will make no record of our bungling way if we did the best we could. He will make record of our intention and the earnestness of our attempt. We cannot get the attention of our class, or we break down in our exhortation, or our sermon falls dead, and we go home disgusted and sorry: we try to speak, and feel Christ is afar off. Why, he is nearer than if we had succeeded, for he knows we need sympathy, and is touched with our infirmity.

A Christian Hero's Death

"I WANT to make public acknowledgment here that I believe in God the Father Almighty. I want all you officers and men to lift your hats and from your hearts offer silent thanks to the Almighty." On a triumphant battleship, in the hour of victory, a great sea-captain, John W. Philip, his head reverently bared, uttered these words. They will go down in the annals of American history, immortal as Patrick Henry's "Give me liberty or give me death." So will another utterance, from this same sea-captain's lips, to the sailors of the conquering Texas, as the ship they had disabled was settling her doom: "Don't cheer, boys; those poor fellows are dying." The officer who said these things, and who never, in the terror of battle or excitement of victory, forgot that he was a Christian, has answered the roll-call of heaven and stands face to face with the Captain of his salvation—the Master to whom he was always true.

Rear-Admiral John W. Philip, once Captain of the Texas, and for some time past Commandant of the Brooklyn Navy Yard, died suddenly, Saturday, June 30, of heart disease, a malady from which he had suffered for five years. When he went into the Spanish-American war, in response to what he believed a call of patriotism and duty, he was as his physicians warned him, braving a two-fold peril.

From Santiago, he wrote to his wife: "I am as safe here as I would be walking up Broadway with you, because God is with us and he is listening to our prayer." His influence for good in the Brooklyn Navy Yard has been a powerful one. Throughout the yard, aboard ship and ashore, from the humblest stoker to the gold-laced Captain and Commodore, profound sorrow followed the announcement of the death of the man whose popularity in the navy was second to none; and bronzed and weather-beaten sailors on the Kentucky and Vermont talked reverently together of the time they had knelt with him in prayer on the powder-blackened deck of the Texas.

Messages of sympathy from far and near have poured in upon his widow; among the first received were those from President McKinley, Secretary Long, Admiral Dewey, Rear-Admirals Farquhar and Sampson, Governor Roosevelt, and Miss Helen Gould, who has been his generous ally in philanthropic and religious work for our sailors. Admiral Dewey expressed the sentiment of the public as well as the navy when he wired: "Your husband was God's own nobleman."

Secretary Long's message spoke of him as "a faithful servant of God and of his country. He was one of the true heroes of the American navy."

Admiral Philip was born in Kinderhook, New York, in 1840; was married about eighteen years ago; and leaves one son, Woodward Philip, now sixteen years old.

He was a model husband and father. On extensive trips about the country, which he has been frequently making in the interests of the Naval Branch of the Y. M. C. A., his wife was his constant companion. He did excellent work for the Naval Y. M. C. A., and made diligent efforts to establish new branches. He was ever ready for evangelistic work, answering whenever official duties permitted the numerous calls made upon him for addresses in Gospel meetings. His piety was coupled with such sterling qualities as soldier, sailor and business man that his testimony as an humble servant of the Lord produced a strong impression everywhere. More improvements have been made in the Navy Yard during his administration than under any previous commandant. He has built new streets, erected mammoth storehouses, reconstructed dry docks, built railroads, quay walls and almost innumerable improvements about the naval station. The yard, although the largest and oldest in the country, did not have an official flagstaff, and the present flagpole, 125 feet high, was completed about six weeks ago, when the national colors were unfurled to the breeze. June 30, the Stars and Stripes were placed at half mast for the first time on this pole, in his honor.

SIR CLAUDE MACDONALD, Brit. Ambass'r at Pekin | VICE-ADMIRAL SEYMOUR, Com'd'r of relief party | UNITED STATES COMMANDER McCALLA | UNITED STATES MINISTER CONGER

THE BOXER REBELLION SPREADING

MISSIONARIES FLEE FOR SAFETY

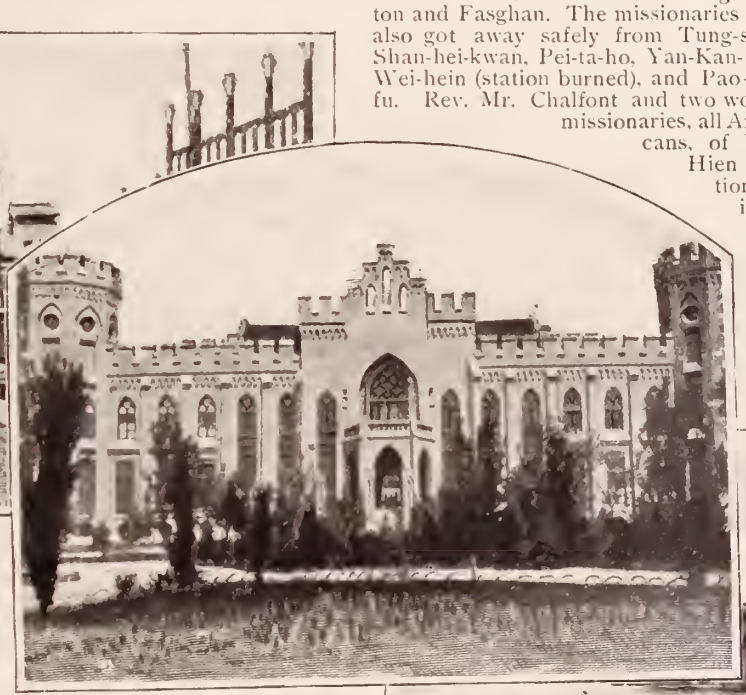
AMBASSADORS STILL HELD IN PEKIN

AFTER a period of intense anxiety, definite news has at last been received from China, which throws some light on affairs at the Capital. Admiral Kempff, Commander of the American Squadron, telegraphs that the Foreign Ministers are still at Pekin. After the capture of the Taku forts by the international fleets, China, regarding that event as an act of war, notified the Foreign Ministers to leave Pekin within twenty-four hours. They declined, and it is believed that they are still in Pekin. A Shanghai cablegram states that their situation is most critical. Baron von Ketteler, the German Ambassador, while proceeding to the British Embassy (which is the most strongly fortified of all the Legations), was dragged from his horse and killed by the Boxers on June 18. Only three of the Legations—the British, French and German—are now standing, the others having been destroyed. All the Ministers are sheltered in the British Legation. The dispatch adds that 20,000 troops will be needed to force a way to Pekin and to relieve the Foreign Ministers and residents. The Capital is still guarded by a great army of imperial Chinese troops at every gate.

A LEADING STREET IN PEKIN

CHINESE REGULARS, TIEN-TSIN

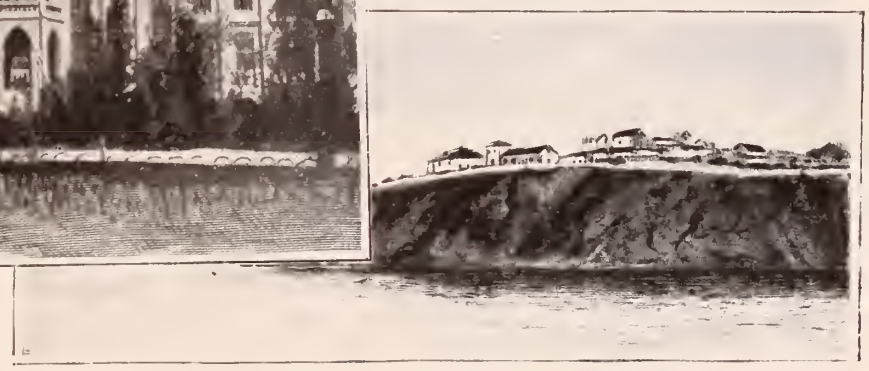
Admiral Seymour's international force was compelled, by overwhelming numbers, to abandon the project of rescuing the ambassadors and had it not been reinforced opportunely, would probably have perished to a man. As it was, it returned to Tien-Tsin utterly exhausted, reporting 62 killed and over 200 wounded, after killing many hundreds of Boxers and Chinese regulars. Commander McCalla and Ensign Taussig, Americans, were slightly wounded, and four American marines were killed and twenty-five wounded. Ten thousand troops, under the command of Col. Stoessel, a Russian, are now on the way to Pekin.



GORDON HALL, TIEN-TSIN

At Tien-Tsin affairs have quieted down considerably, although the danger is by no means over. The beleaguered city was relieved by a mixed force from Taku, principally British, Americans, Germans and Russians, after some hot fighting. It was found that the rumors of massacre and destruction in Tien-Tsin had been greatly exaggerated, and that the foreign quarter had not suffered as heavily as might have been expected from the long-continued bombardment by the Chinese.

Friends of missionary effort everywhere will be greatly relieved by the news of the safety of the spiritual workers in China. Hundreds of them are now in comparatively safe quarters and others are on the way to the coast. In a single day 148 arrived at Chefoo, and on June 30 seventy-three more were welcomed there, thirty-three of the last arrivals being Americans from the disturbed Shantung and Honan districts. Their journeys were in many instances facilitated by friendly Chinese. Among the refugees are missionaries from Kwailan, Chinfu, Nei-Hsien, Woochow, Shulhing, Canton and Fasghan. The missionaries have also got away safely from Tung-shan, Shan-hei-kwan, Pei-ta-ho, Yan-Kan-Kou, Wei-hein (station burned), and Pao-ting-fu. Rev. Mr. Chalfont and two women missionaries, all Americans, of Wei-Hien Station, being in peril, sought refuge in the German mines at Fang-tse, their dwellings having been destroyed. They are now probably safe.



CHEFOO, WHERE MANY MISSIONARIES FOUND SAFETY

Tien-Tsin is also a haven of refuge, and many workers are there. Many missionaries and native Christians have arrived at Hongkong, and some Chinese mandarins, apprehensive of events, have sent their families there for safety. Everything that prudence and forethought could suggest has been done by the international forces and consuls to assure the safety of the missionaries and foreigners generally. The greatest sufferers have been and still are the native converts, toward whom the Boxers extend no mercy. It is impossible, at this stage of the troubles, to give any reliable estimate of the number of Chinese Christians who have fallen victims to the fanatical uprising against all foreigners and the "foreign religion."

Li Hung Chang, who is still at Canton, distrusts the Chinese imperial troops. Prince Tuan, the leader of the anti-foreign movement and the strongest champion of the Boxers, has succeeded in winning over thousands of regular troops to the rebel cause. The Boxers claim that he is to-day the real master of the Empire. It is beyond question that the rebellion is extending over the whole country. South China, excited by rebel successes in the North, needs but a spark to flame into active revolt.

To face this serious situation, the foreign powers have now landed nearly 20,000 troops, and may soon be expected to have twice that number available, with Taku as a temporary centre of activity. Besides, the fleets are rapidly attaining unusual proportions. The American battleship Oregon, while proceeding to Taku, went ashore on some hidden rocks in the Gulf of Pechili, but will probably be floated and taken to Port Arthur for repairs.

When all the powers have their available land forces on Chinese soil, they will doubtless be able to cope successfully with the widespread rebellion. It is proposed to hurl an international force of at least 50,000 against Pekin, and the Chinese government has been warned that if the foreign ministers are harmed, the allies may destroy the imperial tombs of the Mings and Manchus.

Brig.-Gen. A. S. Chaffee will command the American land forces in China.

It will thus be seen that amid the multitude of sensational and alarming rumors, there is still reason to hope that the general situation may soon improve. Latest reports represent the Empress and her advisers as more favorable to peace, such a policy being the only one that can save the dynasty.

REV. S. H. NORMAN REV. C. ROBINSON
Two murdered English missionaries

India Welcomes Our Relief Ship

(Continued from first page)

food. When all had been transferred to the cars, they presented an imposing sight, several great trains being filled with the 5,000 tons. The cars were decorated and soon the various trains were speeding to their destinations in the interior. All the railway arrangements for transportation to the centres of suffering were admirable, and reflect credit alike on the government and railway officials, who afforded every facility to the work and upon the foresight of the Missionary Committee, who during Dr. Klopsch's recent visit to Bombay, were assiduous in their efforts to make the arrangements for distribution as perfect as possible. When this issue of THE CHRISTIAN HERALD reaches the hands of its readers, their gift of bread to starving India will have reached the hands of the multitudes for whom it was destined and brought gladness and new hope into thousands of famine-stricken homes.

. . .

Having completed the work he undertook in India, Dr. Klopsch has now returned to the United States, after a most valuable and unique experience. His cordial reception by the people and press of India, the kind words he heard on every hand in behalf of the relief work and in appreciation of the benevolence of our readers, will long remain in his memory. He visited nearly all the leading famine fields, the relief works, hospitals, poorhouses, and kitchens; he saw the fearful scenes of suffering, the appalling mortality from plague, small pox, guinea-worm, dysentery, fever and starvation. He says:

"I had watched and investigated government relief operations, and had arrived at a thorough understanding with the Committee. I had seen sixteen famine and cholera corpses burn at one time; my heartstrings and sympathies had been tugged at until they refused to respond any longer. I had noted and admired the heroic self-sacrifice of our American missionaries., and had finally concluded that to stay longer meant, at great risk, to duplicate what I had already seen and heard, felt and experienced.

"I am not a physical coward, but I am glad I am away. We arrived at the most dangerous time of the year. People were amazed, for at this season nothing is quicker in India than death and burial. It is by no means an uncommon thing for a man, apparently healthy, to be dead and buried within the brief space of five hours; and not infrequently the bare, ghastly skull of a man may be seen on the very field over which the day before he had walked in perfect health.

"Then there is a malignant type of dysentery that quickly perforates the bowels and drains the blood. Typhoid fever and plague which everywhere abound swell the list, and all these, with death on every hand, contribute to make the white man feel that when he has done his duty he had better let it rest there and not tempt Providence. I am indeed profoundly grateful that with the exception of a very brief attack of illness —lasting one night —I escaped every whit whole.

"Finally, the ever-present heat. I do not wonder that the people are indolent and apathetic. Day after day the same fierce, burning sun, beating down relentlessly, exhausting, debilitating, devitalizing; night after night the same muggy, close, humid heat to swelter in.

"The white man fumes and frets over his tantalizing inability to get even half his work done by the natives half way decently in double the proper time. The native's grandfather never hurried, his father never hurried, why then should he do what his ancestors had never done? I engaged a Parsee photographer at Bombay to travel with me, agreeing to pay his traveling expenses, his board, the coolie hire for his paraphernalia and seven rupees ($2.25) for every picture he took, agreeing to give him a chance to take ten photos a day. At the end of a week he had taken thirty-one. All the best pictures he missed, owing to positive inability to work smartly. No power on earth could induce him to hurry his movements even by a fraction. We hollahed and shouted "Jaldi! Jaldi!" (which means "hurry, hurry") but he would simply look and smile as though he pitied our impatience and hoped to pacify us with his smile. Finally we gave it up in despair. And we have fully concluded that Kipling was right when he said:

It is not good for the Christian man
To worry the Aryan brown;
For the white man riles, and the brown man smiles,
And it weareth the Christian down.
And the end of the fight is a tombstone white,
With the name of the late deceased,
And the epitaph clear, "A fool lieth here
Who tried to hustle the East."

"Apart from the famine, we practically saw nothing of India. Of those things usually considered sights worth seeing, and of the cities which every visitor must see before leaving India, we saw nothing. But we saw what we went to see, and there was no mistaking the real object of our visit. Traveling 20,000 miles just to ascertain the condition of a starving people on the other side of the world, and to study how in the hour of their direst need we can prove most helpful to them, is not an everyday occurrence and was not without its beneficent effect. It was a startling and impressive object-lesson on the length to which a kind, sympathetic Christian people will go in order to give practical expression to noble and generous impulses. At the same time it helped to focus the attention of Mussulman, Hindu, Parsee and Christian on the world-wide charity of the American nation. Again and again I have heard people say that they could not understand why I should have left home and business and comfort to look after their necessities, seeing that I had not known them personally, nor had I been under any obligation to them; and why Americans should actually send money and grain for their relief was even more incomprehensible. The famine of 1897 opened up a God-given opportunity for Christian America to strengthen the stakes of American missionary effort in Eastern India, and the present famine afforded the same opportunity in Western India. How well we improved it the next ten years will show. I predict greater results by far in the way of missionary power in India during the next decade than have been achieved during the entire nineteenth century.

"Two important purchases were those of 1,000 hand-plows and 100,000 blankets. Throughout the whole enormous Gujerat Province fully ninety per cent. of the farming cattle have perished, and with his present implements and without bullocks, the farmer is practically helpless. It was necessary, therefore, to devise a plow that could be operated by manual labor. This was done by some ingenious mechanic, submitted to and approved by Collector Stewart of the Panch Mahal district, improved and finally recommended by Rev. Robert Ward of Godhra. But the money to manufacture and put the invention to a practical test was wanting. I noticed the announcement in an article contained in the Bombay Gazette, and happening to be in Godhra, I listened to the Rev. Ward—a very earnest, conscientious, fully consecrated missionary —and to Assistant Collector Rendall, and concluded that the opportunity should be embraced. The price was two rupees (sixty-four cents) each, and the whole thousand cost only 2,000 rupees, or $640. In order that a precedent, that might prove awkward, should not be thereby established, the check was made payable to Rev. Robert Ward. Should the experiment prove successful a gigantic step toward the solution of an apparently insurmountable difficulty will have been taken. I shall watch the outcome with interest.

"Surpassing this greatly, both in extent and importance, was the purchase of one hundred thousand blankets at 15 annas or 30 cents each, aggregating $30,000. This sum was paid over on the day of my departure. With the advent of the rainy season the critical period in relief operations will have arrived. It is then that the countless thousands of debilitated men, women and children will be put to the supreme test. Their lives have been spared, but their condition is such that without covering of a suitable character tens of thousands must succumb to climatic inclemency. Cold and wet bring on countless disorders and unless cared for properly death must ensue. The government will be compelled to afford shelter of some kind, while private charity must supply clothing and bed covering. This, thanks to the generous gifts of CHRISTIAN HERALD readers, can now be done for 100,000 human beings, and as I write these figures I am appalled with their stupendousness. When, before in the world's history, was it ever given to a private charity to care for a multitude like unto this? Can we who direct the affairs of THE CHRISTIAN HERALD ever be sufficiently grateful to God that it has pleased him to entrust to our hands this unprecedented opportunity! And there is still another phase that is peculiarly gratifying. All these blankets are manufactured in the weaveries of American missionaries. The Methodist and Alliance Missions, who employ famine sufferers as weavers, have undertaken the contract of supplying the whole lot within thirty days, or before the rains set in in Gujerat. And that means the employmentof thousands of breadless families."

CITY AND HARBOR OF BOMBAY, WHERE THE S.S. "QUITO" UNLOADED

Photograph taken expressly for THE CHRISTIAN HERALD and forwarded by Dr. Klopsch FEEDING FIFTEEN HUNDRED FAMINE CHILDREN AT DAKOR, INDIA

NEW YORK

Ackley, Mrs G.... 25
Adams, Chas F... 1 00
Adams, Mrs F D. 1 00
Adams, Mrs M H 2 00
Agar, Mrs 25
Akin, A 5 00
Alexander, D M & H 3 00
Alexander, Mrs F A 1 00
Allen, Geo H..... 2 00
Allen, Mrs J L... 1 00
Anderson, C M... 25
Anderson, Emil .. 15
Anderson, Mrs G. 1 00
Anderson, Mrs L S, Coll by..... 5 00
Anderson, Mrs M 25
Anderson, Aug .. 10
Anderson, Aug .. 25
Anderson, Willie. 2 00
Andrews, Mrs J F 25
Angell, Mrs O T.. 1 00
Appley, Mrs A... 25
Appley, M D..... 25
Archer, L 25
Armbrnster, A ... 10
Armstrong, Gertde 1 00
Arnold, I A..... 1 00
Arnold, S M..... 1 00
Ashberry, Thos... 1 00
Atwood, Mrs R C 1 00
Avery, Mrs 25
Avery, Mrs C H. 5 00
Ayers, Mrs L..... 25
Babcock, F P.... 50
Backman, Aug .. 25
Bader, John 25
Badgley, Emma .. 50
Bailey, Mrs C C. 20
Bailey, Chas 25
Bailey, Mrs C E. 1 10
Bailey, Frank ... 1 00
Baker, Hy & Mrs R 1 00
Baker, W I & Lany 2 00
Baker, Mrs W M. 25
Bakes, Benjamin. 50
Baldwin, T W.... 1 00
Bangs, L B.....10 00
Banks, J 1 00
Barager, Mr & Mrs 1 00
Barber, Mrs W S 50
Barker, Maria ... 1 00
Bardsley, Mrs M.. 25
Barnhart, Mrs J W 50
Barrett, Jennie .. 25
Barton, Mrs E... 1 00
Bassett, Mrs J F.10 00
Bates', Mrs, S S Class 1 40
Bates, Mrs A..... 25
Bauiu, C 1 00
Banman, Mrs 1 00
Baxter, Gilbert .. 2 00
Bayne, E 50
Beardsley, Mrs P 50
Beattie, Mrs Chas 2 00
Beatty, Chas 5 00
Bedford, S 3 50
Bell, Arthur 25
Bell, Jas 20
Bender, J & E... 2 00
Benjamin, R 10
Bennett, Miss B.. 1 00
Bentley, S M.... 2 00
Bigford, M F..... 1 00
Bingham, G W... 1 25
Blackman, Mrs A S 1 00
Blackwell, H F, Jr 2 00
Blanchard, Flo .. 5 00
Blewer, E A..... 1 00
Blodget, O H 1 00
Blue, Rev J H F 1 00
Boettger, Frank.. 3 00
Bonier, David 50
Bosch, Fred H...25 00
Bowen, C W..... 25
Boyd, Mrs F 25
Bradbury, Mrs E & Mrs N W Wolcott 2 00
Bradway, Mrs S J 1 00
Branch, Mrs Mary 25
Brant, Elmer, coll by 4 00
Brien, Wm A.... 5 00
Briggs, Eleanor... 1 00
Brink, Mrs A C.. 1 00
Brink, Harlen.... 1 00
Britten, Mrs J... 50
Broadhead, Mrs J A 3 18
Brockett, Mrs R A 1 00
Brode, Mr 25
Brown, Miss A... 50
Brown, A C..... 1 00
Brown, A N..... 1 00
Brown, Mr & Mrs D A..... 1 00
Brown, E M..... 5 50
Brown, Miss G.... 50
Brown, H 1 00
Brown, Hlram 25
Brown, Mrs Hlram 10
Brown, Mrs J. M. 1 00
Brown, Lida 50
Brown, M E..... 25
Browning, Mr E.. 25
Browning, E M.. 25
Browning, Mildred 25
Browning, Mrs T M 1 00
Browning, Mr W J 25
Bruce, Solon 18
Brunck, A & E... 1 50
Brnnck, Mrs A C 27
Buehr, Mrs K....10 00
Bunce, V C..... 2 00
Bunteklel, Mrs... 2 00
Bunteklel, Miss... 2 00
Bunteklel, Miss... 25
Bnnteklel, W..... 25
Bunteklel, W 2 00
Burbank, Mrs R I 2 00
Burgess, E 2 00
Burnham, Mrs T G 1 00
Burns, Mrs A.... 25
Burronghs, Mrs W 1 00
Burrows, Mrs W.. 25

NEW YORK—Cont'd.

Bnsh, H 1 00
Butler, Ella M... 2 00
Byam, L J..... 50
Cable, E B..... 1 00
Cain, Jacob 1 00
Calvelli, Dr G.... 3 50
Calvert, Mrs S E, coll by 2 00
Candee, Mrs Gay. 4 00
Canfield, Vernie .. 05
Cantrell, S 50
Capell, Mrs C E.. 5 00
Carlsou, A G..... 10
Carlsou, B 10
Carlsou, J E..... 50
Carlson, John F.. 25
Carlson, John G. 25
Carlson, O A..... 10
Carmer, G D..... 2 00
Carpeuter, C 1 00
Carpeuter, Miss F 1 00
Carpeuter, Mrs F L 5 00
Carpeuter, How'd 1 00
Carpenter, Z & wf 1 00
Carter, Jack 1 00
Case, Mrs A..... 50
Case, Mrs S..... 50
Castin, A J..... 1 00
Catskill Friends..91 00
Chaffee, Mary A.. 2 00
Chandler, Miss A. 50
Chase, Miss Anna 25
Chase, Geo S..... 75
Chase, W E..... 2 00
Chellborg, Mrs A. 2 00
Chesterman, Mr .. 50
Child, Mrs F L.. 2 00
Chrestien, Mrs E. 25
Chrismau, D 04
Chrlsman, Mrs W 05
Christian, A A.... 1 00
Christopher, M.... 30
Claire, L 2 00
Clark, I Brooks... 1 00
Clark, Mrs J..... 1 50
Clark, Mrs Theo.. 2 00
Clarke, Edgar 1 00
Clarke, Foster H. 1 00
Clarke, Harry ... 50
Clarke, Mrs S G. 50
Cleveland, J F... 1 00
Clock, Theron ... 05
Clymo, E P..... 2 00
Coats, Miss G.... 25
Coats, Mrs Wm.. 25
Cobb, Irene 04
Colburn, Nellie .. 50
Cole, Mrs 25
Cole, Mrs I..... 10
Cole, Mrs J W.... 2 00
Cole, Miss M E... 25
Collins, Mrs D T.10 00
Conklin, Miss 5 00
Cook, Mrs E L... 1 00
Cook, Harold 10
Cook, L D..... 1 00
Cook, Ralph 10
Cookingham, Miss Sarah 2 00
Cooper, Mrs A W 50
Cooper, Miss B... 50
Cooper, Mrs M.... 35
Cornell, Miss L B 1 00
Corp, Charles ... 25
Corwlth, Dr 1 00
Cough, Daisy 10
Cox, Alfred 1 00
Cox, Mrs M C... 1 00
Crane, M B..... 25
Cranston, C C... 25
Cranston, Mrs J.. 5 00
Cranston, Dr W J 50
Craver, C 2 00
Craver, M E & Baby Alden 3 00
Crayton, Mrs L.. 10
Cross, Ebenezer.. 1 50
Crossman, W E.. 2 00
Cruikshank, M E. 25
Currie, Avery P. 25
Curtis, Daniel ... 7 00
Currie, Thos 25
Dahlstrnn, And'w 15
Dardonville, Mrs J 25
Davie, Sarah F.. 1 00
Darbee, Mr & Mrs Fred 1 00
Davies, E O..... 2 00
Davis, Elma E... 1 00
Davis, H P..... 50
Davis, Harold ... 10
Davis, Mrs LaG.. 15
Davis, Norman .. 50
Deal, Bertie, Nellie, James, Alfred Willie, & Thos.. 2 00
Dean, Mrs J L... 1 00
De Grau, Mrs A.. 10
Deity, Mrs A.... 25
Deity, Jos 25
Delaran, Mrs E C 2 00
Delosh, Lawrence 25
Demarest, Bessie & Will 2 00
Deming, Mrs W.. 5 00
Denlo, Mrs J..... 25
Denson, Robt R.. 5 00
Depew, Frank ... 25
Dewey, Mrs H... 2 00
Deyor, Miss H... 1 00
Deyor, Mrs W S.. 1 00
Dickson, A E.... 1 00
Dickson, A W.... 1 00
Dickson, Mrs M A 1 00
Dietrick, S 1 00
Dikeman, H C... 25
Dicklnson, O T... 50
Dix, Morgan 50 00
Doane, Mrs S.... 10
Doncourt, J H.. 25
Donnell, Mary T.. 2 00
Dorr, Mrs M R.. 50
Dood, H I..... 50
Dow, Mrs Mary.. 25
Doyle, Elsie L.... 25
Doyle, O E..... 25
Drager, Carl 05
Drew, Porter 25
Drury, Chas 50
Dnell, Mrs Julia.. 50
Duell, Leota 25
Dunham, Mrs H.. 1 50
Dunn, Mrs Wm.. 20
Durall, Mrs L L.. 1 36

NEW YORK—Cont'd.

Durrell, Geo O... 50
Dnrrell, Mrs H A. 1 00
Duseubery, Mrs H L 1 00
Dye, Mrs D E.. 30
Earing, Osborn .. 2 00
Early, Edna 25
Eddy, Mrs E A.. 1 00
Eddy, W L..... 50
Edget, Harriet L 50
Edget, Miss Nancy 1 00
Edin, A..... 25
Edinger, Mrs J E 1 00
Edwards, Mrs.... 25
Eidlitz, Mrs M.. 5 00
Eldred, Mrs Jos.. 25
Elliott, Mrs Jos.. 1 00
Ellis, Mr 50
Ellis, Jas 1 00
Ells, A 1 00
Elmer, Martha.... 1 00
Engler, Jno 5 00
Engstrnn, John E 25
Esties, E E..... 25
Fairbanks, M 1 00
Fancher, Miss E. 10
Fancher, Master F 10
Fancher, W 10
Fancher, Mrs W M 20
Farrington, A ... 02
Fenton, Luther .. 25
Fentou, Robt 43
Field, Mrs W A. 2 00
Fish, Mrs E..... 25
Fisher, Mrs J C.. 2 00
Fisher, Jas H.... 1 00
Fitch, Mrs F H.. 50
Fitch, Hazel 25
Fleet, Mrs G K.. 2 00
Fletcher, Eliz ... 1 00
Florence, Mrs E.. 1 00
Foster, Birt D.... 2 00
Frederick, Mrs H T 1 00
Fredsell, Chas .. 10
Fredwood, C 2 00
Freeland, J C.... 25
Freeman, Miss M 1 00
Frey, R 25
Friend, Mrs D...10 00
Frier, Mrs 05
Frier, Donald 01
Frye, W W..... 1 00
Fuller, Reuben .. 25
Fnrey, Robt 1 00
Gainer, W H.... 1 00
Gallup, C N..... 1 00
Gardner, Mrs J.. 25
Gardner, Mr M... 1 00
Gardner, Mrs M.. 1 00
Garrison, Geo ... 25
Gast, Margaret .. 50
Gates, E 1 55
Gates, R F..... 2 00
Geere, Mr 2 00
Geldsmith, Max.. 5 00
Gibson, Ray 05
Gilchrist, Mrs A S 1 00
Gilchrist, David.. 2 00
Gilchrist, Edwin. 1 00
Gilchrist, Miss E. 1 00
Gilchrist, Finley. 25
Gilchrist, J H.... 10
Gilchrist, Jno K.. 2 00
Gilchrist, Miss L. 1 00
Gilchrist, Miss M 1 00
Gilchrist, Mrs T.. 2 00
Gilchrist, Wm .. 25
Gildersleeve, Mrs J & family..... 7 00
Gillett, Jamie 05
Goescher, Jacob.. 1 00
Goldsmith, E F.. 6 00
Goliver, Mrs Jno. 50
Goodsell, E A.... 2 00
Gorbutt, H T.... 1 00
Gorton, Mrs P A. 25
Gott, Miss Cora.. 25
Gonndry, Wm ... 15
Graham, R 25
Granger, Mrs E W 40
Grant, J H..... 1 00
Graves, F A..... 1 00
Green, Mrs C E.. 50
Green, Miss L.... 10
Greenland, W Y... 2 00
Grennell, Mrs C.. 1 00
Griffin, Mrs E L.. 1 00
Gross, L A..... 25
Gnstafson, A G.. 25
Hadden, Mr A... 55
Hadden, Mrs Rosa 50
Hafgsen, Ludwig. 25
Hagadun, B E.... 1 00
Hagaman, C A.... 2 02
Hager, Mrs O P.. 25
Haggas, Mrs G.... 1 00
Haggett, Mrs S... 1 00
Hall, Mrs 10
Hall, Mrs C..... 1 00
Hall, Mrs James. 1 00
Hall, N 2 00
Hallen, John A... 25
Hallenbeck, Anna Grace E La Rue 3 05
Hallock, Mrs I... 50
Hallock, J W.... 1 00
Halsey, Mrs M P. 1 00
Handy, Mrs L.... 1 00
Hanford, Mrs L G 2 00
Hanna, Cornelia.. 1 00
Harding, E J..... 2 00
Hardy, R 1 00
Harrington, E.... 25
Harrington, Mrs G 50
Harris, Mrs C.... 2 00
Harris, M 50
Hart, H E & A E 1 00
Hart, Mr & Mrs H L 1 00
Hartley, Miss S.. 1 00
Harvey, Mrs A H. 25
Harvey, Mrs L B 50
Harwell, G 1 00
Harwell, K 50
Harwood, I 25
Haslet, Mrs 35
Hassett, Wm Co. 2 00
Hawkins, Andw J 2 00
Hawkins, R C.... 1 00
Hawley, Mrs J P 1 00
Healey, Anna 2 00
Hebron, Mrs 50
Hedden, Polly ... 25

NEW YORK—Cont'd.

Hedden, Squire .. 25
Hedlund, Chas .. 15
Hedlund, Frank.. 25
Heim, Raymond . 10
Hemstead, J 5 00
Henderson, A R.. 1 00
Henderson, B 25
Henderson, Chas. 02
Henderson, Miss Marion 25
Hendricks, Mrs B 1 00
Heuning, F 1 00
Heuser, W 50
Hequembonrg, H C 1 00
Herendeen, C B.. 2 00
Herrmann, Mrs J 2 00
Herrschaft, Mrs G 1 00
Hewitt, Mrs D... 25
Hickling, Fred .. 5 00
Hilding, Gust ... 25
Hildreth, E A.... 25
Hildreth, E J.... 50
Hildreth, Mrs R.. 25
Hill, Mrs H..... 50
Hill, Mrs & Mr H H 2 00
Hinsman, Mrs A. 2 00
Hitchcock, Mrs H 3 00
Hoag, Mrs Henry 40
Hoag, S C..... 5 00
Hockenberger, C.. 2 00
Hoggett, Mrs J... 1 00
Holden, Mrs C... 1 00
Holdridge, C E... 1 00
Holdridge, H 1 00
Hollister, Mrs L. 50
Holmes, G B..... 5 00
Holmes, Mrs J.... 1 00
Holmes, Jno R... 3 00
Holmes, Wm J... 92
Homer, Milo 1 00
Hopkins, Grace .. 10
Hopkins, Miss L. 5 00
Hopkins, Mrs R A 1 00
Horan, Mrs C.... 5 00
Horton, Miss B E 10
Hortou, Mrs Ellen 50
Houck, Mrs C.... 25
Houck, Clark 25
Houdin, Wm H.. 2 00
Houghton, O E, Jr 2 00
Howard, Chas ... 2 00
Howard, Mrs E.. 25
Howard, Mrs M A 1 00
Howe, E D..... 1 00
Howell, W 30
Howell, O E..... 25
Howell, Wm P... 1 00
Howland, Mrs H & friends 2 45
Howland, H H... 1 00
Howland, J B.... 3 00
Hoyt, Amelia 1 00
Hoyt, F 1 00
Hubbell, Mrs W.. 25
Huff, Mrs Ida .. 1 00
Hulbert, Mrs J... 5 00
Hull, J P..... 1 00
Hull, Lillie 1 00
Humuel, Mrs E E 50
Humphrey, Mrs D 25
Humphrey, Mrs F 30
Humphrey, Mrs H L 25
Hunt, Elmer F... 1 50
Hutchins, J S....10 30
Hyde, Mrs D R.. 1 00
Hyde, Mrs H..... 50
Hyde, Mrs Leslie 50
Hyde, Willie 50
Ingalls, Dewitt... 25
Ingalls, M 10
Ingersoll, Mrs J R 2 00
Jaburg, M 1 00
Jackson, Mrs H B 6 45
Jackson, Mrs Lura 25
Jackson, R C..... 5 00
Jackson, S 50
Jaycox, I 25
Jaycox, S 25
Jeffers, Ella 10
Jenkins, Miss L.. 10
Jesse, August ... 1 00
Johnson, Adolph . 10
Johnson, Aryld .. 25
Johnson, C O..... 25
Johnson, Chas.... 25
Johnson, Mrs E R 1 00
Johnson, G M T.. 1 00
Johnson, Gust A.. 25
Johnson, J P..... 10
Johnson, J P..... 25
Johnson, Oscar .. 15
Johnson, Mrs S.. 50
Johnson, Saml .. 25
Johnston, Mrs A M 2 00
Jones, Chas 25
Jones, Mrs J E.. 10
Joslin, Mrs G.... 50
Joslin, Hannah .. 25
Joslin, Hettie 35
Joy, C F..... 50
Judson, Everett .. 25
Juhre, Jno 1 00
Kahn, Katharine & James..... 2 00
Kaltenbach, G ... 25
Keefe, Wm 2 00
Keefe, Mrs Wm.. 2 00
Keep, Miss A.... 50
Keep, Miss A L.. 25
Kelley, Katie 1 00
Kelly, M C..... 1 00
Kemp, E & H... 10
Kennington, Mrs L 1 00
Kimbnlry, F A... 5 00
King, C W, thro. 2 25
King, Mrs Helen. 1 00
Kingman, Alice .. 2 00
Kinn, Mr N..... 50
Kipp, Jean E 1 00
Kircher, Julius .. 50
Kittell, Mary A.. 1 00
Kittell, Mrs J C. 1 00
Knapp, Albert ... 25
Knapp, Mrs A E. 2 00
Knauff, John ... 80
Koch, Joach 50
Kolander, John... 25
Kolpinn, Mr & Mrs F.....12 00
Kronpa, Barbara. 2 00
Lahne, Mrs J..... 55

NEW YORK—Cout'd.

Lakin, Mrs Juo... 25
Lakin, Sam 1 00
Langworthy, Miss M 1 00
Langworthy, Mrs S C..... 1 00
Larher, Wm A... 1 00
Larson, Johu 10
Larsou, P 25
Larson, Wm 25
Lasher, Mrs R E 50
Lathrop, Mrs C M 1 00
Lannsbnry, Mrs M 25
Lawson, Stephen. 1 00
Lazarus, Rev Jno & Parishioners.. 6 00
Leach, J E..... 1 00
Leach, J Allen ... 1 00
Leal, Miss Annie. 25
Leal, Edward 25
Leal, Henry 1 00
Lee, Emma C.... 1 00
Lee, Mrs Sarah.. 25
Le Fevre, Neal.... 3 00
Leidblad, C O... 10
Leland, E 10
Leo, Mrs 25
Lewis, Miss 15
Lewis, Henry..... 2 00
Lewis, Nellie 5 00
Lindsey, Mrs R... 25
Linebeck, G H.... 50
Linebeck, Miss C. 05
Lion, Mr & Mrs J. 50
Lohman, Mrs J D. 2 00
Lohrenz, Christ... 1 00
Longwell, Mrs A.. 1 00
Lord, A D 50
Lord, Frank 50
Lorenz, Fred 25
Loucks, Mr 03
Loncks, J F 1 00
Lovejoy, Nelson.. 5 00
Lowe, Richard ... 25
Lowell, Rev C G.. 1 00
Lowery, M A..... 25
Lown, Trnman.... 25
Luce, Mr & Mrs J B 2 00
Ludlow, Mrs C T. 50
Lynch, Miss R.... 15
Lyon, H V 1 50
McBride, Lizzie... 10
McCarty, Mrs T.. 25
McChesney, W E. 1 00
McCoy, Mrs H.... 50
McDermott, P 25
McDermott, W... 50
McDermott, Mrs.. 1 00
McElwell, Mrs S. 2 00
McGregor, F 1 00
McIntire, Mrs M.. 1 00
McKean, S S..... 2 00
McKee, Mr 25
McKee, Mrs 25
McKee, J L 7 50
McKinney, Willard & Lura 50
McLaughlin, M... 1 00
McLeod, J G..... 1 00
McNair, Rev A L. 4 00
Magry, Mrs 10
Makey, C D 1 00
Major, Jos 1 00
Mannix, Mrs D.... 25
Marcy, Miss E.... 50
Maricle, Miss E... 1 00
Maricle, J E..... 1 00
Markham, W R... 2 00
Markle, Lydia and friends 2 00
Marshall, N 20
Marston, J W and neighbors 6 00
Martin, Mrs W G. 50
Marvin, Mrs C A. 1 00
Matteson, Frances 1 00
Matthews, Mr 50
Maxson, Mrs J H. 25
Mayer, Mrs J..... 50
Maynard, Arthur.. 25
Maynard, Carlyle. 25
Maynard, E L.... 25
Monika, J 1 00
Merrill, Jay 2 00
Metcalf, M E 25
Metzgor, Miss L A 2 00
Mickel, Anna 20
Miller, A R 1 00
Miller, Mrs A R.. 1 00
Miller, Maggie B. 25
Miller, Miss P.... 1 00
Millington, Ruth.. 2 00
Mills, E D 25
Mills, Mrs H D... 25
Millspangh, Mrs M 1 00
Moody, B R 2 00
Moore, D A 5 00
Moore, Jas 1 00
Morgan, A S 1 00
Morris, Isaac 5 00
Morris, R E..... 15
Morrison, Alice... 1 00
Mosher, Flo and Lena 1 00
Mosher, Mrs Hattie 1 00
Mould, Daniel.... 9 00
Muirhead, Cathie. 1 00
Muller, Mr & Mrs E L 2 00
Murdoch, David... 5 00
Mygatt, Mrs M D 2 00
Neaman, Mrs 50
Needham, Mrs E P 2 00
Neidermyer, Jno.. 25
Neil, Rev E W.... 7 00
Nenhaus, M C ... 3 00
Newcomb, Mrs W. 50
Newland, Mrs R.. 2 00
Newman, Willie.. 25
Newmans, Mrs T. 25
Nichols, Mrs C.... 1 00
Nichols, Mrs R.... 05
Ninick, J N 2 00
Nord, Alfred 25
Norquist, A C & Co 10 00
Norquist, Clyde .. 50
Norquist, Glen.... 50
Norten, Warren... 10
Northnp, Miss A.. 50
Norton, Mrs E.... 2 00
Norton, Miss N... 25
Oakley, Miss 15

NEW YORK—Cont'd.

O'Connor, Mrs E L 3 00
Olberman, H B... 2 00
Oldsin, Chas..... 25
Olin, Pembroke... 25
Oliver, Wm 2 00
Orchard St Missn, Tarrytown 4 00
Orlin, M 50
Osborne, Mrs H D C 2 00
Osiander, Mrs H.. 1 00
Otis, Adah E 1 00
Overton, S O..... 1 00
Owen, Glen 1 00
Owens, Mrs A.... 2 00
Owens, Effie 1 00
Owens, Miss F.... 1 00
Owens, Leland.... 1 00
Own, Mr H J..... 1 00
Paddock, Mrs S... 25
Paddon, Mrs W J. 2 00
Palmer, Myron... 25
Park, Miss G.....11 00
Parker, Mrs C.... 1 00
Parker & McIntyre 10 00
Parker, Mr & Mrs T J 2 00
Parkhurst, A B... 04
Parkhnrst, E W.. 05
Parkhnrst, O W.. 01
Parmeter, N E.... 1 00
Parris, Miss E.... 25
Parris, Miss J.... 25
Parsons, Miss O.. 1 00
Parsons, Miss S J 50
Pasco, Nettie..... 25
Pangborn, Libbie. 1 00
Payne, Mrs H A.. 1 25
Peacock, M 1 00
Peacock, W 50
Pearl, Mrs G..... 50
Peart, Mrs D..... 1 00
Pease, Miss L.... 1 00
Peck, Mrs E 1 00
Peters, W H..... 3 45
Peterson, C J 25
Peterson, Otto.... 25
Pierce, Anna 30
Pierson, E H..... 60
Pierson, H C..... 1 00
Pierson, Mrs J B.. 25
Pike, N B 2 00
Pile, William N... 5 00
Pillmore, Mrs M H 2 00
Pitts, Miss Helen & Miss L Huyler.16 38
Place, Miss Norah 25
Plumb, Miss Abbie 1 00
Plumb, Miss Carrie 50
Porter, Erastus... 35
Porter, Mrs E.... 25
Porter, Miss Eva. 15
Porter, Jamie..... 10
Porterns, Thos.... 5 00
Potter, Jas 1 00
Powel, Elsa 15
Powel, Mrs G..... 10
Pratt, Mr & Mrs R H 3 00
Price, Mrs W 25
Priefert, Mrs C... 1 00
Priestley, Mrs W H 1 00
Pringle, Geo 1 00
Proskine, Alex, Jr 25
Proskine, Mrs C.. 25
Proskine, C..... 50
Proskine, Tillie... 25
Purdy, Mrs A O.. 1 00
Purdy, W H 1 00
Pussic, Chas 10
Putnam, Mrs A T 1 00
Quigley, Mrs J P. 1 00
Raittou, Mrs 1 00
Raken, Mrs A..... 23
Randle, Mrs H E. 2 00
Rant, Mrs E..... 25
Raplee, Mrs M J. 1 00
Rathbone, Mrs L B 25
Read, Raymond... 36
Reading, Authony. 50
Reed, Bertha P... 5 00
Reed, Mrs Wash.. 1 00
Reese, W A 15 00
Reid, Mrs 10
Reid, S C 25
Revenburgh, Miss. 1 00
Reynolds, Mr 1 00
Reynolds, Kate.... 1 00
Rice, Bessie S.... 2 50
Rice, Ella J..... 1 00
Rice, Mrs M..... 1 00
Rice, Zelia S..... 2 50
Rich, Mrs B C.... 25
Rich, Mrs Geo.... 10
Rich, W E & fam. 3 00
Rich, W F 5 00
Rich, Wells 1 00
Richardson, Mrs J 2 00
Rikert, Reuben... 1 00
Rickles, Miss J... 50
Rider, O H 5 00
Ridgeway, Miss A K 2 00
Riesch, Mrs D P.. 3 00
Rigby, Emma A.. 1 00
Rinehart, Mrs 1 00
Riseley, Mrs M C. 1 00
Risley, E 25
Risley, Mrs E..... 25
Rivenburgh, D M. 50
Roberts, Mrs B... 2 00
Robinson, Mand.. 50
Robinson, Mrs W H 50
Rogers, Miss L... 2 00
Rogers, Mrs N C.. 6 00
Rolin, Mrs Cora... 50
Roof, Mrs John... 1 00
Roundsville, R.... 1 00
Ronrke, John E... 25
Royce, Mrs S..... 25
Ruckman, John... 1 00
Rudy, Mrs W..... 50
Ruekstuhl, F W.. 2 00
Rulisar, Mrs D C. 3 00
Rupple, Miss M... 25
Russell, D 1 00
Russell, Rowland.. 1 00
Russell, T B..... 2 00
Rutherford, G F.. 2 00
Ryther, Alice J... 2 00

NEW YORK—Cont'd.

Ryther, Jas F.... 2 00
Sackett, Mr S B.. 50
Sackett, Mrs W P 10
Safford, Maie.... 25
St George, Mrs A. 1 00
Sammis, Belle.... 2 00
Samson, Mrs M A 1 00
Saudberg, Jos.... 10
Sanders, Mrs F H 1 00
Sanders, Miss S.. 1 75
Saunders, Mr and Mrs A P 2 00
Schulte, A 2 00
Schultz, Minnie .. 77
Schuyler, Mrs M.. 5 00
Schwab, Noah 2 00
Schwein, Mrs N.. 25
Scollard, Mrs J I. 5 00
Seely, E 5 65
Seger, Mrs H J... 2 00
Selleck, P 2 00
Senior, A N 1 00
Severn, E 5 00
Shafer, Catherine. 1 00
Shafer, Mrs E ... 25
Shafer, Mrs H L. 25
Shay, D 10
Shepard, W T.... 2 68
Sheriger, Mrs E.. 50
Sherman, M J.... 3 00
Sherow, Mrs 15
Sherwood, Mrs A E 10
Sheyer, Martin.... 1 00
Shields, Willie.... 25
Shinkle, Miss 10
Shoemaker, Rev H R 1 00
Shoonmaker, J....20 00
Shrantz, Mrs F... 25
Shrantz, Mr M.... 50
Shrantz, M 25
Shrantz, Mrs N.... 25
Silvers, Mrs A.... 2 00
Simpsons, Mrs Jas 1 00
Sites, Miss Addie. 25
Skinner, Mrs L.... 50
Skippou, Alice.... 1 00
Sleighton, Mrs L. 20
Sloat, Mr 2 00
Slocum, M H..... 1 00
Smith, Mrs A..... 25
Smith, Mrs A W.. 7 25
Smith, Abel 15
Smith, Mrs A..... 50
Smith, Belle 2 00
Smith, Cora A.... 50
Smith, E O..... 1 00
Smith, Ezra 1 00
Smith, Fannie.... 1 00
Smith, G W 1 00
Smith, Genevieve. 3 00
Smith, Grace 10
Smith, Mrs H C.. 1 00
Smith, Mrs J..... 25
Smith, Mrs J S... 50
Smith, Joseph 25
Smith, Maggie.... 25
Smith, Nelda..... 50
Smith, Orpha E.. 2 00
Smith, R H, H M, R S, Jr; Mable L & Ethel 50
Smith, Will 25
Sniffen, Mrs A C. 2 00
Sniffen, Miss A C. 22
Sniffen, Irving.... 1 00
Snyder, C L..... 1 00
Snyder, Mrs M.... 50
Soper, May 25
Spauldings, Ed C. 2 00
Spencer, Mrs M A 06
Stackhouse, Mrs W 1 00
Standfast, Misses H & R, Fordham 25 00
Standley, W W... 1 00
Stanton, Mrs E... 1 00
Stanton, Mrs O B 10
Starkweather, M C 25
Starr, F 10
Stearns, D W..... 50
Stearns, Mrs G P 25
Stecker, Mrs E... 25
Steiu, Panline.... 2 00
Stent, Ethel..... 10
Stever, J A 1 00
Steward, Mrs R.. 2 00
Stott, J 10
Stott, Mrs W H.. 2 50
Strom, Ethel..... 10
Strong, Mrs 25
Strong, C 1 00
Sturdevant, S R.. 50
Sufts, Mrs D..... 05
Sullivau, Jno 25
Sutherland, Miss. 3 00
Sutherland, H R. 2 00
Sweet, A L..... 1 00
Sweet, Mrs E.... 25
Sweetaple, Fred.. 1 00
Sweetman, Marion 10
Sweun, Alberta .. 1 00
Swift, Mrs G.... 1 00
Sundell, David.... 25
Sundell, Oscar.... 25
Swan, M E 1 00
Swanson, Andrew. 25
Swanson, Chas J. 25
Sweeney, Thos ... 1 00
Sweezy, Mrs S A H 3 00
Taber, Fred 25
Taber, Solman.... 08
Tanner, Mrs A.... 2 00
Taylor, Miss C.... 25
Taylor, Miss E.... 25
Taylor, Jennie 10
Taylor, Mrs M E. 30
Ten Broeck, Mrs M L 25
Thayer, Mrs J C.. 20
Theo, Mrs H..... 1 00
Thering, M 25
Thimblebee, Robt. 50
Thomas, Clara.... 50
Thomas, Eli S.... 1 00
Thompson, Mrs A L 25
Thompson, Chas L, Mrs R L & Libbie 5 00
Thompsou, F W & others 7 30
Thompson, M 1 00

NEW YORK—Cont'd.

Thompson, Reed.. 2 00
Thorne, Alice..... 1 00
Thorpe, W C 2 00
Thurston, C 2 00
Tice, Mrs L..... 10
Tilton, Agnes M.. 1 00
Tilton, J 25
Tilton, L I..... 25
Tiplady, Mary M.. 2 00
Todd, Mrs A..... 1 50
Todd, Mrs F E... 50
Tomer, C F 1 00
Townsend, Alva... 25
Transon, L 70
Triebier, A 50
Triebier, S 50
Trott, Mrs E.....25 00
Trumble, Mrs A.. 25
Tuck, H J 1 00
Tunner, Richard.. 1 00
Turcas, A D..... 2 00
Turner, Mrs M... 2 00
Tuthill, Mrs Geo.. 50
Tuttle, L 10
Tuttle, Mrs L..... 25
Tuttle, Mrs M.... 20
Tuttle, Noah 10
Tuttle, Mrs R.... 25
Taber, Elina L.... 10
Tabor, E G..... 2 00
Tabor, Miss M A. 50
Tallman, J C.... 1 00
Tanner, H V..... 18
Tappan, Mrs K... 1 00
Tate, C A..... 50
Taylor, A F, (M D) 1 00
Taylor, Frank ... 25
Teeple, Mrs E.... 25
Terhune, Mrs P C 2 00
Terman, Alice ... 25
Thomas, Isaiah .. 5 00
Thomas Raymond 2 00
Thompson, Ada M 1 00
Thompson, R ... 25
Thompson, Mrs R J 1 00
Thorn, Jay 50
Thorpe, E V..... 25
Thayer, O C..... 1 00
Tigue, James 25
Tilden, Mrs J N. 1 00
Tilden, Jno N.... 1 00
Tinklepaugh, Mrs O C 1 00
Titus, V 1 00
Totling, C C..... 1 00
Totling, R 1 00
Tompkins, Mr & Mrs M H..... 2 00
Tompkins, N 2 00
Tompsett, Mrs A. 25
Tompsett, C 10
Tompsett, Laura . 05
Town, Bernice .. 50
Town, Mrs C.... 48
Travis, M T..... 1 00
Twiss, Hattie M.. 1 00
Turk, Archie 05
Turner, Fred 25
Tuttle, Sarah D.. 7 00
Tyler, Carrie C.. 50
Teyler, E 5 00
Tyler, Geo 10 00
Tyler, Jacob 2 00
Tyson, R T..... 2 00
Udy, Mr 25
Underhill, E J.... 25
Underwood, Cyrus 5 00
Unger, Samuel .. 1 00
Underhill, Bessie. 1 00
Underwood, A G.. 2 00
Underwood, F ... 2 00
Vail, Chas P..... 2 00
Valentine, A 1 00
Valentine, Mrs E. 50
Vandermenlin, H. 25
Van Doren, C 25
Van Doren, E 27
Van Dyke, Mrs D. 8 00
Van Loan A ....., 25
Vanocker, Clarabel 10
Van Scoy, L T.... 1 00
Vellam, Geo 1 00
Vellam, Wm..... 1 00
Vicker, H A..... 50
Vincent, Allie 10
Vincent, Mrs S... 25
Vosburg, Frank... 1 00
Vader, Mrs J..... 25
Valentine, Maria. 1 00
Vallette, Miss M. 10
Van Allen, Mrs.. 10
Van Brocklin, Mrs E F..... 52
Van Brocklin, L. 52
Van Buren, Mrs S 1 00
Van Brunt, W D.25 00
Vanderworker, A J 50
Van Duesen, Anna 25
Van Epps, C W.. 30
Van Evera, Mrs J 25
Van Hoesen, A .. 1 00
Vankeuren, Mrs E 1 00
Van Ornum, Mrs M E..... 3 25
Van Pelt, O A... 25
Van Tassell, M J 5 00
Van Vliet, S C, Jr 2 00
Van Wie, A 2 00
Vaughn, Edith .. 25
Vaughn, Mrs F B 1 00
Vibbard, Dr A A 1 00
Vicker, Rev H... 4 75
Vicker, Hedley A 50
Vogel, Fred 10
Vogel, Gertie 10
Vogel, Wm 10
Vosburg, Miss A. 10
Waggoner, J R... 1 00
Waite, Mrs L R.. 1 00
Walker, Jos..... 2 50
Walker, Jos Jr... 25
Wallen, Herman.. 10
Walworth, Mrs A. 15
Warren, Rev A... 25
Warrington, Mrs J H 2 00
Wash, Mrs S..... 50
Washburn, Mrs S. 50
Watkins, F 2 00
Webb, C M 1 00
Weber, Mr & Mrs J B 2 00
Weinert, C 1 00

NEW YORK—Cont'd.

Weiss, Mrs G H.. 1 00
Weiss, Jas 1 00
Welker, J J..... 1 00
Wells, Mrs E 10
Wemple, Mrs A Z 1 00
Westfall, Mrs G.. 1 00
Westlake, Mrs T.. 15
Westlake, Miss W P 15
Wharton, Mrs C A. 25 00
Wheeler, Beecher. 100 00
Wheeler, Milford.. 2 00
White, J E 1 00
White, Mrs M A.. 1 00
White, W T 25
Whiteman, S Lee. 50
Wibeck, Chas 25
Wibeck, John..... 25
Wick, Henry.....25 00
Wickham, M L.... 1 00
Wickham, Miss M 25
Wietzel, Frank... 25
Wilber, Peter..... 25
Wilkinson, Mrs A. 50
Willard, Mrs C... 2 00
Willey, Geo 25
Williams, H S.... 30
Williams, S 02
Willink, Mr J H.. 50
Wilson, Mrs 30
Wilson, Mrs A P. 5 00
Wilson, Almira L & Benj G 15 00
Wilson, Elsworth. 25
Wilson, Rev J E.. 1 00
Winant, Anne E.. 2 00
Wolfe, Mrs H..... 10
Wood, A B 5 00
Wood, Covina..... 3 00
Wood, Mabel..... 05
Wood, Ralph W... 2 00
Woodman, A 30
Woodman, Mrs C B 5 00
Woodman, F 30
Woodman, Mr and Mrs F G 10 00
Woodman, H 25
Woodman, R 25
Woodward, Mrs T 1 00
Woodworth, Mr & Mrs C D 3 00
Woosley, Richard. 25
Wright, Mrs H... 25
Wyckoff, Mrs M E 1 00
Wade, I A..... 50
Wade, Nettie ... 25
Waelsworth, Mrs G H 10 00
Wallace, Mrs L A 50
Wallis, Misses F A & R E..... 2 00
Walton, Mrs E C 1 00
Wakle, Mary 25
Ward, Mrs E L.. 5 00
Warden, C W.... 25
Warner, G H.... 2 00
Warren, H 1 00
Watrous, Mrs J C 1 00
Watzelhan, Wm.. 25
Webb, Mrs S A.. 2 00
Webb, Mrs T A.. 1 00
Webster, Mrs L G 1 00
Weiman, Mrs ... 25
Welcher, C 75
Welcher, Mrs V E 1 00
Welcher, Verne.. 25
Welcher, W H... 50
Wells, Mrs Inez... 1 00
Wessels, Mrs 25
West, M E..... 1 00
West, Miss Sophia 50
Westfall, Mrs H. 50
Wetsel, Mrs Peter 1 00
Whelan, Lulu ... 15
Wheeler, Jno C.. 2 00
Wheeler, Mrs M M 2 00
Wheeler, Mrs N.. 2 00
Whigam, W I.... 1 00
White, Mrs E.... 25
White, Mamie ... 25
White, Marian ... 5 00
Whitehead, Mr & Mrs Geo 1 00
Whitley, S H..... 1 00
Whitney, Glen 05
Wickham, J M.... 2 00
Widrig, Robt G.. 1 00
Wilber, Ralph .. 03
Wilbur, Mrs J H & Hazel 80
Wild, Silas, T.... 2 00
Wilcox, Mrs G R & D Parker.... 1 10
Wilcox, Mrs H.... 20
Wilcox, Mrs H... 25
Wiles, Mrs Chas.. 1 00
Willard, Mrs S A10 00
Willi, Emma 2 00
Willi, Katie 2 00
Willi, Maggie 1 00
Williams, Mrs E B 1 00
Williamson, Geo'ia 1 00
Wilson, Anna C.. 50
Wilson, Ed B.... 2 00
Wilson, Jno 2 00
Wilson, Mrs Jos.. 20
Wilson, J F..... 25
Wilson, W 25
Winney, Mrs 25
Winslow, B 1 05
Winslow, Mrs J.. 2 00
Winslow, J D.... 50
Winslow, J N.... 50
Winslow, Mrs J N 25
Winters, Chas ... 5 00
Winter, Mrs Chas 2 10
Wolf, J 2 00
Woodall, Chas.... 3 00
Woolford, Mrs H 25
Wood, E R..... 25
Wood, Mr & Mrs G F..... 75
Wood, L G..... 25
Wood, Mrs Mary. 2 00
Wood, Parker ... 1 00
Woods, Dora 10
Worth, John 1 00
Wright, M E.... 1 00
Wright, N S..... 1 00
Wright, Phebe A. 1 00
Wright, Mrs W E 1 00
Yarrington, J 1 00
Young, Mrs J..... 1 00
Younge, A 1 00
Youngs, Mrs Bert. 15

NEW YORK—Cont'd.

Yale, Mrs & Mr & Mrs V N Randolph 5 00
Young, A G..... 1 00
Young, C F A & others 2 00
Young, G T..... 1 00
Youngs, Geo E... 25
Yonst, Mrs C.... 1 00
Zeller, Mrs E..... 25
Watson, Albany... 2 00
Dexter, Stockton.. 1 00
Guy & Max, Elmira 1 00
Hannah, Seward.. 1 00
Mae, Brooklyn... 1 00
Sarah, Seward.... 1 00
A B, Horseheads. 25
A G B, N Y City..20 00
A L B, N Y City.. 1 00
A M S, Chatham. 25
C C, Ribley 2 00
C E, Horseheads. 25
C L, Hempstead.. 2 00
C L B, Glen Falls 2 00
E A, Dobbs Ferry 2 00
E E H, Sand Lake 1 00
E J P, Hedgesville 1 00
E S, —..... 25
E T M, Fairfield.. 1 00
J A C, Watervliet 1 00
J A R, Hedgesville 1 00
J E S, Rochester. 1 00
J M B, Ft Covington 1 50
J O O F, Brookfield 1 00
M, N Y City 5 00
M P W, Masonville 5 00
M S C, Fort Covington 3 00
M V L, Middletown 1 00
N F C, Fredonia.. 5 00
P L P, E Greenbush 2 00
R G, N Y City.... 5 00
S A F, Hudson.... 1 00
S H B, —..... 1 00
W, Rondont..... 1 00
W, Woodbourne..10 00
W F T & W R W, Brewerton 1 12
W T, N Y City.... 1 00
Miss M E,..... 15
Miss M E D, Albany 1 00
Mrs F H C, Union Springs 75
Mrs H, Syracuse. 2 00
Mrs J H Q, Stillwater 2 00
X Y Z, Dunkirk... 50
—, Boice 30
—, Boonville.... 1 00
—, Brooklyn.... 1 00
—, Busti 1 00
—, Carlton..... 25
—, Castile 1 00
—, Chili 1 00
—, Clarence.....10 00
—, Clay..... 1 00
—, Falconer..... 1 25
—, Gloversville..79 50
—, Hobart..... 50
—, Horseheads.. 5 00
—, Huntersland.. 5 00
—, Malone 2 00
—, Medina 2 00
—, Medway 1 00
—, N Y City..... 1 00
—, N Y City.....15 00
—, Rochester.... 5 00
—, Staatsburg... 20
—, Syracuse..... 25
—, Wassaic..... 25
—, Wassaic..... 25
—, Wassaic..... 25
Cash, Sea Cliff.... 03
Friend, Albion.... 1 00
Friend, Brooklyn.. 1 00
A Friend, Bklyn.. 1 20
A Friend, Buffalo 6 00
Friends, Attica..14 00
Friends at Hay Ground, Bridge Hampton 12 00
Friends of Ref Ch, Germantown 2 55
Friends, Morrisville Station..... 4 00
Friends of 2d Ch of Evan Assoc, Ger, N Y City.. 3 35
Friends in the 7th Day Bapt Ch, N Y City 10 00
Young Friends, Ozone Park 3 75
2 Friends, Bridge-Hampton 1 10
Two Friends, Conewango 1 50
Two Friends, Lansingburg 5 00
Two Friends, W Colesville 1 00
Three Friends, Brooklyn 3 00
Three Friends, Panama 50
Polish friends, Dunkirk 2 00
I H N, Brooklyn Hills 1 00
I H N, Della 2 00
I H N, Mechanicville 1 00
I H N, Ripley 3 00
I H N, Rockton.. 5 00
In Jesus' Name, Louisville 1 00
In memory of departed mother, E W, Islip, L I...15 00
In memory of Nellie, Mumford....10 00
In memory of Jeanie, N Y City 5 00
In memory of N S C May 10th 1900, N Y City.....15 00
Sympathetic fam, Lansingburg 4 00

NEW YORK—Cont'd.

A drop in the bucket, Bridge Hampton 1 00
Wilbur Sch House Prayer Meeting, Clifton Park...11 00
Employees of Sulphite Pulp & Paper Co, Dexter..18 03
Uncle Billey, Islip, L I 10 00
A non Subr, Kingston 2 00
Employees of St Lawrence Mills, Dexter 7 00
P O Box 65, Schenectady 2 00
The Citizens Fund of Lincoln.....11 00
4 Ladies, Maine... 1 00
No 20, Margaretville 2 00
S Sch, Class, Marion 2 00
Children of Sch Dist No 7, Mottville 2 50
An invalid, Rochester 25
Children of Roslyn Pres Ch 1 00
A S S Class, Dunkirk 40
S School Class of Girls, Brooklyn. 75
Prim Dept, Bridge Hampton School 2 50
2 Sisters, Elmira. 2 00
A Christian, N Y City 1 00
A few boys of P S No 8, N Y City. 35
Mother & Daughters, Smyrna.... 1 00
Arkell, Hudson... 10
Baners, N Y C... 25
Bird, Maine 1 00
Little Carl, Maine 25
Cufic, Bath Beach 1 00
Giles, Warren, Helen & Mott..... 1 00
Jay & Jennie..... 3 00
Margaret, Munnsville 5 00
Mickle, Flosie & Rosa & Pearl, Martindale 65
Naom, Rochester. 5 00
A S, N Y C..... 50
C B L, Colden... 5 00
C E M, Watertown 1 00
C H, No Argyle.. 5 00
C S H, Griffin Corner 1 00
D M R, Lockhart 2 00
E K B, ... 1 00
E & T, Brooklyn. 25
Mrs H C S, N Y C 1 00
I E F, Brownville 1 00
Mrs J J H,..... 50
Miss K M C, Blyn 2 00
M R W, Sterling.. 25
N F P, Franklin.. 2 00
O B X, Mandana. 7 00
R R S, Middletown 1 00
S, White Plain... 1 00
S B Y, Cornwall.. 1 00
S M D, Garnerville 25
Mrs S S B, Groveland, Sta 2 00
T H S, Jamestown50 00
T & S, New York. 4 00
Mrs W B, Quackenkill 50
Z E P, Richmond Mills 25
—, Black River. 50
—, Brooklyn.... 2 00
—, Brooklyn.... 2 00
—, Brooklyn.... 2 00
—, Buffalo 1 00
—, Dayton 1 00
—, Deini 10
—, Cape Vincent 25
—, Cornwall 3 00
—, Hector 35
—, Hornellsville 24
—, Ilion 20
—, Laona 6 30
—, Mountainville 3 00
—, New Lebanon 1 00
—, N Y C.....50 00
—, N Y C..... 1 00
—, Poplar Ridge 1 00
—, Poestenkill.. 1 00
—, Preston 1 00
—, Salem 1 00
—, Schenectady. 1 00
—, Schenevus .. 2 00
—, So Oxford... 1 00
—, Spencerport. 1 00
—, Spring Lake 1 00
—, Syracuse ... 1 00
—, Tioga Centre 1 00
—, Town Line.. 1 00
Cash, Adams 9 68
Cash, Pine Plains 1 00
Cash, Lansingburg 85
Cash, N Y C....10 00
Friend of Jesus, Patchogue 2 00
Friends of the suffering, Middletown 3 75
A Friend of the suffering, Middletown 1 00
A Friend, Amsterdam 2 00
Friend, Arcadia.. 50
A Friend, Auburn 25
A Friend, Auburn 1 00
Friends, Bedford. 50
Friends, Beerston 6 00
A Friend, Brainans Corners..... 1 00
Friends, Brasher. 1 75
A Friend, Buffalo 50
Friend, Buffalo... 25
Friend, Clayton.. 25
A Friend, Clinton 5 00
Friend, Syracuse. 1 00

NEW YORK—Cont'd.

Friend, Cornwall. 1 00
Friends, Dover Plains 1 00
Friends in Edmeston 1 25
Friend, Fair Oaks 15
A Friend, Greenport 5 00
Friend, Kent Cliffs 8 00
Friends, Hedgesville 4 00
Friend, Mooers Forks 2 00
A Friend, Newark 25
A Friend, Newark 05
A Friend, Newark 25
A Friend, N Y C. 2 00
A Friend, N Y C. 27
A Friend, North Hempstead 2 00
Friends, Perrys Mills 5 00
Friends, Pt Leyden 75
Friends, S Fallsburg 5 00
Friend, Waterport 25
Friend, Willsboro 1 00
I H N, Ozone P'k 3 25
I H N, Pawling.. 1 00
I H N, Marilla.. 2 00
I H N, Cassadaga 2 00
Reader, No Hillsdale 50
Subr, Lake Side.. 1 00
A Subr, Chenango Forks 1 00
Subr, Wilseyville 1 00
Weadaman, Holland 25
Springsteen Four Little Boys.....11 00
Mother & dau, Mahopac Falls 3 00
A Neighbor, Mahopac Falls 2 00
In mem of a Father, Hannibal. 2 00
A Good Samaritan, Pine Plains 20 00
In mem of a Mother, Hannibal .. 2 00
Readers of The Churchman ...181 50
Thank-Offering .. 5 00
Collected, Caseade Valley 50
A Mother & Dau, Marcellus 75
Lady emp's of J Adler & Co, Gloversville 16 00
Ruby, Noble & Herbert, Loon Lake 15
For The Master, Troy 2 00
2 Sisters, Humphreyville 3 00
A Mite, Upper Red Hook 1 00
B P T & Mother, Cowanda 2 00
Union Contr'n, Gilbertsville ...20 42,
Proceeds of Fair, N Y City..... 35
Unnamed, Dc Grasse 32
Unnamed, De Grasse 08
Unnamed, De Grasse 56
Contributed, De Grasse 25
Unnamed, Upper Clare 14
Contributed, Upper Clare 10
Freely ye have rec'd, freely give, Forks 2 25
A widows mite, Pt Jervis 1 00
A Class of Girls, Oyster Bay 24 50
Coll'd by Light Bearers, Munnsville 1 55
Cont'n Box, Alexandria Bay 15
Coll'ns by Coll'rs, Alexandria Bay. 9 83
Coll'ns at Devotion-Mtgs, Alexandria Bay 1 43
Two Sisters, Indian Falls 5 00
The Lord's Money, Dickinson 80
Mother & Son, Afton 40
Little Pearls Mite, Albany 2 72
In mem of Marg't, Newark 20
With Gods blessing, Tuley 2 00
United Cong, Meth, Pres & Bapt Chs, Nunda 53 00
Subr, Tallman ... 5 00
Bapt Ch, Coventry 5 25
Christ Epis Ch, Brooklyn 10 00
Spanish & Portuguese Jews Cong, N Y City.....20 00
Bapt Ch, Lorraine 5 39
Class No 6 Ref Ch, Castleton 2 30
M E Ch, Lorraine.15 00
Un Service of Ch of Roxbury 31 10
Bapt Ch, Afton.. 9 50
Ch Coll'n Orwell. 6 00
Ref Pres Church, Duanesburg 15 00
Ref Ch, Fonda...52 17
Olivet Baptist Ch, Deuton 2 50
St Pauls Ch, Flatbush 13 03
Bantist Ch, Kent Cliffs 7 40

NEW YORK—Cont'd.

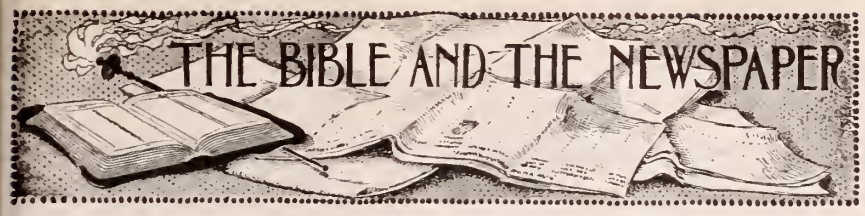
Some members of Trinity Ch, Roslyn 6 05
Baptist Ch, Farmers Mills 5 50
Haskinville Wesleyan Meth Ch..17 55
Fillmore M E S S, Ransomville ... 5 25
Balmville Un S S, Newburgh 15 00
Bapt S S, Ilion.. 8 00
Middle Hope M E S S, Newburgh. 1 15
S School, Henneys Corners 4 12
S S, Owl's Head. 4 60
Friends Bapt S S of 160th St, N Y City 1 00
E E Bapt S Sch, Brooklyn 10 00
Trinity P E S S, N Y City 5 00
Emmanuel House S Sch 10 00
Uhl's, Miss K, S S Class 6 00
Class No 4, M E S S, Smithboro.. 2 00
Prim S S Cl, Bapt Ch, Bramans Corners 60
Christian Ch, Castile 10 00
Standard Bearers of Hill S S, No Collins 3 00
Pres S S, Scipioville 2 50
Bapt S Sch, Essex 6 76
Pres S Sch, Elba..30 83
Natural Bridge S Sch, Jefferson... 5 40
M E S Sch, Jonesville 7 50
M E S S, Whitesboro 6 58
Grace Emmanuel Ch S S, N Y C.. 2 68
S S Cl of Mrs H N, Granger 1 05
Mrs Peterson's Cl, Faith Mission, Brooklyn 1 65
Greenville S Sch, Haskinville 9 51
1st Pres S School, Watervliet 14 50
Mt Sinai S Sch,.. 5 00
Hagadorn Hill S S, Halsey Valley 4 00
Pres S Sch, Jewett12 00
Pupils & Teachers of Sch Dist No 8, Potsdam 3 50
Scholars in Dist 8, Phelps 1 00
Sch of Dist No 19 of Arcadia 1 91
High Sch, Alexandria Bay 2 51
P S Room No 5, Alexandria Bay. 1 01
P S Room No 4, Alexandria Bay. 1 67
P S Room No 3, Alexandria Bay. 2 41
P S Room No 2, Alexandria Bay. 91
P S Room No 1, Alexandria Bay. 43
Prim Sch, Whitehall 2 00
S S C E Soc & Cong of Pres Ch, Ox Bow 29 00
Jr Lea, M E Ch, Norfolk 2 00
R R & Local Y M C A, Oneonta... 3 85
Y P S C E, Lamberton 18 00
W M Soc, 2d Pres Ch, Middletown. 5 00
Epw League, Glenford 3 28
Baptist C E Soc, Hartford 9 60
Womens Miss Soc & S Sch, of Mannet Bapt Ch....10 00
Jr Lea, M E Ch, Mexico 1 02
Jr Rally at Washington St M E Ch, Poughkeepsie 5 00
Y P S C E, No Evans 6 75
C E Soc, Beerston 6 00
C E, Nashville.... 1 00
Pres Ch coll, Ballston Springs..... 1 00
Y P S C E 46 25
Jr Epw League, Jordan 2 25
Jr C E Soc, Helena 1 00
Y P S C E, Bapt Ch, Castile 4 00
S C C of K D, Earlville 10 40
Young Ladies Aid Soc, Dresden Ctr 5 00
Busy Bee Soc of Cong Ch, Keene Valley 2 32
L A Soc of Cong Ch, Keene Valley 10 00
Plessis Cheerful Givers 9 50
Y P S C E of Bapt Ch, Northville.. 9 00
Y P Home Miss Soc, Alexandria Bay 4 00
Ladies Aid Soc'y, Waterport 4 75
B Y P U, Bapt Ch, Brooklyn .. 5 00
Bapt Ch & C E S, Sandy Creek .. 6 70
W C T U Branch, Smithtown 1 00

NEW YORK—Cont'd.

Ep League, 1st M E Ch, Gloversville 4 25
C E Soc, Ricard. 5 00
Ep Lea, Chap No 911, Flushing .. 3 85
C E Soc of Denton Presby Ch, New Hampton.. 5 25
Ladies Aid Soc of the R D Ch, Grahamsville 8 60
Baptist Miss U, Prattsburg 9 00
W C T U, Sloansville 3 00
W C T U, Dorloch 2 00
W C T U, Stanford 2 00
W C T U, Nashville 3 00
W C T U, Mina.. 3 70
—, —..... 8 00
Fin de Siecle Club, Hancock 25 60

MISCELLANEOUS

Allen, Lizzie 10
Austin, O D..... 2 00
Babst, Anna 05
Baker, Emma ... 10
Barrett, Lottie .. 10
Baylor, Mr 10
Beal, Mrs K..... 50
Begley, Julia 05
Bitz, Millie 10
Blumenbaum, L... 25
Blumer, Eliz'th.. 10
Brieu, Lena C... 25
Breman, Mary .. 10
Byrne, Cecily ... 10
Cady, Elisha 1 00
Carter, Lou 10
Ciblin, Julia 05
Conley, Rosa 25
Dice, Lillian 10
Dunn, Celia 10
Freeman, E A.... 25
Gilmore, Neil ... 25
Gloeckler, Frieda. 10
Green, Mrs 10
Henderson, Emma 25
Henderson, Mrs S 1 00
Hilts, Annetta... 1 00
Holdeid, Bertha.. 10
Holstein, Panline 10
Jones, B L..... 1 00
Joyce, Annie 10
Kelly, Mamie 05
Kloss, Minnie ... 05
Kweein, Emily .. 10
Levy, Flossie 20
Litchfield, Clara.. 20
McCarthy, Lizzie. 05
McGaffin, B 50
McNair, Malcolm. 1 00
Mahon, L 1 00
Meiner, F G Jr... 5 00
Mighells, L M.... 50
Miller, Frieda ... 10
Morely, Mrs Geo D & Friends.... 7 06
Netchert, Kath'ne 10
Ortel, Lizzie 10
Palmer, Claire .. 25
Perrine, Justicus. 10
Perrine, W H, Sparta 05
Pickard, Frank.. 10
Pickart, Warren.. 10
Petterson, Mrs .. 10
Portence, Jno 5 00
Ploucquet, P 10
Redmond, Robt . 10
Reiss, Emily 05
Relley, Lizzie ... 05
Roeder, Lucy 10
Rossiter, Kittie.. 10
Schaaf, Bertha .. 25
Scheel, Mrs 10
Shamon, Ellen .. 05
Shankey, Sarah... 05
Smith, Lizzie 10
Smith, M J..... 25
Spear, Minnie.... 14
Stondinger, C J.. 2 00
Thompson, Ella .. 50
Tumbelty, Kate.. 10
Turtan, Emily ... 25
Van Bensehoten, M 1 30
Van Houten, E... 10
Wallach, G 25
Walsh, Mary 10
Waterhouse, R .. 1 00
Weintraub, Fany. 05
West, Nellie 05
Willeck, Mamie .. 10
Wynanns, Miss .. 10
Anon 10
Anon, —..... 1 00
Anon, —..... 10
E E R, Maine...10 00
P S & F S C, Marlboro 5 00
P—, L E..... 2 04
W—, I E..... 10
—, Bowling Gr'n 1 00
—, Caldwell 1 00
—, Coventry 5 00
—, Jenkintown.. 2 00
—, Nashua 05
—, Sand Creek. 50
1 H N, Gettsburg 25
I H N, Middle Fks 1 00
Friends, —..... 3 00
From a Friend,.. 02
A Friend, —..... 1 00
A Friend, Halifax 2 00
Friend, Lockport. 50
Friend, Worcester 1 00
In the Lords Name 1 00
A Reader, —..... 1 00
Reader, Otego.... 1 00
From the Poor,— 60
N—, De Witt.... 05
T—, Oscar 25
Willis family, ... 2 00
—, —..... 23
—, —..... 5 00
—, —..... 2 00
—, —.....10 00
—, —..... 1 00
—, —..... 25



Perished in Flames

HORROR, in which all the civilized world sympathizes, is felt as the reports of the great fire in New York harbor on June 30, are read. Considering the suddenness of the calamity, the value of property destroyed and the number of lives sacrificed, it was one of the worst disasters New York has witnessed in recent times. Four piers, three great ocean steamships, and stores of costly merchandise were burned in one short evening, involving a loss of more than ten million dollars and the appalling destruction of probably three hundred lives. So far as can be learned, the fire started in a bale of cotton lying on Pier No. 3 of the North German Lloyd Steamship Dock, at Hoboken, N. J. Before it could be extinguished, the wind had carried the flames to other bales and from them to a pile of several hundred barrels of whiskey awaiting shipment. In an almost incredibly short space of time, the whole pier was ablaze from end to end. The fire leaped northward to Pier 2 and thence to Pier 1, before the Fire Department could reach the scene. Four great liners were lying at the piers. On the south side of Pier No. 2 lay the Saale ready to sail for Boston, Mass., where it was to take on board a great party of Christian Endeavorers, who were going to London to attend the World's Convention. On the other side of the same pier was the Bremen, taking in coal, ready to start for the voyage across the Atlantic on July 5. On the south side of Pier No. 1, the finest steamer of the whole fleet and one of the finest in the world, the Kaiser Wilhelm der Grosse was moored preparing to sail on July 3, and on the other side the pier, the beautiful new steamer Main, built last year. All the doors and port-holes of the steamers were open, as it was a hot day and cargo was being taken aboard and there were many visitors going and coming. The flames from the burning piers were sucked in through these apertures, and, in a short time, every vessel had caught fire. The danger was seen from the river and a score of tugs came to the rescue. The Kaiser Wilhelm, being the most valuable of the four, was first attached and the tugs began to drag her out, but she was held to the pier by stout steel hawsers which no one could unfasten. They were chopped apart with axes and then the huge vessel was pulled out, afire on her starboard bow. It was quickly extinguished by the crew and was soon beyond reach of the flames. The other three vessels were then dragged out, their hawsers being cut, but they were already burning from stem to stern and there was no hope of saving them. The fireboats poured volumes of water into them, but the fire had them in its clutch and burned everything in them that would burn down to the hulls. How many persons were on board the three vessels will probably never be known. Many who were on the upper decks jumped off, some to be picked up by the tugs and others drowned in the general confusion. In the engine-room and the lower decks many were held prisoners, their way of escape cut off by the burning passages. On the Saale the faces of the men were seen at the portholes pleading for help, which could not be rendered, and on the upper deck stood Captain J. Mirow, dying like a hero on his vessel. Besides these victims, there were people on the lighters, which had also caught fire, and these also perished.

It was an awful scene. From four o'clock in the afternoon, when the fire was first seen, until nearly eleven, when it had burned itself out, it was one continuous horror. How many lives might have been saved had the officials made it their first business to warn the men on the lower decks, instead of trying to save the property, will never be known. Perhaps now, too, the cities may realize their responsibility and make a repetition of the catastrophe impossible, by insisting on the substitution of granite docks for the wretched, grease-saturated wooden piers which are a source of perpetual danger to life and property. All the elements of the conflagration were present, the cotton, the spirits and the greasy planking. Just a match carelessly tossed away would be sufficient to start it:

Behold how great a matter a little fire kindleth (James 3:5).

CAPT. PETERMANN, OF THE "MAIN" CAPT. ENGELBART OF THE "KAISER" CAPT. J. MIROW, OF THE "SAALE"

By Courtesy of N. Y. Journal

THE "BREMEN" AND THE "MAIN" AFTER THE FIRE WAS UNDER CONTROL

A Honeymoon in a Box-car

A young couple recently married, both belonging to millionaire families, are spending their honeymoon in a box car in Kansas. The local journals are taking lively interest in their proceedings, but are apparently unable to solve the mystery of the arrangement. According to their reports the two young people met for the first time at Hot Springs, Ark., last fall. The bride's father went there with his family for their health and there became acquainted with the young man who is now the bridegroom. He is the son of a millionaire railroad man. After a short acquaintance he proposed marriage and was accepted. The wedding-day was fixed and a magnificent trousseau was ordered from Paris for the bride. But before the day arrived something occured which caused the bride's parents to change their minds. It was they live. The bridegroom, in his overalls, jumper and slouch hat, coming home on a wagon load of soil, does not look much like the son of a millionaire, but he professes that he is happy and enjoys the life. It must be a very different honeymoon from the one he and his wife expected to spend, but if they really love one another they can be happy in any surroundings. It is so with the Christian when he realizes the love of his Lord. Having that, though he may be in poverty and have to bear hardships, he can echo the words of the Psalmist:

Whom have I in heaven but thee? There is none upon earth that I desire besides thee (Psalm 73:25.)

A Tragical Record

A press dispatch from Seattle, Wash., reports the melancholy ending of a search for gold. It appears that five men—two from San Francisco, two from Minneapolis and one from Tacomo—made up a party to search for some abandoned diggings near the Ungatuk River. They were successful in finding the diggings, several hundred miles from the coast. No news was received of them until last month, when a party of prospectors, taking refuge in a half-finished fishing hut, found the body of the Tacoma man. He was identified by a memorandum book which was in one of his pockets. It contained a diary disclosing a story of suffering and crime. Its entries show that the diggings proved even richer than was anticipated. In one week the five men took out gold worth more than twenty thousand dollars. Then came a change in the attitude of one of the men. He seemed almost demented by the prospect of the vast wealth he would obtain. One morning he rushed into the tent where three of the men slept, to tell them that the man who slept with him had been murdered in the night. There was little doubt in the minds of the three men that it was he who had done the deed and they resolved to be on their guard against him. But, in spite of their caution, he shot one of them. Then the other two decided on putting him to death. They did so eventually, but not until there had been a fight, in which one of them was badly wounded. The writer of the diary describes the efforts he made to improve the condition of his sole surviving companion, which, evidently, was very critical. The entries in the diary cease abruptly, but a bullet wound in the body of the writer shows that he too died a violent death. It is conjectured that the wounded man became delirious and shot the friend who was trying to save his life. What became of the wounded man is not known, but probably he also died. Thus the whole party perished in their search for gold. So even in our own day the Apostle's warning is being fulfilled:

They that will be rich fall into temptation and a snare . . . for the love of money is the root of all evil which while some coveted after they have pierced themselves through with many sorrows (I. Timothy 6:9).

Brief Notes

The cook in one of the London Salvation Army shelters was for fourteen years a Capuchin monk and nightly slept in a coffin.

The last descendant of John Bunyan died recently at Lincoln, England, in the person of Mrs. T. M. Keyworth. She was ninety-nine years of age. The last male descendant died many years ago, and a monument is erected to his memory in Lincoln Cemetery.

Professor Sayce, writing to the Expository Times, expresses the belief that one of the mummies recently found in Egypt is that of Meneptah II., the Pharaoh of the Exodus, who apparently did not accompany his army when it followed the Israelites into the Red Sea. It was found in the tomb of another Pharaoh, Amenhotep II.

Dr. John G. Paton, of the New Hebrides, is appealing to American public opinion in the hope that Congress may pass a bill forbidding American firms to send intoxicating liquor to the New Hebrides. It is doubtful, however, whether Congress has the power to pass such an act.

Mr. Charles N. Crittenton is trying to raise an endowment fund of half a million dollars for the sixty Florence Missions he has established in various cities for the reclamation of fallen girls. Already over eighty thousand dollars have been contributed.

Evangelist E. P. Telford is holding special meetings in the great Mission House built by Mr. Charrington in East London.

The Princess of Monaco, the smallest principality in Europe, is a Jewess. She is the first of her race to occupy a European throne.

King Menelik, of Abyssinia, has issued an edict prohibiting the importation into his dominions of all kinds of intoxicating liquor, tobacco and snuff.

The Marquis of Salisbury, the British Premier, recently entertained at his residence, Hatfield House, over three hundred Christian Endeavorers who went there by special train and spent the day.

Dr. W. F. Oldham, of Columbus, O., has been elected Assistant Secretary of the Missionary Society of the Methodist Episcopal Church. Dr. Oldham is a native of India, of English descent on his father's side and Irish on his mother's. It was through the influence of Bishop William Taylor that he was converted and became a minister. His early work was done as a missionary in India and at Singapore.

Epworth Heights, Ohio, will be a busy place during the next three weeks. From July 17th to 21st a Bible conference will be held there conducted by Rev. James E. Gilbert, D.D., and other friends. From July 22 to 26 the Young People's Union Assembly will be in session at which Dr. Thirkield will speak. And from July 27 to August 5 there will be a camp-meeting during which Rev. C. W. Wilson will give Bible readings and Mrs. Coleman will lead the children's meetings.

The Enthronement of Self-Sacrifice

PETER'S CONFESSION

BY DR. AND MRS. WILBUR F. CRAFTS

International Sunday School Lesson for July 22: Matt. 16: 13-26

Golden Text, Matt. 16: 24: If any man will come after me, let him deny himself, and take up his cross and follow me

IN the lesson of to-day we shall see how Peter stumbled over Christ's announcement that the final world kingdom is to be built, not on the blood of the King's enemies, but his own. Not selfishness but self-sacrifice is to win the world's throne at the last. Not hate but love is the ultimate conqueror in the world at large.

. . .

Cæsarea Philippi. Christ had gone with his apostles to this spot at the base of snow-capped Mount Hermon as a "retreat" for prayer and teaching. A mountain, a fountain and a grove were here together, three things especially sought for in heathen worship. Fallen gods and fallen temples were in sight as they talked, and perhaps suggested a reference to a "living God." The place was named by Philip, the Tetrarch, in part for himself and in part for Tiberias Cæsar, "the meanest of mankind." But here was now to be proclaimed, and later, crowned, the noblest of mankind—crowned here on the boundary between Jew and Gentile as King of both.

Whom do men say that I the Son of Man am? Christ was a great questioner. The "Socratic method" is also the Christ method. Daniel had called the promised Messiah "the Son of Man." He was to be both a true man and a full man: a true man, and so our Friend; a full man, and so our Example. Every man who knows of Christ is not only bound to have an opinion of him but also to be himself affected by that opinion.

"What think ye of Christ?" is the test
To try both your state and your scheme;
You cannot be right in the rest
Unless you think rightly of him.

As to-day, many thought him only a great man, a great prophet, a heroic reformer—great and good, but not God. Some thought he was John the Baptist, or Elijah, or Jeremiah brought back to life. They had credulity enough to think him a superhuman prodigy, but not faith enough to accept his own declaration that he was incarnate Deity.

. . .

Peter's Creed Thou art the Christ. This is the first article in the creed here declared with the first reference to the "church." When Jesus asked, "Whom say ye that I am?" Peter, always first to speak, replied, "Thou art the Messiah." "Christ" is the Greek form of the word. Both words mean the Anointed One, that is, the King. That Christ is to reign on earth was the first article in all Bible creeds.

The Fatherhood of God is named second in this natural creed. It is through Christ as "the Son of the living God" that we learn of that Fatherhood. Jesus said, "He that hath seen me, hath seen the Father." And it is through Christ also that we come to the Father, for Jesus said, "No man cometh unto the Father but by me." This part of Peter's creed has not only personal and spiritual, but also social and practical value.

A slave-owner, feeling that he ought to teach religion to his slaves, said to one of his black boys: "Say after me what I say: 'Our Father.'" "Is he your father?" asked the boy. "Yes." "And is he my father?" "Yes." "Then we are brothers." Aye, and let every man who says "Our Father" remember in this age of race and class conflicts that his Hebrew competitors and his Hungarian employees are his brothers—their faults to be conquered by brotherly kindness rather than hatred or hauteur.

The third article in this creed was added by Christ, namely, revelation. "Flesh and blood," he said to Peter, "hath not revealed it unto thee, but my Father." The Holy Spirit is not here named, but we know it is through the Holy Spirit that God makes revelations to men, as Peter himself said in his second epistle (1: 21) that "men spake from God, being swept on [like ships before the wind] by the Holy Spirit."

. . .

Was Peter the First Pope? The fourth article in this creed proclaims the "church," here for the first time mentioned, as founded on the believer's personal confession of Christ: "Thou art Peter, and upon this rock I will build my church." Libraries have been written, and wars have been waged over this verse, and the "key" verse following, which to many has been a keyless lock. Even if this verse should be admitted to mean that Peter was the rock on which the church was to be built, it would not in the least strengthen the claims of the Pope, for there is no intimation that Peter was to have successors in these honors. The actual history of the apostolic church is a prime factor in the interpretation of these much debated verses. Peter was the leading spirit in the first era of the church. He opened its doors to five thousand Jews during Pentecost and the days following, and at the home of Cornelius also admitted the first Gentile members. He excluded from the church Ananias and Sapphira. The gates of hell, the powers of evil in Jewish and Roman rulers, did not prevail against the church, of which Peter was then the leader. But it was only for a few years that Peter was even first among equals, the chairman, rather than the chieftain, of the apostolic board, for Paul soon became the chief apostle. Instead of one apostle being the rock, it is distinctly stated (Rev. 21: 14) that the "twelve foundations are the twelve apostles of the Lamb." The words Christ spoke to Peter must accord with that other "sure word" (Eph. 2: 20) as to the "foundation of the apostles and prophets, Jesus Christ himself being the chief cornerstone." Peter himself taught that all Christians are "living stones" in the church, a word that means, not a building, to which it should never be applied, but an assembly of living persons. In that confession of faith in Christ, Peter was simply the first stone to place himself upon Christ, the cornerstone. If he was the first pope, his first "bull" was one in the Irish sense, a bull against the atonement—surely that was not infallibility—and his first title was the synonym of "Leo," the "roaring lion." "Get thee behind me, Satan, for thou savorest not the things of God."

Peter's "Keys" are also Ours And I will give unto thee the keys. "Keys," in the well-established language of symbolism, stand for power. Officers used to carry keys as badges of authority. Binding and loosing symbolize permitting and forbidding, which in this case apply not to persons, but to things. "Whatsoever thou shalt bind." In Turkey to-day, dancing dervishes tie and loose a girdle, saying, "I bind up selfishness; I unbind generosity." This passage clearly means, not that Peter holds the keys of heaven, and binds or looses persons in purgatory, for all the apostles are given the same power of the keys in Matt. 18: 18. The words "kingdom of heaven" never mean heaven above, but heavenly customs coming down to earth in a new social life. The key verse therefore means that every believer is given the power and privilege in his life of allegiance to God to develop such similarity of feeling with Him that what he forbids himself will be what God forbids, and what he permits himself will be what God permits. George MacDonald expresses the same thought when he says: "When God's will is our law, we are but a kind of noble slaves; but when God's will is our will, then are we his free children." In other words, the power of the keys refers to the life of him who is delivered not alone from the guilt, but also from the power—aye, from the very love of sin; so that he loves what God loves and hates what God hates.

Tell no man. Just then there were some reasons for avoiding the excitement of proclaiming his Messiahship; but now the command is that we should "Tell it out among the nations

That the Lord is king!
Tell it out, tell it out!"

. . .

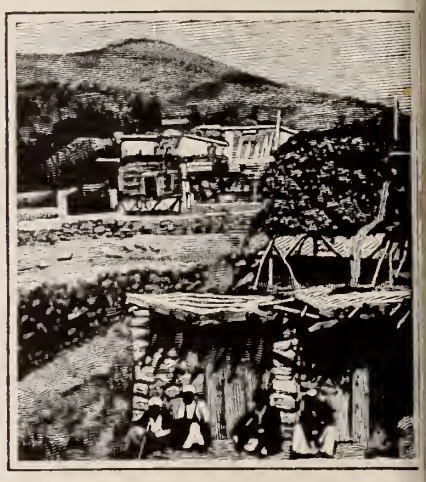
The Shadow of the Cross Jesus began to show that he must suffer many things. Now we come to the fifth article in the creed of this lesson, another that Christ added—atonement. From the first the Messiah had been pictured by the prophets as not only a Sovereign, but a Sufferer. The first promise was of a bruised Conqueror—"the seed of the woman who should bruise the serpent's head," but in so doing should be bruised himself. Three times in the first year of Christ's ministry and thirty times afterwards he foretold the Cross. It was the goal toward which he walked from the beginning. If we seek the true Cross it will lead us back from Calvary through Christ's three years of anticipatory suffering—aye, to the beginning of time, for he is "the Lamb slain from the foundation of the world." That is the foot of the Cross.

We are mercifully shielded from knowledge of future suffering. Christ knew all that was coming, but he also knew of the resurrection and of the crown beyond the Cross, and "for the joy set before him endured the Cross." But even the Cross had in it the supreme joy of self-sacrifice for the good of others. Let those of us who are admitted to the fellowship of such sacrifice realize that in it we may find "the very ecstasy of God." How truly representative of "the things that be of men" Peter suddenly became in repudiating the self-sacrifice his Master foretold! Peter was repeating the temptation the devil had presented in the wilderness to establish a kingdom swiftly by force, rather than slowly by love and sacrifice, and so Jesus said: "Get thee behind me, Satan." He who had spoken but a moment before for the Holy Spirit had thus quickly become the mouthpiece of the Evil Spirit. Surely he was no infallible Pope, but an instinctive representative of the everyday Christian, who needs to be especially watchful against temptation after some spiritual success has brought praise and undue elation.

Take up his cross. Nothing is properly called a "cross" which we bear because we must, nothing that we do not voluntarily "take up." It means any self-sacrificing work willingly undertaken. There are three right steps to which we are called. We are commanded to love ourselves as well as our neighbors in the second commandment, but the call to take up the cross is a call to the higher, Christlike privilege of sacrificing self for others. This is more than self-denial, which is only "self-love living for the future."

As he died to make men holy
Let us live to make them free.

Not in China only, but also among our "heathen at home," to proclaim Christ is to take up the cross. In the Y. M. C. A., one of the stalwart duties of members is to give out on the streets cards of invitation to the meetings. In San Francisco one who was thus engaged followed a lot of young men into a saloon to give them these invitations. All accepted them politely except one who tore up the card and spat on the worker who gave it to him. The first thought was "This is too much," but then the loving words of the dear Master in John 15: 20, "The servant is not greater than his Lord," flashed through his mind, and he said, "this is nothing more than what my Master bore for me; they spat upon him, and I certainly should be willing to bear any reproach or insult for his sake." Without saying a word in reply, taking his handkerchief and wiping his coat, he passed out of the hall into the street, giving cards to young men whom he met. Standing on the corner of one of the streets near the concert hall a few minutes later distributing invitations still, a young man stepped up to him and said, "Sir, excuse me, but are you the gentleman who was giving out cards in the concert hall a few moments ago?" Mr. Nelson replied, "I had that pleasure; yes, sir;" and he said "Well, I have come to apologize; I spat on you. I want to tell you I never did a meaner thing in all my life, or anything of which I have felt more ashamed. I most sincerely ask your pardon, and not only that but ask you to pray for me to begin this very night to lead a different life." Mr. Nelson said "I most gladly and readily forgive you, and will be only too glad to remember you in prayer." He earnestly invited the young man to the service on the following Sunday. He was present, and when the invitation was given at the close for those who desired to become Christians to rise, he was among the first to rise, and we believe gave his heart to God on that day.



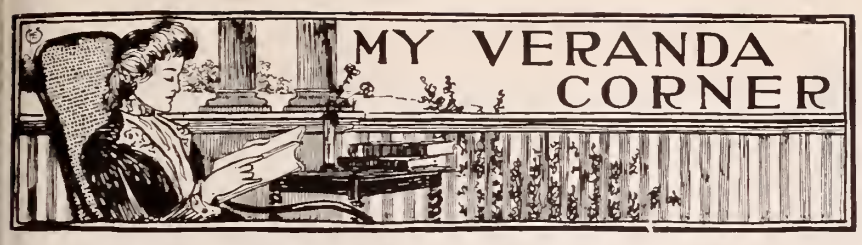
SCENE AT THE MODERN CÆSAREA PHILIPPI

Let us try to fathom the meaning of Christ's words, "He that saveth his life shall lose it," and the companion saying, "What shall it profit a man if he shall gain the whole world and forfeit his life?" Both these show that selfishness sacrifices the greater for the lesser. Unselfishness is the way to greatest "gain" in a true estimate of values and of joys. I am thinking of a rich man who was glum and silent, a hard money grubber. He was induced to give one hundred and fifty thousand dollars toward building a beautiful church, and his joy in the beautiful embodiment of his gift loosed his tongue and made his face radiant. With him as with other rich men the pleasure of getting was far outdone in the joy of wise giving. As Christ said, in the words overlooked by the Evangelists, but recorded by Paul (Acts 20: 35) "It is more blessed to give than to receive."

The joy of a healthful, happy maiden is beautiful, but a greater bliss is that of the mother whose face yet bears the marks of the agony as she holds her babe to her breast. Selfishness has its pleasures, but love, especially self-sacrificing love, dwells on loftier heights of bliss. Zinzendorf in 1721, gave all cross-bearers this song of cheer:

If the way be drear,
If the foe be near,
Let not faithless fears o'ertake us,
Let not faith and hope forsake us,
For through many a foe
To our home we go.

RAPHAEL'S FAMOUS CARTOON OF THE COMMISSION TO PETER



BY MARGARET E. SANGSTER

Homesick for the Sea

(By One Away from Home)

I'M wearying for the beating
Of the surf upon the shore,
That creams along the shingle
And prints the sanded floor;
I'm yearning for the sweetness
Of the salt within the sea,
For the rolling and the tumbling
Of the billows wild and free!

Hemmed in by rugged mountains,
Like prison walls that rise,
I walk the narrow canon
And scan the distant skies;
Oh, nearer bent their beauty,
Their stars were nearer me
When I was in my homeland
And dwelt beside the sea!

I'm longing for the marsh-grass
That grew so straight and strong,
From out the white sand lifting
Its spears the path along;
The grass-blades meant for battle
That the chill wind smote in glee;
I'm longing for the sword-grass
That grew beside the sea!

I've stood anear the coast-line
In sun and dew and rain
And watched the vessels sail away
Across the billowy plain;
I've stood anear the coast-line,
And many a one with me
Has waited till the ships came in Home-bound across the sea.

I'm wistful for the opal
That shimmers in the wave,
For rose and green and silver
And the ocean blue so brave;
The glory of the hill-tops
Less royal looks to me,
For I have known the glory
Of the ever-changing sea:

The sea that keeps her secrets,
Yet thunders all abroad
Her story of the power
And the ceaseless love of God;
The sea that ever hideth
Her tidal mystery,
In ebb and flood unresting:
I am homesick for the sea!

—MARGARET E. SANGSTER.

Woman in China

CHINA is to-day the spot which attracts all eyes. Curiously, too, a woman of China, the wicked Empress-Dowager, has managed to do more in the way of making trouble than any queen in Europe could possibly do. Despised, secluded and held in contempt, it has been reserved for an Oriental woman in modern days to be as bold as Jezebel, as arrogant as Semiramis and as coldly cruel as Lady Macbeth.

Tsi An, the daughter of an obscure Manchu Tartar, was born in 1834 and, as is often the fate of Chinese girls, was sold by her father into slavery. She was bright, quick, keen-witted, had unbound feet, because she was of humble birth, but made herself useful and a favorite in the home of the mandarin who bought her. In her young girlhood there came a chance for her to go with other maidens to the Emperor's palace—much as Queen Esther and her companions were sent to Shushan in the Bible story—and, once there, she pleased the Emperor, he married her, and she became the mother of his only son.

STREET PEDLER IN A CHINESE VILLAGE

Tsi An's career has been marked by duplicity, by intrigue, by the utmost unscrupulousness. She has stopped at nothing. In Oriental courts there are always easy ways: the cord, the cup of poison and the knife, to get rid of persons who stand in the way; and Tsi An has not a womanly weakness when she decrees the death of any one obnoxious to her. She hates foreigners and has surrounded herself with those who despise them. Human life is cheap in China. The Empress-Dowager would not care, so that she accomplished her ends, if every missionary and every diplomat and merchant from abroad in her Empire were killed, nor would she hesitate to sacrifice her own people by the tens of thousands to fulfil her purposes.

MANCHU LADIES OF PEKIN —— A WOMAN OF HIGH FAMILY

The lesson comes to us that we must more than ever strive to win the Oriental woman to Christ. The wives, the daughters, the little children of the East, the conservative and stubborn grandmothers, are especially those whom we must try to reach, if we would see the dawning of a brighter and better day. For all the putting in the background, for all the serfdom of the Oriental life of women, they still possess an immense influence, and their opposition to the Christian religion is often more to be dreaded and more inflexibly hostile than that of the men of their countries.

A high-caste lady in China wears rich clothing and has servants to wait upon her, but her daily life is monotonous and lacks the many interests to which the high-born European or the well-to-do American woman is accustomed. Her apartments are sacred to herself and only her nearest male relatives enter them. Of social life, as we understand it, and a gracious mingling of the sexes on terms of equality, the lady of China knows nothing. Her husband precedes her on entering a room, is first served at meals, has the finest furniture, the most artistic ornaments, and, in brief, the best of everything. And yet, as in the case of the Empress-Dowager, the woman in the background may assume the reins and the control, and it is by no means impossible that many a Chinese gentleman is ruled by his wife.

In most Chinese cities the streets are narrow, ill-paved or unpaved and distressingly dirty. They are clogged with booths and implements of trade, choked with all sorts of obstructions, and are in every respect in complete contrast to such streets as we are familiar with in our American towns.

Beauty Not a Matter of Birthdays

The Princess of Wales, who in her youth was a superb and beautiful woman, retains, now that she is approaching sixty, her extraordinary personal attractiveness to a marked degree. Her figure is still fine and symmetrical, although she has put on the flesh of time; her complexion is clear, and her face is very free from wrinkles. Constant massage probably has kept these lines away. People who are not princesses cannot spare an hour or more a day to rub their faces with cold cream and manipulate the crowsfeet which gather around their eyes. Yet wrinkles need not be dreaded. They seem to impart character to the countenance, and, if the prevailing expression be cheery, bright and amiable, a woman will be charming to her latest day.

The Discouraged Man

You may know him before he opens his mouth by his downcast look and the drooping lines in his face, by his inelastic step, by his inert air. Plodding along day in and day out, the discouraged man cannot find the groove which suits him; he is out of work, or his work is unappreciated. Others pass him in the race. He drags drearily on from youth to old age, out of heart, out of hope, and out of pocket.

God help the discouraged man! Well for him if he have a wife who can hearten him by her sunny disposition, and children who love and believe in him notwithstanding the frown of a chilling world.

Flowers for Household Adornment

IN a recent visit to a very beautiful inn at Mount Meenahga, New York, I was impressed with the wonderful capacity of flowers for decorative purposes. The season was that of the laurel, which was profusely in bloom, and the fire-places of the house were turned into bowers, the mantelpieces were adorned with great bouquets, and everywhere there were masses of the lovely blossom. I observed that these wild flowers were often put into stone jars and vases, brought from a native pottery; their homely shapes and opaque colors suited the flowers. In decorating a home with flowers, those of a single kind should be kept together, or if more than one family are used, two contrasting or harmonizing varieties are enough. Ferns may be mingled with white flowers to advantage; roses and mignonette, or roses and geranium look well in a bouquet, but sweet peas do better by themselves, and so do nasturtiums and lilies. The plainest table is made elegant by a mass of flowers in the middle, or by a slender vase with a single flower. Given a fair, white cloth, clean glass and shining silver, and a flower or two, and the farmhouse table will possess every requisite which appears on that of a queen.

A Secret of Charm

A beautiful woman left me an hour ago. She is not young, her hair has been silvery white for ten years, and she has not the roseleaf tints of youth, nor its lissome grace. But a girl said as the door closed, "She is perfectly bewitching. She is dear and true, but many women are that; she has charm. Where does it reside?"

"In her enthusiasm," I said. "It is contagious. She takes an eager interest in everything; she has opinions, and expresses them. Life is full of novelty, full of occasions for rejoicing, full of fresh possibilities. The child in her still exists, and with her child heart she inherits even now the kingdom of heaven."

Pen, Ink and Paper

A good pen, black ink, and a supply of note paper should always form part of the furnishing of a guest chamber. Also, each home should possess these requisites in the family sitting-room. There are houses in which one looks in vain for these cheap and commonplace conveniences.

Aunt Prudence Payson's Catch-all

—IRENE. Aunt Prudence is much interested in your question of conscience. Be positive, dear child, if you seem to excuse vice, if you are not abashed at profanity, and if you do not frown on intemperance and Sabbath-breaking, all of which evils are on the increase in this land of ours. Young men will feel that they have your sanction, or at least your sympathy in every lapse. You do not need to preach, nor to lecture, nor to put yourself forward in a conspicuous or unmaidenly way, dear young lady. You have only to show by your look, by your gravity, by your own example, that you expect from the men you meet reverence for the laws of God and observance of the laws of men. A man's sister, his sweetheart, his friend, may if she choose be his mentor, and impress him for good and for all eternity.

Often a very young man is singularly and strongly influenced by a woman a little his senior in age. There is no faintest suggestion of love in their friendship; that sentiment is not even remotely awakened, but the acquaintanceship insensibly moulds the young man; he adopts the opinions of the young lady; he goes out into the world stamped as with her seal. Such influence is a weapon of tempered steel, and its employment for good entails no slight responsibility on the one who uses it.

A HAPPY PARTY OF TENEMENT CHILDREN ON THEIR WAY TO THE NYACK BOAT

HAPPY WAIFS AT MONT-LAWN

IT would take a great book to show all the phases of our Fresh-Air Work. The pathetic, tender, beautiful story surpasses any telling! We have tried in the past to present to our readers, its generous, sympathetic friends, the various features developed under the best, most prayerful, most conscientious guidance we could give to this labor of love—this holy task of bringing little ones to Jesus, through simply loving them, feeding them, making them happy "In His Name". This week we present two pictures; one shows a group in the slums typical of hundreds of waifs now putting up the plea: "Please, mayn't I go to Mont-Lawn? here. That is one side of the picture.

Here on the writer's desk are a collection of letters; would that every friend of this blessed work might have the privilege of reading them with us, and with us realizing how the bond of Christian charity, love for little children, and service to the Master knits together the hearts of the Christian world!

God bless these aged givers!

C. A. B., Bone Gap, Ill., $2. "I should like to come and see the children at Mont-Lawn enjoy themselves, but I am so old and feeble I cannot come; I am eighty-three years old." B. B. M., Chesterfield, Va., $1. "To help the poor to have ten days escape from the hot slums of the city. I wish I could give more. 'God bless the little ones!'" is an old man's fervent prayer, in closing his letter.

Thank-offerings are these:

Mrs. D. A. C., $6. "For two little waifs to have an outing, as a thank-offering to God for what he has done for me." Mr. and Mrs. S. H. H., Iowa, $3. "Our three boys are so hearty and happy they can hardly realize what it would be to be denied the privilege of a country home; so they, with us, send this 'In Jesus' Name' to make some little child happy."

And this is a memorial:

Last August God removed from us our darling boy Donald, aged three. He had saved his pennies in his little bank, so we thought the best thing to do with them would be to pay for a needy child's outing. God bless your work is our prayer.

How the manner of the giving sanctifies gifts that come for this blessed work!

What would many motherless children do if it were not that the mother-heart of childless women comes so often to their help?

A Subscriber, Orange, Mass., $3. "I have no little ones of my own, but love children dearly and desire to make one little child happy this summer."

Children who are going away from town with prosperous parents for a long outing are often mindful of our waifs. The following letter is penned in a prim little hand, and very nicely for so tiny a writer:

Florence, 25 cents. "I and my little brother Elmer saved this for spending money, but we read about the tenement waifs in THE CHRISTIAN HERALD, which is kept in our home. So please accept this small sum to take some poor child to the country."

A mother in Sonoma, S. D., says:

My little daughter, Ruth, is deeply interested in the New York children who go to Mont-Lawn, and wishes to contribute her mite towards making one happy.

A number of our friends have set apart a certain sum annually for the Home; and letters like the following, or which in any way definitely promise such assistance, are great encouragements to us:

J. I. C., Lafayette, Ind., $6 for two poor children. "My yearly gift to Mont-Lawn" Marion Faye (two years old), $5. "We (her parents) intend to send this sum yearly for her, as God prospers us." Mrs. A. G., Falls City, Neb., $6. "This will send two. I have sent one each year save last, and so this makes up for my neglect."

Use enclosed ($3) for the lambs. May the blessing of the Good Shepherd be with them, and may they be led in green pastures and beside the still waters for His Name's Sake.

"A friend of little children" in far away Spanish Town, Jamaica, W. I., $3 for the fresh air children. "A Canadian Friend," Toronto, $5. "God bless them all." Mrs. A. F. C., Springfield, Mass., $6. "Hoping two needy little ones may be benefited." E. S., Uwuchland, Pa., $3. "Your plan as carried out at Mont-Lawn is one of the best illustrations of practical Christianity." I. W. G., Lamoille, Ills., $3.35. "To send some poor neglected child to Mont-Lawn." Mrs. D. B., Princeton, N. J., $25 for the Fresh-Air Fund. "In His Name," St. Augustine, Fla., $25. "It will give me pleasure to think of all those little unfortunate ones enjoying themselves in the country." "In His Name," Coronado, Cal., $10. "To send some poor child to Nyack."

The following extracts show that side of the picture which deals with the ingathering of our little Fresh-Air guests, and answers, in a measure, the question we sometimes receive: "How are children selected for Mont-Lawn?"

Rev. W. H. Barton.—"I write in the interest of children who are worthy of your consideration, that they may have the benefit of a two weeks' outing at your Fresh-Air Home. Their father and mother are members of my church in excellent standing, but very poor. The father is blind. The children are well-behaved."

Mrs. S. J. B.—"I know you are crowded, and have taken twenty children for us already, but can't you add these two little girls? Their father is a drunkard; their mother is not a good woman; they have no chance in life."

. . .

The following contributions for our Fresh-Air work have been received:

Prev ackn	$2,994 15	Holton, Mrs M	1 00
Anderson, Miss E	3 50	Humes, Geo	2 00
Andrews, Levi	1 00	Hurn, S A	25
Atkinson, Mrs C G	10	Hussey, W L	3 00
Aumendt, Edward	25	Hutchinson, Marion F	5 00
Anske, Miss Huldah	3 00	Jones, M Olive	5 00
Bagley, Mrs R O	2 00	Kellogg, Mrs R M	6 00
Baldwin, Mrs H	1 00	Kile, John P	6 00
Ball, Katie M	1 00	Killmer, Mrs M J	3 00
Banner, Mrs May	1 00	King, Anna V	6 00
Bayspoole, Miss B	5 00	Kinsman, Henry	5 00
Benson, C A	2 00	Kintigh, W R	4 00
Bracewell, Mrs Jas	3 00	Knauer, Mrs A E	1 00
Brown, Mrs David	25 00	Lansing, H S	1 00
Bush, Wm L	3 00	Lee, Eliza J	10 00
Carrick, Mrs D A	6 00	Lloyd, Mrs M W	6 00
Charles, C W	5 00	Loesch, Mrs F & dau	6 00
Christensen, Mr & Mrs C J	1 00	Logan, George	3 00
Chernh, Mrs J L	3 00	McCurdy, Mrs D	1 00
Clark, Eliza J	1 00	McGown, Joseph E	10 00
Clarkson, Edward L	10 00	Macferran, Mrs ME	3 00
Cole, A J	5 00	Martin, Jos	1 00
Collins, Mrs C E	1 00	Maxwell, R B	1 00
Collins, Mr & Mrs H A	5 00	Miller, Mrs R	1 00
Cowles, Mrs A F	6 00	Millman, Raymond E	3 00
Crowell, Julia A	6 00	Muchnore, Mrs Fred	5 00
Danberry, Mrs S	1 00	Myers, C F	1 00
Davis, Mrs Nellie D	2 00	Newton, V A N	2 00
Dondore, C T	3 00	Paul, Mrs J L	3 00
Dunlap, Mrs M H	6 00	Pinney, Ralza	50
Dwyer, Sarah D	12 00	Prentiss, Mrs J M	1 00
Easton, Nellie D	2 00	Ramey, Mrs M E	2 00
Erskine, Anna B	5 00	Reed, Mrs R W	3 00
Foster, M A	1 00	Rottger, E C	2 00
Freeman, Mrs G A	1 00	Rowley, Mrs J & dau	6 00
Friend, Mr & Mrs F G	3 00	Sargent, Blanche	2 25
Fuller, M & L	3 00	Schoenmaker, Mrs J G	3 00
Gates, M G	100 00	Sherwood, W C	3 00
Gault, Lettie	1 00	Short, Effie A	50
Graham, Mrs A	6 00	Sieg, Mrs E A	3 10
Grant, Mrs W B	3 00	Sigler, Mrs A E	1 00
Graves, Ida M	3 35	Smedley, Ernest	3 00
Hall, A M	1 00	Smith, Mrs Cynthia A	6 00
Hawley, M G	3 00	Stanton, Mrs Jesse	5 00
Hayward, Mrs Chas	10 00	Stout, Mrs Sallie C	15 00
Heiskell, Mrs Frank	2 00	Strong, Harriet E	12 00
Herrick, Mr & Mrs S H and children	3 00	Stroud, Mary	3 00
Hine, Mary & Clara	30	Summers, J W	3 00
		Sutton, E S	1 00
		Taylor, A T	1 00
Townley, Mr & Mrs H J	3 00	Mrs W L B, Shreveport	1 00
Trumpp, Rev H	3 00	—, Danville	10 00
Tuckerman, H W	5 00	—, Hartwell	2 00
Valentine, Miss	2 00	—, Oakland	3 00
Vallenj, Ruth	3 00	A Friend, Jamaica	1 00
Van Deman, Ruth	1 00	A Friend, Manchester	25
Vandermenlen, Mrs M	3 00	Friend, Rochester	1 00
Wegg, Mrs Mary A	3 00	Friend, Southampton	3 00
Westfall, D W	1 00	Friend in June, Galesville	3 00
White, Mrs A E	1 00	Friends at Le Grand	10 00
White, Mrs E N	3 00	Canadian Friend, Toronto	5 00
Wilding, M	1 00	"For Christ," Essex	3 00
Williams, Ant'nette A	5 00	"For Jesus," Shawhan	3 00
Williams, Mary	15 00	I A H, Mayville	3 00
Worrell, E B	10 00	"In His Name," Brooklyn	3 00
Wright, Mary L	3 00	I H N, Coronado	10 00
Emma, Platteville	3 00	I H N, Peru	6 00
Fred, Platteville	2 00	I H N, St Augustine	25 00
H, Isabel, Newark	10 00	One Who is Interested, Ore. City	5 00
Katherine, Northville	1 00	In memory of Philip C Brigham	3 00
Linda, Sinking Valley	2 00	In memory of Mildred, Somerville	6 00
A E, Chicago	3 00	Mother and daughter, Clyde	6 00
A R L, Solsville	1 00	A Reader, E Pittston	1 50
Miss A T, Rantoul	1 00	A Reader, Lexington	2 00
C H S, Brooklyn	2 00	A Subscriber, Chittenange	5 00
C J, Leivasy	50	Subscriber, Orange	3 00
"Friends E G L & E," Rye	12 00	Haknai Circle of K D, E Orange	20 00
E M J, Glassboro	6 00	State Schools C E Soc, Trenton	7 00
Mrs G A R, Troy	10 00	North Cong S S, No Woodbury	12 00
H M D, Holden	1 00	Union S S, Ogallah	4 00
H M J, Forestville	1 00	Tuscarora Church	5 00
J A S, Dexter	5 00	Total	$3,805 00
L F H, Catskill	6 00
L L, Stevenson	2 00
M A & J E H, Moretown	30 00
Friend, Conn	3 00
M A S, Los Angeles	3 00
M C S, San Francisco	3 00
M E C, Millington	3 00
M G Y, Colchester	50
M M B, Brooklyn	1 00
M R B, Portsmouth	3 00
P L C	6 00
S & J M, New London	3 00

"PLEASE, CAN WE GO TO MONT-LAWN?"

I'll be good." Another shows a party on the way to the Nyack boat. In the latter case, the little folks show, in their dress and whole appearance, the motherly touch of missionaries, who have clothed them for the journey in garments which kind friends of children have provided; in a few instances the whole credit of tidy appearance is due to the poor tenement parents who have done their very best to make their little ones presentable—efforts almost as touching as the rags of the wee mite whom nobody cares for.

At this moment, an eager, childish multitude is coming up the steps and the elevators of the Bible House, jubilant over the prospect of going to Mont-Lawn; the tidy and the ragged are all ROYAL is the highest grade baking powder known. Actual tests show it goes further and makes finer cake, biscuit and bread than any other brand. In its use is safety against alumned food.

Warm Weather

Weakness is Quickly Overcome by Hood's Sarsaparilla

The cooling, toning, and blood enriching qualities of this great medicine are wonderful. It strengthens the stomach and digestive organs, creates an appetite, and relieves that tired feeling. It also cures pimples, boils, salt rheum, scrofula and all other troubles originating in impure blood.

Hood's Sarsaparilla

Is America's Greatest Medicine. Price $1. Prepared by C. I. Hood & Co., Lowell, Mass.

HYOMEI

ANTISEPTIC

SKIN SOAP

Made from the fresh green leaves of the Tasmanian Blue Gum Tree.

The only PERFECT SKIN and TOILET SOAP known

Sold by all druggists or sent by mail.
Price, 25 cents. Sample cake, 5c.
THE R. T. BOOTH CO., 50 Ave. D, Ithaca, N.Y.

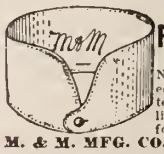
AGENTS WANTED.

$2.50 Sample Outfit FREE

$1.10 Postpaid

Dr. Scott's Electric Corsets; a perfect fit and Nature's own remedy for backache, nervousness, indigestion, headache, liver and kidney trouble; complexion tonic, salve and soaps. Dr. Scott's Electric Hair Brushes for falling Hair.

GEO. A. SCOTT,
Room 7 842 B'dway, New York.



WHITE and FANCY
RUBBER COLLARS, CUFFS

BOSOMS and TIES. Always laundryed. Never wilt; can't be told from linen. Mailed anywhere. Fully patented and guaranteed; Agents wanted; exclusive territory; liberal commission. Send 4 cts. in stamps for Samples, Catalog 150 styles, and terms.

M. & M. MFG. CO., Dept. 17, Springfield, Mass.

In the step from finest Concord Grapes to Welch's Grape Juice we produce the Juice in an unchanged state—just Grape Juice. As such it is an easily digested food that will be retained by the weakest stomach. Welch's Grape Juice is a valuable food-medicine to keep in the home. Sold by druggists and fancy grocers. Write the Welch Grape Juice Co., Westfield, N. Y., for free Booklet.

The Natural Body Brace advertised in this paper in the first issue of this month, is a delightful, certain remedy for ailments peculiar to women and girls. It makes walking and work easy; gives good figure and light step. Write the Natural Body Brace Co., Box 171, Salina, Kan., for free illustrated book.

BOYS PAPER FREE if you will send names of 5 boy friends over 12 years of age we will send you the Star for 3 months free. Greatest boys' paper published. Address with stamp, THE STAR, Dept. 80, OAK PARK, ILLS.

Catalogue of Famous Maryland made-to order clothing free. Lithographed Catalogue of Famous Maryland Carpets free. Freight paid on carpets, expressage on clothing. Julius Hines & Son, Baltimore, Md., Dept. 218.

$75 Month and Expenses; no experience needed; position permanent; self-seller. PEASE MFG. CO., Stat'n A, Cincinnati, O.

Japan's Royal Wedding

An American Missionary Graphically Describes the Marriage of the Crown Prince of Japan and Lady Sadako

THE marriage of the Crown Prince of Japan has been celebrated with great enthusiasm in that empire. The ceremony took place on the 10th of May. At half past seven A. M., the Crown Prince left the Detached Palace, where he resides, and ıe prospective bride, Lady Sadako, her resi- ence, for the Imperial Palace in carriages. he ceremony took place in front of the Im- erial Sanctuary of the Palace, in the presence f the Lord in Waiting to the Prince Imperial nd other attendants, but no members of the ride's family were present. The marriage te consisted in offering evergreen branches t the imperial shrines, the recital of a mar- age ritual by the Prince, the drinking of acred sake (wine) and various obeisances be- ore the altar of the sanctuary, while a naval quadron in Shinagawa Bay, and artillery at oyama fired a salute of 101 guns.

During the ceremony the imperial couple ere dressed in the ancient and traditional yle; but at its conclusion both changed their ostumes, the Prince wearing the usual court ress, and the Princess donning foreign robes. oth then repaired to the presence of the mperor and Empress, received their con- ratulations, drank the traditional cups of licitation; and, entering a coach drawn by our richly caparisoned horses, were escorted ack to the residence of the Prince. The ate coach was especially constructed for the casion, and was gorgeous in lacquer, gold nd glass. From the crowds which lined the hole route rose a chorus of "banzai" (cheers),

THE LATELY WEDDED CROWN PRINCE AND PRINCESS OF JAPAN

t there was not the boisterous and enthu- astic demonstration that is manifested in Western countries, as to the ordinary Ja- nese, silent awe seems still more befitting a yal welcome.

At four o'clock in the afternoon, the Prince nperial and bride proceeded once more to ıe Palace, where a reception was given in yal style. All the high-class officials, the obility, the principal officers of the army ıd navy, the members of the Foreign Dip- matic Corps and officers from foreign men- -war in Yokohama harbor—to the number sixteen or seventeen hundred—were assem- ed to witness the spectacle and express ieir congratulations. A somewhat remark- le feature of the assembly was that not one ıpanese costume was to be seen. In general ppearance, the assemblage presented no dis- nct features from that of similar gatherings the West.

While the great crowd of guests were wait- g in the large audience-hall, the Emperor ıd Empress, Crown Prince and Princess gave ıdience in a separate chamber to Marquis o, as representative of the nobility, Marquis amagata, as representative of the Adminis- ation, and Baron d'Anethan, as representa- ve of the Diplomatic Corps, who in turn pre- nted addresses; and, after replies thereto, ere received with their wives. This cere- ony ended, the Emperor and Empress, rince and Princess Imperial, and all the rinces and Princesses in the capital walked to the hall and passed along a space left ıcant in front of the concourse. Arriving at e centre, the Imperial party paused, bowed aciously, and after a brief interval, left the ll for the banquet room where a feast was repared for their majesties, the Princes and rincesses, the Diplomatic Corps, and the gh dignitaries of State. The remaining ests were conducted to the adjoining apart- ents where refreshments were served in lav- h profusion. On their departure, each guest was given a silver cake-dish as a fitting and lasting souvenir of the joyous occasion.

Hitherto no Imperial marriage has ever been solemnized in such a manner. The old custom did not demand anything more than a public announcement. A certain lady was gazetted to the post of Imperial consort just as a man who had distinguished himself might have been gazetted to some high office. There was no ceremony of a religious character of any kind. According to the recent rites marriage is invested with an importance and sanctity hitherto unrecognized. Such an example will have its effects upon the nation. It is inevitable that henceforth the relation of husband and wife will come to have a new meaning, and more of the significance which is attached to such a relation in enlightened and Christian lands. H. LOOMIS.

Yokohama, Japan.

Our Armenian Orphans

IN acknowledging receipt of the latest remittances from the Armenian Fund for the support of the orphans at Urfa, Van and Mardin, the missionaries write most interesting letters, giving cheering accounts of the progress of the work under their care. Dr. G. C. Raynolds, Van, writes:

"Some of the boys who are teaching in their villages have recently been in asking for new books. One village, situated on a high mountain, far away from the ordinary lines of travel, has never had a school until this winter, I think, and hardly one of the seventy children of the village knew how to read, when one of our boys, himself only sixteen or seventeen years old, and having been with us only about two years, with his sister who was here a year longer, gathered them into a school last fall, and now they report that the children have all learned their letters and finished the first primer, and need a more advanced reading book. In another village near this one, another of our boys, even younger, reports a similar progress for the forty boys he has gathered in his village. Is not this a pretty good showing for one winter's work of three months? They learn not merely their letters, but are becoming indoctrinated in a knowledge of the truths of our blessed Christian religion."

From Urfa, Mrs. M. Myrtle Foote, writes:

"I can see in some of the boys the evidences of Christian character. They are being taught the true Gospel, regardless of former creeds. Most of them are doing good work in school."

The Best Pocket Companion

TOLEDO, O., May 30, 1900.

Mr. Louis Klopsch, "Christian Herald":

The Red Letter New Testament received. I am delighted with it. The design is unique in giving the language of Jesus in a manner that at once strikes the eye and fixes the attention. In binding and typographical excellence it is neat and attractive. It is an invaluable pocket companion that cannot be too highly prized. In this connection, it affords me pleasure to testify to the splendid work that is being accomplished by THE CHRISTIAN HERALD—a publication that has become a tremendous power for good in the lifting up our humanity, and of giving to the world broader and higher views of life in every detail that enters into human existence. F. J. OBLINGER.

The · Hymn · of · the Boxers

It is a Slogan of Infidelity and Bitter Hatred of Everything Foreign

A CORRESPONDENT of the London Standard in Tien-Tsin sends this interesting and timely communication, as showing the kind of literature that is now being used in China to inflame the people against all foreigners:

"We are having a recrudescence of anti-foreign literature. Here is one in rhyme of a peculiarly attractive form, the metre throughout representing two lines of three characters each, and one line of seven characters. This is particularly easy to memorize. I know some Chinese Christians whose families can repeat it by heart after one or two readings, and they assure me that it is a style of placard which would be universally memorized, whereas the prose placards are read, but make no lasting impression. I append a literal translation of the poem without any attempt at rhyme, for fear of destroying the effect."

THE BOXER PLACARD.

God assist the Boxers,
The Patriotic Harmonious Corps:
It is because the Foreign Devils disturb the Middle Kingdom,
Urging the people to join their religion
To turn their backs on Heaven;
Venerate not the Gods and forget the Ancestors.
Men violate the human obligations;
Women commit adultery.
Foreign Devils are not produced by mankind.
If you doubt this,
Look at them carefully;
The eyes of all the Foreign Devils are bluish.
No rain falls,
The earth is getting dry.
This is because the churches stop the Heaven.
The Gods are angry,
The Genii are vexed;
Both are come down from the mountains to deliver the doctrine.
This is not hearsay,
The practice will not be in vain
To recite incantations and pronounce magic words.
Burn up the yellow written prayers;
Light incense sticks
To invite the Gods and Genii of all the grottoes (Halls).
The Gods will come out of the grottoes.
The Genii will come down from the mountains
And support the human bodies to practise the boxing.
When all the military accomplishments or tactics
Are fully learned,
It will not be difficult to determine the "Foreign Devils" then.
Push aside the railway tracks,
Pull out the telegraph poles.
Immediately after this destroy the steamers.
The great France
Will grow cold and downhearted:
The English and Russian will certainly disperse.
Let the various "Foreign Devils" all be killed.
May the whole elegant Empire of the Great Ching dynasty be ever prosperous.

FEEDING FOR HEALTH.

Directions by a Food Expert.

A complete change in food makes a complete change in body. Therefore if you are ailing in any way, the surest road back to health is to change your diet. Try the following breakfast for ten days and mark the result:

Two soft boiled eggs. (If you have a weak stomach, boil the eggs as follows: Put two eggs into a pint tin cup of boiling water, cover, and set off the stove. Take out in nine minutes; the whites will be the consistency of cream and partly digested. Don't change the directions in any particular.) Some fruit, cooked or raw, cooked preferred, a slice of toast, a little butter, four heaping teaspoons of Grape-Nuts with some cream, a cup of properly boiled Postum Food Coffee.

The Grape-Nuts breakfast food is fully and scientifically cooked at the factory, and both that and the Postum Coffee have the diastase (that which digests the starchy part) developed in the manufacture. Both the food and the coffee, therefore, are pre-digested, and assist in a natural way to digest the balance of the food. Lunch at noon, the same.

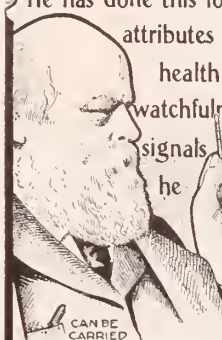
For dinner in the evening use meat and one or two vegetables. Leave out the fancy desserts. Never over-eat. Better a little less than too much.

If you can use health as a means to gain success in business or in a profession, it is well worth the time and attention required to arrange your diet to accomplish the result.

DANGER SIGNALS OF DISEASE

Lord Salisbury uses a CLINICAL THERMOMETER DAILY

He has done this for many years and attributes his uniform good health largely to this watchfulness of the danger signals of disease, which he has been enabled to prevent by proper methods



CAN BE CARRIED IN THE POCKET.

ANY DEVIATION FROM THE NORMAL TEMPERATURE OF THE HUMAN BODY—98 3-5 DEGREES—INDICATES SOME DISORDER WHICH MAY LEAD TO DISEASE

A Taylor CLINICAL THERMOMETER should be in daily use in every home, by every man and every woman, and for every child. It will be found the greatest safeguard of health.

The Taylor-Certified Clinical Thermometers are to be had at $1.00 and $1.25 (magnifying tube) each, from druggists generally, or will be sent, postpaid, on receipt of price, by Taylor Brothers Company.

ROCHESTER, N. Y.
New York City, 85 Chambers St. London, E. C., 103 Hatton Garden

Each Thermometer is accompanied by six copyrighted clinical charts and a little book entitled "Danger Signals of Disease" showing the uses of the Clinical Thermometer. This booklet will be sent free, postpaid, to anyone who writes Dept. C and sends name and address.

We Pay 6 Per Cent. for Your Money...

Principal and interest are guaranteed by our entire assets of over $1,150,000 and surplus (undivided profits) of $155,000. Our Company is Chartered under the Banking Laws and subject to annual examination by the Supt. of Banks of the State of New York. Our loans are made only on Bond and Mortgage security upon improved real estate in the States of New York and Pennsylvania. Affording unequalled security free from speculative features.

Sums of $50 or more draw interest from date of deposit, interest checks mailed quarterly.

We refer by special permission to many clergymen and other prominent professional and business men.

Write for detailed information.

Industrial Savings & Loan Co.,
1133 Broadway, New York.

...State Manager...

WANTED—Ladies or Gentlemen to appoint and manage agents for our Bibles and other books and attend to collections. Fair salary and expenses advanced to the right party. Work can be done at home or by traveling. No snap. Permanent. No investment required. Apply with self-addressed stamped envelope and references to PROVIDENCE PUBLISHING CO., 57 C, 334 Dearborn St., Chicago.

BLYMYER CHURCH BELLS. UNLIKE OTHER BELLS SWEETER, MORE DURABLE, LOWER PRICE. OUR FREE CATALOGUE TELLS WHY. Write to Cincinnati Bell Foundry Co., Cincinnati, O.

D. L. MOODY'S LIFE, WORDS and WORK (2560 PAGES) TWENTY VOLUMES of his Latest Sermons, Bible Studies, Anecdotes, etc., carriage paid anywhere $2.00 Agents wanted. A. P. FITT, Supt., 250 LaSalle Ave., CHICAGO, or EAST NORTHFIELD, MASS.

Gospel Hymns for Summer Meetings THE CHURCH HYMNS AND GOSPEL SONGS. Sample Music Edition, 20 cts. Words only, 10 cts. THE BIGLOW & MAIN CO., New York and Chicago.

Individual Communion Outfits. Send for free catalogue and list of users. SANITARY COMMUNION OUTFIT CO., Dept. 6, Rochester, N. Y.

A Gift to the Gospel Settlement

MANY of our readers have a lively personal interest in the Gospel Settlement, having lent their sympathy, gifts and prayers since the earliest announcement of its existence in these columns about two and a half years ago. They will be rejoiced now to be informed of a great and providential blessing which has befallen the Settlement.

It will be recalled that Mrs. Sarah J. Bird's purpose in opening this institution was to combine with the University or Social Settlement plan the Gospel idea, and to impart not only industrial training and to give not only a good time to the young people of the East Side, but to have religious exercises and teach Christ to all who would receive such teaching. So, they have kitchen-garden classes, where tiny maids playing with toy apparatus at housekeeping learn to sweep, dust, wash dishes and set tables; and cooking classes, where small, white-capped and white-aproned cooks boil and bake until they became great helpers to their mammas at home; sewing classes, where they learn to make their own garments; kindergarten classes, where tots are being taught many beautiful things about God and nature through the medium of play and "Happy Hour Clubs," and history and singing classes. There are also times of prayer and worship, when pretty texts are rehearsed and Bible stories told.

MRS. ROSWELL-SMITH

God has blessed the Settlement, and it has prospered since that October day in 1897, when THE CHRISTIAN HERALD sent its representative down to 211 Clinton street, to see how the good work was being started, to wish it Godspeed, and to bring back all the news about it for our readers. The beginning was modest, the founder being conservative and distrustful of herself. The experiment was committed to God. She and her assistants worked away faithfully through sunshine and shadow, and now the Gospel Settlement is known far and wide for the beautiful things it has accomplished.

Among the friends who cheered the founder and lent strong hands of help to the young work was Mrs. Annie Ellesworth Roswell-Smith. Last January this lady "went to be with God." Since that time her daughter, Mrs. George Inness, Jr., likewise one of the Settlement's earliest and strongest friends, has continued her mother's good offices as a supplement to her own and as a tribute to a beloved parent. Recently the problem of a raised rental confronted the founder, who has carried a heavy financial responsibility in connection with the work; besides, enlargement was needed, as more children were applying for admission to clubs and classes than could be accommodated. The necessity of moving seemed to present itself; but the neighborhood needed the Settlement, and founder and workers were loth to go; they laid the matter before God in prayer and left it there. At this time good news came that Mrs. Inness would buy the property to insure its indefinite possession at a fixed rental to the Settlement; next she authorized extensive enlargements at her own cost to meet the growing needs of the work. Both of these kind deeds are done as a memorial to her mother.

On the Settlement wall hangs the portrait of Mrs. Roswell-Smith, from which our illustration is taken; and little children of the poor for many years to come will be taught to look with love and gratitude upon that pictured face of this noble lady, their friend in life and death. For another reason, besides that of direct service to themselves, the portrait will be one of interest to the little ones and the workers. An inscription on the picture tells that this lady when a lassie of seventeen, was the sender of the first telegram that ever went over an established electric line. The message was: "What hath God wrought." Professor Morse had accorded her this honor, for she had been the bearer to him of the good news that Congress had made the necessary appropriation for the construction of a trial line, after the disheartened inventor had given up hope and left the field in despair. United States Commissioner of Patents, Hon. Henry Leavett Ellesworth (known as the "Father of the Patent Office"), had persevered until the bill was through; and had then sent his young daughter to Professor Morse with the glad tidings.

Twenty-five little tots from the Gospel Settlement will have outings at Mont-Lawn, our Children's Fresh-Air Home.

A Veteran Worker for Christ

MANY of our readers are already familiar with the missionary work of Miss Mary A. Sharp among the native tribes of Liberia, West Africa. Miss Sharp writes to us as follows:

"To-day completes my twenty-first year in Africa! Years of toil, seed-sowing and harvesting. Only last Sunday I listened to one of my former 'boys,' trained in my Mission Home. He came up from his Mission down the Coast for a short visit, and preached three times for me. Some years ago, he, with a cousin, came from a Kroo town, one hundred and fifty miles down the Coast on a Norwegian sailing vessel. They had heard that some one was teaching 'Kroo pickaninny' book. The first intimation I had of their coming was when one bright morning the two lads stood before me, looking as if they had something to say. I called a boy to 'pass word' (i. e., interpret for them), and found they had come up to 'Sabee Book.' I asked if they knew of God. 'We hear him name,' was the reply, but of Jesus they said, 'We no hear him name.' Some years passed, and both were converted.

"When I commenced work, I was repeatedly told that I was 'throwing away my time in trying to do anything with the Kroo people.' Ex-President Payne said to me, 'Why, they are considered infidels among the heathen.' The Camboo church I had erected, with the seats of bamboo poles withed together and placed on forked sticks stuck in the ground, the whole costing ten dollars, some years ago gave way to a corrugated iron church. This, owing to the growing congregation, I am having enlarged. The material for building has been nearly all gathered. The means to build comes in slowly, but it will all come, and the $10 I have just received from THE CHRISTIAN HERALD will be used for seats in the 'amen corner.' As for that, every seat in our church is an 'amen seat.' The people all, Christian and heathen, kneel in prayer-time and all respond 'Amen,' at the close of prayer. One man said to me, 'I say dem Amen; I like him; no more me no Sabee proper what him mean.' 'What do you think it means?' I said. 'Dat ting you say to God, be de same my heart say, and Amen be all de same as Yes, God.' I told him he was right. Thus we sow beside all waters."

A GAME OF CHANCE IN LIBERIA

A Famous Bishop Dead

EVANGELICAL Christians throughout the world are familiar with the name of J. C. Ryle. There are few who have not at some time seen that name on a pamphlet or tract which was well worth the reading. It was usually related to some event or topic of current interest from which the writer deduced lessons of spiritual power.

THE LATE BISHOP RYLE

Like the ancient Hebrew prophets, he had a profound belief in the nearness of God, and in the fact that God was guiding, controlling and directing all human affairs. His pen was continually busy calling the attention of the reading public to this view of divine providence and he had the happy faculty of seeing and expressing the lessons that might be gleaned from daily life. The world has lost a cheery, useful writer in him, for he is dead after a long life of valuable service.

He was eighty-four years of age and at the time of his death was bishop of Liverpool. He was born in the manufacturing town of Macclesfield and educated at the famous school of Eton. He was not intended for the ministry, his father having been a rich banker, who wished that his son should enter Parliament; but his father's failure compelled a change of plans, which at the time was a crushing blow to young Mr. Ryle. He was ordained as a clergyman in 1841, when he became curate of Exbury, Hampshire, and was afterwards presented to the rectory of St. Thomas', Winchester. From 1844 to 1880, when he was appointed the first Bishop of Liverpool, he spent his life as a Suffolk rector, first at Helmingham, and then at Stadbroke. He became known as a prolific tract-writer, a very hearty supporter of the Church Missionary Society, and a popular speaker at Exeter Hall.

"COMMONLY USED DRUG"

Dr. Wood refers to Coffee.

Dr. Jas. Wood of Philadelphia, speaking of the effect of coffee, says: "These symptoms bear silent but impressive witness to the terrible injury which is being wrought by this commonly used drug."

If health is worth anything, it is worth looking after carefully. Any person who drinks coffee and has any sort of ailment that can be traced back, through even a very long line of disturbances, to the nervous system, may depend upon it that coffee is the cause of the difficulty.

The drug contained in coffee has a direct action upon the nerves, differing in different people. The effect may show in one person in the shape of dyspepsia, in another person in weak eyes, in another, palpitation of the heart, in another, kidney or bowel trouble, in another, bad complexion or eruptions on the skin, in another, a general feeling of lassitude and weakness at times. All of these and a long list of other disturbances come directly from a disturbed nervous system, where the nerve matter, the delicate gray substance that is contained in the nerve centers and in the brain,—has been destroyed, to an extent, and not replaced from the food.

That is the exact work of coffee with highly organized people. Such people feel the loss of coffee for a time, unless something is given to take its place. This is the mission of Postum Food Coffee; it not only furnishes, when properly made, a delicate coffee flavor in itself, but carries with it the phosphate of pot ash and other elements required by Nature to rebuild the nervous system and reconstruct the tearing down work that has been going on from the use of "drug coffee." (We use the words "drug coffee" because all regular coffee is in reality a drug, and its continued use will in ninety cases out of a hundred, bring on trouble of some kind.)

Postum Food Coffee is sold by all first-class grocers.

Fresh Air and Sunshine
are essential to the invalid. We build to order every size and style of

WHEEL CHAIR
and TRICYCLE
for Cripples and Invalids.
We will be pleased to quote you prices on our special work.
Catalogue free on request.
A. A. FAY TRICYCLE & INVALID CHAIR CO.,
Elyria, Ohio.

Uneeda Jinjer Wayfer

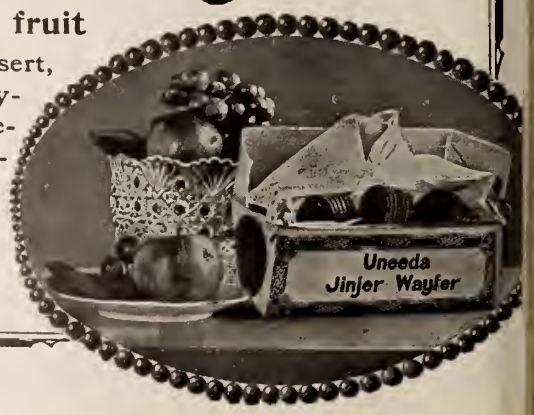
with any kind of fruit furnishes an ideal dessert, and makes a most enjoyable luncheon, easily prepared at home and obtainable anywhere.

Sold at all stores that sell
Uneeda Biscuit

National Biscuit Company.



You will look better and feel better if you begin taking Hood's Sarsaparilla, America's Greatest Medicine for the blood. It cures catarrh, scrofula and rheumatism. Get a bottle today.

San Salvador's Passion Play

The Strangest of Romish Mummeries to be Seen in any South American City

FROM R. H. Bender, an American mission-worker in San Salvador, THE CHRISTIAN HERALD has received a letter descriptive of the Passion Play, as it is celebrated in that city. Mr. Bender writes as follows:

Although the smallest of South American republics (having an area of only 7,335 square miles), Salvador is the second largest in population, having 800,000 inhabitants, or over a hundred to the square mile. One third are pure Indians, who have their own distinct dialect. The country has only two seasons—the dry (summer), and the wet (winter), and we are just beginning to enter the latter. The climate in winter is more agreeable than in summer, as the evening rains keep the atmosphere cool. After a residence of three years, I have not at any time found the heat as oppressive as in New York city during the summer months.

Missionary work was begun July, 1896, by the late Mr. Purdie, whose service was of short duration, as he died on August

MISSIONARIES AT WORK IN SAN SALVADOR

6, 1897. The responsibility of the work fell upon the writer, who had joined him in April, 1897. During my first three months I was occupied in the sale of the Bible and since then colporteurs have continued that work. Preaching did not really begin until March, 1898, in a little Indian village, where I remained one year. In April, 1899, we moved from Hopango to open work in the capital, and the Lord has blessed us. There are only Mrs. Bender and myself to 800,000 souls.

The natives consider "Holy Week" the most holy of all weeks and keep it in reverence, so much so that from Thursday noon until Saturday noon if anyone is seen working or riding a beast, he is despised and called a donkey. Everything is quiet; even the church bells are silent. No traveling is permitted in any conveyance and everything is shut up. The rum shops are in full blast, however. During "Holy Week" there are several processions. On Wednesday of Passion Week we saw the first procession, of thirteen idols, full-size, clad in different colors of silks and satins, erected on small platforms beautifully decorated with artificial flowers. The first eight idols represented Christ in different positions. Following these were five idols or images of women. These were followed by thousands of men and women carrying lighted candles, and by priests and the bishop. On Thursday they had the feet-washing. A priest girds himself with a towel and takes a basin of water and washes the feet of twelve little boys, after which he preaches a sermon on humility, and closes his talk by offering his people certain days of indulgence if they will visit all the temples that night and recite many prayers.

On Friday noon is the crucifixion. An image of Christ, carrying an immense cross, is escorted to a temple called Calvary, several images of women following, while some forty or more priests with a multitude make up the rear. At 3 P. M. they have what they call the "holy burial," with more images representing angels and several little girls, prettily dressed in white with wings attached to their shoulders. All are carried on small, uplifted platforms. Following these are the bishop and a lot of priests reciting prayers, and immediately following comes a large glass coffin, containing an image of Christ, borne on the shoulders of six men; the coffin is covered with artificial flowers. On either side are two figures of women, and four more following, their faces expressing sorrow. These were followed by about 4,000 men and women carrying lighted candles. With such idolatries they commemorate the death of our Lord Jesus Christ.

The Needy at Our Doors*

The Problem of Poverty Pressing on the Consideration of the Followers of Christ

WHEN Cain impudently asked "Am I my brother's keeper?" he gave expression to an attitude which survives to the present day. There are still many who regard it as no part of their duty to concern themselves about the welfare of their brother. In this country especially, we have so much faith in the ability of every man to take care of himself, that we have devised no adequate means of helping those who need help. True, much money is given away in indiscriminate charity, and a ready response is always made to an appeal for aid when fire or flood brings ruin on a community; but for the widow and children left destitute by the death of their natural protector, for the tradesman who fails in business, or the clerk who loses his situation and cannot get another, we have no system of relief. Such people do not need charity so much as opportunity to support themselves. In all our great cities, there are thousands who are willing to work and able to work, yet are unemployed. What they suffer, none know but themselves, but scarcely a day passes without our getting an indication of the depth of their misery in the report of some suicide, or some crime committed in sheer desperation. These things ought not so to be. We have neglected our duty, otherwise they would not be.

Christ did not approve of such negligence. His vivid description of the doom of the rich man in this parable is a warning that we cannot afford to disregard. The rich man does not appear to have done Lazarus any harm, or in any way to have been responsible for his his poverty and suffering; his fault consisted in his doing nothing to help him. How many at the present day are guilty in precisely the same way! Probably he never noticed the man, did not know of his suffering, or if he did, did not consider it any part of his duty to care for him. There are such people now and their indifference continues in spite of so clear an intimation of God's displeasure as is given in the parable. They, too, have Moses and the prophets and in addition have the teaching of Christ; yet they are not persuaded; and, as Christ said, they would not be persuaded though one rose from the dead.

In what way can the Church of Christ clear its skirts of responsibility in this matter? It may be argued that it is the duty rather of the civil authorities to look after the poor, but while the poor are here at our doors, no man who calls himself by the name of Christ can escape responsibility. It is amazing that with such a problem near us, enforced by teaching so direct as that of Christ, no really earnest effort has been made to solve it. We assemble in our churches from Sunday to Sunday; we hear sermons on doctrine and we go home to our household comforts, while our brother is without a meal. Could the Church of Christ in any better way prove its right to its name than by taking up this problem of poverty and honestly and earnestly trying to solve it? There is enough wealth in the Church and enough intelligence to grapple with it and at least alleviate its worst features.

There are, of course, in the class represented by Lazarus, some who are incorrigibly lazy, some who would not work if work were found for them. Others who would beg, borrow or steal by preference, but all such might be left to the attention of the State. Having eliminated both classes, there remains a vast number whose condition calls for help. Among them are the aged, the very young, the blind and crippled and the infirm. These are the proper objects of direct charity, and no one would grudge the money necessary for their support. The problem is not with those. But there is another class who are not the proper objects of charity and who do not seek charity. They are the people whose condition demands the most serious thought. They simply seek an opportunity of earning their daily bread, and want to earn it honestly. Any one who has tried to get work for such people, any one who has advertised in the papers for a clerk, and has seen the crowd of eager applicants for the place that only one can fill, knows how hard is the lot of such people. It is with those that the Church ought to concern itself. It could render no better service to the community than by devising some well-considered plan by which every man might be reasonably sure of employment so long as he behaves himself. It would undoubtedly be a difficult thing to devise such a plan, but it is not in human nature, especially American human nature, to be deterred by difficulties. To succeed in such an attempt would be to lift a burden of anxiety from many a tortured heart. Thousands who do not know how to get the money to pay their rent and provide food and clothing for their families would bless the man who solved the problem. And, after all, it is a duty, and one that belongs to the Church. We might let our disputes about doctrine rest for awhile while we attended to it. Some of the men whom we are so anxious to cast out and excommunicate might be allowed to remain while we dealt with this more pressing problem, which certainly commends itself to all who are asking "What would Jesus do?"

*Topic of the Christian Endeavor Society, Epworth League and Baptist Young People's Union for July 22. Luke 16: 19-31.

THE SOLDIER'S CALL

(Written for "The Christian Herald")

CHRIST is knocking at the barrack,
Christ is tapping at the door;
Christ is calling to thee, soldier—
Thou hast heard his voice before!
Haste, admit him—why dost tarry?
He may leave and come no more:
"Go thy way," the soldier answers,
"Stay not by our barrack door."

Life is going—years are passing—
Dark and darker grows the hour;
But the Saviour still is knocking,
Still is strong the Spirit's power!
Taps have sounded—hear our pleading—
Hear us calling from the door;
"Come, O Christ, with love entreating,
As thou didst in days before."

Christ is tapping at the portal,
Christ is knocking at thy door;
Jesus calls thee now, poor soldier,
Will you spurn him as before?
Haste to answer—do not tarry—
Wait not on the reveille;
Now admit, accept him freely—
He will then be found of thee.

MAJOR JOHN B. KETCHUM.

On Jellies
preserves and pickles, spread a thin coating of refined
PARAFFINE WAX
Will keep them absolutely moisture and acid proof. Paraffine Wax is also useful in a dozen other ways about the house. Full directions in each pound package.
Sold everywhere.
STANDARD OIL CO.

No higher praise can be offered nor better references given concerning the virtues of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People than the many voluntary testimonials from ministers of the gospel which have come from all parts of the country, and which have more than supported all the claims made for this excellent medicine.

The most recent indorsement is that coming from Rev. Enoch Hill, pastor of the M. E. church of Grand Junction, Iowa, who says:

"I am a firm believer in the efficacy of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People, the remedy having been used in my family with highly gratifying results. For three or four years I was a sufferer from general debility. I seemed to be lacking in vitality, was tired out most of the time, and sleep gave me no rest or refreshment. I was troubled with headache much of the time, and although I was not confined to my bed, my illness incapacitated me for energetic work in my pastorate.

"A sister-in-law living in Nebraska, who has suffered very much, and who has used Dr. Williams' Pink Pills with good results, recommended them to me, and I decided to try them. I had taken but two or three doses of the pills when I found that they were helping me, and further use of the remedy brought such relief that I am glad to offer this public recommendation of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People in the interest of suffering humanity.

"My wife was troubled much as I was, although her case was aggravated by insomnia. The pills also proved of the greatest benefit in her case.

"I have recommended the pills to many whom I have met in my work, and am always pleased to endorse the medicine, the excellence of which has been established within my own observation."

[Signed] REV. ENOCH HILL.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold by all druggists, or will be sent postpaid on receipt of price, 50 cents a box, or six boxes for $2.50 (they are never sold in bulk or by the 100). Address Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Schenectady, N. Y.

Why suffer with corns when a postal will fetch a free trial box of A-CORN SALVE? Giant Chemical Co. Philadelphia.

OPIUM MORPHINE and Liquor Habit cured in 10 to 20 days. No pay till cured. Book of particulars free. Address Dr. J. L. Stephens, Dept. R.5, Lebanon, Ohio.

Don't boggle

Boggle—To hesitate, as from doubt or difficulty; to hold back, etc. (Standard Dictionary.)

Boggling doesn't pay, in the matter of Pearline. Don't do your washing in a harder way that costs more, when Pearline has an easier way that's more economical. The longer you do without Pearline, the more loss to you. You can't have any good reason for not using it. If you think you have, let some woman talk to you who knows all about Pearline.

586

Millions NOW USE Pearline

A Remarkable Book by a Remarkable Woman

FRANCES E. WILLARD'S

"OCCUPATIONS FOR WOMEN"

The latest and greatest work from the pen of the woman who did more to elevate her sex than any woman that ever lived.

This exceedingly practical volume shows the tremendous strides already made by women, points out many new fields and opportunities for them, and shows what feminine persistence, push and energy can accomplish.

We have from time to time offered special bargains to the readers of THE CHRISTIAN HERALD, and in each case the demand has been much greater than the supply. So you had better take advantage of this offer TO-DAY.

SPECIAL BARGAIN OFFER

By the purchase of the entire stock of the above book: "OCCUPATIONS FOR WOMEN," we are enabled to put this wonderful book within the reach of every woman reader of this paper. It contains 500 royal quarto pages, elegantly printed on fine toned paper with 100 illustrations; Size 7 x 9 inches when closed and is Bound in Cloth, Illuminated Cover.

Regular Price, = = = $3.75

Special Bargain Price, $1.00

Remember... this special price pays all express charges and delivers this magnificent book weighing 3 lbs., 4½ ounces, size when closed 7 x 9 inches, absolutely free of expense. If the stock is exhausted when your order is received, we will return the money at once, and as we only have sufficient copies to supply a small percentage of the subscribers of "The Christian Herald," we trust you will be fortunate enough to avail yourself of this exceptional offer. Send money by P.O. money order or registered letter. Write name and address plainly, giving nearest express office.

P. B. BROMFIELD & CO., Bible House, New York City

Indigestibles

The outer covering or shell of grain is entirely indigestible, yet we see quantities of persons filling the delicate stomachs of children with oats in some form or whole wheat products. Not only is there little food in these preparations but there is a lot of positively detrimental stuff which irritates the stomach and impairs the digestion.

CREAM OF WHEAT

is composed of only the part of the grain useful as a food—it is palatable, nutritious, and digestible.

A series of gravures which we issue will interest you. They are really fine, and you get one with two packages of Cream of Wheat. Your grocer has them.

Cream of Wheat Co., Minneapolis, Minn.

Rheumatism and Gout

A prominent physician writes:

DEAR SIRS;—Replying to yours on the use of TARTARLITHINE as a remedy in the treatment of gout, I will say that I have used it in the treatment of about a dozen cases with results that are a little less than wonderful. The characteristic feature of its action is the rapidity with which patients improve under its use. An improvement is noticeable within 24 hours. One of the most striking cases was that of a physician suffering from gout, muscular rheumatism and frequent bilious headaches. I prescribed Tartarlithine, and in one week there was absolute disappearance of all of the uric acid manifestations. The nervous irritability disappeared, and he stated that he had done the best week's work which he had accomplished in years.

Tartarlithine is supplied in bottles containing 50 doses at $1.00 and can be obtained of all druggists or post-free by mail. Pamphlets with Testimonials sent FREE.

McKESSON & ROBBINS,
91 Fulton Street, New York,
Sole Agents for THE TARTARLITHINE CO.

FURNISH YOUR HOME WITHOUT COST TO YOU.

You Can Earn This Elegant Couch in a Few Hours by our new plan of selling to your friends our fine Toilet Soaps, Flavoring Extracts, Perfumes, Complexion Powders, etc. 30 Days Trial Free. No Money Required. All goods guaranteed. Write for particulars and catalog. CROFTS & REED, 842-850 Austin Ave., B-96 Chicago, Ill.

Cheaper than wood. Special Prices to Churches and Cemeteries. Strong, Durable and Cheap. Catalogue Free. COILED SPRING FENCE CO., Box D, Winchester, Indiana.

BLUE FLAME Sell the best. BIG MONEY in it. The U. S. OIL GAS BURNER is the best. Guaranteed heat, cook and bake. No smoke, ashes or dirt. TRY IT, THEN PAY FOR IT. Write for special offer. U. S. HEAT & LIGHT CO., Washington, D. C.

It Is a Certainty That Catarrh can be cured. You will believe it after using a sample of Dr. Blosser's Catarrh Cure. Mailed free. Address Dr. J. W. Blosser & Son, 50 Broad St., Blosser Building, Atlanta, Ga.

THE PERFECT LIQUID DENTIFRICE

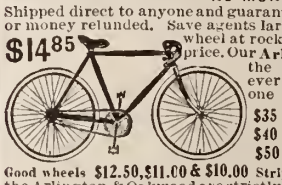
RUBIFOAM

THE PUREST AND BEST PREPARATION FOR THE TEETH THAT MODERN DENTAL SCIENCE CAN COMBINE. REFRESHING AND PLEASING TO THE TASTE. PRICE, 25 CENTS.

E.W. Hoyt & Co., Makers, Lowell, Mass.

BICYCLES FOR EVERYBODY. NO MONEY IN ADVANCE.

Shipped direct to anyone and guaranteed as represented or money refunded. Save agents large profits and get a wheel at rock bottom wholesale price. Our Arlington Model K is the greatest bargain ever offered; in lots of one or more at $14.85



$35 "Arlington" $16.50
$40 " $18.50
$50 "Oakwood" $21.50

Good wheels $12.50, $11.00 & $10.00 Stripped Wheels $7.00 the Arlington & Oakwood are strictly high grades and the best that can be made. Thoroughly tested and fully guaranteed. Over 100,000 riders can testify to their superior quality, style, construction and workmanship. Illustrated catalog free. CASH BUYERS' UNION, 162 W. Van Buren St., B-18, Chicago, Ills.

TEN DAYS TRIAL

We ship our wheels anywhere on approval without a cent deposit and allow 10 days free trial. You take absolutely no risk in ordering from us.

1900 MODELS best makes $10 to $18
'99 & '98 MODELS high grade $8 to $13
1000 Second Hand Wheels, all makes and models, good as new, $3 to $10. Great factory clearing sale at half factory cost.

AGENTS WANTED in every town. We furnish wheel and start you. You can make $10 to $35 a week as our agent. Write at once for catalogues and our special offer.

MEAD CYCLE CO. Dept. 41 H, Chicago

EARN AN ICE CREAM FREEZER

By buying for use in your family or selling among your friends a small order of Baker's Teas, Soap, etc. Write for order blank and catalogue of premiums. Mr. Baker pays the freight. Satisfaction guaranteed. W. G. BAKER, Dept. 76, Springfield, Mass.

The IDEAL Steam Cooker Cooks a whole meal over one burner, on gasoline, oil, gas, or common cook stove.

Reduces Fuel Bills One-half Makes tough meats tender. Prevents steam and odors. Whistle blows when cooker needs more water. Dinner Sets, Bicycles, Watches, and other Valuable Premiums given with order for Cookers. Send for illustrated catalogue. We pay express. Agents Wanted. TOLEDO COOKER CO., Box 16, Toledo, O.

WATCH AND CHAIN FOR ONE DAY'S WORK

Boys and Girls can get a Nickel-Plate Watch, also a Chain and Charm for selling 1½ doz. Packages of Bluine at 10 cents each. Send your full address by return mail and we will forward the Bluine, post-paid, and a large Premium List. No money required. BLUINE CO., Box 3 Concord Junction, Mass.

STARK TREES BEST by Test—74 YEARS. Largest Nursery. Fruit Book free. We PAY CASH WEEKLY & want MORE HOME & traveling salesmen. STARK BRO'S, LOUISIANA, MO.; Dansville, N.Y.

HAIR INSOLES keep feet clean and dry. Prevent jar in walking. Relieve Rheumatism, Callous, Tender and Perspiring Feet. 10c., 3 pair 25c., postpaid. The Wm. H. Wiley & Son Co., Box D, Hartford, Ct.

RUPTURE The Improved Elastic Truss is the only Truss in existence that is worn with absolute comfort night and day, and it retains the rupture under the hardest exercise or severest strain, and will effect a permanent and speedy relief. Competent lady always in attendance for ladies, or to answer correspondence from women. Our goods are not sold by agents or druggists. Send for free pamphlets to the Improved Elastic Truss Co., 768 Broadway, New York. ESTABLISHED 18 YEARS.

"A fair face may prove a foul bargain." Marry a plain girl if she uses . . . . . SAPOLIO

CHRISTIAN HERALD

AND SIGNS OF OUR TIMES

OFFICES: BIBLE HOUSE, NEW YORK

Rev. T. De Witt Talmage, D.D., Editor

COPYRIGHT, 1900, BY LOUIS KLOPSCH

NEW YORK, JULY 18, 1900

VOLUME 23—NUMBER 29

PRICE FIVE CENTS

CHINA'S EMPIRE TOTTERING UNDER REBELLION

Portraits of (1) Emperor Kwang-Tsu, reported dead by poison; (2) Dowager Empress Tsi-An, who encouraged the Boxers; (3) Viceroy Li Hung Chang, advocate of peace; (4) The loyal Governor of Shanghai, a friend of foreigners; (5) The Tsung-li-Yamen in Session. (See page 591.)

Our Mail-Bag

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

1. These questions are printed Four weeks in advance so as to afford all our readers an opportunity to answer them.
2. For answers to the questions which appear below, when accepted, we will allow compensation for the matter used at the rate of One Dollar a hundred words. Answers should so far as possible be limited to one hundred words.
3. Answers must be received at this office two weeks in advance of the date in which they are intended to appear.
4. The editor reserves the right to condense accepted answers when necessary, and compensation will be based on the matter as printed.
5. Do not write inquiring if your material has been accepted. If it appears on this page, you will know that it has been accepted.
6. We cannot return any MSS. sent to the Editor of THE MAIL BAG—not even if stamps accompany them.
7. Write only on one side of the sheet and never send on the same sheet anything intended for any other department of the paper. Correspondents answering more than one question should append their name and address to each answer.
8. Address all communications intended for this department, EDITOR THE MAIL-BAG.

The Christian Herald, Bible House, New York.

These Questions Will be Answered Aug. 15

1. When did missionary work begin in China? Who were the pioneers? To what extent is the country evangelized?
2. What is the best method of making a prayer-meeting interesting and spiritually helpful?
3. Does not the statement of Peter (II. Peter 2:20) that no prophecy of Scripture is of private interpretation conflict with the Protestant favorite doctrine of private judgment?
4. Explain the adjustment of the calendar?
5. In view of David's very imperfect life, how could he be said to be "a man after God's own heart?"
6. What is the origin of the Chinese queue or pigtail?
7. What is the best answer to the Catholic taunt: "Where was your church before Luther?"
8. What was the highest price ever offered for a book, as far as recorded?
9. Should a Christian who has failed in business, give money to the church before he has paid his creditors in full?
10. What are the legal holidays in the different States of the Union?

Questions of the Week

1. What should be the attitude of a Christian in regard to labor strikes?

His attitude should be determined by the following principles: Labor has rights, and capital through its misuse of power may inflict upon labor grievous wrongs. The retaliation of labor in inflicting wrong upon capital is unchristian. Arbitration is a Christian method of settling disputes. Protest against the unchristian acts of capital should never be accompanied by violence. So far as labor's protest against clear wrongs is made in an honorable way, that protest may receive sympathy from the Christian. The Christian may properly seek to become an arbitrator between capital and labor. J. ALEX. ADAIR.

2. Is it consistent with the Christian profession to hold stock in a concern which keeps its employees actively engaged in Sunday labor?

The obligation to remember the Sabbath day and keep it holy is universal, and is not denied. But it is a well-known rule that he who does anything by another, does it himself. So in law, as in ethics, the principal is responsible for the acts of his agent: the employer for the act of his employee. The individual stockholders are the corporation, and have control of its affairs. Therefore, they are personally guilty of Sabbath-breaking when the employees are required to perform unnecessary labor on Sundays. The Christian stockholder might retain his interest, while he makes an honest effort to change these conditions, but when this cannot be accomplished, he should at once, and at any cost quit the business. J. G. OSBORNE.

3. What was the origin of press censorship and what was the first instance of its actual operation?

An informal method of censorship of the press existed in ancient times in both Rome and Greece; and a form of press censorship was suggested by Plato. During the life of Protagoras we find that press censorship went into operation. All the copies of his works were burned at Athens by a sentence pronounced by the Areopagus. This was done because he had expressed very strongly his doubts as to the existence of the Grecian gods. Later, such actions were of frequent occurrence. ETHAN E. BRUNNER.

4. What are the leading modern substitutes devised by philosophy for Christianity?

1. The worship of mere Force as God seems high in favor with some scientists. This is modern Pantheism. 2. The holding of seances is prescribed by the Spiritualists; and the Theosophists are of the same order. 3. By some philanthropists the improvement of man's outward circumstances, his environment, is considered all-sufficient. 4. By many evolutionists, education, development and the improvement of the race through heredity are advocated. 5. By certain Socialists the Labor Church is thought a fine substitute. This church was founded October, 1891, at Manchester, England, by one, Trevor, and has since taken some root in America. In their meetings they make addresses to the Deity which are often applauded, give readings from the poets, etc. Thus are human hearts that know not Christ, fam to feed on husks.

AMELIA HOYT.

[To these might be added Christian Science, Materialism, and, if it were not that the question is limited to substitutes provided by philosophy, Mormonism.—ED.]

5. How and by whom was the principle of the phonograph discovered?

While Mr. Edison was making some experiments with the telephone in 1877, a stylus attached to the diaphragm pricked his finger at the moment when the diaphragm began to vibrate under the influence of the voice. It then occurred to him that if the vibrations caused the stylus to prick the skin, they might produce, on a flexible surface, distinct outlines, representing all the undulations produced by the voice, and that the same outlines might mechanically reproduce the vibrations which caused them. From that moment, the phonograph was discovered, and in less than two days the instrument was made and tried.

G. B. COLBURN.

[Several other correspondents mention Faber, Leon Scott and Charles Cros, as rival, if not prior claimants to the honor of the invention. It is generally conceded that the first practical application of the principle was accomplished by Mr. Edison].

6. What is the origin of the title Poet Laureate and who was the first to wear the title?

Disraeli remarks, "The custom of crowning poets is as ancient as poetry itself." The name "laureate," is supposed to have its origin in the traditional crowning of Virgil and Horace in the Roman Capitol. Frederick II., crowned the "King of Verses," at Ancona, in 1220. Petrarch received the laurel crown in 1341. Chaucer assumed the title of Poet-Laureate, but the official use of the name began in the reign of Edward IV., when John Kay or Caius held the office. The first patent was granted in 1630, so that the regular succession of Poet Laureates begins with Ben Jonson. G. E. KRAUTH.

7. What are the best means a pastor can adopt to hold new converts and develop their spiritual life?

If they are young people, he may introduce them to his young people's society, Christian Endeavor or Epworth League. If they have sufficient intelligence he may get them to work in the Sunday School; but if not, they should be set to work in some other way. By some means they should be led to put themselves on record in telling others of the Gospel that has saved them. It will become all the more precious to them in explaining it to others. The pastor also will do well to maintain personal contact with them, winning their confidence, so that he may by advice and encouragement guide them in difficulties, strengthen them against temptation and keep them from feeling that loneliness and isolation which may cause them to drift back into their old way of life. J. HARPER.

8. Ought a Christian who before his conversion did another a grievous wrong, to atone for that wrong when the only atonement possible would involve the wreck of his happiness and prospects in life?

A Christian, who has at any time in life, done any wrong to his fellow being, whether or not the wrong was intentional, should, if it ever became possible, repair the wrong, no matter at what cost, provided no greater wrong to some third person be incurred by his so doing. No true Christian could be absolutely happy, knowing he had wronged another, and that the power lay within his grasp to atone for the wrong, when by his selfishness he had held the boon from another, that his own happiness might not be wrecked.

CORDIE LEE HARBERT.

9. Is a Christian justified in staying at home and reading a good book on a Sunday morning, instead of going to church, if he is sure that he will get more good from the book than from the sermon?

No; "for none of us liveth to himself, and no man dieth to himself" (Rom. 14:7). Just to seek good for ourselves is the height of selfishness, and utterly opposed to the gospel of Christ. Paul said of himself, "Not seeking mine own profit, but the profit of many, that they might be saved." (I. Cor. 10:33). In Hebrews we are exhorted, "Not to forsake the assembling of ourselves together, as the manner of some is, but exhorting one another, and so much the more, as we see the day approaching." Jesus sanctioned public worship by coming to them after his resurrection, when they were assembled together. The Holy Spirit came at Pentecost, when "they were all with one accord in one place." By assembling habitually with the Lord's people, we show "which side we are on;" "confess him before men," and throw our influence on the side of God and right. No matter if we read the best of books, the Bible, in our own home, when we ought to be in the Lord's house, our influence over those who do not attend worship is bad. We virtually deny him, and "put him to an open shame," saying by our actions, "We do not need his help." Jesus promised to be with "two or three that met in his name," not with those who could meet, and did not.

MRS. IONE E. COE.

10. What royal prisoner, during his long captivity, made an arithmetical study of the Bible with remarkable results?

A Prince of Granada, heir to the Spanish throne, imprisoned by order of the crown lest he should aspire to the throne, was kept in solitary confinement in an old prison at the "Place of Skulls," Madrid. After thirty-three years in this living tomb, death came to his release. Many remarkable researches, taken from the Bible, and marked with an old nail on the rough walls of his cell, told how the brain sought employment during the weary years. The following were among the researches found:

In the Bible the word "Lord" is found 1,853 times.
The word "Jehovah" 6,855 times.
The word "Keverend" but once, and that in the 9th verse of Psalm III.
The 8th verse of the 97th Psalm is the middle verse of the Bible.
The 9th verse of the 8th chapter of Esther is the longest.
The 35th verse of the 11th chapter of St. John is the shortest.
In the 107th Psalm four verses are alike: The 8th, 15th, 21st and 31st.
Ezra 7:21 contains all the letters of the alphabet except J.
Each verse of the 136th Psalm ends alike.
No names or words of more than six syllables are found in the Bible.
The 37th chapter of Isaiah and 19th chapter of II. Kings are alike.
The word "girl" occurs but once in the Bible, and that in the 3d verse of the 3d chapter of Joel.
There are found in both books of the Bible 3,538,483 letters, 773,693 words, 31,373 verses, 1,189 chapters and 66 books.
The 26th chapter of the Acts of the Apostles is the finest chapter to read.
The most beautiful chapter is the 23d Psalm.
The four most inspiring promises are John 14:2-6, 27; Matthew 11:28; Psalm 37:4.
The 1st verse of the 50th chapter of Isaiah is the one for the new convert.
All who flatter themselves with vain boasting should read the 6th chapter of Matthew.
All humanity should learn the 6th chapter of St. Luke from the 20th verse to its ending.

CLARA LOUISE HEIDMEYER.

[Correct answers to this question have been received from several readers, and we give precedence to the first complete answer].

Miscellaneous Questions

W. C. Schulz, Prairie Centre, Kans. Has a postmaster the right to close a post-office on national holidays?

Yes, so far as delivery of mail and selling of stamps is concerned, although letters may be mailed on such days, as on others.

Reader, Md. What are the training-schools for evangelists at Northfield, Mass., and what is the cost of completing the course, and how long does it take?

For all information address W. R. Moody, East Northfield, Mass.

L. P. T., Purmela, Tex. Not long since, a man was helping me in harvest whom I knew to be profane and an habitual Sabbath-breaker and drunkard. Yet he asked a blessing at his table. When he took dinner with us, I asked the blessing myself. Did I, as a religious man, do right, or did I fail to treat him with proper courtesy?

You did right to ask the blessing yourself. It is customary for the host or the head of the family to do so, except when he may have as guest a preacher, evangelist or active Christian worker, whom he may then invite to perform that office.

Mr. A. Wadhams, of the American Bible Society, sends the following information in reference to the recent question as to chapter headings: "While there seems to be no direct authority for the use of chapter headings, it is fair to presume that it has arisen from the custom of the Jews in the time of our Saviour, of reading in their synagogues on the Sabbath day a portion of the Law, also a portion from the Prophets, selected according to the choice of any reader (Luke 4:16, Acts 13:15). At a later day, the books of the New Testament were divided into sections for church service, and subsequently into two kinds of sections, called titles, and chapters or heads. The titles were portions of the Gospels, with summaries placed at the top or bottom of the page.

"There seems to be a connection also between what appears usually at the head of chapters, and the use of paragraphs in the text. The division into paragraphs was made to denote that at that point of the psalm or chapter, a new subject was commenced, and was adopted for convenience sake, by the translators of the Authorized Version.

"It is important to know that in the Revised Version there was a rule adopted 'To revise the headings of chapters and pages, paragraphs, italics and punctuation.' This was faithfully followed except as to the headings of chapters and pages, and finding that it involved so much indirect and frequently direct interpretation, the revisers judged best to omit them altogether.

"As chapter headings and headlines possess no sacred authority, we should be careful not to place any reliance upon them in the formation of religious opinions, but be guided alone by what is directly stated in the text itself."

Reader. I notice that the ———, of ——— prints a receipt on a CHRISTIAN HERALD blank for a contribution sent for India Famine Relief Work to your office, and then goes on commenting on the work of the Committee of One Hundred, giving the impression that THE CHRISTIAN HERALD India Famine Relief Work and the Committee of One Hundred are one and the same concern. May I ask you whether I am wrong in claiming that they are not identical?

You are right, and the ———, is wrong. The Committee of One Hundred is entirely distinct from THE CHRISTIAN HERALD, and the fact that they have taken offices in the Bible House has largely tended to bring about confusion in the mind of the public. We would esteem it a great favor if every reader of THE CHRISTIAN HERALD would make it known in church and Sunday School that to insure the receipt of contributions intended for India Famine Relief by THE CHRISTIAN HERALD, they should be addressed as follows: "Christian Herald India Famine Relief Work, Bible House, New York." The name of the paper must be mentioned in order to obviate the possibility of confusion in the mail.

J. M. A., Wrightsville, Pa. What is the meaning of "apocrypha," and why is that term applied to certain sacred books?

"Apocrypha" means "hidden" or "mysterious," and is a term in theology applied to books or writings whose authorship or general character is regarded as not sufficiently authenticated to be accepted as genuine. The term, in regard to those books that have been excluded from the Bible, implies, in a wide sense, that the rejected writings are either forged, spurious, of doubtful authority, a variance with fact, anonymous, uncanonical, or such as are designed for private reading only.

J. J. W., Wheaton, Kan. Have any of the Caucasian race ever been cannibals?

There is no record of a race of white cannibals, although there have been isolated instances of cannibalism by white men, as when shipwrecked crews have been driven by hunger to make sacrifice of their comrades.

Subscriber, New York, N. Y. Will you, through the MAIL-BAG, kindly speak a few words of comfort to a heart breaking with sorrow. Loved ones and home have been taken. I am sinking beneath the waves. I have not the strength to say, "Thy will be done." My faith is shaken. My Father hides, as it were, his face from me. The Bible has been to me in former trials my dearest friend, but it seems now to bring no message to me.

We are sorry for you, and would gladly comfort you if we can. It is a pity that in these later troubles you should forego the best source of comfort which, as you say, you had in your former trials. There is no reason why you should do so. God is the same now as he was then—your truest and best friend. Be quite sure of that and trust him, even though, as you think, he hides his face from you. You remember what Satan said of Job: "Put forth thine hand now and touch all that he hath, and he will curse thee to thy face." Do not let him have the chance of saying of you: "Take away home and loved ones and she will cease to love thee and will give up her faith in thee." Cease asking why these things have befallen you, and concentrate your thoughts on behaving well under the infliction. See what you have left and thank God for that. Perhaps you have health. That counts for a great deal, as you will find if you will visit the sick. Perhaps you have delightful memories of your lost home and loved ones. They are a precious treasure. There are many who cannot think of the past without sorrow and self-reproach. Many have seen their loved ones go to shame and ruin far worse than death. We do not know your circumstances, but your lot cannot be so dark that there are no bright lights in it. Think of them and be grateful for them. God has not broken his promise to you, for he did not promise to protect you from bereavement and loss of home. You need his help now more than ever; therefore seek it and it will be given you. Find out some one else who is in trouble and try to comfort them. In helping others you will get comfort for yourself.

P. M., Morgantown, Pa. See answer to question 10 on this page.

H. E. D., Tulare, Calif. We are not familiar with the facts in the case.

T. T. T. Your question has been answered several times in THE MAIL-BAG.

Mrs. J. R. F. Such a one cannot be regarded as responsible, morally or legally.

Mrs. E., Pa. All requests for prayers are sent to the Converts' Special Prayer-meeting at the Bowery Mission.

James McC., Inkster, N. Dak. The introduction of politics at the close of a sacramental service was decidedly ill-timed, and deserved to be rebuked.

Inquirer is informed that Frederick C. Wiggins, late of the Hospital Corps, U. S. Army, is at present at Alcatraz Island, San Francisco, California.

A GLEAM OF HOPE IN PEKIN

BOXERS READING AN ANTI-FOREIGN PLACARD IN PEKIN

CHINA'S capital continues to be the centre of world interest. Civilized nations are all painfully in the dark as to the actual condition of affairs in that mysterious city. For many days past, there has been a universal dread lest the lifting of the veil should disclose a tragedy of indescribable horror and cruelty; and this apprehension has been fostered by the reports of wholesale massacre and incendiarism, which reached Tien-Tsin and Shanghai through Chinese sources. These rumors told, with particularity, of the slaughter of the foreign ministers and their wives and families, the burning of the legations and the indiscriminate killing of all foreigners in the city and of five thousand native converts beside. Pekin was pictured as a city of riot and blood; the British Legation—where the last stand was made—a shambles; the Emperor dead by poison and the Dowager Empress insane.

BARON VON KETTELER
Germany's Envoy, Murdered in Pekin

While the whole world was still shuddering over these appalling rumors, there came on July 8, from apparently reliable sources, the welcome news that up to July 4, the foreign legations in Pekin were safe and that the ministers, their families and official attaches, together with all the foreigners in the city, missionaries included, were still holding out in the British Legation. There had been some terrible fighting and heavy losses, but the heroic defenders had inflicted such punishment on the Boxer hordes, who attacked them repeatedly, that the latter were losing courage. Over 2,000 Boxers had been killed, including many leaders.

Food was plentiful at the legations and the spirits of the defenders were high in the hope that they would be able to hold out till relief came. United States Minister Conger and family, together with all the Americans, were believed to be safe within the British Legation compound.

This news, though meagre, inspires fresh hope that relief may yet reach the legations in time to save their besieged occupants. For many days past the Christian world has been earnestly praying for their rescue, and the intelligence now received of their safety, after they had been practically given up as dead, comes like a direct answer to these supplications.

These tidings of safety may after all prove to be unfounded, like many other recent rumors from Pekin, and the hopes they have raised may be doomed to disappointment; but they are apparently fully credited by the Consuls at Shanghai, who have received information that the Boxer attacks on the legations have ceased, and that Prince Ching has begun a formidable counter-revolution against Prince Tuan. A powerful relief army is probably now on the way from Taku to Pekin, including 25,000 Japanese soldiers and at least an equal number belonging to other nationalities. The Governor of Shanghai predicts the early collapse of the Boxer rebellion.

In Tien-Tsin, the situation is still critical. There are 17,000 foreign troops in the city, but the Chinese troops and Boxers between Tien-Tsin and Pekin are so strongly posted that the foreign force is inactive, awaiting reinforcements. Imperial troops continue to bombard the foreign settlement, and several casualties among Europeans are reported. The women and children will be sent to Taku. There is danger of a rebel uprising in Shantung, and Nankin is threatened, but Lin, the Viceroy, remains loyal. A Catholic bishop, two priests and two sisters were murdered at Moukden, and the Catholic mission burned. Li Hung Chang, at Canton, is executing many Boxers to discourage the rebellion. President McKinley has cabled him, expressing appreciation of his friendship for the whites, and trusting that he will employ his great influence in restoring order.

Assurances of the safety of a large majority of the missionaries have now been received from Chefoo. Those lately stationed at Lin-Chang, Pang-Chuang, Kalgan, Tien-Tsin, Fungcho, Fenchau-Fu, Chin-Kiang, Taiku, Pao-Ting-Fu, Suchler, Hankow, Kiao-chow, Hunan, Ping-Hsieng, Swatow, Kian Yin, Sung Kiang, Taiku-Shansi, Tai-Yinan-Fu, are nearly all known to be safe.

Among those missionaries now in Pekin are Rev. W. S. Ament, Rev. Charles E. Ewing, Ada Haven, Virginia C. Murdock, Nellie N. Russell, Mrs M. L. S. Mateer, Rev. J. H. Roberts, Rev. A. H. Smith and Mrs. Smith, Mary E. Andrews, Addie C. Chapin, Jane G. Evans, Rev. H. S. Galt and wife, Rev. Chauncey Goodrich and wife, Dr. Jas. H. Ingram and wife, Miss Luella Miner, Rev. Elwood G. Tewkesbury and wife, Annie A. Gould, Mary S. Morrell, Rev. H. T. Pitkin, Misses Mary E. Ambrose, Jane Evans, Rev. Mark William, Gertrude Wykoff, Grace Wykoff, Rev. John Wherry, D.D., Mrs. Wherry, Rev. J. L. Whiting and wife, Rev. C. H. Fenn and wife, Rev. Charles A. Killie and wife, John M. Inglis, M.D. and wife, Eliza E. Leonard, M.D., Grace Newton, Bessie McCoy, Jennie M'Killican.

BRITISH LEGATION WHICH SHELTERS THE BESIEGED

30,000 at a Funeral

The Victims of the North German Lloyd Steamship Fire Laid at Rest

SELDOM has a sadder or more impressive scene been witnessed in any American city than that which took place on the occasion of the public funeral at Hoboken, N. J., of eighty victims of the triple ocean steamship disaster at the North German Lloyd docks. Particulars of the calamity by which nearly 300 lives were lost, appeared in last week's CHRISTIAN HERALD. The bodies of many of the unfortunate sailors and workmen who died on the Saale, the Bremen, and the Main, will probably never be recovered. From day to day, the remains of some poor victim come to the surface of the river. Only a few are identified, and the great majority of those who were given burial on July 5, were marked "Unknown."

Funeral services were held in Hoffman's morgue, Hoboken, in the forenoon. Within the building there was a ghastly array of seventy-one coffins, arranged in two long rows on raised platforms, thirty-seven of them bearing the simple legend, "Unknown." In the street were nine hearses from the New York morgue, each with a coffin. Before the services began, thousands of persons passed in front of the double line of coffins, many eagerly scanning the names or looking for some mark of identification. Some inscriptions showed that there had been a partial identification. One marked "Italian boy" was covered with flowers from an Italian club; another marked "Sailor on the Saale" bore fragrant tributes from the officers and men of North German Lloyd steamers now in port. Hardly a coffin was without its floral offering, even the "unknowns" being cared for as tenderly as the identified. Hoboken is a town with a large German population, and every garden and flowerpatch in the place contributed generously to this last touching memorial of sympathy.

In the great crowd that surrounded the morgue, many nationalities were represented. When the services began, the strangers as if by common impulse, stood in the street, while the shed was occupied by the relatives and friends of the dead. There was a large attendance of steamship officials and of the officers and men of the line which had suffered. Rev. J. Rudolph, of the German Evangelical Church, Hoboken, officiated, taking his text from Romans 11: 33, 34.

His address, in German, spoke of the mystery of God's attitude toward man and the futility of any human effort to solve that mystery. "We could not," he said, "bow to a God whose ways we knew. It is not for man to try to justify God. It is not for us to know why this errible calamity has come to the sailors and their ships. In all the season of sorrow the individual griefs are forgotten or ignored because they are so insignificant by comparison. But the disaster has caused a great outbreak of brotherhood love. God and good people will care for the widows and the orphans and the sweethearts away off in the Fatherland; and the brave men who have gone to their rest will never be forgotten, whether we can tell now by what names they were called or not. Some of these coffins are marked 'unknown.' There is none unknown to God."

There were many evidences of deep emotion in the audience during Pastor Rudolph's address. A prayer by Rev. Alexander Richter followed, after which the bands from the North German Lloyd ships played several dirges, while the sailors and stewards carried out the coffins and deposited them on twenty-seven additional hearses which had come up while the services were progressing. Besides the hearses, five large floats had been constructed on trucks and draped heavily with crape. The coffins were carried out to the hearses on the shoulders of the sailors. Besides the hearses and floats there were over one hundred mourning coaches filled with city officials and German societies, and behind these marched a great multitude sadly and decorously, over an uphill road of five miles to the Flower Hill Cemetery in North Bergen, where the final interment took place.

By Courtesy of the N. Y. Herald

SCENE AT THE FUNERAL OF THE MARINE FIRE VICTIMS, HOBOKEN, N. J.

THE METROPOLITAN PULPIT.

Victories of the Needle

A Sermon by Rev. T. DeWitt Talmage, D.D., on the Text, Acts 9: 39 . . .

And all the widows stood by him weeping, and showing him the coats and garments which Dorcas made while she was with them.

JOPPA is a most absorbing city of the Orient. Into her harbor once floated the rafts of Lebanon cedar from which the temples of Jerusalem were builded. Solomon's oxen drawing the logs through the town. Here Napoleon had five hundred prisoners massacred. One of the most magnificent charities of the centuries was started in this seaport by Dorcas, a woman with her needle embroidering her name ineffaceably into the beneficence of the world. I see her sitting in yonder home. In the doorway, and around about the building, and in the room where she sits are the pale faces of the poor. She listens to their plaint, she pities their woe, she makes garments for them, she adjusts the manufactured articles to suit the bent form of this invalid woman, and to the cripple that comes crawling on his hands and knees. She gives a coat to this one, she gives sandals to that one. With the gifts she mingles prayers and tears and Christian encouragement. Then she goes out to be greeted on the street corners by those whom she has blessed, and all through the street the cry is heard, "Dorcas is coming!" The sick look up gratefully in her face as she puts her hand on the burning brow: and the lost and the abandoned start up with hope as they hear her gentle voice, as though an angel had addressed them; and as she goes out the lane, eyes half put out with sin think they see a halo of light about her brow, and a trail of glory in her pathway. That night a half-paid shipwright climbs the hill and reaches home, and sees his little boy well clad, and says, "Where did these clothes come from?" And they tell him, "Dorcas has been here." In another place a woman is trimming a lamp; Dorcas bought the oil. In another place, a family that had not been at table for many a week are gathered now, for Dorcas has brought bread.

But there is a sudden pause in that woman's ministry. They say, "Where is Dorcas? Why, we haven't seen her for many a day. Where is Dorcas?" And one of these poor people goes up and knocks at the door, and finds the mystery solved. All through the haunts of wretchedness the news comes, "Dorcas is sick!" No bulletin flashing from the palace gate, telling the stages of a king's disease, is more anxiously waited for than the news from this benefactress. Alas! for Joppa there is wailing, wailing! That voice which has uttered so many cheerful words is hushed; that hand which has made so many garments for the poor is cold and still: the star which had poured light into the midnight of wretchedness is dimmed by the blinding mists that go up from the river of death. In every forsaken place in that town, wherever there is a sick child and no balm, wherever there is hunger and no bread, wherever there is guilt and no commiseration, wherever there is a broken heart and no comfort — there are despairing looks and streaming eyes, and frantic gesticulations as they cry, "Dorcas is dead!"

They send for the apostle Peter, who happens to be in the suburbs of the place, stopping with a tanner by the name of Simon. Peter urges his way through the crowd around the door, and stands in the presence of the dead. What demonstration of grief all about him! Here stand some of the poor people, who show the garments which this poor woman had made for them. Their grief cannot be appeased. The apostle Peter wants to perform a miracle. He will not do it amidst the excited crowd, so he orders that the whole room be cleared. The door is shut against the populace. The apostle stands now with the dead. Oh, it is a serious moment, you know, when you are alone with a lifeless body! The apostle gets down on his knees and prays, and then he comes to the lifeless form of this one all ready for the sepulchre, and in the strength of him who is the resurrection he cries, "Tabitha, arise!" There is a stir in the fountains of life; the heart flutters; the nerves thrill; the cheek flushes: the eye opens; she sits up!

We see in this subject Dorcas, the disciple; Dorcas, the benefactress; Dorcas, the lamented; Dorcas, the resurrected.

If I had not seen that word disciple in my text, I would have known this woman was a Christian. Such music as that never came from a heart which is not chorded and strung by divine grace. Before I show you the needle-work of this woman, I want to show you her regenerated heart, the source of a pure life and of all Christian charities. I wish that the wives and mothers and daughters and sisters of all the earth would imitate Dorcas in her discipleship. Before you cross the threshold of the hospital, before you enter upon the temptations and trials of tomorrow, I charge you, in the name of God, and by the turmoil and tumult of the judgment day, O, women! that you attend to the first, last and greatest duty of your life—the seeking for God and being at peace with him. When the trumpet shall sound, there will be an uproar, and a wreck of mountain and continent, and no human arm can help you. Amidst the rising of the dead, and amidst the boiling of yonder sea, and amidst the live, leaping thunders of the flying heavens, calm and placid will be every woman's heart who hath put her trust in Christ: calm, notwithstanding all the tumult, as though the fire in the heavens were only the gildings of an autumnal sunset, as though the peal of the trumpet were only the harmony of an orchestra, as though the awful voices of the sky were but a group of friends bursting through a gateway at eventime with laughter, and shouting, "Dorcas, the disciple!" Would God that every Mary and every Martha would this day sit down at the feet of Jesus!

Further, we see Dorcas, the benefactress. History has told the story of the crown; epic poet has sung of the sword; the pastoral poet, with his verses full of the redolence of clover tops, and a-rustle with the silk of the corn, has sung the praises of the plough. I tell you the praises of the needle. From the fig leaf robe prepared in the garden of Eden to the last stitch taken on the garment for the poor, the needle has wrought wonders of kindness, generosity and benefaction. It adorned the girdle of the high priest; it fashioned the curtains in the ancient tabernacle; it cushioned the chariots of King Solomon; it provided the robes of Queen Elizabeth; and in high places and in low places, by the fire of the pioneer's back log and under the flash of the chandelier, everywhere, it has clothed nakedness, it has preached the Gospel, it has overcome hosts of penury and want with the war cry of "Stitch! stitch! stitch!" The operatives have found a livelihood by it, and through it the mansions of the employer are constructed.

Amidst the greatest triumphs in all ages and lands, I set down the conquests of the needle. I admit its crimes; I admit its cruelties. It has had more martyrs than the fire: it has punctured the eye; it has pierced the side; it has struck weakness into the lungs; it has sent madness into the brain; it has filled the Potter's Field; it has pitched whole armies of the suffering into crime and wretchedness and woe. But now that I am talking of Dorcas and her ministries to the poor, I shall speak only of the charities of the needle. This woman was a representative of all those who make garments for the destitute, who knit socks for the barefooted, who prepare bandages for the lacerated, who fix up boxes of clothing for missionaries, who go into the asylums of the suffering and destitute, bearing that Gospel which is sight for the blind, and hearing for the deaf, and which makes the lame man leap like a hart, and brings the dead to life, immortal health bounding in their pulses. What a contrast between the practical benevolence of this woman and a great deal of the charity of this day! This woman did not spend her time idly planning how the poor of the city of Joppa were to be relieved: she took her needle and relieved them. She was not like those persons who sympathize with imaginary sorrows, and go out in the street and laugh at the boy who has upset his basket of cold victuals; or, like that charity which makes a rousing speech on the benevolent platform, and goes out to kick the beggar from the step, crying: "Hush your miserable howling!" Sufferers of the world want not so much theory as practice; not so much tears as dollars; not so much kind wishes as loaves of bread; not so much smiles as shoes; not so much "God bless yous!" as jackets and frocks. There are men who can give you the history of Buddhism and Mohammedanism who never sent a farthing for evangelization. There are women who talk beautifully about the suffering of the world, who never had the courage, like Dorcas, to take the needle and assault it.

I am glad that there is not a page of the world's history which is not a record of female benevolence. God says to all lands and people, Come now, and hear the widow's mite rattle down into the poor-box. Queen Maud, the wife of Henry I., went down amidst the poor, and washed their sores, and administered to them cordials. Mrs. Retson, at Matagorda, appeared on the battlefield while the missiles of death were flying around, and cared for the wounded. Is there a man or woman who has ever heard of the Civil War in America who has not heard of the women of the Sanitary and Christian Commissions, or the fact that, before the smoke had gone up from Gettysburg and South Mountain, the women of the North met the women of the South on the battlefield, forgetting all their animosities while they bound up the wounded, and closed the eyes of the slain? Dorcas, the benefactress.

I come now to speak of Dorcas, the lamented. When death struck down that good woman, oh, how much sorrow there was in the town of Joppa! I suppose there were women there with larger fortunes: women, perhaps, with handsomer faces: but there was no grief at their departure, like this at the death of Dorcas. There was not more turmoil and upturning in the Mediterranean Sea, dashing against the wharves at that seaport, than there were surgings to and fro of grief because Dorcas was dead. There are a great many who go out of life and are unmissed. It is only a nuisance abated; it is only a grumbler ceasing to find fault; it is only an idler stopped yawning; it is only a dissipated fashionable parted from his wine-cellar; while, on the other hand, no useful Christian leaves this world without being missed. The Church of God cries out, like the prophet: "Howl, fir-tree, for the cedar has fallen." Widowhood comes and shows the garments which the departed had made. Orphans are lifted up to look into the calm face of the sleeping benefactress. Reclaimed vagrancy comes and kisses the cold brow of her who charmed it away from sin, and all through the streets of Joppa there is mourning—mourning because Dorcas is dead. When Josephine of France was carried out to her grave, there were a great many men and women of pomp and pride and position that went out after her; but I am most affected by the story of history that on that day there were ten thousand of the poor of France who followed her coffin, weeping and wailing until the air rang again, because when they lost Josephine they lost their last earthly friend. Oh, who would not rather have such obsequies than all the tears that were ever poured in the lachrymals that have been exhumed from ancient cities. There may be no mass for the dead; there may be no costly sarcophagus; there may be no elaborate mausoleum; but in the damp cellars of the city, and through the lonely huts of the mountain glen, there will be mourning, mourning, mourning, because Dorcas is dead. "Blessed are the dead who die in the Lord; they rest from their labors, and their works do follow them."

I speak to you of Dorcas the resurrected. The apostle came to where she was, and said: "Arise; and she sat up!" In what a short compass the great writer put that—"She sat up!" Oh, what a time there must have been around that town when the apostle brought her out among her old friends! How the tears of joy must have started! What clapping of hands there must have been! What singing! What laughter! Sound it all through that lane! Shout it down that dark alley! Let all Joppa hear it! Dorcas is resurrected!

You and I have seen the same thing many a time; not a dead body resuscitated, but the deceased coming up again after death in the good accomplished. If a man labors up to fifty years of age, serving God, and then dies, we are apt to think that his earthly work is done. No. His influence on earth will continue till the world ceases. Services rendered for Christ never stop. A Christian woman toils for the upbuilding of a church through many anxieties, through many self-denials, with prayers and tears, and then she dies. It is fifteen years since she went away. Now the Spirit of God descends upon that church, hundreds of souls stand up and confess the faith of Christ. Has that Christian woman, who went away fifteen years ago, nothing to do with these things? I see the flowering out of her noble heart. I hear the echo of her footsteps in all the songs over sins forgiven, in all the prosperity of the church. The good that seemed to be buried has come up again. Dorcas is resurrected!

After a while all these womanly friends of Christ will put down their needle forever. After making garments for others, some one will make a garment for them; the last robe we ever wear—the robe for the grave. You will have come in worn out from your last round of mercy. I do not know where you will sleep, nor what your epitaph will be; but there will be a lamp burning at that tomb, and an angel of God guarding it, and through all the long night no rude foot will disturb the dust. Sleep on, sleep on! Soft bed, undisturbed repose! Sleep on!

Asleep in Jesus! Blessed sleep
From which none ever wake to weep!

Then one day there will be a sky rending, and a whirr of wheels, and the flash of a pageant; armies marching, chains clanking, banners waving, thunders booming, and that Christian woman will arise from the dust, and she will be suddenly surrounded—surrounded by the wanderers of the street, whom she reclaimed; surrounded by the wounded souls to whom she had administered! Daughter of God, so strangely surrounded, what means this? It means that reward has come, that the victory is won, that the crown is ready, that the banquet is spread. Shout it through all the crumbling earth. Sing it through all the flying heavens. Dorcas is resurrected!

In 1855, when some of the soldiers came back from the Crimean War to London, the Queen of England distributed among them beautiful medals, called Crimean medals. Galleries were erected for the two houses of Parliament and the royal family to sit in. There was a great audience to witness the distribution of the medals. A colonel who had lost both feet in the battle of Inkermann was pulled in on a wheel chair; others came in limping on their crutches. Then the Queen of England arose before them in the name of her Government and uttered words of commendation to the officers and men, and distributed those medals, inscribed with the four great battlefields—Alma, Balaklava, Inkermann and Sebastopol. As the Queen gave these to the wounded men, and the wounded officers, the bands of music struck up the national air, and the people, with streaming eyes, joined in the song:

God save our gracious Queen!
Long live our noble Queen!
God save the Queen!

And then they shouted "Huzza, huzza!" Oh, it was a proud day for those returned warriors! But a brighter, better, and gladder day will come when Christ shall gather those who have toiled in his service, good soldiers of Jesus Christ. He shall rise before them, and in the presence of all the glorified of heaven he will say: "Well done, good and faithful servant!" and then he will distribute the medals of eternal victory, not inscribed with works of righteousness which we have done, but with those four great battlefields, dear to earth and dear to heaven—Bethlehem Nazareth, Gethsemane, Calvary!

INDIA APPEALS: "CABLE RELIEF, QUICK!"

And "The Christian Herald" Wires another $100,000 to Save the Dying Multitudes

WOMEN WEAVERS WAITING TO WELCOME DR. KLOPSCH

LITTLE RESCUED FAMINE ORPHANS AT AHMEDABAD

I HAVE thus far seen nothing in print, regarding the appalling famine in India, that has not been outdone in fact. It is almost impossible to exaggerate the true condition, and for every apparently extravagant statement, a dozen others fall far short of the truth. While we can write only of what we have seen, every day discloses new horrors, heretofore accidentally or purposely overlooked; and it is not unreasonable to assume that, so far as actual suffering in India is concerned, "the half has not been told."

In next week's issue, I shall endeavor to briefly describe a few of the scenes I have witnessed in India, and in the meantime I would urge every follower of Christ to put forth every possible effort to raise quickly, from neighbor and friend, further contributions towards the great work of life-saving now being so extensively carried on in that unhappy country by the consecrated men and women who have left home and kindred and friends to do the Lord's work under exceptionally soul-trying conditions.

LOUIS KLOPSCH.

Ominous news comes, as we go to press, in a cable message from THE CHRISTIAN HERALD Inter-Denominational Committee in Bombay. It announces that "No rain has yet fallen in the Gujarat and Rajputana provinces and the rainfall has been inadequate elsewhere, absolutely destroying the hopes that were entertained of a favorable harvest. The prospects now are adverse to any improvement in the suffering, and the situation has become a terrible one. There are many thousands of orphans, utterly destitute, now thrown upon our hands who must be cared for. In their behalf we appeal to you to cable relief quick." An appeal so urgent could not be disregarded. Dr. Klopsch therefore immediately, in order that the distressed missionaries might have funds with which to meet this new emergency. Will our readers remember the condition of this afflicted land in their prayers, and let supplication be made to God, uniting with the Christian communities in India, that he would grant the life-giving rains in their season, that the land may yield its increase, and the people be saved from another period of famine.

Cabled $100,000

A letter dated June 8th, just received from Rev. E. F. Frease, Secretary of THE CHRISTIAN HERALD Inter-Denominational Committee, gives details regarding the Quito's cargo which, as we learned by cable reported in our last week's issue, arrived after the letter was written. Mr. Frease says that the news of the nearing arrival of the corn had traveled far and wide over the afflicted country and the committee was inundated with applications for a share of the live-giving cargo. He promises to send at an early date particulars of the distribution with a list of the recipients and the quantities assigned to each. He adds: "I can say this much now, that the applications for corn call for much larger quantity than the 'Quito' is bringing; indeed it seems evident that double the quantity could have been distributed to the very best advantage. The letters which have reached me breathe a spirit of devout thankfulness for this most timely gift, which will doubtless save many thousands of lives from going out amidst the horrors of starvation."

GOVERNMENT FAMINE RELIEF WORKS AT DAKOR, GUJARAT, WHERE 20,000 PERSONS ARE EMPLOYED

The situation in Gujarat shows no sign of improvement. Mr. Frease says: "The missionaries are straining every nerve to reach the poor in their villages, rapidly opening relief works, such as well-digging, tank-deepening and road-repairing. Moreover they are endeavoring to gather to village centres the starving orphans and the destitute widows; and where parents are living but quite unable to feed the children, the little ones are taken to the mission schools of the various villages and fed at least once a day. As soon as accommodation can be found, the famine waifs and destitute widows will be gathered in from these village centres. But in spite of all we can do, the loss of life is appalling. For the corn cargo to reach us just at this time is and we will use every effort to get it to the people at the earliest possible moment. All these enlarged operations mean, necessarily, a very large increase in our expenditure, besides which, the number of the famine waifs who will be brought to the missionaries for support will be, I believe, larger by thousands. Therefore with the most profound gratitude for what the readers of THE CHRISTIAN HERALD have already so munificently contributed in cash and corn, I cannot refrain from sending an earnest plea to them for a continuance of their generosity which the whole world must admire and wonder at as at a gift actuated by the love which cometh from above.

An Unspeakable Blessing

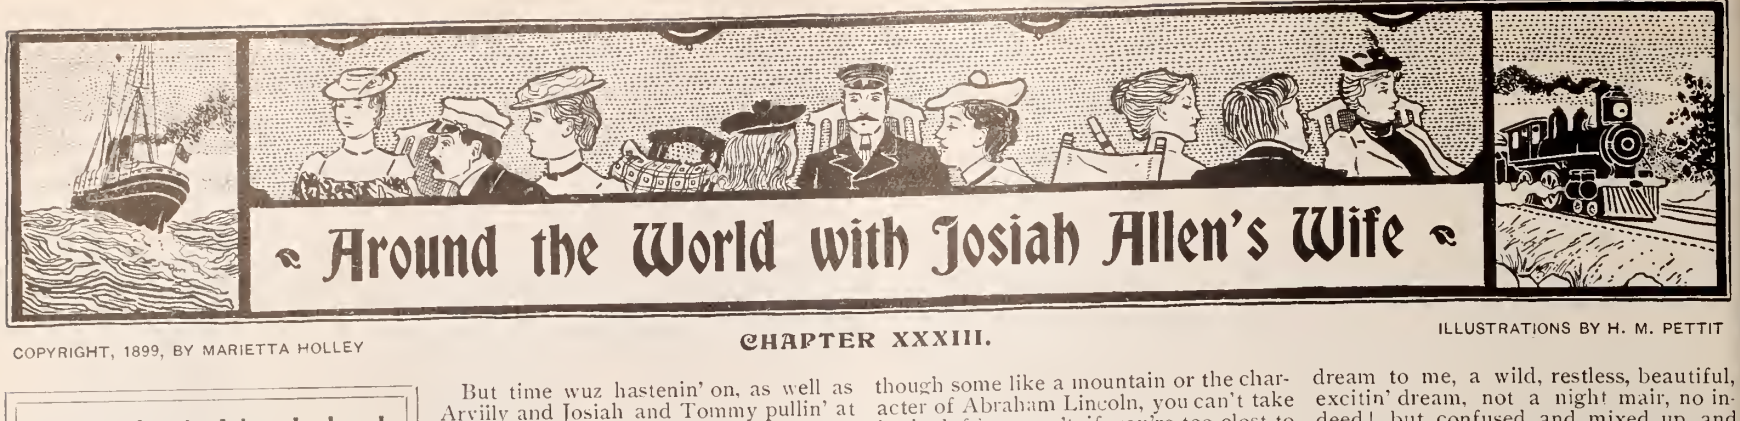
"The good accomplished by Dr. Klopsch's visit here, undertaken at this time when the fearful heat of the season is most deadly, must have caused him great discomfort, inconvenience and no slight degree of peril, will be fully known only in the great day when all good deeds are revealed to the assembled universe. What it meant to the missionaries and their helpers, struggling under the burden of famine work, and heart-sick with witnessing the awful suffering around them; to the starving thousands to whom his visit brought the first ray of hope from impending death; all this is far beyond the ability of my poor pen to describe. May the richest blessing of God rest upon him, and on the staff of his journal, and upon everyone of its readers who are so loyally and so generously reaching out a helping hand to the sufferers of this famine-stricken land."

The problem of the orphans is now becoming the most serious and urgent of all. The missionaries cannot support them without help. Must they be turned out to starve after all? As we have already pointed out, all these thousands of children might be kept, clothed and educated, if every Sunday School in America, every Christian Endeavor Society, Epworth League and Baptist Young People's Society would undertake to support one child. THE CHRISTIAN HERALD will be glad to receive such pledges and will forward them to the missionaries in India. In each case the missionary shall be of the same denomination as the people who give the pledge. It will cost about forty cents a week to keep one child.



Around the World with Josiah Allen's Wife

COPYRIGHT, 1899, BY MARIETTA HOLLEY

CHAPTER XXXIII.

ILLUSTRATIONS BY H. M. PETTIT

Samantha in Wonderland

IN the spacious rooms of the food exhibit we see everything connected with foods from the discovery and manufacture of raw materials into the finished products. Food enough wuz there to stock an army and information enough to make the Army's wife a power and a delight, for truly as the song runs with a slight change:

Men must eat, and women must cook;
And the sooner and longer the better 'twill be took,
Though the par-biled cook is a mo-e-nin'.

Knowin' as I did what a close connections there is between a man's stomach and his morals, and experimentin' on it victoriously as I had for years and years, you may know that my feelin's in this section devoted to food wuz equal to Josiah's if not ahead on 'em, as we looked round and see everything in relation to food that ever wuz thought on, a worthy exhibit and one calculated to do lots and lots of good.

And holdin' the electrical display above every other as I did in the hull Exposition you may know how I felt in the spacious palace where I could see the latest and most wonderful exhibitions of this wonder of the twentieth century who stays right here throned in dazzlin' glory and reaches out her strong invisible arms into every corner of this immense Exposition and rules and governs everything; illuminates every palace and keeps every wheel goin' from the biggest to the smallest. Forgin' right ahead in its invincible strength, astonishin' the hull world with its marvelous power, and I spoze lookin' ahead to still more wonderful works, but sunthin' like the infinite mind pervadin' everything silently and onseen, it goes about its stupendous work, makin' no noise, no fuss, but not willin' to be interrupted and fooled with. It seems willin' to do everything it can to help and bless the world, but if any foolish presumptious mortal rushes into her presence onbid and tries to shake hands with her, as you may say, she strikes the darin' mortal into silence. Feelin' as I did towards this marvel of the world, I stood in silent or at the doorway of her palace. There she stands up in her chariot drawed by a dragon, the strongest steed we know on though humbly (not nigh so good lookin' as the mair). And Poetry personified by Pegasus. Yes, onlimited strength and sublimest poetry make up this dazzlin' queen. I wuz glad they pictured her as a woman, and so wuz Arvilly; it wuz a great compliment to our sect. Her looks wuz grand in the day time, and at night when she stands enveloped in her crown of glorious light, it is a sight never to be forgot while memory sets in her high chair.

Amid the Wonders of Science

Well, there is everything in this exhibit from the greatest dynamo to a toy motor. Railways, light-houses, search-lights, the manufacture of electric currents from waterfalls, some of which have been carefull guarded and kep' secret, but is now carried on in public. Manufacturing by it precious metals, diamonds, etc., all its wonderful secrets that are known to 1900 laid bare here to the enraptured eyes.

But time wuz hastenin' on, as well as Arviily and Josiah and Tommy pullin' at my skirts, to attract my attention urgin' me to go on to the Eiffel Tower, but gittin' there earlier than the time agreed on, Josiah proposed that we should go up in the balloon journey through Europe and Africa. And with considerable tripidition we entered the balloon, and at a signal bein' gin we left the crowd below cheerin' and wavin' their handkerchiefs and sayin' adoo, whilst we wuz seemin'ly whirled up through broad space, and anon looked down on the most notabie sights of Europe and the mysterious wonders of Africa.

Josiah seemed to be beyend words and so did Tommy, and Arvilly looked fairly stunted as we hearn the tramp of camels and drumedaries and see the caravans ploddin' their lonely way over the wastes of the desert, and anon see a bull fight in Spain with the maddened animals rushin' at each other in the sight of applaudin' throngs. Agin we wuz in the midst of a storm at sea and felt the thunder of the wind and waves dashin' up aginst the ship; anon we wuz whirled away into a calm evenin' seen in some gray old cathedral town, and see the doves wheelin' round the ivied towers and the peaceful inhabitants walkin' to and fro. Anon we looked off into a battle seen: armies chargin' each other amidst the smoke and dash and rush, and all the mad glory of the battlefield. And so on and so on.

Forty thousand pictures a minute pass in some mysterious way through the apparatus which it has taken years to perfect and make it the lifelike thing it now is.

Josiah said that that wuz the way for him to travel. Sez he, "I can see in an hour what it would take months and months of constant dressin' up, and bone achin' travel, and a mint of money to accomplish." And Josiah spoke true. Tommy wuz murmurin' sunthin to Carabi and I guess that even that magination child wuz danted by our trip.

Well, agreeable to appointment we all met at the Eiffel Tower. We got there first and had a good chance to see it, though some like a mountain or the character of Abraham Lincoln, you can't take in the loftiness on't if you're too clost to it; you have to stand off some distance to get a good idee on't. I wondered dreamily as I looked at it what them folks would say to it who sot out to build the Tower of Babel (I laid out to bring in scripter a good deal in my me-thinkin', knowin' I would have to, to keep my mind anchored as it ort to be in such a place as this). Them Babelites would have been astonished if they had seen it, for truly it did seem to pierce up into the very heavens, and folks goin' up all the time and comin' down. It is the highest tower in the world—the Pyramaids can't compare with it for height. But like some heavy books of poetry, I enjoyed admirin' it at a distance rather than nigher, and we all went home pretty soon.

Well, we got holt of a CHRISTIAN HERALD that night; it wuzn't a new one, but we read it as if it wuz printed in pure gold. Josiah read aloud to me as I combed my hair and afterwards. He wuz readin' about the terrible famine in India and the relief that that noble paper had bore the sufferers, its brave owner goin' right into the hant of terror and perilous disease to carry help and blessin'.

Sez I, "What is the glory and heroism of war compared to that high and holy mission?" Sez I, "I hain't any idee but what angels flew before that ship, laid their pure hands on it and drawed it along on its blessed errent," and I sez, I believe they're perusin' that very page you're readin' now."

Sez Josiah, takin' off his specs and wipin' 'em, "I hope their eyesight is better'n mine; I don't see what ails my specs; I believe they're too old for me."

That good man wuz jest weepin' over the sufferin' of them poor creeters in India and the thrilling story of their relief, and almost told a fib to cover it up. And I d'no as it wuz right, but I sez to myself as I wiped my own eyes on my snowy handkerchief "I think the better of Josiah for it."

Well, them days in Paris seem like a dream to me, a wild, restless, beautiful, excitin' dream, not a night mair, no indeed! but confused and mixed up, and now in rememberin' the different sights we see at the Exposition I can't for my life straighten 'em all out and git 'em to follerin' each other as they ort to, like a flock of amiable sheep follerin' their leader. I have tried to straighten 'em out in a orderly row time and time agin, and have leaned my head on my fingers thinkin' mebby if my brain wuz propped up it would work easier, but to save my life I can't do it; my thoughts wont foller a straight path but meanders to and fro and jest as likely fro and to, and to describe all I see in eight or ten pages is like tryin to put a cyclone in a teacup. Some sights tower up in my mind like a windmill in a medder, but who can take up all the grass blades of that big medder and describe 'em one by one? All the arts and manufactures of my own country and France, and all the other foreign countries from Japan to Portugal; the gleamin' jewels, why, jest that one diamond that is worth three millions, that wuz worth crossin' the ocean to see. All the flowers that ever carpeted the earth, the wonders of the mines, the endless display of books and manuscripts, marvelous paintings and statutes, photography, telegraphing, telephoning, agriculture, hygiene, charities, army, navy, aquariums, hunting, fishing, spinning, weaving, the marvelously beautiful buildings, sot some on 'em in glowin' gardens beautiful as our dreams of Paradise. In fact we see everything on the earth, under the earth (subterranean mines, etc.), and above the earth (the big telescope). What pen can describe 'em all? Mine can't nor Josiah's. But as I say, some thoughts will tower up in my mind and claim a seperate niche in my fore-top.

Copyright, 1900, by Louis Klopsch

AMONG THE ROYAL PORCELAIN IN THE GERMAN EXHIBIT

A Telescopic View

And one of these towerin' memories is of the big telescope. What feelin's I felt as I looked through it and see the moon brung nigh enough so that we could neighbor with it. I knowed jest how skittish Arvilly wuz about men, and I sez to her before we made the move to get nigh to it, "Now if the man in the moon makes any moves to speak to you, Arvilly, don't turn on him and be hash, he may be bashful and he may be quick-tempered; don't act too offish, for what a lot that man might tell us, if he wuz a mind to, about what he's seen up there as he sailed on night and day."

"I guess I know how to act," sez Arvilly, "without you're tellin' me."

It wuzn't took as I meant to have it.

But I no need to worried, we didn't see him, nor no signs of him, but the view wuz grand and wonderful beyend any tellin' as we seemed to take our way through the infinite mysteries of space, and see the moon like a new country spread out before us, and witnessed with or the strange march of the planets, and beheld the wonderful things that made even Arvilly's bold sperit quail, and lifted me up almost into the tenth spear Paul tells on, as the broad, trackless wonders of the sky seemed to onroll before me.

Another wonder standin' off kinder opposite the wonder of the skies, is the wonders of the earth—the subterranean world, the windin' galleries that lay beneath the feet of men way down in the dark caves, burial chambers, grottos—it is a strange memory and a sombry one.

'he most towerin' and heart-searchin' ne is of standin' in a evenin' and lookin' t that magnificent fountain more beauti- il than any fairy-land ever knew. 'Way p a hundred feet high spouted out the azzlin' cascade of waters gleamin' with very color of the rainbow. Streams and reams of glowin' light flowing down- ards to meet other gleamin', sparklin' ts and sprays shootin' outwards and pwards. It seemed a fitting home for iat great elusive, fascinating, mysterious pirit of the nineteenth century, the great owerful giant who is revolutionizing the orld, that makes its home in sky and cean wave, above us, around us and be- eath us, and whose magesty and power e are just beginnin' to spell out.

Some Charming Sights

Another memory that stands out nobly the big congresses, where I listened ften with bated breath and wrapped motion to Eloquence, great idees framed golden words never to be forgot through fe.

Another memory is the music that filled iese charmed aisles to overflowing and iounted to heaven takin' us along, too.

Another beautiful memory is of the wiss village. A real Swiss mountain owerin' up to the sky, a waterfall, lake, ine forest, ragin' torrents, limpid streams, ute little Swiss houses with overhangin' aves, green pasters with flocks of sheep nd cattle, and all kinds of work goin' n — embroidery, wood-carvin', clocks, vatches, music-boxes, toys; and in a lean, sweet creamery you see them mak- n' cheese. More than three undred Swiss peasants in heir national costooms can e seen there goin' on about heir accustomed work. To ee a portion of their coun- ry made here on a foreign hore seemed about like vitnessing the effects of the nandate, "Let there be and, and there was land."

Some of the things that lelighted me wuz tiresome o my pardner and visey 'ersey. I noticed that his orns bothered him more in ›icture galleries than they lid in the halls of agricul- ure or restaurants. He vuz dretfully interested in he American Corn Palace, vhere, like a steeple stand- n' up on it, we see a im- nense ear of corn three storys high, with rows of vinders in it with corn eaves fallin' back from it nore'n fifty feet long. When ve first come in sight on't, osiah turned fairly pale vith excitement, and sez he o me:

"Samantha Allen, if I could git a few seeds of that corn I vould give the old mair and the colt for em. I would give the old mair for one kernel!" sez he. And then, wild with agi- ation, he whispered the awful words to ne: "I d'no but I would steal 'em if I couldn't git 'em honest."

Sez I, "Pause, Josiah Allen, before you backslide any furder. It hain't real corn; who ever hearn of winders in a ear of corn and a railin' on top with folks standin' on it?"

"Well," sez he, beginnin' to look more like himself agin, "I guess it hain't nateral, but I declare it deceived me for a minute."

On the Moving Sidewalk

Well, it wuz enough to deceive any- body. It wuz a good lookin' house with a ear of corn standin' up for a tower. No wonder that Josiah would loved to git a few seeds; one ear would more'n carry five big families through the year if they jest lived on Injin bread and Johny cake. America raises several billions of bushels of corn every year, and I guess she is tryin' to git foreign markets for it, and it is all right if she duz. Inside this house you can learn everything relating to corn, and git it served in every way, and you have no idee of the delicate and delicious dishes that can be made from it, as well as more solid ones, and in one room is a good old southern Mammy with white apron and turban makin' hoe-cakes. Josiah thought he knew everything in regard to raisin' corn, and I thought I knew everything known about makin' good corn bread; but after lookin' round inside we felt as we left the buildin' that we didn't either of us know anything about the capabilities of our great standard crop.

Havin' such a love and pride for my own country, it made me feel happy but not hauty to see that the United States went fur ahead of the other nations in a good many of her exhibits, though of course in some special things the other nations walked a little ahead of her in the procession.

But we see so much every day that our heads fairly reeled, and mebby that is one reason the event I am about to relate occurred. Arvilly, Josiah and I wuz a walkin' along towards home, Tommy havin' jined the rest of the party who wuz a-goin' furder than we wanted to, and presently as we three wuz santerin' along we come on to a walk a little higher than the rest, and I walked onto it, and Josiah and Arvilly stepped onto another one right by the side on't, and I d'no as you'll believe it, but it is true as gospel that sidewalk begun to move off with me, tearin' me right away from my pardner, and what wuz my agony to see the side- walk he wuz on tearin' along as fast agin as the one I wuz on. He shrieked out as he wuz bore away in agonizin' axents: "Farewell, Samantha!" His looks wuz dretful.

And poetry or prose or artist's brush can't never depict Arvilly's looks, despisin' his sect as she did, and her principles like cast iron, to have the looks of elopin' at a gallopin' pace with a pardner. Like Byron's hero, her face wuz a scroll on which unutterable thoughts wuz traced. And then the appallin' mystery on't! To see the solid earth a movin' away from you, and you a-movin' along also at a pretty good jog.

IN THE ELECTRICAL BUILDING

But my mind bein' very strong I mas- tered the situation, and seein' other folks steppin' off from one sidewalk to an- other, I stepped right onto the one my pardner had embarked on, and as I rushed along, pursuin' him fast as I could I met his returnin' figger. He throwed both arms 'round me, regardless of the crowd, and sez he:

"Samantha, do we meet agin? Oh the agony I have endured!"

"And me, too!" sez I, as I shook hands with him agin and agin.

Sez Arvilly, "He acted worse than when we pursued you acrost the conti- nent. The very idee of your bein' lost in broad daylight," and her nose fairly sought the sky. But we wuz happy; the danger wuz past, we wuz reunited agin.

Well, after that we santered along, seein' sights enough just on our way home to spread over a year in Jonesville and spread thick.

Another memory is of the hull of our party visitin' the Great Wheel, the biggest one ever made on earth. I thought the mill-wheel in Zoar wuz a big one, but good land! what do you think of a wheel big enough to carry with it through the air sixteen hundred men and wimmen.

I hung back at first from embarkin' in it, but when I see Miss Meechim take her place on it with Dorothy and Robert Strong holdin' Tommy in his lap, and Arvilly also makin' preperations for a voyage, I overcome my timidity and graspin' holt of my pardner's arm we stepped onto it and sot down, and wuz lifted gently but firmly up, up, up to where you could see Paris spread out beneath you, some as I would roll out a pie crust on the kitchen table. Jest so cool and onruffled did I look down on the big city and Exposition grounds, the movement upward wuz so gentle and stiddy.

Tommy and Carabi

Then there wuz the great Celestial Globe. Robert took Tommy and revolved round in it to the child's great delight. Mebby Tommy expected to see Carabi as he sailed through the heavens, seein' stars rise and set, and the moon travelin' 'round the earth and eclipses, etcetery, takin' place, all to the accompaniment of delightful music. Tommy talked about it for days.

And Robert Strong and Dorothy and Miss Meechim went to the theatre several times. Some of these Paris theatres, they say, are the finest in the world.

And if you'll believe it, I don't suppose you will, but Josiah, after hearin' them talk about 'em considerable, broached the subject to me of goin'.

But I sez, "Are you a deacon, or are you not? Are you a piller in the Jones- ville meetin'-house or are you not? If you are a piller," sez I, "show it by standin' up straight and not wobblin' like them of Gaza."

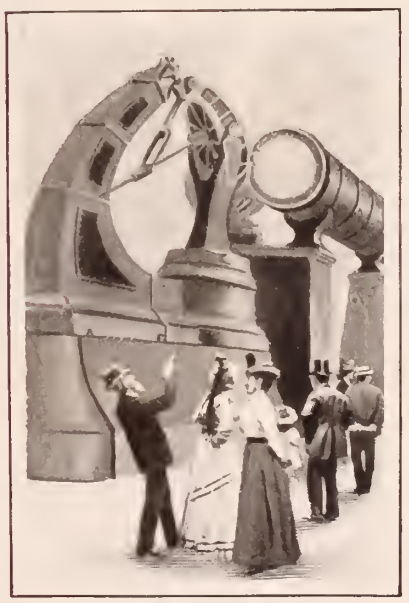
He looked onconvinced and sez, "The Jonesvillians never would hear on't."

Sez I firmly, "Heaven and your own conscience would know it, to say nothin' of Matilda Henn and Aratheusa Pender- grast."

"Are they in Paris?" sez he. "I didn't know that there wuz a Jonesvillian here or a Loontowner."

"Well, there is," sez I, "I met 'em yesterday in the Avenue of Suffering. They come on a excursion with folks from the West."

"Well," sez he, "I don't lay out to go.



VIEWING A BIG TELESCOPE

Of course it is right to stand up for your principles like iron." He didn't say any- thing more about the theatre, but knowin' that it wuzn't best to draw the lines too tight I encouraged him to take Tommy and go to the menagerie, and I went with 'em to the panorama of the Alps, and Venice and so forth.

Well, day after day we hung round that Exposition and Paris, perfectly tired out but perfectly happy, meetin' lots of folks we knowed and millions and mil- lions we didn't know, such as Injins, Turkeys, Persians, Chinas, Japans, Mex- icans, Hottentots, Malays, Yankees, Boers, Russians, Poles, Swedes, Afri- cans, and so forth and so on ad finitum. And some times, specially nights, my brain would fairly seem to tottle and git all mixed up with the whir and noises of all the machinery that ever lifted the burdens of the world and left it on greater hites. And my senses would all git tangled up with laces like cobwebs, and silk and fabrics that had caught all the most beautiful flowers of earth in their meshes. Tapestries and carpets dyed with all the colors of the rainbow would reel off in front of me, and mebby a shower of dia- monds and rubies would foller right on, clost to a cook-stove and soapstun, nothin' goin' right and proper in the pro- cession; jest as like as not a Bishop would march along right after a pack of cards, and a dancin' girl of India. Swords and stacks of cannons followin' sacred manu- scripts and Bibles, statutes and tooth- brushes, Arches of triumph and palaces arm in arm as you may say with spinnin' spiders and silkworms, butterflies and mountains, balloons and nursin' bottles, cathedrals and monuments, and perfu- mery. The great libraries full of the best thought of the ages, glorious architecture framin' in all the seen and the light song of a street musician, etc., etc.

"GOT HOLT OF A 'CHRISTIAN HERALD'"

Why, my brain would have been a sight to behold if anyone could have looked at it through the X-rays.

(To be Continued).

Samantha and Her Company

Samantha Allen is just right,
And little Tommy seems quite bright.
Although she's "hash," I like Arvilly,
But I think Josiah somewhat silly.
Of all the characters portrayed
(To say it I'm almost afraid
That Dorothy will think it wrong),
But still, I fancy Robert Strong.

—A WISCONSIN SUBSCRIBER.

HIS LAST BATTLE

HE had fought in his country's need,
And returned with a soldier's glory;
He brought home the trophies of war,
But that is not all of the story:
He brought, yes he brought, tho' at first 'twas unseen,
An appetite born of the Army Canteen.

He was handsome, and brave and gay,
He had fought for his nation's glory;
They made him the banquet of wine,
But that is not all of the story:
They fostered and fed, tho' at first 'twas unseen,
An appetite born of the Army Canteen.

For soon came a whisper, ah yes,
And it did not add to his glory;
He's a drunkard, gambler and sot,
But that is not all of the story:
He was marching to death, tho' at first 'twas unseen,
To an appetite born of the Army Canteen.

On, on went his unsteady feet,
Away from his manhood's glory;
No friends, no companions, no home,
But that is not all of the story:
He'd surrendered his soul, tho' at first 'twas unseen,
To an appetite born of the Army Canteen.

At last came a day when he fought,
With demons of hell, dread and gory;
He fought with a drink-maddened brain,
Till death put an end to the story:
His parents stood there, and gazed on the scene,
A noble son wreck'd by the Army Canteen.

And so his last battle was fought,
But well might the seraphs in glory
Veil their faces, hush their glad songs,
While the Angel of God wrote the story.
Lost, lost a poor soul! oh, the pitiful scene!
By a nation's legalized Army Canteen.

V. M. L.

DR. TALMAGE'S TWO VISITS

One to Hawarden Castle, the Country Seat of the Gladstones, the Other to Florence Nightingale....

Editorial Correspondence of "The Christian Herald"

NOT knowing of Mrs. Gladstone's illness, we went up the steps of the Castle at Hawarden one morning last month, the very steps down which the late Mr. Gladstone accompanied us about eight or ten years ago, wishing us prosperous voyage. Miss Gladstone heartily greeted us, and announced her mother's serious indisposition. Through the rooms where the great octogenarian had entertained us we were conducted. But, oh! how changed was everything. Most pathetic were the hats and staffs gathered upon a table to be worn and carried no more. Many of the books, and the scrolls, and the costly and elaborate gifts which had been shown us on our former visit had been removed, but the absence of that most magnificent personality of the nineteenth century most stirred us. There stood the marble bust of Mrs. Gladstone, appearing just as it did when her husband with so much pride called our attention to it. There were the paintings of the great orator and statesman, wrought by skilful artists at various ages of his life. There was the table at which he inscribed for us his name on his translation into Greek of his favorite hymn, "Rock of Ages Cleft for Me." There was the room in which he had thought out those marvelous speeches and orations which had moved the hemispheres. That was the scene of burden-bearing during four terms of Prime Ministry—a series of honors conferred upon no other man in all history. The entire castle and the grounds about it were solemn and tremendous with memories.

THE LATE MRS. GLADSTONE

We had no foreboding of the additional shadow that in a few days must fall upon that historic place. In an upper room the widowed soul was already receiving the call to heavenly reunion. They had been parted two years, the usual time of separation for those who live together for half a century. It is generally two winters, two summers, two spring-times and two autumns. That is about all the time the bereft wife or husband can endure the strain of loneliness and broken companionship. Those two years with Mrs. Gladstone had been chiefly occupied in living over through book and conversation the scenes in which she had mingled with her illustrious mate.

From the night when, in the Colosseum at Rome, in a group of visitors, a torch in his hand and a torch in her hand, and each one of the large group carrying a torch, offer of marriage was made by William E. Gladstone to Miss Gladyns, they had been one in affection, one in purpose, one in sorrows, one in life-time successes. How appropriate and beautiful that she should be put to sleep beside her companion in Westminster Abbey. The first grave I sought for in that venerable place last month was the marble floor inscribed with his name, and before I return home I expect to see her name cut in stone close by. Together in life! Together in death! Together in heaven!

. . .

Not with type-written letter, but in old-fashioned chirography did the invitation come to Mrs. Talmage and myself from the octogenarian, Florence Nightingale, yet there was no sign of tremulousness in the handwriting. Although she was prostrate upon a lounge, there was a vigor in her manner that would imply she had only reached mid-life. Her conversation had the sprightliness of a girl, but her countenance had in it the illumination of a long life occupied in helping others. Her features were sympathy enthroned. There was something in her appearance almost supernatural. It is impossible to exercise the highest style of charities for a half-century, and that fact not be emblazoned on forehead and cheek. As we sat down beside the sofa on which she rested, we were at first overawed with the majesty of her presence, and then fascinated with the thought of the sufferings she had alleviated. She had never heard until we told her that she was called by the soldiers in the Crimean hospitals, "the lady of the lamp," because of her visits to their suffering cots in the night carrying a lamp. At our own request, she told us of much that she had seen when there were no hospitals at all, and the wounded lay uncovered upon the battlefield. I said to her, "You found that there was no poetry in war," and she responded, "Yes, but I found poetry in the behavior of men under their pains, and in their sympathy for others who were in pain." I asked her if it was not an awful pull on one's nerves to stand amid so many physical agonies. She said, "We had no time to think of ourselves. There were the gashes to be bound up, and the broken bones to be set, and the dead to be buried, and we forgot our own fatigues and discomforts. I found them all gentlemen, and not one improper word did I ever hear one of them utter."

In reply to a question, she said, "I never knew what it was to be really happy until I undertook the work of relief, and have never known an unhappy day since I undertook my mission." As I had some new facts in regard to the famine in India and the efforts at relief, she made rapid notes of what was said, her pencil and memorandum book close at hand throughout the conversation. She is as busy now in alleviation of the wounded in South Africa as she was busy at Sebastopol and Balaklava. Her room is the place where trained nurses go for instruction and inspiration. She is in constant communication with London hospitals, although she is not able to leave her house. Her head and heart are full of projects of alleviation. She was never more anxious to live, although now in her eighty-first year, and her one idea of life is opportunity to assuage human anguish. What a pity that such a woman will ever have to die as long as the world has sufferings to soothe! Her house is an unpretending house, and on an unpretending street, but a Queen of Mercy is there enthroned, and a ladder bright as that which filled Jacob's dream is let down to that place night by night, and angels of God descend it, their wings loaded with benedictions. "The Charge of the Light Brigade" is not more thrilling to me than the womanly bravery and sacrifice that took care of those who were shot from the saddles of the immortal "six hundred."

T. DE WITT TALMAGE.

London, England.

THE BOWERY MISSION

....AT THE....

"GLAD TIDINGS" TENT

IN one of the opening sermons of the season at the Gospel Tent in New York City, the Rev. Dr. Chapman, in preaching on the subject of the miracle wrought at the gate of the temple, paid a very warm tribute to the work of rescue missions, and gratefully alluded to the miracles of grace that are being constantly witnessed in connection with them. He further declared his hope that in the work of the tent the spirit of aggression and consecration which characterizes so many of the missions might be a distinctive feature. Acting on this suggestion, the superintendent of the tent, the Rev. S. Hartwell Pratt, made instant arrangements for one of the services to be conducted by the Bowery Mission workers.

INQUIRERS SEEKING THE LIGHT

EVANGELIST PRATT EXPLAINING THE WAY OF SALVATION TO YOUNG MEN

It was somewhat of an innovation, the taking of a group of men from the Bowery to the wealthy west side, but it had very blessed results. It was very difficult to realize that some of the bright-faced, cheery-voiced, well-dressed men who filled the platform were, a few short years, even months ago, poor, homeless, outca tramps. But it was even so, and the gre audience that listened with such respec ful attention to the testimonies give felt, indeed, that the age of miracles w not gone by. Nothing, evidently, w more striking to those who for the fir time had come into personal contact wi the trophies of this famous Mission tha the wonderful diversity in the type men who are rescued through its instr mentality.

Upon the platform, amongst the co verts, were prosperous business men, well as men who had spent the great portion of their lives in utter destitutio and misery. There were several of t type of whom the superintendent spoke his address—young men, providently re cued on their first visit to the great cit and its most wicked thoroughfare; ar there were old men with a fifty or six years' record behind them of the mo flagrant kind of sin. There were me there who, above middle age, were unab to write their own names seated side l side with college graduates, and tho who had once been in the highest profe sional callings, but had fallen by the wa to be rescued by the good Samaritans the Bowery. This characteristic feature the Bowery Mission work was well brougl out by the testimonies of six men, w in addition to Mrs. Bird and the supe intendent, took an active part in t meeting.

. . .

A Remarkable Conversion

On July 4, at the evening meeting the Gospel Tent, a man stood up an said:

"Only a year ago to-night my son w converted in this tent. As his father can say that in his home-life he is a mo consistent Christian. He is a member one of our uptown churches." Immed ately after this statement, the young ma himself arose and told of his experienc of the past year and of how wonderful he had been kept, during that time, b the grace of God.

A little later another young man of abou the same age, arose and said: "I want t be saved!" walked to one of the fro seats and knelt, and was immediatel surrounded by some ten young men wh engaged in prayer in his behalf. Whe he rose from his knees saying, "I hav accepted Christ for my Saviour and I a

These men — clean, moral, manly young fellows — represented Independ ence Day of 1899 and of 1900, and the were powerful witnesses to the fact that revival meeting is a good way to celebrat the grand old Fourth and the anniversar of national liberty, a good day on whic to declare the freedom of the soul.

The Democratic Convention

SELDOM has a National Convention been held by either of the two political parties in which the influence of one man has been so potent and so manifest as it was in the Democratic Convention at Kansas City, Mo. There was no question at any time in the minds of the delegates as to the man to be nominated for the Presidency, and there were few, if any, disposed to oppose his wishes as to either the platform or the other candidate. William Jennings Bryan, of Nebraska, had supreme control, and few political leaders have ever had supporters so loyal or so enthusiastic. He was nominated by acclamation, and Adlai Stevenson for Vice-President. The Eastern delegates, conscious that an emphatic statement of the pledge to work for the free coinage of silver at the ratio of sixteen to one, would embarrass them in their efforts to carry their States for the ticket, were anxious to keep that pledge in the background in the platform; but Mr. Bryan had insisted on its being explicitly stated, and the Eastern delegates were forced to yield. They succeeded, however, in incorporating a statement that the supreme issue was opposition to the foreign policy of the Republican party, which is now generally known as Imperialism. In this connection, the platform denounces the Porto Rico legislation, and especially the war in the Philippines. It declares that the Convention was "not opposed to territorial expansion when it takes in desirable territory which can be erected into States in the Union, and whose people are willing and fit to become American citizens; but we are unalterably opposed to seizing or purchasing distant islands to be governed outside the constitution, and whose people can never become citizens." After declaring that this is the paramount issue in the campaign, the platform goes on to denounce private monopolies and trusts and to pledge the Democracy to the enforcement of the laws restricting them, and to the enactment of laws still more stringent. Other planks favor the election of United States Senators by the direct vote of the people, the construction, ownership and control of the Nicaraguan Canal; the immediate admission of Arizona, New Mexico and Oklahoma to Statehood; the continuance and enforcement of the Chinese exclusion law; and finally, "an American financial system made by the American people for themselves, which shall restore and maintain a bi-metallic price level and as part of such system, the immediate restoration of the free and unlimited coinage of silver and gold, at the present legal rates of sixteen to one, without waiting for the consent of any other nation." This statement of principle leaves no doubt as to what the party stands for, and every voter can appreciate the difference between it and the Republican party. Every patriotic citizen should study carefully the principles enunciated in the platforms of the two parties and get a clear view of the effect that those principles would have respectively on the welfare of the nation, if incorporated in our national policy. It is no part of the duty of THE CHRISTIAN HERALD to tell its readers how they should vote, but it does ask them to consider the principles soberly and prayerfully, and, disregarding all other considerations in this time of crisis, vote according to their conscientious convictions on the points at issue.

Seek good and not evil that ye may live, and so the Lord the God of Hosts shall be with you: hate the evil and love the good and establish judgment in the gate (Amos 5: 14.)

Undergraduate Characteristics

A writer in the New York Sun who devotes himself to observations on men and things in the public streets, gives the following curious note on the distinguishing characteristics of the college-bred man: "The regular summer influx of college men, which is noticeable after the boat races each year, is marked this summer by two distinct features. One is the well-tanned faces of the young collegians, and that is directly traceable to the fad of going without hats. Visitors to the New England colleges last week found that hats were the most useless of all articles of dress. The undergraduates went around without any head covering under the hottest sun, and the result was tan. But all sorts of people may get a coat of tan, and to distinguish himself from less fortunate mortals the undergraduate has perfected a peculiar walk. Is is now their walk by right of discovery, and many men have acquired it by unconscious imitation. The walker bends forward slightly from the hips, swings his arms violently and stamps ahead athletically and as if each step marked an advance in the world's civilization. It is a business-like stride, but what gives it particular favor is the fact that it is a distinguishing walk." There can be no objection to the young men adopting any gait they please, but that is not of so much importance as that they should walk according to the Apostolic advice:

See then that ye walk circumspectly, not as fools but as wise, redeeming the time because the days are evil (Eph. 5: 15, 16).

Contributory Negligence

A salutary rule on the subject of contributory negligence is laid down by the Supreme Judicial Court of Massachusetts in the case of a plaintiff who "entered a building where he had never been before, and walked into the hall without knocking or ringing a bell. He found himself in darkness, and instead of waiting where he was, and endeavoring to attract the attention of the family, or retreating, he chose to try to find his way, and while so doing fell down the cellar stairs." As there had been other suits in which the plaintiffs had recovered damages for injuries received under similar circumstances, the plaintiff in this case sued for damages. Mr. Justice Lathrop, however, decided against him. He pointed out the difference in his case from that of a policeman who was injured in the night by falling down an unguarded elevator well on premises which the officer had entered in the discharge of his duty, and also from that of a letter-carrier who was similarly hurt in a building which he was compelled to visit in order to deliver letters. The voluntary visitor assumed the risk of pushing on through the darkness without injury and was clearly chargeable with contributory negligence. When a man in doing his duty is called to go in danger, he is entitled to the protection that does not belong to a man who heedlessly or purposely exposes himself to danger. It is so with God's care in temptation. God protects the man who encounters it in doing his will, but not the man who wilfully rushes into it.

Because thou hast kept the word of my patience, I also will keep thee from the hour of temptation (Rev. 3: 10.)

A Transatlantic Telephone

The difficult problem of constructing a telephone cable of indefinite length is said to have been solved by Professor M. I. Pupin, of Columbia University. The New York Herald gives a full description of the discovery. It appears that the chief obstacle to be overcome in putting two far distant points in telephonic communication is that on an ordinary telephone line the pitch of the voice is changed at every hundred miles, on account of the necessity of saturating the covering of the wire with electricity. The waves of electricity are weakened in the process until the words become an inaudible jumble. Professor Pupin has discovered that if the wire has a coil eight times in every mile that difficulty is removed. The current is concentrated and is passed forward with undiminished force. On land cables one coil to the mile, that is, coils one mile apart, will effect the same purpose. If in practical work the discovery proves all that is claimed for it, we shall soon be able to hold a conversation with a person in the antipodes or in any part of the world. Thus the prediction of the Psalmist will be literally fulfiled:

Their line is gone out through all the earth and their words to the end of the world (Ps. 19: 4).

Prohibition Nominations

The National Convention of the Prohibition Party met in Chicago, on June 27. Nearly seven hundred delegates were present when Chairman Oliver Stewart, called the assembly to order. A difference on the subject of the platform is said to have occurred in Committee. Some members believed that the Convention ought to make its attitude clear on the great national issues of imperialism, the tariff, the trusts, the currency, etc.; but the majority ruled that it should concentrate its deliverance on the one supreme issue of the prohibition of the manufacture and sale of liquor. Even the question of woman's suffrage was not included. After a vigorous struggle to get that plank in the platform, it was finally decided to endorse it by separate resolution instead of incorporating it formally in the platform. On the following day, 730 delegates representing forty States reported, and candidates were nominated. The nomination for the Presidency went to Mr. John G. Woolley, the well-known temperance orator and editor. Mr. Henry B. Metcalf, the veteran banker of Providence, R. I., was nominated for the Vice-Presidency. Each nomination was made on the first ballots and was afterwards made unanimous. There was no illusion among the delegates as to the prospects. None of them had any hope that the candidates would carry a single State; but there was a strong feeling that every man who recognized the liquor curse as being the worst foe of our national welfare, should have the opportunity of recording his vote for men pledged to its extermination. Politicians of the Democratic and Republican parties have no sympathy with enthusiasm of the kind manifested in the Prohibition Convention, but the delegates believe with the apostle:

J. G. WOOLLEY H. B. METCALF
The National Prohibition Candidates

It is good to be zealously affected always in a good thing (Gal. 4: 18).

WILLIAM JENNINGS BRYAN ADLAI E. STEVENSON
THE DEMOCRATIC NATIONAL CONVENTION AT KANSAS CITY, MO.

BRIEF NOTES

We are glad to learn that the Misses Talmage, of Amoy, China, the daughters of the late Dr. John Talmage, and nieces of the editor of this journal, were away from China on vacation when the anti-foreign outbreak occurred. A letter just received from them tells us that they are at present recuperating in Switzerland, after a long period of service in China.

Dr. L. W. Munhall begins work in London on August 5. He expects to spend three months in services in different parts of the city,

The Salvation Army is doing excellent relief work among the New York poor during the hot weather, selling ice at the rate of five or six pounds for one cent to families.

The Executive Committee of the United Christian Party has nominated candidates for the Presidency and Vice-Presidency. For the former, Rev. S. C. Swallow, of Harrisburg, Pa., and for the latter, Rev. Charles M. Sheldon, of Topeka, Kan., author of In His Steps.

Dr. Talmage preached on Sunday, July 8, in Stockholm, the capital city of Sweden. An immense audience filled Immanuel Church long before the usual hour. An interpreter translated the sermon into Swedish, for the benefit of those present who could not understand English.

Gov. Hodgson, whose portrait appeared in this journal on June 27 with an account of his perilous situation in Kumassi, has made his escape with the other white people, and has succeeded in getting through the besieging army. Six men were killed and several wounded during the journey. Sir Fredrick has reached the Gold Coast in safety, with all his convoy, numbering four hundred in all, including the missionaries who belong to the Basle Society.

The State Department has received a cable message from Lloyd C. Griscom, United States Charge d'Affaires at Constantinople, stating that the Sultan of Turkey has promised to pay, within the next ninety days, the $100,000 indemnity demanded by this Government for the destruction of American property in Armenia. Partial promises have frequently been made before, but the tenor of Mr. Griscom's despatch indicates a belief that the Porte is in earnest this time.

.. TRANSFIGURED FLESH ..

THE TRANSFIGURATION ∴

BY DR. AND MRS. WILBUR F. CRAFTS

International Sunday School Lesson for July 29: Luke 9: 28-36 | Golden Text, Luke 9: 35: This is my beloved Son: hear him

TRANSFIGURATION and recreation are kindred words. Christ's body was suddenly and miraculously transfigured when he had retired to the mountain top. We climb the mountains and find our bodies slowly but divinely recreated, if we take Christ with us. Alas that so many seeking recreation turn aside to dissipation! These two words suggest as the best test for vacation amusements, even from the standpoint of physical health and strength, to which this vacation season is so largely devoted, the question, "Will the proposed amusement recreate or dissipate my physical powers?" God requires us all to be strong and fair, so far as we may. "Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy strength;" "Glorify God in your body." We shall be more likely to do this if we are rid of the medieval error that the flesh is essentially sinful. That error is burned away in the blazing light of the transfigured flesh of the Son of Man. In that light let us read anew: "Know ye not that your body is the temple of the Holy Ghost? If any man defile the temple of God, him shall God destroy." "Be ye transfigured by the renewing of your mind." Recreation of body is most surely promoted with renewing of mind.

. . .

After six days (Matt. 17: 1). The transfiguration day was no doubt a Sabbath, and every Sabbath should be a transfiguration day. Luke says "about eight days," which would mean six full days with the Sabbaths at both ends added, in Jewish fashion. The Sabbaths are a range of sacred mountains, which we should climb for health as well as holiness. Let us beware of the temptations, so numerous in summer, to profane and so endanger the weekly rest, more blessed to the body than any annual rest.

. . .

Christ Lord of Nature A high mountain apart (Mark 9: 2). The place was no doubt snow-crowned Hermon, the high priest of the mountains of Palestine, the boundary stone between Jews and Gentiles—fitting palace for the coronation of One who was to be King of both, especially as he is also Lord of Nature, proclaimed such in this lesson by the transfigured clouds and flesh, the gleaming snow and rocks, all aflame with his presence who is "the light of the world." Let not Christians hold the so-called "laws of nature," including the laws of health, in less esteem than the ten commandments, which were also written on the rocks, since all are alike the laws of Christ, "by whom God made the worlds." Surely if we once really learn that all nature is the work of Christ we can not forget him when we are seeking recreation on the shores of his ocean or in his everlasting hills.

. . .

Peter and John and James. These men became the cabinet of the King, not by any arbitrary favoritism, but because they had largest spiritual capacity for understanding the highest truths and deepest revelations. The same three men had been with Christ at the raising of Lazarus, and were to be his only companions in Gethsemane. In the kingdom of God highest privileges go to real worth. The words of Tennyson apply in that kingdom:

> Kind hearts are more than coronets,
> And simple faith than Norman blood.

They "went up to pray," only three, with Christ; reminding us of what we need to remember these summer days, that numbers do not determine the success of a prayer-meeting. What if they had concluded it was not worth while to have that prayer-meeting on Hermon, because only three were present beside Christ! It is enough to make infidels of our young people, the way men and women in full health neglect the Sunday School and other religious privileges in the summer, so-called "soldiers of Christ," at the very time the enemy is most active, abandoning their posts, without substitutes and without taking new positions in the lines in their summer homes—indeed, going over for the time at least into the hostile camp of the Sabbath-breakers. "Be not conformed to the world, but be ye transfigured by the renewing of your minds." Surely no man has the new mind who counts it a drudgery to be escaped to spend two or three hours a week in the house of God.

. . .

The Beauty of the Word As he prayed the fashion of his countenance was changed. There is no beautifier like a Christian spirit. That was what made Moses' face shine as he came down from Mount Sinai, transfigured by the vision of God. That was what put upon Stephen, arraigned for martyrdom, "the face of an angel." Whittier, pointing the writers to the pictures of his Quaker mother and sister, remarked: "They say all Quaker women are beautiful." It is the peace of God that makes them so. On the other hand, I have heard of a woman who was "uglier than she had any business to be," her face so marked with the lines impatience and selfishness had sculptured there, that she was alarmed and led to conversion by the sight of her face in the glass. There are some others that ought to find conviction the same way.

But it was not Christ's face alone that was transfigured. His whole body was full of light, as if to remind us that the whole body may be like a burning bush, full of the divine life. There is profound meaning in the words "your more uncomely part has the more abundant honor." Sex itself is a part of the divine image, a share of divine creatorship.

. . .

His raiment was white and glistering. This glistering white, such as kings wore on great occasions, proclaimed Christ a King. But let us remember for ourselves that a Christian spirit will affect our very raiment. A true Christian cannot dress as a rowdy or a rake, nor in disregard of either health or modesty. The dress may not be white, but let it be such as promotes rather than hinders a "white life."

. . .

What it Means to Save a Child There appeared Moses. Put side by side, a picture of Moses, the outcast child of slavery amid the rushes of the Nile, saved by a mother and sister and king's daughter, and a picture of Moses coming as an ambassador from the court of heaven to the coronation of Christ, and write under both, "What it means to save a child." There are governors and other high officers in the West who were once New York waifs, but were rescued by wise philanthropy—not by the aid of parents, but in spite of their wicked influence—and trained to make the wise choice which has in turn made them useful on earth and honored in heaven.

RAPHAEL'S PICTURE OF THE TRANSFIGURATION

This is not only Raphael's masterpiece, but one of the masterpieces of all art; one of the grandest pictures in the world. It was painted in the fifteenth century. It was in an uncompleted state at the time of Raphael's death, the lower part being only sketched in, the upper part being finished. Raphael's pupil, Giulio Romano completed the picture. It was placed at the head of Raphael's bier as he lay in state, and was carried in his funeral procession. Some idea of the size of the picture may be had when we consider that the figures are life-size. The original picture is now in the Vatican, the palace of the Pope. It is exactly copied in mosaics in St. Peter's at Rome. The personnel of the picture will be best understood by the careful reading of Matthew, chapter seventeen. The two persons not mentioned in Scripture are the Saints Lawrence and Julian, close by the tree. It was mistaken judgment to place them there. The picture is in a sense an allegorical painting, in that the lower part represents the calamities and miseries of human life, the rule of demoniac power, the weakness even of the faithful when unassisted, and directs them to look on high for aid and strength in adversity. Above, in the brightness of divine bliss, undisturbed by the suffering of the lower world, we behold the source of our consolation and of our redemption from evil.

Death does not End All There appeared Moses and Elijah. Death, then, does not end all. Fourteen centuries before Moses had "died," as men say, and "God buried him." But here he is again, his name and identity preserved. More than half as many centuries had passed since Elijah's friend exclaimed in sorrow as he passed upward, "My father! my father!" but here he is, Elijah still, though glorified. All the philosophy of Socrates and Plato in regard to immortality pales before this one divinely certain fact, the reappearance of Moses and Elijah. In the light of it death to the Christian is seen to be only the passing from the earthly side of Christ with Peter, James and John, round to the glory side of the same Christ, the same yesterday in life, to-day in death and to-morrow in eternity. Nothing can separate from the love of Christ, neither death nor life.

. . .

The Crown and Cross Spake of his decease which he should accomplish. In this grandest conversation on earth between the Son of God and saints in glory, they could find no grander theme than the "old, old story" of earth, which is also the new story of heaven, telling of him that hath "washed us from our sins in his own blood."

Clearly the Cross was the goal to which Christ ever pressed forward. "For this hour he came into the world." It was the thing he was to "accomplish." When it was done he cried, "It is finished." There is a tendency even among evangelical Christians to make the Cross less prominent than it is made in the gospels, in which Christ's death is the supreme fact, towering ever aloft like Mount Hermon in a tour of Palestine. Before we can walk "in his steps" we must be transformed at the foot of his Cross. Even in following Christ we must "take up the cross," the spirit of self-sacrifice, without which we cannot repeat his life nor know the supreme joy of selfishness transfigured.

. . .

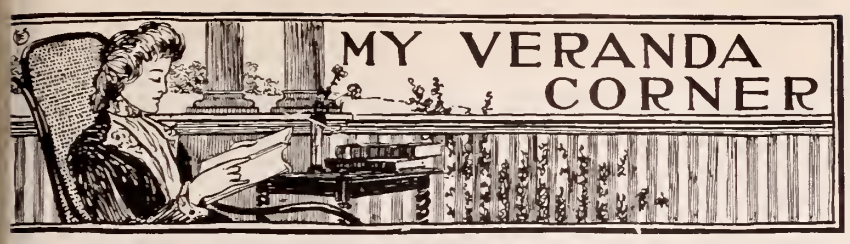
Meetings Only Preparations for Service Let us make three tabernacles. For us who already believe in the kingship of Christ the chief lesson of the transfiguration may be found in Peter's blundering proposal to live "on the mount," which Christ designed only as a preparation for work and suffering in his name. So little were even the three most spiritual apostles able to understand the burden of Christ's prayer on the mount that they became sleepy, and were only aroused by the outburst of transfiguration light. As Moses and Elijah departed, impulsive Peter found his voice only to say a very foolish thing, though it is claimed he had been for a week an infallible pope. "Lord, it is good for us to be here. Let us forever stay in such a frame as this and sit and sing ourselves away to everlasting bliss in three tents, one for thee, one for Moses, and one for Elijah." Christ led him rather from the mount of prayer back to the battle with the devil. Many to-day are making Peter's mistake, talking of worship as "divine service," for which it is only the preparation. Going to meetings is going to meals. A man once complained: "It's working between meals that's killing me." It is just the opposite that is killing the Church, making religion consist almost as much in Protestantism of going to meetings as in Romanism it consists of going to mass. We go out of our Sabbath Schools, having talked of Christ saving the boy from the devils at the base of the transfiguration mount, and pass right by windows where the devil has set his traps for the members of our own Sunday School, in foul pictures and evil literature and destroying cigarettes, which the shopkeeper would cease selling if we remonstrated and reminded him of the law, of which he probably has never heard. The best meeting I ever heard of was one in which Raphael's double picture was turned to life. Five hundred young men first devoted half an hour—from 7.30 P.M. to 8—to transfiguring prayer, and then went two and two, block by block, through the business part of the city, by regular assignments, inviting men to a nine o'clock service. When any one secured a promise of attendance he stayed and became acquainted with the man and came with him, so that in the meeting later nearly every sinner had an earnest Christian at his side, ready by silent prayer and a word in season to help him at the time of invitation to begin a Christian life. From prayer to work and from work to prayer should be the Christian's orbit.

. . .

Hear him. In that voice from the cloud we may find a solution for the problems of Biblical controversy. What shall we think about this and that Old Testament problem? Take your New Testament and find what Jesus thought. If you are persuaded that the Christ of matchless life and matchless words and matchless influence was the Son of God, it is the highest wisdom to rest on his word, using our imperfect reasoning only about the things of which the perfect Reasoner has not spoken.

. . .

He was found alone. Ages have passed. Great men have lived and died, but still Jesus is found alone, "the purest among the mighty, the mightiest among the pure;" too good to deceive, too great to be deceived. On him we can rest as the greatest certainty of faith.



BY MARGARET E. SANGSTER

A LULLABY

LEEP, my darling, slumber and sleep,
The pines are dark on the mountain steep, nd the soft wind sings for the day gone by s the great stars burn in the steel-blue sky.

leep, my darling, slumber and rest;
he birds are flown from the empty nest;
he ripples break on the lonely strand;
here's silence and shadow on sea and land.

ave for the lap of the little waves,
ave for the wind for sleep that craves,
ave for the lilies that faint and sigh;
ave for the ghosts that go gliding by.

leep, my darling, slumber and sleep,
or Love is watching, thy rest to keep,
leep and dream of a happy day;
ood angels guard thy bed alway.

WARM WEATHER WISDOM

N the first place, my dear lady, fuming and fretting because it is hot, fanning violently and mopping your flushed face with energy—all this fuss is only making you warmer. The nly way to keep cool in summer to forget the heat and be easy n your mind. Summer, which omes to ripen the fruits: summer, hich means hay-making and aping and provision laid up by-nd-by in barn and bin for future se, must needs be warm, else how ould its work be done? The eautiful fields, the blushing or-hards, the hedge-rows overgrown ith vines and fragrant with the ent of flowers, all owe their rgesse of beauty to the sun and e summer's use of the sun.

Now and then of course we are little uncomfortable. But we ed not despair. Cool nights llow stifling days; showers tem-r the sultry atmosphere; we ay dress coolly, we may avoid o much effort. If we can also rink iced tea and coffee, and use monade freely, if we eat meat aringly and prefer cold desserts hot ones, if we can do most of r cooking over a gas range or oil stove instead of over glow-g coals in a steady fire kept up l day, we shall be cooler. The rdest work of the week is com-rised in three words, baking, ashing, and ironing. Towns-eople may buy their bread dur-g the summer, and country peo-e who must make it, may be grate-l that they have not to live in the nfined limits of city blocks. Washing always a hard task, but if people would sten to reason they could simplify the oning, and nobody is obliged to wear aborately ruffled underwear, and fluffy, ated dresses which are beautiful to look , and back-breaking to launder.

Warm weather wisdom may be summed p pithily in two or three words. Use mmon sense.

The Daughter's Room

A white bed, white curtains at the win-ows, a white, draped dressing-case, a reen or rose-colored rug on the floor, bbons to match the rug, paper on the alls sprigged with green or sprinkled ith roses, a low rocking-chair, and a retty engraving or two, with her work-ox and her favorite books, will make an deal bower for the daughter of the house. othing need be very expensive, but the eneral effect should be dainty and pure. painted or stained floor is easily kept ean; and, if the mother is wise, she will sist that Alice or Mary shall not leave a sordered room behind her when she es out for the day, that the room shall ways be tidy, with no litter of papers and pieces on the floor: no clothes lying about, nor shoes left here and there. A sweet refinement and absolute neatness should characterize a daughter's room, and indicate the maiden's self, for is she not the white lily of her parents' life?

A Model Wife's Love For Her Husband

Mrs. Gladstone was a perfect wife and took in good part the amusement which her belief in "William" as an all-wise and well-nigh infallible autocrat occasionally caused. She relieved him of every possible care. She vigilantly guarded his health. She tolerated his fads and caprices, and to the end of his life retained his unswerving tenderness and loyalty. When the old couple in the last years of their blended lives went here or there, people observed how gentle and constant were their reciprocal attentions; how indispensable the one seemed to the other. In the earlier days, Mrs. Gladstone accompanied her husband on his various journeys and listened to all his speeches; was always present when he made an address in Parliament, and as he grew old she used to make for him, then and there, a drink which smoothed his voice and sustained his strength, and with wifely solicitude saw to it when he sat down that he put on his overcoat or extra wrap.

We often say that great men must have great mothers. A great man in this age of competition and unrest needs a great and good wife, and this Mrs. Gladstone was. Children and grandchildren live to mourn for her, and to carry on the traditions of sincerity, unaffected kindness and nobility of character which were her chief distinctions.

For Future Use

"What a very tiresome old man Mr. Elmore Jenkins is," said Rosalie Simmons, on her way home from a church sociable.

"He was a brilliant business man, and exceptionally successful, but he gave his whole time and thought to the amassing of his fortune, and now that he has retired, the time hangs heavily on his hands, and he does not know what to do with himself. Mrs. Jenkins and Dora find him a sort of incubus. He meddles with the housekeeping, goes into the kitchen and scolds the maids, finds fault with the cooking, and peeps into the flour barrel and the refrigerator. He has never cultivated a habit of reading, and books do not entertain him, and socially he is a wet blanket."

So far proceeded Aunt Phebe. The minister's wife here put in her kind word:

"Mr. Jenkins has a very generous disposition and always helps the poor, and subscribes liberally to every good cause. I do not think we should call him tiresome because he is not on our level. We should try to find subjects for which he will care."

The Doctor, who is a very sensible young woman, smiled and made a suggestion.

"Would it not be well for us, who are still young, to store up something for future use mentally, just as we store our jellies and jams for the winter pantry? Not to be so absorbed in business or in pleasure, that we grow narrow or dwarfed; to exercise more than a single set of faculties, and to keep on learning something new all our lives, are the obvious steps to take to prevent our being tiresome in old age.

Aunt Prudence Payson's Catch-all

—DORRIS. I have only one word to say to you, dear. Never knowingly read a bad book. There are plenty of good ones.

—WILLIAM. It is customary to ask a father's consent to the betrothal of his daughter to her future husband. Very naturally, too, the father is interested in the suitor's business prospects, in his character and standing in the community.

—LOUISA JANE. Since your home must be with your mother-in-law, defer to her wishes as much as you possibly can. Remember that the house is hers. Probably amiability on your part will win her to like you. No, to your second query. You have not come to the house as a servant, and you should not do the family housework, when the means are sufficient to pay for help. I presume the work got itself done before your marriage.

HAPPY CHILDHOOD

Whatever troubles wait us,
There are days of dear delight,
When happy we arise at morn
And go to bed at night.

The princess and the peasant,
The child of high degree,
The poorest and the richest ones
Are just one family.

God-loved and Nature-loving;
With eyes that shine like stars,
And hands that haste to gather flowers,
And hearts that know no scars.

About Savoir-Faire

I USE the two familiar French words because while we all understand them, they mean rather more than is expressed by their literal translation into English. To know what to do on all occasions, to be perfectly sure that you will not blunder, and to be delivered from awkwardness, diffidence and doubt, are very blessed things. A young girl going from home for the first time, and appearing among strangers whose ways are more ceremonious than those to which she has been accustomed, may be pardoned if she feel a little uneasiness as to her behavior. It is natural that she should wish to make a good impression, and that she should have a dread of making mistakes. But after all she need not be troubled if she will but remember that at bottom manners are very simple, and if she will observe a fad rules.

First of all, it is not expected nor desired that a young woman shall force herself to the front and take a leading part in the conversation at a strange table or in mixed company. Modesty is most becoming always to youth, and shyness has a charm of its own. A bashful deportment which plunges a person into mortifying situations, is very far removed from shyness, which may always be self-possessed.

One or two rules are to be always observed: In entering a room as a guest, whether by yourself or on an occasion, as a reception, or a party, speak to your hostess, make your little manners to her, as the French say. In leaving say good-by to your hostess. At a dinner or luncheon if you are not quite sure about the various forks and spoons which in these days are placed beside your plate, look at your hostess and follow her example. In some houses the hostess is always served first and the custom, which is a recognition of her position as queen of the home, has much to commend it; among other reasons, it sets an awkward or uncertain guest at ease. A present custom of society is that when persons are served, they at once begin to eat, without waiting until all are helped. This usage is not universal. Where everyone waits till the whole table has been helped, there is an advantage, because the course is then finished simultaneously, and the meal proceeds in a more orderly fashion than when people are obliged to wait for one another.

The most charmingly well-bred women are those whose manners are quite simple, and who never seem stiff and formal. Politeness is never selfish. The savage snatches, pushes, seizes what he wants, and tramples on the rights of others. The civilized being is patient and considerate, and prefers others to himself.

Savoir-faire implies a certain mastery of one's hands and feet. One should not carelessly knock down chairs nor upset cups of coffee or glasses of water, nor thrust his elbows into another's sides. One should not step on a lady's train, nor commit any needless rudeness when in company with others. The well-bred gentleman, if seated, rises when a lady enters the parlor, and either hands her a chair, or remains standing until she is seated. He removes his hat when he meets a lady, lifts it quite off his head, and if they stop and have a conversation, he holds the hat in his hand until he takes leave. A gentleman taking a lady to drive, unless he has no confidence in his horse, seats her first; then steps in himself. If he is already in the vehicle, he steps out and hands her in, does not sit still and let her climb in beside him. A lady always thanks a gentleman for every courtesy and takes nothing as her right, nor as a thing of course. A man follows a woman down the aisle at church, and into the drawing-room at home.

These little matters are soon picked up by the observant. The large and comfortable rule is: be yourself at all times, and do not think about yourself at all.

JOHN H. CHAPMAN, ESQ., PRES.

REV. E. E. CHIVERS, D.D., GEN. SEC'Y

BAPTISTS IN COUNCIL

The Tenth International Convention of the Baptist Young People's Union in Session at Cincinnati—The Programme Outlined

GREAT preparations were made for the tenth International Convention of the Baptist Young People's Union, which was held in Cincinnati, July 12, 13, 14, 15th. The sessions were held in the great Music Hall, which is one of the finest and largest convention halls in America, having a seating capacity of about 5,000 people. The Baptist Young People's Union has had unparalleled prosperity, having been organized in Chicago in 1891. The former conventions have been held in the following cities: Chicago, Detroit, Indianapolis, Milwaukee, Toronto, Baltimore, Chattanooga, Buffalo and Richmond, Va. Nearly 12,000 delegates and visitors were registered in Buffalo in 1898, and the attendance in Cincinnati reached about 15,000.

The key-word this year was "Apostleship," and the sermon and addresses emphasized this central idea. The president is Mr. John H. Chapman, a business man of Chicago, and the general secretary is Rev. E. E. Chivers, D.D., of Chicago. The International Headquarters in Cincinnati, during the Convention were the Grand Hotel. The executive committee in Cincinnati who had charge of all the arrangements for this great Convention were the following: G. M. Peters, P. W. Cadman, Wm. C. Peale, Rev. Warren G. Partridge D.D., H. C. Drake, Jas. K. Stewart, Rev. A. J. Ramsey. The singing was led by a chorus of 500 voices and by the great Music Hall organ, which is one of the largest and finest organs in this country. There was a reception committee of 500, who met all incoming trains.

On Wednesday night there was a reception at the Ninth Street Baptist Church, which is the largest Protestant Church in Ohio, having a membership of 1,700, and nine Sunday Schools with over 3,000 scholars, and seven chapels for city mission work, and 80 services each week in institutional methods. The Music Hall was beautifully decorated; and the Union Jack of England was intertwined with the Stars and Stripes.

Arrangements had been made for side-trips to Mammoth Cave, Louisville, Ky., Lookout Mountain and Chattanooga, excursions on the Ohio river and to many other places of interest. Many missionaries were present from foreign lands; and on Sunday, July 15th, there was a missionary service in two of the largest churches at 10:30 A.M., in which visiting missionaries gave addresses appropriately described as "Voices from Many Lands."

The following is an outline of the feast of good things in the programme: Opening of the Convention on Thursday, July 12th, at 10 A.M., by President John H. Chapman. Addresses of Welcome: 1st, on behalf of the Baptists of Cincinnati and Ohio, by Rev. Warren G. Partridge, D.D. 2nd, On behalf of the citizens, by Col. Wm. B. Melish. Response by President A. Gaylor Slocum, LL.D., of Kalamazoo, Mich. Annual Reports: 1st, Board of Managers, Rev. E. E. Chivers, D.D. 2nd, Treasurer, Frank Moody, Milwaukee. Addresses: 1st, "The Perpetual Apostleship," Prof. George B. Eager, D.D., Louisville, Ky. 2nd, "The Secret of Apostolic Power," A. C. Dixon, D.D., Brooklyn, N. Y. At 2:30 P.M. Conference: 1st, "Our Bible Reader's Course," Prof. John R. Sampey, D.D., Louisville, Ky., leader. At 4:30 P.M., there was a unique series of meetings and every State in the union had rallies in the largest houses of worship of all denominations in the city. At 7:45 P.M., there was an immense mass meeting in Music Hall, and the Announcement of Educational Plans for 1900-1901.

On Friday, at 8.30 A.M., there was a devotional hour, led by Rev. H. M. Wharton, D.D., of Baltimore. Election of Officers. Address: "Go," T. C. Johnson, D.D., Charleston, W. Va. Banner service with address illustrative of polyglot missions in America. Address on "America as a Field of Opportunity," by H. L. Morehouse, D.D., of New York. On Friday afternoon there was the award of prize banners, Senior Department. Fellowship meeting with roll-call and greetings. Greetings from the German Baptist Young People's Union, and from the National Baptist Young People's Union. On Friday evening, in Music Hall, the following addresses were delivered: "The Press as an Agency in Evangelism," A. J. Rowland, D.D., Philadelphia; "Mission Work in the South," S. Y. Jameson, D.D., Atlanta, Ga.; "Christ for the World and the World for Christ," J. L. Campbell, D.D., New York.

On Saturday morning, in the Music Hall, the following addresses were given: "Getting or Being," B. F. Dunwiddie, Esq., Jamesville, Wis.; "A Good Investment," Carey Emerson, Esq., Minneapolis; "The Messenger's Equipment," L. L. Henson, D.D., Fort Wayne, Ind.; "Student Volunteer Movement"—1st, "Its Origin," Mr. Frank W. Sweet, St. Paris, Ohio; 2nd, "Its Marvelous Development," Rev. Albert Ehrgott, Springfield, Ohio; 3d, "Its Significance," Mr. Charles B. Tenney, Rochester, N. Y. On Saturday afternoon the award of prize banners was made, Junior Department, Junior Exercise; Address, "Child Conversion and Child Training," Rev. W. E. Hatcher, D.D., Richmond, Va. On Saturday evening the following addresses were given: "Gaining by Giving," Rev. W. R. L. Smith, D.D., Richmond, Va.; "China," William Ashmore, D.D., the veteran missionary of Swatow, China.

On Sunday the proceedings commenced with a devotional hour at the Ninth Street Baptist Church, led by Rev. H. M. Wharton, D.D., of Baltimore, and at 10.30 A.M. there was preaching in about seventy different pulpits of all denominations, by visiting ministers; annual sermon, "Apostleship," Rev. E. G. Gange, F.R.A.S., London, England. The closing session of the convention was held on Sunday evening in the Music Hall. Address, "The Convention and After," W. E. Hatcher, D.D., Richmond, Va.; address by Rev. G. H. Ferris, New Haven, Conn.; address by Rev. H. M. Wharton, D.D., Baltimore; closing consecration service, conducted by the General Secretary, E. E. Chivers, D.D., Chicago.

WARREN G. PARTRIDGE.

THE MUSIC HALL, CINCINNATI, WHERE THE CONVENTION WAS HELD

Food is more healthful Risen with Royal Baking Powder.

ROYAL BAKING POWDER CO., NEW YORK.

Gospel Hymns for Summer Meetings THE CHURCH HYMNS AND GOSPEL SONGS. Sample Music Edition, 20 cts. Words only, 10 cts. THE BIGLOW & MAIN CO., New York and Chicago.

HAIR INSOLES keep feet clean and dry. Prevent jar in walking. Relieve Rheumatism, Callons, Tender and Perspiring Feet. 10c., 3 pair 25c., postpaid. The Wm. H. Wiley & Son Co., Box D, Hartford, Ct.

Catalogue of Famous Maryland made-to order clothing free. Lithographed Catalogue of Famous Maryland Carpets free. Freight paid on carpets, expressage on clothing. Julius Hines & Son, Baltimore, Md., Dept. 218.

Record Written in Blood

The record of Hood's Sarsaparilla is literally written in the blood of millions of people whom it has given good health. It is all the time conquering diseases of the stomach, nerves, kidneys and blood; relieving pains of rheumatism, dispelling that tired feeling and making men, women and children thankful and happy. You may be one of this number if you will.

Hood's Sarsaparilla

Is America's Greatest Medicine. Price $1.

HOOD'S PILLS cure constipation. Price 25 cents.

When, at the beginning of the war with Spain, the Forty-fourth Separate Company, of Utica, N. Y., became Company E of the First Regiment, N. Y. Vols., Mr. Frank A. Sweezey, of 372 Brinckerhoff Ave., Utica, was one of the first to volunteer in the United States service. As is well known, the regiment was sent to garrison the recently acquired Hawaiian Islands, and Mr. Sweezey went with his company to Honolulu. While there he was stricken with malaria which was complicated with kidney trouble. He was in the military hospital twenty-one days and when discharged was in shattered health. To see him to-day, competing in the athletic contests of the National Guard, one would remark upon his health and strength. Mr. Sweezey tells how the change came about. He says:

"A week after I came out of the hospital the regiment sailed for home. I was then in a miserable condition. The little sleep I managed to get at night did me no good, for I was as worn out in the morning as I was when I went to bed. I was pale and lifeless, and was reduced in weight from 175 to 140 pounds.

"My mother is a strong believer in Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People and she persuaded me to take them. I did, and experienced a decided relief by the time I had taken three boxes. When I had taken five boxes I was entirely relieved. The pain was all gone, my appetite was good and I had gained in flesh and strength. To-day I am a well man, thanks to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. My mother generally keeps them in the house, for they are a splendid tonic, and we think there is nothing to equal them."

[Signed]

FRANK A. SWEEZEY.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold by all druggists, or will be sent postpaid on receipt of price, 50 cents a box, or six boxes for $2.50, by addressing Dr. Williams Medicine Company, Schenectady, N. Y.

Agents Make $75-$200 A MONTH SELLING THE Robinson Thermal Bath Cabinet

Only cabinet patented, and guaranteed the best made. One agent made $300 last month, others making $200. We want an agent in every town; exclusive territory very liberal terms. Write quick as territory is being taken rapidly.—ROBINSON THERMAL BATH CO. 901 Jefferson St., TOLEDO, O.

$14 If You Want to SAVE MONEY and get the best machine at lowest wholesale price, now is your chance. Buy direct from factory, one profit. All attachments free. 30 days' free trial. WARRANTED 20 YEARS.

$40.00 Arlington for $14.00
$50.00 Arlington for $17.00
$65.00 Kenwood for $21.50
Other Machines at $9, $10.50 & $12
Illustrated catalog and testimonials free. CASH BUYERS' UNION, 158-164 W. Van Buren St., B-18, Chicago, Ill.

RIDER AGENTS WANTED One in each town to ride and exhibit sample 1900 bicycle. 1900 Models, best makes, $11 to $20. '99 & '98 Models, high grade $8 to $13. 500 Second-hand Wheels all makes and models, good as new, $3 to $10. Great Factory Clearing Sale at half factory cost. We ship anywhere on approval and trial without a cent in advance. EARN A BICYCLE distributing Catalogues for us. Many earned a wheel last year. Our 1900 proposition is even more liberal. Write at once for our Bargain List and special offer. Address Dept. 41 H. MEAD CYCLE CO., Chicago.

$75 Month and Expenses; no experience needed; position permanent; self-seller. PEASE MFG. CO., Stat'n A, Cincinnati, O.

"Standard of Highest Merit"

FISCHER PIANOS.

THE NEW SCALE Fischer yields a wonderfully pure quality of Tone, combined with great power and durability; it stamps the Fischer Piano with an individuality that no other Piano possesses.

60 Years Established

Over 110,000 Sold

BY OUR NEW METHOD of Easy Payments, every home is at once enabled to possess and enjoy a High Grade Piano. Pianos delivered to all parts of the United States. Write for catalogue, terms and all particulars.

J. & C. FISCHER

33 Union Square—West, New York, N. Y.

IT IS TRUE

That there is not a diseased or disordered condition, not excepting broken bones and flesh wounds, where Oxydonor will not greatly stimulate and continuously aid all the curative and reparative functions of the system. Its efficacy does not apply to one particular form of disease alone, but to every subsidence of the vital process.

It energizes those functional activities that generate and store up vital force, and it most efficiently aids in maintaining the healthful balance between those activities and the amount of vital force which in normal conditions is held in reserve. Oxydonor has been tested with success in at least a million cases of all forms and degrees of disease.

In no instance has it ever worked injury, and in thousands of cases the resulting benefits have been so complete and immediate as to seem almost miraculous.

SCIATICA, INSOMNIA

Evansville, N. Y., Oct. 21, 1899.

Dr. Herschle Sanche,

Dear Sir:—I gave you a statement three years ago as to the benefits I had received from Oxydonor. It still proves entirely satisfactory. For Sciatica and Insomnia it brings speedy and complete relief. Respectfully yours,

Rev. J. R. H. TRAVIS.

ASTHMA

Prof. W. W. Wirt, Superintendent of Augusta Schools, Augusta, Ill., writes Nov. 1, 1899: "My son has been a sufferer from Asthma for ten years, and has tried a number of good physicians without relief. He has been steadily improving ever since he began the use of Oxydonor about three weeks ago, and he is already largely free from the attacks."

Mrs. Emily F. Wright, Dadeville, Ala., writes Dec. 5, 1899: "For a long time I had been afflicted with an aggravated case of Bright's disease. At the time I commenced the use of Oxydonor my physicians had given up all hope of my recovery. I am now in better health than I have been in twenty years. Oxydonor has restored me to health."

CAUTION.—Imitations of Oxydonor are dangerous to use. Refuse to accept them. Dr. H. Sanche is the inventor and Originator, and has obtained final decision in Supreme Court, in Washington, D. C., against imitators. Also on Oct. 16, 1899, the United States Court granted us an injunction restraining Agents from selling an imitation of Oxydonor.

We invite full investigation of our claims. Our book containing Grateful Reports from users of Oxydonor sent free.

DR. H. SANCHE & CO.

261 Fifth Avenue, New York.
81 Fifth Street, Detroit, Mich.
57 State Street, Chicago, Ill.

Canadian Office: 2268 St. Catherine Street, Montreal, Quebec

FREE SCHOLARSHIP IN Electrical, Mechanical, Marine, Stationary or Locomotive ENGINEERING

NUMBER LIMITED. WRITE IMMEDIATELY

AMERICAN SCHOOL OF CORRESPONDENCE, Boston, Mass.

The Natural Body Brace advertised in this paper in the first issue of this month, is a delightful, certain remedy for ailments peculiar to women and girls. It makes walking and work easy; gives good figure and light step. Write the Natural Body Brace Co., Box 171, Salina, Kan., for free illustrated book.

MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP for children teething should always be used for children while teething. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain, relieves wind colic, and is the best remedy for diarrhœa.

We furnish samples free to agents. F. S. Frost, Lubec, Me., sold $132.79, retail in 6 days. Write for Catalog new goods, rapid sellers. RICHARDSON MFG. CO., 61b St., Bath, N. Y.

Cumberers*

The Purpose of the Christian's Conversion is Usefulness, Without which it is a Failure

ONE noteworthy characteristic is prominent in this parable of the Barren Fig-tree, as in other passages of Christ's teaching, marking the change from the old to the new dispensation. Negative goodness no longer suffices. It is not now enough to obey when God says: "Thou shalt not"; positive and active goodness is required. This fig-tree may have been a fine tree and may have had abundant foliage; but it did not bear figs. That was a fatal defect. It was planted in the vineyard for the definite purpose of bearing figs; as it did not fulfil the purpose of its being, the order was given to cut it down. The order was reasonable, because as the owner said, it cumbered the ground. It occupied the place which might be filled by a tree that did bear figs. It was in the way of a better tree. This is a serious consideration for the idle Christian. His life may be blameless; he is doing no harm; perhaps he may be an ornament in his way; but if he is bearing no fruit, he is like the barren fig-tree. The graces of the Christian character, love, joy, peace, etc., of which Paul gives a list (Galatians 5: 22, 23) are expected and he ought to be bringing others to Christ. He has not been saved merely to rescue his own soul from perdition, but that the world may be the better for his conversion.

If there is no result from the conversion of any man, if there is no benefit from it to Christ and his kingdom, it is a fruitless conversion. "May I go to the theatre, play cards, or go to a dancing party?" There is no prohibition in Christ's words. So Christians avail themselves of the fact, and the world points to them as being people who are not different in conduct from its own votaries. Religion has made no difference in their lives. They are not fanatical, are not forever thrusting their religion in the face of other people. But there is no fruit from such lives. In the home, in the store, in the church, they are worthless. They may flatter themselves that they bring no scandal on the name of Christ, that they are decent, respectable people who go regularly to church and contribute to its support. But how about the fruit? If there is none, they cumber the ground. If they were removed, there might be men who with those opportunities might do much more. Perhaps some preacher who would preach righteousness, temperance and judgment might be preaching in that pulpit, from which now come only inanities, philosophical disquisitions and learned criticisms of the Bible. Some really earnest Sunday School teacher might occupy the place of that one who is content to tell idle stories and amuse the pupils. In the store and the family, some Christian, by word and example, might be winning souls where now the nominal Christian is making no effort. Who can tell in how many instances for this reason the axe is laid to the root of the tree?

But the Keeper of the Vineyard is reluctant to lose the tree. He thinks perhaps under treatment it might be more productive. The ground around it shall have attention. So the unproductive Christian finds his environment disturbed. Perhaps he loses property, or position or friends. Trouble in some form comes to him. His surroundings are broken up. What will he do? Will he repine and complain? Will he lose faith in God's providence? Will he give up his profession of Christianity and return altogether to the world, averring that religion does not pay? We hope not; for the Keeper of the Vineyard is applying this treatment for a definite purpose. "If it bear fruit, well; if not, then after that, thou shalt cut it down." The Christian may get rich or get poor; may become famous or remain obscure; all that is of no moment. The real question is whether or not he bears fruit. Will the changed conditions affect the fruit-bearing disposition? It is a question on which his whole future depends. Judgment is merely suspended. By-and-by the Lord of the Vineyard will come again, seeking the fruit. If there is none found, the Keeper can make no further plea. The case is hopeless. There must not be any cumberers of the ground and the axe falls. What does that mean? It means the end of opportunity, the end of the existence of the tree.

*Topic of the Christian Endeavor Society, Epworth League and Baptist Young People's Union for July 29. Luke 13: 6-9.

A Unique Hebrew Charity

THERE is in the Hebrew tongue no word signifying "charity." That the Hebrew is no less charitable than his non-Jewish neighbors, however, the numerous imposing temples of benevolence under Jewish auspices fully attest.

There is in New York City one institution, which, despite unostentatious surroundings, is yet one of the worthiest of charities. It is the Gamiluth Chassadim. Though the literal translation would be "the reciprocation of kindness," yet it is generally applied to "free loans." At 215 East Broadway, a diminutive brass sign, bearing the inscription of "Hebrew Gamiluth Chassadim Association," is displayed over the basement entrance. To the casual observer, the place has the aspect of a savings bank on a small scale.

The history of the enterprise is an interesting one. On January 1, 1892, several individuals with limited capital resolved to start a society to loan needy people small amounts "without interest or security." People laughed at the scheme, claiming that in less than a month the capital would disappear and the society would dissolve. The eighth annual report, however, has just been issued. It shows that up to December 31, 1899, $235,815 had been loaned to 15,322 individuals. The aggregate of $101,800 was loaned to 5,354 people during the past year alone. Any poor Hebrew is entitled to borrow from $5 to $50 without any collateral or paying interest, and at no expense to the borrower. All that is required is a note which some tradesman may endorse. The loan must be repaid in instalments of ten per cent. every week. A card is issued to the borrower bearing ten numbers and running ten weeks. The books of the Society show how some endorsers went security for the same borrower as many as thirty-six times.

The appreciation and gratitude displayed by some borrowers are illustrated by the following incident: Last November a woman offered the institution a loan of $650 for a year without interest, as a slight reciprocation for a loan she received from the Society which started her in business. When informed that such proceeding is contrary to the rules of the Society, she was chagrined not a little and tearfully begged that an exception be made in her case. Many borrowers, after bettering their conditions, become members of the Society. The resources of the Society in January of this year were $30,762.85. The total losses incurred by the Society during the past eight years were a little over $100.

The various vocations in life of the 5,354 people to whom $101,800 was loaned last year, were bona-fide trades, 38; miscellaneous, 385. Among them were 25 dentists, 43 druggists and 157 students. The push-cart pedler led the van with 404 loans.

Mr. Jacob H. Schiff, the well-known millionaire philanthropist, is a leading supporter of the Gamiluth Chassadim. His last year donations to the free loan association amounted to $5,000. A. B.

JEWELS OF JOY

"I will mention the loving kindness of the Lord

As the treasure in the casket
Safe our precious jewels rare,
Bringing forth on great occasions
To behold their sparkling fair.
So we would preserve remembrance
Of joys shining on our way;
Joys most dear and sacred, brimming
From full cup of blessed day.

Keep the treasure, store the sunlight
A memorial in the heart;
Let the influence, let the brightness
Never from the life depart.
Keep them still to cheer the spirit
In the troubled weary way,
When we need the light of gladness
For the dark and cloudy day.

Berlin, Mass. —PHEBE A. HOLDER.

Eastman Kodak Co.'s BROWNIE CAMERAS

Make pictures 2¼ x 2¼ inches. Load in Daylight with our six exposure film cartridges and are so simple they can be easily

Operated by Any School Boy or Girl.

Fitted with fine Meniscus lenses and our improved rotary shutters for snap shots or time exposures. Strongly made, covered with imitation leather, have nickeled fittings and produce the best results.

Brownie Camera, for 2¼ x 2¼ pictures, - - - $1.00
Transparent-Film Cartridge, 6 exposures, 2¼ x 2¼, - .15
Brownie Developing and Printing Outfit, - - .75

Ask your dealer or write us for a Brownie Camera Club Constitution. $500.00 in Kodak prizes to the members.

EASTMAN KODAK CO.,
Rochester, N. Y.

INVESTIGATE THOROUGHLY BEFORE YOU PURCHASE A TYPEWRITER.

THE SMITH PREMIER

Will merit your approval as it fully meets requirements at every point.

ART CATALOGUE FOR THE ASKING.

THE SMITH PREMIER TYPEWRITER CO.
SYRACUSE, N.Y. U.S.A.

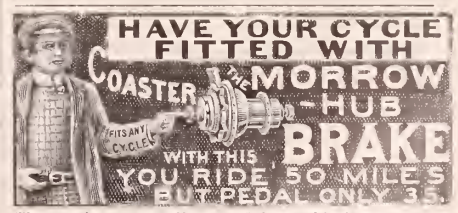
6 Per Cent. NO... RISK

If your money is producing but 3 or 4 per cent, let us give you information in detail concerning the operations of this Company. Six per cent. per annum assured, with ample security for principal.

Assets, $1,150,000. Surplus (accumulated in seven years), $150,000. Our securities are bonds and mortgages on improved real estate in New York and Pennsylvania — non-fluctuating, not speculative. Subject to supervision and regular annual examination by the State Banking department.

We refer, by special permission, to many clergymen and other prominent professional and business men.

Industrial Savings & Loan Co.,
1133 Broadway, New York.



Thousands in use in all parts of the world. Is no experiment. A Cyclist using the Morrow for a few weeks would give up cycling rather than give up the Coaster Brake. Ladies' skirts keep down when coasting. Feet always on Pedals. When ordering your new wheel, be SURE to specify the Morrow Coaster Brake. For sale by all dealers.

Our Acetylene Bicycle Lamp is superior to any yet offered.

Illustrated pamphlet, giving detailed information regarding Brake and Lamp, sent on application.

ECLIPSE BICYCLE CO., Box U, Elmira, N. Y.

GLADDENING THE CHILD-WAIFS

Our Fresh-Air Home at Mont-Lawn Crowded with Little Tenement Guests

AS a member of THE CHRISTIAN HERALD staff of workers was coming into the Bible House one day, a number of little lads flocked about her, calling "Teacher!" and looked up into her face with eagerness.

"Are you going to Mont-Lawn, boys?"

"No'm; but we want to go."

"Why, then, are you not going?"

"We hav'n't got no teacher to take us up in the Bible House."

They were just little ragged Arabs of the street. There was nobody to send them to Sunday School; nobody to take any interest in them, hence they had no "teacher" to take them up and enter their applications for outings; and they did not seem to know how to do it for themselves. They had stood in obscure corners and doorways for several days, and watched other children passing up under conduct of respectable grown-up people, whom they recognized as missionaries or "teachers"—the class whom street waifs all claim as friends. The staff missionary to whom they appealed took them up and their names were entered. They are now at Mont-Lawn; and it is safe to promise that next year they will appear under guidance of a Sunday School teacher, for we will follow them up.

"TEACHER'S COMIN' TO TAKE US TO DE HOME"

. . .

Here is a letter from a lady in Brooklyn:

You asked me to write the particulars in the case of little Bertha, whom you so kindly sent to the Children's Home last Saturday. Three years ago her father was drowned, leaving her mother entirely without means and with four little children and their aged grandfather to support. She made most heroic efforts to provide for her family, working far beyond her strength. Unceasing labor, poor food, exposure, and one neglected cold after another have done their work, and she is now dying with galloping consumption. A year ago the little boy died; the youngest child has been adopted into a Christian family. Three weeks ago, the oldest girl was taken to the hospital because of a severe injury received from a fall. The mother was carried to the Home for Consumptives last week, and is now very low, her death likely to occur at any time. The children have had no pleasures in life; their mother has been too busy in the desperate struggle for bread to give them any. They have never seen any trees or flowers, never played on the grass, never been to a park; they have hardly had life's barest necessaries. The mother is a good Christian woman, comes of a good American family, but has no near relatives to help her. The child at the hospital is a dear little girl of a quiet, gentle disposition. Would it be asking too much if, when she comes out, you will take her also to Mont-Lawn?

She will go to Mont-Lawn; and will not be forgotten when her outing is over.

. . .

A young woman came into the Bible House, bringing with her a wee, pallid maid, in a clean but much patched frock. "Can you please let Minnie go up to Mont-Lawn?" asked the young woman. "Her mamma is my sister; she works in a factory, and I work in a factory. Minnie's been going to school near the factory where I work; and every day she's run up to me and eat lunch with me; and after school she'd come, and the foreman's real kind, and he'd let her play around. Now her vacation's come, the factory's shut down, and there isn't any work, and ——" tears finished the story. Minnie is at the Home, and her aunt will soon be at work again.

. . .

A little one-eyed lad is one of the happiest guests at the Home. His mother, a poor, ignorant woman, has many children; all, save this one, bright and pretty and with perfect vision. She has few of this world's goods, but the best she can do or give goes to the children who are not deformed. Of the little, awkward, half-blind lad she seems to feel ashamed. Out at the Home, no children receive more notice or kindness than those who are afflicted; and so, little Ben is now having the nicest time he has known in all his short, sad life, whose darkness is indeed brightened by the tenderness he meets with.

. . .

Out on the green lawn, at the Home you find here and there a little man or woman, sitting beside a younger sister or brother, fast asleep on the grass. The "little father" or "little mother" looks up with a quiet smile, and says softly: "It's so cool here. She (or he) gets a good chance to sleep. Home it's so hot. We hasn't but one room, and mamma has to cook in it; and she takes in heaps er washin' and ironin'. An' it's awful hot there! An' we ain't got any bed. We sleeps on de floor. De grass is sof' an' cool."

. . .

Some of our hottest days, tots come up to the Bible House in winter raiment. One little girl appeared in a red flannel hood; a little lad in a heavy winter coat. Sometimes a shawl is pinned around the small applicant. Such curious and unseasonable attire and decoration is the result of an effort to appear neat, when the only garments at command are those of six months ago, received perhaps from some charitable friend and kept as treasures too valuable for every-day use. When our over-clad or under-clad summer visitants are washed, combed and arrayed in neat garments—little print or gingham dresses; or cool blouses and seasonable trousers as the case may be—the transformation is a remarkable one; and kind mothers who are sending their children's outgrown garments to Mont-Lawn, as well as King's Daughters and other societies who are making up boxes of clothing for our children, would feel fully repaid could they witness the pride and gratitude of the recipients. Clothing should be sent prepaid to THE CHRISTIAN HERALD Children's Home, Nyack, N. Y. Contributions of money to this office. Prompt acknowledgment will be made in each case. Three dollars pays for one child's outing for ten days, covering cost of transportation, food, shelter, medical and caretakers' attention, etc.; $6 sends two children; $9 three; $12 four; $36 will make twelve tenement children happy for ten days.

. . .

These contributions have been received for our Fresh-Air Home work at Mont-Lawn:

Prev ack	$3,805 00	Wheeler, Alice	8
Adams, D. coll by	3 00	Wheeler, Esther	10
Alexander, Grace	50	Wheeler, Ida	8
Allen, Miss Mabel	25	Wheeler, Leroy	8
Alley, Mrs S A & M A Vandermenlen	2 00	Wight, Mrs A R	6 00
Almroth, E	3 00	Wood, Z M	3 00
Barnes, M A	5 00	Wright, Mrs J A	3 00
Beazel, B S	3 00	Credo, New Castle	3 00
Bergen, M H	3 00	A G M, Brooklyn	6 00
Bicknell, Mrs W F	3 00	C F M, E Northfield	3 00
Birmingham, P	9 00	C H J, N Y C	2 00
Bjerregaard, A P	3 00	E A C, Block Island	3 00
Brinckerhoff, Mrs C A	10 00	F M E, Southbridge	6 00
Burke, H W	10	H V G, S Gardner	3 00
Chase, Mrs E C	3 00	Mrs J BK, Taneytown	6 00
Churchill, J C	50	Mrs J B S, Sharon	3 00
Clark, Julia A	50	J E T, Dunellen	1 00
Cobb, Lyman, Jr	3 00	J G A, Beresford	6 00
Day, Stephen D	5 00	J S J, Silver Lake	6 00
Dickerman, L L	3 00	L T K, Brooklyn	3 00
Fisch, Wm	5 00	S E M, Woodbine	1 50
Fletcher, Miss L	1 00	S G, Charleston	5 00
Frese, Fred C	2 00	T C, Reno	3 00
Gearsley, Thos.	3 00	V R D, Evart	5 00
Gill, Wm.	20 00	—, Brewer	3 00
Gillogly, Mrs V	50	—, Owosso	3 00
Gray, Miss Grace	50	—, S Haven	3 00
Gray, Mrs. Susan	50	Cash, Brooklyn	3 00
Hanscom, Mrs E	25	Friend, Chauncey	2 00
Harkin, Mrs A	10 00	" Earnshaw	25
Hill, Mrs F P	2 00	" Freehold	30 00
Holdredge, Emma	1 00	" Lancaster	50
Hoover, A A	6 00	" Lake Linden	3 00
Howard, M Ella	5 00	" New Rochelle	3 00
Leslie, Mrs S J	9 00	Friend of the child'n, Niskayuna	1 00
Little, Geo & Flora	3 00	Friends, Yonkers-on-Hudson	3 00
McDonald, Mrs W J	12 00	One who loves the little ones, Beadles	25
McDowell, Mrs Jno	1 00	C E, Niskayuna	3 00
Martin, L M	5 00	For Christ's sake, Maples Mill	5 00
Nordham, Mrs C O	1 00	I H N, Manchester	50
Osgood, Miss J E	3 00	" Virginia City	9 00
Pearce, Mrs C E	1 00	" Waterbury	2 00
Penhallegon, Mrs J	25	" Conn	3 00
Perham, Mary E	1 00	" Elizabeth	3 00
Potts, Mrs A A	3 00	Leland reader	1 00
Rands, Mrs Geo	1 00	Dupoyer sub'r	2 00
Ream Co.	10 00	Sym'prs, Marietta	3 50
Remsburg, J B	25	In loving mem of E K W, Phila	5 00
Rhodes, Mrs G R	2 00	Bible cl of the YWL	12 00
Rockefeller, M, E & J	3 00	S Sch at Barnsley	3 00
Root, W F	2 00	Upper Florida S S, Durango	1 32
Ross, F H	3 00	Pleasant View Mennonite SS, Aurora	4 42
Russell, E A	2 00	K Ds, Pleasant Grove	6 00
Schmutz, Bertha	18 00	Pansy Club, Brooklyn	1 00
Smith, Lillie T	3 00	Golden Rule Cir K D, Mariner Harbor	3 00
Smith, Misses M M & E A	2 00	Total	$4,222.26
Stevenson, Mrs J R	3 00
Sturtevant, M L	3 00
Taggart, M & G	2 00
Toay, Mrs Maria	50
Walker, C L & friend	3 00
Welch, L C	3 00
West, Harriet	8

A Fettered Child

In a recent number of the Homiletic Review, the following incident is related: The Champs Elysees in Paris, one of its most famous avenues, witnessed a strange sight recently. The avenue was thronged with a stream of equipages when a police officer rushed into the roadway, and seized by the head a horse drawing a carriage, in which were seated an elderly man and woman and a little boy, about four years of age. A woman sprang to the side of the carriage and attempted to drag the child from the vehicle. The child cried to go with her, but was held back. A crowd soon surrounded the struggling group. The newcomer explained that the boy was her child whom the old people refused to give up. The crowd immediately took sides with the mother, and the old woman bursting into tears relinquished her hold. The child sprang toward his mother, but could not get away, it being found that his body was girdled with an iron chain which was padlocked to the man and woman in the carriage.

As the old people still refused to unfasten the padlock, the Commissary of Police ordered the chain filed in two, then the little fellow was restored to his mother, to their mutual joy. You may chain the body, but you never can chain the soul by any outward links that may be forged.

FACTS ABOUT FLOUR.

Made White by Leaving out the Par Which Helps Digest.

Modern methods of milling separate th parts of the wheat berry that contain th diastatic element, and furnish only the whit flour made up almost entirely of starch.

One of the principal elements needed t digest this starch has been left out in th process, and therefore the person who eat much white bread is almost sure to have in testinal troubles, for the starch does no digest properly and must, of necessity, decay and cause all sorts of trouble.

Grape-Nuts food, on the contrary, is mad up of the entire wheat and barley, and th process of digestion as shown in the huma body, are copied as exactly as possible, in mechanical way, by the use of moisture, time and warmth. No chemicals or other ingredi ents are used, but the simple methods scienti fically arranged.

In this way the starch of the grain is trans formed into grape sugar, and the Grape-Nut food, which appears in a granular form, show on the outside of the little granules, glittering specks of this grape sugar, which is not pu onto the food from the outside, but is a resul of the change of the starch into grape sugar which works out to the surface, very much a the sap of the hickory or maple tree will fre quently show in the shape of white sugar o the sawed-off ends of logs.

A handful of Grape-Nuts held to the ligh will show the little glittering particles of grape sugar. It is naturally and scientifically pre digested, therefore the food agrees with th weakest sort of a stomach. It must not b used in large quantities at one meal, for it i concentrated, and over-feeding of even th choicest food is not advisable.

Being perfectly cooked at the factory, th food can be served instantly, either dry o wet, cold or hot. When wanted hot, ho water, milk or cream can be poured over it There is a definite, distinct and undeniabl gain in nervous energy and vitality whe Grape-Nuts food is used.

Libby's

$250.00 Cash Prize Offer

To Amateur Photographers

Two prizes, $50.00 each, for the most original and best taken photographs, and fifty-eight other cash prizes for amateurs. Professionals will be excluded from this competition. Write for booklet giving particulars.

New edition of "How to Make Good Things to Eat" will give you many Summer Food Suggestions. Sent free.

LIBBY, McNEILL & LIBBY, Chicago.

THE "CLEAN CUT" CAKE TIN

prevents cakes from sticking and produces a perfect cake. Is made of best quality tin with a flat, thin knife securely riveted in center and a rim. Simple and durable. Agents send 6 cts. postage for free sample We are the largest manufacturers of Pure Aluminum, Scotch Granite and Tin Ware in the world. Address Dept. T HOUSEHOLD NOVELTY WORKS, 25 Randolph St., Chicago, Ill., or New York, N. Y.; Buffalo, N. Y.; St. Louis, Mo.; Kansas City, Mo.; Denver, Col.; Seattle, Wash.

Welch's Grape Juice is recommended by physicians—especially those who prescribe food instead of drugs. It is a valuable tonic food for "run down" people. It is a blood maker that produces an immediate vigor from which there is no reaction Sold by druggists and grocers. Write the Welch Grape Juice Co., Westfield, N. Y., for free Booklet

THE ORIGINAL. THE BEST. TRADE MARK GAIL BORDEN AVOID UNKNOWN BRANDS.

Condensed Milk

HAS NO EQUAL AS AN INFANT FOOD.

SEND FOR "BABIES" A BOOK FOR MOTHERS. — Borden's Condensed Milk Co. — New York.

CHARLES S. RUDDELL LEONORE A. WEEBER T. DE WITT TALMAGE BRIT HERMAN KNOX EVA GROOTEBOYS

Many · Helpers · for · Starving · India

Young and Old Labor and Sacrifice for the Famine-Stricken People

IT would be sad, indeed, if there were no bright side to the terrible tragedy of the India famine. Yet, out of this, as out of every affliction great or small that has ever overshadowed humanity, God bringeth good. The spirit of pity moving the heart of God's people in America to India's relief, is of divine origin; and a more lasting good than feeding starving bodies—great though such mercy be—must come of it. India's spiritual welfare will be served in some way; and then are not those who make such efforts to help others as these letters reveal, themselves helped by their noble giving?

B. E. W., Rockford, Ill., $10: My little boy, Lawrence, six years old, and his playfellow, a neighbor's son, sawed wood and made 50 cents, to which Lawrence added the contents of his bank. They then asked us to send their mite along with our contribution to starving India.——Leonore A. Webber, $6.50: I felt so sorry for the starving people that I went out and collected for them. ——De Witt Talmage B——, 20 cents: All I have, but maybe it will help a little.——Herman Knox, $4: I have done what I could.—— Eva Grooteboys, $3.18: For India sufferers. —— Charles Stephen Ruddell: He is only four years old, but has added his mite to the India Fund.

Ethel C. Hyde: I send my nice new dollar that has never been used and that was given me Christmas to help India.——Mrs. G. A. Shroy: My little girl made 50 cents, and she hurries me to send it to you for India, saying, "Mamma, the people are dying!" Her papa and I add $2. We would send $50 if we were able.——William Gibson, Elmer Virgie and Jessie Schaefer, $1: Our prayer is that this may save some starving one.——Herman C. Hale: I am a little boy. I send 25 cents for India. ——Little Jennie and Mamie Kennedy: We send 40 cents.——Bertha Carpenter, 50 cents: I am nine years old. I sold beans and lettuce, scrubbed the walls for mamma and did some jobs for papa to earn this for India.——Busy Bee Club, Mediapolis, Ia., $9, which we raised by giving an ice cream and cake social.

These little girls have done well:

Elizabeth Dunn, $50. Lee Proebsting, six years old, and myself, eleven, collected this in pity for India's people.

Many of these gifts to India have touching histories:

Lillie Shepherd, Ontario, Canada, $2.25: Mother died suddenly the day your India pamphlet reached us. We found this sum in her pocket, and we felt that we would send it to India in her memory.—— D. M. S., Clarkson, Canada, $22: From myself and family. When we received the pamphlet, I thought I had nothing to give. Then we concluded to give the first picking of strawberries on a small patch we have, and this is the result.——J. A. M., Chicago, $10. I picked up one of your pamphlets in the garbage barrel by chance, and the result was that I took all we had in the house in the shape of cash to send to you. I am only a poor man, a janitor with four small children, but the Lord gives us enough to eat, and I send this in the Master's name.

One lady writes from Osceola, Ia.: "I intended to take a pleasure trip this summer and saved $50 for that purpose; but I have thought how many lives I could save with the money, and I feel sure Jesus, if he were in my place, would not spend it for himself. Please use it for the relief of famine sufferers."

"Some Hebrews of the Spanish and Portuguese Synagogue," Central Park, West, New York, have sent, at different times, through their pastor, Rev. Dr. Mendes, $110.07 "for famine relief:" $20 of this was "a wedding gift" from a member of his congregation.

Benevolent societies, ministerial organizations as well as individuals are nobly doing their duty.

Miss D. B., Governeur, N. Y., $50: Proceeds of a benefit supper given by St. Agnes P. E. Guild: We are a small society, fifteen in number, but every one seemed anxious to contribute their mite. God sustain your effort.——The Ministerial Association, Richmond, Ind., $1,000: The amount so far received from the canvass in Richmond and Wayne Township. Outlying towns and townships will be canvassed and we shall probably have another remittance to make in a short time.——Rev. D. F. S., Texas, $100. May God's blessing accompany this gift from my people and myself. I have been organizing in Texas by appointing each County Judge as Chairman of Famine Relief Committee for his county. So soon as I can I shall go to our people in various parts of the State and work with might and main till this awful famine is ended.——Friends in Easton, Mass., $112: More will be sent later.——People's Baptist Church and Sunday School, Bayonne, N. J., $100.——Citizens, Spring Valley, N. Y., $200: After Dr. Hobbs told at our meeting of India's need, our little gathering cheerfully contributed this sum and appointed a committee to canvass the town.——Y. P. S. C. E., Canonsburg, Pa., $124.60: For the India Famine sufferers, to be used by you as God, our Father, may direct.

This letter is particularly interesting as it comes from Canada, and gives a British view of America's course in India's calamity:

As a British subject, I wish to thank you for the interest you are taking in a charity which, although legitimately appealing to the whole world, is primarily our matter. I consider it my duty to acknowledge receipt of your famine circular, notwithstanding that both individually and as a shareholder in my company I have already subscribed to the Famine Fund, through a Canadian channel. Your humanitarian work, I am sure the British people will heartily reciprocrate whenever calamity visits an American community.

With the gift of one dollar, "A Disabled Clergyman" writes:

Accept the wages of a day—
Our mite in faith we're giving.
We hear the cry of the far-away,
"Grant us the right of living:
Revive our hope, sustain its wing;
Add days to its probation,
Till Heaven's mission angels bring
Our starving souls salvation."

Commander Booth-Tucker's Daily

Commander Booth-Tucker of the Salvation Army, is announced as being about to undertake an experiment which will be watched with interest throughout the religious world. He will assume absolute control of the Chicago Democrat for one day, and will endeavor to demonstrate "how a daily Christian paper should be edited." He will choose his own staff, decide upon all questions of policy and absolutely direct every department of the paper. Commander Booth-Tucker is a man of broad culture and experience, a trained and vigorous writer and he will unquestionably make the experiment an attractive and instructive one. He promises to make the issue which he controls an illustration of what a model daily paper should be, recognizing religion, rigidly excluding improper matter, nonpartisan, bright, broadly Christian and humanitarian. His edition of the Chicago Democrat is announced to appear July 18, and should be read all over the Union. Two-thirds of the gross receipts of the edition will be turned over to the Salvation Army to be used in aid of its colonization work.

The Bowery Mission Employment Bureau

NINETY per cent. of the men who attend the Bowery Mission are out of employment. It is therefore always a serious question, when a man kneels at the penitent form, and gives every evidence of a desire to live a self-respecting Christian life, as to what must be done with him in an already over-crowded city labor market. The Free Employment Bureau has only been in existence a few months, and has already done splendid service. It is in the charge of one of the converts, Dr. G. W. Hall, who follows the superintendent around in each after-meeting, taking the names and as many particulars as possible of each convert. The convert out of work is asked to present himself next morning at the office, where, if an opening does not already exist he is put in the way of finding work. The New York Journal has been exceedingly kind in inserting advertisements for employment free, and in many cases they have brought immediate responses. Hotels, restaurants, livery stables, stores and other places employing unskilled help, are kept constantly informed of the Bowery Mission Bureau, and many calls are received from them.

This is felt to be a most important branch of the Bowery Mission work, as in addition to furnishing a man with a means of livelihood, it so often means the removing of him from a terrible chain of temptations and evil associations.

The following is the report of the Bureau for the month of June:

Number of applications	150
Number of situations obtained	105

Forward			39
Bookkeepers	4	Janitors	3
Carpenters	4	Kitchen men	6
Clerks	5	Laborers	6
Drivers	5	Machinists	3
Engineers	2	Night watchmen	3
Elevator man	1	Pedlers	3
Farmers	3	Painters	4
Fireman	1	Porters	3
Gardeners	4	Restaurant men	29
Housework	6	Salesmen	2
Hotel men	2	Sailor	1
Iron workers	2	Shipping clerks	2
		Telegraph men	1
Forward	39		105

"COME AND SEE"

See John 1 39, 41, 42, 45, 46

HAVE you found the loving Saviour
Who redeems and saves from sin?
He is waiting to receive you;
Come, oh, come, and enter in!

CHO.—"Come and see" our dear Redeemer;
"Come and see" his wondrous love;
He will save from sin, and keep you
All the way to heaven above.

Do you know his keeping power
As he saves you every day?
Oh, abide with Jesus ever,
He will keep you all the way!

Do you know the joy of bringing
Others with you to his side,
There to share the peace he giveth,
There to be quite satisfied?

Ramallah, Jerusalem. —WILFRID ROWNTREE.

A constitutional disease like catarrh require as constitutional remedy like Hood's Sarsaparilla. It has cured catarrh in every form by thoroughly purifying the blood and healing the diseased tissues.

CAN SLEEP NOW

Since Leaving off Coffee

"Up to five years ago, I had used coffee all my life, but was finally forced to give it up on account of the way it acted on me. Right after drinking it, I would be taken with a dizzy headache and sour stomach, and have to make a cup of strong tea before I could go about my work.

"Two years ago, I started on Postum Food Coffee, and since finding how to make it properly, I would not exchange it for the best coffee I ever saw. My old troubles have disappeared entirely, I have gained considerable flesh, and what is still better, sleep perfectly at night, which was not the case while using coffee.

"When I first used Postum, my husband complained of its being tasteless, so I tried to use more of it, but as that did not help matters, I tried more boiling, which proved to be the right thing, and now it is delicious.

"Mrs. W. A. Eckels, Sisson, Calif."

THE GEM EMBROIDERY MACHINE

SOMETHING NEW!

This little machine does the finest grades of embroidery now done by hand. Embroiders on any fabric; uses embroidery silk or cotton; a child can operate it; an independent living can be made with it at home. As a special introductory offer we will send a sample machine with a full set of stamping patterns and a beautiful sample of embroidery, together with full instructions teaching how to use machine, for 60c. prepaid—regular price $2.00. A 50-page book of embroidery designs, containing upwards of 100 illustrations, free with each machine. Agents wanted.

GEM MFG. CO., Dept. C, St. Louis, Mo.

10,000 AGENTS WANTED.
FOR LIFE & SPEECHES OF BRYAN

The "Life" is written by Mrs. Bryan. The Speeches revised by Mr. Bryan, but he is not pecuniarily interested in its publication. A golden opportunity for agents. Don't miss it. One agent sold 57 copies in one week; another 67 copies in 10 days; another 17 copies first day. Everybody will buy it: Democrat, Republican, Populist and Prohibitionist. The demand exists. It is only necessary for agents to supply it.

$200.00 GIVEN

for selling 200 books in 3 months. Other liberal inducements. Will guarantee good parties a salary. Distance is no hindrance as freight is paid. Credit given. Circulars, instructions, outfit etc., free, but 25 cents must be sent for mailing. Act quick.

R. H. WOODWARD CO., Baltimore, Md.

NOTICE—We also desire to employ agents for selling our book on the "Paris Exposition", beautifully illustrated. We also publish "Life of McKinley" and other campaign books.

Acme Medicine Cover AND Dose Indicator 15c

Keeps medicine free from dust and germs, and tells time to take next dose. Fits any glass or makes stand for bottle. Non-corrosive and antiseptic. If your dealer hasn't it, send 15c. for sample.

SHARON MANUFACTURING CO.
134 South 11th Street, PHILADELPHIA

OPIUM MORPHINE and Liquor Habit cured in 10 to 20 days. No pay till cured. Book of particulars free. Address Dr. J. L. Stephens, Dept. R.5, Lebanon, Ohio.

LEA & PERRINS' SAUCE

The Original and Genuine Worcestershire.

Ladies, at luncheon parties and at all home-meals, will find a delicacy of flavor in all dishes savored with this sauce-for soups, fish, meats, gravy, game, salads etc.

BEWARE OF IMITATIONS

SIGNATURE on every bottle. Lea & Perrins John Duncans' Sons Agents New York

Support Yourself While Learning a Profession

We can qualify you in a few months to maintain yourself while learning to be a Mechanical Engineer, Electrician, Architect. Write for our new circular, "Support Yourself While Learning a Profession." Sent free.

INTERNATIONAL CORRESPONDENCE SCHOOLS,
Box 861 Scranton, Pa.
200,000 students and graduates. Send for circular, stating subject in which interested.

Knox's Gelatine

is the ideal dessert for children as well as the grown folks. Give them all they want; it won't hurt them.

I will mail you FREE my 32-page book of seventy recipes, "Dainty Desserts for Dainty People." Send your name today. For 5c. in stamps (to cover postage and packing), the book and full pint sample. For 15c. and the name of your grocer, the book and a full 2-quart package (two for 25 cents). Pink gelatine for fancy desserts in every package.

CHAS. B. KNOX, 55 Knox Ave., Johnstown, N. Y.

"THE 'SALT' OF SALTS."

Oppressive Heat.

How weak and weary one feels after the slightest exertion these hot days. All the strength seems to leave the body—ambition is gone. What a difference, though, after a refreshing glass of

Abbey's Effervescent Salt

It cools the blood and infuses energy into every part of the system. It strengthens the nerves and prevents sickness, headache and the indisposition always caused by heat.

Abbey's Salt is a standard English preparation made from the salts extracted from the juices of pure fresh fruits; it is used and endorsed by the public and profession of two continents.

Sold by most druggists, or sent by mail.

25c., 50c. and $1 per bottle.

The Abbey Effervescent Salt Co., Dept. A, 9-15 Murray St., New York.

Booklet free on request.

The Maritime Medical News says:

"The lasting effervescence of Abbey's Effervescent Salt makes it a most palatable drink, and its refrigerant qualities make it invaluable."

ALEGREE, KY.

"Your Salt works like a charm. It seems to be just what has always been wanting, cooling and refreshing and not nauseating in any particular. I shall never be without it in my office. I have to keep all I need."

W. C. DULMAGE, M.D.

1570 ASBURY AVENUE, EVANSTON, ILL.
Dec. 21, 1899

"Your Effervescent Salt is an excellent article, being gently laxative and cooling, and agreeable at the same time. I consider it also an excellent adjunct in the treatment of nervous effections on account of its soothing qualities."

DR. WM. B. MANN

48c PUTNAM AVENUE
BROOKLYN, N. Y.
Nov. 17, 1899.

"I consider Abbey's Salt a most excellent aperient and cooling drink."

CHAS. E. MANNING, M.D.

3 Questions

1.—Do you realize what your income means to the wife and children dependent upon it for the necessaries as well as the comforts of life?

2.—Do you realize what the effect to them would be if this income should suddenly stop?

3.—Have you protected them so that if this event should occur they would not be compelled to suffer?

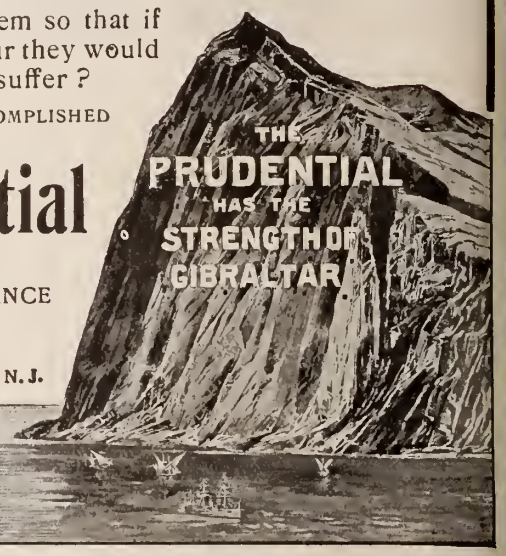
THIS PROTECTION IS ACCOMPLISHED BY LIFE INSURANCE IN

The Prudential

Write for particulars.

THE PRUDENTIAL INSURANCE COMPANY OF AMERICA.

JOHN F. DRYDEN, President.
HOME OFFICE : : : NEWARK, N. J.



THE WOMEN OF 1870

enhanced their beauty by using only

Pozzoni's

Medicated

COMPLEXION POWDER.

It is beautifying and healing to the skin, containing only the purest and finest ingredients procurable. Will not rough or chap the most delicate skin; removes freckles, prevents tan and sunburn. Possesses every element essential to a perfect face powder.

Sold by druggists and dealers.

FREE—Sample of Pozzoni's Medicated Complexion Powder, with Silver Mounted GOOD LUCK RABBIT'S FOOT POWDER PUFF, with bangle, free on receipt of 10 cents in stamps to pay postage. Full size box, with Rabbit's Foot Puff, sent on receipt of 50 cents. Will stamp your initial on bangle free if desired.

J. A. POZZONI CO.,
New York, N. Y., or St. Louis, Mo.

A Weight off your Shoulders

The freest, easiest and most comfortable suspender in the world is the President Improved Suspender. It takes the weight off your shoulders. It gives absolute ease of movement. You can't feel that you are wearing a suspender.

President Suspender

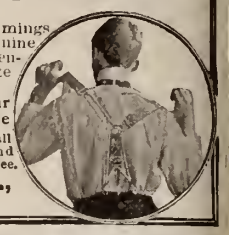
IMPROVED

is sold wherever suspenders are sold. Trimmings will not rust. Refuse imitations. The genuine has guarantee ticket. Every purchaser is entitled to take part in the presidential vote contest.

$1500.00 For your Estimate

Full information with each suspender. Sold by all dealers or direct from us 50 cts, postpaid. Send for handsome booklet—President Pointers—Free.

THE C. A. EDGARTON MFG. CO.,
Box 209, Shirley, Mass.



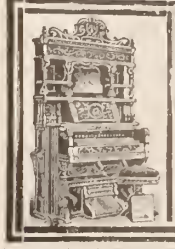
FREE TRIAL

YEARS

Money back with interest if not satisfied with your bargain. Write today for our latest catalogue. It is free. It shows you the latest and most up-to-date Organs and Pianos on the market. It tells you all about our patent combination actions and orchestral attachments which imitate a great variety of stringed instruments. Something new and novel that never fails to please. A discount of $10.00 on every Organ and $20.00 on every Piano if you get our catalogue now. We sell for cash or on easy payments. No money in advance required. From factory to home. No agents. No middlemen's profits. Write today.

ORGAN $25.00 UP

PIANO $155.00 UP



BEETHOVEN PIANO & ORGAN CO.

Box 741 Washington, N.J.

Chronic Rheumatism

Articular and muscular rheumatism and all uric acid troubles are caused by defective action of the kidneys and digestive organs; the kidneys not properly removing the waste products. Uric acid and chalky deposits then accumulate in the muscles and around the joints, causing the excruciating pains peculiar to these diseases. The only way to relieve rheumatism is to rid the system of this poisonous acid.

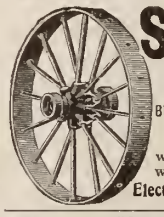
Tartarlithine

regulates the action of the kidneys, dissolves and removes the uric acid and chalky deposits, and reduces inflammation. It does not upset the stomach, and can be taken by the most delicate. It is a true remedy for rheumatism, for which it is prescribed by many leading physicians.

Tartarlithine is supplied in bottles containing 50 doses at $1.00 and can be obtained of all druggists or post-free by mail. Pamphlets with Testimonials sent FREE.

McKESSON & ROBBINS,
91 Fulton Street, New York,
Sole Agents for THE TARTARLITHINE CO.

are perfect in action. Over 40 years' experience guides the manufacture. Get the improved. No tacks required. To avoid imitations, notice script name of Stewart Hartshorn on label.



Steel Wheels

Staggered Oval Spokes.

BUY A SET TO FIT YOUR NEW OR OLD WAGON

CHEAPEST AND BEST

way to get a low wagon. Any size wheel, any width tire. Catal. FREE.

Electric Wheel Co., Box 136 Quincy, Ills.

AFTER HARVEST, FENCING.

Now that your crops are all in, you will have time to attend to that fencing. The best farm fence you know, is

THE ADVANCE FENCE.

It's the one that is sold direct to the farmer at wholesale prices. Nobody can buy it cheaper than you can. Entirely interwoven. No loose ends. Circulars and special discounts free.

ADVANCE FENCE CO., 149 Old Street, Peoria, Ill.

FENCE! STRONGEST MADE.

Built strong. Chicken-tight. Sold to the Farmer at Wholesale Prices. Fully Warranted. Catalog Free.

COILED SPRING FENCE CO.
Box 47. Winchester, Indiana, U. S. A.

DITMAN'S SEA-SALT

The Natural Salt of Pure Sea Water

TONIC, STRENGTHENING, INVIGORATING

Used for Quarter Century

Address Ditman, 2 Barclay Street, New York

It Is a Certainty That Catarrh

can be cured. You will believe it after using a sample of Dr. Blosser's Catarrh Cure. Mailed free. Address Dr. J. W. Blosser & Son, 50 Broad St., Blosser Building, Atlanta, Ga.

STARK TREES best by test—74 YEARS. WE WANT MORE SALESMEN PAY CASH WEEKLY

Stark Nursery, Louisiana, Mo; Dansville, N.Y.

Artistic Monuments in White Bronze

COST NO MORE THAN PLAIN ONES

Marble is entirely out of date. Granite soon gets moss-grown, discolored, requires constant expense and care, and eventually crumbles back to Mother Earth. Besides it is very expensive.

White Bronze is strictly everlasting. It cannot crumble with the action of frost. Moss-growth is an impossibility. It is more artistic than any stone. Then why not investigate it? It has been adopted for nearly one hundred public monuments. We have designs from $4.00 to $4,000.00. Write at once for free designs and information. It puts you under no obligations. We deal direct and deliver everywhere.

Over $25,000 worth of work sold to Christian Herald readers in the last few years.

The Monumental Bronze Co., 70-90 Howard Ave., Bridgeport, Conn.

FOUR GOOD REASONS why you should buy BUGGIES direct from our factory

1st—YOU SAVE the DEALERS' PROFIT.
2d—You get all custom made & best material.
3d—You get our TWO year guarantee.
4th—You pay only after examining. Our $23 Buggy, $47 Surrey or $36 Top Family Wagon are wonders for cheapness, 4 tired Wheels $6.25, Buggy Tops $5.25, Harness $8.95. Catlog free. Purchasers can become successful agents aided by our private selling instructions.

$29.95

U. S. BUGGY & CART CO. P 84, Cincinnati, O.

RUPTURE

The Improved Elastic Truss is the only Truss in existence that is worn with absolute comfort night and day, and it retains the rupture under the hardest exercise or severest strain, and will effect a permanent and speedy relief. Competent lady always in attendance for ladies, or to answer correspondence from women. Our goods are not sold by agents or druggists. Send for free pamphlets to the Improved Elastic Truss Co., 768 Broadway, New York. ESTABLISHED 18 YEARS.

CHRISTIAN HERALD

AND SIGNS OF OUR TIMES

OFFICES: BIBLE HOUSE, NEW YORK

REV. T. DE WITT TALMAGE, D.D., Editor

COPYRIGHT, 1900, BY LOUIS KLOPSCH

NEW YORK, JULY 25, 1900

VOLUME 23—NUMBER 30

PRICE FIVE CENTS

Hon. Edwin S. Conger, Our Ambassador at Pekin, Reported Murdered

Minister Conger, with his whole family, his official suite and the Legation guards are said to have perished in the terrible massacre of July 6-7. 2. Prince Tuan, leader of the rebel Boxers. 3. Wu Ting Fang, Chinese Minister at Washington. 4. The British Legation which was burned and demolished. 5. Street in front of the British Legation, Pekin. (See page 607).

Our Mail-Bag

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

1. These questions are printed Four weeks in advance so as to afford all our readers an opportunity to answer them.
2. For answers to the questions which appear below, when accepted, we will allow compensation for the matter used at the rate of One Dollar a hundred words. Answers should so far as possible be limited to one hundred words.
3. Answers must be received at this office two weeks in advance of the date in which they are intended to appear.
4. The editor reserves the right to condense accepted answers when necessary, and compensation will be based on the matter as printed.
5. Do not write inquiring if your material has been accepted. If it appears on this page, you will know that it has been accepted.
6. We cannot return any MSS. sent to the Editor of THE MAIL BAG—not even if stamps accompany them.
7. Write only on one side of the sheet and never send on the same sheet anything intended for any other department of the paper. Correspondents answering more than one question should append their name and address to each answer.
8. Address all communications intended for this department, EDITOR THE MAIL-BAG,

The Christian Herald, Bible House, New York.

These Questions Will be Answered Aug. 22

1. By whom and for what purpose was the Peacock Throne built?
2. In what passage of the Old Testament is a duty of paramount importance, having the prospect of the happiest result, expressed in five words?
3. What is the origin of the bridal wreath of orange blossoms?
4. Should children so young that they cannot understand the service, be taken to church, or should the father who owing to his business sees little of them during the week, stay home with them and try to instil religious principles in their minds?
5. What was the name of the lad who held the basket containing the loaves and fishes that fed the multitude?
6. How should a Christian voter cast his vote for a Member of Congress, if one candidate is right on political questions but is an infidel and immoral of life; while his opponent is wrong in politics, but is a consistent Christian?
7. When did the word "news" as applied to the latest intelligence come into use and what is its significance?
8. If a Christian man detects an employee in robbing him, and decides for the sake of the culprit's family that he will not prosecute him, and subsequently sees him employed by another firm, ought he to inform that firm of the culprit's previous wrong-doing?
9. Who devised the tricolor, the national emblem of France, and under what circumstances?
10. Are all the commands of the Apostles obligatory on Christians of the present day? Or are some of them, such as Paul's rules in reference to women, to be regarded as relating to his time only and having no obligation on us?

Questions of the Week

1. What is the origin and meaning of the initials V. C. after the names of British generals?

It means that these officers have won the Victoria Cross. This is a naval and military decoration instituted by royal warrant June 20, 1856. It is bestowed for "conspicuous bravery or devotion to the country in the presence of the enemy." It is open to contestants in all branches of the regular, auxiliary and reserve forces, whether they be officers or privates. It is the most coveted of British decorations. It is a bronze Maltese cross, with the royal crest in the centre. Underneath is an "escrol" bearing the words, "For Valour." It is worn attached to the breast by a blue ribbon by naval officers and sailors, and by a red ribbon by army officers and privates. For each additional act of bravery an additional clasp is added. The cross carries with it a special pension of ten English pounds per annum. Each additional clasp adds five additional English pounds to the pension. MRS. ADA L. MCJUNKIN.

2. What were the three temptations of Jesus described in Matthew 4? In what way did they conflict with Christ's principles?

The threefold temptations of Jesus described in Matthew 4, were: 1. To distrust his Heavenly Father and take Providence into his own hands. To use his supernatural power for his personal advantage, which was contrary to the object of his incarnation. 2. To presume on the care of his Heavenly Father and tempt God by going out of the path of duty and running into danger without cause; and 3, to disown allegiance to God, his Heavenly Father, and own Satan as his master, thereby gaining this world's power from the devil who claimed it as his. The first temptation was opposed to the principle in Christ of implicit, childlike trust in his Father's care; the second was opposed to the principle in him of never tempting God; and the third was abhorrent to him who was daily in communion with his Heavenly Father in spiritual worship. J. L. C.

3. Is a Roman Catholic eligible for the Presidency of the United States? If so, why cannot a Roman Catholic be monarch of Great Britain?

A Roman Catholic is eligible for the presidency of the United States; but no Catholic is eligible for the throne of Great Britain, because in the Declaration of Right, which upon the accession of William and Mary was made a part of the Bill of Rights, there is a clause which states that a Roman Catholic or a person marrying a Roman Catholic be henceforth incapable of receiving the crown of England. William and Mary signed the Bill of Rights as modified by the Declaration of Right, and it became a law. In 1701, Parliament reaffirmed the Bill of Rights and still further extended its provisions by the Act of Settlement, which stated that, in default of issue by William or Anne, the crown should descend to the Electress Sophia of Hanover, Germany, and her Protestant descendants. This law has never been repealed. A. REIST RUTT.

LORD CURZON, VICEROY OF INDIA, WITH LADY CURZON AND PARTY

From a new photograph brought from India by Dr. Klopsch. Lord Curzon is the central figure seated, with Lady Curzon on his left. The others are high officials and friends.

4. What are the principal points of difference between Buddhism and Christianity?

1. Buddhism does not recognize the idea of God. Christianity does, and the fatherhood of God. 2. Buddhism teaches the doctrine of transmigration of souls. Christianity teaches the independent continuance of the soul after death of the body, and the reunion of the soul and the body at the resurrection. 3. Buddhism teaches "Nirvana," or extinction finally. Christianity teaches the immortality of the soul. 4. There are no priests or clergy, properly so called, in Buddhism. Christianity has its priests and clergy. 5. Prayers of Buddhists are conceived less as influencing the will of any superior being to grant the requests than as reflex benefit to the petitioner himself. Christianity teaches that God hears and answers prayer. F. J. STRAYER.

5. Ought a husband whose wife has broken her marriage vow to forgive her and receive her back to his home on her repentance?

Our Saviour taught that an offending brother if repentant is to be forgiven, and it would seem as if pardon ought to be accorded as generously to an erring wife, if penitent, as to an offending brother. It must, however, be sorrowfully admitted that in many cases it might be difficult to judge whether the wife were sincere or not in her profession of repentance: and even if sincere there is always grave reason to fear that one who has fallen once may lapse again. But when there is ground to believe the wife truly penitent, then a husband could hardly withhold forgiveness and yet venture to utter that petition in our Lord's prayer, "Forgive us our debts as we forgive our debtors." To receive her back into the home would seem to be involved in forgiving her; for human forgiveness to be real must be like that divine forgiveness which casts our "sins into the depths of the sea" (Micah 7:19), the sea of deep oblivion. AMELIA HOYT.

6. How do Christian people who do not believe that Jonah was really swallowed by a fish explain his book?

As one of the people claiming to be Christian, and yet not believing that Jonah was swallowed by a great fish, I present my own idea of the book, which, however, may not be endorsed by others. I look on the book as the story of a good man, who, hearing of the vice and wickedness of Nineveh, felt moved to go and warn its people. Realizing that a poor Jew going to the great city on such an errand would be ridiculed and perhaps ill-treated, he shrank from the task. But he became uncomfortable, as a good man does, when he does not obey his conscience. So he starts for Tarshish, thinking to divert his mind and find an excuse for not going to Nineveh. The storm arises, the superstitious sailors throw him overboard, but his life is saved. Then he goes to Nineveh and preaches. In his zeal, he overdoes his duty, and, making no offer of pardon, proclaims the overthrow of the city in forty days. Contrary to his expectations, the people repent, and God spares the city. Thus Jonah feels that he stands discredited as a false prophet, and has to learn by the incident of the gourd that the salvation of a great city is of more importance than any man's reputation. The author wished to teach that the servant of the Lord should obey the dictates of his conscience, which are to him the voice of God; that if he tries to avoid the duty laid upon him, he will be thwarted and forced to do it; and, finally, that God is always better pleased when men repent, than when they are obdurate and are punished. That is the way I look upon the book of Jonah. But the people of that time liked the marvelous, and so the author added the fish incident for spice; just as if I were desirous of teaching my little girl a lesson through a story, I might inject into it something about fairies and brownies, knowing that when she grew older and discarded the fairy part of the story, my real meaning would remain with her.
H. C. BURDEN.

7. Does God really create evil as he is said to do in Isaiah 45: 7?

The context throws light upon the text. The Lord says in this passage "I make peace and create evil." The evil referred to then is antithetic to "peace," and is evidently put for war and its attendant miseries. The meaning is "I will procure peace for the Israelites and destroy Babylon by war." These words, like the antecedent clause, "I form the light and create darkness," were addressed to Cyrus, (see verse 1.) and doubtless refer to the belief of the Persians that there was a duality in supreme power, one being the author of all good whom they called Light, the other of all evil whom they called Darkness. But God by his prophet asserts his own absolute supremacy and unity. "I am Jehovah and none else. Forming light and creating darkness; making peace and creating evil; I Jehovah am the Author of all these things." AMELIA HOYT.

8. What proportion of the world's letters is written in Anglo-Saxon?

Two-thirds of all that now pass through the post-offices of the world are written in English. There are about 500,000,000 persons speaking colloquially some one or other of the ten or twelve leading languages, and of these according to an estimate in the New York Herald, 125,000,000 speak English, 90,000,000 Russian, 75,000,000 German, 55,000,000 French, 45,000,000 Spanish, 35,000,000 Italian, 12,000,000 Portuguese, the remainder Hungarian, Dutch, Flemish, Bohemian, Gaelic, Roumanian, Swedish, Flemish, Danish, Norwegian. So large a share of the world's commercial business is conducted by or in conjunction with Great Britain that even among those who do not claim English as their native language, that language is employed in correspondence.
R. A. SMITH.

9. What race or people entertain the belief that heaven will be an exceptionally cool place?

The natives of Botocudes, one of the hottest regions on earth, believe that heaven will be a land of cool streams and shady groves.
J. B. SONDBERG.

Ancient India was inhabited by the Aryans, a noble, fair-skinned people, who had migrated from the temperate zone of Central Asia. Long ages after the Aryans had settled in India, their poets would sing of the cool breezes of the land of their ancestors, and in their prayers for long life they would ask for a "hundred winters." Heaven, in the imagination of these people, would be an exceptionally cool place as compared with the hot, scorching plains of India. NANNIE WALKER.

10. Why are X's used on barrels of liquor to signify degrees of strength or quality?

They signify degrees of strength at the present time. Originally they were put on by the monks as a sort of trade-mark. They were crosses in those days, and meant a sort of oath on the cross, sworn by the manufacturer that his barrel contained good liquor.
MRS. S. M. SAWIN.

Miscellaneous .... Questions

Reader, Ritter, W.Va. Can self-consciousness — fear to read or sing in public — be cured by suggestive therapeutics, or in any other way?

It is worth trying. We have known self-consciousness or excessive timidity to be largely overcome by the person accustoming himself to taking part in conversation, and thus gradually gaining confidence, until he finally had no hesitation in speaking at public gatherings. There are many very excellent speakers and singers, however, who are troubled with timidity all their lives. Gough used to say that he trembled every time he appeared before an audience.

Mrs. W. H. W., Herring, O. Can a woman be a thoroughly consecrated Christian and have a saloon-keeper for a husband?

Yes; but she will probably have a time of great trial unless she succeeds in persuading him to abandon his calling and take up one that is unobjectionable on moral grounds.

Reader, Sandhill, Ont., Can. 1. Is it a Christian's duty to rebuke every wrong he hears? If he hears a person using profane language, is it his duty to rebuke them, whether the person is known to him or not? 2. Is it wrong for a Christian to converse on anything but religious subjects on the Sabbath?

1. Your zeal should be tempered with discretion. It would be obviously unwise to expostulate with a man in a passion. Choose a proper opportunity and then, not offensively but tactfully, show him his fault. Sometimes a few quiet words or a tract will accomplish much. 2. There may be many subjects apart from religion, which unavoidably intrude upon one's attention on the Lord's day. The offence would consist not in giving momentary attention to these, but rather in deliberately devoting ourselves to secular and worldly things. If we plan our Sabbaths rightly, there will be scant opportunity for the world to monopolize them to any considerable extent.

W. V., Greggstown, N. J. 1. It is a contraction first used in telegraphy for brevity's sake. 2. L.H.D. are the initials of Litterarum Humaniorum Doctor—Doctor of Humane Letters (or the Humanities), an honorary degree like LL.D.

N. F. C., Washington Depot, Conn. Probably the Librarian of Congress.

I. J. M. We believe they are rarely, if ever, used in Protestant Episcopal churches. We do not know of any P. E. church where they are used.

J. E. M., Middletown, N. Y. See the estimate of population in last week's MAIL-BAG.

Interested Reader. 1. Pronounced as in "chat" or "chop." 2. Pronounced as in "hip." 3. Pronounced ong root.

Mrs. B. E., Clarendon. She is so entitled if the cause exists.

Subscriber, N. Middleboro, Mass. About eleven or twelve millions in all.

A GENERAL MASSACRE OF FOREIGNERS REPORTED

DARK TIDINGS FROM PEKIN

NEWS THAT SHOCKS ALL CHRISTENDOM

MISS CONGER

REV. W. S. AMENT

MRS. WOODWARD'S CHILDREN

MRS. W. R. WOODWARD

MRS. CONGER

WHAT may prove to be the darkest tragedy of the century has in all probability been enacted in Pekin. After weeks of alternate hopes and fears for the safety of the little company of foreign officials, their families, friends and attaches, who, with their European and American guards, were besieged in the legation compounds, news has come at last which leaves hardly a doubt of their fate. In every European capital, and even at Washington, hope is now virtually abandoned and it is generally believed that the ambassadors and all the foreigners in the Chinese capital have perished.

On July 13, dispatches from Shanghai were received which confirmed the worst fears and plunged Europe and America into the deepest sorrow and gloom. The first intelligence was contained in a cable message to the Central News Bureau in London. This was supplemented by a dispatch from United States Consul-General Goodnow, at Shanghai, which was based on information supplied by the Chinese Governor of the province of Shanghai, and by Sheng, the director of Chinese telegraphs. Next, a corroborative dispatch was received at the Japanese Embassy in London. All are from Chinese sources, and none are authoritative or direct from Pekin; yet their veracity seems beyond question. Their story, briefly, is that the Boxers under Prince Tuan, jointly with the revolted imperial troops who had flocked by thousands to the rebel ranks, prepared for an attack in force on July 6 on the British and Russian legations.

Heavy cannon were trained on the doomed buildings, within whose walls were sheltered all the foreigners in Pekin—the envoys, their families, the attaches, the legation guards and marines, the missionaries with their wives and children and a number of merchants and strangers of various nationalities. Prince Tuan led the attack in person, dividing his forces into three detachments under Gen's Tsai-Yin, Yin-Lin, Tsin-Yu and Tuh-Fuh-Singh; all simultaneously opening fire on the legations at dusk on the evening of the 6th. The brave defenders in the legation compound fought with desperate heroism, and the streets within the vicinity of the buildings were strewn with Chinese dead and wounded, but the situation was hopeless. All night long Gen. Tuh-Fuh-Singh's cannon pounded the legation buildings. Every attempt to break out and cut through the ranks of the assailants was met by such a hail of bullets that the defenders were driven back, each sortie costing many lives.

During one of these rallies, and when the foreigners were sorely pressed, Prince Ching and Gen. Wang-Weng-Sao with a body of loyal troops, came to their aid and attacked the Chinese forces of Tuan, but were utterly defeated and Ching himself is reported to have been killed. Gen. Wang-Weng-Sao was also killed in the fight. The battle between the allies within the legation and the Chinese without was then resumed with varying fortunes. At 5 A. M. Gen. Tung-Fuh-Singh arrived with a large force of Kansuh troops and reinforced the besiegers. Soon the walls of the legation began to crumble. Hundreds of the brave defenders fell at their posts. Their ammunition gave out, and at 7 A. M. the Chinese fire brought no response. Emboldened by this, the Chinese troops and Boxers made a rush on the legation and a desperate hand-to-hand encounter followed. Every one of the heroic defenders was put to the sword. The few who sought refuge in the ruins of the burning buildings were sought out and mercilessly slain.

Just what happened in these last two hours of their awful extremity, is only vaguely hinted at by the dispatches. It is said that the women and children, at the last moment, were shot down by their own defenders, who had determined that they should not fall alive into the hands of the savage hordes of Boxers, who seemed more like wild beasts than human beings. This phase of the massacre is explained in the Chinese dispatches in these words: "The foreigners also went mad and killed all their women and children, shooting them with their revolvers instead of firing on the Boxers." After all the Europeans and Americans had fallen, the Boxers fell upon the poor, helpless bodies in the courtyard and mutilated them, cutting off heads and carrying them through the streets on the points of their rifles. They closed the day's bloody work by a massacre of native Christians.

In some of the dispatches, incidents are mentioned in connection with the massacre that are almost incredible. It is said that M. De Giers, the Russian ambassador, and his wife, fell into the hands of the Boxers and were subjected to most revolting cruelties. The ambassador was dragged through the streets, tortured and finally boiled alive in a great cauldron, around which the Boxers danced and shouted, while they viewed his sufferings. M. De Giers, who was the son of one of Russia's greatest statesmen, preserved the noblest fortitude amid his agonies, and proclaimed aloud his Christian faith, encouraging his wife by the example of a heroic martyrdom. She, too, was fiendishly tortured and subjected to the grossest abuse. The intelligence of their terrible fate, when it reached St. Petersburg, caused a profound sensation. Tears coursed down the Czar's cheeks as he listened to the reading of the dispatches.

One man alone, Li Hung Chang, the great Viceroy, still cherishes a hope that the news of the terrible tragedy at the legations may be unfounded. He asserts that the legation inmates have been safeguarded by the Emperor and Empress Dowager, and that all the foreign ministers except Baron von Ketteler are safe. There is said to be a secret underground passage from the British Legation to the royal palace in the "Forbidden City," and that food and supplies could have come through this channel. In the last resort of a siege, it would afford a safe avenue of retreat. On July 17, Wu Ting Fang, the Chinese minister in Washington, received a joint message from the viceroys of Nanking and Wuchang and Director of Telegraphs Sheng, stating that the foreign ministers were safe on July 9—two days after the date of the reported massacre. This still leaves a hope, though a very slender one, that the ministers, their wives and children, and all the non-combatants at least may have been providentially preserved.

As far as can be learned, the victims of the terrible tragedy reported to have taken place in Pekin, are as follow:

Americans—Hon. Edwin H. Conger, United States Envoy Extraordinary and Minister Plenipotentiary, Mrs. Conger, Miss Laura Conger, the daughter, and Miss Mary Pierce, their niece; Miss Ione Woodward, of Chicago, a visitor in the Conger household, and Miss Cecile Payne, another member of the Conger group; Herbert C. Squiers, U. S. Secretary of Legation; Wm. E. Bainbridge, Assistant Secretary of Legation; Fleming D. Cheshire, interpreter; Miss Mary Condit Smith, a visitor at the Legation; Capt. John D. Myers, of the U. S. battleship Oregon, commanding the Legation guard of seven officers and fifty-six men; Capt. Newton H. Hall, U. S. Marine Corps; Assistant Surgeon Thomas H. Lippitt.

British—Sir Claude M. Macdonald, Minister; H. G. O. Bax Ironside, Secretary; H. G. N. Dering, Second Secretary; Dr. Woodsworth Poole, Physician; Right Rev. Bishop Scott, Chaplain; Henry Cockburn, Chinese Secretary; Live Bingham, Honorary Attache; Col. G. E. Browne, Military Attache; Lady Macdonald and the Misses Macdonald; seventy-two men and three officers of the guard; W. P. Thomas, D. T. Terbitt, J. T. Pratt, L. G. Graham, G. W. Pearson, W. P. Russell, H. Phillips, C. C. Kirke, A. J. Flaherty, W. M. Hewlett, H. H. Bristow, H. Porter, C. A. Rose, G. P. Peachey, J. G. Hancock, R. D. Drury, L. H. R. Barr, H. Warren, L. Giles, M. E. Townsend, M. H. Bourne.

German—Baron Von Ketteler, Minister; Baroness Von Ketteler; Von Prittwitz et Saffron, First Secretary; Baron Von Bergen, Secretary; Dr. Velde, Physician; Baron Von Der Sctoltz, Interpreter; H. Cordes, Interpreter; O. Feslan, Chancellor,; thirty-five men and two officers of the guard.

French—S. Pichon, Minister; D'Anthonard, Secretary; M. H. Leduc, Interpreter; M. Morisse, Interpreter; Commander Vidal, Military Attache; Dr. Detheva, Physician; C. M. F. Bertheaux, Chancellor; guard of seventy-two men and three officers.

Russian—M. Michael De Giers, Minister; H. B. Kroupensky, Secretary; M. B. Evreinoff, Second Secretary; M. P. Popoff, Interpreter; Colonel Dessino, Military Attache; Dr. Korsakoff, Physician; guard of thirty-nine men and three officers.

Italy—Marquis Salvago Raggi, Minister, Signor Livio Cretani, Attache; Baron G. Vtall d' Poraggio, dragoman; guard of thirty-nine men and three officers.

Austria—Baron Czikann von Vahlborn, Minister; Dr. A. de Rosthorn, Secretary; Herr R. Natiesta, Vice-consul; guard of thirty men and two officers.

Japanese—Baron Nishii, Minister; M. Ishinkekonjiro, Secretary; M. Nashema Takeshe, Second Secretary; M. Marumo, Third Secretary; Major Aoki, Military Attache; Dr. Nakagawa, Physician; Mm. Tei and Fokowmaron, Interpreters; M. Sagiyama, Chancellor; Guard of twenty-four men and two officers.

Belgium—M. de Cortier de Marchienne, Charge d' Affaires; M. de Neclotte, Attache; M. A. Splingaerd, Interpreter.

Spain—Senor B. J. De Cologan, Minister; Senor F. Soliveres, Secretary.

Netherlands—M. F. M. Knobel, Minister; M. W. J. VanDuysberg, Seretary.

Portugal—Senhor F. H. Galbardo, Minister; Senhor M. P. M. Bauderia de Luna, Secretary; Senhor C. A. R. DePaes Assumpcao, Interpreter.

Foreigners in Chinese Service—Sir Robert Hart, General Interpreter and Inspector-General of Customs; T. R. Brazier, Chancellor; P. Von Rautenfeld, Secretary; F. W. Maze, Auditor; C. H. Brewitt-Taylor, Assistant Secretary; J. Van Aalst, Secretary of Posts; C. E. Tennant, Assistant Secretary of Posts; and twelve probationer clerks.

The list of missionaries in Pekin at the time of the rumored massacre, was published in our last week's issue. As far as known, nearly all the missionaries outside of Pekin are now safe.

MRS. JAS. H. INGRAM — REV. JAS. H. ROBERTS — MISS NELLIE M. RUSSELL — REV. DR. MARTIN — MISS ANNA M. GLOSS, M.D. — REV. CHAUNCEY GOODRICH — MISS GERTRUDE WYCKOFF — DR. JAS. H. INGRAM

THESE WERE REPORTED AS BEING AMONG THE VICTIMS OF THE PEKIN MASSACRE

THE METROPOLITAN PULPIT.

The Great Surgeon

A Sermon by Rev. T. DeWitt Talmage, D.D., on the Text, Matt. 11 : 5 . . .

The blind receive their sight, and the lame walk, the lepers are cleansed and the deaf hear.

"DOCTOR," I said to a distinguished surgeon, "do you not get worn out with constantly seeing so many wounds and broken bones and distortions of the human body?" "Oh, no;" he answered, "all that is overcome by my joy in curing them." A sublimer and more merciful art never came down from heaven than that of surgery. Catastrophe and disease entered the earth so early that one of the first wants of the world was a doctor. Our crippled and agonized human race called for surgeon and family physician for many years before they came. The first surgeons who answered this call were ministers of religion, namely, the Egyptian priests. And what a grand thing if all clergymen were also doctors, all D.D.'s were M.D.'s, for there are so many cases were body and soul need treatment at the same time, consolation and medicine, theology and therapeutics. As the first surgeons of the world were also ministers of religion, may these two professions always be in full sympathy! But under what disadvantages the early surgeons worked, from the fact that the dissection of the human body was forbidden, first by the pagans and then by the early Christians! Apes, being the brutes most like the human race, were dissected, but no human body might be unfolded for physiological and anatomical exploration, and the surgeons had to guess what was inside the temple by looking at the outside of it. If they failed in any surgical operation they were persecuted and driven out of the city, as was Archagathus because of his bold but unsuccessful attempt to save a patient.

But the world from the very beginning kept calling for surgeons, and their first skill is spoken of in Genesis, where they employed their art for the incisions of a sacred rite, God making surgery the predecessor of baptism; and we see it again in II. Kings, where Ahaziah, the monarch, stepped on some cracked lattice-work in the palace, and it broke and he fell from the upper to the lower floor, and he was so hurt that he sent to the village of Ekron for aid; and Esculapius, who wrought such wonders of surgery that he was deified, and temples were built for his worship at Pergamos; and Epidaurus and Podelirius introduced for the relief of the world phlebotomy; and Damocedes cured the dislocated ankle of King Darius, and the cancer of his queen; and Hippocrates put successful hand on fractures, and introduced amputation; and Praxagoras removed obstructions; and Herophilus began dissection; and Erasistratus removed tumors; and Celsus, the Roman surgeon, removed cataract from the eye, and used the Spanish fly; and Heliodorus arrested disease of the throat; and Alexander of Tralles treated the eye; and Rhazas cauterized for the prevention of hydrophobia; and Percival Pott came to combat diseases of the spine; and in our own century we have had, among others, a Roux and a Larray in France, an Astley Cooper and an Abernethy in Great Britain, and a Valentine Mott and Willard Parker and Samuel D. Gross in America, and a galaxy of living surgeons as brilliant as their predecessors. What mighty progress in the baffling of disease since the crippled and sick of ancient cities were laid along the streets, that people who had ever been hurt or disordered in the same way might suggest what had better be done for the patients; and the priests of olden time, who were constantly suffering from colds received in walking barefoot over the temple pavements, had to prescribe for themselves, and fractures were considered so far beyond all human cure that instead of calling in the surgeon the people only invoked the gods!

But notwithstanding all the surgical and medical skill of the world, with what tenacity the old diseases hang on to the human race, and most of them are thousands of years old, and in our Bibles we read of them; the carbuncles of Job and Hezekiah; the palpitation of the heart spoken of in Deuteronomy; the sun-stroke of a child carried from the fields of Shunem, crying, "My head! my head!" King Asa's disease of the feet, which was nothing but gout; defection of teeth, that called for dental surgery, the skill of which, almost equal to anything modern, is still seen in the filled molars of the unrolled Egyptian mummies; the ophthalmia caused by the juice of the newly ripe fig, leaving the people blind by the roadside; epilepsy, as in the case of the young man often falling into the fire, and oft into the water; hypochondria, as of Nebuchadnezzar, who imagined himself an ox, and going out to the fields to pasture; the withered hand, which in Bible times, as now, came from the destruction of the main artery, or from paralysis of the chief nerve; the wounds of the man whom the thieves left for dead on the road to Jericho, and whom the good Samaritan nursed, pouring in oil and wine—wine to cleanse the wound, and oil to soothe it. Thank God for what surgery has done for the alleviation and cure of human suffering!

But the world wanted a surgery without pain. Drs. Parre and Hickman and Simpson and Warner and Jackson, with their amazing genius, came forward, and with their anæsthetics benumbed the patient with narcotics and ethers as the ancients did with hasheesh and mandrake. The world has never seen but one surgeon who could straighten the crooked limb, cure the blind eye, or reconstruct the drum of a soundless ear, or reduce a dropsy, without any pain at the time, or any pain after, and that surgeon was Jesus Christ, the mightiest, grandest, gentlest, and most sympathetic surgeon the world ever saw, or ever will see; and he deserves the confidence and love and worship and hosanna of all the earth, and hallelujahs of all heaven. "The blind receive their sight, and the lame walk; the lepers are cleansed, and the deaf hear."

I notice this surgeon had a fondness for chronic cases. Many a surgeon, when he has had a patient brought to him, has said: "Why was not this attended to five years ago? You bring him to me after all power of recuperation is gone. You have waited until there is a complete contraction of the muscles, and false ligatures are formed, and ossification has taken place. It ought to have been attended to long ago." But Christ the Surgeon seemed to prefer inveterate cases. One was a hemorrhage of twelve years, and he stopped it. Another was a curvature of eighteen years, and he straightened it. Another was a cripple of thirty-eight years, and he walked out well. The eighteen-year patient was a woman bent almost double. If you could call a convention of all the surgeons of all the centuries, their combined skill could not cure that body so drawn out of shape. Perhaps they might stop it from getting any worse, perhaps they might contrive braces by which she might be made more comfortable, but it is, humanly speaking, incurable. Yet this divine Surgeon put both his hands on her, and from that doubled-up posture she began to rise, and the emurpled face began to take on a healthier hue, and the muscles and cords of the neck began to be more supple, and the eyes, that could see only the ground before, now looked into the face of Christ with gratitude, and up toward heaven in transport. Straight! After eighteen weary and exhausting years, straight! The poise, the gracefulness, the beauty of healthy womanhood reinstated. The thirty-eight years' case was a man who lay on a mattress near the mineral baths at Jerusalem. There were five apartments where lame people were brought, so that they could get the advantage of these mineral baths. The stone basin of the bath is still visible, although the waters have disappeared, probably through some convulsion of nature; the bath, one hundred and twenty feet long, forty feet wide, and eight feet deep. Ah, poor man, if you have been lame and helpless thirty-eight years, that mineral bath cannot restore you. Why, thirty-eight years is more than the average of human life! Nothing but the grave will cure you. But Christ the Surgeon walks along these baths, and I have no doubt passes by some patients who have been only six months disordered, or a year or five years, and comes to the mattress of the man who had been nearly four decades helpless, and to this thirty-eight years' invalid said: "Wilt thou be made whole?" The question asked, not because the Surgeon did not understand the protractedness, the desperateness of the case, but to evoke the man's pathetic narrative. "Wilt thou be made whole?" "Would you like to get well?" "Oh, yes," says the man, "that is what I came to these mineral baths for; I have tried everything. All the surgeons have failed, and all the prescriptions have proved valueless, and I got worse and worse, and I can neither move hand nor foot nor head. Oh, if I could only be free from this pain of thirty-eighty years!" Christ, the Surgeon could not stand that. Bending over the man on the mattress, and in a voice tender with all sympathy, but strong with all omnipotence, he says, "Rise!" And the invalid instantly scrambles to his knees, and then puts out his right foot, then his left foot, and then stood upright as though he had never been prostrated. While he stands looking at the Doctor, with a joy too much to hold, the Doctor says, "Shoulder this mattress! for you are not only well enough to walk, but well enough to work, and start out from these mineral baths. Take up thy bed and walk!" Oh, what a Surgeon for chronic cases then, and for chronic cases now!

This is not applicable so much to those who are only a little hurt of sin, and only for a short time, but to those prostrated of sin twelve years, eighteen years, thirty-eight years. Here is a Surgeon able to give immortal health. "Oh," you say, "I am so completely overthrown and trampled down of sin that I cannot rise." Are you flatter down than this patient at the mineral baths? No. Then rise. In the name of Jesus of Nazareth, the Surgeon who offers you his right hand of help, I bid thee rise. Not cases of acute sin, but of chronic sin—those who have not prayed for thirty-eight years, those who have not been to church for thirty-eight years, those who have been gamblers, or libertines, or thieves, or outlaws, or blasphemers, or infidels, or atheists, or all these together, for thirty-eight years. A Christ for exigencies! A Christ for a dead-lift! A Surgeon who never loses a case!

In speaking of Christ as a surgeon, I must consider him as an oculist, or eye doctor, and an aurist, or ear doctor. Was there ever such another oculist? That he was particularly sorry for the blind folks, I take from the fact that the most of his works were with the diseased optic nerves. I have not time to count up the number of blind people mentioned who got his cure. Two blind men in one house, also one who was born blind; the blind man of Bethsaida, cured by the saliva which the Surgeon took from the tip of his own tongue and put upon the eyelids; also two blind men who sat by the wayside. In our civilized lands we have blindness enough, but in the lands where this Divine Surgeon operated, the cases of blindness were multiplied beyond everything by the particles of sand floating in the air, and the night dews falling on the eyelids of those who slept on the top of their houses; and in some of these lands it is estimated that twenty out of a hundred people are totally blind. Amid all that crowd of visionless people, what work for an oculist! And I do not believe that more than one out of a hundred of that Surgeon's cures were reported. He went up and down among those people who were feeling slowly their way by staff, or led by the hand of man or rope of dog, and introducing them to the faces of their own household, to the sunrise and the sunset and the evening star. He just ran his hand over the expressionless face, and the shutters of both windows were swung open, and the restored went home crying, "I see! I see! Thank God, I see!"

That is the Oculist we all need. Till he touches our eyes we are blind. Yea, we were born blind. By nature, we see things wrong, if we see them at all. Our best eternal interests are put before us and we cannot see them. The glories of a loving and pardoning Christ are projected, and we do not behold them. Or we have a defective sight which makes the things of this world larger than the things of the future, time bigger than eternity. Or, we are color-blind, and cannot see the difference between the blackness of darkness forever and the roseate morning of an everlasting day. But Christ the Surgeon comes in, and though we shrink back afraid to have him touch us, yet he puts his fingers on the closed eyelids of the soul, and midnight becomes midnoon; and we understand something of the joy of the young man of the Bible, who, though he had never before been able to see his hand before his face, now by the touch of Christ, had two headlights kindled under his brow, cried out in language that confounded the jeering crowd who were deriding the Christ that had effected the cure, and wanted to make him out a bad man. "Whether he be a sinner or no, I know not; one thing I know, that whereas I was blind, now I see."

DR. TALMAGE ADDRESSING AN OVERFLOW MEETING AT MANCHESTER, ENG.

On leaving the Cavendish Church, one of the largest in Manchester, which was densely crowded to hear Dr. Talmage preach, he was surrounded by a great throng who had waited outside through the service. Dr. Talmage gave an address from his carriage. In other cities of England and Scotland similar enthusiasm was manifested. Dr. Talmage has also preached to large audiences in the cities of Denmark, Norway, Sweden and Russia, where the people regularly read his sermons in their own language.

But this Surgeon was just as wonderful as an aurist. Very few people have two good ears. Nine out of ten people are particular to get on this or that side of you when they sit or walk or ride with you, because they have one disabled ear. Many have both ears damaged, and what with the constant racket of our great cities, and the catarrhal troubles that sweep through the land, it is remarkable that there are any good ears at all. Most wonderful instrument is the human ear. It is harp and drum and telegraph and telephone and whispering-gallery all in one. So delicate and wondrous is its construction, that the most difficult of all things to reconstruct is the auditory apparatus. The mightiest scientists have put their skill to its retuning, and sometimes they stop the progress of its decadence, or remove temporary obstructions, but not more than one really deaf ear out of a hundred thousand is ever cured. It took a God to make the ear, and it takes a God to mend it. That makes me curious to see how Christ the Surgeon succeeds as an aurist.

We are told of only two cases he operated on as an ear surgeon. His friend Peter, naturally high-tempered, saw Christ insulted by a man by the name of Malchus, and Peter let his sword fly, aiming at the man's head, but the sword slipped and hewed off the outside ear, and our Surgeon touched the laceration and another ear bloomed in the place of the one that had been slashed away. But it is not the outside ear that hears. That is only a funnel for gathering sound and pouring it into the hidden and more elaborate ear. On the beach of Lake Galilee our Surgeon found a man deaf and dumb. The patient dwelt in perpetual silence and was speechless. He could not hear a note of music or a clap of thunder. He could not call father or mother or wife or children by name. What power can waken that dull tympanum or reach that chain of small bones or revive that auditory nerve or open the gate between the brain and the outside world? The Surgeon put his fingers in the deaf ears and agitated them, and kept on agitating them, until the vibration gave vital energy to all the dead parts, and they responded, and when our Surgeon withdrew his fingers from the ears, the two tunnels of sound were clear for all sweet voices of music and friendship. For the first time in his life he heard the dash of the waves of Galilee. Through the desert of painful silence had been built a king's highway of resonance and acclamation. But yet he was dumb. No word had ever leaped over his lip. Speech was chained under his tongue. Vocalization and accentuation were to him an impossibility. He could express neither love nor indignation nor worship. Our Surgeon, having unbarred his ear, will now unloose the shackle of his tongue. The Surgeon will use the same liniment or salve that he used on two occasions for the cure of blind people, namely, the moisture of his own mouth. The application is made. And lo, the rigidity of the dumb tongue is relaxed, and between the tongue and teeth were born a whole vocabulary, and words flew into expression. He not only heard but he talked. One gate of his body swung in to let sound enter, and the other gate swung out to let sound depart. Why is it that while other surgeons used knives and forceps and probes and stethoscopes, this Surgeon used only the ointment of his own lips? To show that all the curative power we ever feel comes straight from Christ. And if he touches us not we shall be deaf as a rock and dumb as a tomb. O, thou greatest of all aurists, compel us to hear and help us to speak!

But what were the Surgeon's fees for all these cures of eyes and ears and tongues and withered hands and crooked backs? The skill and the painlessness of the operations were worth hundreds and thousands of dollars. Do not think that the cases he took were all moneyless. Did he not treat the nobleman's son? Did he not doctor the ruler's daughter? Did he not effect a cure in the house of a centurion of great wealth, who had out of his own pocket built a synagogue? They would have paid him large fees, and there were hundreds of wealthy people in Jerusalem, and among the merchant castles along Lake Tiberias, who would have given this Surgeon houses and lands and all they had for such cures as he could effect. For critical cases in our time great surgeons have received a thousand dollars, five thousand dollars, and, in one case I know of, fifty thousand dollars, but the Surgeon of whom I speak received not a shekel, not a penny, not a farthing. In his whole earthly life, we know of his having had but sixty-two and a half cents. When his taxes were due, by his omniscience he knew of a fish in the sea which had swallowed a piece of silver money, as fish are apt to swallow anything bright, and he sent Peter with a hook which brought up that fish, and from its mouth was extracted a Roman stater, or sixty-two and a half cents, the only money he ever had; and that he paid out for taxes. This greatest Surgeon of all the centuries gave all his services then, and offers all his services now, free of all charge. "Without money and without price" you may spiritually have your blind eyes opened, and your deaf ears unbarred, and your dumb tongues loosened, and your wounds healed and your soul saved. If Christian people get hurt of body, mind or soul, let them remember that surgery is apt to hurt, but it cures, and you can afford present pain for future glory. Besides that, there are powerful anæsthetics in the divine promises that soothe and alleviate. No ether or chloroform or cocaine ever made one so superior to distress as a few drops of that magnificent anodyne: "All things work together for good to those who love God." "Weeping may endure for a night, but joy cometh in the morning."

What a grand thing for our poor human race when this Surgeon shall have completed the treatment of the world's wounds! The day will come when there will be no more hospitals, for there will be no more sick, and no more eye and ear infirmaries, for there will be no more blind or deaf, and no more deserts for the round earth shall be brought under arboriculture, and no more blizzards or sunstrokes, for the atmosphere will be expurgated of scorch and chill, and no more war, for the swords shall come out of the foundry bent into pruning hooks; while in the heavenly country we shall see the victims of accident or malformation, or hereditary ills on earth, become the athletes in Elysian fields. Who is that man with such brilliant eyes close before the throne? Why, that is the man who, near Jericho, was blind, and our Surgeon cured his ophthalmia! Who is that erect and graceful and queenly woman before the throne? That was the one whom our Surgeon found bent almost double, and could in no wise lift up herself, and he made her straight. Who is that listening with such rapture to the music of heaven, solo melting into chorus, cymbal responding to trumpet, and then himself joining in the anthem? Why, that is the man whom our Surgeon found deaf and dumb on the beach of Galilee, and by two touches opened ear-gate and mouth-gate. Who is that around whom the crowds are gathering with admiring look and thanksgiving, and cries of "Oh, what he did for me! Oh, what he did for my family! Oh, what he did for the world!" That is the Surgeon of all the centuries, the Oculist, the Aurist, the Emancipator, the Saviour. No pay he took on earth. Come, now, and let all heaven pay him with worship that shall never end, and a love that shall never die. On his head be all the crowns! in his hands be all the sceptres! and at his feet be all the worlds!

A Notable Convention of Temperance Women

DELEGATES FROM WOMEN'S CHRISTIAN TEMPERANCE UNIONS OF MANY LANDS IN SESSION IN EDINBURGH

THE fifth biennial convention of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union of the world brought to Edinburgh, Scotland, over two hundred women from different countries, who for six days discussed the temperance work of all nations and their part therein. British women were there, in addition, by the hundreds, and the trains running between London and Edinburgh carried enough white ribbon to have made a signal banner.

The World's Temperance Congress in London the week before was an advance meeting-place for many of the foreign delegates, who rallied around Lady Henry Somerset, Mrs. L. M. N. Stevens, Miss Agnes Slack and Mrs. J. K. Barney when they took part in the congress.

The cordiality of the English greeting was equalled by a Scotch welcome so warm and generous that traditions seemed incredible of the reserve and even coldness of the Scotch character. It was a welcome from all classes and from people not in the temperance ranks as well as from those enrolled under the standard.

LADY HENRY SOMERSET
President of the World's W. C. T. U.

Mrs. Mary Clement Leavitt, of Boston, the honorary president of the World's W.C.T.U., was unable to cross the ocean to attend the convention, having now arrived at an advanced age, and the acting president, Lady Henry Somerset, presided officially. The Free Assembly Hall of Edinburgh, which is the meeting place of the Free Kirk, was used for all the meetings and its capacity of nearly five thousand was taxed to the utmost.

The gathering place of the temperance clans, at the Free Assembly Church, commands a situation among the most beautiful in beautiful Edinburgh. Occupying the site of the palace of Mary of Guise, the corrupt queen of James V. and the mother of unhappy Mary, Queen of Scots, it rests on the summit of what is known as the Mound, which is a hugh accumulation of carried earth across the North Loch valley and serves the purpose of a bridge between the New Town and the Old. Within a stone's throw is the historical Grassmarket where, under a spot marked now by a cross in the causeway, is still retained the socket of the old gallows on which many of the most eminent Covenanters received a martyr's crown.

While there was a slight confusion of tongues within, as when two foreigners lapsed into their native language by force of habit or in haste to express themselves, still the English language was spoken by all and with a fluency remarkable in many cases. When the roll of the countries was called responses from national presidents were made by Lady Henry Somerset for Great Britain; Mrs. L. M. N. Stevens, of Portland, Me., for the United States; Mrs. E. W. Nicholls, of Adelaide, for Australia; Mrs. Rutherford, of Toronto, for Canada; Mrs. McLean, of Windsor, for Victoria; Mrs. Johnson, for Queensland; Mrs. Drake, for South Australia; Mrs. Barber, for Tasmania; Miss Watts, for Brazil; Mrs. Tongeroff, for Bulgaria; Fraulein Hoffman, for Germany; Mrs. Parmalee, for Japan; Mrs. Druley, for Newfoundland; Miss Powell, for New Zealand; Mrs. Mackay, for Cape Colony; Miss Johannsdottir, for Iceland; Miss Johanessen, for Norway; Mrs. Harrison Lee, for New South Wales; Mrs. Osten, for Denmark; Mrs. Crawford, for Ireland; Mrs. Brockway, for India; Mrs. Peill, for Madagascar; Miss. Fernie, for Natal; and Mrs. Dann, for the Bahama Islands.

It was an interesting gathering of interesting women, many of them famous in their own land for oratory or literary genius, as well as for temperance zeal, and some famous the world over. Lady Henry Somerset, though with a shadow on her face of constant anxiety about her son in South Africa, exhibited a deep grasp on the fundamental principles of temperance reform.

Mrs. Stevens, the president of the United States W. C. T. U., exhibited the ready wit, practical common sense, thorough knowledge of men and affairs and far-sighted sagacity, which make her the balance-wheel in the work of the national and international organizations, and which have lifted her to a position of leadership in many different movements among the women of her own country. The president of the Iceland W.C.T.U., Miss Johannsdottir, one of the few women of her country known at all to the public, attracted much attention in the quaint costume of her native land, with its short skirt, long mantle widely bordered with white fur, and its close-fitting black cap, with gold tassels. The earnest and tireless energy of Miss Agnes Slack, the secretary; the good judgment of Mrs. Sanderson, the treasurer; the fluent speech of Mrs. Lente-Stevenson, superintendent of the department of Good Citizenship; the winning personality of Mrs. Frances J. Barnes, in charge of the Y. W. C. T. U. work of the world; the educated mind and profound convictions of Dr. Mary Wood Allen, superintendent of the Social Purity department—these have for years been talents displayed and practically used at the conventions of the W. C. T. U., and they were not lacking at this one. Their work during the years between conventions makes them known to white ribboners the world over, and at their conventions they are familiar figures and greeted as old friends.

The convention received enthusiasm and assistance from Charles M. Sheldon, the author of In His Steps, who is an ardent supporter of the W. C. T. U. It heard reports from its superintendents, in which the progress of the work was traced in its different branches of scientific temperance instruction, Sunday School work, peace and international arbitration, the work of the Loyal Temperance Legion, the promotion of good citizenship, work among railway men, sailors and miners, antinarcotics, antigambling and social purity. Mrs. J. K. Barney, of Providence, R. I.; Miss Parrish, of Paris, Ill.; Miss Cummins and Miss Vincent, of Australia, whose terms of office had expired, were reappointed to continue their travels in missionary work around the world. The United States W. C. T. U., which had taken a vote at its last national convention abandoning the Woman's Temple at Chicago on account of the hopelessness of the scheme, was sustained in its position by the convention.

But most important was the election, near the close of the convention, of Lady Henry Somerset to be president and Mrs. L. M. N. Stevens vice-president of the World's W. C. T. U. To them is due much of the success of the cause in the past, and the ultimate triumph of the future will be brought nearer by their efforts and consecrated talents.

REBECCA A. INSLEY.

FINDING A STRAY EAR OF CORN

GROUP OF BLIND VICTIMS OF THE FAMINE WAITING TO BE ADMITTED TO A POOR-HOUSE

A HINDU SERVANT

MY TOUR THROUGH FAMINE-STRICKEN INDIA

.. BY LOUIS KLOPSCH ..

FAMINE in India! How I dread to write about it! What pen can adequately portray the scenes which my eyes have witnessed? Scenes of desolation, of pain, of suffering, of hopeless despair, of heart anguish, of death! And what a death! Lingering, agonizing, torturous, terrible! An indescribable death, coming on gradually; slowly, but surely tightening its grip, until its victim, consciously helpless, the eyes abnormally distended and unnaturally lustrous, sinks down overcome with dread apprehension. Then a feeble but fruitless effort to rise again, a protracted, spasmodic gurgle, an occasional revivification; a final, prolonged, appealing, anxious, despairing look, the death-rattle, and all is over. Then the funeral! If the undertaker be a jackal or a vulture, it may possibly be imagined, but it should never be described. Otherwise, the body is burned, and its ashes fertilize the sun-baked, kiln-dried, sterile ground.

I had fully expected to witness great distress, intense suffering, yes, even death. I realized my own feebleness in the face of so great a calamity. I had nerved myself for the mission in hand; yet, I was in nowise prepared for the dreadful, shocking state of affairs I was called upon to encounter. On the Red Sea and the Indian Ocean, while sweltering in a range of temperature and a degree of humidity to which I was wholly unaccustomed, fellow-passengers had endeavored to convey to my mind some idea of the sad, heart-rending scenes one is apt to meet with in the famine territory; but had I the power to intensify a thousand times all I heard, when face to face with the dreaded reality, I should have felt even then that "the half had not been told."

One half of India to-day is a great charnel-house in which countless thousands have already perished of cholera, plague, dysentery and starvation, and as many more are doomed to a like fate. How to describe it, so as to bring it within the grasp of the human mind, I know not. Twenty thousand cases of cholera weekly, with a seventy-five per cent. mortality, representing 15,000 deaths every seven days; plague on every hand; dysentery mowing down its victims right and left, and starvation staring millions boldly and defiantly in the face, reaping a harvest unprecedented—this tells the horrible story about as accurately as a brief prose summary of Milton's Paradise Lost would convey a sense of its poetic sublimity. The skeleton may be there, but the soul is wanting.

As Mr. Willets, my traveling companion in India, has undertaken to supply a general narrative of the trip, I will confine myself to a recital of some of the most striking incidents, without regard to chronological order.

But before I begin, permit me to express my heartfelt gratitude to my Heavenly Father for having brought me safely through dangers by land and sea as well as by infection and contagion, and to thank the many readers of THE CHRISTIAN HERALD for their earnest prayers in my behalf. My physical welfare was beset with dangers on every hand, yet out of them all I have been permitted to return to my family better fitted for the duties and responsibilities of life than in many a year.

"THE CHILD LYING GASPING IN MY ARMS WAS DOOMED"

. . .

Bombay's Army of Beggars

On the day of our arrival, the streets of Bombay were literally alive with walking skeletons. Every step of the way we were beset and besieged by men, women and children in the last stages of destitution, piteously begging for a mite that they might eat and live. They prostrated themselves before us, calling upon us as the "Protectors of the poor, our Father and Mother, our King and our God," to save them from starvation.

They lifted up their hands in earnest supplication, and uttered their petitions while vigorously slapping their naked, hollow stomachs to indicate that for a long time they had had nothing to eat. They held out their hands with a beseeching look, hoping that we might drop a coin that would purchase at least enough food to satisfy their hunger just for an hour. Gaunt men, emaciated women with parched bosoms nursing shriveled, diminutive, hollow-eyed, sickly babies; children with legs and arms like clothes-pins, every rib plainly visible, all ran toward us and after us, completely surrounding the carriage and entreating us every step of the way.

I was tempted to give them all I had, but Rev. Mr. Frease who accompanied me, begged me not to do it, fearing if we gave to some that the rest would become frantic and endanger our safety. "Where do these unfortunate people come from?" I asked. "They come from the villages in families and groups to the larger cities, hoping there to be able to beg enough to keep them alive," was the reply. "How many of them are there in Bombay?" "Tens of thousands," responded my companion. "The municipality sent seven thousand by rail to the Relief Camp at Thana, twenty-five miles away, the other day, but six thousand left in one night and returned to the city, walking the entire distance."

. . .

Streets Littered with Destitute Sleepers

All along the drive of over two miles, between our hotel and the Marathi Mission, doorways, stoops and curbstones were occupied by these helpless unfortunates, many of them more than three-fourths naked and all of them miserably clad. The most persistent in their entreaties were the nursing mothers, and nearly every other woman belonged to that class, and the saddest sight of all were the poor child mothers, themselves in need of maternal attention, hugging their emaciated, hollow-templed and sunken-eyed babies with an intensity of affection that almost broke our hearts to witness — particularly in view of our own utter helplessness to relieve their distress.

Houseless and homeless, these unfortunates sleep in the streets of Bombay at night. They lie down just where they happen to find themselves when tiredness overtakes them, and it is no exaggeration to say that I have seen as many as five hundred asleep on the sidewalk of a single block, lying so closely that it was almost impossible to thread one's way through the maze. In the less frequented streets they sleep also in the driveways, and in order to drive through without accident it is necessary to send an advance courier to wake up the sleepers. Of course, they have neither bed nor covering, and to see the little ones on the hard stones cuddle up to their mothers was one of the most pathetic, touching sights that I have ever witnessed.

Every effort has been put forth by the city to disperse the hungry crowds and return them to the country, but necessity recognizes no law and desperation yields to no entreaties. What they want is bread, bread, bread for themselves and their loved ones, and the city is their last hope. If that fails them they must perish, and if die they must they may as well die there as elsewhere.

As in the city, so along the country roads of the famine district, there are constant streams of grim, gaunt, hungry, despairing people, bound from the villages for the relief stations; for the Famine Code requires the starving to break up their homes and travel from fifteen to twenty miles, yes, sometimes over thirty miles, in order to obtain relief. Hence, no wonder that along the sun-baked, kiln-dried roads of famine-stricken India, dead bodies have strewn the way and sickened the hearts of our missionaries, and that when certain death stares these wanderers in the face they, as a last resort, offer their children for sale at a few annas each, in the hope that such a course will ensure the lives of the little ones and enable their parents to journey further on, with a prospect of getting to where relief awaits them!

A Severe Test

. . .

A Typical Famine Camp

One experience which stands out from all the others most distinctly in my mind, is our visit to Ahmedabad. We got there about half-past five in the evening, and without waiting to visit the accommodations provided for our entertainment we hastened to the poor-house.

On the shadeless plaza before the gate were nearly 250 reeking, filthy bundles of rags, containing as many human beings in various stages of emaciation, some standing, some squatting in Oriental fashion on the ground, others lying flat on their backs, and still others lying with their faces to the ground, in order to screen themselves from the burning rays of the evening sun. The thermometer ranged at about 110 deg. in the shade; not a breath of air was blowing, and the heat and stench contributed to make us physically as ill at ease as the sad scenes of destitution, misery, pain and helplessness made us so mentally. It seemed impossible that any part of the great human family could reach such depth of misery as was everywhere visible.

On inquiring why these people were exposed to the relentless rays of the sun without shelter or shade, I was told that they had been brought in from the neighboring villages on carts and were to remain under observation for twenty-four hours in order to determine whether symptoms of contagious disease developed. They had come in during the afternoon, they had lain there for three or four hours, they were to remain there all night and to stay there all the next forenoon. Possibly the evening of the next day they would be admitted to the inhospitable shelter of the Ahmedabad poor-house. Myriads of flies were feasting on each individual bundle, and the eyelids, mouths, nostrils and ears were all besieged with battalions of flies gorging themselves on the helpless victims of the India famine.

. . .

The Suffering Children

The most distressing phase of all this indescribable misery was the dear little children who seemed to be in constant agony, internal and external. They did not cry aloud, because they lacked the vital inner force for such effort; though their faces were constantly crying no sound was heard, and as we looked at these innocent, helpless little things—so emaciated, hollow-templed, sunken-eyed, the nape of the neck so sharply indented under the skull that the head looked abnormally large and ill-supported—the burden of sympathetic grief became almost unbearable. Sometimes tears rolled down their cheeks, and the mother sitting next to the child would wipe the tears away with a part of her dirty, filthy garment, and something like a sigh would escape to indicate the depth of sorrow that was laying hold upon her heart. As we stood there watching this motley crowd, overawed, as it seemed, by dozens of tall, skeletonized men with long beards and large, abnormally lustrous eyes peering out of depressed sockets, half inquisitive, half reflective, our attention was directed to two groups of burden-bearers, each group bearing a cot: one set bound for the poor-house, the other set coming from it. On the cot bound for the poor-house was a man about twenty years of age, long and thin, sheltering with his hand his eyes from the sun. He was a fever patient, and was going in for treatment. On the other cot was a man who had received "treatment," and was now bound for the funeral pile, where fourteen were to be burned that evening.

. . .

The Dead Beside the Living

We went into the poor-house where over a thousand people in various stages of nudity and emaciation were seated on the ground, waiting to be served. It was time for the evening meal. We left them for the time being, and taking a turn sidewise we entered the hospital section, which was the worst, with one or two exceptions, that I had occasion to visit. We first went through the cholera wards, and there in every ward we found dead bodies on the cots or on the ground. Every fifth or sixth cot had a corpse on it. I asked why they were not removed, and an attendant replied that the victims had died after twelve o'clock noon, in which case there is no removal until the time for burning, which is eight in the evening. It was a gruesome sight to see these dead men and women, with expressions of intensest agony on their faces, lying there; and the only comforting thought was that they were beyond suffering, and that the famine in India, with its plague, its cholera, its smallpox and its fever, could no longer affect them.

Down in a corner of one of the wards, in which we had found three dead bodies, lay a tall, broad-shouldered man, stone dead. He had died during the afternoon. Back of him was his little four-year-old girl, tenderly fondling him and vainly endeavoring to attract his attention. Her face seemed to indicate that she was beginning to realize that something was amiss; and yet there was her father, and what she apprehended vaguely could not very well be, so long as he was there. We stood looking on, our hearts almost breaking and the tears coursing down our cheeks, when a little commotion at the entrance to the ward claimed our attention. They were bringing in the patient whom we had seen on the cot outside, and who required medical treatment. The attendant lifted him up and raised him on his feet, then supporting him on one side, the feeble patient staggering as best he could with the aid of this support, he walked him to the corner and placed him down on the ground, face to face with the dead man whose little child was fondling him. The thing took but a few moments, but the horror of the situation so appalled us that, for the moment, we were stupefied. It seemed impossible that any one could commit so unnatural an act. We called the attention of the man to what he was doing. We asked him why he did not make room elsewhere for the patient. He replied that within an hour the dead man would be removed and the patient then could have the whole corner to himself.

. . .

The Dark Side and the Bright

In the accompanying illustrations, it will be noticed that the photographer has twice caught me while I happened to be holding a famine child in my arms. These pictures, if captioned with due regard for the respective babes, would read: "The dark and the bright sides of the India famine." For while the child lying gasping in my arms was doomed, the other little one, with the pretty, bright face, was saved. One was a famine victim, the other a famine survivor. The one died soon after I laid her gently back on the ground which served for a cot; the other is still living, one of the fortunate orphans supported by the generous readers of this paper—doubtless a happy child who will grow up in the Christian faith to learn how a great paternal government had cared for millions of India's people in time of direst need, how she was rescued from starvation and death by the motherly Pundita Ramabai, and how she owes her very life and enlightenment and happiness to the Christian people of America who contributed money for her upbringing.

THIS LITTLE ONE, WITH ITS BRIGHT FACE, WAS SAVED

. . .

A Most Pathetic Incident

Let me close this paper with a reference to the other illustration herewith, which shows a group of blind women—blindness caused in each case by acute starvation — representing mothers who have lost their children either by death or in the course of that aimless wandering common to a famine-stricken people. These poor, sightless orbs remind me of an incident attending a visit to a poor-house. A girl of thirteen or fourteen prostrated herself, wailing and chattering, at the feet of the native official who was showing me through the camp.

"What does that poor child want?" was asked.

"She wants to leave the camp," replied the fat and sleek Hindu, with a grin. "She has strayed away from her mother, and she says she yearns to meet her once again on earth. But what can I do? If I allow her to leave here, she will wander about the desert and starve to death."

Later in the day that poor girl took things in her own hands and crawled out under the matting which served as a fence to enclose the camp. Outside there, at the entrance gate she espied a group of women who were waiting to be admitted to the poor-house—the place of last resort. One of these women, the one whose form was most emaciated, worn nearest of all to a skeleton, was stone blind. She was calling and repeating over and over again, in a faint voice, a certain name. The girl who had crawled out under the straw fence recognized the name as her own, but she did not immediately recognize the woman who called her name thus in such pitiable tones. After a closer inspection, however, she suddenly uttered a great cry of joy and flew to the blind and tottering woman and caught her in her own young but emaciated arms. "Mother, mother!" she sobbed.

"My child—my little dear at last!" moaned the poor mother. "Now I can die in peace."

And the silent hours of that night saw mother and daughter file with others, into the poor-house. Who can tell whether they will ever emerge again alive?

DR. KLOPSCH ADDRESSING THE WEAVERS AT AHMEDNAGAR

He is standing on the steps of the Chapel, in the background, with the group of missionaries

NEW YORK

Abrams, Mrs G B. 25
Ackerman, Mrs A C 1 00
Aiken, Mrs G S.. 5 00
Albricht, John J.. 2 00
Aldrich, Mrs C.... 1 00
Aldrich, H 20
Aldrich, Mrs V A & Lillian E Pratt 2 00
Alger, Miss S P... 25
Alexander, M 2 00
Allen, C 5 00
Allen, May 15
Allen, Mrs Susan. 1 00
Allen, W J 1 00
Allen, W L & wife. 10 00
Alman, Samuel, Jr. 10 00
Almy, Mrs J 25
Alvord, Mrs A.... 1 00
Andrews, H B.... 4 00
Andrews, Mrs A W 1 00
Angenne, Mabel... 25
Archer, Christina. 10
Archer, Nelson.... 12
Arnold, J Howard 2 02
Armstrong, A 1 00
Armstrong, Mrs J 1 00
Ash, Robt 1 00
Atkins, Mrs 1 00
Austin, May 50
Backus, Mrs A.... 35
Backus, Daniel... 25
Baker, Jas 1 00
Baker, J S 5 00
Ball, Mrs C E ... 1 00
Ball, Raleigh 10
Barbour, Miss H M 2 25
Barker, Mrs C M. 1 00
Barker, Ethel 25
Barker, Mrs G.... 1 00
Barkman, Miss M. 25
Barmore, Mrs S.. 1 00
Barnard, Miss ... 25
Barnes, Clara..... 05
Barnes, Mrs Rose. 50
Bartseb, Mrs H... 1 00
Barton, D N 2 00
Basford, B 72
Basford, H 39
Bassett, Miss C M 1 00
Bassler, W E 1 00
Bates, Mrs Lucy.. 1 00
Batjes, Mrs H.... 5 00
Baumes, Ada 1 00
Beach, Mrs Mary. 50
Beaker, M F..... 3 00
Bean, Jas H 2 00
Becker, Miss R... 25
Beech, Mrs John.. 1 00
Belden, Mary C... 2 00
Bell, Geo W 1 15
Bell, Wm H 25
Belsee, Agnes 1 00
Benchley, Mr and Mrs 50
Benedict, Mrs H.. 1 00
Benedict, Mrs Asa 50
Bennett, Ellen ... 5 00
Benson, C O 2 00
Benson, Rev E E and friends 2 50
Benson, S E 26
Bentley, Mildred C 05
Berry, Mrs H..... 2 00
Berry, Tessie 25
Besten, Chas..... 50
Betts, E K 5 00
Bierce, Stella 05
Bishop, Jessie.... 09
Bishop, Mabel E. 50
Blake, Miss J F.. 10
Blanchard, Mrs T 1 00
Blankenberg, Tessie 25
Blenis, Mrs E K.. 25
Blenis, Mrs G K.. 50
Bloomer, Gracie... 25
Blum, G 1 00
Blumenthal, Bertha & Emma Morton 1 00
Blything, R S 2 00
Boardman, S 40
Boardman, Mrs S 30
Boardman, W H.. 1 00
Boardman, Mrs W H 05
Bogardus, V H.... 5 00
Boice, Mrs E 1 00
Bonton, Matilda... 50
Bordwell, Mrs ... 25
Bowditch, Wm S. 1 00
Bowers, C 25
Bowers, Peter 2 00
Bowler, Mrs M A. 1 00
Bowman, David... 25
Bowman, Mrs J A 5 00
Boydston, Jas F.. 3 50
Braey, H E 1 00
Bradford, Mrs W. 50
Bradley, A S ... 3 00
Bradley, Miss M C 1 00
Bradt, C 25
Braley, Mrs H.... 10
Braley, Mrs H S. 2 00
Brand, Miss A... 50
Brand, Mrs C M.. 10 00
Brewster, Ella ... 1 00
Brewster, E A.... 50
Brice, Geo 1 00
Briggs, Mrs A.... 1 00
Briggs, I 25
Briggs, M L, Coll by 2 43
Briggs, Mrs W.... 25
Brink, Ben 25
Brink, Howard.... 75
Brooks, M 1 75
Brown, A K 25
Brown, E 10
Brown, Mrs Dr... 25
Brown, Mr & Mrs J O 50
Brown, Mrs J S... 50
Brown, S T 1 00
Brundage, Mrs E. 10
Brundage, Mrs S. 43
Brumley, Mrs C L 20
Brumley, Miss M. 10
Bryant, Mrs Will. 10

NEW YORK—Cont'd.

Buck, Mrs A E... 1 00
Buck, A W 1 00
Buck, Mrs E C... 25
Bunce, Wm A..... 25
Burke, Ailcen..... 15
Burke, Stella 20
Bushert, Wm 25
Burlingham, D ... 25
Burnett, R P 1 00
Burroughs, Mrs M 30
Burrows, W J....10 00
Bushnell, Miss A M 10
Bushnell, Mrs M A 50
Bushnell, M L.... 3 00
Bushy, Halsey.... 20
Bussing, A M..... 2 00
Butcher, Emma .. 25
Butcher, R J 2 00
Button, Mrs Ada B 1 00
Byder, Mrs Wm.. 15
Byder, Miss..... 25
Cadwallage, J M.. 5 00
Caprou, M N..... 1 00
Carey, W J 25
Carlson, Albin 1 00
Carney, B 2 00
Carpenter, Mrs A E 50
Carpenter, E O... 1 00
Carpenter, Mrs J L 50
Carpenter, Mrs L. 25
Carpenter, Mr & Mrs Wm 2 00
Carter, T T..... 1 00
Case, Bert L 1 00
Casper, J G 25
Caster, Theo 1 00
Caster, W E 2 00
Casterline, P H.. 5 00
Chamberlain, Mrs Effie 70
Chapman, Mrs F.. 2 00
Chapman, Myrtle. 50
Childs, W S 25
Choate, R D 1 00
Cissurn, Mr 25
Clapp, Lucy A... 1 00
Clark, B F 1 00
Clark, Mr & Mrs C C 2 00
Clark, C W 50
Clark, Mrs Dan... 2 00
Clark, E L 2 00
Clarke, Louie 10
Clark, M E 1 00
Clark, Mary E, (M D) 2 00
Clark, P H 1 00
Clark, Mrs W 1 05
Clay, E C 3 00
Clegg, Mrs Sam'l. 1 00
Cochran, Gertie... 10
Cochran, George.. 25
Cochran, Henry... 05
Cochran, Mrs G.. 25
Coleman, Alice ... 10
Coleman N & A... H & D Lambert. Mrs Harrington. Miss Gowette... Miss A Huber & Miss A Andrews 2 00
Coleman, Mrs W S 15
Coles, H C 5 00
Collins, A 25
Collier, Mrs C.... 1 00
Collons, Mrs H... 50
Colwell, Belle ... 1 00
Conklin, Mrs A... 1 00
Connors, Miss M.. 05
Cook, Mrs J E.... 25
Cool, Miss N J... 15
Cooley, A Eugene. 2 00
Coons, Mrs C A.. 1 00
Coous, Earl T.... 25
Coons, Flossie B.. 50
Coons, Mrs O.... 75
Cooper, Bernard.. 2 00
Cooper, I M 1 00
Copley, Mrs E H. 1 00
Corbin, Mrs F E 2 00
Cornwell, W N... 6 00
Coy, Fanny 50
Craig, Mrs S J... 2 00
Crandall, Mrs C M 1 00
Crane, Mrs J E D 50
Craver, Jennie F.. 1 00
Cresse, N W..... 1 00
Cridler, Mrs E B. 2 31
Crocker, L G ... 50
Crocker, Mrs N... 1 05
Cronkhite, J 1 00
Crosby, Mrs S.... 2 00
Cross, Mr & Mrs C 2 00
Crowner, Truman & Family 1 00
Culver, Electa ... 1 00
Cunningham, E .. 1 00
Cunningham, E J. 25
Cunningham, T... 2 00
Cusack, Geo B.... 1 00
Cushing, Mrs A G 25
Dack, A C 50
Danforth, Miss & Mrs H 2 00
Daniels, Mrs 50
Daniels, Mrs M R 2 00
Darling, Mrs M... 50
Darlington, Mrs J H 5 00
Davenport, J A... 25
Davey, M 10
Davis, C 25
Davis, Miss C R. 1 00
Davis, Mrs J D... 1 55
Davis, Seaman ... 1 50
Day, A P 2 00
Day, J E 1 00
Dayton, Mrs S.... 2 00
Dayton, S 3 00
Decker, Mrs H.... 25
Decker, Mrs S M. 25
Decker, Willie ... 50
Decoop, Christina De Golyer, Mrs W and family 12 2 50
Degraff, C 1 00
D'Hern, Miss J M 25
De Lano, Mrs F... 5 00
Demorest, Mrs E. 3 00
Demorest, N C ... 1 00
Denton, A A 2 00
Derby, Mrs 1 00

NEW YORK—Cont'd.

Derby, Mrs D D.. 15
Dexter, Miss M G.10 00
Dickerson, Julia.. 1 00
Dievendorf, G E.. 5 00
Delemeter, J 1 00
Dill, Thos & Co.. 2 00
Divine, Mrs G J.. 1 00
Dolawey, Mrs A.. 15
Dorn, Mrs E..... 1 00
Dost, Miss 2 00
Doughty, Mrs P.. 1 00
Douglass, M C... 5 00
Douglass, W H... 5 00
Drew, S 2 00
Dudley, Mrs R M. 25
Dudley, Mrs T... 2 00
Dnesler, Rev and J L 75
Dugan Bros 5 00
Dunham, Mrs C D 1 00
Dutcher, J D..... 1 00
Dyhman, Mrs 1 00
Eanice, Miss 1 00
Earsley, Theresa. 1 00
Easterly, A 50
Eastman, Mrs M.. 1 00
Eddy, Harry M... 65
Elder, Mrs C..... 1 00
Elder, David 1 00
Eldridge, Mrs E L 25
Elletson, Mrs J..100 00
Elliott, Mrs W A. 5 00
Ellis, H A 2 00
Ells, Geo 64
Elwell, Lena 05
Ely, F G 25 00
Emens, Fred S.... 2 00
Emmett, Mrs Jos. 1 00
Enders, P 1 00
Englebrant, L 1 00
English, Mrs O M 1 00
Eno, Mrs J S 2 00
Ernst, Wm 25
Esmay, M E 25
Estes, Geo 25
Estes, Mrs I..... 1 00
Evans, Nora 12
Everett, E 50
Fagan, Mrs Wm.. 25
Fercher, E 1 00
Fergusou, Hugh.. 50
Ferron, D E and mother 7 00
Filkins, Mrs and Miss 2 00
Filkins, Mrs C E. 1 00
Fisher, Mrs E A.. 1 00
Fisk, Geo A 75
Fisk, John 11
Fisk, Mabel 10
Fleming, Lulu 1 00
Fleming, Mrs S J 2 00
Fletcher, Mrs W. 1 00
Foalman, Mrs R.. 25
Folay, Mary 15
Foote, Mr & Mrs J 2 00
Forman, Mrs J E.10 00
Forrest, Heleu.... 2 00
Fradenburg, P R..10 00
France, Mrs A.... 1 00
Fraleigh, C 1 00
Fraleigh, Miss E A 10
Francis, Mrs D W 10
Frederick, Eva... 10
Free, Mrs A R.... 25
Freeman, A L C E & F E 5 00
Freeman, Carrie.. 1 00
Freeman, J M.... 1 00
Freeman, Mrs J M & Miss L 50
Freemyer, Kate E 1 00
Freiberger, Mrs G 50
Freiberger, Jas... 1 00
Frost, S G..... 50
Fry, Edith A, Coll by 7 00
Fuller, Emma 03
Fuller, John 10
Fults, Mrs H..... 25
Gage, Miss N E.. 25
Gailey, Mrs F R. 05
Gailey, J W 10
Gailey, Mrs J W.. 25
Gallant, Alfred... 25
Gallup, D R 50
Gamsey, E P 1 00
Gannon, Mr & Mrs D J 10 00
Gardiner, C R 1 00
Gardner, G W.... 2 00
Gaston, Mary C... 6 00
Gaul, Miss M P... 10
Gay, Carl 25
Gay, Elisha 1 00
Gay, Florence 1 00
Gay, Francis 30
Gay, Harriet 1 00
Geelan, Miss L.... 1 00
Geer, Belva 10
Geer, Mrs R..... 3 00
Gibbons, Mrs T... 1 00
Gibbons, Willis... 1 50
Godfrey, Mrs A... 3 00
Goller, Miss A.... 1 00
Gordon, Mr & Mrs D 1 00
Gordon, D H 1 00
Gordon, Miss H.. 25
Gordon, Mrs J H. 25
Gordon, Revilo D. 1 00
Gordon, Mrs W.. 26
Gorman, Mamie... 25
Gould, J S 2 00
Graham, Miss F.. 1 50
Graham, M 1 00
Graves, Marjorie.. 1 00
Gray, Miss M P.. 50
Green, Mrs Jos... 1 00
Greene, W H S.. 2 00
Gribbin, Jno H... 50
Gridley, Mrs G & Mrs F Humphrey 1 00
Griffin, Mrs B.... 05
Griswold, Gertrude 2 00
Guinther, N 50
Guiles, S..... 17
Gulley, Royal 1 00
Gumaer, Mrs 25
Gumaer, Harry... 05
Gunning, A H 2 00
Guy, I M 05
Hagaman, C A ... 2 00
Haight, E J 1 00

NEW YORK—Cont'd.

Hall, Mrs C..... 1 00
Hall, F 25
Hall, Mrs G..... 1 00
Hall, Chas H.....10 00
Hall, Mrs H..... 1 00
Hall, Jno W 4 00
Hall, Kittie 12
Hall ,Mary J 2 00
Halsted, C S 11 00
Halstead, G W.... 3 00
Hamlin, F D D.. 2 00
Hamilton, Miss A J 1 59
Hamilton, Miss N 1 00
Hamilton, Wm... 1 00
Hammond, O H & Eunice F 2 00
Hand, Mrs F E... 1 00
Hand, Mrs W B. 1 00
Hanford, Mrs C D 5 00
Haulenbeek, Ruth. 3 00
Hanlon, Mrs Jas.. 1 00
Hanson, Peter ... 1 00
Hardy, R T Jr.... 25
Harlon, C A 2 00
Harnier, Henry... 1 00
Harris, F 2 00
Harris, Mrs M E. 1 00
Harrington, Anna. 25
Harrington, Mrs B T 25
Harrington, Frank 05
Harrington, S N.. 1 00
Harvey, Mrs E... 1 00
Hathaway, Mrs M 5 00
Haws, Mrs F A. 50
Hazen, Mrs E ... 1 00
Hazard, Isaac P..10 00
Heal, Sarah..... 15
Hebbard, Miss L.. 1 00
Helmrick, Geo.... 2 00
Hemstreet, Miss G 50
Heuepey, Tessie.. 25
Henner, Jno H.... 1 00
Hent, Amos 1 00
Herrick, Lulu 2 00
Hick, Katie..... 25
Hicks, Mrs N M. 25
Higgins, F W 1 00
Hill, Arthur J.... 2 00
Hill, Mrs H..... 2 00
Hill, H W 1 00
Hill, Mrs H W... 1 00
Hiller, Chas 50
Hilton, Mrs B.... 50
Hirsch, Miss 50
Histead, Ella 30
Hitchcock, Mrs J. 50
Hitchcock, Jno & Willie 1 00
Hitchcock, Mr & Mrs W P 50
Hitt, Rachel, A... 1 00
Hoag, G W..... 50
Hoag, Mrs M G... 10
Hoadley, U R..... 2 00
Hoar, Tessie 25
Hodges, Eleanor H 1 00
Hodskins, Livingstou 64
Hoffman, Annie .. 25
Hogg, Mrs Amelia. 1 00
Holden, Flora..... 1 00
Holden, Mrs R M. 10
Holland, Mrs J & Miss C 3 00
Hollenbeck, Mrs J 35
Holliday, Mrs S D 1 15
Holmer, Mrs W... 2 00
Hood, Harold 10
Horu, Adam 1 00
Horton, I C 25
Horton, Mrs S A.. 1 00
Hosmer, Kate 10
Hover, Laura 1 37
Hoyden, C C 2 00
Hoyt, Mrs C H... 50
Hoyt, Lillian 75
Hubbell, O A 1 00
Hudson, Sarah H.10 00
Hufent, Miss S B. 15
Hull, Miss Caroline, friend & co-worker 1 55
Hull, Mrs H D.... 5 00
Hull, Mrs M J.... 85
Hulse, Mr & Mrs H E 2 00
Humphrey, H W.. 1 00
Hungerford, Jessie 10
Hunt, Mrs E and Mrs Dixon 75
Hunt, Mr & Mrs F V 50
Hurlbut, Harvey & Nancy 2 00
Hurst, Ira 1 00
Husted, Mrs E B.. 1 00
Hutchinson, Mrs A L 1 00
Hutchins, Mrs L A 5 00
Hyde, C G 1 00
Ide, Mrs Chancy.. 5 00
Jacobs, B & F.... 10
Jagger, Mrs A H.. 2 00
Jaquith, C C..... 1 00
Jakol, Emma 25
Jefferds, Ethel.... 12
Jennings, H 2 00
Jewell, Alice 2 00
Jones, Gomer 40
Jones, Mrs M..... 25
Jones, Robt H.... 1 00
Joslyn, Mrs Wm.. 25
Judd, Mrs C 20
Judd, E J 1 00
Kalar, Mrs 10
Keating, Miss M.. 05
Keator, Andrew J. 3 00
Keleghan, Miss F M..... 25
Keller, David 2 00
Kellog, A 50
Kelly, Jno 25
Kelsey, Elisa 2 00
Kemp, Mrs Geo... 2 00
Kent, Mrs J E.... 5 00
Kenyon, Mrs A... 25
Kenyon, A B 25
Kenyon, H O and F S 1 00
Kerhoukson, C E Soc 80
Kidd, E W & two poor little boys.. 3 00

NEW YORK—Cont'd.

Kenyon, Mrs G W 2 00
Kimball, R U..... 2 00
Kimberly, Mr and Mrs E H 1 00
Kiney, Bert 25
Kinnie, Mrs Rose. 3 00
Kling, Mrs S..... 25
Klink, Mrs M..... 1 00
Knickerbocker, G H 1 00
Kniekerbocker, Miss Jane E.... 2 00
Knopfer, Gussie.. 25
Knowles, R A..... 5 00
Koeff, Olga M..... 10
Koerner, Miss A.. 8 00
Kurth, Katherine.. 25
Lalanne, Grace... 25
Lambert, Mrs 50
Lamibeer, Mrs & grandson 1 30
Lang, Dr 20
Lang, Mrs J W... 30
Langley, E Lee... 2 00
Lansing, Gertrude. 2 00
Langtree, Susie... 3 50
Lain, Herbert 27
Larkins, Miss C... 50
Larsen, Lena 11
Lasher, Amandus.. 50
Latham, S H 1 00
Lawhead, Mr and Mrs W H 1 00
Layer, David 7 00
Leader, Fredie ... 2 00
Leary, Jno J 1 00
Lee, Mr and Mrs Edwin 1 00
Lee, Henry A 1 00
Lein, Mrs H C.... 1 00
Leonard, A C 1 00
Leonard, W T 7 00
Lewis, A B 2 00
Lewis, Laura 25
Lincoln, Mrs G B. 1 00
Linffen, Miss A C. 25
Lloyd, Henry C... 50
Loasel, M 15
Locke, C W..... 30
Lockwood, D 2 00
Lockwood, C E .. 25
Lockwood, G W... 50
Lord, Bert 1 00
Lounsbery, Mrs H F 2 00
Lowhead, Mrs F.. 2 00
Luce, Mrs G N.... 50
Lundrigan, M 25
Luther, A 25
Lutton, Mrs S R. 25
Lyman, E S 1 00
Lynch, Miss 25
Lynch, Miss M A.. 25
Lyons, Kate 25
Lyon, Nora 10
Lyon, Wm J 5 00
McAuley, Alice.... 15
McCauley, Lizzie.. 15
McColl, Hugh 2 00
McConaughy, E L 5 00
McConaughy, E C 1 00
McConaughy, F C. 1 50
McConaughy, R L. 50
McConnell, Thora. 50
McEwen, F F..... 25
McGrath, D 25
McKetchnie, A.... 25
McGibben, Mrs A J 1 00
McKenzie, Miss C W 25
McLean, Mrs 15
McMaster, Mrs E. 1 00
McNeil, Mrs H E. 1 00
McNeilly, A 01
McNeilly, H V.... 2 00
McRay, P 2 00
Nabbett, Mary ... 5 00
Mack, Maggie 25
Madison, Harriet.. 1 00
Maguire, Annie... 25
Maguire, Edward. 1 00
Mahon, Patriek... 25
Malcher, Mr A.... 1 00
Mallison, Mrs G.. 10
Mallison, Mrs B... 10
Mallison, Hulda.. 25
Mallory, Mrs 12
Manning, E J 5 00
Mantanot, Mrs H. 25
March, Mrs 25
Marcy, Mrs N 50
Martin, Clara 25
Martin, D M..... 05
Martin, Lovina... 1 00
Marsh, Mrs C G & Mrs John Briggs 2 00
Marsh, Chas 1 00
Marshall, Mr and Mrs A 1 00
Marshall, Rev W. 50
Mason, Mrs A R.. 50
Masten, Z G 2 00
Mattice, Miss G... 50
Matthews, Anna L 40
Matthews, Mrs B. 25
Matthews, Mrs J H 1 00
Maurer, G W 25
Mawle, Geo 2 00
Mealien, Allen.... 05
Mead, Mr Geo 50
Meacham, Miss E. 2 00
Meek, M A 25
Meek, M A, Coll by 1 00
Meridan, Enna ... 25
Merrihen, Mrs C.. 1 00
Merritt, S H 1 00
Metcalf, Mrs Wm. 1 00
Metzger, C C R... 1 00
Metzler, Frances.. 25
Meyers, Mr & Mrs W 1 00
Miles, Gladis 10
Miles, L 1 00
Miles, Mrs L..... 25
Miller, Mrs F..... 50
Miller, Addie 1 00
Miller, Alice..... 1 00
Miller, Mrs A..... 25
Miller, Mrs C M.. 50
Miller, Geo H..... 1 00
Millen, Mrs G H.. 2 00
Miller, Jacob H... 3 10
Miller, Mrs Jos... 25

NEW YORK—Cont'd.

Miller, Lena S..... 2 00
Miller, Robt 1 00
Miller, Mrs R S... 10
Miller, Mrs W..... 50
Milly, W 1 00
Minot, Misses 5 00
Monfort, Mrs J A & Mrs T Hawley 2 00
Montgomery, F .. 1 00
Moss, J B..... 50
Mooney, Fred 2 00
Mooney, Susan.... 1 00
Moor, John 12
Moore, C S 25
Moore, Miss S M.. 2 00
Morgan, Miss C... 1 00
Morgan, Mamie... 25
Morgan, W 25
Morris, Maggie E. 1 00
Morrison, Mrs S.. 05
Morrison, Wm.... 1 00
Morse, Mrs D B.. 4 00
Mortimer, Mrs.... 50
Mosher, Mr & Mrs A 1 00
Mott, Mrs W W.. 1 00
Mower, Hettie.... 25
Moyer, Blanche... 05
Moyer, Miss I 50
Muldoon, Katie... 15
Mullen, Chas 50
Mullens, E 25
Mullens, May 15
Mullin, J R 2 00
Murtha, Jas J.... 25
Myer, Miss M C.. 2 00
Myer, Miss S M... 2 00
Macle, Jno 25
Murray, A M.... 1 00
Murray, J B.... 2 00
Murray, Mrs J B 1 00
Murray, Philip .. 50
Myers, Maria ... 1 00
Myers, Bertha .. 1 00
Myers, Mrs 10
Munn, Elsie 2 00
Mullen, Mrs C... 1 00
Murdock, E 25
Murnan, Patrick. 25
Nelson, Mamie.... 11
Nelson, Miss S F. 15
Neoon, Mrs Kate.. 1 00
Neville, C H 50
Neville, Mrs Jay.. 50
Newkirk, Mrs 15
Newman, E G 5 00
Ney, H 70
Nichols, R 1 00
Nolan, Nellie 25
North, Mrs A 50
—, Northville ... 50
Norton, F F and friends 4 00
Nostrant, Mrs I.. 25
Nearing, Miss A & Mrs C P Ford 2 00
Nellis, Norman .. 1 00
Nelson, A E..... 3 00
Nelson, E E, Glen Cove 1 00
Nesbitt, David .. 2 00
Nevinger, Mrs M 1 00
New, Miss B..... 25
Newell, Mrs C S. 1 00
Newton, H G....20 00
Nichols, Amos .. 40
Nichols, Nannie.. 50
Nicolson, R, Sr.. 1 00
Nims, Kate M... 15
Niver, G 1 00
Nobles, Mrs N... 1 00
Norris, Miss M.. 2 00
Northup, Gertie.. 01
Northrup, Mrs H F 50
Northrup, Mrs J R 25
Norton, Grant ... 1 00
Nowakowski, Miss A 2 50
Noyes, Ray 75
O'Brien, J 25
Olcott, F 2 00
Olmstead, Mrs A.. 50
Orendorf, Mrs C.. 30
Orr, Mrs D M..... 1 00
Orr, Mrs Wm 2 00
Orvis, Leota 10
Orvis, Violet 10
Osburn, Sarah B.. 2 00
Ostrander, C J ... 1 00
Ostrander, Mrs J S 1 00
Ottman, Mrs H W 50
Otty, Mrs Thos... 1 00
Oatman, O L.... 25
Oberlander, Mrs A 50
Odell, H H..... 2 00
Odell, Mrs R.... 25
Olmstead, Mrs & others 2 50
Olmsted, Miss M M 30
Olmsted, R D.... 1 00
Olney, Annie 25
Olney, W G..... 1 00
Olson, Elva 10
Olson, Mis O.... 60
Oram, S H..... 1 00
Os, Rev Mr..... 1 00
Osborn, R & Le R 1 00
Otteway, D 50
Ottaway, Fannie & Mother 30
Overton, Mrs E B & Miss 2 00
Pallister, Mr and Mrs I P 2 00
Palmer, Mrs Clara 1 00
Palmer, Mrs J M. 1 00
Palmer, L H 2 00
Palmer, Miss M.. 1 00
Parker, Emma B. 5 00
Parker, Mrs H.... 1 00
Parker, Mrs K.... 1 00
Parkhurst, Mrs M 1 00
Parks, W N 2 00
Parsons, E 50
Passage, Ernest.. 1 00
Passage, Hall 1 00
Passage, Harriet E 1 50
Passage, John G.. 1 50
Patterson, Annie.. 15
Patton, Mrs M C. 25

NEW YORK—Cont'd.

Patterson, Bertha G 25
Pattison, M B and G B 2 00
Patton, Mr Sam'l. 1 00
Payne, J H 1 00
Payne, Mrs M L.. 2 00
Pearse, Mary 25
Pearson, W C.....10 00
Pease, Mrs 25
Peckham, Mrs I... 1 00
Peebles, V F 5 00
Perkins, Mrs 25
Perkins, David... 1 00
Perkins, Miss W O 10
Perkey, Mrs J.... 56
Peters, C 25
Pettys, C 50
Petteys, R 50
Phelps, Miss A B. 1 00
Phelps, E R 1 50
Phillips, Mrs F... 2 25
Philips, Jas 2 00
Pickard, M E 1 00
Pike, U 42
Place, Mrs H F... 2 00
Planck, Chas N... 2 00
Platte, Miss J F.. 10
Platts, Rev Wm.. 1 00
Plummer's, R S, family ..... Mrs E Whittleton ..... Mrs E Ward .... D Plummer 3 00
Polly, Mrs J B.... 1 00
Porter & McCumber 50
Post, Mrs M..... 2 00
Potts, P F 5 00
Powell, Mrs D E.. 3 00
Powell, Rev E P.10 00
Powell, Mrs S J.. 1 00
Powers, Mamie ... 25
Pratt, Mrs John... 25
Pratt, Lena 05
Pratt, Miss P 1 00
Pratt, Proctor.... 17
Pratt, Mr & Mrs W 1 00
Pratt, W L..... 5 00
Puff, Mrs E..... 05
Putnom, Julia L.. 1 00
Page, Mrs I C.... 75
Palmer, Bertha .. 50
Palmer, Mrs J C. 30
Palmer, L N..... 1 00
Palmer, Mrs N O 50
Palmer, Mis R... 10
Pangborne, Mrs L 10
Pangborne, Robt. 10
Parish, J E..... 1 00
Parker, Marcus . 1 00
Parker, M L & T A 2 00
Parker, M W.... 1 00
Parker, Mrs 25
Parmelee, E M... 50
Parsons, S H.... 2 00
Pattison, Ambrose 25
Pea Brook S Sch 1 00
Peck, Wm S & M C 4 00
Peckham, Ellen J 45
Peckham, Fred . 25
Pedley, A J..... 2 00
Peivec, Mrs John. 1 00
Penuey, Mr & Mrs M F 2 00
Penz, Mrs 25
Perring, Robert . 50
Personeus, Rev & Mrs C B..... 2 00
Petsinger, Mrs N W 20
Pettet, C 10
Petzolat, Mrs H. 1 00
Phillips, A 2 00
Pierce, Mrs 10
Pierson, Mrs E... 3 00
Pierson, E H.... 2 00
Plaisted, Mrs E H 3 00
Plaisted, Mrs T.. 1 00
Platt, E S..... 2 00
Platt, Mrs F.... 50
Pocock, Harry .. 25
Pocock, Kate ... 25
Porter, Mary A. 1 00
Pollard, H E.... 50
Pollock, H M.... 2 00
Post, Miss Alice. 75
Powell, Eli M.... 2 00
Powell, Mary E.. 1 00
Pratt, Mrs C.... 1 00
Prentice, John A 1 00
Prichard, Hosia.. 45
Prichard, Jushua. 25
Prichard, Roscoe. 25
Prichard, Z 25
Pulver, Mrs Jane. 6 95
Putman, C M & Son 2 00
Putnam ,Clyde E 1 00
Quackenbush, J H 1 00
Quiggle, Mrs E M 25
Ralston, Mrs O W 1 00
Randell, Mr 10
Rango, L 1 00
Rankin, Agnes A. 3 00
Ranney, F E..... 1 00
Ranscher, Mr J.. 30
Rasel, P 40
Rawley, G H.... 1 00
Raymond, Mrs C.. 05
Rector, Floyd 25
Reddish, Mrs 25
Reddish, Estelle.. 25
Reed, Celia 25
Reed, R 20 00
Reese, Mrs G N. 1 00
Reeve, Miss M J.. 2 00
Reid, Mary A.... 1 00
Reid, Miss N.... 05
Reifsteck, Mrs L. 25
Reilly, Miss J.... 05
Reissig, Rev E....10 00
Revans, Minnie.. 25
Reynolds, Eva ... 1 00
Reynolds, Mrs H 2 00
Rice, Mrs A B.. 1 50
Rice, W L..... 1 00
Richardson, L.... 1 00
Ricketts, Mrs P deP 2 00
Risedorf, Miss M 1 00

NEW YORK CITY

Adler, Mrs 50
Ahrens, Henry .. 50
Archer, Mrs T... 50
Berksler, W N & Mrs S M Waugh 5 00
Birchard, H H... 1 00
Bjerregaard ,Mrs A P 5 00
Blumenthal, F & M 56
Brandt, Mrs H.. 50
Butcher, Carrie.. 10
Clank, M 25
Doan, Mrs J C.. 1 00
Gibson, Edna & Ruth 2 00
Goodspeed, Mrs M A 5 00
Horton, Edna .. 1 00
Horton, M 1 00
Karaghensian, M. 2 00
Mathez, Miss A.. 50
Mathez, Fritz ... 10
Nicholson, Miss B 5 00
Richards, R H...20 00
Schwarz, H W... 1 00
Segler, Mrs B.... 2 00
Sidmau, Mrs 2 00
Siedenburg, Rhd.25 00
Simous, H 5 00
Stein, Miss F... 1 00
Warner, J W.... 5 00
Watson, Nellie .. 1 00
Whitney, C J.... 1 00
Wood, M, N Y..10 00
E A M 2 00
H T G C, N Y C 2 00
J H 2 00
—, Brooklyn.... 1 00
—, Brooklyn ... 2 00
—, N Y C.....100 00
—, N Y C..... 1 00
Cash, New York. 50
Friends, N Y C.. 6 43
Friends, N Y C.. 3 25
I H N, N Y C...35 00
I H N, N Y C... 2 50
A Sister in Christ, Brooklyn 1 00
Methodist 2 00
A cheerful giver, N Y C..... 5 00
Magnolia Metal Co, Coll by, N Y C. 1 50
House of the Lord Mission, N Y C. 3 61
Bapt Ch of Redeemer, S Sch, N Y C.....14 00
Swedish M E S S, N Y C..... 5 00
Silver Cross, N Y C 623 35

OHIO

Adams, G L 25
Allen, D G 1 00
Allen, Mrs S..... 1 00
Alt, Mrs C M..... 1 00
Ammon, Jno 20
An, Minnie 50
Anderson, A B ... 10
Anderson, Mrs ... 25
Andress, Harry... 25
Andress, Upton... 25
Appel, Geo M..... 2 00
Armstrong, Mrs A E 80
Armstrong, H A.. 25
Aten, Mrs Llde... 50
Aten, Miss Mary. 35
Atkins, Mrs P D. 1 00
Atkinson, Prof A A 1 00
Baer, L G & G D. 2 50
Baker, Aaron 05
Baker, W O 10 00
Baldwin, E R 1 00
Balmer's, F, children 1 55
Barber, Ira 50
Barrett, Mrs R & Mrs M & Miss A M 2 00
Bates, Mrs 3 50
Beall, Ida 2 00
Bell, John 5 00
Bell, Miss N 10
Bell, Miss Pearl.. 07
Berkey, Clara 1 00
Berry, E M 1 00
Biddison, C L 1 00
Blels, Mrs G 50
Bliflbimer, Clara. 50
Biflbimer, Mrs H. 50
Blugman, Martha E 1 00
Bingman, Wm H.. 1 00
Blair, Mrs E A... 1 00
Bliss, Mrs G J.... 1 00
Bloom, Mrs J..... 1 00
Boerstler, Elton S 1 00
Borden, Mrs A... 1 00
Borcland, S S.... 50
Botdorf Mary S... 1 00
Botkin, Caroline.. 10
Bowles, F O 5 00
Boyles, Mrs M E. 1 41
Brady, Mrs D J... 25
Brandt, W E 5 00
Bridge, Mrs 50
Britton, Sam'l 25
Brooks, Mr & Mrs I J 2 00
Brooks, Mrs S J.. 4 49
Broreln, Mrs 1 00
Brouse, Alice and Nettie Naylor .. 1 00
Brown, J D 2 00
Brown, Mrs J F.. 50
Brown, W H 50
Buell, Chas 1 00
Burner, G W..... 1 00
Burnet, Mrs D.... 25
Burnham, A 2 00
Burt, Mark 5 00
Butler, Mrs Julia. 1 00
Butters, Miss A... 15
Butters, Mrs El'a. 50
Butters, Dan'l ... 25
Butters, Mrs M... 25

OHIO—Cont'd.

Butters, Miss N... 25
Bymer, Mrs S.... 2 00
Byres, Mary A... 5 00
Calahan, Mr 50
Campbell, G A.... 1 00
Canter, O M 26
Carding, Mrs N M 50
Carey, Sue A..... 50
Cavitt, E Leroy & Ina M 1 00
Cavitt, Mrs W E. 1 00
Chaney, Wm 18 60
Cheney, E V & W A 2 00
Chester, H G 1 00
Chivers, Howard.. 1 00
Clark, J R 25
Click, Edw F..... 10
Cliffe, Belva 25
Cliue, J H 1 00
Cole, A 50
Collier, R 1 00
Collins, Wm 2 50
Cope, Mrs Ida J S 3 00
Cope, J Eda 14
Cope, L R 5 00
Cotton, N L 2 00
Cox, Miss Ethel... 50
Crabbs, Harold R. 1 52
Craig, C C 1 00
Cranz, Miss Kate.. 1 00
Creath, M M 2 00
Crites, Cinderella. 25
Critser, J T 25
Critsen, J W..... 25
Cross, Carloe ... 50
Crow, Chas 25
Culbertson, Ida... 2 00
Cummings, Mrs A 50
Cummings, Dan'l. 25
Cummings, Mrs J 25
Cummings, Geo A. 10
Davis, E M 3 00
Deininger, Ed 60
Dunfee, Laura ... 1 00
Dershem, E 10
Deweese, Geo W... 50
Dick, Mrs Allie... 48
Dick, Anna 1 00
Dick, Dwight C... 50
Dickson, Mrs D.. 25
Doty, D F 1 00
Dunkle, Prof Ell.. 1 00
Dye, Alice B..... 25
Dye, C G 25
Eakins, John 1 00
Easton, C O 1 00
Eby, Miss Jesse... 60
Edwards, Faye.... 10
Edwards, Mrs S.. 25
Edwards, W J ... 2 00
Eggleston, A 50
Eichelberger, E... 75
Eichelberger, Jos. 3 00
Evans, D J 1 00
Evens, K 1 00
Ewing, Blanch & Pansy 25
Farmer, Lucy 1 00
Fawcett, Mrs Dr C L 3 00
Fee, Mrs 25
Fee, Mrs Sarah & Paul Troxell ... 1 20
Feldwieh, Fred.... 1 00
Fetter, J F..... 25
Flester, Dr H A.. 5 00
Fike, John B..... 1 00
Fike, J D & wife. 85
Finney, J F 50
Finney, T 1 00
Fisher, Hugo and Gertie 1 00
Fledderjohann, Dr H F 2 00
Foman, L J 1 00
Foote, L H 10 00
Force, A D 1 00
Ford, Chas 25
Fowler, M F 5 00
Freed, J M 2 00
Freese, W L..... 1 25
Freneh, J H 25
Frlbley, Mrs P... 1 00
Fross, Bessie, Coll by 1 00
Gatlin, Wm G 1 00
Garrison, E J..... 2 00
Garst, Fern 35
Garst, Flossie 20
Garst, Robt 11
Gatch, Jennie L..10 00
Gayer, Wesley.... 50
Gebhart, C 2 00
Gilmer, Arthur .. 50
Gimpel, Mr & Mrs George 5 00
Gist, C D 1 00
Glass, Mrs 1 00
Glazier, L H..... 1 00
Goldsbury & Coe.. 1 00
Graveson, Ella ... 1 00
Gray, Mrs Jas.... 1 00
Green, Mrs Burt.. 1 00
Grier, Mrs A 25
Griffith, Mrs R H. 5 00
Griggs, J F 1 00
Grimes, Jos 25
Gromes & Link... 1 00
Grubb, P R 5 00
Guerney, Mrs L... 50
Hackworth, W T. 1 00
Hackedorn, J 50
Halter, Mrs Ella. 25
Hannan, K 25
Hartzler, Jonathan 3 50
Harveys, Mrs J... 1 00
Hassenpflug, C R.. 1 00
Hatton, Mrs C... 50
Hawn, Miss Sue.. 1 00
Hazen, Mrs I R.. 2 00
Headapohl, John.. 3 00
Helser, Mrs A.... 50
Helman, Miss E... 50
Helman, Mrs E E. 1 00
Henshen, H 1 00
Henson, Prof C C. 1 00
Hesse, Stanley & Hazel 2 00
Hewitt, Peter 1 00
Hibbard & Co, C.. 1 00
Hiser, Miss A..... 19
Hiser, Dan'l 10
Hiser, Miss Jennie 05
Hoelsher, E 1 00

OHIO—Cont'd.

Hoffman, Mrs G.. 2 00
Holcomb, Thos ... 5 00
Holt, Adam 05
Holthamp, H..... 4 00
Hoover, Prof Wm 1 00
Horstman, Ida ... 5 00
Howard, Emma... 1 00
Howat, Robt 2 00
Hubbard, Mrs W. 1 00
Huff, Nanie 1 05
Huffman, L C 2 00
Hummel, J E 5 00
Humphrey, Mrs S 1 00
Ireland, K H..... 2 00
Jarvis, Will 25
Jester, S 1 50
Johnson, W M.... 25
Jones, David N.... 1 00
Jones, Mrs D and friend 2 00
Jones, J Edward.. 5 00
Jones, Isaac 2 00
Kattmann, T H... 25
Keck, Jenuette E 1 00
Kee, Myra 1 00
Kelley, Bernice... 05
Kelley, Mrs Nell.. 25
Kellogg, S 25
Kennard, W 25
Kenuedy, H C.... 1 00
Kerr, Jane E..... 1 00
Keyes, Rev M J.. 6 00
Kibbey, Mabel ... 3 90
King, Richard.... 1 00
Kirk, J B & wife.. 2 00
Kirk, Jas C..... 1 00
Kirkland, G O.... 50
Kirkland, Mrs G O 50
Kneisley, Mrs C.. 25
Knight, E W..... 1 00
Koogle, Mrs S.... 1 00
Krauter, Ella 50
Krauter, Fred 75
Kranter, Nettie... 25
Lamb, Miss H E. 1 00
Lash, Vera 10
Lawrence, L W.... 50
Leggett, Miss E F 2 00
Lewis, Mrs J..... 25
Linder, Roy 2 00
Lincker, Geo H & sister 1 00
Linton, Miss 5 00
Little, Mrs L..... 25
Logan & Co, E C. 1 00
Lonedecker, Olivia B 1 00
Lure, Cal 1 00
McAfee, Mrs M... 25
McAlister, Mrs A. 25
McCandish, Mrs.. 1 00
McClellan, D H... 50
McClellan, Elmira 1 00
McCune, S L..... 50
McKee, W H 1 00
McKelvey, A T... 2 00
McKever, Jas E.. 1 00
McLaughlin, Mrs Lavina 1 00
McMann, Irwin... 50
McMann, Mrs M.. 1
McMann, Miss S. 25
McMann, Wm..... 25
McVay, Mrs W W 1 00
Mace, Daisy 50
Mach, Mrs F J... 2 00
Mack, Ellen 3 00
Malze, Mrs C..... 1 00
Mallory, J H..... 50
Maples, P 50
Martin, G E 15 00
Mathews, Miss.... 25
Mattes, F H 1 00
Mauk, Mrs Rev... 5 00
Maurer, M A 5 00
Meese, Mrs Katie. 1 00
Mellott, L 25
Merwin, Mrs W.. 1 00
Messerly, Mrs A.. 2 50
Metsger, Wm 30
Metsger, Mrs 25
Miller, E 50
Miller, Mrs E A.. 25
Miller, Miss F M.. 10
Miller, Jno L..... 50
Miller, Mr 50
Miller, Mary M.... 2 00
Millikin, E 1 00
Milliken, L 50
Milliken, Mrs 50
Milliman, Prof L D 1 00
Rev B Mitchell & C L Wharton, Coll by 224 00
Molder, Mrs G.... 50
Moore, C O 50
Moore, Mr & Mrs F C 5 00
Moore, Stannton T 1 00
Mosley, F 50
Moss, M 25
Motteyan, E la ... 1 00
Motteyan, Mary... 1 00
Murphy, Miss M.. 10
Murphy, Mrs O... 25
Murphy, Geo P... 25
Murphy, Geo W... 25
Murphy, Mrs S... 25
Muskoff, Sam 3 00
Naylor, Webster.. 25
Nelson, A T 25
Nelson, Henry ... 1 00
Nesbitt, M P..... 2 00
Newcomb, J W ... 5 00
Newman, Wm ... 50
Newsome, Mrs C S 1 00
Nichols, Mr & Mrs J 1 00
Norris, Thos 5 00
Oberlin, Mary 1 00
Oliver, Mrs 10
Ong, A P..... 2 00
Onston, L C 50
Onston, F H 1 00
Opperman, Geo .. 10
Opperman, Henry. 25
Otto, Lizzie 50
Page, Mrs Emma. 25
Palm, Mrs N E... 1 00
Palmer, Mrs H... 85
Palmer, Mrs S H.. 1 00
Parr, Anna M 1 00
Parsons, Mrs S M 3 00

OHIO—Cont'd.

Peoples, N 1 00
Potter, W L 1 00
Plenger, Lucretia. 5 00
Powers, Dr & Mrs A M 5 00
Pownall, A P 50
Pownall, A T 1 00
Pownall, Chas ... 50
Pownall, Dove 25
Pownall, I M 1 00
Powuall, Mrs J W 1 00
Pownall, S 25
Preston, J L 1 00
Putman, Geo 1 00
Quillin, W 1 00
Raley, Fayc 2 00
Ralttman, S 1 00
Ray, Mrs Mina L. 1 00
Rhoads, Miss M... 25
Richard, Carrie... 10
Richard, Lena ... 10
Rigden, Mr & Mrs Wm F 2 00
Rinehart, E 25
Ripley, M A 1 00
Roach, A L & Son 1 00
Roach, Cora 25
Roach, R W 50
Rodgers, Mr & Mrs W E 50 00
Root, Mrs C 25
Roscoe, Mrs F.... 10
Rose, J B 1 00
Rosemond, Fred L 5 00
Rothtrock, L 50
Roush, H 1 00
Russell, C C..... 1 00
Russell, L E.....10 62
Sargeant, Mrs J.. 1 00
Schamp, Jas 1 00
Schwarztrauber, B G 10 00
Schweuck, Sam .. 50
Shaffe, Anna 1 40
Sharp, F A & Mr & Mrs A Carter. 3 00
Sharp, Mrs J M, Coll by 4 00
Shaw, Vera T 2 00
Sheldrick, I 25
Shepper, Mrs C... 1 00
Sherff, Mrs A.... 25
Shields, S C 2 00
Sibert, Henry 1 00
Sisley, Mrs H..... 50
Sisley, Mrs M..... 25
Sisley, Reasou 25
Sisley, Walter ... 05
Sisson, S M..... 1 00
Slutts, Mrs Ann. 1 00
Smidt, Wm 20
Smith, Carl W.... 5 00
Smith, Dr I N.... 1 00
Smith, R W..... 1 00
Sourei, Mrs 10
Stafford, Clara .. 1 00
Stafford, G H.... 25
Stedman, F C.... 1 00
Steinmetz, Mrs A 1 00
Stevens, B E.....10 00
Stigimie, Mrs N. 25
Storey, Wm 5 00
Strimple, Mrs J... 40
Super, Dr C W... 1 00
Sutterbien, E ... 50
Switzer, Jennie . 10
Taggart, J W.... 2 00
Taylor, Mrs S A 1 00
Thompson, Saml . 3 00
Tiffiny, Ellen C.. 25
Townsend, G ... 1 00
Ulrich, L E..... 1 00
Ulrich, Mr & Mrs W E 2 00
Van Auker, Mrs S 2 00
Van Horn, J H.. 5 00
Wagar, John 1 00
Waggoner, Mrs C 1 00
Waggoner, J H... 1 00
Wagoner, Alta & Friends 13 00
Waite, Sarah 1 00
Walker, G R..... 50
Warrick, Retta .. 25
Weaver, L J..... 25
Wells, C M.....1 00
Wells, O V..... 2 00
Wells, Thos H...50 00
Westervelt, D ... 25
Weston, W P.... 1 00
Weston, Mrs W P 1 15
Whaler, N L..... 2 00
Whipple, C H.... 5 00
White, Francis .. 2 00
White, Mrs M .. 1 00
Wilford, Mrs John 1 00
Williams, Mrs D. 2 00
Wilson, F C..... 1 00
Wilson, Prof H R 25
Wilson, Mary J.. 1 00
Winbigler, Mrs C R 1 00
Wirthwine, E T.. 2 00
Wise, Mrs A W.. 50
Wise, G M..... 40
Wiseman, C F... 1 00
Wood, Judge J M 1 00
Wood, Mr Palmer 1 00
Woodbury, M E..10 00
Morris, Isaac S..18 00
Zenner, Henry .. 1 00
Zimmerman, J F.. 2 00
Zoschke, E G..... 1 00
Yelsly, W H & family 3 75
Yoder, J A..... 5 00
—, —..... 1 00
Jacob, Dublin .. 1 00
A H B, Windham 5 00
Mrs A O A, Collinwood 1 00
E G W, Willorghby 10 00
H L, Radnor..... 1 00
Mrs H L A, Austinburg 1 00
H M & O M K, Columbus 2 00
J B, Creston ... 2 00
J H C, Delphos. 1 00
J W C, Fairpoint 1 00
K S N, Dayton.. 1 00
Mrs P S A, & little son, Claridon 1 20

OHIO—Cont'd.

L A Y, Creston. 50
R B, Ada 25
U B S S, Van Buren 3 60
W H D & W A J, Rising Sun 2 00
W W S, Creston. 2 40
—, Alliance 2 00
—, Ashtabula ..10 00
—, Austinburg . 1 00
—, Cincinnati .. 2 00
—, Ft Recovery 2 00
—, Greensburg . 25
—, Kipton 2 93
—, Mahoning .. 50
—, Sulphur Spgs 5 00
—, Urbana 1 00
—, Warrenton . 1 00
Friends, Berlin Heights 5 00
2 Friends, Cleveland 6 00
Frieud, Dayton.. 1 00
Friends, Lindenville 1 75
Friends, Lockland 3 50
Friend, Ontario . 10
Friend, Ontario . 5 00
Friend, Williamsfield 20
Friend, Youugstown 2 00
Friend, Kath R..20 00
I H N, Browuhelm 2 00
I H N, St Clairsville 1 00
Anou, Marietta .. 1 00
School Children, Berlin Heights.. 2 60
People of Carbou Hill 7 00
A checrful Giver, Knoxville 07
People of Osborne10 00
People of Prairie Depot 17 00
A cup of cold water, Prospect... 25
Priv Contr, Shanesville 45
Sidney Presbytery contribution ...20 00
Residents of Rathbone, coll by F Southard 10 40
Additional, Utica.10 85
M E Ch, Agosta. 8 00
Ref'd Ch, W Alexandria 7 21
Pres Ch, Ottawa.15 60
Ref'd Ch, Canal Fulton 10 00
Ger Piltisteu Ch, Chatfield 46 25
Un Presby Cong, Cherry Fork ..46 58
Pres Cu, Chicago.21 89
Gospel Sunshine Miss B'd, Cleveland 5 00
Presby Ch, Deersville 10 00
Lutheran Cong, Faith 5 16
German Bapt Ch, Franklin Twp...11 00
Mt Gilead Ch....38 00
Cong Ch, Gustavius, ... 5 25
Blessing Chapel, Jeffersonville .. 4 30
Ref'd Ch, Johnsville 4 62
Mem's of Church, Plain City 2 00
Feed Spgs Presby Ch, Tappan ... 5 00
Mrs W's, S S Cl, Austinburg 2 50
Bay Shore Un S S, Toledo 3 00
Hope Chapel S S, Mt Blanchard . 5 55
2 youngest classes of Schaff R S S, Brooklyn 1 20
M E S Sch, Buckeye Cottage ... 1 00
1st Bapt S Sch, Greenville 10 00
Grange Hall Miss S Sch, Lancaster 6 51
Inter & Prim Schs, Lilly Chapel .. 4 68
Trozer Valley S S, Shanesville 1 00
Ref S S, Shanesville 5 00
Christian S S, Ted10 05
Jr C E Soc, W Alexandria 1 00
Christ'n End Soc, W Alexandria..12 50
Epw League, Amherst 11 11
Jr C E Soc, Austinburg 1 50
Ladies Aid Soc of Presby Ch, Blue Ball 7 40
Dorcas Soc, Ger M E Ch, Bucyrus 5 00
A Kgs Dau, Elkton 1 00
Womans Home & For Miss Soc, 2d Presby, Newark.16 76
Va Ridge Lit'y Soc, Philo 5 78
For Miss Meeting, Wyoming 30 00
Y P Soc's Lanesville 12 78

VIRGINIA

Abernathy, W .. 50
Abshire, Mrs H.. 05
Adams, Roy 76
Aleorn, Mrs J H. 1 00
Amiss, Rev J H.. 2 00

VIRGINIA—Cont'd.

Armentrout, J M. 3 00
Arthur, Ethel V.. 1 75
Astor, Miss M M 10
Atwood, Mrs E H 1 74
Baker, E 1 00
Baldwin, W G.... 5 00
Barlow, C B..... 05
Barlow, D L.... 25
Barlow, Miss S E 10
Barnett, Kate & Florence 35
Bentley, Robt E, Jr 1 00
Bentley, R E & wife 1 00
Birckhead, Mrs M 1 00
Bispham, Mrs N C 1 00
Boon, Mrs May.. 10
Booth, Stegemau. 1 00
Bowers, Mabel .. 25
Bragg, Mrs M H & R Wright... 6 00
Briscoe, Lula ... 25
Brooks, John D.. 2 00
Bruffey, Georgic. 5 60
Bullard, Mrs W E 1 00
Burward, J & fds 3 18
Carbangh, Mrs .. 25
Carper, Mrs & H 1 00
Carr, Mrs Elen... 1 00
Cary, Mrs Francis 05
Chambers, Eva .. 1 00
Chapmau, Mrs H B & Mrs M M & Miss M M Armstrong 1 00
Clark, Mrs J..... 1 00
Clarke, F A..... 25
Clarke, Scott 1 00
Cook, Miss Sarah 25
Couder, I 1 75
Coudrey, B 35
Coudrey, Mrs W. 50
Craver, Mrs Wm 4 15
Crocker, Rev W A 1 00
Cullard, James C 10
Dabbs, Mrs M & Mrs W L Oliver 2 00
Danner, Rosa 05
Davenport, Mrs M E 1 00
Davis, Cath'ne A. 50
Davis, C W..... 50
Davis, Mrs David 1 00
Davis, L F..... 50
Davis, Laura H.. 5 00
Delaplane, Mrs C C 2 50
Dellastatius, Mrs V F 1 00
Dinkle, Mrs L A. 2 00
Diggs, Thos A.... 1 00
Dooley, Stella .. 05
Downing, Ferdic. 25
Downing, Herbt.. 25
Drake, Mrs G W 20
Duke, Mrs Lou & J F 2 00
Dungau, L J..... 25
Dungan, Mrs J W 50
Dungan, Mrs ... 1 00
Dunnavant, Mrs J 50
Dyorly, Reta 10
Ensoe, F S..... 1 00
Evans, Kate 1 00
Ewart, A M..... 25
Ewart, E V..... 15
Ewart, D O..... 25
Ewart, L H..... 15
Ewart, S I..... 20
Faulconer, Mr & Mrs & Aubrey.. 36
Foote, Mr & Mrs Wm 50
Ford, Mrs Jas A. 5 00
Trainham, Rev C W 2 00
Frankland, Mrs .. 25
Fray, Mrs R B.. 1 00
Frowed, R S..... 2 00
Funk, E W.....10 00
Garrett, Mrs F.. 25
Garst, Mrs Bell.. 10
Garst, Marvin ... 10
Gillian, J H..... 1 00
Good, Miss Maud. 2 00
Goodman, Annie. 1 00
Goodman, L V... 1 00
Green, Miss Belle 3 25
Gunn, Ethel 05
Gunn, Eustice .. 05
Gunn, Mrs S P.. 50
Hall, Mrs T H... 1 00
Hambrick, R 05
Hammack, Mrs A C 2 00
Hamner, Mrs J G 1 00
Hardaway, B B, Coll by 2 55
Harris, Ernest .. 10
Harris, Lewis .. 10
Harris, Rich'd .. 10
Harris, Sallie ... 25
Henderson, F T.. 2 75
Hickman, C P... 1 00
Hockman, J W.. 1 50
Hudson, M B.... 5 00
Hurst, W H..... 1 40
Hutchins, W 4 00
James, Mrs M C. 1 00
James, Richard.. 5 00
Jeffries, Rev J M 20
Johnston, Mrs D. 1 00
Jordan, H C..... 2 00
Killinger, Mr & Mrs A P..... 2 00
Killinger, Miss H F 1 00
Killinger, Miss M 1 00
Killinger, Mrs R. 50
Lewis, D R..... 1 00
Lewis, Mrs D R. 20
Lilly, Miss Susie. 65
Lindsay, Mr & Mrs C E 1 00
Lindsay, R W.... 2 00
Linn, Miss Anne. 50
Love, Ella M.... 3 00
Luck, Julia 10
McKiney, Mrs L B 1 00
McLaughlin, Mabel 25
Maphis, D W.... 1 00
Markli, Frank A. 25
Markli, Jennie .. 25

VIRGINIA—Cont'd.

Markli, L S..... 25
Melens, W H L.. 1 00
Miller, Mr & Mrs C W 2 00
Miller, Miss N... 5 00
Minor, M W.....10 00
Moore, Ethel 3 00
Moore, Goldie ... 2 25
Moorman, Mrs T B 50
Morris, D 05
Morris, J D..... 10
Morris, Mrs Marg 10
Morris, Orie 10
Morton, Mr Miller 05
Newbill, N B..... 50
Newbill, Susan M 1 00
Newman, N P.... 25
Pace, Mrs S B... 1 00
Parker, Maud L.. 1 20
Parker, Mrs 10
Patterson, T H... 49
Pettus, W T.... 1 00
Poff, Z 25
Pope, S A.....50 00
Powers, Mrs J B 1 00
Prescott, Mrs D H 25
Prukard, Andrew 05
Pugh, S E..... 1 00
Reise, C 05
Richards, Mrs J S 1 00
Robertson, J I.... 25
Robertson, Mrs M C 25
Robinson, Miss M 05
Rogers, Philip ... 25
Rogers, W S.....10 00
Rose, Given 05
Rose, Leland & Edna 2 20
Rose, Mollie 05
Rose, Paul' 02
Rouse, A H..... 50
Shaver, H S..... 1 00
Shaver, L E..... 1 00
Shertzer, Mrs ... 1 00
Slagle, M J F... 25
Smith, L S..... 1 00
Spencer, T H & J G Bailey 2 00
Spiers, Mrs M A. 1 00
Steele, Miss Ida.. 50
Stephens, Joe ... 1 25
Stout, Mrs J A.. 2 50
Sydnor, G Milton 1 00
Taylor, W H & J Hungerford .. 2 00
Tazewell Bapt Ch 2 70
Teasley, T E.... 1 00
Thomas, Mrs J H 1 50
Tidd, Mrs H..... 50
Tatum, Mrs W P 2 00
Trussell, C W... 1 00
Trussell, Jennie.. 1 00
Tucker, Eva 60
Turner, G 90
Van Deman, Mrs H E..... 1 00
Wade, Mrs A C. 1 00
Watson, Mrs 25
Watts, Harry ... 25
Watts, Robt 10
Weaver, Miss A.. 10
Whaley, Mrs J W 25
White, Mrs Annie 1 00
Willett, Stephen. 1 00

MISCELLANEOUS

Anderson, Mrs R 1 00
Anthony, Jacob.. 25
Apgar, Mrs C.... 25
Bailey, L L, Wellsboro 5 00
Bain, Walter & Howard, North-Chatham 1 00
Beatty, Mrs E... 25
Beatty, Mrs J.... 25
Beatty, Mrs Wm. 25
Blackwell, Dr ... 25
Collins, Mrs R... 25
Fleming, Ruth .. 05
Hann, Alfred ... 25
Hendershot, Mrs Mgt 30
Hopler, Mrs G... 25
Kenick, Mrs M D 1 00
Klingler, R S..... 2 00
Marsh, Laura E. 1 00
Meiner, F G, Jr. 3 00
New, Mrs Abner, No Chatham .. 1 00
Noble, Rev C F, No Chatham .. 2 00
Petty, Mrs Jno.. 25
Shaver, Mrs L & Mrs A La Farree, Hill West.. 1 00
Silvester, Mrs E. 1 00
Slater, Mrs A... 80
Sliker, Hazel 05
Smith, Mrs I.... 1 00
Trent, Mrs A L. 1 00
Venneta, Sam 15
Vanderzee, J, Troy 25
Widner, Mrs G.. 25
Wiseburn, Jacob. 25
E, —— 50
E D, Troy 1 00
F M D, —— 1 00
S M G, Sycamore 14
Cash, Chatham .. 1 00
A Friend, ——.... 2 00
Friend, —..... 10
Friends, —..... 2 00
Anon, —..... 50
Three Sisters, —— 2 00
To God's Own, Balto 1 00
—, —..... 50
—, —..... 50
—, —..... 1 50
—, —..... 1 00
—, —..... 15
—, Crookston .. 1 00
—, Crookston .. 1 00
—, Elizabeth .. 1 00
—, Hampton .. 20
—, Harrisonville. 25
—, Hastings ... 25
—, Millbrock .. 1 00
—, Telluride .. 1 00

THE CHRISTIAN HERALD

LOUIS KLOPSCH, PROPRIETOR

T. DeWitt Talmage
EDITOR.

B. J. FERNIF AND G. H. SANDISON,
Associate Editors

The Christian Herald is published every Wednesday. The subscription price is $1.50 per year, payable in advance.

Subscriptions may commence with any issue.

Remittances should always be made in the safest manner available to the remitter. Post-office and Express Money Orders are always safe and may be sent at our own risk.

Register your letters when you remit by cash.

Foreign Postage.—For each copy to be mailed outside the United States, the Canadas, and Mexico, foreign postage at the rate of one dollar a year should be added to the regular subscription price.

Renewals.—It is always best to renew two weeks before the date on your wrapper, to ensure uninterrupted service.

Back Numbers.—We cannot undertake to supply back numbers, nor to make good omissions caused by tardy renewals.

Change of Date.—It takes two weeks to change the date, after your subscription is renewed.

Expiration of subscriptions. The date on the wrapper indicates when your paper will be stopped unless promptly renewed.

Change of Address.—Always give both your old and your new address when you ask us to change your address.

The Name of your Post-office and of the State you live in should always follow your own name when writing to this office. We cannot find your name on our books unless this is done.

The Christian Herald will not be responsible for the return of unsolicited manuscripts forwarded to it with a view to publication.

Letters should be addressed

THE CHRISTIAN HERALD,
Bible House, New York City.

Entered at the Post office at New York, as Second-class Matter

Summer Rest

OVERWORK is a sin. God gives to every man a certain amount of work, and he does not want him to do any more than that. "Do thyself no harm" is advice no more appropriate to the jailer when the prison is tumbling around his ears, than it is appropriate to those the wards of whose health and the fastnesses of whose strength begin to tremble with the earthquake. Paul was very careful of his body; long before the days of expressage, he sends hundreds of miles for his great-coat to Troas.

Bound to Meet

THE fact that most of the marriages are, taking all things into consideration, fit to be made, convinces us that they are divinely arranged. Almost every cradle has an affinity toward some other cradle. They may be on the opposite sides of the earth. But one child gets out of this cradle and another child gets out of that cradle, and with their first steps they start for each other. They may diverge from the straight path, going toward the north or south or east or west. They may fall down, but the two rise facing each other. They are approaching all through infancy. The one all through the years of boyhood is going to meet the one who is coming through all the years of girlhood to meet him. The decision of parents as to what is best concerning them, and the changes of fortune may for a time seem to arrest the two journeys. But on they go. They may never have heard of each other, but the two pilgrimages which started at the two cradles are nearing. After eighteen or twenty or thirty years the two come within sight. At first glance they may feel a dishke, and they may slacken their step. Yet something that the world calls fate, or that religion calls Providence, urges them on and on. They must meet. They come near enough to join hands in social acquaintance, after awhile to join hands in friendship, after awhile to join hearts. The delegate from the one cradle comes up the east aisle of the church with her father, the delegate from the other cradle comes up the west aisle of the church. The two long journeys end at the snowdrift of the bridal veil. The two chains made out of many years are forged together by the gold link which the groom puts upon the third finger of the left hand. One on earth! May they be one in heaven!

WHERE OUR FAMINE SHIP'S CARGO WENT

The Missionary Committee Reports as to its Apportionment in the Famine Provinces of India—The Food Joyously Welcomed—The Distribution of the One Hundred Thousand Blankets

FROM the Interdenominational Missionary Committee, in Bombay, we have received a full account of the apportionment of the Quito's cargo of 5,000 tons of grain contributed by THE CHRISTIAN HERALD readers in behalf of the famine sufferers. An account of the individual distribution in the various districts by the missionaries will be received and published later. The apportionment report which is signed by the Rev. E. F. Frease, Secretary of the Committee, is as follows:

* * * * * *

"The Executive Committee of THE CHRISTIAN HERALD Interdenominational Famine Relief Committee met at the Grant Road Methodist Episcopal Church parsonage, Bombay, June 9th and 11th, all the members being present, and proceeded immediately to consider the question of the apportionment of the cargo of the S. S. Quito.

"The Committee heard all representations and communications, and considered the applications submitted in response to the inquiries sent out. After full consideration and discussion the following apportionment was made of the 97,730 sacks, one cwt. each (i. e., 112 lbs. per sack, and 20 sacks per ton), constituting the cargo:

APPORTIONMENT BY SACKS

		Sacks
Specially designated to the Mennonite Mission		4,000
American Missions
Methodist Episcopal Missions	Gujarat, Rajputana, Southern Punjab, Central Provinces, Berar, and Deccan.	32,000
Christian and Missionary Alliance	Khandesh, Berar, Gujarat,	13,350
American Board Mission, Deccan		9,500
Disciples Mission, Central Provinces		4,500
American Lutheran Mission, Guntur		3,300
American Baptist Telegu Mission		7,000
American Presbyterian Mission, Southern Marathi Country		880
German Evangelical Mission, Central Provinces		1,100
Free Methodist Mission, Berar		220
Other Missions
United Presbyterian Mission, Rajputana		4,800
Canadian Presbyterian Mission, Central India		2,200
Irish Presbyterian Mission, Gujarat		7,000
Irish Presbyterian Jungle Tribes Mission, Panch Mahals		1,200
C. M. S. Mission	Bhill Mission, Kherwara, Rajputana	2,000
	Nandubar, Khandesh	220
	Nasik	220
	Aurangabad	220
	Mandla, Central Provinces	220
Free Church Mission, Jalna (Hyderabad)		220
Swedish Evangelical Mission, Central Provinces		880
Kurku and Central India Hill Tribes Mission		660
German Evangelical Lutheran Mission (Gossner's)		440
Total		96,130
Reserved stock		1,600
Grand Total, sacks		97,730

"The Secretary and Treasurer was authorized to publish a statement showing the apportionment of the cargo as above, and as soon as possible a statement of the distribution of money received this year from THE CHRISTIAN HERALD. The question of the distribution of provided by the fund was taken up. As these blankets are for use in the imminent rains it was ordered that there be only limited present apportionments to districts where the rain comes late in the year. Following this action and the principles of distribution already mentioned, the blankets were apportioned as follows:

THE 100,000 BLANKETS

		Blankets
American Missions
Methodist Episcopal Missions	Gujarat, Rajputana, Southern Punjab, Central Provinces, Berar, Deccan,	35,000
Christian and Missionary Alliance Missions	Gujarat, Khandesh, Berar,	15,000
American Board Mission, Deccan		12,000
Disciples Mission, Central Provinces		6,000
American Presbyterian Mission, Southern Marathi Country		880
German Evangelical Mission, Central Provinces		1,100
American Presbyterian Telegu Mission		4,000
American Lutheran Mission, Guntur		2,000
Free Methodist Mission, Berar		250
Other Missions
United Presbyterian Mission, Rajputana		4,800
Canadian Presbyterian Mission, Central India		2,500
Irish Presbyterian Mission, Gujarat		7,000
Irish Presbyterian Jungle Tribes Mission, Panch Mahals		1,200
C. M. S. Bhill Mission, Kherwara Rajputana		1,000
C. M. S. Mission, Deccan		800
Free Church Mission, Jalna, Hyderabad		200
Swedish Evangelical Mission, Central Provinces		1,000
Kurku and Central India Hill Tribes Mission		1,000
The German Evangelical Lutheran Mission (Gossner's)		500
Total		96,230
Reserve stock		3,770
Grand Total		100,000

"The firm of W. & A. Graham & Co. stated to the Committee that they would receive and clear the cargo, charging merely actual expenses incurred. The Port Trustees voluntarily agreed to remit wharfage dues."

* * * * * *

In a letter dated from Camp Baroda, June 15, Secretary Frease says:

"The Executive Committee of THE CHRISTIAN HERALD Famine Relief Fund met on the 9th and 11th of June in Bombay, and spent almost the two whole days in the distribution of the cargo of corn and of the one hundred thousand blankets. I enclose herewith copies of the printed reports of the proceedings of the Committee. In addition to the printed reports, action was taken requesting the Secretary to draft a letter of thanks to yourself, the staff of THE CHRISTIAN HERALD and its readers for the munificent gifts which have been contributed and sent for famine relief; and also to the United States Government for its part in sending the cargo of corn.

"In considering the division of the cargo of corn the Committee has indicated in the report, it heard carefully the representations of parties present, and considered in detail the applications presented. The serious emergency in Gujarat, and the need of Rajputana, were brought emphatically before the Committee, and it was decided that a large portion of the corn should be assigned to those regions, and less should go to regions where the famine is less acute."

Christian Workers to Meet

Mr. W. R. Moody writes Them to Gather in Conference at Northfield — His Father's Work Continued

FOR twenty years Christians have gathered at Northfield for fellowship and Bible study. God has shown his special favor upon these gatherings, and many testify to the blessing they have received.

In recent years the burden of my father's prayer has been for a general revival. The answer to these prayers is being realized with the close of the century, and the reports of widespread blessing are but an earnest of still greater tidings. "I know how much better it would be for me to go, but I believe we are on the eve of another revival like that of '57, and I want to have a hand in it," were the words with which he answered the summons to withdraw from active work last fall. God seemingly gave his servant a phophetic vision of the conquests of the Cross in the beginning of the twentieth century before taking him to be with himself. To the human leader of former years has been awarded the fulness of joy in the presence of his Master; to us who remain is given the privilege of continuing in active service.

In preparation for this work Christians are feeling the need of spiritual blessings upon themselves individually and upon their churches. To wait upon God for such blessing is the purpose of this conference, and the prayers of Christians are earnestly requested in behalf of this object—not only of those who attend the conference, but of all who sympathize with its purpose and desire the extension of God's kingdom.

No human agency can account for the results of these gatherings; and although keenly missing my father's presence this year, it is with confident assurance in the same Source of unfailing strength in whom he ever relied that I extend a cordial invitation to Christians to meet at Northfield, Mass., as formerly, from August 2 to 20. Many of the leading teachers of former years are to be present, including Rev. F. B. Meyer, London; Rev. G. Campbell Morgan, London; Rev. William Newman Hall, Dublin; Rev. Henry G. Weston, D.D., Chester, Pa.; Rev. A. T. Pierson, D.D., Brooklyn; Rev. C. I. Scofield, D.D., East Northfield; Rev. T. S. Hamlin, D.D., Washington; Rev. J. F. Carson, D.D., Brooklyn; Dr. Peyton Hoge, Louisville, Ky.; Rev. Wilton Merle Smith, D.D., New York; Rev. R. A. Torrey, Chicago; Rev. H. C. Mabie, D.D., Boston; Mr. R. E. Speer, New York.

During a part of the conference, one hour will be reserved for instruction in the International Sunday School Lesson, and normal methods of teaching same, conducted by Rev. R. A. Torrey, of Chicago, Ill. and Mr. Hamilton S. Conant, secretary of the Massachusetts Sunday School Association. Another special conference for those interested in Young People's work will be in charge of Mr. John Willis Baer and other leaders of that work. Mr. William H. Stanes, Nilgris Hills, India, will conduct special meetings for children. Music will be in charge of Messrs. Ira D. Sankey and George C. Stebbins, assisted by Mr. F. H. Jacobs.

In the words of Saint Paul's prayer in behalf of the early church, this invitation is extended "that the Father of our Lord Jesus Christ would grant us, according to the riches of his glory, to be strengthened with might by his Spirit in the inner man; that Christ may dwell in our hearts by faith; that we, being rooted and grounded in love, may be able to comprehend with all saints what is the breadth and length and depth and height, and to know the love of Christ, which passeth knowledge, that we might be filled with all the fulness of God."

W. R. MOODY.

Queen Victoria at Church

The Queen's Sunday is a real day of rest. In her chapel, the Queen's seat is placed slightly in advance of the others, and has before it a table, on which are placed her prayer and hymn-books. Nobody dreams of leaving before the Queen has quitted the chapel. Her Majesty has even now a sweet singing voice, and invariably joins in the hymns.

THE BIBLE AND THE NEWSPAPER

Our New Battleship

MORE than common interest has been aroused in our new battleship, the Kentucky, which, with her sister ship, the Kearsarge, will constitute an important addition to our navy. The chief matter of public concern in these two ships is that a new principle of armament is employed on them the value of which is disputed by several members of the Board of Construction. The ordinary plan adopted on turret-ships is to have two turrets, one forward and one aft, each carrying two guns of the heaviest calibre on the ship. Besides these there are four turrets, one at each corner of the central armed citadel amidships, each carrying two guns of smaller calibre. This arrangement gives a very powerful fire at an object either ahead or astern. But it was found on trial that the firing of the guns in the turrets to the right and left of the chief turret affected the officers in the latter, interfering with their sighting arrangements. It was therefore decided, in building the Kentucky to dispense with two of the four turrets carrying the smaller guns and to place the remaining two on a higher level than the chief turrets. The result, according to the advocates of the system, is to get rid of the interference with the chief turrets, and by having them revolve independently of the chief turrets, increase the efficiency of their fire. The system, which is now known as that of "superposed turrets," places the Kentucky and the Kearsarge in a class by themselves. After a lengthy discussion of the advantages of the new system, the Board of Construction did not feel so thoroughly convinced on the subject to order all five of our new vessels to be constructed on this principle, but to have three of them with superposed turrets and the other two on the old system of a turret at each angle of the central armed citadel. The only question in dispute is, of course, which system renders the ship the more destructive, that being the supreme object to be attained. Under present conditions, such an object must be kept in view; but it is a barbarous purpose, which will be discarded in that better time when men will live together in peace and Christ will reign over the whole earth:

And the battle bow shall be cut off and he shall speak peace unto the heathen and his dominion shall be from sea even to sea and from the river to the ends of the earth (Zech. 9:10).

Long-separated Sisters Meet

An interesting meeting of two ladies occurred recently in Brooklyn, N.Y. They were two sisters who had not seen one another in twenty-five years. Their father served as sergeant in a New York regiment during the Civil War. He was afterward employed on the New York police force, but his home life was unhappy and he finally deserted his wife and her two children and went West. The deserted wife made a hard struggle to support herself and her daughters, but was eventually obliged to put the children in charitable institutions and soon afterward she died. Both the children were adopted by respectable parents and were carefully educated, but never saw or heard from one another. One of them, whose home was in Brooklyn, received a considerable fortune from her foster parents and at once began a search for her sister. She advertised and employed detectives to trace her, but for three years the search was vain. One claimant did appear, and as she was very poor and very crafty, she succeeded in getting money, food and clothes from the seeking sister, by pretending to be the missing woman. Recently, however, the imposture was exposed by the discovery of the genuine sister. A friend of the father of the girls had kept track of one of them and when he casually heard that the other was seeking her, he put them into communication and each sister instantly recognized the other by their likeness to their dead mother. It would be well if Christians always recognized each other by the same means. Neither creed nor profession is so good a test of sonship as are the disposition and character which in the true Christian are reproductions of the Divine image.

Whom he did predestinate to be conformed to the image of his Son that he might be the firstborn among many brethren (Rom. 8:29).

To Read Invisible Writing

New uses for the famous Roentgen rays are continually being found. The latest application of them is in the examination of ancient manuscripts and palimpsests. It was a custom of the ancients to erase, or partially erase, manuscripts on parchment for the sake of the writing material, parchment being high priced. In many cases the recovery of the erased writing is of far greater interest and importance than the later writing over them. While certain chemicals have been used to render the letters of the older writing legible, their effect has generally been to destroy the manuscript sooner or later. An Italian who has made a deep study of the inks used by ancient scribes, has discovered that many of them are opaque to the X-rays and that good radiographs may be made showing the now almost totally invisible writing with great distinctness. Happily for some of us, no such process will be applied to the writing of our past lives, which we remember only to mourn over and which has been blotted out by the blood of Christ.

I have blotted out as a thick cloud thy transgressions and as a cloud thy sins (Isa. 44:22).

When Doctors Disagree

In its legal column the New York Sun calls attention to a remarkable will case just decided by the Court of Appeals. It appears that the matter in controversy was the construction of a single paragraph in a will. After quoting it, Judge Werner observes that to the lay mind its language might seem to be simple, unequivocal and even conclusive. "But under the microscopical scrutiny of the trained legal mind," he continues, "it becomes a subtle thing of doubtful and mysterious import, which requires analysis by a process which, for want of a better name, is called construction." The Judge then proceeds to construe the testamentary clause in accordance with the opinion of the court below and adds: "In the expression of these views we have intentionally refrained from the citation of authorities, because the principles by which this case must be governed are so well settled as to be elementary; and in the application of these principles each case must rest upon its own peculiar facts." After reading this declaration as to the extreme simplicity of the case, it is somewhat surprising and amusing to find that two out of the seven Judges of the Court of Appeals were in favor of deciding the other way. These were Chief Judge Parker and Associate Judge Denis O'Brien. Thus even in a case pronounced simple to the lay mind and elementary to the legal mind, there is difference of opinion. It is often so in questions of theology, but it is matter for thankfulness that, whatever differences there may be as to creed, the matter of conduct is clear and unmistakable.

It shall be called the way of holiness; the wayfaring men, though fools, shall not err therein (Isa. 35:8).

A Physician's Warning

Some persons have expressed the fear that the excavations for the great tunnel, now begun in New York, may lead to a great increase of the germ diseases in the city, such as malaria and typhoid fever. A doctor who has devoted himself to the study of bacteriology was asked recently whether there was any substantial foundation for such fears. He replied: "I do not think that there will be a marked increase in any of those diseases from that cause, but I should advise residents along the line of the excavations to have a care of their eyes and finger nails. Germs arise from excavations that attack these two points, and we have already had several epidemics of iritis and conjunctivitis around localities where fresh earth was being thrown up. Within three years there has been a severe epidemic of conjunctivitis which was traced to excavations on Fifth avenue, and I remember that when they were tearing up the West Side to put in a new cable system I had a run of patients with sore fingers caused by the infection of hangnails by a germ. Two or three of these cases, which were left unattended too long, resulted in the loss of the finger from suppuration. In general, however, the finger-nail ailment is trifling, though very annoying. Once fairly started, it spreads very rapidly. The eye trouble is more serious, as it attacks those chiefly who do brain work, and incapacitates them from work for varying periods. I shall look for an epidemic of this sort when the tunnel is well under way. The safeguard is to wash the eyes frequently in salt water, and if any foreign substance gets into the eye to refrain from irritating it by rubbing, as the organ, once irritated, presents a prepared field for the germ." It would appear that the best precaution is cleanliness and care that no irritating germ remains long enough on the person to get into the blood. The same care is recommended by the Bible writers as necessary to spiritual health.

And to keep himself unspotted from the world (James 1:27.)

THE NEW U. S. BATTLESHIP "KENTUCKY," WITH THE SUPERPOSED TURRETS

A Boy's Decision

A press dispatch to the New York journals from Altoona, Pa., describes the remarkable nerve of a fifteen-year-old boy. He was out in the woods a few days ago, to the west of that city, picking berries. He had done a fair day's work and was about to return with the results of his labor when he noticed at a short distance some remarkably fine berries that he had overlooked. He crossed over and was just gathering them when there was a sudden rattle, the gleam of two yellow eyes and a sharp pain in one of his fingers. The boy knew instantly what had occurred. He had been bitten by a rattlesnake. There was some big stones near at hand and he hurled one after another at his assailant until the head of the snake was crushed. Then he examined his finger and saw where the fangs had penetrated. He was far from help and he knew his danger. With Spartan courage he took out his pocket-knife and cut the finger at the second joint, severing it completely. He bound the wound with his handkerchief and hurried to Altoona, where the injury was dressed. Few boys would have had the courage to apply a remedy so heroic, but he evidently believed that it was the only way to save his life. It is a pity that when the soul is in danger people have not always the courage to break the habit or sever the connection that places them in peril, though Christ said it should be done even if it was as painful as cutting off a hand.

It is profitable for thee that one of thy members should perish and not that thy whole body should be cast into hell (Matt. 5:30).

BRIEF NOTES

At the recent meeting of the directors of the American Bible Society, the Rev. John Carington presented the Board with a copy of the Bible in Siamese, which he said was the first ever made.

The famous old elm at Wilmington, Mass., under which Whitefield preached, has been cut down. It was struck by lightning two years ago and since then has been a menace to life. The trunk two feet from the ground had a circumference of sixteen feet.

The meetings of Christian Endeavorers in London have been a great success. A cable message says that both in Alexandra Palace and in Albert Hall the American and English flags were intertwined. A warm welcome was accorded Dr. F. E. Clark, who narrowly escaped being among the massacred missionaries in China.

The movement among French Roman Catholic priests still continues and names of prominent converts to Protestantism are being added to the list. The French Christian publishes in a recent issue the names of three vicars of important parishes in Marseilles, who have abjured Romanism. The number of priests who have left the church during the past two years is said to be over three hundred.

Great interest has been aroused in medical circles in Germany by the discovery by Dr. Otto Emmerich, of Baden-Baden, of a specific against morphia poisoning and that peculiar form of disorder known in Germany as "morphinismus." It is a distilled vegetable oil of intense acidity. A few drops taken internally every day soon produce a condition in the patient removing all desire for the morphine needle.

Recently published statistics of the condition of the Methodist Episcopal churches in Greater New York show that there are now sixty-six Methodist churches in the boroughs of Manhattan and The Bronx, with a total membership of 16,240; in the boroughs of Brooklyn and Queens, eighty churches, with a membership of 22,496; in the borough of Richmond, ten churches, with 2,080 members. The total for the whole city is 156 churches, with a membership of 40,825, being a gain of 391 since 1899. The probationers number 3,631, a gain of 248. The estimated value of the church property is $8,680,400, on which the indebtedness is $1,410,941.

The many friends of Dr. F. C. Iglehart, of Newburgh, N. Y., will be thankful to hear of the providential preservation of his life and that of many members of his church and Sunday School in circumstances of extreme peril. About seven hundred persons connected with Trinity Methodist Episcopal Church were returning on July 11 from an excursion to Kingston Point, when, owing to a signal being mistaken, the boat on which they were was driven against the pier and crushed. Through the coolness and presence of mind of Dr. Iglehart and one or two of his church officers, a panic was averted and every one on board was safely taken ashore. They were taken on the roof of a building near the pier, from which they descended by a ladder.

Around the World with Josiah Allen's Wife

COPYRIGHT, 1899, BY MARIETTA HOLLEY

CHAPTER XXXIV.

ILLUSTRATIONS BY H. M. PETTIT

Samantha Meets a Princess

WELL, our party visited the Exposition nearly every day, only we older ones stayed to home once in awhile a day to recoop-erate. But as a general thing, the seen wuz so enchantingly beautiful, that we forgot that there wuz such a thing as weariness and sorrow in the world.

And, of course, we all wanted to visit the most noted sights of Paris outside of the Exposition. And all on us fell in love with the gay, bright, beautiful, happy city—though Josiah fell in with French ways more than I did, owin' to his constant strivin's after fashion. Why, I didn't know but he would git to drinkin' whilst he wuz there, observin' the French custom of drinkin' their light wines at their meals.

He intimated that he should most probable have cider on the table in bottles when he got home. "You know," sez he, "that there is a hull box of old medicine bottles to the barn."

But I told him that nothin' stronger than root beer, made by my own hands out of spignut and sassparilla should ever be sot on my table. But I may see trouble with him in that way. Whilst we wuz talkin' about it, I brung up to illustrate the principles I wuz promulgatin', the ivory tankard Arvilly pinted out to us in the American exhibit.

It wuz a big ivory tankard holdin' enough liquor to intoxicate quite a few. Two big, nasty, wreathin' snake (signifyin' the contents on't in my mind), dominated one side and made the handle, and held the laurel wreath surroundin' it (signifyin' office-holders, so I spozed). in its big hungry mouth. On top of the hull thing stood a rarin' angry brute, illustratin' the cap stun and completed mission of the whiskey bottle.

Arvilly talked more'n half an hour to Miss Meechim about it. and I wuz glad on't.

But when I brung that up, Josiah waved the subject off with a shrug of his shoulders in the true French way, though a little too voyalent.

I had ketched him practicin' that movement of the shoulders before the glass. He had got so he could do it first rate, I had to own to myself, though I hated to see him practice it so much, mistrustin' that it wuz liable to bring on his rumatiz.

Josiah as a Linguist

And I see in a letter he writ home: "Be sure, Ury, and weed the jardin, specially the onions," and he ended the letter: "Oh revwar, mon ammy."

I knowed that it would make Ury crazy as a hen, and Philury, too, wonderin' what it meant, but couldn't break it up. But speakin' of "jardins," we went to several on 'em, the last one we see the most beautiful seemin'ly of the lot. Jardin de Luxemburg Palais Royal, Tuilleries, Acclimation, Jardin des Plantes. There are hundreds of 'em scattered through the city, beautiful with flowers and shrubbery and statutes and fountains and kept in most beautiful order and bloom at public expense.

And we visited cathedrals, missions, churches, museums, the sewers, libraries, went through the galleries of the Louvre—milds and milds of beauty and art, as impossible to describe as to count the leaves in Josiah's sugar-bush or the slate stuns in the Jonesville creek, and as numerous as if every one of them leaves and slate stuns wuz turned into a glorious picture or statute or wondrous work of ancient or modern art. I hain't a-goin' to try to describe 'em or let Josiah try, though he wouldn't want to, for he whispered to me there in a sort of a fierce whisper: "Samantha Allen, I never want to set my eyes agin on another virgin, if I live to be as old as Methulesar or a saint." Well, there wuz sights on 'em, but they looked real fat and healthy, the most on 'em; I guess they enjoyed good health.

And one afternoon when the sky wuz blue, the sun shone and the birds sung merrily, we went to that dretful place, the Paris Morgue. There wuz a crowd before the doors, for the Seine had yielded a rich harvest that mornin'; there wuz five silent forms, colder than the marble they lay on, one a young woman with long hair falling about her white shoulders. Amongst the crowd that pressed forward to look at that unfortunate wuz a bent, haggard form that I thought I recognized. But if it wuz a father watching and waiting in dretful hope and still more dretful fear for the best beloved, I couldn't tell, for the crowd pressed forward and he disappeared almost before I saw him. And I too wuz agitated, for when I catched sight of the clustering hair, the pretty rounded arms and form, an awful fear clutched my heart and I trembled like a popple leaf and I see Dorothy turn white as a sheet and Arvilly and Miss Meechim looked like them that sees a tragedy and so did Robert Strong and Josiah.

Copyright, 1900, by Louis Klopsch, N. Y.

ENCOUNTERING ELDER WESSEL ON THE STREET IN PARIS

A Father's Vain Hunt

But a closter look made us know that it wuz no one that we ever see. It wuz not the dear one who wuz in our hearts day and night, it wuz not our sweet Aronette and it wuz not Lucia. Poor father! doomed to hunt in vain for her as long as his tremblin' limbs could carry him to and fro under foreign skies and the sun and stars of his own land. Poor seekin' eyes, turnin' away at the very last from visions of green pastures and still waters to look once more down the sin-cursed streets of earth for his heart's treasure! Dying eyes, dim with a black shadow, blacker than the shadow of the Valley, cast from Agony and Sin, sold to the crazed multitude for its undoing by sane men for the silver of Judas. Love stronger than life, mightier than death, never to be rewarded here. But we read of a time of rewards for deeds done in the body. At whose dying beds will these black forms stand, whose shadows torment humanity, to claim their own and go out with them to their place they have prepared here for their soul's dwelling? Hard question, but one that will have to be answered.

Robert Strong and Dorothy wanted to visit the Pantheon; specially the tomb of Victor Hugo. It is a great buildin' with a dome that put me some in mind of our own capitol at Washington, D. C. It is adorned with paintings and statutes by the most eminent artists and sculptors, and the mighty shades of the past seem to walk through the solemn aisles with us, specially before the statute of Victor Hugo. I felt considerable well acquainted with him, havin' hearn Thomas J. read his books so much. And as I stood there I had a great number of emotions thinkin' what Victor had went through from his native land from first to last: abuse, persecutions, sent off and brung back, etc., and I thought of how his faithful Toiler of the Sea went through superhuman labors to end in disappintment at last. And Jean Valjean, the martyr, seemed to walk along in front of me patiently guardin' and tendin' little Cossette who wuz to pierce his noble, steadfast heart with the sharpest thorn in the hull crown of thorns—ingratitude, onrequited affection, and neglect.

And we stood before the Column Vendome and meditated on that great, queer creeter, Napoleon. Who but he would think of meltin' the cannons he had took in battle from his enemies and makin' a triumphal monument of 'em a hundred and forty feet high, with his own figger on top.

Among the Tapestries

Well, Miss Meechim wanted to see the Goblin tapestry, so we visited the Goblin manufactory. These tapestries are perfectly beautiful, fourteen thousand shades of wool are used in their construction. What would Sister Sylvester Bobbett say? She thought the colors in her new rag carpet went ahead of anything, and she didn't have more'n fourteen at the outside, besides black and but-nut color. But fourteen thousand colors—the idee!

Yes, we rid through the marvelously beautiful streets under triumphal arches and more warlike ones and visited all the most beautiful sights in the city and the adjacent country, and who do you spoze I met as I walked along in the Bois de Bolougne? It wuz the Princess Ulaly. The rest of our party wuz some little distance off and I wuz santerin' along charmed with the beauty about me when who should I meet face to face but Ulaly. Yes, it wuz Ulaly Infanty.

I wuz highly tickled, for I considered her a likely young woman and sot store by her when I met her to home at the World's Fair. She knowed me in a minute and seemed as glad to see me as I wuz her, and I sez to her most the first thing after the compliments wuz passed, "Who would have thought, Ulaly, when we parted in Chicago, U.S., that the next time we should meet would be in Paris?"

"Yes, indeed!" sez she, "who would have thought it." And I went on to say, for I see she looked real depressed:

"Ulaly, things hain't come out as I wanted 'em to; I felt real bad about it after your folks sold their jewelry to help discover us. I dare presume to say they have been sorry time and agin that they ever found us, and I wouldn't blame 'em, for as Josiah sez to me:

Remembering Columbus

"'Where would we be to-day if it hadn't been for Columbus? Like enough we shouldn't been discovered at all.' Sez he, 'Most probable we should be Injins.' But don't lay it to Josiah or me, Ulaly, we hain't to blame, we didn't do a thing to bring on the trouble. Of course we remembered the Maine some, we had to, and your folks couldn't blame us for it. Josiah and me felt real provoked and mortified to think that after folks had gin their jewelry to discover us they should blow us up in that way. But I sez to Josiah, 'Because three hundred are sent onprepared into eternity it hain't no reason three thousand should be.' We are great cases for peace, Josiah and I be, and would have managed most any way, even been run on some and imposed upon a little ruther than to have rushed into the onspeakable horrors of war.

"And I don't want you to blame William, either; he held onto the dogs of war with both hands a tryin' to hold 'em in."

"William?" sez she inquirin'ly.

"Yes, William McKinley our President. He jest held onto them dogs till they wuz likely to tear him to pieces, then he had to leggo. Them dogs wuz jest inflamed by havin' yellow literatoor shook in their faces, and yells from greedy politicians and time servers, till they wuz howlin' mad and would have barked themselves blind if he hadn't leggo. But he didn't want to, William didn't, he wanted peace dreadfully." And she said real sweet, that she knew he did

"Well, it turned out jest as it did, Ulaly. But I think just as much of you as I did before you lost your propputy, and I d'no as the propputy Uncle Sam got hold of in the dicker is a goin' to do him much good, not for quite a spell anyway. There is such a thing as bein' land poor, axes are heavy, hired help hain't to be relied on and the more you have the more you have to watch and take care on, though of course it is a pleasure to a certain set of faculties and some particular bumps in your head, to own a path as you may say, most round the world, steppin' off from California to Hawaii and then on to the Philippines, ready to step off from there. Heaven knows how fur or when or where. It is a pleasure to a certain part of your mind, but other parts of your head and heart hold back and don't cheer in the procession. But howsumever, Ulaly, that is neither here nor there. I hope your folks are so as to git round. I wuz sorry enough to hear that you and your pardner don't live agreable. But though it is a pity, pardners have had spats from Eden to Chicago and I d'no but they always will. The trouble is they take pardners as boons instead of dispensations, and don't lean hard enough on Scripter.

ARVILLY SEES THE TANKARD

Good-by to Ulaly

"But this is not the time or place for sermons on how to be happy, though married. How is Christina and Alfonso? I'm afraid he's gittin' obstropolous, and I d'no but Christina will have to give him a good spankin' before she gits through. Of course, spankin' a king seems quite a big job to tackle, and of course he's pretty old for it. But it don't do to let children have their heads too much. One good spankin' will strike in truth when reams of sermons and tearful expostulations will fail. You might just mention to Christina what I've said, and then she can do as she wants to with fear and tremblin'."

But I see my folks passin' down a distant path, and I sez: "I will now bid you adoo, Ulaly, as time and Arvilly and Josiah are passin' away." She bid me a real pleasant good-by, and I withdrawed myself and jined my folks.

One day the hull of our party visited Fontainbleu and went through the apartments of kings and queens and popes and cardinals. The rooms of Napoleon wuz full of the thrilling interest that great leader always rousted up, and always will, I spoze, till history's pages are torn up and destroyed. And in the rooms of Marie Antoinette we see the lovely costly things gin to this beautiful queen when the people loved her, and she, as she slept under the beautiful draperies gin by the people, never dreamed, I spoze, that the hands that wrought love and admiration into these fabrics would turn on her and rend her.

But Marie didn't do right. Carelessness, oppression, neglect of the peoples' rights, a few grasping the wealth of the nation while the people suffer and starve, weave bloody colors into the warp and woof of life from Paris to New York and Washington, D. C., and so on to Jonesville. And we went through the apartments of Louis Philippe, Francis I., Louis XIII., etc., and Madam Maintenon's apartments and Diana de Poyters, and see her monogram decorating the apartment interwoven with the king's. I hated to see it, but couldn't do nothin' to break it up at this late day. Miss Meechim walked through these apartments with her nose in the air, having sent Dorothy into the garden with Robert Strong and Tommy, and Arvilly wouldn't cross the threshold, and I didn't blame her, though havin' my lawful pardner by my side I ventered.

But Arvilly led off into the beautiful gardens, where we found her settin' with Robert Strong and Dorothy and Tommy by the fountain.

We wanted to explore the forests of Fontainbleu, but only had time for a short drive through it, but found it most picturesque and beautiful what we see of it.

Bein' such a case for freedom, Arvilly wanted to see the Column of July riz up on the site of the old prison of the Bastile. And I did, too. I felt considerable interested in this prison, havin' seen the great key that used to lock up the prisoners at Mount Vernon—a present to our own George Washington from that brave Frenchman and lover of liberty, Lafayette.

A brave man held in lovin' remembrance by our country, and I spoze always will be, as witness his noble statute gin by our school children to France this present year. That his statute and G. Washington's should be gin to France by America, and that Josiah Allen's wife and Josiah should also be permitted to adorn their shores simeltaneous and to once, what a proud hour for France!

Copyrighted, 1900, by Louis Klopsch, N. Y.

IN THE GREAT GERMAN TOY EXHIBIT

Well might she put her best foot forrerd and act happy and hilarious!

But to resoom: The last afternoon of our stay in Paris, Arvilly and I went to see the Column of July, accompanied by my pardner, Miss Meechim and Dorothy havin' gone to a matinee, and Robert Strong havin' took Tommy with him to see some interestin' sight. And I had a large number of emotions as we stood there and thought of all the horrows that had took place there, and see way up on top of the lofty column the Genius of Liberty holdin' in one hand the broken chains of captives and holdin' up in her other hand the torch of liberty.

But I methought to myself she's got to be careful, Liberty has, or that torch will light up more'n she wants it to. Liberty is sometimes spelt license in France and in our own country, but they don't mean the same thing, no, indeed! We hung round there in that vicinity seein' the different sights, and Josiah took it in his head that we should take our supper outdoors; he said he thought it would be real romantic, and I shouldn't wonder if it wuz. 'Tennyrate, that is one of the sights of Paris to see the gayly-dressed throngs happy as kings and queens, seemin'ly eatin' outdoors. Lights shinin' over 'em, gay talk and laughter and music sparklin' about 'em.

Well, Josiah enjoyed the eppisode exceedingly, but it made it ruthur late when we started back to the tarven through the brightly lighted streets and anon into a more deserted and quiet one, and on one of these last named we see a man, white-headed and bent in figger walkin' along before us, who seemed to be actin' dretful queer. He would walk along for quite a spell, payin' no attention to anybody seemin'ly, when all at once he would dart up clost to some young girl, and look sharp at her, and then slink back agin into his old gait.

A Strange Recognition

Thinkses I is he crazy or is he some old fool that's love sick. But his actions didn't seem to belong to either of the classes named. And finally right under a lamp post he stopped to foller with his eager eyes a graceful, slim young figger that turned down a cross street and we come face to face with him.

It wuz Elder Wessel—it wuz the figger I had seen at the morgue—but, oh, the change that had come over the poor creeter! Hair, white as snow; form, bowed down; wan, haggard face; eyes sunken; lookin' at us with melancholy, sombry gaze that didn't seem to see anything. Josiah stepped up and held out his hand, and sez: "Elder, I'm glad to see you, how do you do? You don't look very rugged."

He didn't notice Josiah's hand no more than if it wuz moonshine. He looked at us with cold, onsmilin', onseein', mean; some like them same moonbeams fallin' down on dark, troubled waters, and I hearn him mutter:

"I thought I had found her! Where is Lucia?" sez he.

The tears run down my face onbeknown to me, for oh the hunted haunted look he wore! He wuz a portly, handsome man when we see him last, with red cheeks, iron-gray hair and whiskers and tall, erect figger. Now he had the look of a man who had kep' stiddy company with Death, Disgrace, Agony and Fear—kep' company with 'em so long that he wuz a stranger to anybody and everybody else.

He hurried away, sayin' agin in them

A VISIT TO THE LOUVRE

same heart-breakin' axents: "Where is Lucia?"

Arvilly turned round and looked after him as he shambled off.

"Poor creeter!" sez she. Her keen eyes wuz full of tears, and I knowed she would never stir him up agin with the sharp harrer of her irony and sarcasm if she had ever so good a chance. Josiah took out his bandanna and blowed his nose hard. He's tender-hearted. We knowed sunthin' how he felt; wuzn't we all, Dorothy, Miss Meechim, Arvilly, Robert Strong, Josiah and I always, always looking out for a dear little form that had been wrenched out of our arms and hearts, not by death, no, by fur worse than death, by the two licensed Terrors whose black dretful shadders fall on every home in our land, dogs the steps of our best beloved ready to tear 'em away from Love and from Safety and Happiness.

(To be continued).

I Will Obey

So long I trod the fields of Doubt,
So long my poor feet wandered in
The purple paths that wind without
The borderland of earthly sin!
So long, with heart by misery drained,
I waited for His lips to say:
"Love's sacrifice is not disdained.
Come now!" He said: "Come and Obey!"

So long upon the mountain side
I hung, too spent with woe and strife,
And noonday's glare to open wide
My closed heart to Light and Life.
So long the crimson shadows grew
To flames that leaped upon the day,
And dried up my soul's fresh, sweet dew.
Then, "Lord," I cried, "I will obey!"

So long my ship by Sorrow manned,
Beat on the waves of Pain's great sea;
The tempest bore me far from land,
To wrecking shoals called "Self" and "Me."
So long! I could but hold my arms
To heaven and cry, "Show me the way!"
The Vision said, "Thy sin's alarms
Make thee afraid. Love and obey."

So long I groped without one star,
To glow upon my life's long night!
So long I fixed my gaze afar,
To meet the morning's matchless light!
"So long," thought I, "The shroud of Death
Will fold me in! Alway, alway,
I must stop here!" Light as a breath
Of love, One called, "My child, Obey!"

So long it seemed my faltering faith
Knew not the mercy of his love!
But now whene'er His dear lips saith
"Obey," I lift my eyes above.
And I will, through life's changing years
By failure gloomed, by grief made gray,
With patience wipe my bloody tears
On his white robe. "I will obey!"

Atlanta, Ga. LAURE BELLE WYLIE.

PUT AWAY THE CHILDISH, KEEP THE CHILDLIKE

JESUS AND THE CHILDREN

BY DR. AND MRS. WILBUR F. CRAFTS

International Sunday School Lesson for August 5: Matt. 18: 1-14

Golden Text, Mark 10: 4: "Suffer little children to come unto me"

IT would seem unnecessary to exhort men and women to become as little children at this season, when nearly the whole nation is at play. From an earlier period of overwork our nation has swung to the other extreme of too much amusement. The "sporting column" has become the "sporting page" and the "sporting paper." Even the college news is mostly of games, of which studies are manifestly regarded as disagreeable interruptions. Business is frequently suspended for three-day "carnivals," that are shrewdly planned to escape the law that closes saloons on legal holidays, because liquor and leisure never meet but for mischief. Moral and religious leaders need to discuss the ethical and spiritual bearing of the nine months' vacations of city churches. Between the summer and winter outings of their rich members, the most aristocratic churches have hardly more than a fourth of the year left when the full quota of members is on hand, and even that three months is more given to euchre parties than to Christian work. This excessive devotion to play is one of "the childish things" we are called on to put away (I. Cor. 13: 11), while preserving the childlike love that "never faileth"; which prompts to the greatest possible service, with only so much recreation as will keep up our power to serve. We talk of the "child races" of the world, thinking of Africa and Ceylon and Spain; but we are ourselves becoming one of the child races in our excess of play.

. . .

True Greatness Who then is greatest? Ambition is better than selfish ease. God has put the desire to excel even into horses, much more into men. Contentment is said to be "better than wealth," but a false contentment, with low attainments, is worse than the poverty it so often causes. We are commanded to "covet earnestly the best gifts." A right ambition we call by the nobler word—aspiration. That means a desire to better ourselves rather than to domineer over others. The desire to be great is all right if we have the right idea of greatness. Mr. Moody, commenting on the promise, "They that turn many to righteousness shall shine as the stars," said: "We all want to shine." Let us all cultivate the desire to be great; not to seem so to the eyes of men, but to be so in the eyes of God, to whom greatness is but another name for goodness. "Reputation is what men and women think of us; character is what God and angels know of us." And character, whose essence is childlike love, is the greatest thing in this world.

"WHOSOEVER THEREFORE SHALL HUMBLE HIMSELF AS THIS LITTLE CHILD, THE SAME IS GREATEST"

Jesus had spoken of his approaching crucifixion and resurrection. The apostles, expecting a temporal Messiah, evidently thought it was a figurative way of speaking of the battle and victory by which he would become the world's king, and therefore they thought it time to agree how the patronage should be distributed. They discussed by themselves who should be premier—whether Peter or John; and who should have the lesser positions. Unable to settle the premiership, they brought the problem to Christ and asked who should be greatest? Jesus called a child to his side as an object-lesson, and said in substance: "You can not even enter my kingdom, much more be leaders in it, unless you become childlike—in humility, in trust, in obedience, in love, which are the elements of true greatness." Manifestly there was too much selfishness in those "office-seekers." There is no reproach in that term for those to whom "office is opportunity." The officer-elect who thanks the electors for the "honor" proclaims his selfish conception of what should be regarded as only a new opening for usefulness.

We talk indefinitely of "Christian citizenship." In this lesson we have Christ's own picture of what it should be, for he was giving, not the conditions of entering heaven, but the qualities necessary to citizenship in the heavenly kingdom he was establishing on earth; not the church, but society Christianized through it in its business and pleasures and politics. The conditions of naturalization are repentance and childlikeness; a new birth into a new childhood, whose great words are "love," "trust," "obey."

Leaving out the "childish things" we are commanded to put away, we are to obey the other command: "Be ye children."

Dr. J. G. Holland, in the story of Arthur Bonnicastle, tells of a feeble church that worshiped in a little chapel, whose services were so fruitful that it became necessary to build a much larger house of worship. But the chapel had become so dear to them by Pentecostal scenes that they were unwilling to tear it down, and so the larger church edifice was built over it, leaving it in one corner as a holy of holies. So, the author suggests, should we keep our childhood within our manhood. Ruskin and Coleridge also teach, all in unconscious confirmation of Christ's definition of greatness, that the one supreme characteristic of the world's noblest leaders has been the retention of the freshness and feeling of childhood in combination with the maturity of manhood. They look into each new problem with the big-eyed wonder of a child, that looks it through, and enter into each new project with that enthusiasm of childhood which overcomes all obstacles. See Michael Angelo, for instance, great as poet, engineer, architect and sculptor, himself cutting out his statues from the stone—a work usually left to stone-cutters—and making chips so fast in his enthusiasm that three attendants are kept busy carrying them away. Or see Agassiz, before an audience, drawing his fishes swiftly with both hands, and at the same time pouring out a tide of enthusiastic description. Much more in the church must we keep a child's eagerness for truth and a child's enthusiasm in action undimmed by prejudice or past defeats. Such men, with or without office, are our natural leaders.

. . .

Children in the Church Whoso shall receive one such little child. It is amazing how infidel the Church is about receiving those whose capacity for saving faith Jesus declares when he speaks of "these little ones that believe in me." Jesus says that older people must "become as little children" to be fit for his kingdom, and yet many churches hesitate to receive those who are yet children, and whose daily habit is to love, trust and obey. It is easy to turn these acts toward the heavenly Father. Preachers, in reporting evangelistic services, boast that "it was not a children's revival," forgetting that every adult conversion proclaims neglect in the convert's pastor, teacher and parent, but for which a whole life, rather than a damaged fragment, would be given to Christ. The courts hold that a child of eight is capable of any crime, but the church doubts whether the child of that age is prepared to join the church. This is because we have put adult knowledge where Christ put childlike love. Indeed, we forget that love is the very organ of divine knowledge. In the words of Augustine, "we must know earthly things in order to love them, but we must love heavenly things in order to know them." "He that loveth not knoweth not God." At the Lord's Supper a little girl said, "I love Jesus, can't I go?" Her mistaught mother incurred the risk of those who cause one of Christ's little ones to "stumble" by refusing, because the child, who had learned to love, trust and obey the Saviour, did not understand all the doctrines.

Another mother told a company of Sunday School teachers, amid streaming tears by way of warning, how she had herself offended one of Christ's little ones who was also her own. She was a missionary, and in her journeys this little girl of six went with her in a basket fastened to the back of a donkey. Whenever they passed a native who was a stranger the child would anxiously ask, "Is he a Christian?" But when that child wished to join the church, the mother sadly answered, "No, you do not understand." "Understand what, mamma?" The mother read the child an extract from the Confession of Faith, and several pages from the catechism. "I don't understand that," said the child, "but I understand to love Jesus." And yet the mother kept the child back from the church for years afterwards, following the very prejudices that Jesus rebuked when he said, "Suffer the little children to come unto me." "Lovest thou me?" is the test for child and apostle alike, but let us not forget that children can "understand" all important doctrines if we will properly and diligently teach them. Here is one example, out of many such, of what a well-instructed child of eight years may understand. It is a verbatim report of an examination for admittance to a church served by the writers in New York:

What is baptism the sign of?

Sign of cleansing of the heart.

What does the wine of the Lord's Supper stand for?

Jesus' blood.

And what does the broken bread make us think of?

Jesus' body broken by spear and nails.

Why do we call the Bible the Word of God?

Because God told the people to write it.

What should anyone pray for who wants to be a Christian?

For a new heart and a clean spirit.

Why did Jesus die on the Cross?

For our sins, so that we would be forgiven and go to heaven.

What are some of the things that one will do if he is a true Christian?

Teach others to be Christians. Be kind to others.

What are some of the things that a true Christian will try not to do?

Not smoke, not to fight, nor drink liquors.

If a Christian should do anything sinful, what ought he to do about it?

Go and ask God's forgiveness.

Will everyone who is baptized and joins the church and takes the Lord's Supper, go to heaven?

No; they must be true Christians.

What good does it do to join the church?

It helps us to be good by going to church and hearing about Jesus.

. . .

Child-Destroyers Whoso shall cause one of these little ones to stumble. The church is not only to receive the children and to see to it that she does not make them stumble by conditions of membership that God never authorized, but she must also remove the preventable temptations that lie across their path on the streets, the evil pictures and corrupt literature and foul shows and gambling devices and inducements to drink and break the Sabbath. There is nothing more pathetic in literature than the description by Victor Hugo, of the man who gathered up homeless children that he might distort their features, and make their forms hideous in order that he might make successful beggars of them for his own gain. Even more painful to consider is effort to deform the moral nature of the child, as did Fagin, teaching little Oliver Twist how to steal a pocketbook, and so training him for the profession of a thief. It is even worse to initiate a boy into the life of a tippler or a gambler. Farrar speaks of "the child nestling in the arms of Jesus and furnishing the text for his remarks, as he named them, of the awful guilt and peril of offending, of tempting, of misleading, of seducing from the paths of innocence and righteousness, of teaching any wicked thing, or suggesting any wicked thought to those little ones, whose angels see the face of his Father in heaven. Such wicked men and seducers, such human performers of the devil's work, addressing them in words of more bitter, crushing import than any which he ever uttered. A worse fate awaited them, he said, than to be flung with the heaviest millstone around their necks into the sea."

. . .

Children of all Lands Dear to Christ It is not the will of your Father in heaven that one of these little ones should perish. "See that ye despise not one of these little ones" because it is of another color or race. Call no child by a race epithet, but treat him as your brother. Let our gifts go to India, where Christ's little ones are perishing in body; and also to China, despite its awful sins against our missionaries; and to the little Filipinos, whom we must save from "stumbling" by getting the Manila saloons suppressed; and to the islands where Dr. Paton asks that the children of converted cannibals shall not be perverted by American rum and guns.

The apostles learned humility at last. Whenever an apostle wrote a Bible book it was sure to say most of his faults and least of his virtues. For instance Matthew calls himself "the publican," which was like writing "ex-sinner" after his name. The fourth group of the apostles in other gospels is Matthew and Thomas, but in Matthew's own story the order is reversed. The gospel of Mark, Peter's secretary, omits the story of Peter's walking on the water but intensifies the record of his cowardly denial. In Luke we only know of his presence by the word "we." John never speaks of himself by name but speaks impersonally of "that other disciple" and "the disciple that Jesus loved." We instinctively recognize this humility as a proof of greatness. "He that is least among you all the same is great."

Christianity on the Congo

The American Baptist missionary work on the Congo is progressing in spite of the difficulties arising from the Belgian Government's cruel and tyrannical treatment of the natives, which naturally excites prejudice. The Missionary Review reports that 885 have been baptized.

BY MARGARET E. SANGSTER

.. A Good Wife ..

THE blinds were closed. An air of stillness hung over the house and the farm. Hiram Mayhew in his shirt sleeves sat with head bowed in his hands in the farthest corner of the porch, unmindful of those who came and went. His eyes were swollen with weeping, and his whole figure indicated profound grief. Once he shuddered when the wail of a day-old child struck feebly on his ear. A motherless child, what else so sad, so heart-breaking in this earth of ours as its piteous cry?

"He takes his loss hard," said a neighbor.

"Yes, Sarah was a good wife," replied another.

Sarah Mayhew had been married twenty years, and she died the death of the tired out. Her flock of children like little steps, her incessant churning, baking, washing, ironing, cooking, sewing and slaving had exhausted her vitality, and the burnt candle flickered and expired because there was no more of it. Hiram had not been actively unkind. He had simply accepted his wife as he did the air he breathed; had thought her the best woman in the world, but had never told her so; had gone on working in the fields as she did in the house, and had not once supposed her overtaxed or burdened, since she did not complain. Suddenly, it seemed to him, she had dropped at his side, and here he was, helpless, dazed, amazed, and the father of seven children, one just born.

Over Sarah's sleeping face had stolen a look of strange youth and sweet peace. She had worn that look when she was a bride, standing confident and radiant at his side; when the steep path was as yet untrodden, and life offered her no thorns, only flowers.

I think she would have been a better wife, poor Sarah, if she had revolted, expostulated, and taken her own part. Hiram was not altogether to blame. Tired wives must open the eyes of obtuse husbands: must not wait till death does this office for them.

An Old Fairy-tale

In the legendary and mystic lore of nearly every nation, there is in one form or another, the fairy-tale of the two princesses, whose manner of speech revealed them as kind or as cruel. When one princess spoke, pearls flew from her parted lips; when the other opened her mouth, toads jumped forth. A parallel to this is found in our experience. We know women who never say anything unkind, and who, going still higher, always have gentle and tender things to say of others. The law of their conversation is considerate goodness. They suspect no one of unworthy motives, and they attribute no deceit or other evil thing to any one. Slander and malice wither in their pure atmosphere. Others again, are invariably ready to believe the worst of their fellow beings. They repeat sometimes openly, sometimes in whispers, whatever bit of wretched gossip they hear; they take away the characters of their friends and go about the world with murder in their hearts. Toads are their familiar friends.

The beginning of this habit of unkind and evil speech is in youth. Then may we repress it; then trample on the disposition which leads to it. If we discover in ourselves the wish and the temptation to speak ill of our acquaintances, or to believe ill of accused persons, simply because they are accused, it is worth our while strongly and rigidly to take the thing in hand. Pearls, not toads, should be the offspring of our thoughts.

By thy word, says Holy Writ, thou shalt be justified, and by thy words condemned. Our lips are within our own control. We need not speak bitterly or unkindly of any human being. Above all, we may avoid the hint, the innuendo, the half-truth which is often the worst of lies.

Nervous People

I do not believe that people should give way to their nerves. If we are tired we need not show it by fretting and being cross. We may keep still. If we are timid we may go away by ourselves, not compel our families to discomfort, by shrieking at a mouse, and fancying a burglar under the bed whenever we enter a darkened room. Our nerves may be sources of exquisite pleasure, or tyrants which cause us continual torture: let us so govern ourselves that they will be the latter, not the former.

AN OUTING AT THE SEASHORE ON CONEY ISLAND

CANDOR

Wear the white flower of candor on thy breast,
Speak only truth; obey God's high behest;
With falsehood have thou naught to do, dear soul,
God bid thee serve him, with a service whole.

By the Sea Beach

New Yorkers and dwellers in the region round about know Coney Island well. To you, dear housemother, far away in the level lands of prairie and wheat field, its salt air, its tumbling waves, its white sand, its board walks and its varied gayety, would be a pleasant change, restful to the eyes and strengthening to the nerves. For a few cents, we who live near Coney Island may reach it in the evening and cool off after a hot day, enjoying it the more that it is a peculiarly democratic spot, sacred to the people. Fashion and style do not much affect it. But one sees there the happy family group—father, mother and children, the babies rosy after a dip in the surf, and the absorbed lovers, sauntering on as if they were alone in the world, ensphered in the peculiar solitude one finds only in a crowd. There are merry-go-rounds for the children, and goats on which they may ride. Popcorn and soda-water, milk and ice-cream are on sale at booths and in restaurants, and bathers venture out constantly into the white-capped breakers. Coney Island was famous years ago for roast clams, sold by a wooden-legged sailor, who served them in a primitive way. All the merry life one finds there now was inaugurated by this pioneer forty years ago. The beach changes every year, and the winter storms sweep away many of the barricades built by the inn-keepers, but in spring they rebuild, and with summer come bands of music, all sorts of amusements, and the happy, happy crowds.

Washing Day

Everybody knows that the venerable Mrs. Julia Ward Howe, now benignant and beloved at eighty, in her youthful maturity wrote the Battle Hymn of the Republic. Everybody may not know that the same dear poet wrote a lyric on the homely subject of washing day, suggested by the clothes hanging up to dry, a bit of verse so sweet and true that I am quoting here for all tired mothers. Washing and ironing are with us the most relentless of domestic tasks; they cannot be put aside and the whole house in its routine hangs upon them: all is at a standstill till the laundry work is out of the way. I prefer Tuesday to Monday for a washing day myself, but few housekeepers agree with me, though I once knew a lady who did her washing on Saturday. But the rule in most houses is from "Monday's rub to Saturday's scrub," and is practicably unutterable. Here is Mrs. Howe's little bit of verse to brighten next washing day whatever it happen to be:

The clothes line is a rosary
Of household help and care;
Each little saint the mother loves
Is represented there.

And when across her garden plot
She walks, with thoughtful heed,
I should not wonder if she told
Each garment for a bead.

For Celia's scarlet stockings hang Beside Amelia's shirt,
And Bilbo's breeches, which of late
Were sadly smeared with dirt.

Yon kerchief small wiped bitter tears
For ill success at school;
This pinafore was torn in strife
'Twixt Fred and little Jule.

A stranger, passing, I salute
The household in its wear,
And smile to think how near of kin
Are love and toil and prayer.

Come to My Party

"PLAYING tea" is splendid fun;
Mabel, Dorothy and Fred,
Alice, too—our quiet one—
Gather round the table spread.

Mother, at her sewing, thinks
Of the days she used to know,
Picking southernwood and pinks
In the happy long ago.

She can hear the children laugh,
Though they do not know her near;
Ah, the cup the wee ones quaff
Has no flavor of a tear!

Little things make childhood gay:
Little pleasures, little joys
Fill the measure of the day
For our darling girls and boys.

"Playing tea" is lots of fun;
Mabel, Dorothy and Fred,
Alice—quiet little one—
Gather round the table spread.

—EMILY DANA.

Aunt Prudence Payson's Catch-all

—L. A. M. Write to Mrs. M. B. Fuller, Byculla, Bombay.

—LUCY MOORE. Why deprive the baby of her doll on Sunday afternoon? She is the dolly's little mother. Put away the other toys, but let her keep her baby.

—HELENA FROST. Ordinarily, measles are not dangerous, but the malady sometimes occasions alarm and the patient is very ill. Have the doctor as soon as possible in all cases of family illness.

—ELIZABETH. Even if the Gospel meetings to which you refer do not appeal to you, they have their place, and are very useful in attracting numbers of people who seldom enter a church. They have been blessed to the conversion of many, and have induced young men and others to begin a better life, to forsake Satan and follow the Master.

—Mrs. C. J. C. I am writing for a most faithful, honorable woman, a widow with four little boys, wholly dependent upon her. She has worked hard to maintain her little family, but sickness and other unavoidable causes have made it impossible for her to put aside anything for a "rainy day." During August she gets but little work and if she could send her children away for a fortnight it would be a great help to them and her.

—PARENT. Among good books for boys and girls from fourteen to sixteen years of age are The Jungle Books, by Rudyard Kipling; any or all of The Henty Books, which are romances founded on history; Tom Brown, The Grip of Honor, In the Golden Days; Fiske's Beginnings of New England, and The Dutch and Quaker Colonies, by the same author; Mrs. Barr's Bow of Orange Ribbon; Mrs. Dodge's Donald and Dorothy; any of S. R. Crockett's, Conan Doyle's or Stanley Weyman's books; Irving's, Motley's and Prescott's Histories; The Schon-berg Cotta Chronicles, Winifred Bertram; Dickens' David Copperfield and Tale of Two Cities; Mr. Brook's or Miss Tarbell's Life of Abraham Lincoln, and any books by Dr. O. S. Marden.

The Shadow of the Sword

We cannot escape in these mid-summer days the shadow of the sword. So many of us care intensely for foreign missions that our hearts are aching all the while for Christ's servants in their peril; by this time on many a brow the seal of martyrdom may have been set. In the Divine purpose the time seems to have come when vast heathen nations are to be brought into the illumination of the Christian religion, and it may well be that the enginery of a bitter warfare with the terrible, death-dealing implements of the period is to be used for this consummation.

"We are living, we are dwelling
In a grand and awful time,
Age to distant age is telling—
To be living is sublime."

But these are sorrowful days to the thoughtful, these days under the heavy shadow of the sword unsheathed. Shall we not all pray for the coming of the King in great power and glory, and the ushering in of Peace?

The Bible in Porto Rico

Mr. Bortree Writes of the Progress of Gospel Work on the Island....

IF you take your map of Porto Rico and look about the centre you will see the name Barronquitas. The town is situated in the highest part of the island and yet you may ascend a hill on either side and you would say it is in a valley. There is one town a little higher, Aibonita, where it is said to rain every day. In the last seventy days here, we have had ten without rain during the day—quite a record; yet much of the time it has been very fair. It rains so easily, and the clouds are very close. The second highest point on the island is directly before me and it is enshrouded in clouds now, as it is raining here.

The town may be approached from three sides: a trail leading from Barros on the west, a trail leading from Bayamon and Comeria on the northeast, and by a short trail leading from the military road at Aibonita on the south. The last is the easiest coming from San Juan or Ponce. You do not see the town of Barronquitas until within two or three minutes' ride of the plaza.

LITTLE SUNDAY SCHOOL ATTENDANTS AT BARRONQUITAS, PORTO RICO

The cordiality with which we were received by the natives here at Barronquitas on Feb. 4—we being totally ignorant of their language and customs—pleased us. We came to teach the American customs and language and when we received the first forty copies of St. John's Gospel in Spanish-English, the best people believed it was something good. We gave the first few copies rather timidly, but were soon gratified to learn that the people wanted it. To say that the best educated people had never seen the Bible, even in Spanish, is to repeat precisely what they told me. Children have hung about my door from early morn till dusk, trying to ask me in English for a book. I would ask them if they could read and often, after testing their ability, would give them one. Young men have come and asked for Scriptures, and I have given copies to several of the young women whom custom forbade to come and ask.

One intelligent young lady had read the entire book in a few days and said: Que bonito! (how beautiful) even after I told her the priest had thrown the book down, saying, "It is no good." Another, whose brother studied for the priesthood, said she would like to have the entire New Testament. I have one for her.

The Sabbath is respected here as a rest from farm labor to a certain extent, and for mass, but there is great need of a truly Christian Sabbath. Many have expressed a desire for Protestant service here. The father of a musical family said to me the other evening: "We will have a Protestant church when you return in the Fall." There is great need and opportunity for the Master's work in Barronquitas."

S. W. BORTREE.

More About the Boxers

IN the July issue of the National Geographical Magazine, Llewellyn J. Davies contributes a timely article on the "Boxers," from which we make these extracts:

The society or league which is now turning China upside down and forcing the attention of the whole world is known by various names. The one most commonly seen in the American papers is the "Boxers" or "Spirit Boxers." The origin of this name is to be found in the gymnastic exercises which constitute the drill of the society and in the mysterious incantations used. In the Shangtung Province the society is commonly called the "Ta Tao Hui," or "Great Sword Society."

The "Boxer" society is one of the many secret societies of China, and, as is usual with such societies, has both a political and a religious significance. It is said to be of ancient origin. One Chinese tells me that it had its origin in opposition to the "Manchu dynasty," which has ruled China for the past 250 years. Whatever may have been its past history, the society has now collected its forces against the foreigners within the Chinese Empire. It has been preparing for this present outbreak for several years. About three and a half years ago I learned from Chinese friends that such a society was being organized, and that it was growing rapidly. Its anti-foreign purpose was known distinctly at that time. It was said to be spreading from the south toward the north. Those favorable to governmental reform and to foreign influences in the districts now overrun by these marauders felt and reported what may be called the ground-swell of the storm which has now so furiously burst upon them. Chinese Christians were told, "Well, you will soon have a chance to enjoy the heaven of which you talk;" and, "Soon, soon; your time is coming soon." Shortly before the outbreak it was frequently and plainly said that at no very distant date all foreigners and foreign sympathizers would be killed.

The vast majority of the Chinese are entirely ignorant of the simplest facts of natural science. To them the earth is still flat, and the sun is said to pass around behind a mountain in moving from west to east. The more superstitious worship the spirits, which are supposed to abide in, or have charge of, their spinning-wheels, hand-mills, stables, wells, manure heaps, street gates, and many other things. The organizers of the "Boxers" have used this superstitious disposition for the furtherance of their ends. They have confidently asserted that those properly initiated into the mysteries of this cult, and whose "Kung Fu" or exercise of its rules was perfect, would by virtue of practice become invulnerable, and thus be protected against all bullets or knives. This was not left to future test entirely. Several intelligent Chinese have told me that they had themselves seen advanced members of the society strike different parts of their bodies with sharp knives and swords with no more effect upon the skin than is produced by the wind. The members of the society believe implicitly in this invulnerability, and the people at large are convinced that the claim is well-founded. It was proposed at first to use no firearms in the extermination of foreigners, but to trust to the sword alone. Great reliance was placed on certain calisthenic exercises and posturings which were expected to hypnotize or terrify the enemy.

The "Boxers" are a patriotic party. Whether this means loyalty to the present dynasty or not is questioned. The Chinese have never forgotten that their rulers are foreigners. Manchu and Chinese are still distinct in dress and customs. The feeling seems to be quite general among the people that the "Ta Ch'ing," or "Great Clear," dynasty has about run its course, and there is said to be in one of their sacred books a prophecy the fulfilment of which in the displacing of the reigning family is looked for at any time. Outwardly at least the "Boxers" are loyal to the Manchu dynasty. They look down on every foreigner as a barbarian, and, since they have learned something of the power of European arms, to the contempt is joined fear. To this may perhaps be added a sense of injustice, resulting from the treatment received recently from more than one of the European powers. Missionaries are attacked, not as religious teachers, but as foreigners, and Chinese Christians are robbed and murdered as those who "sui yang kwei tsi" or "follow the foreign devil," and not because they have changed their religion.

The character of the instruction given the people may be seen in the following quotations from a pamphlet, issued a short time before the beginning of the present outbreak, by a county magistrate named Chao, at that time holding office in Hsia Chin County, Shangtung Province:

Their religion (that of the Christians), is such as China never had, and is antagonistic to the doctrines of the sages, such as family relations, the laws of benevolence, and righteousness. In this regard these religions are inferior to Buddhism and Taoism . . . Western sciences have their ancient root in Chinese principles, which have been stolen and shrewdly expanded . . . As to occidentals, their chaos has just begun to dissolve and their savagery has not yet changed. They have no loyalty, no family rules, no true principles of sexual relations, no literature, and no truly civilized society . . . Because their land is narrow they have come to us searching the limits of the land for their own gain . . . In the matter of skilful search into the secrets of the earth, they are far shrewder than we, but they do this simply for gain, and are barbarians still, with all their industrial skill . . . They seek only gain from our country; they aim to deceive our people, to surround our land, to disturb our national laws and customs.

The Real Czar of Russia

Dr. E. J. Dillon, a well-known authority on Russian affairs, gives this interesting sketch of the Czar: "His knowledge of English is such as to enable him to pass as a native Briton; he speaks French with the fluency of a diplomatist and the accent of a Parisian, but his German is that of a Russian born and bred during the period when German and the Germans were exceedingly unpopular in Muscovy. He is wiry and his nerves seem to be made of steel. He is as sensitive as a woman, one of his professors assured the doctor, and the number of persons who are aware of this soft side of his nature could be counted on the fingers of one's hands. He never gives way to his feelings before others, no matter how near and dear to him they may be. Nobody ever saw him break down at the time his father died. Yet he did break down, and most terribly, too, within the four walls of his private room. The Czar is exceedingly shy and retiring, and his best qualities are unsuspected by the crowd and even by the bulk of his courtiers."

Good Causes Helped

The following sums have been contributed by our readers for the support of the worthy causes mentioned below:

Bethesda Home

Prev. ack	$183 50
Mrs G A R, Troy	5 00
Lillie T Smith	1 00
Total	$189 50

Door of Hope

Prev. ack	$33.81
—, Danville	5 00
Total	$38 81

Foreign Missions

Prev. ack	$50 50
Miss Etta E Marr	1 00
Box 417, Danville	1 00
Highland S S, Baird	50
Friend, Dale (India)	25 00
Stella Stallings	1 15
Total	$79 15

Any Good Cause

Prev. ack	$207.56
—, Hetzel	2 00
W S Wilkinson	5 00
Mrs Hannah White	1 00
Total	$215.56

Mrs. Rose H. Lathrop

Prev. ack	$35 00
Jas Northey	50
Total	$35 50

Mayesville Institute

Prev. ack	$54 00
Mrs A C Brown	10 00
Mrs J O Bemis	10 00
Total	$74 00

Porto Rico S. S.

Prev. ack	$214 60
Miss Voree's SS class	2 50
Friend, Dale	15 00
Total	$232 10

Emilio Olssen's South American Mission

Prev ack	$112 95
—, Potter	1 00
H Farnsworth	1 00
Total	$114 95

Beatty Rescue Mission

Chas Hayward	10 00
Total	$10 00

East Africa Famine Fund

Prev ack	$458 18
—, Potter	1 00
Ellen M Bryan	25
Total	$459 43

Armenian Fund

Prev. ack	$418 06
Junior Endeavorers, Stoneham	5 00
Friends, Clifton Spgs Sanitarium	13 50
Mrs Mary S Worcester	25 00
Rev A B Chalmers	5 00
Sabbath P M Coll'n, Saginaw E S	24 26
Mrs Peter	5 00
Mrs W S Webber	5 00
Miss Webber	5 00
Friend, Saginaw E S	5 00
Mrs Wm Merrill	3 00
Friends, per Mrs Chalmers	11 00
Mrs John S Estabrook	2 00
Presbyterian Church, Saginaw W S	24 05
Mrs H R Lovell	10 00
Mrs E J Chambers	2 00
Friend, Flint	25
Ladies Miss'y Society Owosso	6 50
Dr Perkins	1 00
Drs Kimball and Thelberg	30 00
Total	$600 62

India Orphan Fund

Mrs S S Thompson	20 00
Albert Wills	25
Friend, Jordan	2 75
Ambrose McKenzie	50
J A W, Tidioute	10 00
Jane S Sayre	1 00
Nellie V Blake	5 00
Mrs B F Hustand	1 00
Mrs A S Crout	1 00
J W B, Warrenion	10 00
Mrs M E Wales	5 00
Mrs Clark L Van Allen	20 00
S S 2d Bapt Church, Sherman	4 00
Mrs C C Chapman	3 00
F O Lindgren	2 00
—, Dunseith	2 00
Friend, Hanover	2 00
—, Ceylon	2 00
Narcissa H Kinney	20 00
Mrs Susan Smyser	20 00
Mrs E S Clark	20 00
Mr & Mrs H J Townley	7 00
Jane E Osgood	10 00
M Louise Sturtevant	10 00
Laura G Penuel	10 00
Mrs Albert Quilling	1 00
Mr and Mrs W O Sturgeon	455 69
Total	$645 19

Rev. Mr. McKnight

Prev ack	$1 00
—, Potter	1 00
Total	$200

The Finest Cake

Is made with Royal Baking Powder. Always light, sweet, pure and wholesome.

Getting Tired

By Working Hard is Natural, and Rest Brings Relief.

But if you are tired all the time your blood is poor. It lacks the richness and vitality which are necessary to feed and sustain the body and give strength and vigor. You need to take Hood's Sarsaparilla, the great remedy for that tired feeling because it is the great enricher and vitalizer of the blood. It will give you an appetite and increase your strength.

Hood's Sarsaparilla

Is America's Greatest Medicine.

WE PAY ....

6% Per Annum

Deposits with our Company produce the same earnings as if loaned upon real estate mortgage, with no uncertainty, annoyance or costs in collecting interest or principal.

Assets, $1,150,000. Surplus (accumulated in seven years), $150,000. Our securities are bonds and mortgages on improved real estate in New York and Pennsylvania — non-fluctuating, not speculative. Subject to supervision and regular annual examination by the State Banking department. We refer, by special permission, to many clergymen and other prominent professional and business men.

Please apply for information in detail.

Industrial Savings & Loan Co.,

1133 Broadway, New York.

Delighted Waifs at Mont-Lawn

TEACHING THE LITTLE ONES TO SEE GOD IN NATURE

A TYPICAL GUEST

"TEACHER!" It was a low call from four little lads lying over in the grass and beckoning to her. A tuft of black-eyed Susans canopied one curly head; a wreath of daisies garlanded another; oak leaves a third; one scornful little "sandpapered" head was as destitute of any covering or adornment as a newly-hatched bird.

"Teacher" sat down in the grass beside them.

"What are you so still about?" she asked; she was not used to seeing them in a quiet mood.

"See dere!" they whispered, index fingers of four hands pointing at once to a bush some six feet distant. "Dere's a bird on her nes'! Don't you see 'er—under dem leaves?"

"Yes. Poor little mother!"

"She's got four eggs," four voices informed her.

"How do you know?"

"Oh, we've seen 'em."

"We've been watching her every day." Daisy-wreath explained shyly.

"All of us will have a bird when they're hatched," confided Oak-crown.

"What'd you tell 'er fur?" growled Naked-head impatiently, "she's one o' them Cruelty-to-Animals wimmens. We wont get no birds now. See!"

She told a story—they were always eager for stories—of how, in colonial days, some Indians kidnapped the little children of a white mother; she told of the children's and mother's grief, of the baby's cries, the empty cradle, the desolate home. Three pairs of eyes swimming in tears looked up into her's, when she asked the boys how they would feel if they should be torn away from their mammas and little brothers and sisters and never see them again?

"Oh, Oh!" sobbed Daisy-wreath, "them was cruel, cruel Injuns."

His mamma was only a poor seamstress and there wasn't much to eat or much to wear at home, but love was there.

"'Teacher,'" said Naked-head softly, "de moon's risin', de moon's red."

Her story had not touched him.

"Where do you live, Henry?" she asked him.

"No. —— Water street." Further inquiry elicited the fact that he slept in dark corners on the streets as much as at home.

"Is your mother living?"

"Yes ma'am."

"Don't you want to see her?"

"No, ma'am. She gets drunk and she beats me."

No wonder he could see no crime in parting a mother and her young!

She must try another plan with him. She began to talk to her little audience about birds; telling them how there are 12,000 different kinds of birds, how these may be divided into eight great classes: Robbers, Perchers, Climbers, Columbines, Scratchers, Waders, Swimmers, Runners. The peculiarities of each were noted; she explained how each was man's servant. She showed what an exquisite bit of mechanism the bird's form is; told of the wonderful eye of the vulture, nature's scavenger among the Robber Birds, which sees for miles and miles; the strong feet of the Percher, who sits so easily on a little branch that swings back and forth; of how the Climber's claws and tail are made just so that he can run up the straight trunk of a tree; of the way pigeons and doves, of the Columbine family, feed their little ones; of how the Scratchers—like the motheriy hen in the Home barnyard—are provided with the means of making a living; how the Wader's webbed foot fits him for the water; how the Swimmer's oiled feathers make him a lovely water-proof suit of clothes. They listened with round eyes of delightful wonder to the story of the making of the form and the feathers of a bird of flight, that boat-of-the-air, whose motions no man-made machine has ever duplicated; explaining how the bones of the bird are hollow, that the little flying-machine may be light; how its muscles are fashioned with this end in view; how the coat of feathers in being warm yet light, shows the wisdom of the Fashioner of this craft, which must rise and sail in cooler currents than that near our earth. Henry was utterly absorbed in the narrative; he had question after question to ask; they were all answered patiently. At last the teacher told of how Jesus talked about the sparrows, saying that not one of them should fall to the ground without his Father's knowledge. She told them to what group the bird in the nest belonged.

"She is a wondertul singing-boat," said "teacher." "God took such pains to make her. Out of her nest will come four other wonderful winged singing-boats and she will teach them to sail. She sits there, day after day, in such patience, getting her little singing-boats ready just after the way God put it into her nature to do. Do you think we ought to disturb her? We might ruin the singing-boats. God would know."

"We won't watch her no more," said Henry. "Tell us more 'bout God's birds."

Companies of children wander in the woods with their teachers, and little talks and stories about the flowers and leaves and grasses, like this about the birds, lead them to look upon nature as God's handiwork and to learn new lessons of gentleness and reverence, lessons which make the deeper impression because flowers, leaves and birds look like miracles to many little street waifs who never played under the trees or in green fields before.

A LITTLE COMPANY PLAYING AROUND THE ANNEX AT MONT-LAWN

. . .

The following contributions have been received:

Prev. ack	$4,222 26
Goebringer, W A	1 00
Grabs, Jounna	2 00
Graham, E G	1 00
Gray, A	3 00
Green, Geo R	1 00
Hagaman, C A	1 00
Hall, Miss L H	5 00
Hampton, H A	40
Harris, C L	3 00
Hatfield, Alice	6 00
Hayes, Robert	3 00
Heath, Mrs E H	1 00
Heckman, E	10 00
Hendry, N N	1 00
Hodgkins, Mr & Mrs	3 00
Hostetter, Mrs E	5 00
Hurlburt, H H	10 00
Hunt, J Legus	33
Hunt, Pearl B	33
James, T M	1 00
Jewett, Dr O W	6 00
Joes, Mrs Wm	1 00
Johnson, Mrs C R	3 00
Jones, Sam'l	3 00
Jones, Zillah	3 00
Keely, Mrs N H	3 00
Keil, Henry	1 00
Kenison, E	3 00
Kennedy, Mrs A S	1 00
Kernren, Mrs Emma	3 00
Kerr, Birdie	1 00
Kerr, J G	1 00
Kerr, Sadie	1 00
Kerr, Mrs T R	1 00
King, Mrs	5 00
Knight, Clara	3 00
Kritzler, J & C	6 00
Lambert, Blanche	25
Langdale, Jessie	3 00
Larsen, Miss Edell	3 00
Lehmer, Mrs Wm	6 00
Lenhart, Miss M	6 00
Long, John B	3 00
Lowe, Mrs Ed	5 00
McCork, Mrs S T	3 00
McHattie, Mary	3 00
McHattie, Norman	30 00
McKee, Mis	1 00
McLeod, Mrs A	25
McMecham Mrs Rose	1 00
Mackenzie, Mrs J	1 00
Mandsley, Mary	3 00
Marshall, Mrs Amos	10 00
Martin J	1 00
Matthews, Mrs S A	3 00
Manzy, G G	15 00
Meeker, Mr & Mrs E	6 00
Merriam Mrs Addie	4 00
Metzger, Chas C R	1 00
Miller, Geo W & Co	10 00
Millar, J L	1 00
Moore, Mr & Mrs M V	4 00
Morrell, A R	3 00
Nearing, Mrs E	5 00
Neer, Mrs H C	3 00
Neff, Miss C E	1 00
Nodine, Willis	5 00
Norrman, Mrs A J	5 00
Ort, Mrs J E	2 00
Packer, E H	5 00
Palmer, Mrs P C	1 00
Penson, J W	3 00
Peters, Mrs Frances	1 00
Pickwick, F	1 50
Pipe, A	3 00
Pontius, Mary A	3 00
Pratt, Barbara	34
Preston, Miss A	3 00
Reading, Mrs J	1 00
Reed, Josie S	3 00
Ross, Mrs H A	3 00
Ross, J M C	2 00
Rust, H & Gladys	1 00
Ryder, Mr & Mrs G P	3 00
Satterlee, Mrs C A	3 00
Savage, C M, Jr	3 00
Sayre, H H	5 00
Schwarz, Ida W	1 00
Scovell, Mrs H G	1 00
Serrs, L E	6 00
Sexton, Mrs A W	50
Sheats, A R	1 00
Shupe, Mrs E R	1 00
Slack, K E	1 00
Smith, Mrs A M	1 00
Smith, D	5 00
Smith, E F	3 00
Sorenson, F	2 00
Stine, M H	3 00
Stone, Mrs E S	1 00
Sutherland, Mrs L T	6 00
Swanson, Hannah A	2 00
Swanson, Mrs SW	1 00
Swanson, Mr S W	1 00
Taylor, Mrs M	2 00
Thompson, Mrs J	3 00
Thompson, Mrs S S	12 00
Tilson, Ida E	2 50
Tmedson, Mrs T J	1 00
Utz, Mrs C	1 00
Vinton, Maria L	3 00
Voris, Mrs C A	50 00
Vrooman, Mrs W K	50
Walter, Mrs C J, in memory of	6 00
Waring, E E	3 00
Warner, O M	1 00
Whitlock, Mrs H	1 00
Wilcox, J S & M S	10 00
Wilson, Mrs S	15 00
Winner, Mrs G H	1 50
Yonng, L L	3 00
Dorcas, Port Jervis	5 00
Hagar, San Jose	1 00
Julia G	5 00
A C, Newark	3 00
Mrs A F A, Phila	50
A H B, Block Island	1 00
A J H	1 00
A M L, York	10 00
B H S A, Savannah	3 00
B J, Barnes Corners	15 00
E L B, Meudow	1 00
E M C, Adrian	3 00
E W, Dartford	2 00
Mrs E W S, Staunton	1 00
F R G	5 00
H, N Y C	9 00
Mrs H H H, Philadelphia	3 00
H M L, N Y C	3 00
I, M B Detroit	3 00
J H N, Clarksville	1 00
J S C E, Broad Brook	4 00
J T G, Huntingdon	5 00
M C I, Harlem	3 00
M F T, N Y C	3 00
M R F, McKeesport	3 00
M S R, Brooklyn	1 00
P A F, Albion	3 00
R A W, Newburyport	10 00
S E W, Antrim	3 00
S J T, Northampton	1 00
S S, Fort Wayne	3 00
T L K, Ventura	3 00
W & E B, Pine Hill	3 00
—, Hasty	3 00
—, Howard	3 00
—, Racine	3 00
—, Somerset	1 00
—, West Troy	1 00
For His Sake, Woodbury	1 00
A Georgia Friend, Angusta	3 00
Friend, Calhoun	5 00
" Concord	3 00
" Denver	5 00
" Howells	3 00
" Huntsville	3 00
" Kettle Falls	60
" Lawrence	5 00
" Provinceton	3 00
" Winston Salem	1 00
" Yonkers	6 00
9 Seal Island Friends	3 00
A Sympathizing friend, Graf	1 00
Friends, Ferryville	10 00
I H N, E Crange	3 00
I H N, Merriam	3 00
I H N, New Haven	3 00
I H N, Oakham	3 00
3 Constant Readers, Lancaster	4 00
A Subscriber, Indianapolis	3 00
A Subscriber, Kennett Sq.	3 00
Subr, Leechburg	1 00
Subr, Rehoboth	2 00
Sympathizer, Marietta	1 00
Inasmuch, Friendship	5 00
One who loves the little ones Chittenango Falls	1 00
Children of Tem Home Warlhouse Pt.	3 01
Mother & two sisters Daugherty	4 00
Mother, N Swanson	2 00
A family Titusville	4 00
Repeutence, Sauk Ctr	1 00
Helper, Honeybrook	3 00
A happy mother Fort Plain	2 00
Ger MESS, Bushton	3 36
Infant Dep. Park Pl S S, Pawtucket	5 00
Cong'l S S, Daytona	6 00
Willing Helpers NYC	6 00
What-so-ever Circle K D, Chili	3 00
Resolnte Circle of K D, Ivoryton	6 00
Jr C E, Deytona	2 00
Cong Jr C E Cherokee	7 00
Total	$4,943 13

CLOTHING, ETC.

Mrs H P Morgan, J E Plummer, F E Blair and mother, Little Gladys S., Mrs King, Mrs M E Johnson, Mrs John C Wmch, Mrs J A Hulskamper, Mrs I A Beacham, Woman's Miss Soc, Haddam Conn; Mrs Emma D Tracy, Mrs F G Norton, Mrs Rachel Unangst, Mrs E J Brown.

INTENDED FOR OTHERS.

Difficult to Believe Advice Applied to Us.

"While reading the morning paper at breakfast I frequently read over the advertisements of Postum Food Coffee, and finally began to wonder if it was a fact that my daily headache and dyspepsia were due to coffee drinking.

"It never occurred to me that the warning fitted my case.

"I had been on the diet cure for more than ten years, having tried a strictly meat diet, also a strictly vegetable diet, and at other times left off breakfast for a time and again left off dinner; but all these efforts were futile in ridding me of the steady half-sick condition under which I labored.

"I had never once thought of over-hauling 'dear old coffee,' but when it finally occurred to me to make the trial and take up Postum, I immediately discovered where the difficulty all these years came from. I now eat anything for breakfast, as much as I desire, doing justice to a good meal, and the same at lunch and dinner, with never a headache or any disagreeable symptom. My only 'crankiness' now is to know that I have Postum served as it should be made, that is, properly boiled. There is a vast difference between poorly made Postum and good.

"C. E. Hasty, of Alameda, Calif., insists that he owes his life to me because I introduced him to Postum. I have a number of friends who have been finally cured of stomach and bowel trouble by the use of Postum Food Coffee in place of regular coffee.

"Please do not use my name."

D. J. H., 1223 Bremen St., Cincinnati, Ohio.

10,000 AGENTS WANTED.
FOR LIFE & SPEECHES OF BRYAN

The "Life" is written by Mrs. Bryan. The Speeches revised by Mr. Bryan, but he is not pecuniarily interested in its publication. A golden opportunity for agents. Don't miss it. One agent sold 57 copies in one week; another 67 copies in 10 days; another 17 copies first day. Everybody will buy it: Democrat, Republican, Populist and Prohibitionist. The demand exists. It is only necessary for agents to supply it.

$200.00 GIVEN

for selling 200 books in 3 months. Other liberal inducements. Will guarantee good parties a salary. Distance is no hindrance as freight is paid. Credit given. Circulars, instructions, outfit etc., free, but 25 cents must be sent for mailing. Act quick.

R. H. WOODWARD CO., Baltimore, Md.

NOTICE—We also desire to employ agents for selling our book on the "Paris Exposition", beautifully illustrated. We also publish "Life of McKinley" and other campaign books.

MOODY and INGERSOLL
CONTRASTED.....
Their Testimony IN LIFE——IN DEATH
BY EVANGELIST H. M. WHARTON, D.D.
Price 15 CENTS by mail. Address
National Evangelization Society
1022 Witherspoon Bldg. - - - - Philadelphia Pa.

Church Furnishings
Pulpits, Pulpit Chairs, Communion Tables, Seating, etc. Send for catalogue.
G. W. PERKINS, Mgr., Grand Rapids School Furniture Works. Eastern Office, 814 Constable Bldg., New York. Western Office, Corner Wabash Avenue and Washington St., Chicago.

...State Manager...

WANTED—Ladies or Gentlemen to appoint and manage agents for our Bibles and other books and attend to collections. Fair salary and expenses advanced to the right party. Work can be done at home or by traveling. No snap. Permanent. No investment required. Apply with self-addressed stamped envelope and references to
PROVIDENCE PUBLISHING CO.,
58 C, 334 Dearborn St., Chicago.

FREE SCHOLARSHIP
IN Electrical, Mechanical, Marine, Stationary or Locomotive ENGINEERING
NUMBER LIMITED. WRITE IMMEDIATELY
AMERICAN SCHOOL OF CORRESPONDENCE, Boston, Mass.

School Teachers Wanted for summer employment. Home to home work for the Moody Colportage Library. Easy of introduction. Intelligent Christian people find plan especially remunerative. No previous experience essential. Write to-day.
A. P. FITT, Supt. 252 LaSalle Ave., Chicago. or East Northfield, Mass.

BLYMYER CHURCH BELLS. UNLIKE OTHER BELLS SWEETER, MORE DURABLE, LOWER PRICE. OUR FREE CATALOGUE TELLS WHY.
Write to Cincinnati Bell Foundry Co., Cincinnati, O.

Individual Communion Outfits. Send for free catalogue and list of users.
SANITARY COMMUNION OUTFIT CO., Dept. 6, Rochester, N. Y.

Gospel Hymns for Summer Meetings
THE CHURCH HYMNS AND GOSPEL SONGS.
Sample Music Edition, 20 cts. Words only, 10 cts.
THE BIGLOW & MAIN CO., New York and Chicago.

GEMS FROM NEW BOOKS

An Eviction*

WE walked to Fourth avenue, took a car to the corner of Houston street and the Bowery, and then proceeded down Houston street to the corner of Orchard. I had not often seen this property, but I had a general recollection of its location. On directing our steps toward it we observed, near the entrance to the house, a number of children and grown persons, perhaps a dozen in all, grouped in a semicircle on the sidewalk and street. In the centre of the group, seated beside a pile of household furniture, was a girl of ten sobbing, as she slowly tied together the corners of a handkerchief in which lay some personal belongings. Beside her, a child of three or four was playing contentedly among tins and frying-pans, while a boy, a few years older, stood disconsolate, bawling loudly, with his two dirty fists pressed against his face.

The crowd gave way a moment, and out from the hallway came two men, bearing a stove, which they added to the collection on the sidewalk. This collection seemed now to be complete, for the two men, after setting down the stove, pulled off their hats, wiped their foreheads, and moved away toward Orchard street. Last, there came from the hall door a middle-aged woman, apparently a German. A rusty black shawl was drawn over her head and shoulders, and over a bundle which she carried in her arms. A few plaintive cries, coming from under the shawl, showed that she was carrying an infant. The woman gazed about her, saying nothing, and apparently not noticing the crowd, which had by this time increased. Walking with uncertain steps to the edge of the sidewalk, she sat down on the curb, bent her head, and, drawing forward the shawl so as almost to hide her countenance, she rocked slowly back and forth, singing—or moaning—in a low voice, what seemed to be a song to the infant in her arms.

At the corner of the street a policeman had been standing. He now sauntered down toward the crowd, stopped at the pile of household goods on the sidewalk, then walked toward the woman and touched her on the shoulder.

"Here," said he. "You must take these things off the sidewalk."

The woman drew back her shawl, and looked up at the policeman blankly.

"These things have got to get off the sidewalk," said he. "Do you understand? And you, too, or I'll have to take you along."

One of the men who had been standing in the crowd—a thick-set man, hatless, in his shirt-sleeves, and smoking a pipe—walked up to the policeman.

"Officer," he said, "wait a minute. Let's see if we can't fix this up for her." Then turning, he walked back to the crowd and said: "Friends, this is none of our affairs, but her husband is in the hospital. Can we raise enough to put her back in the house? Does anybody want to put in with me? Here's mine." And he took from his pocket a half-dollar.

Dorothy had been much moved. "How pitiful!" she said, "I am going over to her."

"No," said I, "not yet. Wait and see what happens."

Glancing about me I observed, among the persons who, attracted by the crowd, were moving down from Houston street, a figure that seemed familiar. It was my friend Bradley, the plumber, in his working clothes, and carrying on his shoulder a bag of tools. He bowed and was about to pass us without speaking, when I stopped him.

"Mr. Bradley," I said, "have you a minute or two to devote to a little work of humanity on my account?"

"By all means, Mr. Morton," he replied.

"Then will you go over and find out how much balance is needed to pay that woman's rent and put her back in her rooms? I want to contribute what is needed, but I prefer not to appear."

. . .

The agent came forward with an air of great politeness when we were announced in his office. A smile of superiority and pity seemed to play upon his countenance as we seated ourselves in his private office; and he began:

"Mr. Morton, I congratulate you on the sympathy you show for your delinquent tenants. I assure you, I have very few clients who would allow such a feeling to upset their whole system of rent collecting. I am afraid I don't quite understand what your policy is to be, and I took the liberty of asking you to call, so that we might come to some understanding."

"I have formulated no policy," I said, "and I certainly want my rents collected. But I would as certainly rescue any unfortunate woman from the clutches of a brutal evictor, and be glad of the chance. I suppose you were ignorant of the circumstances of the case, and didn't know the poor woman's husband was sick in the hospital."

"Yes, we knew it," replied the agent. "We knew the circumstances. The man is sober, and prompt when he has work."

"Then why not take that into consideration?"

"We did."

"How?"

"Well, if it were only a question of that particular tenant, we might let it go. But we have to consider the effect on the others, and to-day's eviction would have been a most excellent example. It would have shown those people that no excuse is good on rent day. If they understand the owner interfered with the collector, and ordered an evicted tenant put back, there's an end of rent in that quarter."

"What would the poor woman have done," I asked, "left in the street with her three small children?"

"What will you do with them next month if they don't pay their rent?" asked the agent. "Or six months or a year from now? You are out ten dollars already, and that's the least of it. I don't suppose you are going to turn your properties into charitable institutions. A man can do his duty toward unfortunate humanity by contributing to the regular charitable organizations, as I do, as the collector, who you said was brutal, perhaps does. But every man who knows anything about business must understand where charity ends and business begins. Now, of course, you see that if our regular methods are to be upset as they have been to-day, why naturally there's no use in our attempting to manage your collections."

"Thank you, I will consider it," said I, and we took our leave.

* From Let there be Light. The story of a workingman's club, its search for the causes of poverty and social inequality, its discussions and its plan for the amelioration of existing evils. By David Lubin. Pp. 526; publishers, G. P. Putnam's Sons, New York.

No Escape from Gethsemane*

FOR Gethsemane comes in our own life, as truly as into Christ's. Every Christian has his Gethsemane. Gethsemane lies on the way to the kingdom where God's will is done perfectly. It is part of the royal road by which all the King's sons are led home. Christ saves none of his saints from Gethsemane, but he saves them with the fulness of his salvation in it. Yes; sooner or later each one of us has to leave the haunts of men, and at a cold midnight must be out alone and come to the place "where is a garden." There will be but one path for our feet when the experience comes to us, and it will lead to a gate, and we shall hear a voice among the trees calling us and we shall need to go in. But often, often we go up to its gate swinging on its hinge, and we refuse to enter. And yet we must some time go in. Many good Christians make no progress just because they will not enter their Gethsemane. Many come to it long, slow years after their conversion, and they need to be driven into it at the last in haste and with fear. This is why God needs to lay sore chastenings one after another upon our families and friends. And some never come to it until the very end, and this is why so many saints have long and troubled deathbeds. They will not enter the garden to take the Gethsemane cup and speak the Gethsemane prayer; and Christ cannot take any of us to heaven until we have learned to say in quietest resignation, "Not my will, but thine be done." The strife is still unfinished, the struggle of life is still to come with sweat and blood, the midnight agony of the heart is still to be borne, if we have not yielded our will in entire surrender to God in our own Gethsemane.

* From The Evening and the Morning. By the Rev. Armstrong Black. Here are six Scripture Studies, the product of a deeply spiritual mind, which cannot be read without making a deep impression on, and proving wonderfully profitable to, other spiritual minds. Pp. 159. Price, $1.00. Publishers, The American Tract Society, New York.

A Descendant of Whitefield

IN the death of the Rev. George W. McMillan, at Kenansville, N. C., on June 5, there passed away one of the few remaining descendants of the world-famous Christian preacher.

THE LATE REV. J. W. M'MILLAN

George Whitefield. Mr. McMillan was born in Wilmington, N. C., July 24, 1850. He was ordained to the Presbyterian ministry in 1874, and served faithfully and acceptably during a remarkably active life. One of his fellow pastors, in a recent letter to his widow, wrote:

"I never knew a purer character than your husband, or a more unselfish servant of our Master. His clear view of truth, his lofty conception of duty, his gentle spirit, his blameless life, and his unwavering faith in God, made him a most useful minister of Christ, even after physical infirmities had laid him aside from the active work of the ministry. If character is the great end of life, he measured up to the fullest standard of a successful life."

Pastor McMillan was greatly beloved by his own people and by a very large circle of others outside of his immediate parish, who knew his worth, and his earnest labors for the spiritual welfare of all around him.

The Religious Census

The Director of the Census has received many letters asking whether the religious statistics of the population are to be taken in the present census. The eighth section of the Census Act provides that "after the completion and return of the enumeration and of the work upon the schedules relating to the products of agriculture, and to manufacturing and mechanical establishments provided for in section seven of this Act," that is, after July 1, 1902, "the Director of the Census is hereby authorized to collect statistics relating to" several subjects specified, of which one reads: "to religious bodies." Under the language of this section nothing can be done, except in a preparatory way, with reference to the collection of religious statistics for the ensuing two years. The question whether they shall be collected or not is entirely within his official discretion.

PARAFFINE WAX
Don't tie the top of your jelly and preserve jars in the old fashioned way. Seal them by the new, quick, absolutely sure way—by a thin coating of pure, refined Paraffine Wax. Has no taste or odor. Is air tight and acid proof. Easily applied. Useful in a dozen other ways about the house. Full directions with each pound cake.
Sold everywhere.
Made by STANDARD OIL CO.

AGENTS WANTED.
$2.50 Sample Outfit FREE.

$1.10 Postpaid
Dr. Scott's Electric Corsets; a perfect fit and Nature's own remedy for backache, nervousness, indigestion, headache, liver and kidney trouble; complexion tonic, salve and soaps. Dr. Scott's Electric Hair Brushes for falling Hair.
GEO. A. SCOTT,
Room / 842 B'dway, New York.

It Is a Certainty That Catarrh can be removed. You will believe it after using a sample of Dr. Blosser's Catarrh Cure. Mailed free. Address Dr. J. W. Blosser & Son, 50 Broad St., Blosser Building, Atlanta, Ga.

The Natural Body Brace advertised in this paper in the first issue of this month, is a delightful, certain remedy for ailments peculiar to women and girls. It makes walking and work easy; gives good figure and light step. Write the Natural Body Brace Co., Box 171, Salina, Kan., for free illustrated book.

3 Elegant New Upright PIANOS $125. Standard makes taken in trade, must sacrifice. Not in piano business. Best references. Save money by writing quick. O. D. Weaver, 195 Wabash ave, Chicago.

HAIR INSOLES keep feet clean and dry. Prevent jar in walking. Relieve Rheumatism, Callous, Tender and Perspiring Feet. 10c., 3 pair 25c., postpaid. The Wm. H. Wiley & Son Co., Box D, Hartford, Ct.

BOYS PAPER FREE if you will send names of 5 boy friends over 12 years of age we will send you the Star for 3 months free. Greatest boys' paper published. Address with stamp, THE STAR, Dept. 30, OAK PARK, ILLS.

$75 Month and Expenses; no experience needed; position permanent; self-seller, PEASE MFG. CO., Stat'n A, Cincinnati, O.

STARK TREES best by test—74 YEARS. WE WANT MORE SALESMEN PAY CASH WEEKLY Stark Nursery, Louisiana, Mo; Dansville, N.Y.

Soap-heredity.

Women who use soap don't do so because they know it's the best. Probably they haven't given a thought to the matter. They inherit the soap-habit—their mothers and grandmothers did, before them.

Women who use Pearline do so, because they have used soap and Pearline, and have found Pearline to be better—more effective, saving time and rubbing; just as harmless, and more economical. 587

Millions NOW USE Pearline

THE EVIL OF ENVY*

How the Prodigal's Elder Brother Revealed His Narrowness of Spirit

ONE of the heroes of ancient Rome is represented by a great historian as in a great crisis, thinking of himself first and of the welfare of his country afterward, which, the historian says, was the fatalest course then and always. Yet it is a very common course. Every one knows men who make themselves and their own interests the first consideration in deciding every question, and who espouse or oppose any project, not on its merits, but according as it may affect their own individual welfare. When a man becomes so selfish as that, he is apt to go a step further and to grudge another his prosperity and to regard any good fortune befalling another as a wrong to himself. Such people cannot bear to see another promoted or to hear another praised, as if in some way the honor meant disparagement of themselves. The elder brother in the parable had so far yielded to this disposition as to lose natural affection. He could not join in the rejoicing over his brother's restoration because his own merits had received no such recognition. On such an occasion one would have thought he might have forgotten himself in the general thankfulness that the wanderer had returned. But his disposition was soured, and envy had taken the place of fraternal love.

In his remonstrance, the elder brother reveals himself as not only oblivious of his relationship to the prodigal, whom he refers to as "thy son," but as forgetful of his relation to his father. He takes the position of a servant, not of a son. "Lo these many years do I serve thee." All his blamelessness and good conduct had been service rendered, not filial devotion. His conduct had been dutiful, and compared with that of the prodigal was worthy of all praise, but his fatal defect was in the absence of heart. His father was his master; his brother was his rival. Many blameless people show the same disposition in relation to God. Their good conduct, in their own view, constitutes a debt which they expect God to pay. They hope to be rewarded in the next life, if not in this, for their good behavior. Such a view ignores the essential principle of Christianity that goodness consists in being, and only indirectly in doing. The kingdom of God is for those who have the heavenly spirit. Good deeds will come from them because they have the springs of good in them, but it is the disposition, the godlike mind which counts. The good deeds which are done for the sake of the reward, the honesty which is practised because it is the best policy, are foreign to the true spirit of Christianity. It is the pure in heart, the poor in spirit, the meek, the merciful, on whom the blessing is pronounced. In such minds the spirit of envy has no place.

It would be a grievous mistake to suppose that in a comparison of the two brothers, Christ intended to hold the younger as superior to the elder. The younger had lost his patrimony; nothing could restore that. Even in his joy over the recovery of his son, the father acknowledges the elder son's rights: "All that I have is thine." Sin is always loss and repentance does not undo the past. The repentant prodigal must be a poor man working for a livelihood or dependent on his wealthy brother for support. But his spirit is changed and it is that which causes his father's heart to rejoice. His boy is no longer an alien and a wanderer, dead to him. The boy is saved if the estate is lost. The elder son could not understand the father's joy. As Jonah said in his reproach of God: "I knew that thou art a gracious God and merciful, slow to anger and of great kindness," so the elder son regards all the jubilation as a sign of weakness. This feast should have been kept for him who had not transgressed his father's commandment at any time. Why should this evildoer's reformation be so celebrated? He forgot the value of a soul. The restoration of the prodigal was the recovery of a brother, but that fact occasions him no gladness. It is of the past years of his own service that he thinks. Apparently they count for nothing and his narrow soul has no room in it for thankfulness that a brother is saved and has received a father's welcome.

* Topic of the Christian Endeavor Society, Epworth League and Baptist Young People's Union for Aug. 5. Luke 15: 25-32.

Souls Captured by Song

The Religious Work of B. P. Stout, Pennsylvania's Singing Evangelist

COUNTLESS thousands have been won to Christ by the power of sacred song. Names like those of Bliss, McGranahan, Jacobs and Sankey recall stories of triumphant Gospel song that thrill the heart.

B. P. STOUT, THE SINGING EVANGELIST

A new singing evangelist, whose work has been notably blessed, is Prof. B. P. Stout, of Philadelphia. He was born of Methodist parents in Flemington, N. J.; was converted in a remarkable way while still in his "teens," and united with the Baptist church. Endowed by nature with a voice of unusual power and sweetness, he devoted it, from the day of his new birth, to the service of God. Establishing himself in business in Hightstown, N. J., he entered at once and heartily into the religious life of the borough. His voice was carefully trained. Soon after removing his business to Philadelphia a great crisis came in his life. This was the call to give up his business and devote his whole time to the work of singing evangelism. Not supposing himself to have any gifts as a speaker, the struggle was a severe one; but as soon as it became clear to him that the call was a real one, he decided to obey. He closed up his business, and from that time until now—some five or six years—the Master's work has kept him busy.

Mr. Stout's method is peculiar. His usual way is to have the pastor have complete charge of the meetings, do the preaching and direct affairs, while he serves as "pastor's helper." His natural capacities, however, and his hunger for souls, usually reverse this plan and make him director, doing much of the speaking as well as singing, and appealing with marvelous persistence to the unsaved to yield to Christ. On one occasion he closed the first meeting at half past nine in the evening, announcing an after-meeting which closed at 10.15, following which was another after-meeting of half an hour, and after that still another lasting till near midnight. With no urging, nearly all stayed until the very close, and during each of the after-meetings additional converts were won. Besides these meetings—some of them all-day gatherings, without even a break for meals—his work takes him into the homes of people, and his greatest triumphs have been by the fireside of rebellious spirits, where he has been many times known to plead and pray for hours with people (who could not be touched in a meeting) until they were brought to Christ. He is a man of almost superhuman endurance, laboring sometimes thus during the whole day, pouring out his heart and continuing his work in meetings far into the night, only to begin the same thing again on the morrow.

Mr. Stout is still a young man, the sands of whose life have not, in the natural course, half run out yet. He was over thirty before the Master's call to evangelism thrilled his heart; but he has entered so quickly, heartily and triumphantly into it that we may expect his public ministry to cover a generation, quicken hundreds of discouraged churches and light thousands into the Kingdom.

M.

CHRIST.... RATHER THAN THE WORLD

THERE is no sign of greater promise for the world's betterment than is found in the fact that the youthful members of so many wealthy families are turning—and turning in no spirit of painful renunciation, but joyfully, as choosing the better, happier way—from all that the world can offer them, to take upon them the yoke of active service to the Master.

"I have simply followed where my inclination has led me, where I conscientiously thought I could best do my duty, and where I shall be happiest," are the words in which young Anson Phelps-Stokes, Jr., disclaiming any sense of sacrifice, voiced his reasons for entering the ministry.

Mr. Stokes is only twenty-six, the son of one of the oldest, richest, and most influential families in New York City. If he chose to enter society as a gay "carpet knight," the whole fashionable world would welcome him with open arms and glad acclaim. He has just completed his three years' course of preparation at the P. E. Theological Seminary, Cambridge, and received his ordination. No man in his class worked harder for his degree. The bent of his nature was early shown, for before he graduated at Yale in 1896, he had made himself prominent in religious and missionary work. For a year after leaving Yale he traveled, not merely as a sightseer, but with the purpose of studying missionary work in China, India, Japan, and other Oriental countries. On his return he entered Cambridge, whence he now goes to Yale, where, as secretary of the institution, much administrative work will be under his direction, his purely ecclesiastical work being in connection with St. Paul's P. E. Church, the pulpit of which he fills Sunday evenings. He is an earnest, vigorous, manly young fellow, and his whole college life has been marked by simple living and hard work, in which he takes delight.

Mr. Stokes' choice is not more significant than that which his elder brothers are making. Mr. Newton Phelps-Stokes is well known as a student of conditions in the tenement districts of New York, and is one of the most active members of the Tenement House Commission, recently appointed by Governor Roosevelt. Young Mr. Graham Phelps-Stokes, the third brother, has left the family residence on Madison avenue, New York, to live in the University Settlement, where he is one of the very best workers.

DOCTOR'S FOOD TALK.

Selection of Food One of the Most Important Acts in Life.

Old Dr. Hanaford, of Reading, Mass., says in the "Messenger": "Our health and physical and mental happiness are so largely under our personal control that the proper selection of food should be, and is, one of the most important acts of life.

On this subject, I may say that I know of no food equal in digestibility, and more powerful in point of nutriment, than the modern Grape-Nuts, four heaping teaspoons of which is sufficient for the cereal part of a meal, and experience demonstrates that the user is perfectly nourished from one meal to another.

"I am convinced that the extensive and general use of high class foods of this character would increase the term of human life, add to the sum total of happiness and very considerably improve society in general. I am free to mention the food, for I personally know of its value."

Grape-Nuts food can be used by babes in arms, or adults. It is ready cooked, can be served instantly, either cold with cream or with hot water or hot milk poured over. All sorts of puddings and fancy dishes can be made with Grape-Nuts. The food is concentrated and very economical, for four heaping teaspoons are sufficient for the cereal part of a meal.

Brain Workers

Business men and students require a food which, while of the very highest nutrition, is palatable and easily digested. Mind and body are accounted entirely distinct. Yet, that which best nourishes the one is the best aliment for the other.

Cream of Wheat

chiefly gluten phosphates, is the ideal food for this class of people.

Ask your grocer for our booklet which tells many dainty and hearty ways of cooking it.

Cream of Wheat Co., Minneapolis, Minn.

The IDEAL Steam Cooker

Cooks a whole meal over one burner, on gasoline, oil, gas, or common cook stove.

Reduces Fuel Bills One-half

Makes tough meats tender. Prevents steam and odors. Whistle blows when cooker needs more water. Dinner Sets, Bicycles, Watches, and other Valuable Premiums given with order for Cookers. Send for illustrated catalogue. We pay express. Agents Wanted.

TOLEDO COOKER CO., Box 16, Toledo, O.

MONEY MAKER For AGENTS

MEN or WOMEN

OUR ALL METAL NEW STYLE PASTRY BOARD is perfect. Can be sold at sight to every housekeeper. Dough wont stick to it. Has 20 advantages over others. W. H. Oniel, Homestead, Pa., writes, "I made $106.50 in 17 days selling your board." Other agents are doing as well. Write quick for territory, terms and model. METALLIC BREAD BOARD CO., 105 2nd St., Cambridge, O.

As a sustaining diet for the sick, as a tonic food for the convalescent, as a healthful invigorating beverage for the well—Welch's Grape Juice is unequalled. In buying of your dealer be sure the label reads "Welch's." Write the Welch Grape Juice Co., Westfield, N. Y., for free Booklet.

On a day's or a summer's outing

Uneeda Jinjer Wayfer

is just the thing for a lunch or a nibble.

And take along some Uneeda Biscuit.

NATIONAL BISCUIT COMPANY.

Importers O'Neill's Retailers

Dry Goods, Fancy Goods, Cloaks, Costumes, Fine Millinery, Men's and Boys' Clothing and Furnishings, House Furnishing Goods, Fine Furniture, Sewing Machines, Bicycles, Cameras, Books, Groceries, etc., etc.

A Handsomely Illustrated Catalogue of the New Fall and Winter Goods Free to Out-of-Towners

Every Spring and every Fall we issue free to out-of-town applicants a handsome catalogue, which describes and illustrates the newest fashions and kinds of merchandise to be popular during the season. It is a very useful book, particularly to those living outside of the metropolis, for it places the reader in touch with the greatest fashion centre in America, and enables he or she to buy the newest merchandise in the market at the regular New York prices, which means at times a great saving.

Our Fall and Winter Edition Will be Ready Sept. 15

If you want a copy send us your name and address as soon as you read this, for the edition will be limited and will go quickly. Mention this paper.

H. O'Neill & Co., 6th Ave., 20th to 21st Street, New York.

WALTHAM WATCHES

Before 1854 there were no Waltham Watches nor any American Watches. To-day the tradition that one must go abroad for a good watch has been exploded by the American Waltham Watch Company.

Waltham Watches are for sale by all retail jewelers.

Fresh Air and Sunshine
are essential to the invalid. We build to order every size and style of

WHEEL CHAIR
and TRICYCLE
for Cripples and Invalids.

We will be pleased to quote you prices on our special work. Catalogue free on request.
A. A. FAY TRICYCLE & INVALID CHAIR CO., Elyria, Ohio.

ORNAMENTAL LAWN FENCE

Cheaper than wood. Special Prices to Churches and Cemeteries. Strong, Durable and Cheap. Catalogue Free.
COILED SPRING FENCE CO. Box D. Winchester, Indiana.

BLUE FLAME
Sell the best, BIG MONEY in it. The U. S. OIL GAS BURNER is the best. Guaranteed heat, cook and bake. No smoke, ashes or dirt. TRY IT, THEN PAY FOR IT. Write for special offer. U. S. HEAT & LIGHT CO., Washington, D. C.

OPIUM, MORPHINE and Liquor Habit overcome in 10 to 20 days. No pay till accomplished. Book of particulars free. Address Dr. J. L. Stephens, Dept. R. 5, Lebanon, Ohio.

"If at first you don't succeed," Try SAPOLIO

Eastman Kodak Co.'s BROWNIE CAMERAS

$1.00

Make pictures 2¼ x 2¼ inches. Load in Daylight with our six exposure film cartridges and are so simple they can be easily

Operated by Any School Boy or Girl.

Fitted with fine Meniscus lenses and our improved rotary shutters for snap shots or time exposures. Strongly made, covered with imitation leather, have nickeled fittings and produce the best results.

Brownie Camera, for 2¼ x 2¼ pictures, - - - $1.00
Transparent-Film Cartridge, 6 exposures, 2¼ x 2¼, - .15
Brownie Developing and Printing Outfit, - - .75

Ask your dealer or write us for a Brownie Camera Club Constitution. $500.00 in Kodak prizes to the members.

EASTMAN KODAK CO., Rochester, N. Y.

FOR THE TEETH.

RUBIFOAM

A FRAGRANT, ANTISEPTIC DENTIFRICE. ONLY BENEFIT CAN FOLLOW ITS USE. DO NOT ACCEPT ANY SUBSTITUTE FOR RUBIFOAM. PRICE, 25 CENTS AT DRUGGISTS.

Sample vial free on receipt of 2 cent stamp. Address
E. W. HOYT & CO., Lowell, Mass.

CHRONIC Rheumatism

A physician in Spotswood, N. J., writes: 'Mr. B—— called on me a few days ago and left with me a sample bottle of Tartarlithine, which I gave to a patient with an obstinate case of chronic rheumatism. As soon as the Tartarlithine was used, the patient sent for more of the remedy, stating that it had acted splendidly. The same patient had taken every preparation and combination conceivable. I would be glad if you would send a couple of bottles for this patient and for another in similar trouble. Yours, &c., J. G. D.

Tartarlithine is supplied in bottles containing 50 doses at $1.00, and can be obtained of all druggists or post-free by mail. Pamphlets with Testimonials sent free.

McKESSON & ROBBINS
91 Fulton Street New York
SOLE AGENTS FOR THE TARTARLITHINE CO.

TARTAN PILLS
For Constipation, Torpid Liver, Bilious Headaches, &c., which often accompany Rheumatic conditions.
25c. per Bottle

ESKAY'S FOOD

MUST HAVE HER ESKAY'S, the only food that would agree with her.

"Photograph of our little girl, Marion Jean, aged 22 months. Last summer, when Marion was sick, we used Eskay's Food for her on recommendation of our doctor, and found it the only food which would agree with her. It has been her daily portion ever since, and although she is old enough to take more solid nourishment, and does, too, she must have her bottle of Eskay's handy all the time, and especially to go to sleep on." Signed, W. R. Harley, Milwaukee, Wis.

Eskay's Food is the only food that agrees with Marion because it is the only food combining both animal and vegetable matter—hen's eggs and cereals.

And this feature makes Eskay's Food as valuable for adults in impoverished health as for new-born infants.

Nourishes from Infancy to Old Age.

Sample free, by writing to Smith, Kline & French Co., Philadelphia.

GREAT FACTORY CLEARING SALE
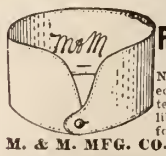
6000 new '99 model bicycles carried over, must be closed out at once. Price each, complete $11
SECOND-HAND wheels, good as new; over 50 makes and models. Each . . $3 to $10
1900 MODELS, strictly high-grade makes, all styles fully guaranteed $11 to $20
We ship anywhere on approval and trial before you pay a cent.
BICYCLE FREE for carefully distributing 1000 catalogues for us.
One agent wanted in each town for this purpose. Write at once for our special proposition.
MEAD CYCLE CO., Dept 41 H, Chicago



WHITE and FANCY RUBBER COLLARS, CUFFS,
BOSOMS and TIES. Always laundryed; Never wilt; can't be told from linen. Mailed anywhere. Fully patented and guaranteed; Agents wanted; exclusive territory; liberal commission. Send 4 cts. in stamps for Samples, Catalog 150 styles, and terms.
M. & M. MFG. CO., Dept. 17, Springfield, Mass.

WATCH AND CHAIN FOR ONE DAY'S WORK.

Boys and Girls can get a Nickel-Plated Watch, also a Chain and Charm for selling 1½ doz. Packages of Bluine at 10 cents each. Send your full address by return mail and we will forward the Bluine, post-paid, and a large Premium List. No money required.
BLUINE CO. Box 3 Concord Junction, Mass.

A-CORN SALVE costs nothing to try.

Send name and address on postal, and you will get a trial box by return mail.
Giant Chemical Co., Philadelphia.

Catalogue of Famous Maryland made-to order clothing free. Lithographed Catalogue of Famous Maryland Carpets free. Freight paid on carpets, expressage on clothing.
Julius Hines & Son, Baltimore, Md., Dept. 218.

RUPTURE The Improved Elastic Truss is the only Truss in existence that is worn with absolute comfort night and day, and it retains the rupture under the hardest exercise or severest strain, and will effect a permanent and speedy relief. Competent lady always in attendance for ladies, or to answer correspondence from women. Our goods are not sold by agents or druggists. Send for free pamphlets to the Improved Elastic Truss Co., 768 Broadway, New York. ESTABLISHED 18 YEARS.

CHRISTIAN HERALD

AND SIGNS OF OUR TIMES

OFFICES: BIBLE HOUSE, NEW YORK

Rev. T. De Witt Talmage, D.D., Editor

COPYRIGHT 1900, BY LOUIS KLOPSCH

NEW YORK, AUGUST 1, 1900

VOLUME 23—NUMBER 31

PRICE FIVE CENTS

REV. DR. TALMAGE PREACHING TO A GREAT OPEN-AIR AUDIENCE AT EDINBURGH, SCOTLAND SEE PAGE 629

Our Mail-Bag

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

1. These questions are printed Four weeks in advance so as to afford all our readers an opportunity to answer them.
2. For answers to the questions which appear below, when accepted, we will allow compensation for the matter used at the rate of One Dollar a hundred words. Answers should so far as possible be limited to one hundred words.
3. Answers must be received at this office two weeks in advance of the date in which they are intended to appear.
4. The editor reserves the right to condense accepted answers when necessary, and compensation will be based on the matter as printed.
5. Do not write inquiring if your material has been accepted. If it appears on this page, you will know that it has been accepted.
6. We cannot return any MSS. sent to the Editor of THE MAIL BAG—not even if stamps accompany them.
7. Write only on one side of the sheet and never send on the same sheet anything intended for any other department of the paper. Correspondents answering more than one question should append their name and address to each answer.
8. Address all communications intended for this department, EDITOR THE MAIL-BAG,
The Christian Herald, Bible House, New York.

These Questions Will be Answered Aug. 29

1. What is the origin of what is known as the ladies' "Leap-year privilege"?
2. What is the best estimate of the earth's weight, and how is it ascertained?
3. Who were the original "Seven Wise Men" of Greece, and why were they so designated?
4. If a man commits a sin unknowingly, will it be counted against him, whether he afterwards finds out his sin or not?
5. Did the Psalmist in Psalm 84:3 mean to imply that birds really built nests on the temple altars? If not, what was his meaning?
6. What should be done with a church building which is in a city and is hallowed by sacred associations, when the members of the church have moved to the suburbs and few people attend its services?
7. Is it the duty of a pastor to instruct his hearers on the duties of Christian citizenship, or should he devote his sermons exclusively to the Gospel?
8. Are recent events in China and South Africa in any way a fulfilment of prophecy?
9. What will be the fate of the heathen after death?
10. What is the best method of conducting a Question-box meeting?

Questions of the Week

1. On being introduced to a stranger, when the stranger remarks: "I am glad to meet you;" what is the best form of reply?

It must depend wholly upon the relative social position of the parties to the introduction. To an equal, the reply might be a slight bow and a "Thank you, the pleasure is mutual." To a social inferior, one might cordially answer: "Thank you," without further expression. To one very much higher in station, it is quite evident that a different answer would naturally rise to the lips and it would not be out of place to say: "Thank you, I feel honored in making your acquaintance;" or, "It gives me pleasure," etc. A lady, however, it is hardly necessary to explain, will not make any such remark as by common courtesy, since she condescends to an introduction, all she need give in acknowledging such greeting is a smile and a slight inclination, or at most a "Thank you," although the latter is not necessary.
ROBERT VYSE.

2. Was the conduct of Esther in pleading for another day of destruction (Esther 9: 12, 13) worthy of commendation?

The request of Esther was simply that it might "be granted to the Jews who are in Shushan to do to-morrow also according to this day's decree," but what was this day's decree which the queen desired to be continued another day? Merely "to stand for their life" against all that would assault them (Esther 8: 11). "Hence we infer," says Dr. Terry, "that the queen had reason to suspect that the enemies of the Jews in Shushan would renew the attack on the following day." It is clearly a mistake to pronounce Esther's plea, as some have done, the offspring of a blood-thirsty vengeance. The event showed that there were desperate persons who had resolved not to let the matter stop with the thirteenth of Adar and so recommenced the fight on the next day. It was to secure her people against such an attack that Esther had wisely made her request. AMELIA HOYT.

3. What is the smallest republic in the world and where is it situated?

Goust, which is situated on the summit of a high mountain in the Department of the Lower Pyrenees, France, about thirty miles from Oleron. It consists only of a few scattered cottages with a population of about one hundred persons, forming an industrious and thriving community whose sole occupation is the weaving of wool and silk. Close to them is the gorge of the Gave d'Ossau. Belonging neither to France nor Spain, the hamlet constitutes a small independent State, under the government of an assembly of old men called the Council. They pay no taxes or imposts of any kind, and therefore have no need of collectors, and neither have they mayor, priest or physician. In the neighboring parish of Laruns, their children are baptized, their citizens married and their dead buried. The young men secure their wives, principally, from the Ossau valley, and the girls of the republic their husbands from the gars of the low-lying regions about them. Among the peaceful residents of this microscopic republic are several centenarians and in 1605 a man died there aged 123 years. No one is poor and none is rich. There is no master or servant. Their language is a mixture of French and Spanish. Franceville, one of the New Hebrides, is also called the smallest republic.
WILLIAM GERMAINE.

4. Do evolutionists expect a higher order of beings will be developed, or that evolution has reached its limit?

Evolutionists hold that when man, the highest order of being, commenced to invent tools for his use, further development stopped. When he wished to see farther he invented the telescope; when he wished to travel faster, the wagon, steam engine and bicycle, so that it was not necessary for his vision to become stronger or powers of locomotion to increase, and the same with the innumerable articles that have been and are still being invented for his use till the power of man seems almost illimitable. HATTIE A. AMES.

5. What parts of the world are inhabited exclusively by men, and what part exclusively by women?

The village of Fernando Noronha, on an island off the coast of Brazil, is a penal settlement for male convicts only. No women, it is said, are ever allowed on the island. None are permitted on the famous Mount Athos Peninsula in Southern Europe, where the monks have held sway in undisputed celibacy for many generations. The "isle of women" is probably Minicoy, a tiny islet in the Indian Ocean, between the Laccadive and Maldive groups. Men, it is said, are found on the island only a few months in each year, being engaged the rest of the year in fishing. Again, the island of Serodah, near Goa, west coast of India, is inhabited solely by dancing girls.
A. HOLMAN.

6. What is the origin of the military phrase "to give no quarter?"

It owes its origin to the fact that when the Spanish and the Dutch were at war with each other, they made an agreement that the ransom of a soldier should be the quarter of his pay. Hence the command "to give no quarter," originally meant to take no prisoners and hold them for ransom, but to slay them all. As the phrase is used to-day there is no reference to ransom. G. A. HAURY.

7. Is there any way of explaining the miracle of the sun and moon standing still (Joshua 10: 12, 13) seeing that their standing still would not have the effect of prolonging the time for slaughter?

Several modes of explaining the miracle have been suggested. There are some who insist on the literal truth of the narrative and believe that the sun did really stop at the command of Joshua. But there is this objection to that explanation, that the stoppage of the sun would not have lengthened the day, which was Joshua's object. Astronomers tell us that the sun's motion through the heavens is simply carrying the planets with it in an immense orbit, and does not affect the length of the day. In order to lengthen the day the earth's rotation on its own axis must be stopped, as it is that which produces day and night. Therefore it is obvious that some other explanation than that of the literal truth of the narrative must be sought to account for the lengthening of the day. A second explanation is that the author of the book of Joshua did not accept the narrative as true, and, therefore, gave his authority for the tradition, which was the book of Jasher. This was a poetical work now lost. It is suggested that this poet took the poet's license of idealizing a great victory. Maimonides, the learned Jew, took this view. He represents Joshua as praying that the victory might be fully consummated before sunset and that more was accomplished that day than could have ordinarily been done in two days. Another explanation is that the miracle was in the laws of light and that by refraction the sun was made to appear in the heavens after it had really set. Still another explanation is that this was a night attack and that what Joshua was really anxious for was that the sun might be hidden and that in answer to his prayer the sun stood still, that is, did not appear, but was obscured by clouds the whole day. JOB CLARKE.

8. What is the history of the letter "J"?

J is a modified I. It is not found in the Latin or other ancient languages. It seems to have originated in a mere fancy of the scribes. In the fifteenth century the i symbol was drawn a little below the line to denote the consonantal as distinguished from the vowel sound of that letter. By degrees this symbol was curved slightly to the left until its form was j. The capital letter came still later into use, being made to correspond with the little j. This is the statement of the highest authorities. Others have it that "the Dutch scholars of the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries first introduced a regular distinction between the consonantal and vowel sounds of i, and marked the former by the distinct character j."
G. E. KRAUTH.

9. When there is a labor strike, on a question of wages or hours, and men are wanted to fill the places vacated by the strikers, is the Christian workingman justified in offering his services?

Some strikes are just and wise, while others are unjust and foolish. Each one must be judged on its own merits. If with a reasonable amount of information and intelligence to guide him, the Christian workingman judges a strike to be justifiable and right, he ought to sustain it so far as not to offer his services. On the contrary, if he judges the strike to be unjust and wrong, he is quite justified in offering his services. And this rule will hold though he may mistake in judging of the merits of the strike. If he uses his best judgment with impartiality, that is enough; in such a case there can be no higher law.
JOSEPH HAMILTON.

10. When, where and by whom was the "Passion Play" originated?

Some passion plays were produced very early in the Christian era, the first being produced by Gregory Mazianzen, who died about 390 A.D. The Oberammergau Passion Play, originated with the inhabitants of that village in 1633. In that year a deathly plague was raging first in the neighborhood and then in the town itself. After eighty-four had fallen victims and seeing that medical aid could not avail, the terrified people prayed God to stay the epidemic. They combined with their prayer the solemn vow, "that if God would hear their cry, they would represent every ten years for thankful remembrance and edifying contemplation the sufferings of Jesus, the Saviour of the world." The plague ceased, and, it is reported, not a single person succumbed to its fury after the vow was registered. In fulfilment of their pledge they represented the sufferings of Christ in a sacred drama, in which only the devout inhabitants of Oberammergau were permitted to participate, the very next year, 1634. Till 1674 it was observed every tenth year. Then it was decided to have this performance at the beginning of every decade. Accordingly, in 1680, the passion play was acted after an interval of only six years, but thereafter every ten years. Originally it was performed on the village graveyard. Now, however, a large hall has been erected exclusively for the purpose. On account of a manifesto, issued by the Prince-Archbishop of Salzburg, in 1799, by which all miracle and mystery plays were condemned, this passion play was also in danger of being discontinued. But a deputation of Oberammergau peasants pleaded with the King of Bavaria, who, in consideration of its origin, excepted this Passion Play from the general condemnation. HENRY RICHTER.

Miscellaneous Questions

N. H. M., Campbellsville, Ky. A man made the statement here that there had been sixteen Christs before Jesus who had taught good doctrine, had all worked miracles and had all been crucified.

No less than twenty-four false Messiahs have arisen at different times, some authorities say even more. The first of note was Simeon, who arose in the reign of Emperor Hadrian. Others were Moses Cretensis, Dunaan, Julian, Serenus, David Alrui, Zebi, Mordecai, Almasser and David el-David. Nearly all of these, however, were after Christ, and were a verification of his prediction (see Matt. 24: 24). The general assertion referred to in your letter is incapable of proof, and is simply designed to disparage the Founder of Christianity.

"Dottie," Grand Pre, N. S. Who is the author of these lines:

"Who e'er has traveled life's dull round
Where e'er his journey may have been,
Will sigh to think he still has found
His warmest welcome at an inn."

It was written by the famous poet, William Shenstone on the window of an inn in England. In the original, the word "stages" appears instead of "journey," in the second line.

Interested Reader, Palmer. How many parables did Christ speak, and how many are there in the Old Testament?

Our Lord's parables were thirty-eight in number. There are eleven parables in the Old Testament, four of them being of the purely fabular order.

E. J. D., Chicago. What is the extent of the annual deposit of the River Nile?

The yearly alluvial deposit is very small, since, as estimated, not more than five inches are deposited in a century. This average and the fact that the deposits in some places have been examined to the depth of thirty-nine feet, have given rise to many erroneous computations as to the antiquity of articles found at such a depth in the alluvium. Scientists, however, agree that the shifting of the river's banks by the encroachment of the stream may often precipitate fragments of pottery and brick to a depth in the alluvium, which bears no relation to the age of the articles themselves.

Rev. H. F. Snow, Tallapoosa, Ga., sends the following verses apropos of the arrival of the corn-laden Quito at Bombay:

Safely o'er the great wide sea
The Quito made her way;
The angels of the Lord were near
To guard her day by day.
The famine-stricken ones rejoiced
When anchor she had cast;
When to the brim the cars were filled
With golden corn at last!

How many hearts now thrill with joy
On either side the sea!
The donors and the starving ones
All sing in harmony.
The HERALD'S countless readers join
To praise the God of Love
For gifts so timely, well bestowed—
Recorded sure above.

Camille H., Lexington, N. H. What is the origin of the term "Round Robin?"

It is said to have originated amongst the officers of the French army, but the exact circumstances are unknown. Another version is that it was the original form of a protest employed by outlaws in addressing an English king, each name forming part of a circle so that no one might lead the list or appear more prominent than another.

D. K. D., Williamsport, Pa. Is it true that many centuries ago the Chinese expelled the Pope's missionaries after they had succeeded in firmly establishing their religion, but had commenced to interfere with the government of the country to such an extent, that an edict was made against them?

An edict was issued by China in 1665 directed against Catholic missionaries on the ground that their political intrigues were objectionable. In 1718, all except a few missionaries were banished. Their missions were never wholly extinguished.

R. W. B., Sabra, Mont. 1. Why are the rebels of China called the Boxers? 2. When a young man is not certain as to what course in life he is to pursue, how shall he decide?

1. The origin of the Society and the derivation of the name "Boxers" were both fully explained in a recent issue of THE CHRISTIAN HERALD. 2. If he is a very young man, with a choice of a career still open, he should consult with friends if unable to decide personally. If, however, he has reached an age when it is necessary that he should be actively at work and self-supporting, there is no longer time for hesitation; he should seize the first offer of honest employment that presents itself. If he work well and intelligently, no matter in what calling, he may be reasonably sure of advancement. Idleness and vacillation are the two worst foes he has to dread.

Rev. S. F. Grady, City Missionary, Trenton, N. J., writes:

I want to thank THE CHRISTIAN HERALD for the little items which have appeared in its columns concerning my work, and to say that I have received some valuable suggestions from others who are interested in jail evangelization. May I ask your readers to pray that my work among the poor and the prisoners may be owned and blessed in the salvation of many souls.

W. Z., Berlin, Ont. Would you be kind enough to let me know the steps to be taken by an ordinary person from the lowest position to the highest, in order to reach the position of President of the United States?

The question is one that cannot be answered in a paragraph. Procure and read the lives of Washington, Lincoln, Grant and Garfield. From these you will gather some idea of the sort of men this nation loves to honor, and of the development of qualities which led to such distinction.

C. E. C., Frederick, Md. His age is thirty-two.

J. E. S., Little Britain, N. Y. "Hobson's choice" is correct.

Geo. R. M., Iders, Va. Such a course is not keeping good faith. You should be one thing or the other; you cannot be both.

Reader, McLeansboro, Ill. 1. There is nothing wrong in playing such music. 2. Nothing is known of the grandmother on either side.

Joseph E., Loyalton, Pa., makes public acknowledgment through THE CHRISTIAN HERALD of restored health in answer to prayer.

J. P. H., Bucksport, Me. The coin is a Prussian thaler of the reign of William and Augusta. The words on the edge are: "God with us."

Mrs. J. R. G., Grays Landing, Pa. Some of the members of the family died in Africa and the others returned home. These facts were published in this journal.

J. H. H., Apopka, Fla. Ignorance of the law is not accepted as an excuse for its violation. You should go at once to a U. S. District Attorney or Commissioner, explain your omission and declare your readiness to do all that is necessary to set it right. This will show that you erred unintentionally and the official will probably instruct you what to do.

Mrs. J. E. H., Bloomfield, Ind. 1. It is transacting the business of a middle-man, or broker or agent, and is entirely legitimate. You did quite right. 2. It is not necessarily a sign of a fall from grace when one feels unaccountably depressed. It is more likely to be the result of ill-health, worry, or overwork. You should pray for health to make your burdens lighter. 3. They are those who are specially chosen to spread the truth of the Gospel and to exemplify, in their own lives, the beauty of holiness and Christian living.

TESUQUE MAIDEN

TESUQUE INDIANS, GOV. JOSE DOMINGO IN THE CENTRE

NAVAJOS WOMAN WEAVING A BLANKET

In the Land of the Pueblos

ONE of the most interesting experiences possible to the American explorer is to spend a few weeks among the quaint Indian peoples who have made their homes in the Territories of New Mexico and Arizona. Probably the oldest races on the American continent to-day, they have been little affected by the modern civilization around them, yet have adroitly adapted its advantages to their own use, without developing in any appreciable degree, or surrendering the old ideas and social life of their remote ancestors. As one writer who has seen much of the people, says: "It is a land of swart faces, of oriental dress and unspelled speech; a land of ineffable lights and sudden shadows, of polytheism and superstition—the heart of Africa beating againt the ribs of the Rockies." Coronado found them there in 1540 and there they are now, with little change in their habits and but little in their numbers. There are about ten thousand of them, only one half the number of their neighbors, the Navajos, who with the Mexicans, make up the bulk of the population. They are entitled by treaty to the rights of United States citizenship, but they appear indifferent to the privilege and as they ask no help from the Washington Government either in food or supplies, the Government leaves them to their way of life.

As their name implies, they are a settled people, unlike the nomad Navajos whose home is on horseback. But though pueblo means a city, the city in their case is not on the American pattern. Their remote ancestors were the cliff-dwellers, and they seem to have retained their love of that style of architecture. Taos, one of their towns, consists of only two buildings, but those are six story rambling structures teeming with family life. In Acoma there are only three houses. Queer houses they are, too, reminding the spectator of the time when the Pueblo had to fight for his life and property and was accounted fair prey by the Apaches and a host of bloodthirsty, plundering enemies. So the Pueblo built his house with the view to resisting a siege. Toward the open country whence danger might be expected, it presents a perpendicular wall, but toward the plaza it is a series of terraces, each story narrower than the one below it. The lower stories have no doors. When the Pueblo returns from his farming, or sheep-tending, or trading, to his own fireside, he ascends to the roof of his house by a ladder, which he draws up after him. Then by a scuttle in his roof he descends to the interior, much in the same way as his ancestor found his way to his home in the cliffs. Even in these peaceful times the old habit causes him to feel safer if he hears the tramp of a sentry over his head in the hours of the night.

THE TAOS PUEBLO, NEW MEXICO

In former times he used to do his own weaving as well as cultivate the soil, but latterly he has preferred to buy his blankets ready woven from the Navajos, and his wife's picturesque garments from the Moquis. His wife, however, prides herself on the gorgeous girdle she wears, which is the product of her own loom. Now the Pueblo has enough to do in tending his sheep and looking after his vines which bring him no small sum by the sale of grapes and wine every year. He is not an avaricious man, and is content with a small income, which satisfies him if it covers all his modest wants. He loves ease and quietness and so never dies of overwork. He owns his share of about nine hundred thousand acres of land, confirmed to him by Government patent, and from this it is not difficult to extract enough to support himself and his family. In his household economy he has the assistance of his wife, which is exercised in a way that the American white man would scarcely endure. The Pueblo must marry outside his own clan, and he is accepted by his wife's clan, with whom in future he must make his home. His wife owns all the home contains, and though the proceeds of the land belong to him while they are on the land, no sooner are they harvested than they, too, belong to her. The children, too, are hers, and they trace their descent through her. If the husband is not satisfactory to her, either through laziness or incapacity, she can serve him with a notice to quit, and her people will stand by her and see that the unwelcome man goes back to his own clan. This, however, is a very rare occurrence; the husband must be a very bad man indeed to incur such a penalty.

Recently I had the pleasure of visiting Taos, the two-housed town above referred to. I found its eight hundred men, women and children living together in harmony like one great family. They have nineteen towns in all, though in some of them their houses are detached, but still with the old communal style of self-government. In one of the Tesuque villages I made the acquaintance of the governor, Jose Domingo by name, who gave me courteous welcome. He consented to sit for his portrait and he appears with a group of his tribe in the accompanying illustration. Some of the women were not satisfied to pose for their pictures unless they could have a favorite jar of their own making on their head. They take a great pride in their pottery, in which some of the women show great skill and artistic taste. In the same village I visited a young bride who had been educated in a government school and spoke excellent English. She had a fine mahogany bedstead of which she was very proud. There were Indian rugs on the floor, but comfortable chairs for visitors who might prefer them. She had her ornaments, which, like those of the other women, were chiefly of silver. They do not appreciate gold. Their chief treasures are the beautiful turquoise, which is valued at from one to five dollars per carat and would bring six times that price in the jewelers' stores of New York.

"The Adobe Palace" in Santa Fe, the old residence of the governors-general under Spanish and Mexican rule, known as the "Palace," is now in an admirable state of preservation, owing to the liberal appropriations made by the Government in the past. "I regret to say, however," says Governor Miguel A. Otero, "that unless the General Government continues to look after this historic old building it will soon go to ruin and decay." Hon. L. Bradford Prince, ex-Governor of New Mexico, in his later report says: "Without disparaging the importance of any of the cherished historical localities of the East, it may be truthfully said that this ancient palace surpasses in historic interest and value any other place or object in the United States."

THE OLDEST HOUSE IN THE UNITED STATES

MABELLE BIGGART.

THE METROPOLITAN PULPIT.

What Shall We Read?

A Sermon by
T. DE WITT TALMAGE, D.D., on the Text, Acts 19: 19:

Many of them also which used curious arts brought their books together, and burned them before all men: and they counted the price of them, and found it fifty thousand pieces of silver.

PAUL had been stirring up Ephesus with some lively sermons about the sins of that place. Among the more important results was the fact that the citizens brought out their bad books and in a public place made a bonfire of them. I see the people coming out with their arms full of Ephesian literature, and tossing it into the flames. I hear an economist who is standing by, saying, "Stop this waste. Here are seven thousand five hundred dollars' worth of books—do you propose to burn them all up? If you don't want to read them yourselves, sell them, and let somebody else read them." "No," said the people, "if these books are not good for us, they are not good for anybody else, and we shall stand and watch until the last leaf has burned to ashes. They have done us a world of harm, and they shall never do others harm." Hear the flames crackle and roar!

Well, my friends, one of the wants of the cities is a great bonfire of bad books and newspapers. We have enough fuel to make a blaze two hundred feet high. Many of the publishing houses would do well to throw into the blaze their entire stock of goods. Bring forth the insufferable trash and put it into the fire and let it be known, in the presence of God and angels and men that you are going to rid your homes of the overtopping and underlying curse of profligate literature.

The printing-press is the mightiest agency on earth for good and for evil. The minister of the Gospel, standing in a pulpit, has a responsible position; but I do not think it is as responsible as the position of an editor or a publisher. At what distant point of time, at what far-out cycle of eternity will cease the influence of a Henry J. Raymond, or a Horace Greeley, or a James Gordon Bennett, or a Watson Webb, or an Erastus Brooks, or a Thomas Kinsella? Take the overwhelming statistics of the circulation of the daily and weekly newspapers, and then cipher, if you can, how far up, and how far down, and how far out, reach the influences of the American printing-press.

What is to be the issue of all this? I believe the Lord intends the printing-press to be the chief means for the world's rescue and evangelization, and I think that the great last battle of the world will not be fought with swords and guns, but with types and presses—a purified and Gospel literature triumphing over, trampling down, and crushing out forever that which is depraved. The only way to overcome unclean literature is by scattering abroad that which is healthful. May God speed the cylinders of an honest, intelligent, aggressive, Christian printing-press.

I have to tell you that the greatest blessing that ever came to the nations is that of an elevated literature, and the greatest scourge has been that of unclean literature. This last has its victims in all occupations and departments. It has helped to fill insane asylums, and penitentiaries, and almshouses, and dens of shame. The bodies of this infection lie in the hospitals and in the graves, while their souls are being tossed over into a lost eternity, an avalanche of horror and despair! The London plague was nothing to it. That counted its victims by thousands, but this modern pest has already shoveled its millions into the charnel-house of the morally dead. The longest rail-train that ever ran over the tracks was not long enough or large enough to carry the beastliness and the putrefaction which have been gathered up in bad books and newspapers in the last twenty years.

Now it is amid such circumstances that I put a question of overmastering importance to you and your families. What books and newspapers shall we read? You see I group them together. A newspaper is only a book in a swifter and more portable shape, and the same rules which will apply to book reading will apply to newspaper reading. What shall we read? Shall our minds be the receptacle of everything that an author has a mind to write? Shall there be no distinction between the tree of life and the tree of death? Shall we stoop down and drink out of the trough which the wickedness of men has filled with pollution and shame? Shall we mire in impurity, and chase fantastic will-o'-the-wisps across the swamps, when we might walk in the blooming gardens of God? Oh, no! For the sake of our present and everlasting welfare we must make an intelligent and Christian choice.

Standing, as we do, chin-deep in fictitious literature, the question that young people are asking is, "Shall we read novels?" I reply, There are novels that are pure, good, Christian, elevating to the heart and ennobling to the life. But I have still further to say that I believe that seventy-five out of the one hundred novels in this day are baleful and destructive to the last degree. A pure work of fiction is history and poetry combined. It is a history of things around us with the licenses and the assumed names of poetry. The world can never pay the debt which it owes to such writers of fiction as Hawthorne and McKenzie and Landon and Hunt and Arthur and others, whose names are familiar to all. The follies of high life were never better exposed than by Miss Edgeworth. The memories of the past were never more faithfully embalmed than in the writings of Walter Scott. Cooper's novels are healthfully redolent with the breath of the seaweed and the air of the American forest. Charles Kingsley has smitten the morbidity of the world, and led a great many to appreciate the poetry of sound health, strong muscles, and fresh air. Thackeray did a grand work in caricaturing the pretenders to gentility and high blood. Dickens has built his own monument in his books, which are a plea for the poor and the anathema of injustice: and there are a score of novelistic pens to-day doing mighty work for God and righteousness.

Now, I say, books like these, read at right times, and read in right proportion with other books, cannot help but be ennobling and purifying; but, alas, for the loathsome and impure literature that has come in the shape of novels, like a freshet overflowing all the banks of decency and common sense! They are coming from some of the most celebrated publishing houses. They are coming with recommendation of some of our religious newspapers. They lie on your centre-table to curse your children, and blast with their infernal fires generations unborn. You find these books in the desk of the school miss, in the trunk of the young man, in the steamboat cabin, on the table of the hotel reception-room. You see a light in your child's room late at night. You suddenly go in and say, "What are you doing?" "I am reading." "What are you reading?" "A book." You look at the book: it is a bad book. "Where did you get it?" "I borrowed it." Alas, there are always those abroad who would like to loan your son or daughter a bad book! Everywhere, everywhere, an unclean literature. I charge upon it the destruction of ten thousand immortal souls, and I bid you wake up to the magnitude of the evil.

I shall take all the world's literature—good novels and bad, travels true and false, histories faithful and incorrect, legends beautiful and monstrous, all tracts, all chronicles, all poems, all family, city, state, and national libraries—and pile them up in a pyramid of literature, and then I shall bring to bear upon it some grand, glorious, infallible, unmistakable Christian principles. God help me to speak with reference to my last account, and help you to listen!

I charge you, in the first place, to stand aloof from all books that give false pictures of life. Life is neither a tragedy nor a farce. Men are not all either knaves or heroes. Women are neither angels nor furies. And yet, if you depended upon much of the literature of the day, you would get the idea that life, instead of being something earnest, something practical, is a fitful and fantastic and extravagant thing. How poorly prepared are that young man and woman for the duties of to-day, who spent last night wading through brilliant passages descriptive of magnificent knavery and wickedness! The man will be looking all day long for his heroine, in the office, by the forge, in the factory, in the counting-room, and he will not find her, and he will be dissatisfied. A man who gives himself up to the indiscriminate reading of novels will be nerveless, inane, and a nuisance. He will be fit neither for the store, nor the shop, nor the field. A woman who gives herself up to the indiscriminate reading of novels will be unfitted for the duties of wife, mother, sister, daughter. There she is, hair disheveled, countenance vacant, cheeks pale, hands trembling, bursting into tears at midnight over the fate of some unfortunate lover; in the daytime, when she ought to be busy, staring by the half hour at nothing; biting her finger nails into the quick. The carpet that was plain before will be plainer after having wandered through a romance all night long in tessellated halls of castles. And your industrious companion will be more unattractive than ever, now that you have walked in the romance through parks with plumed princesses, or lounged in the arbor with the polished desperado. Oh, these confirmed novel-readers! They are unfitted for this life, which is a tremendous discipline. They know not how to go through the furnaces of trial through which they must pass, and they are unfitted for a world where everything we gain we achieve by hard and long-continuing work.

Again, abstain from all those books which, while they have some good things, have also an admixture of evil. You have read books that had two elements in them—the good and the bad. Which stuck to you? The bad! The heart of most people is like a sieve, which lets the small particles of gold fall through, but keeps the great cinders. Once in a while there is a mind like a loadstone which, plunged amid steel and brass filings, gathers up the steel and repels the brass. But it is generally exactly the opposite. If you attempt to plunge through a hedge of burrs to get one blackberry, you will get more burrs than blackberries. You cannot afford to read a bad book, however good you are. You say, "The influence is insignificant." I tell you that the scratch of a pin has sometimes produced lockjaw. Alas, if through curiosity, as many do, you pry into an evil book, your curiosity is as dangerous as that of the man who would take a torch into a gunpowder-mill merely to see whether it would really blow up or not.

In a menagerie in New York, a man put his arm through the bars of a black leopard's cage. The animal's hide looked so sleek and bright and beautiful. He just stroked it once. The monster seized him, and he drew forth a hand torn, and mangled and bleeding. Oh, touch not evil, even with the faintest stroke! Though it may be glossy and beautiful, touch it not, lest you pull forth your soul torn and bleeding under the clutch of the leopard. "But," you say, "how can I find out whether a book is good or bad without reading it?" There is always something suspicious about a bad book. I never knew an exception—something suspicious in the index or style of illustration. This venomous reptile always carries a warning rattle.

Again, I charge you to stand off from all those books which corrupt the imagination and inflame the passions. I do not refer now to that kind of book which the villain has under his coat waiting for the school to get out, and then, looking both ways to see that there is no policeman around the block, offers the book to your son on his way home. I do not speak of that kind of literature, but that which evades the law and comes out in polished style, and with acute plot sounds the tocsin that rouses up all the baser passions of the soul. To-day, under the nostrils of the people, there is a fetid, reeking, unwashed literature, enough to poison all the fountains of public virtue, and smite your sons and daughters as with the wing of a destroying angel, and it is time that the ministers of the Gospel blew the trumpet and rallied the forces of righteousness, all armed to this great battle against a depraved literature.

Again, abstain from those books which are apologetic of crime. It is a sad thing that some of the best and most beautiful bookbindery, and some of the finest rhetoric, have been brought to make sin attractive. Vice is a horrible thing anyhow. It is born in shame, and it dies howling in the darkness. In this world it is scourged with a whip of scorpions, but afterward the thunders of God's wrath pursue it across a boundless desert, beating it with ruin and woe. When you come to paint carnality, do not paint it as looking from behind embroidered curtains, or through lattice of royal seraglio, but as writhing in the agonies of a city hospital. Cursed be the books that try to make impurity decent, and crime attractive and hypocrisy noble! Cursed be the books that swarm with libertines and desperadoes, who make the brain of the young people whirl with villainy! Ye authors who write them, ye publishers who print them, ye booksellers who distribute them shall be cut to pieces; if not by an aroused community, then at last by the hail of divine vengeance, which shall sweep to the lowest pit of perdition all ye murderers of souls. I tell you, though you may escape in this world, you will be ground at last under the hoof of eternal calamities, and you will be chained to the rock, and you will have the vultures of despair clawing at your soul, and those whom you have destroyed will come around to torment you, and to pour hotter coals of fury upon your head, and rejoice eternally in the outcry of your pain, and the howl of your damnation. "God shall wound the hairy scalp of him that goeth on in his trespasses."

The clock strikes midnight. A fair form bends over a romance. The eyes flash fire. The breath is quick and irregular. Occasionally, the color dashes to the cheek, and then dies out. The hands tremble as though a guardian spirit were trying to shake the deadly book out of the grasp. Hot tears fall. She laughs with a shrill voice that drops dead at its own sound. The sweat on her brow is the spray dashed up from the river of death. The clock strikes "four," and the rosy dawn soon after begins to look through the lattice upon the pale form that looks like a detained spectre of the night. Soon in a madhouse she will mistake her ringlets for curling serpents, and thrust her white hand through the bars of the prison, and smite her head, rubbing it back as though to push the scalp from the skull, shrieking, "My brain! my brain!" Oh, stand off from that! Why will you go sounding your way amid the reefs when there is such a vast ocean in which you may voyage, all sail set?

Much of the impure pictorial literature is most tremendous for ruin. There is no one who can like good pictures better than I do. The quickest and most condensed way of impressing the public mind is by picture. What the painter does by his brush for a few favorites, the engraver does by his knife for the million. What the author accomplishes by fifty pages, the artist does by a flash. The best part of a painting that costs ten thousand dollars you may buy for ten cents. Fine paintings belong to the aristocracy of art. Engravings belong to the democracy of art. You do well to gather good pictures in your homes.

But what shall I say of the prostitution of art to purposes of iniquity? These death-warrants of the soul are at every street corner. They smite the vision of the young man with pollution. Many a young man buying a copy has bought his eternal discomfiture. There may be enough poison in one bad picture to poison one soul, and that soul may poison ten, and ten, fifty, and the fifty, hundreds, and the hundreds, thousands, until nothing but the measuring line of eternity can tell the height and depth and ghastliness and horror of the great undoing. The work f death that the wicked author does in a hole book, the bad engraver may do on half side of a pictorial. Under the uise of pure mirth, the young man buys ne of these sheets. He unrolls it before is comrades amid roars of laughter, but ong after the paper is gone the result ay, perhaps, be seen in the blasted imginations of those who saw it. The queen f death holds a banquet every night, and nese periodicals are the invitation to her uests.

Young man, buy not this moral strychine for your soul! Pick not up this est of coiled adders for your pocket! 'atronize no news-stand that keeps them! Have your room bright with good enravings, but for these outrageous pi.toials have not one wall, not one bureau, ot one pocket. A man is no better than ie pictures he loves to look at. If your yes are not pure, your heart cannot be. t a news-stand one can guess the charcter of a man by the kind of pictorial e purchases. When the devil fails to et a man to read a bad book, he somemes succeeds in getting him to look at bad picture. When Satan goes a-fishng he does not care whether it is a long ne or a short line, if he only draws his ictim in. Beware of lascivious pictorils, young man, in the name of Almighty od I charge you.

Cherish good books and newspapers. Beware of bad ones. The assassin f Lord Russell declared that he as led into crime by reading ne vivid romance. The onsecrated John Angell ames, than whom ngland never produced a better man, eclared in his old ge, that he had ever yet got ver the evil efects of having for fifteen inutes once ead a bad ook. But I eed not go far off. I ould tell you f a comrade ho was great-earted, noble, nd generous. He as studying for an onorable profesion; but he had an indel book in his trunk, nd he said to me one day, De Witt, would you like to ead it?" I said, "Yes, I would." took the book and read it only for few minutes. I was really startled with hat I saw there, and I handed the book ack to him, and said, "You had better estroy that book." No, he kept it. He ead it. He reread it. After awhile he ave up religion as a myth. He gave up od as a nonentity. He gave up the Bible s a fable. He gave up the Church of hrist as a useless institution. He gave up ood morals as being unnecessarily strinent. I have heard of him but twice in any years. The time before the last I eard of him, he was a confirmed inebrite. The last I heard of him he was coming ut of an insane asylum—in body, mind, nd soul an awful wreck. I believe that ne infidel book killed him for two worlds.

Go home to-day and look through your brary, and then, having looked through our library, look on the stand where you eep your pictorials and newspapers, and pply the Christian principles I have laid own this hour. If there is anything in our home that cannot stand the test, do ot give it away, for it might spoil an imortal soul; do not sell it, for the money ou get would be the price of blood; but ather kindle a fire on your kitchen hearth, r in your back-yard, and then drop the oison in it, and the bonfire in your city hall be as consuming as that one in phesus.

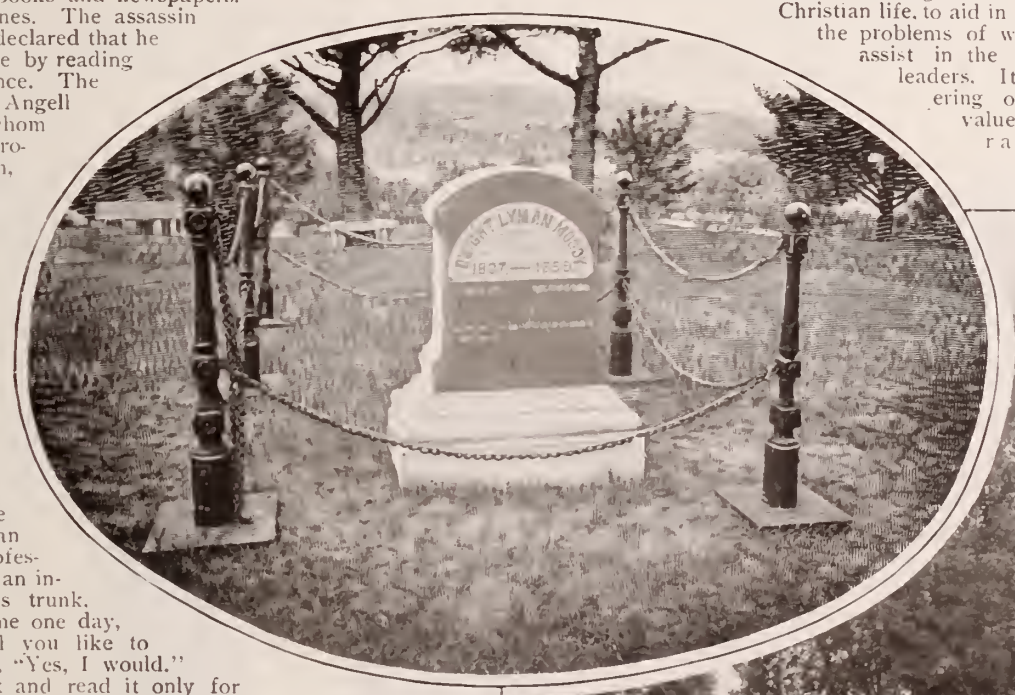
A Notable Y. M. C. A.

The first Young Men's Christian Association uilding to be opened on Government land was edicated last week on Governor's Island, . Y. It is a two-story edifice in the colonial tyle of architecture. It has been furnished by he Y. M. C. A. branches of New York City. Ir. E. H. Chapin is the superintendent. It is ntended for the use of the soldiers on the sland, and Major Cornish, who commands he post, has taken a great interest in proioting its organization.

Mr. Moody's Work Goes On

A GREAT AND MEMORABLE SPIRITUAL SUMMER CAMPAIGN IN PROGRESS AT NORTHFIELD

ALTHOUGH the great master-spirit, whose tireless energy and busy brain made Northfield a centre of Christian activities, has gone beyond, his work continues with a vigor and effectiveness that suffer no diminution. This summer—the eighteenth season of the Northfield Conferences—a peculiar interest attaches to these gatherings. The multitudes who have flocked to Northfield proves that, whatever may have been the magnetism of the power and personality of Dwight L. Moody in life, the divine purpose which controlled his career is opening for this great educational and spiritual work a broader and more far-reaching mission than even its consecrated founder could have foreseen. The spirit of that founder, with its deep, rich consecration, its lofty impulses and its all-absorbing zeal for souls, has descended in large measure upon the elder son, and William R. Moody now stands in the relation of leader to the work—a leader already greatly beloved by thousands who have already known of his years of labor by his father's side, and of the share he bore of all the latter's burdens.



MR. MOODY'S GRAVE

First among the events of wide interest at Northfield this season was the Student's Conference, continuing from June 29 to July 8. Year by year this work has been steadily augmenting in numbers and importance. It affords a rich opportunity for those called to leadership in the Student Y.M.C.A. work to secure training and spiritual preparation for the coming year. Among its features of special interest were daily meetings in the auditorium and on "Round Top," where the audiences were addressed by such well-known speakers as Bishop J. H. Vincent, Dr. W. R. Richardson, Rev. R. A. Torrey, Rev. Dyson Hague, Dr. C. E. Jefferson, Mr. Robert E. Speer, Rev. Dr. Jacob Chamberlain, Dr. Wm. Ashmore, and Rev. John G. Paton. Normal Bible classes were conducted each morning, one class devoted to training in personal work; the others planned to present three courses of the Cycle of Devotional Bible Study.

From June 28 to September 1, the Y. M. C. A. encampment is a picturesque and recreative feature of summer life at Northfield. The camp gives accommodations to young men from city or college, whether members of the Y. M. C. A. or not, and large numbers of young business men employed in mercantile and other houses in the great cities take advantage of the delightful outing offered at small cost. When it is remembered that all the spiritual privileges of the place are open to the campers, it can be readily understood how precious such an experience must prove to hundreds of these young men. Recreations include walks, drives, swimming floats and field sports. The campers live in cosily furnished tents and many do their own cooking, although there is a large camp dining hall for those who prefer it.

The Young Women's Christian Association Conference from July 13 till July 23, is always an attractive occasion. Its aim is to strengthen the individual Christian life, to aid in the study of the problems of work, and to assist in the training of leaders. It is a gathering of practical value and inspiration to all young women interested in Bible study and Christian work. Its meetings are held at "Round Top" or in the auditorium, and many women of national note in Christian service are among the speakers.

From July 25 to August 1, and from August 20 to September 1, frequent Special Bible Lectures are given by prominent teachers.

What a very large number of those who go to Northfield rightly regard as the crowning event of the year, is the General Conference of Christian Workers, from August 2 to 20. Here, probably more than at any other of the gatherings, the strong spirituality and kindly presence of Mr. Moody will be greatly missed.

To him this annual assemblage of Christian workers had grown very dear, for he had the liveliest and deepest sympathy with them in all their trials, and loved to study out with them the problems and difficulties and encouragements of their peculiar field. This year, as the workers gather around their dead leader's resting-place at "Round Top," they cannot fail to find inspiration in the circumstances and surroundings, all of which eloquently appeal for renewed dedication of life and earnestness of service.

The speakers expected at this conference are Rev. F. B. Meyer, London; Rev. G. Campbell Morgan, London; Rev. William Newman Hall, Dublin; Rev. Henry G. Weston, D.D., Chester, Pa.; Rev. C. I. Scofield, D.D., East Northfield; Rev. Peyton Hoge, D.D., Louisville, Ky.; Rev. T. S. Hamlin, D.D., Washington; Rev. J. F. Carson, D.D., Brooklyn; Rev. Wilton Merle Smith, D.D., New York; Rev. R. A. Torrey, Chicago; Rev. H. C. Mabie, D.D., Boston; Mr. R. E. Speer, New York, and others usually present. Mr. William H. Stanes, Nilgris Hills, India, will conduct special meetings for children. Music will be in charge of Messrs. Ira D. Sankey and George C. Stebbins, assisted by Mr. F. H. Jacobs.

There are many other features in the spiritual life of Northfield which might be enumerated. Indeed, no practical phase or branch of Christian work in field, tent, camp, church, Sunday School or elsewhere has been overlooked by the conductors of this summer spiritual retreat, and no one interested, even in the slightest degree in the things that make for life eternal, can go to Northfield without experiencing a rich and enduring sense of spiritual refreshment.

AN OPEN-AIR GATHERING AT "LITTLE ROUND TOP"

DR. TALMAGE'S PREACHING TOUR

The photograph on our first page was taken in Edinburgh, where Dr. Talmage received a tremendous ovation. The people filled the great church in which he preached long before the hour fixed for the commencement of the service. Great crowds, sufficient to fill two such edifices, collected in the streets outside the church, and when Dr. Talmage appeared he was greeted by such cheers as are seldom heard in the Scottish capital. The carriage of one of the officers of the church had been placed at his disposal, and, standing there in the shadow of Arthur's Seat, he made an eloquent address to the great throng. On completing his tour in England and Scotland, Dr. Talmage went to Northern Europe. A letter received from him at Trondhjem, Norway, says that he had been for eight days beyond the reach of letters and telegrams to get a glimpse of that strange spectacle—the sun shining at midnight, which is to be witnessed at this season of the year in the far northern latitudes. Dr. Talmage expects to sail for America on the Oceanic, which is scheduled to leave Liverpool October 17.

Around the World with Josiah Allen's Wife

COPYRIGHT, 1899, BY MARIETTA HOLLEY

CHAPTER XXXV.

ILLUSTRATIONS BY H. M. PETTIT

Samantha in Switzerland

FROM Paris we went to Berne. I hearn Josiah tellin' Tommy: "It is called Burn, I spoze, because it got burnt down a number of times."

But it hain't so. It wuz named from Baren (bears), of which more anon. Robert Strong had been there, and he wanted Dorothy to see the seenery, which he said was sublime. Among the highest points of the Bernise Alps and the Jungfrau and the Matterhorn, which latter peak is from twelve to fourteen thousand feet high. Good land! What if I had to climb it! But I hadn't, and took comfort in the thought. Deep, beautiful valleys are also in the Oberland, as the southern part of the Canton is called, the Plain of Interlaken being one of the most beautiful.

There are several railways that centre in Berne, and it stands at the cross-roads to France and Germany. And though it is a Swiss city, it seemed much more like a German one, so Robert Strong said. The people, the signs, the streets, the hotels and all, he said, was far more like a German city than a Swiss one.

It is quite a handsome city of about fifty thousand inhabitants, with straight, wide streets and handsome houses, and one thing I liked first-rate, a little creek called the Gassel, has been made to run into the city, so little rivulets of water flow through some of the streets, and it supplies the fountains so they spray up in a noble way.

Josiah sez: "If Ury and I can turn the creek, Samantha, so it will run through the dooryard, you shall have a fountain right under your winder. Ury and I can rig up a statter for it out of stuns and mortar that will look first-rate. And I spoze," sez he, "the Jonesvillians would love to see my liniment sculped on it, and it might be a comfort to you, if I should be took first."

"No, Josiah," sez I, "not if you and Ury made it: it would only add to my agony."

The Swiss Hostelries

We had quite a good hotel. But I see the hired girl had made a mistake in makin' up the bed. Mebby she wuz absent minded or lovesick; 'tennyrate she had put the feather bed top of us instead of under us.

As Josiah laid down under it he said words I wouldn't have had Elder Minkley heard for a dollar bill, and it didn't nigh cover his feet anyway. What to do I didn't know, for it wuz late and I spozed the woman of the house had gone to bed and I didn't want to roust her up. And I knew anyway it would mortify her dretfully to have her help make such a mistake. Good land! if Philury should do such a thing I should feel like a fool. So I had Josiah git up, still talkin' language onfit for a deacon and a perfessor, and I put the bed where it belonged, spread the sheets over it smooth, put my warm woolen shawl and our railway rug on it and made a splendid bed.

The Spouting Bears

The food wuz quite good, though sassage and cheese wuz too much in evidence, and beer and pipes and bears. I always kinder spleened aginst bears and wuz afraid on 'em and wouldn't take one for a present, but it beat all how much they seem to think of bears there, namin' the place for 'em to start with, and they have bears carved and painted on most everything. Bears spout water out of their mouths in the fountains, they have dead ones in their museums, and they have a big bear den down by the river where great live ones can growl and act all they want to. And bears show off in a wonderful clock tower they have built way back in the leventh century. I never see Tommy so delighted with anything hardly as he wuz with that, and Josiah too. Every hour a procession of bears come out, led, I believe, by a rooster who claps his wings and crows, and then they walk round a old man with a hour glass who strikes the hour on a bell. But the bears lead the programmy and bow and strut round and act.

The manufactures of Berne are mostly cloth, silk and cotton, straw hats, etc. It has a great university with seventy-three professors. Good land! if each one on 'em knowed a little and would teach it they ort to keep a first-rate school.

And it also uses a Referendum. Arvilly disputed me when I spoke on't; she thought it wuz sunthin' agin 'em, but it haint. It helps the people. If they don't like a law after it passes the legislature they have a chance to vote on it. And it keeps 'em from bein' fooled by politicians and dishonest statesmen. I approve on't and Arvilly did when she got more acquainted with the idee. I wish America would get hold of one, and I guess she will when she gits round to it, though Arvilly don't believe they will. Sez she: "Our statesmen ruther spend their time votin' on the length of women's hat-pins, and discuss what a peril they are to manhood." Sez she: "Why don't they vote agin men's suspenders? Everybody knows a man could hang a woman with 'em, hang 'em right up on the bed post." Sez Arvilly: "Why not vote that men shall fasten their trousers to their vests with hooks and eyes, they are so much less dangerous?" But I don't spoze they ever will. It is a job to fasten your skirt to your waist with 'em. But they are real safe and I wish men would adopt 'em. But don't spoze they will, they hate to be bothered so.

Another thing I liked first-rate there and Arvilly did, the corporation of the city is so rich it furnishes fuel for its citizens free. Arvilly sez:

"Catch the rich corporations of our American cities furnishin' fuel for even the poorest. No; it would let 'em burn up their old chairs or bedsteads first, or freeze."

Samantha Moralizes

"Well," sez I, "mebby our country will take pattern of the best of all other countries when she gits round to it; she's been pretty busy lately."

And Arvilly sez, "She had better hurry up before her poor are all starved or friz; but as it is," sez she, "her statesmen are votin' on wimmen's hat-pins whilst Justice lays flat with her stillyards on top of her and Pity and Mercy have wep' themselves sick."

America is good, her charities are almost boundless but I think some as Arvilly that Charity hain't so likely lookin' or actin' as Justice, and Robert Strong thinks so too. But it is a great problem what to do for the best in this case. Mebby Solomon knew enough to grapple with the question but Josiah don't, nor Arvilly, though she thinks she duz. Robert Strong is gittin' one answer to the hard conundrum of life, and Ernest White is figurin' it out successful. And lots of other good and earnest souls all over the world are workin' away at the sum with their own slates and pencils. But oh, the time is long! One needs the patience of the Sphinx to set and see it go on, to labor and to wait. But God knows the answer to the problem; in His own good time He will reveal it, as the reward of constant labor, tireless patience, trust and prayer. But to resoom forwards: One of the picturesque features of the older part of Berne is that the houses are built up on an arcade under which runs a footpath.

But its great feature is the enchantin' seenery. It stands on a peninsuala and the view on mountain and river is most beautiful.

From Berne we went direct to the city of Milan in Italy. And we found that it wuz a beautiful city eight or nine milds round, I should judge, with very handsome houses, the cathedral bein' the cap sheaf. I'd had a picture on't on my settin'-room wall for years, framed with pine cones and had spent hours, I spoze, from first to last lookin' at it, but hadn't no more idee of its size and beauty than a Hottentot has of ice water and soap stuns.

From every point of view it is perfect, front side, back side, outside and inside; specially beautiful are the gorgeous stained glass winders in the altar.

Copyright, 1900, by Louis Klopsch, N. Y.

THE MUDD-WEAKDEWS VISIT THE PICTURE GALLERY IN MILAN

Robert Strong and Dorothy and all the rest of the party but Josiah and me and Tommy clumb up to the biggest tower, three hundred and thirty or forty feet, and they said the view from there wuz sublime and you couldn't realize the beauty of the cathedral until you saw it from that place where you seemed to stand in a forest of beautifully carved white marble. But I sez to 'em, "I can believe every word you say without provin' it."

I never could have stood it to clumb so high, but they said you could see way off the Appenines, the Alps, Mont Blanc, the Matterhorn, a wonderful view. The cathedral is full of monuments to kings and queens and saints and high church dignitaries. Its carving, statuary, fret work is beyend description. It is said to be the most beautiful in the world and I shouldn't wonder, 'tennyrate it goes fur, fur beyend the M. E. meetin'-house in Jonesville or Zoar or Loontown.

Milan has beautiful picture galleries, and Miss Meechim and Arvilly and I wuz restin' in one one day for we wuz tired out sightseein', when a young man and woman swep' by, both on 'em with glasses stuck in their eyes, richly dressed and she covered with jewels, and there wuz a maid carryin' wraps and a cushion, and a man carryin' two camp-chairs, and a slim tutor follerin' with a little boy.

I d'no as the Queen of Sheba and Mr. Sheba could have traveled with any more pomp if they had took it into their heads to come to Jonesville the Fourth of July. They didn't seem to be payin' any attention to the pictures, though they wuz perfectly beautiful. There wuz a group of titled people that had been pinted out to us, and their eyes wuz glued on them, and they seemed to be kinder followin' 'em round. They gin Miss Meechim a cool, patronizin' nod as they went by, and she gurgled and overflowed with joy over it.

A Very Exclusive Party

She said they wuz the Mudd-Weakdews, of Sacramento, Rev. Mr. Weakdews' only child, and they wuz on their way home from Paris; he had married Augusta Mudd, a millionaress. "They are so exclusive, so genteel!" sez Miss Meechim, "they will not associate with anybody but the very first. He wuz a college mate of Robert's and so different from him," sez she.

"Yes," sez I, in a real dry tone, "I spoze he is, he looks different anyway."

"He is engaged in the same occupation Robert is," sez Miss Meechim, "and he would no more do as Robert does than he would fly. He keeps his workmen down in their place. Now Robert sells them land at a cheap rate and encourages a building association amongst the workmen, so most all of them own their own houses and gardens, and they cultivate fruits and flowers, making their homes look more like a genteel, wealthy person's than a laborer's; it makes them independent as you please, heads right up, lookin' you right in the face, as if they was your equals. Mudd-Weakdew won't let them own an inch of land; they live in tenements that he owns and they pay high rents. The houses are laborers' rooms, not genteel and comfortable as their employer's. He says that he makes as much out of the rent of these houses as he does from his factory, for I must say that Robert's workmen do more work and better. But the Mudd-Weakdews live like a prince on a broad, tree-shaded avenue with a long row of tenement houses on the alley back of it, seperated from the poor, and what I consider a genteel, proper way.

The Poor and the Rich

"Of course his workmen complain that they do all the work and he lives in a palace and they in a hovel, that he is burdened with luxuries and is hoarding up millions, whilst they labor through their half-starved lives and have the workhouse to look forward to. So unreasonable! How can the poor expect the genteel pleasures of the wealthy, and when their houses are low and old and the walls mouldy and streets narrow and filthy and no gardens, and ten or fifteen in one room, they ought not to expect the comfort and pure air of four people in one great house set in a park. But such people can't reason."

"Who is the fourth?" sez I coldly, for I despised her idees.

"They have a little girl older than Augustus and very different from him. Little Augustus is naturally very aristocratic and they encourage him to look down on the tenement children and be sharp to them, for they know that he will have to take the reins in his hands and control rebellious workmen just as his pa does now, and conquer them just as you would a ugly horse or dog."

"How is the little girl different?" sez I in cold, icy axents.

"Oh, she is a perfect beauty, older than Augustus and at boarding-school now. She is the idol of their hearts—even the workmen love her, she is so gentle and sweet. Her parents adore her and expect that she will unite them to the nobility, for she is as beautiful as an angel.

"Little Augustus was terribly frightened just before we sailed, his grand-pa told me; one of them impudent workmen who had been sick and out of work for a spell rushed up to little Augustus, who was feeding cakes to his pony and Italian greyhound, and demanded him to give him some. The man's fierce looks was such that Augustus dropped the cakes and ran away to his tutor. The man had the impudence to pick up the pieces and rush away with them, muttering that his own boy was dying for want of food, while this boy was throwing it away. What business was it to him, I would like to know. The man was turned off, I believe. Mudd-Weakdew will stand no impudence; he builds up a wall of seperation between himself and them that can't be broke down, just as he has a right to."

Sez I, "Mebby it can't be broke down, but the wrongs and sufferin's of one class is apt to react on the other."

"But it cannot here," sez she, "for Mudd-Weakdew is not like Robert, mingling with his workmen, breaking down the wall of seperation, that always has and I believe always should exist between the genteel wealthy and the poor."

"Well," sez I, "time will tell." And she went on.

"You ought to see the elegance of their house, thirty house servants and Robert has only two; and won't let them be called servants; he calls them helpers. Oh, they are so genteel! they mingle with the very first, and Robert might do just so, but he actually seems happier amongst his workmen trying to make them happier than he does with the titled aristocracy. Mudd-Weakdew would no more mingle with his workman as Robert does than he would fly."

I murmured onbeknown to myself, "The poor received Him gladly;" "Except ye do these things ye cannot be my disciples." And I sez to Miss Meechim, "How would the Mudd-Weakdews receive the carpenter's Son if he should stop at their gate some afternoon while they wuz givin' a garden party to nobility. If Jesus should enter there with his chosen companions, the fishermen and the poor, all dusty from weary walks, and barefooted; if he should look through their luxury to the squalid homes beyond with reproach and sorrow in his divine face, how would they greet him?

Miss Meechim said she didn't really know, they wuz so very, very exclusive, but she felt that they would act genteel anyway. "And," sez she, "they worship in a magnificent church built by millionares and used by them almost exclusively, for of course poor people wouldn't feel at home there amongst the aristocracy."

But Arvilly said—I guess she had to say it—"Yes, they kneel and worship the Christ they crucified while they tromple on his teachings; hypocrites and Pharisees, the hull caboodle on 'em, Rev. Weakdew and all!" I d'no but Arvilly wuz too hash, but mebby my groans spoke as loud as her words; I felt considerable as she did and she knowed it.

A Rich Man's Idea of Heaven

"Oh! oh!" Miss Meechim fairly squeeled the words out. "Rev. Weakdew is very thoughtful and charitable to the poor always. I have wept to hear him tell of their home above, right in with the rich you know, mingling with them; I have heard him say it, exclusive as he and his family is, and how after starvation here how sweet the bread of life would seem to them."

"In my opinion," sez Arvilly, "he better spend his strength tryin' to feed 'em on earth; when they git to that country the Lord can take care on 'em."

"Oh, he always has a collection taken up for the poor, Christmas and Easter, and his congregation is very charitable and give largely in alms and make suppers for the poor, Christmas, almost as good as the wealthy enjoy."

Sez Arvilly, "You can't put out the ragin' fires of a volcano with a waterin' pot; it will keep belchin' out for all of that little drizzle; that seethin' kaldron of fire and ashes would have to be cleaned out and the hull lay of the land changed in order to stop it. What good duz it do to scatter a few loaves of bread to the hungry while the Liquor Power and the mills of Monopoly are grindin' out hundreds and thousands of tramps and paupers every year?"

Sez Miss Meechim, "the poor ye shall always have with you."

Arvilly's Ideas on Tramps

"We don't read," sez Arvilly, "of Martha Washington having to feed tramps nor labor riots and strikers in the time of Jefferson. No, it wuz when our republic begun to copy the sampler of old nations' luxury, aristocracy and enormous wealth for the few and poverty and starvation for the many. Copyin' the old feudal barons and thieves who used to swoop down on weaker communities and steal all their possessions, only they gained by force what is gained now by corrupt legislation. Anybody would think," sez Arvilly, "that as many times as that sampler has been soaked in blood, and riddled by bullets, our country wouldn't want to foller it, but they do down to the smallest stitch on't and how can they hope to escape their fate? They can't!" sez Arvilly.

Samantha Not Discouraged

"But," I sez, "they can't unless they turn right round in their tracts. But I am a good deal in hopes they will," sez I, "I am hopin' that Uncle Sam will foller my advice and the advice of other well-wishers of the human race—I see signs on't."

"Well," sez Arvilly, "you have fur-sightener specs than I have, if you can see it."

And I sez, "You lay your ear to the ground, Arvilly, and you'll hear the sound of a great approachin' army. It is the ranks of the Workers for Humanity with voice and pen, with wealth and influence, the haters of hate, lovers of love, breakers of shams and cruelties in creeds, political and social life and customs. Destroyers of unjust laws, true helpers of the poor. It is them that try to foller Christ's mission and give liberty to the bound, sight to the blind. That great throng is growin' larger every hour, the stiddy, stiddy tromplin' of their feet sounds nearer and nearer." And I sez in a rapt way, "Whilst you are listenin' to them, Arvilly, listen upward and you'll hear the sound of wings beatin' the air. The faint music, not of warlike bugles, but the sweet song of Peace. It comes nigher, it is the white-winged cohort of angels comin' down to jine the workers for humanity and lead 'em to victory, and their song is jest the same they sung when Christ the Reformer, wuz born, 'Peace on earth good-will to men.'"

Sez Miss Meechim, "I guess you hear the crowd on the avenue going home, and it is really time to go; it would not look genteel to stay longer."

I looked at her, and through her, and smiled a deep forgivin' smile for I thought she wuz a foreigner, how could she understand.

(To be continued).

THE BIG BEAR DEN DOWN BY THE RIVER

BESIDE THE FOUNTAINS

WAS FEEDING CAKES TO THE PONY

Copyright, 1900, by Louis Klopsch, N. Y.

A HAPPY LIFE

I SEEK not thorns on the road of life
That hurt with secret pain;
I seek small joys, the sunbeams catch
To shed abroad again.

If the door is low where I would go,
I stoop to enter in,
And often find in lowly guise,
The joy that I would win.

And if I can, I lift the stone
Out of my onward way,
If 'tis too heavy, then I go
Around till close of day.

And thus each blessed day I find Something to make me glad,
Some precious joy that I may share
To cheer another sad.

Berlin, Mass. —PHEBE A. HOLDER.

THE CHRISTIAN HERALD

LOUIS KLOPSCH, PROPRIETOR

T. DeWitt Talmage
EDITOR.

B. J. FERNIE AND G. H. SANDISON,
Associate Editors

The Christian Herald is published every Wednesday. The subscription price is $1.50 per year, payable in advance.

Subscriptions may commence with any issue.

Remittances should always be made in the safest manner available to the remitter. Post-office and Express Money Orders are always safe and may be sent at our own risk.

Register your letters when you remit by cash.

Foreign Postage.—For each copy to be mailed outside the United States, the Canadas, and Mexico, foreign postage at the rate of one dollar a year should be added to the regular subscription price.

Renewals.—It is always best to renew two weeks before the date on your wrapper, to ensure uninterrupted service.

Back Numbers.—We cannot undertake to supply back numbers, nor to make good omissions caused by tardy renewals.

Change of Date.—It takes two weeks to change the date, after your subscription is renewed.

Expiration of subscriptions. The date on the wrapper indicates when your paper will be stopped unless promptly renewed.

Change of Address.—Always give both your old and your new address when you ask us to change your address.

The Name of your Post-office and of the State you live in should always follow your own name when writing to this office. We cannot find your name on our books unless this is done.

The Christian Herald will not be responsible for the return of unsolicited manuscripts forwarded to it with a view to publication.

Letters should be addressed

THE CHRISTIAN HERALD,
Bible House, New York City.

Entered at the Post-office at New York, as Second-class Matter

The Beginning of Ethics

MORALITY is right conduct, springing from right motives; from obedience to the voice of God within us which says, "Thou shalt!" "Thou shalt not!" Ethics began in the Garden of Eden. God said of a garden full of fruit-trees, "Thou shalt!" and of a single one, "Thou shalt not!" That was man's first lesson in ethics. God has always been generous to his creatures. He gives us six days, and he takes only one. But that one day is better to us because it is his than if it were ours. In that one day, which is his, he says, "Thou shalt not do any work!" He lets us fill the earth with houses, which we may rent and live in; gives us the lumber and the stone to build them, and he says of a single house, "It is mine; make it not a den of thieves." And what God reserves to himself here, also, is better for us than what he gives us. We get more out of his inhibitory commands than out of his permissive ones. Out of the permissive ones, we get enjoyment; out of the inhibitory, we get strength. When we have kept the inhibitory ones, the next time we pass that way, we can say with Samson, as he passed the lion's carcass: "Out of the eater came forth meat, out of the strong came forth sweetness."

Accept Ordination

LET us all go to preaching. Send polished Paul up to Athens, and plain Bartholomew down among the fishing-smacks by the sea. Do not look so anxiously into your pockets for your diploma from Yale, or your license from Presbytery. If the Lord does not send you into the ministry, no canon of the Church can shoot you into it. But if he has put his hand on your head, you are ordained, and your working apron shall be the robe, and the anvil your pulpit; and while you are smiting the iron, the hammer of God's truth will break the flinty heart in pieces. Peter was never a sophomore, nor John a freshman. Harlan Page never heard that a tangent to the parabola bisects the angle formed at the point of contact by a perpendicular to the directrix and a line drawn to the focus. If George Muller had attempted chemical experiments in a philosopher's laboratory, he would soon have blown himself up. And hundreds of men, grandly useful, were never struck on commencement stage by a bouquet flung from the ladies' gallery. Quick! Let us find our work. You preach a sermon; you give a tract; you hand a flower; you sing a song; you give a crutch to a lame man; you teach the Sabbath class their A, B, C; you knit a pair of socks for a foundling; you pick a splinter from a child's finger. Do something! Do it now! We will all be dead soon!

Marrying to Reform

OUR advice in the selection of a husband is never to marry a man with the idea of reforming him. If now, under the restraint of courtship, he will not give up his bad habits, after he has won the prize you cannot expect him to do so. You might as well plant a violet in the face of a northeast storm with the idea of appeasing it; you might as well run a schooner alongside of a burning ship with the idea of saving the ship. The consequence will be schooner and ship will be destroyed together. The almshouse could tell the story of a hundred women who married men to reform them. If, by twenty-five years of age, a man has been grappled by intoxicants, he is under such headway that your attempt to stop him would be very much like running up a track with a wheelbarrow to stop a Hudson River express train.

The Cry of the Orphans of India

Rev. E. S. Hume, of Ahmednagar, India, Chairman of the Inter-denominational Missionary Committee, through which all THE CHRISTIAN HERALD'S India Famine Fund has been distributed, has sent us the following eloquent appeal in behalf of the Orphans of India. Mr. Hume is now visiting the United States on sick furlough:

The India Famine has now reached its most acute stage. The long-looked-for rain has at last begun to fall. If the monsoon is favorable, crops will soon be sown, and in about three months the happy cultivators will be gathering in the first fruits of the new harvest.

The labors of the missionaries, however, have just begun. No one will ever know how many have died as the result of the famine, but the number will probably be reckoned by millions, and SEVERAL HUNDRED THOUSAND CHILDREN WILL HAVE BEEN ORPHANED. Of these, the missionaries have rescued, probably, not less than twenty or twenty-five thousand. For these helpless, but promising children, not only the missionaries but the Christians at home who have helped to save them, are responsible.

There is no more urgent and encouraging form of mission work than the training of this great company of children. The duty and the privilege are manifest; the missionaries are enthusiastic and eager to go on. Four hundred thousand dollars a year are needed to bring success to the great enterprise.

Millbury, Mass., July 21. E. S. HUME.

What you call an inebriate nowadays is not a victim of wine or whiskey, but of logwood and strychnine and nux vomica. All these poisons have kindled their fires in his tongue and brain, and all the tears of a wife's weeping cannot extinguish the flames. Instead of marrying a man to reform him, let him reform first, and then give him time to see whether the reform is to be permanent. Let him understand that if he cannot do without his bad habits for two years, he must do without you forever.

False Prudence

WE have apotheosized prudence and caution long enough. Prudence is a beautiful grace, but of all the family of Christian graces I like her the least, for she has been married so often to laziness, sloth and stupidity. We have a million idlers in the Lord's vineyard who pride themselves on their prudence. "Be prudent," said the disciples to Christ, "and stay away from Jerusalem;" but he went. "Be prudent," said Paul's friends, "and look out for what you say to Felix;" but he thundered away until the ruler's knees knocked together. In the eyes of the world, the most imprudent men that ever lived were Martin Luther and John Oldcastle and Bunyan and Wesley and Knox. My opinion is that the most imprudent and reckless thing is to stand still.

The Universal Girdle

COMMON alike to both sexes, prevalent in all ages, worn by all nations, the badges of priests, soldiers, and civilians, no article of dress has been so widely and so permanently fashionable as the girdle. Assyria and Egypt exhausted their wealth and their cunning workmanship on it; the Jews mingled it in every phase of their domestic and religious life. God even gives to Moses (Exodus 39:29) particular instructions regarding the priests' girdles, which were to be of "twined linen, and purple, and blue, and scarlet of needlework." The great value of the Jewish girdles is well attested by the reply of Joab to the man who saw Absalom hanging in an oak: "Why didst thou not smite him there to the ground, and I would have given thee ten shekels of silver and a girdle" (II. Sam. 18:11).

To the Israelite no piece of clothing was more typical. If rich and splendid, they denoted wealth, rank, and prosperity; when of simple leather, humility or poverty. Thus Elijah was "girt with a girdle of leather," and John Baptist had "a leathern girdle about his loins." If of sackcloth, it denoted great and hopeless grief; and it was thus that Jacob mourned for his son Joseph (Gen. 37:34). In both the Old and the New Testaments there are many other instances of the prominence of the girdle as part of a distinctive portion of the dress of humanity; and in the Revelation of St. John there is, in the first chapter, a wonderful description of the Son of Man "clothed with a garment down to the foot, and girt about the paps with a golden girdle."

Homer bears testimony to the splendid girdles of the early Greeks; while the later writers, both Greek and Roman, attach great importance both to the workmanship, the use, and the manner of wearing them. To be well braced and girded was "respectable," while to be loose and negligent was suspicious of a dissipated and idle life. Even our Saxon ancestors regarded it in the same light, for oldest among English proverbs is: "Ungirt, unblest." The Saxons called the girdle "belt," from the Latin "baltens," studded, because those they used for military purposes were studded with metal bosses; and ever since, the word belt has had a military, and the word girdle a civil, import.

The Norman belts and girdles were miracles of rich workmanship. Strutt describes King John's as being "of wrought gold, adorned with gems;" and there is no doubt that Spenser's description in the Fairy Queen, of Florimel's girdle, would have fitted for many a brave knight and lovely lady of that day:

A gorgeous girdle curiously embossed
With pearl and precious stones, worth many a mark;
Yet did the workmanship far pass the cost.

In the middle ages, these rich girdles were often left by will, either for purposes of friendship or religion. Thus, in 1386, the Duke of Clarence, in his will, orders his gold girdle to be made into a chalice, "in memory of his soul;" and in 1490, Sir Gilbert Stapylton, leaves his to be put on the image of the Virgin Mary, in Aston Church.

Beside their legitimate use of confining an adorning the dress, they served for variou other purposes. Gentlemen carried from c in their girdles their swords, daggers an purses; priests and scholars their rosary, book pen and ink-horn. Fox, in his Book of Martyrs, says Bishop Latimer appeared before hi judges "with his New Testament hanging fror his leathern girdle"; and Spenser (Book Canto 1), notices the same custom.

And by his belt his book he hanging had.

Men's belts had all large and strong buckles and in those trials of skill, or in those angr disputes in which for centuries men gave an received hard blows, it was customary in such cases to turn the buckle behind, so that th opponents might have a fair grip. Shakespeare alludes to this custom when he make Claudio answer Pedro's supposition tha Benedick is "angry indeed," with, "If he he knows how to turn his girdle;" and, twent years ago, I saw the Cumberland Shepherds in their frequent wrestling matches, observ this ancient custom.

For many centuries in England, when merchant failed he took off his girdle and lai it on the table before his creditors as a sig that he had given up everything. I have n doubt that there are men alive still who re member instances of this touching ceremony Nothing, however, more powerfully expresse the symbolic influence of the girdle than th old English imprecation: "May my girdl break if I fail!"

The love-inspiring cestus of Venus was bu a type of all the bewitching forms this trick o beauty has taken in woman's hands. In th reign of the Tudors the girdles for ladies wer exquisitely rich and beautiful, sometime made of pale yellow silk cord, jeweled a intervals with pendants of jewels at the ends and sometimes of linked gold or silver, em bellished with engraved cameos or precious stones. From these depended small looking glasses, delicate perfume cases, charms, etc.

Since then, fashion has decreed that men should wear braces and buttoned coats, and women the tight and pointed bodice; but she was never able to really depose the girdle Thousands wore it in private, and soldiers sailors, woodsmen, workingmen, and tha majority deservedly known as "the people' never abandoned it. With women, its tempo rary deposition gave it new grace, and the las few years have restored it in all its powers.

Amelia E. Barr

Brief Notes

The Y. M. C. A. Year Book for 1900 report 1,439 associations, with a membership of 255,472, and owning buildings and other real estate valued a $21,620,480.

The British and Foreign Bible Society is stated to be at work on one hundred new translations of the Bible. Its issues last year were nearly five million copies.

A memorial is in circulation among the Wesleyan churches in England praying the General Conference to declare ineligible to office in any church a man who is engaged directly or indirectly in the liquor traffic.

The number of children dealt with during the past year by Dr. Barnardo's agency reached the total of 13,288, the new admissions of absolutely destitute children numbering 3,011, a total wholly unprecedented in thirty-four years.

As an instance of interdenominational friendliness among clergymen the story is told that an Episcopal clergyman borrowed a horse from a Roman Catholic priest to enable him to visit a Presbyterian minister who was sick.

Mr. Ira D. Sankey is getting quite a number of invitations from friends in England to hold his "Service of Sacred Song and Story." Among the places already booked are Cork, Limerick, Waterford, Dublin, Belfast, Bath, Bristol.

The late Dr. R. S. Storrs used to say that as a young man his one ambition was to drive the stage from Braintree to Boston. If he could have chosen his career at that time he would have selected that occupation as the summit of his hopes.

Up to the present time, about two million copies of the whole Bible, or portions thereof, have been circulated in Japan. During some of the years past as many as two hundred men have been employed in order to get the Word of God into the hands of the people.

The Congregationalist says that of the collections taken during the visit of the Boer envoys to this country, amounting to $1,134.38, to relieve the necessities of widows and orphans of the burghers all except $18, was expended for expenses of the committee, including wines, traveling, etc.

The secretary of the Christian Endeavor Society stated in his annual report that the present membership is 3,500,000 in 59,712 societies. America has above 43,000 organizations, Great Britain, 7,000. In Australasia are 4,000. In China, from which President and Mrs. Clark have just come, there are enrolled 148 societies.

Mr. James Stokes, of New York, through whose liberality the Young Men's Christian Association has been established in permanent homes in Paris, Rome and Berlin, has succeeded in securing permission to organize a similar association among the railway employees of Russia, which is to be called "Committee for the Improvement of Young Men."

MY TOUR THROUGH FAMINE-STRICKEN INDIA

.. BY LOUIS KLOPSCH ..

A GROUP OF FAMINE ORPHANS AS WE FOUND THEM IN THE DOHAD POOR-HOUSE

II.

WE journeyed 150 miles south, and 200 miles north, of Bombay. Desolation and death were written all over the famine district. A more discouraging condition could not well be imagined. For miles and miles not a blade of grass! The sun relentlessly sent its destructive rays on man and beast. The hot soil, hard-baked, refracted the heat and rendered life a burden. Crowds of human beings, emaciated and debilitated, moved from place to place in vain search for food, mutely appealing for help that never came. Cattle, reduced to very skeletons, feebly crept about in quest of fodder, and in lieu of it licked the hot soil as though to propitiate its anger. Trees, stripped of all their bark to the very tips, stood out like white skeletons against the cruel, fiery sky. Vultures, perched on leafless branches, listlessly waited for victims. Not a breath was stirring. The silence of death had settled upon the country. I feel it now as I write, so much so that the scratching of the pen seems harsh and intrusive. There is something uncanny about this silence. It enters one's very being and benumbs one's senses. It stills ambition. The desire for life passes away and an absolute indifference to fate takes its place. We were in the great graveyard of India. It covered 330,000 square miles, equal to any eight States west of the Mississippi. Death and decay were round about us on every hand. Possibly we might never again get beyond its confines. Who could tell! Awful as it was, we did not realize it then, for that required thought, and this ominous, deathlike silence paralyzed thought.

. . .

The Famine's Havoc at Godhra

But we had a mission to perform, and strength had to be mustered for the effort. We were bound for Godhra. Terrible things had been reported of its condition. Cholera had stampeded its great camp of 14,000 famine workers. Unburied dead were reported as lying around on every hand. Contagion had been spread in every direction and fear and apprehension had been freely expressed for our welfare by those well informed, as to the nature of the risk we were incurring. But Godhra was on the list, and therefore to Godhra we went. After a mournful experience in the poor-house at Baroda, concerning which I will write in a future letter, we started out, on the Great Western railroad, arriving there at seven o'clock in the evening. Rev. Robert Ward, one of God's noblemen, a consecrated Methodist missionary, met us and took Rev. E. F. Frease (his presiding elder), who had accompanied us, and myself, to his home, located half an hour's drive in the interior. After supper, while seated on the porch, on the lookout for a stray whiff of fresh air, Mr. Ward showed me the photograph of a dead child, and told me a story which saddens me whenever I recall it. While he and his dear wife—God bless them and comfort them—were working day and night caring for thousands of cholera patients, it pleased God to call this, their only child, to himself, away from the scenes of misery and death that surrounded it. A friend made a little coffin and they buried their darling a few yards from the house. Then without waiting to mourn, they continued their work, and not until the siege was over did they realize the extent of their terrible bereavement. Then nature gave way and reaction set in. I had noticed that Mrs. Ward was exceptionally sad and quiet during the meal. Indeed, it was painfully noticeable. I could not explain it. Now I understood it all. Mr. Ward told me how dreadfully they missed their little one and what a great comfort she had been to her mother in the wilderness of woe in which, as Christ's servants, they were rendering services such as only consecrated missionaries can. That night as I retired I offered up an earnest prayer that God would comfort, sustain and strengthen them, and enable them to trust steadfastly and unwaveringly even where they could not see.

At six o'clock in the morning I awoke, and after a hurried breakfast, we started out across fields to the poor-house. On the way we saw numerous skeletons and skulls of cholera victims. Three thousand had died in four days and many bodies had not yet been discovered, for the sick had fled in all directions, dying on the fields, by the roadside, in the gulches and under the trees. We passed the place of burning, and here skulls and bones in large numbers, charred but not consumed, were plentiful among the ashes of the dead. Two men, who had been bribed to help remove the bodies where they could be burned, themselves had fallen victims to the dread scourge and had died near the very spot where the burning was proceeding, and then and there their own bodies were consigned to the flames. Passing on, we looked over into the dry bed of a stream, and there we saw a sight sickening beyond description. A body, partly clad, lay doubled up as though the victim had died in intensest agony. A large hole in the left side showed where vultures had torn out the heart. The skull was almost entirely denuded of flesh. It was ghastly, indeed. A sight which, though one should live centuries can never be effaced from the memory.

At last we arrived at the hospital. How different from what we had seen in the morning at Baroda! A Christian missionary had lent a hand and out of chaos came order. Ten native Christian converts acted as nurses. Everything was clean and bright, and the patients seemed as well cared for as if in America. It was an oasis in a desert. A few weeks before, this hospital had been as horrible as that at Dohad, described further on. The government gave Mr. Ward an opportunity to do missionary work, and a transformation ensued that made the Godhra hospital the best I saw in India. The beds were clean. The patients were cheerful. The attendants were kind and sympathetic. No offensive odor greeted us at the gate. The death rate was normal. My heart rejoiced and I could not help making mental comparison between Hinduism and Christianity, as evidenced by their respective fruits. How glad I felt that THE CHRISTIAN HERALD and its army of readers had so liberally contributed to blessed work such as this. Here was a practical demonstration of what Christ's missionaries are doing all over this benighted land. I thanked God that he had put it into my heart to go and see for myself what he is doing through that noble band of men and women, who have given up home and friends and kindred to do his will and to let their light so shine that men, seeing their good works, might be persuaded to glorify our Heavenly Father. It was good almost beyond belief, and for the encouragement of our readers who, in behalf of India have made many heroic sacrifices, I had the photograph taken, published at foot of the next column.

THE FAMINE ORPHANS IN THE POOR-HOUSE AT BARODA

Missionary Hudson and Dr. Klopsch are standing behind the children on the right

Afterwards, we returned to Mr. Ward's bungalow and were delighted with a glimpse of the great work he is doing in other directions. Foremost among the many humanitarian enterprises which engage his active brain and tireless energy, is the erection of a model orphanage in which he expects to care for at least a thousand famine orphans. This phase of Christian work is now forcing itself upon the attention of thoughtful Christians, not only in India, but also in our own country, and the many cheering letters and encouraging promises of help in this connection which I have already received from readers of THE CHRISTIAN HERALD have made me inexpressibly happy.

The Problem of the Orphans

Mr. Ward and his devoted wife are laboring untiringly in that direction, and hundreds of famine sufferers are employed by them on government famine wages—four cents a day—preparing the way for the great responsibility which God is now placing upon our missionaries in India, and upon the heart and conscience of the Christian world. And again I say, God bless Brother Ward and his faithful wife, and grant unto them the fulfilment of all that they have in their hearts to do for the starving people and helpless orphans of famine and plague-stricken India.

. . .

Terrible Scenes at Dohad

The worst that has ever been written about the suffering among the 60,000,000 of people affected by the famine in India fails even to approximate the actual condition of affairs. It is absolutely impossible to exaggerate the truth. The statement that millions are starving gives but a very general idea of what is actually taking place. To illustrate what fearful suffering prevails there, let me give you this instance from my own experience while visiting the famine districts:

We arrived at Dohad, in Gujarat, the Garden of India, at ten minutes after one of the afternoon of May the 24th. Dr. J. H. McNeill, the Irish Presbyterian missionary located there, was at the station. Within five minutes I was seated in his cart and on the way to what until recently was one of the largest relief camps. As far as the eye could see there was not a blade of vegetation. The heat was intense; the thermometer indicated 108 degrees. A hot, blinding sandstorm filled our eyes and nostrils with microbe-laden dust, and the all-pervading stench from putrefying bodies impregnated clothes, hair and skin. Cholera had broken out a short time before and 2,400 famine sufferers had died within a few days and had been buried in shallow ground. Decomposition speedily set in and impregnated the ground with death-dealing malodor. Then the bodies were disinterred and burned. There were no disinfectants, hence the awful, sickening, disease-spreading, suffocating stench. At the outbreak of the cholera the camp stampeded and 6,000 infected, half-starved people spread contagion for miles around. At the hospital I was appalled at the shocking condition of affairs with which at that moment I came face to face, and that I ever got out of Dohad alive is one of the greatest of the many incontrovertible evidences of God's kind protecting care which my life has experienced.

WATCHING A FAMINE CHILD DIE

We found 550 miserable human beings in the worst stages of emaciation. In sixteen days 374 had been admitted, and of these all but twenty had died. Others had been received since then, and now men, women and children, some of them absolutely nude, and all the others miserably clad, were lying around suffering from relapsing fever, cholera and dysentery, wallowing in the mire. Millions of flies were permitted undisturbed to pester the unhappy victims. One young woman who had lost every one dear to her, and had turned stark mad, sat at the door vacantly staring at the awful scenes around her. In the entire hospital I did not see a single decent garment. Rags, nothing but rags and dirt. A native hospital attendant was standing at the cot of a dying man. The death-rattle had already set in, but the vitality of the patient held out a little beyond the expected time, and the attendant seemed provoked at the delay, and gave us impatiently to understand that the man should have been dead long ago.

While we stood there, almost crushed with inexpressible sadness, cooked rice was being served. A servant told me that it was the only meal for the day. There were no pots or dishes in which to serve the portions, and the patients held out filthy rags to receive what was given them. One sufferer, lying on a cot, overcome with feebleness, had fallen asleep, and the attendant threw his portion on the bed. A moment after, the sleeper, changing his position, laid himself into the porridge. We indignantly protested, but without avail.

. . .

Already Counted as Dead

Although scarcely enough to constitute half an ordinary meal was served, most if not all ate sparingly and then wrapped up the remnant carefully, either because their debilitated condition made food dangerous except in minute quantities, or perhaps experience had taught them that unless some provision was made to satisfy the cravings of hunger in the meantime they might be famished before the next meal was served. Hard as it may seem, I am not doing violence to the truth when I say that the people I met at Dohad were reduced to the level of cowed and starving dogs, who were happy to get the crumbs that fell from the table of Christendom, daring not to grumble or complain at their scantiness. So incredible to the Western eye was the stage of emaciation to which these unfortunates were reduced that I had half a dozen or so of the children strong enough to stand on their feet rise, in order that I might carry away with me a photograph illustrating their condition.

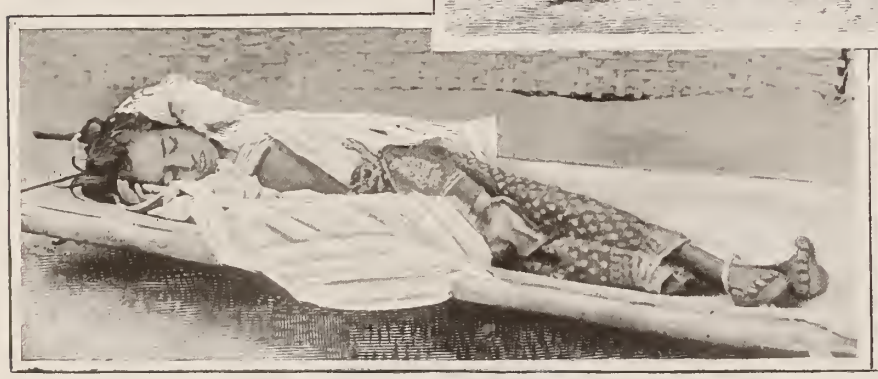
Is it to be wondered at that the residents of Dohad and vicinity count as dead the unhappy people who are taken to its hospital, and that they protest with all the strength left them against such a fate. It was with a heavy heart that I turned my back on the scene of all this pain and misery, but it was lightened by the promise of Rev. Robert Ward, the hero of Godhra, who accompanied us, to personally look after the patients and to supply them with the necessary clothing. Since my return I have sent him a thousand dollars to furnish the means required.

. . .

Baroda, Godhra, Dohad—all three in one day! Fourteen hours of concentrated heart agony, of which the most trying experience was the burning of sixteen victims of cholera and famine. There they lay, men and women and children. Among these was a lovely little girl—just the age of my own darling daughter, then 10,000 miles away—charmingly graceful even in death; her undimmed bright eyes wide open. Stand where I would, she seemed to be constantly looking at me. I could hardly believe she was dead. But they lifted her up and placed her on the logs next to three others, piled more wood on, and then another layer of bodies, and very soon the sixteen with heads and limbs here and there protruding were prepared for the final act in their earthly career. May I never be called upon to witness another such scene!

BURNING THE DEAD AT GODHRA

Our travelers are seen visiting the fields where the famine victims are cremated, Hindu fashion



SHE REACHED THE RELIEF CAMP TOO LATE

A CORNER IN THE DOHAD POOR-HOUSE

THE MODEL HOSPITAL IN THE POOR-HOUSE AT GODHRA

NEW YORK

Abbott, Glen 1 00
Abbott, Mrs Isaac 25
Abel, Wm P..... 1 00
Abrams, Miss G.. 1 00
Ackart, Fred R, Coll by 2 00
Ackerly, S Louise 2 00
Ackert, Mrs V A. 1 00
Adam, Jessie 25
Adam, Mrs T.... 1 00
Adams, Miss J.... 1 00
Agna B, Hartfield 10
Aldrich, Mrs L A 1 00
Alexander, Mrs M E 2 25
Alger, Mrs A.... 30
Alger, Mrs Fred.. 30
Allee, Mr & Mrs B 1 00
Allen, Mrs Allen.. 1 00
Allen, C M..... 1 00
Allen, Mrs D B & Miss L..... 1 00
Allen, Mr & Mrs D S..... 1 00
Allen, Ira 1 00
Alleu, Mrs 20
Allen, Mrs J L.... 1 00
Allen, Mrs J M... 1 00
Allen, T G..... 5 00
Allmed, Miss 26
Ames, M 1 00
Anderson, Carl .. 25
Anderson, Geo .. 10
Anderson, Mrs I. 1 00
Andrews, Mrs A. 25
Annis, A W..... 2 00
Archer, C D..... 50
Armonr, Mrs A G 5 00
Armstrong, Mrs M 1 00
Arthur, Roy 25
Arthur, Will 25
Arthur, Wm 25
Ashley, P B.....10 02
Aspinwall, Glenn. 15
Atwell, T R..... 1 00
Austin, C 1 00
Avery, George H. 4 00
Babcock, Mrs W W 2 00
Back, S E..... 50
Badger, F M..... 1 00
Bailey, Charles .. 1 00
Bailey, Mrs C.... 1 00
Bailey, Mrs H'y.. 50
Bailey, Mrs V A. 1 00
Baker, B 2 00
Baker, Effie A.... 2 00
Baker, Miunie ... 05
Balcom, Lena M. 1 00
Baldwin, Mrs L M 1 00
Baldwin, W E.... 2 00
Ball, Mrs G W... 50
Ball, Mrs H..... 1 00
Ball, Mrs J C.... 1 00
Band, Mr 25
Barber, Mrs H S.. 1 00
Barber, M..... 1 00
Barker, Phebe ... 1 00
Barber, Mrs W.. 1 00
Barckley, Grace T 5 00
Bardroff, Mrs J... 25
Barkley, Eva 25
Barkley, Mrs O E W 1 00
Barnard, E 25
Barnum, J 1 50
Barrett, Deforest. 50
Barrett, E G..... 5 00
Barse, Eliza 25
Barse, Sate 25
Barstow, C M.... 2 00
Bartholomew, Mrs Charles 25
Bartlett, Mrs G.. 1 00
Barton, G H..... 50
Bartoo, Mr &Mrs F L..... 2 00
Bates, George ... 50
Baxter, A P..... 3 00
Baxter, Mrs Chas 10
Baxter, L 1 00
Beakes, Mrs J G. 2 00
Beaman, Mrs S E 25
Beardsley, Mrs E 30
Beecher, Mrs I.. 2 00
Beck, Anna M... 1 00
Beck, G F..... 2 00
Beck, Tom 50
Beckelhaupt, H .. 1 00
Becker, Mrs A.... 25
Beckwith, M 25
Bedient, Ellen .. 50
Beekman, Isaac . 50
Beer, Mrs Emma. 1 00
Bellinger, Mrs G W 2 00
Bennett, Flora F. 2 00
Benson, Gust 10
Benson, Tessie .. 25
Bentley, Addie .. 25
Bentley, Denlo .. 25
Bernhard, James.10 00
Berry, Mr & Mrs L 2 00
Besemes, Mrs S.. 1 00
Billings, Della ... 1 00
Billo, Alonzo 1 00
Bird, Dora 25
Bingham, Belle .. 10
Bingham, Mrs M S 2 00
Blackman, Mrs M A 6 00
Blair, D C..... 2 00
Blatz, Wm 1 25
Bliven, M D..... 1 00
Bloomfield, Mrs J T 1 00
Bloomquist, A.... 1 00
Bloomquist, Kate 10
Bloss, Mrs Peter. 1 00
Bolce, Edna 1 00
Bollers, Lilly A.. 3 00
Borchet, Mrs H.. 20
Bordew, Jay 1 00
Boswick, Mrs E.. 1 00
Bosworth, Mrs C. 05
Bokers, Miss E.. 25
Bowers, Miss M.. 50
Bowman, Mrs ... 10
Brand's, Mrs W C, S S Class, Pres Ch, ... 1 00
Branzle, Mrs M.. 1 00
Brenzel, Wm 2 00
Brewster, B R... 5 00

NEW YORK—Cont'd.

Briggs, Mrs C.... 50
Briggs, Mrs H... 1 00
Briggs, Jas J.... 2 00
Brinkerhoff, Mrs C W..... 1 00
Brooks, Flora M & Annie M Cole, Coll by 3 00
Browing, Mrs 05
Brown, Mr & Mrs 20
Brown, Mrs A.... 1 00
Brown, A A..... 2 00
Brown, A L..... 5 00
Brown, D 1 00
Brown, Mrs Eliza 1 00
Brown, Mr & Mrs F W..... 2 00
Brown, Mrs L J. 1 00
Brown, L M..... 5 00
Brown, Mrs S Y. 50
Brown, Mrs Tyna 1 00
Brown, Mrs Z D. 1 00
Browuell, E, coll by 41
Brunson, Edgar.. 50
Bryan, Julia 5 00
Buckbee, Mrs F C 5 00
Buckman, Mrs D. 25
Bull, John 5 00
Bullen, Gussie ... 20
Bumpus, Edna .. 1 00
Bumpus, Mrs H A 50
Bundy, C A..... 1 00
Bundy, N 25
Burdick, Mrs A B 2 00
Burges, A 25
Burgess, Miss N.. 25
Burgess, Rob 20
Burlingham, W A 1 00
Burnap, Seneca.. 1 00
Burnside, E E....10 00
Burnside, Mrs L. 50
Burroughs, D M.. 1 00
Burton, Mr & Mrs B P 10 00
Burton, Mary E.. 1 00
Burton, Peter & family 5 00
Bush, L S..... 5 00
Byron, Mrs J A.. 25
Cady, C E..... 50
Cady, Geo M, (M D) 2 00
Caine, Jennie 10
Caldwell, Mrs T.. 1 00
Calhoun, M 20
Cameron, Mrs ... 10
Campbell, R A.... 1 00
Canfield, Mrs A.. 2 00
Canfield, Blanche. 1 00
Canfield, H D.... 1 00
Canfield, L L.... 2 00
Cannon, M G.... 50
Cannon, Mrs S... 50
Cantrell, L B.... 7 00
Carlson, C A.... 25
Carlson, John ... 25
Carpenter, A 5 00
Carpenter, A, coll by 2 16
Carpenter, Mrs B 2 00
Carpenter, O, coll by 47
Carr, G W & wf. 2 00
Carr, Mr & Mrs.. 25
Carter, Florence.. 25
Cary, Mary A.... 25
Case, B M..... 25
Case, Juo 2 00
Case, Zina 25
Casler, Mrs Ell.. 25
Casteman, Geo .. 1 00
Catlin, Mrs G S.. 1 00
Cedarquist, Elnora 50
Chabat, I T..... 1 00
Chadeayne, Mrs. Wm 2 00
Chaffee, Miss S.. 1 20
Chalmers, Mrs A 98
Chamberlain, E L & School 3 78
Chamberlin, Mrs J 25
Chambers, Mrs A B 50
Chandler, Mrs A J 1 00
Chandler, Mrs C. 15
Cheesman, E S... 73
Childs, E 1 00
Christana, Mrs J. 10
Christofferson, M. 50
Churchill, Joshua. 1 00
Church, A, Coll by 1 00
Clapp, Lewis 1 00
Clark, Alex H.... 2 00
Clark, Mr 1 00
Clark, Mrs B.... 20
Clark, C 10
Clark, C J..... 2 00
Clark, C L..... 75
Clark, Mr & Mrs E S 1 00
Clark, Henry A.. 2 00
Clark, Mrs Kate. 2 00
Clark, M E..... 1 00
Claver, J 20
Clemons, Mr & Mrs Alex 2 00
Clesebro, Mrs C H 5 00
Clute, C T..... 1 00
Coburn, Mrs S... 1 00
Coe, Charlotte A. 1 00
Coe, S C..... 1 00
Coe, Mrs S C.... 2 00
Cole, Mrs E J.... 5 00
Cole, Mrs Mary .. 25
Collier, Mrs D M 2 00
Colyer, Mrs W T. 1 00
Coye, George 25
Coye, H I..... 25
Coombs, G W.... 25
Comstock, Mr & Mrs A 2 00
Comstock, Chas... 3 00
Comstock, Mr & Mrs J T..... 1 00
Comstock, Miss L 50
Conger, Mrs E H. 1 00
Conley, Mrs & L T 1 00
Connors, Mrs 05
Conover, Anna E. 1 00
Cooley, Orville & A Byam..... 2 00
Cook, C S..... 1 00
Copeland, Benj .. 1 00

NEW YORK—Cont'd.

Coopernail, A & family 3 00
Copeland, H 1 00
Cord, Mrs Sarah.. 1 00
Corey, Mrs M.... 1 00
Corkey, Mrs M... 1 00
Cornish, J C..... 2 00
Cornell, Mrs H.. 5 02
Corson, Elizabeth 1 00
Corwin, P H..... 1 00
Cotton, Mrs Geo.. 12
Countryman, S .. 50
Couschafter, Mrs J N 1 00
Covert, E 3 00
Crandall, Mrs W. 20
Crane, J E..... 5 00
Craue, J H..... 2 00
Craw, Daniel 10
Craw, Mrs H S.. 50
Cronin, C W..... 25
Cronk, N O..... 2 00
Cross, E A & M A.10 00
Cross, G & M.... 1 00
Cross, John Wm.. 2 00
Cuddeback, H G. 5 00
Cnduey, E P & friends 2 00
Culver, C A, Jr.. 1 00
Cummings, N 25
Cunningham, Mrs W J.....10 00
Curtis, A D..... 25
Curtis, Lnla M... 50
Curtis, Mrs Mary 1 00
Curtis, Nellie 25
Dack, Frances .. 50
Dafel, Fred 25
Daniels, M E.... 1 00
Dare, L Howard. 2 00
Dare, Simon 2 00
Dared, Wm P.... 1 00
Darrow, Alonzo . 1 00
Davies, Miss S... 25
Davidson, H M... 2 00
Davis, A A.....10 00
Davis, Miss A.... 25
Davis, Elsie 2 00
Davis, Mrs G W.. 2 00
Davis, Jaines L.. 2 00
Davis, Miss Ruth 50
Davis, W 25
De Lanoy, Mrs A. 25
DeMelt, W E.... 1 00
Dearstyne, C, coll by 1 61
Demarest, Jane .. 1 00
Dewey, Mrs L.... 1 00
Dewhirst, Mrs E. 1 50
Dickerson, M E.. 25
Dickson, Mrs S.. 50
Dick, C & J..... 50
Dick, Edith, coll by 31
Diefendorf, P 5 00
Dievendorf, Mr & Mrs Charles.... 2 00
Distin, Mrs 1 00
Doalettle, E M... 1 00
Doalittle, Mrs R L 1 00
Dobbins, A H.... 5 00
Dohs, C F..... 50
Dollar, Wm 1 00
Donsey, Mrs J.... 1 50
Doody, Mrs E H.. 25
Dority, W W..... 25
Doty, Ida 2 00
Douglass, Will ... 25
Downs, Mrs O E.. 1 00
Doyle, J H..... 5 19
Du Bois, Sandy... 2 00
Duncan, Mrs M S 1 00
Dunlap, M..... Harris, M..... Blew, J C..... Allington, F J.. Dunlap, I B.... Bryant, B 2 32
Durant, Mrs 10
Dusenberry, Ida W 3 00
Eastman, J P.... 1 00
Eastman, R B.... 1 00
Eaton, E S & L A Sargent 4 00
Ebert, Mary M... 1 00
Eckblom, Mrs ... 25
Eckhart, V C..... 1 00
Eddy, Mr & Mrs E R..... 1 00
Eddy, Mrs W M. 1 00
Eldred, Mrs E D. 5 00
Elliott, Mrs D M 1 00
Ely, T N.....10 00
Ely, Wm & family 6 00
Embody, Miss E V 2 00
Emencker, A.... 2 00
Emple, H D..... 25
Engel, Phillp A. 2 00
Ernst, Maggie A. 1 00
Ernst, Miss M... 1 00
Estey, Fern & Fannie Shepard, coll 2 75
Failing, Mrs Fred 25
Fales, Mr & Mrs L A 2 00
Fardink, G J..... 1 00
Farman, Ara 30
Farnsworth, Hattie 50
Feels, E A & A C Underhill 1 00
Fellows, D G..... 2 00
Ferguson, Tom .. 25
Fern, Mary E... 50
Fifield, Mrs H... 1 00
File, Mrs A Coll by 25
Fix, Jno C..... 1 00
Fisher, Mrs C....3 50
Fisher, A 1 25
Fisk, Mrs D E.. 1 00
Fitch, Mrs S E... 1 00
Flint, G L.....34 15
Foggin, M 3 00
Foland, Jennie J. 2 00
Foote, Mrs H S.. 1 00
Foote, Mrs M H. 1 00
Foster, E A..... 5 00
Fowler, C 10
Fowler, M H..... 5 00
Fox, C D..... 50
Fox, Mrs 1 00
Fox, Elizabeth .. 50
Frair, Mr & Mrs J D 50

NEW YORK—Cont'd.

Fox, Mrs 25
Francher, A 3 00
Fredrick, Misses . 50
Freeman, C H.... 2 00
Freesz, Chas 50
French, G G..... 5 00
French, Nina V.. 1 00
Frisbie, Mr & Mrs 5 00
Frost, Mrs A W. 50
Frost, Henry H.. 5 00
Frost, S W..... 5 00
Fuller, A 2 00
Fuller, LeRoy ... 50
Fuller, M A..... 5 00
Fuller, Mrs Smith 3 00
Fulton, Mr 10
Fulton, Jas P.... 1 00
Furdum, W H.... 1 00
Furlow, Frank .. 25
Ford, Frankie 1 00
Ford, Jesse 10
Ford, Otis 15
Fordham, Mrs S.. 50
Fox, A M 1 00
France, Ezra 10
Frasier, Cecil B... 2 00
Fry, Thos M..... 5 00
Fuller, Miss A.... 50
Fyler Church 75
Gagnor, Mrs G... 10
Gallinger, Mrs R. 1 00
Gardiner, Chas D 2 00
Garlock, Charlotte 1 00
Garlock, Mr Jno.. 1 00
Garlock, Mrs John 1 00
Garnsey, Mrs H.. 10
Gates, Mary J....40 00
Gauld, B A..... 1 00
Gautt, Elizabeth.. 1 00
Gearn, W W..... 5 00
Geer, Lamott 2 00
Gerrard, Mrs T W 2 00
Gibbs, George ... 1 00
Gibbs, O & E, coll by 10
Giebart, C N..... 2 00
Giffin, C E..... 1 00
Gifford, Miss L.. 1 00
Gilbert, Mrs H C 5 00
Gilchrist, Mrs G W 2 00
Gleasman, G Y.. 2 00
Gleason, Mrs L.. 25
Glen Spy S Sch.. 2 00
Glenn, J A..... 60
Goble, Mrs N.... 2 00
Goldberg, Mrs W 50
Golden, Mr & Mrs J & Florence... 3 00
Goldie, Mrs 10
Goodenough, Robt 10
Gordiner, H W.. 2 00
Gorham, Geo E.. 2 00
Gould, Julian ... 1 00
Gould, W C..... 2 00
Goundry, Fred .. 10
Gowan, Wm C... 3 00
Grandyeay, I 1 00
Graves, Spencer . 5 00
Gray, George 1 00
Green, A F..... 2 00
Green, Mrs J E, Sr 1 00
Gregory, Mrs C.. 25
Gregory, W S.... 25
Griffin, Mrs 1 L.. 4 00
Griffin, Mrs O... 2 00
Grldfith, B S..... 2 00
Grinsted, David.. 3 00
Grippen, Mrs C L 2 00
Grlswold, Eliz'th. 4 00
Grover, Anna ... 50
Gulle, Miss Sarah 50
Gumaer, Miss M J 2 00
Gumsey, G 25
Gumsey, J 10
Gurensy, P N.... 15
Gurney, I 1 00
Gusler, Mrs L... 25
Guthrie, Ethel .. 25
Galge, Mrs J E... 1 00
Gardner, Mrs C P 1 00
Gassman, Miss E. 25
Gassman, Mr Jno. 50
Gassman, Ruth... 05
Geer, Mrs D 1 00
Gelser, Mr C L... 1 00
Gelser, Ella 1 00
Gibson, O M 1 00
Gifford, Mrs L C. 1 00
Gilmore, Caroline. 3 00
Gleason, Mrs A... 2 00
Gleason, E B..... 50
Goodman, Mrs ... 10
Goodrich, M R.... 2 00
Goodwin, Mary A. 1 00
Gordon's, Mrs, Cl of 2d Collegiate Ref Ch, N Y City 5 00
Gorton, Miss Mary 50
Gould, Gennie 1 00
Gove, G J 1 00
Gove, J Bowdish. 2 00
Graff, the Misses. 3 00
Graham, Miss S... 1 00
Graves, C J 2 00
Gray, Miss V..... 25
Green, C & Sons. 1 00
Green, Loretta ... 45
Greene, A 50
Greene, E L and family 5 00
Greene, F 50
Greene, H 50
Greene, Miss N L. 50
Greer, H 50
Griffin, Mrs R H.. 2 00
Grippin, Mrs H S. 20
Hagadorn, Mrs B C 50
Hagaman, C A... 5 00
Hagaman, Miss E A 5 00
Hager, Rev L S.. 1 00
Hages, A E..... 50
Haight, C F..... 1 75
Hale, S M..... 1 00
Hall, A W..... 2 00
Hall, Lottie, coll by 32
Hall, W E..... 25
Hall, Vernon 50
Halsted, C S..... 5 00
Hamblin, D 1 00
Hamblin, Mrs W 1 00
Hamilton, M 50

NEW YORK—Cont'd.

Hamilton, Mrs .. 75
Hamilton, Mrs N G 1 00
Haner, Mrs M... 2 00
Harder, Mrs E... 2 00
Haring, Mrs E A 3 00
Harris, Anna 25
Harris, Mrs C G 10
Harris, Edna 25
Harris, E L..... 50
Harris, Mrs E L. 50
Harris, James K. 25
Harris, Mrs 25
Harsha, Mary ... 5 00
Hartson, Mrs E G 50
Hartson, Lizzie.. 50
Harwood, Mrs E. 1 00
Hatch, A F..... 1 00
Hauck, Annie ... 10
Hawley, A L..... 2 00
Hawxhurst, M .. 28
Hayes, Mrs A E.. 1 00
Hayes & Co, Bankers 10 00
Hayes, Mrs M S. 2 00
Hayes, N L..... 1 00
Heath, Wm 10 00
Hedges, Arthur F H 1 00
Heiser, Mrs M.... 25
Helens, W R....10 00
Henry, Dellah G. 50
Henry, Mrs S J.. 1 00
Henry, Mrs S L. 1 00
Henry, Willis M. 1 00
Herdman, Chas W 25
Herkimer, G W.. 50
Heroy, Mrs W L 25
Herrick, George . 50
Heselden, Chas . 25
Heseltine, E R... 2 00
Hessell, Mrs 50
Hill, Arthur 1 00
Hewes, Mr & Mrs Jared & L Pike. 3 00
Heydenreich, Mrs 25
Hibberd, Nellie .. 2 50
Hickok, Lonis 2 00
Hicks, Mrs E S.. 2 00
Hiller, Mrs J F.. 17
Hillyea, J B..... 2 00
Hill, Bristol 5 00
Hill, Mrs G W.. 25
Hill, Margaret... 1 00
Hill, Mrs M.....10 00
Hilton, Isabel A. 2 00
Hilton, J H..... 1 00
Hiny, Miss M.... 50
Hitchcock, Mrs C.10 00
Hoag, W A..... 1 00
Hobbs, Mrs E A. 2 00
Hoffman, Sousie. 50
Holley, Mrs C H. 2 00
Homans, A T.... 1 00
Hooper, Mrs H... 5 00
Hornbeck, Eliz .. 7 00
Horton, Mrs R... 1 00
Houghtaliug, Mrs R R 2 00
Houghton, Edw.. 1 00
House, Mrs Chas. 10
House, Mrs G.... 25
House, H J & F Barbly 2 00
Howard, H 1 00
Howard, H H.... 2 00
Howard, Mrs & Mrs James 3 00
Howard, F S.... 1 00
Howell, Mrs W C 2 00
Hoyt, F L..... 2 00
Humiston, F M.. 1 00
Hudson, Paul H.. 1 00
Hughes, J G..... 1 00
Hughes, Wm 25
Hulett, Dr H L. 75
Hull, Daniel 1 00
Hull, Leney E... 2 00
Hunt, Mrs M B. 2 00
Hussey, Susie ... 1 00
Hutchinson, C .. 10
Hyatt, Mrs F.... 25
Hyde, Mr & Mrs A E 1 30
Hymen, Mrs E J 10
Hacker, Henry ... 1 60
Hagaman, C A 2 00
Hagaman, C A.... 5 00
Haight, T A..... 1 00
Hale, Mrs L..... 1 00
Hall, Arthur 25
Hallock, C H H.. 1 00
Halsey, H B 2 00
Hamblin, Mrs A M 25
Hamer, Albert ... 25
Hanks, Uriah 10
Haran, Miss Katie 25
Hardie, W C..... 2 00
Hardy, Ben 07
Hardy, Deane 50
Hardy, Geo 25
Hardy, Robt 10
Hardy, Sarah 20
Harrington, Mrs S J 5 00
Haskell, Mrs A E 50
Haskell, Mrs John 45
Hathaway, Leslie. 10
Havens, John S... 5 00
Havens, Mrs M... 25
Hayes, Mrs A.... 2 50
Hayes, E S 2 50
Hayes, Electa ... 25
Hayes, George ... 2 00
Hayne, Mrs 25
Hayne, Mrs S A. 10
Hazlett, W A 1 00
Heald, N 1 00
Heald, Oliver 5 00
Hebner, A 45
Heckman, C 05
Heckman, Mrs F E 10
Heckman, Miss I. 05
Hedger, Frank.... 50
Helmer, Geo J...10 00
Henry, Mrs E.... 1 00
Herring, J M 3 00
Herrington, Mrs C I 50
Herrington, Mr & Mrs H 1 00
Hess, Mrs W A.... 2 00
Hicks, Mrs E..... 25
Hicks, F E 50
Hicks, Mrs F E.. 50

NEW YORK—Cont'd.

Hicks, H D 10
Hicks, M W 25
Higbie, Willie 50
Higgins, Miss E.. 50
Higgins, Miss E A 50
Hill, A W, Jr..... 2 50
Hill, Mrs C 25
Hill, Mrs J A..... 1 00
Hill, Miss L 1 00
Hillman, Mrs G W 1 00
Himes, Miss E A. 1 00
Hix, Frank 1 00
Hobart, Lida 50
Hodenpyl, Mrs ... 8 00
Hoff, A C 1 00
Hoffert, Mr & Mrs F N 1 00
Holbrook, E E.... 2 00
Holcomb, Mrs L.. 1 00
Hollenbeck, Mrs E 30
Hooper, S J 2 00
Hooper's, Mrs C, S Sch Cl, Trinity M Ch, Albany .. 6 00
Hopkins, Mrs M A 5 00
Hopkins, Mrs T... 10
Hornbrek, J 4 00
Hotchkiss, Mrs M. 25
Houck, Susie and pupils of Sch No 3, Saxton 1 50
Honse, M N 1 00
Heusinger, Mrs A H 50
Hoyt, Mrs Jas A.. 5 00
Hughes, John 15
Hunt, Mrs C R... 1 00
Hunt, Mr Dan'l... 1 00
Hunt, Lydia I.... 1 00
Huntington, Ella. 25
Husk, Mr S 1 00
Hutton, Mrs M B 1 00
Inderlied, F J.... 5 00
Ingersoll, Geo .. 25
Inman, Mrs G H. 1 00
Irelaud, A V J.. 1 00
Irish, Mrs C J.. 3 00
Ives, Albert H... 1 00
Ives, Miss A M.. 1 00
Ives, E C..... 1 00
Ives, Mr Frank.. 25
Ives, Mrs Frank. 25
Ives, Miss J A... 50
James, Miss M... 1 00
Jewell, C J 73
Johnson Boys, Coll by 1 00
Johnson, Miss A M 1 25
Johnson, C S 2 00
Johnson, Rev E H 1 00
Johnson, Mrs E L 1 00
Johnson, Mrs G.. 1 50
Johnson, Jennie.. 1 00
Johnson, Mr and Mrs M M..... 3 00
Jones, Casper ... 25
Jones, Cassie 1 00
Jones, Mrs G S... 1 00
Jones, Miss H ... 50
Jones, Mrs J..... 1 00
Jones, Mrs L..... 50
Jones, Lily 10
Jones, Marcia E.. 10
Jones, Mrs M..... 1 00
Jones, O F 5 50
Jones, Robt O 1 00
Jackson, Mrs D.. 1 00
Jacobson, Geo .. 25
Jacobus, Graham 2 00
James, C & L... 1 00
Jansen, Mrs C B 2 50
Jarvie, Mrs Jno.. 2 00
Jay, Mrs Miles... 25
Jeffrey, Rev Robt 1 00
Jenkins, Mrs J H. 1 00
Jennings, Mrs C.. 1 00
Jennings, E 5 00
Jennings, Mrs S.. 1 00
Joerg, Leonard .. 1 00
Johns, Mrs J D.. 50
Johns, Thos D... 1 00
Johnson, Mrs A T 1 00
Johnson, Mrs B F 5 00
Johuson, D A.... 2 00
Johnson, Francis. 25
Johnson, Frank.. 10
Johnson, M A.... 2 00
Johnson, Mrs P A 10
Johnsou, Mrs W. 1 00
Johnson, Mrs 10
Jones, Bennett... 1 00
Jones Bros & Parker 3 00
Jones, Mrs D.... 1 25
Jones, Mrs Eliz.. 1 00
Jones, Fred M... 2 00
Jones, G D..... 25
Jones, Mrs G D.. 25
Jonesti, H W..... 5 00
Jones, Mrs J C.. 50
Jones, Miss Mary. 2 00
Jones, P O..... 40
Jones, Mrs P O.. 25
Jones, Mrs R M.. 2 00
Jones, Mrs T A.. 1 00
Jones Wallace .. 25
Jones, Wm J & family 50
Jordan, M E..... 5 00
Josliu, Mrs A M. 1 00
Jues, Jno T..... 50
Jump, Coruie ... 1 00
Kayels, Marie L.. 10
Kellum, Mrs C... 25
Kellum, Mrs C... 1 00
Kellum, H 25
Kellum, Mrs M... 25
Kelsey, Mr & Mrs C 50
Kent, Mrs Mary.. 10
Kenyon, Miss G.. 25
Kettridge, M, Coll by 4 75
Kieffer, Mrs C L. 50
Kilian, Mrs Wm. 2 00
Kimble, Jas D.... 1 00
Kinbloe, Floreuce & Josie 1 00
King, Mrs Mary.. 1 00
Kleine, E 1 00
Kline, Jas 25
Kniffin, Mr & Mrs C 2 00
Knoch, Adrian ... 10
Knoch, Henry.... 10

NEW YORK—Cont'd.

Knoch, Mrs M.... 12
Korts, Cora 1 00
Krnm, R L 2 00
Kruse, Mrs 10
Kubler, Mrs 25
Kugler, Susan.... 10
Kysor, Julia 1 00
Kautz, Ivan, Coll by 12
Keene, Annie ... 1 00
Keet, Myrtie L.. 2 00
Kellogg, Chas C..50 00
Kelley, Mrs Perry 5 05
Kelly, Ann M.... 1 00
Kelly, Mary 1 00
Kendell, Hester, Coll by 3 30
Kent, Abram & family 1 00
Kent, Fred W... 75
Kenyon, Fred W. 5 00
Kerr, A L..... 1 00
Ketcham, Mrs D W 1 00
Ketcham, Mrs F. 1 00
Kibbe, Mrs A E.. 1 00
Kier, Mrs 15
Kiesinger, S A.. 50
Kilgus, Maria & Louise 10 00
King, Miss E J.. 1 00
Kipp, Amos & son 1 00
Kipp, Mrs J J.... 3 00
Kirby, Robbie E.. 30
Kirchhoff, Mrs L 1 00
Klippel, J 5 00
Knapp, Mrs D H. 1 00
Knapp, E 1 00
Knapp, S H..... 2 00
Knapp, Mrs Wm. 1 00
Knights, J C..... 1 00
Krake, A R..... 2 00
Krnger, Allen & Tenna 10
Kuney, M A..... 1 00
Lacomb, Jos 1 00
La Grange, Rev J C 25
Laidlaw, Chas ... 25
Lakin, Porter 2 00
La Lone, James... 1 45
Lamb, Florence J. 1 00
Lamoy, P 05
Lanckton, Allie... 50
Laug, H L, coll by 4 50
The Misses Lausing 2 00
Lasher, Mrs H.... 2 00
Lashier, Mrs O E 1 00
Lathan, G E 6 00
Lazelle, Mr & Mrs 1 00
Lazelle, Edith and La Verne 1 00
Lea, M A 1 00
Lenard, Miss and School 1 75
Lenardson, Mrs... 50
Lennebacker, Mrs A 25
Lennebacker, Mrs Jas 25
Levett, Ella E ... 1 00
Lewis, Mary 10
Lewis, Mr & Mrs O M 5 00
Lewis, W H 50
Libbey, Mrs B F. 1 00
Licursi, F 05
Liebowitz, S 50 00
Lincoln children.. 2 00
Linkenheil, Miss E 1 00
Lippincott, Mrs M W 1 00
Liscome, Mrs J W 50
Long, Hattie 10
Longwell, Mrs D. 1 25
Losee, T K 2 00
Lovejoy, E 10
Lovejoy, J 50
Lovejoy, Jas 50
Luckey, Hugh & wife 5 00
Lumley, Mrs A... 25
Lumley, Harrison. 20
Lunger, Emma ... 25
Lunger, Mr & Mrs M L 50
Laing, Talmage & Alvan 2 00
Laker, Sarah, coll by 25
Lambert, Miss C 25
Lambert, Mr M.. 1 00
Lamont, J R..... 2 00
Lane, Belle 1 00
Langworthy, T O 1 00
Larkin, J..... 50
Larned, B P & family 3 00
Latham, Harold.. 1 00
Lathrop, Oran ... 5 00
Lavy, Mrs 15
Lawrence, Mrs A 2 00
Lawrence, J V H.50 00
Lawrence, M 1 00
Lawrence, L 1 00
Laytou, M D..... 2 00
Leach, M A..... 1 00
Leander, Mr 40
Leader, Mrs 25
Letler, Mrs Eliza. 1 50
Legg, Mrs J E... 1 00
Leicht, Geo 9 00
Lemon, Geo W.. 2 00
Lenon, Miss L... 25
Leonard, A M.... 2 00
Lewis, Biran 1 00
Lewis, Mrs 25
Lewis, Grace 18
Lewis, Miss L.... 25
Lewis, Mrs S.... 1 00
Lewis, W R & fam 3 02
Lewis, W..... 25
Lilley, Mrs S S.. 1 00
Lilly, C G..... 2 50
Linderbery, H'y.. 1 00
Lindqnist, Albert 50
Lindquist, Chas,. 50
Lindquist, Mrs C. 50
Lindquist, Mrs J. 40
Linnell, S H..... 1 00
Liustruth, Mrs F T 1 00
Little, Thomas .. 25
Little, F 2 00

NEW YORK—Cont'd.

Lockwood, Annie P 2 00
Lockwood, F S.. 25
Lockwood, Wm .. 10
Lohman, Etta & Eliza, Coll by.. 65
Long, Chas & Arthur 2 00
Losee, E A 1 00
Losee, Mrs J E... 1 00
Losee, S R..... 2 00
Lott, Cyrus J.... 50
Lnce, Willard ... 1 50
Lnnd, Mrs M.... 1 20
Lnnily, Miss M.. 25
Lutes, L 1 00
Luther, Mrs H... 25
Lyman, F H..... 2 00
Lyon, E A..... 25
Lyon, Miss H.... 25
Lyon, Mrs S E.. 75
Lyon, Mrs 25
McAdam, F K.... 1 00
McBride, Milton. 5 00
McBride, Mrs.... 25
McClanathan, E. 1 00
McConnell, T J... 1 00
McCord, Hannah. 5 00
McCullough, L D. 1 00
McDermott, Geo.. 3 50
McDonald, Mrs M 2 00
McEachron, Hattie 25
McEachron, W S 1 00
McFeeters, S ... 1 00
McGan, Emma .. 05
McGaw, Mrs Wm 10
McKenzie, Mrs .. 10
McKinley, Gilbert 1 00
McKinney, Chas. 1 00
McKnntry, C W. 50
McLaury, W C... 1 00
McMillian, Eliza. 25
McMullen, Mrs A 2 00
McNutt, Mrs 05
McOmber, Mrs E 1 00
Mackey, Miss B C 1 00
Maetby, M E.... 2 00
Madison, Eri 3 00
Mahon, Mrs 32
Maine, Mrs M E 2 00
Mallory, A 50
Mallory, Mrs F.. 50
Manchester, Dora 25
Manchester, Mrs E 25
Mandego, Mrs H. 10
Mann, Mrs 50
Manning, E L... 1 00
Manzer, C A..... 1 00
Mapes, N L..... 1 00
Marcley, G F.... 1 00
Marill, Pilar 1 00
Marsh, Mrs M A. 1 00
Marsh, Wm 2 00
Marshall, Mrs C. 1 00
Marshall, H 5 00
Marshall, H 25
Marson, Jno 5 00
Marks, Mrs 10
Martin, Dr E E..10 00
Martin, Mrs E H & Mrs Shears.. 2 00
Martin, M A..... 2 00
Mason, Charles .. 5 00
Mason, J S..... 2 00
Mason, Mrs L.... 25
Mason, Lnln, Coll by 35
Master, Mr& Mrs N C 6 00
Matson, Clara M, Coll by 6 00
Matthews, Mrs E 1 00
Matthews, E G..10 00
Matthews, Mrs M L 2 00
Mattocks, Grace. 25
Mead, Ada 1 00
Mead, C V..... 2 00
Mead, Mr & Mrs M J 5 00
Mee, Hattie 1 00
Mec, Josephine... 1 00
Mec, Thomas ... 1 00
Mee, Wm 1 00
Mein, William ... 5 00
Merrill, Mr& Mrs S W 2 00
Merwin, Fred S.. 1 00
Mesick, F W.... 2 00
Messick, Mrs T.. 1 00
Metcalf, Mrs 05
Meyeriuk, Henry. 2 00
Miles, Mr Charlie 50
Miles, F 2 00
Milspaw, Mrs M.. 1 00
Miller, Aug 1 00
Miller, Mrs Eliza 1 00
Miller, Mrs Frank 1 00
Miller, G H..... 3 50
Miller, J 50
Miller, J B..... 2 00
Miller, John W.. 2 00
Miller, Miss Lelia 25
Miller, Wm 1 00
Mills, A E..... 1 00
Mills, Jos 25
Mills, Mrs N, Coll by 14 00
Mitchell, Mrs H. 2 00
Mitchell, J N.... 50
Mitchell, Mrs J W 1 00
Mitchell, S 2 00
Mogg, Mrs P..... 1 00
Mooney, Helen E & Friends 1 50
Morgan, George & Thos Jackson .. 1 50
Morgan, Mrs W J 10
Morrell, Mrs G C 1 00
Morrell, M 1 00
Morrill, E M.... 1 00
Morris, L J..... 2 00
Morris, Mrs Mary 2 00
Morrison, R H... 1 00
Morrison, Elsie .. 1 00
Morse, Abner 1 00
Mortise, Miss I.. 25
Moseley, Mrs J.. 1 00
Mosher, Mrs 15
Mowle, U S & C E 3 50
Mullineaux, Mrs R H 3 00

NEW YORK—Cont'd.

Moxon, Lizzie .. 25
McCorty, Mr 1 20
McCotter, Mrs G W 25
McDermott, G M. 1 00
McDuffee, Mrs ... 25
McFadden, Miss N 1 00
McGarry, J W 1 00
McGrau, Mrs E... 1 00
McKinstry, J E... 1 00
McKerusee, Maud 1 00
McKiever, Mrs O. 40
McLeod, Sarah... 02
McLeod, Thos ... 25
McMannus, M ... 5 00
Mack, A 2 00
Maers, Lonisa ... 10
Manchester, Mr & Mrs O F 2 00
Manley, Mrs M... 25
Marsh, Mrs and daughters 1 00
Martin, Matilda B 5 00
Martin, Mrs W... 25
Mason, Mrs 25
Mason, F M 50
Mathews, John J. 1 00
Maxwell, J 2 00
Maylh, C 25
Mead, A L 25
Mead, John 10
Meddick, Mattie C 5 00
Melvin, A 25
Merical, Mrs P... 50
Merribew, Mrs C. 1 50
Merrithew, Miss J 1 20
Merritt, J 5 00
Miller, Mrs D H.. 1 00
Miller, Mrs J 1 00
Miller, J C 1 00
Miller, Jacob 10
Miller, Lena 1 00
Miller, Mrs Wm.. 1 00
Millers, Eva S & father 57
Milven, Jennie ... 05
Miner, G H 1 00
Miner, Mrs J L... 05
Misner, Helen ... 1 25
Mitchell, L 15
Mitchell, Orville.. 10
Mitchell, S 35
Mix, Wm 5 00
Mohlai, Lucy 1 00
Moody, Mrs B O.. 1 00
Moore, Mrs 10
Moore, Alice 15
Moore, C W 50
Moore, Frank 50
Moore, Mrs I T... 2 00
Moore, J M 10
Moore, Lewis 15
Moore, M 10
Moore, Miss N.... 10
Morris, Mrs Geo.. 25
Morris, Richard.. 25
Morrow, Carrie... 2 00
Morse, Mrs O and Mrs J Handy, Coll by 3 00
Mosher, H A 2 00
Moshier, Mrs, Coll by 25
Moxley, Mrs E.... 1 00
Moyer, Mrs Dora. 25
Murdock, Lulu E. 2 00
Murray, Chas 2 00
Murray, Geo 1 00
Murray, Mrs H... 1 00
Murray, Mrs L M. 25
Murray, W 25
Muzzy, L 2 00
Myers, E L & W J 2 00
Myers, L A 1 00
Nash, Mrs E..... 2 00
Nesbitt, E B 2 00
Newman, Mr and Mrs I H 90
Nisbitt, Mrs J.... 50
Norgate, J J 3 00
Noyc, Jno 11
Oakes, Jay B 50
Oakes, Mrs J B.. 50
Oakes, Sarah J... 1 00
Oakley, Sarah ... 2 00
Olney, Mrs N..... 25
Orton, James 25
Osterhoudt, Mrs B 50
Osterhoudt, E 50
Osterhoudt, Miss R 25
Ostrander, Alice.. 1 00
Ostrander, Mrs D. 25
Ostrander, Eunice 1 00
Ostrander, Mrs G W 3 00
Ottman, Lena 1 00
Owen, C S, Coll by 53
Owen, Mr & Mrs H B 1 00
Owens, Ed 50
Owens, Harry ... 10
Page, Mrs W S... 2 00
Palmer, Mrs K... 2 00
Palmer, Luther... 50
Palmer, Mary 1 00
Parmalle, Mrs L. 25
Parish, Mrs Z.... 50
Parker, Miss B... 50
Parker, Mr & Mrs Cecil 1 00
Parker, Mr & Mrs Elbert 2 50
Parker, Mabel G..10 00
Parker, Robt 50
Parnell, Snsie..... 1 00
Parry, Mrs W W..17 00
Parsons, Mr 1 00
Parsons, Mrs H B & daughter 2 00
Parsons, Helena.. 1 00
Pasco, C L 1 00
Pashley, Mrs J... 1 00
Payne, Mabel 3 00
Pearsale, Mrs Wm 1 00
Pearsall, Sadie.... 2 00
Pease, C S 5 00
Peck, Charlie 25
Peck, Mrs Elsie... 20
Peck, L L 2 00
Peck, Nellie..... 25
Peck, Belle 10
Peets, Mrs R M... 1 00
Pelton, Mrs J L.. 1 00

NEW YORK—Cont'd.

Penoyer, Mrs H M 1 00
Perkins, Miss E E 1 00
Perkius, Mrs Geo R 1 00
Perkins, Miss H M 1 00
Perkins, O G & E. 2 00
Perrigo, John E.. 25
Perrigo, Mrs L... 10
Peters, Mrs D W. 1 00
Pettit, Mrs 10
Pfester, Jno 1 00
Phillips, Mrs 1 00
Phillips, B A..... 1 00
Phillips, Dora ... 2 00
Phillips, H L..... 50
Phillips, J E..... 25
Phillips, J H 50
Pickard, Cynthia E 25
Pierce, Mrs J H.. 1 00
Pierce, Mrs L O. 5 25
Pinckney, Mrs J L 1 00
Plank, Addie 30
Plank, Mary 15
Polkney, Jennie... 1 00
Pope, Annie 1 00
Post, Earl 10
Post, Eula 05
Post, Howard 10
Postle, Mrs W.... 10
Potts, Mrs R.....10 00
Poultney, Mrs H.. 25
Powell, E P 10 00
Pulteney, T B, Ch 95
Pultz, P H 1 00
Pulver, Lillian... 1 00
Purcell, Mrs A... 25
Purdy, A F 2 00
Puttock, Fred ... 10
Rand, H E 1 00
Ray, H M 8 65
Raynor, A 1 00
Raynor, Mrs E W 25
Raynor, Fred 25
Raynor, Mrs J N.. 50
Raynor, Mrs J.... 25
Rechter, Ella 10
Rechter, Herman. 10
Rees, Pattie 10
Rhodes, Mrs E M 25
Rice, C M 1 00
Richardson, Mrs M G 1 00
Richmond, E 25
Roake, Phebe 2 50
Robbins, Frank... 50
Robbins, Mrs J N 1 00
Robbins, Mary ... 25
Roberts, Mrs and Mrs Hasbrouck. 1 00
Roberts, Lila N.. 10
Robertson, R 1 00
Robinson, Eloise.. 25
Robinson, J L ... 25
Robinson, R C ... 4 00
Rockwell Bros & Co, Wellsville..25 50
Rodges, Mrs H W 2 00
Rogers, Mrs C.... 50
Rogers, Miss C H 1 00
Rogers, Chas 50
Rogers, E & H ... 20
Rogers, F L 15
Rogers, G D 1 00
Rogers, Mrs H M. 50
Rogers, Henry M. 1 00
Rogers, J H 50
Rogers, O W..... 50
Rogers, Phebe A.. 50
Rogers, Mrs Q P.. 1 00
Rogers, Wm C.... 5 00
Rogers, Winfield.. 1 00
Rood, Mrs 2 00
Rose, Mrs 25
Rossman, E 2 00
Rowell, Mrs E.... 5 00
Roy, Mr & Mrs D J 2 00
Rnsh, Mrs Mary.. 2 00
Russell, Ona & Sophia Parker, coll 8 00
Ruttenbur, C 50
Ruttenbur, E M.. 1 00
Ruttenhnr, Mrs E M 10
Sabin, Mrs Otis .. 1 00
St John, C E 1 00
St John, G & wife 2 00
Saul, Chas R..... 5 00
Saxton, J E 50
Saxton, L B..... 40
Schermerhorn, V.. 10
Scott, Mrs M..... 25
Serven, Mr & Mrs James H 2 00
Shafer, Mr 50
Shaw, H M & E S 2 00
Sheldon, H G 1 00
Sherman, Mrs H W 50
Sherman, Mrs P.. 1 00
Sherman, Mrs R.. 1 00
Sheve, Jno 15
Shippee, Mrs C R. 2 00
Shuart, B & R.... 1 00
Shuster, James L. 2 00
Simmon, M 1 00
Simms, Mrs M O.. 5 00
Simonson, Mrs C M 2 00
Sinkletter, Mrs J O 5 00
Sisson, Rev E A.. 25
Slayton, B F 1 00
Sliter, Mrs H C... 1 39
Sloat, I L 1 00
Slocum, Mrs E.... 1 00
Smedley, Mrs J H 3 00
Smiley, Mrs S.... 5 00
Smith, A V 2 00
Smith, C 50
Smith, Mrs Geo... 15
Smith, Mr & Mrs Geo 2 00
Smith, Lany 10
Smith, M 1 00
Smith, Mrs M H.. 5 00
Smith, Mary A & Mrs Van 2 00
Smith, Millie 10
Smith, N E 1 00
Smith, Mrs S A... 10
Smith, Mrs W E.. 1 00
Smith, Winifred.. 2 00

NEW YORK—Cont'd.

Smodell, B C 37
Snyder, Willie ... 10
Sobeiske, A 1 00
Spear, Mrs S..... 1 00
Spearance, Miss B 25
Spencer, Anna M. 10
Spencer, C J 25
Spoor, Mr Dr 5 25
Sprague, Wm 1 00
Springer, J E and W W Spurbeck.. 2 00
Springer, Mrs P.. 2 00
Squire, Mrs A R.. 25
Stanford, O 1 00
Staples, Mrs E.... 25
Steen, Miss S..... 2 00
Stevens, Geo 02
Stevens, Mrs H D 1 00
Stevens, Mrs M G H 1 00
Stewart, Mr & Mrs Wm 3 00
Stickle, Mrs C.... 05
Stickle, Chilon.... 05
Stickles, Mary A.. 1 00
Stone, Fred 50
Storm, Adolph ... 25
Stowell, L D 5 00
Strail, Mrs J E... 30
Strail, Libbie 50
Strong, Mrs O E. 1 00
Strong, Wm H... 50
Stuart, Mrs M J. 1 00
Sutton, M L S.... 1 00
Swan, M 5 00
Swarthout, G W.. 5 00
Sweet, Mrs L..... 1 00
Swift, Helen 1 00
Taft, Mrs D H... 80
Tanner, Mrs E.... 25
Tanner, Mrs E.... 11
Tanner, Miss G... 25
Tanner, Mrs T A. 1 00
Taylor, Miss E R. 1 00
Taylor, Isabella.. 1 00
Ten Broek, Mrs J. 50
Thatcher, F H ... 1 00
Thatcher, Marcus. 2 00
Thompson, A, Coll by 60
Thompson, Mrs A A H 20
Thompson, Jas ... 50
Thompson, Lula E 1 00
Tifft, Mrs D M & daughter 2 00
Tinkous, K 10
Treadway, E P... 2 00
Treichler, Mrs ... 10
Trnax, Mrs W M. 1 00
Trne, G L 1 00
Trnesdell, Mrs J.. 2 00
Tuthill, B W..... 50
Tuthill, Mrs E.... 25
Tuthill, Fannie... 50
Tuthill, J H 50
Tnthill, Lucy 25
Tuthill, Theo 50
Tnthill, Mrs W M. 1 00
Tnthill, Willis ... 50
Twining, Jas 5 00
Tyler, R 20
Uts, Napoleon.... 50
Vanderhoff, Vira.. 05
Van Der Vort, E A and niece 1 00
Van Dyke, Mrs J H 2 00
Van Horne, D C.. 2 00
Van Slyke, Mrs E. 50
Van Vechten, Jas. 10
Van Wormer, Mrs J H 1 00
Van Zile, Frank.. 1 00
Vary, Mrs M G... 1 00
Vaughn, Mrs Kate 20
Vetter, Gustave.. 2 00
Vincent, G 05
Vincent, P 05
Vogal, Mrs H..... 10
Voss, Mrs Flo 1 00
Waite, C G 50
Waite, Fredie..... 10
Walch, Mrs F..... 5 00
Walsh, George ... 50
Ward, C A 2 00
Ward, Ella 3 25
Warren, Ellen ... 1 00
Warren, T D 2 00
Wangh, Mrs Mary 25
Webber, Mr & W 2 00
Weber, C H 50
Weber, Irving ... 50
Weber, Will 50
Webster, Mrs 1 00
Webster, Mrs J.. 1 00
Weld, Jno M..... 1 00
Welker, Mr Fred. 25
Wells, Carrie E...15 00
Wells, M M, mother & 2 pupils.... 1 35
Wells, Mrs T..... 1 00
Westcott, Oliver.. 5 00
Wheeler, W J.... 50
Whitaker, Miss F 25
White, A J 1 00
Whitford, Bower. 25
Whitford, Earl .. 10
Whitford, May ... 10
Whitmore, Olive.. 25
Whittier, Chas ... 25
Widerman, E 10
Widmer, Geo 1 00
Wilcox, Alva 25
Wilcox, Mrs E.... 25
Wilcox, Victor.... 05
Wilkins, Albert... 25
Wilkins, Mrs E... 10
Wilkins, Guy 25
Wilkins, Polly ... 25
Williams, C S 1 00
Williamson, Mrs E, Mrs C & Mrs J D Conklin 3 00
Wilmot, N E 1 00
Wilson, Mrs 50
Wilson, A J 50
Winchester, Mrs C 25
Winchester, Mrs J E 25
Winchester, Mr N 25
Wing, Miss H ... 25
Wings, Mrs 1 00
Wood, Adelaide A. 1 00

NEW YORK—Cont'd.

Wood, Mrs C..... 50
Wood, H A 1 00
Wood, Mrs W H.. 1 00
Woodward, E 25
Worick, C 25
Worthington, Mrs J 50
Wright, Chas M.. 25
Wright, Jas 1 00
Wright, Mrs M... 10
Young, Mrs 25
Young, Lottie 1 00
Yunker, Mrs 50
Yunker, Mr Glen. 10
Little Edward ... 1 00
Jennie K, Mexico 2 00
Neal & Hyde, Syracuse 5 00
Sadie, Fairfield... 1 00
A F, New Brighton 2 00
C E S, Brookhaven 1 00
E A B & L A B, Dover Furnace.. 7 00
E M C, Gloversville 1 00
E N, Dobbs Ferry 2 00
E S, Old Westhnry 1 00
F W S, Rexford Flats 5 00
I L B, Fayetteville 1 00
Mrs J & Children, Gowanda 1 00
Mr & Mrs J B O, W Charlton 5 00
Mrs J H B, Bloomville 1 60
Mrs J McT, Bklyn 5 00
J W, Brooklyn.. 1 00
L M, Valatie 2 00
Mrs L M C, A J C & G C C, Fero 2 35
L M S, Poughkeepsie 2 00
Mrs L S E, Saudusky 1 00
M A B, Fairport 1 00
M E B, Brownville 1 00
Miss P L S, Waterville 5 00
S G, Newark.... 1 00
W A F, N Y City.75 00
Mrs W H, Ballston Spa 10 00
W T A, Cambridge 1 00
X Y Z, Higgins.. 50
—, — 2 00
—, Brooklyn ... 10
—, Brooklyn ... 1 00
—, Brooklyn ... 1 00
—, Central Sq.. 2 00
—, Chappaqna . 1 00
—, Coram 1 00
—, Cortland ... 1 10
—, Eagle Mills. 75
—, East Elma.. 1 00
—, Flackville .. 1 00
—, Glasco 1 00
—, Greenville .. 1 25
—, Hannibal ... 1 00
—, Hoosic Falls 1 00
—, Hudson 1 00
—, La Fargeville 1 00
—, Morrisonville 2 00
—, Morrisville... 25
—, Mount Ross. 25
—, New Lebanon 1 00
—, Olean 50
—, Parishville.. 3 00
—, Port Cranc.. 25
—, Rochester .. 2 00
—, Sandy Hill.. 3 00
Auon, Troy 10 00
Cash, Avondale... 25
Cash, Remsenbnrg 3 35
Cash, Speonk ... 30
Cash, Speonk ... 25
Cash, Valley Falls 1 00
For Jesus Sake, Germanton 1 00
A Friend, Albion. 1 00
Friend, Glenhead.10 00
A Friend, Hamilton 15
Friend, Heath ... 1 00
Friend, Higgins.. 50
Friend, Hyndsville 25
Friend, Kingston. 2 00
Friend, N Y City 1 00
A Friend, N Y C.10 00
Friend, N Y C... 25
Friend, N Y Mills 1 00
Friend, Scottsville 1 00
Friend, S Bethlehem 3 10
Friend, Unadilla.. 2 00
Friend, Valley Falls 25
A Friend, W New Brighton 5 00
Friend, Wright... 50
Friends, Babylon. 3 00
Friends, Bedford. 1 00
Friends of the Needy, Cherry Creek 2 40
Friends, Dewittville 4 25
Friends, Hope ... 7 55
Some Friends, Johnston 1 00
Friends, Kasoag..10 15
A few Friends, Kendall 1 42
Friends, Livonia..14 00
Friends, Orient... 2 00
Few Friends, Vernon 1 50
2 Friends, Whitestone 50
I H N, Fairville. 50
I H N, N Y C.... 1 00
Constant Reader, Scipio 2 00
Readers, Johnsonsburg 2 00
A Sub, D C H, Canastota 1 00
Sympathizer, Valley Falls ... 1 00

NEW YORK—Cont'd.

3 Readers, Rose.. 2 00
Sympathizer, Auburn 1 00
2 Sympathizers, Taughannock ...2 00
2 people of Newark 1 00
Sch House Meetg, Wake 5 00
School Dis No 4, Hartland 2 20
Other Contributions, Benns Pt 1 00
2 Widows Mites, Port Jefferson.. 1 00
A Scotch Lassie, —— 50
Valley Grange No 165 Ingalls Crossing 7 00
Mother & Dan, Lansingburgh .. 2 00
Individual, Middleport 5 00
Public Sch Children, Farmersville 5 00
Coll'n Sandusky.. 3 05
Mem'l Day Coll'n Masonville 9 00
Brother & Sister, Hemlock 3 00
Drydenfolk, Dryden 3 50
Citizens of Whitney Point 5 15
Widows Mite, Perrys Mills 30
From the children, Maspeth 50
Additional, Utica. 5 25
Emmannel Church, Adams 9 50
Stockbridge M E Chnrch 17 76
M E Ch, Berkshire 25 00
1st Bapt Ch, Snffern 8 00
Church at Central Bridge 13 50
Christian Church, Hartwick 5 75
Tuscarora Ch 22 00
Un Mtg of Cong & M E Chs, Orient 20 00
Bapt Ch, Hartwick11 75
Member of Ref'd Ch, Fonda 1 00
Ch of St James the Les, Scarsdale 29 00
M E Ch, Philadelphia 20 00
Coll'n at Church, Maryland 5 00
Pres Ch at Hoosick Falls 49 00
Pres Ch, Ballston Centre 2 00
3d M E Ch, Sodns 1 00
M E Ch, Westchester 3 00
Meth Ch, Maspeth10 00
Bapt Ch & M E Ch of Ala Centre & Bapt Ch of So Alahama 11 00
Prim Cl of Ch of the Strangers, N Y City 1 00
Meth Ch, Mooers.10 00
Meth Ch, Schuyler Lake 50
M E Ch of Long Eddy Circuit .. 3 21
Chs of Roxbnry..11 00
Scotch Pres Ch, Chipman 80 11
M E Ch of Eminence Charge...16 10
Ref'd Ch, Greenport 17 53
Coll by Wesleyan Meth Ch 14 00
Pres Ch, Westville12 68
Prim Cl of Pres Ch, Groveland.. 9 35
Prim Cl of S Sch, Bath 1 43
Trinity P E S Sch, Roslyn 15 30
Bapt S Sch..... 3 50
S S Class, China. 1 61
N Brookfield Bapt S Sch 3 00
Windsor Terrace M E S S, Bklyn.41 92
Glenerie S Sch, Saugerties 5 00
New Albion S S.20 00
King St M E S S, Port Chester .. 6 50
S Sch, Coll'n N Y City 12 57
S Apalachin S S Class No 2..... 2 00
Russia Union S S20 00
S Sch, Bilsborongh 6 00
1st Bapt S Sch, Manchester 15 35
Class No 3, S Sch, No Stockholm .. 1 35
Canandaigua Lake Shore S School, Hickspoint 3 00
St Andrews S Sch Class 32 ..... 2 00
S Sch M E Ch, Valley Falls ... 5 00
S Sch of Sec Ref Ch, Rochester..34 81
Railway Y M C A, Elmira 1 50
A Kgs Dau, N Y C 1 00
1st Pres Y P S C E, Elmira 15 25
Reseue Miss'n, Syracnse 5 00
W C T U, New Albion 2 00
Jr Lea of State St M Ch, Troy.10 00

NEW YORK—Cont'd.

No Brookfield C E Soc 1 75
Womans Baptist Miss Soc, West Hoosick 15 00
M E Ch Soc, Long Eddy 18 00
Glenerie Cir K D, Cockbnrn 5 00
Spencer Ch, Miss Soc, Hornellsville 3 00
Catskill Ref'd C E Soc 30 00
Catskill Bapt C E Soc 25 00
Catskill Bapt Jr C E Soc Primary. 2 10
Ashland Pres C E Soc 23 50
Freehold Chr C E E Soc 21 28
Athens Bapt C E Soc 17 52
Medway Chr C E Soc 15 22
Oak Hill M E C E Soc 5 90
Windham Pres C E Soc 5 00
Hunter Pres C E Soc 11 78
Ref Ch C E Soc, Knox 2 25
W C T U, Peruville 2 00
C E Soc of Bapt Ch, Hartwick.. 2 00
Y P S C E, Pres Ch, Norwich Crs 7 00
Y P S C E, Paines Hollow 10 00
Y P's Cl, Bemus Point 5 00
Y P S C E, East Guilford 8 00
Y M C A, Whitehall 7 00
Jr Christian End Soc, Westbnry Sta 5 00
Farther Lights Miss Soc of Central Bapt Ch, Syracuse 2 00
Y P S C E, Greenway 7 50
Girls Miss Band of Pres Ch, Cliuton 2 50
Y P S C E..... 7 01
W C T U, Reading Centre 5 53
Ladies Aid Soc'y, Dugway 1 00
Y P S C E, No Stockholm 6 45
Jr Lea M E Ch, Valley Falls ... 1 63
Kings Danghter, Hammondsport . 5 00
Platt Dis Y P S C E, Malone..... 5 00

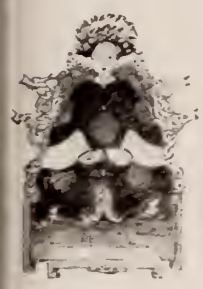
MISCELLANEOUS

Aitken, Alex 43
Bird, Emma 2 18
Butter, Mamie.... 22
Christman, S G.. 1 00
Clark, Lillie..... 27
Cloyis, Mrs, —.. 25
Deppe, Allen 25
Dotter, Frank.... 25
Dotter, Mrs R.... 50
Eadie, Thos 52
Eckle, Adam 1 00
Eckle, Wm 1 00
Etz, Ella G..... 25
Hening, G P..... 50
Heuing, J W..... 1 00
Hening, P G..... 2 00
Koerber, Henry M 4 00
MacMillan, Robt.. 13
Mangle, Mrs, —. 25
Mangle, Wm..... 1 00
Means, S, —.... 25
Meckes, Mrs A... 25
Meckes, Amandns. 25
Meckes, Jas 50
Meckes, Mrs Jas.. 1 00
Meckes, Lyman... 1 00
Meckes, Roger.... 1 00
Meckes, Mrs S W. 25
Moyer, Wilson... 50
Poynter, Mammie. 06
Poynter, Thos.... 04
Schwab, Allen ... 25
Schweriner, Wm.. 1 00
Serfass, Emanuel. 30
Serfass, Gusta.... 25
Smale, Peter 50
Sox, Edward 50
Spronkle, J C..... 1 00
Swantie, Emma & Jimmie 2 05
Yonng, Mr, —... 50
Young, Mrs, —.. 25
Young, Albert, — 25
Young, Irven, — 25
S M G, —..... 28
—, — 10
—, ... 25
—, ... 25
—, — 25
—, —..... 35
—, — 76
—, ... 2 00
—, — 5 00
—, Middle Grove 1 00
—, Unadilla 1 00
Anon, —..... 35
Anon, — 50
Anon, —..... 2 00
All for Christ, — 1 25
Friends, — 25
I H N, —..... 10
Applied Christianity, Beamsville.. 7 10
Juvenile Temperance Temple Snperintendent ... 3 00
Whosoever Soc... 3 00
—, Henderson... 1 63

THE BIBLE AND THE NEWSPAPER

THE SITUATION IN CHINA

CHINA'S strange and inexplicable diplomacy has had a remarkable illustration in the case of United States Minister Conger and the other foreign envoys in Pekin, who, after having been regarded by the whole civilized world as dead, are now apparently brought suddenly back to existence. If the cipher message received by our Secretary of State from Minister Wu at Washington, purporting to have come from Minister Conger, be genuine, then not only are the envoys, their families, together with the missionaries and foreigners in Pekin, still safe and living, but the terrible story of wholesale massacre which also emanated from Chinese sources is to be regarded as a fiction of that strange diplomacy which works by dark subterfuge and misrepresentation. While Washington is disposed to accept the Conger dispatch as genuine, London and the continental capitals are less credulous and regard it with suspicion. It is pointed out that the message, which is claimed to have been sent from Pekin, July 18, describes a condition that prevailed three weeks earlier. It read: "British Legation under continued shot and shell from Chinese troops. Quick relief only can prevent general massacre." This, it is claimed, may yet prove to be an old, intercepted cipher message which Minister Conger had vainly attempted to send during the crisis late in June, and which the Pekin authorities now shrewdly forward undated, to satisfy our demand for a message from our Envoy. The whole event is so startling and unprecedented that the message has come like a voice from the grave. If the envoys are indeed alive, it is conjectured that the purpose of the Chinese has been to hold them as hostages until the moment arrived for a settlement with the allied powers, and that the repeated rumors of their death had been circulated to discourage any attempt at rescue by an assault on the capital. President McKinley has received through Chinese official sources a telegram signed by the Emperor, appealing to the United States to act as mediator in the involved international quarrel. France has received a similar request. It is now proposed to test China's good faith by requesting the Pekin government to allow Minister Conger to send to our State Department a cipher message certifying the genuineness of the Emperor's signature to the appeal. This would conclusively establish the genuineness of the Conger message, and be a very decided step toward the restoration of peace. We most sincerely hope that China will perceive the wisdom of this course and abandon the duplicity which is keeping the whole civilized world in suspense. She has no idea of the storm that will break upon her head if she has indeed followed the example of the savage people described by the prophet:



AN ANCESTRAL RULER

The Philistines have dealt by revenge and have taken vengeance with a despiteful heart, to destroy for the old hatred (Ezek. 25:15).

Symbols Mistaken.

A curious story of New York life appeared recently in a Japanese journal. An American resident in Tokio read in one of the newspapers of that city a description of New York written by a Japanese who had just returned from America. The writer said: "One of the things I noted in New York and saw in no other part of the country was the prevalence of the paper or cardboard prayers hung upon the doors and windows of dwellings. These are all in one form and are not unornamental. They seem to be used by all classes, but are more common in the crowded districts where the poor live, hundreds under a single roof, than in the higher class streets. I have even seen them on store fronts. Sometimes they remain out only for a few hours; sometimes for days. There appears to be no rule regulating the time of display. Each of the prayers is a crimson square with a singular, graceful, and rather complicated character, made up of curves, in the middle of the card. This character is of pure white. From what I could learn it has some deep religious and mystical significance. Its presence, however, has no restraining effect on those in its vicinity." The American induced him to show him a reproduction of this card which the Japanese had copied into his notebook. What was his surprise when he recognized it as a copy of the card that householders hang out when they have refuse which they want the Street Cleaning Department to remove! Though the Japanese was wrong in supposing the card was a prayer, the householder who puts it out might be reminded by the act that there is much in life that might be removed through really earnest prayer to God.

As far as the east is from the west, so far hath he removed our transgressions from us (Ps. 103:12).

A GROUP OF NATIVE CHINESE CHRISTIANS

Many hundreds of bright young converts like these have been massacred.

To be Kept Secret for a Century

A remarkable story of a mysterious secret is told by the Washington correspondent of the New York Sun. He says that there is a box in the safe of the Congressional Library, which is not to be opened until after December 31, in the year 2000. The depositor was anxious to find some institution which would be sure to be in existence on that date, and which would be under the control of men on whose honor he could rely. He finally selected the Congressional Library, and on hearing the facts the Librarian gave the promise required and the box was then placed in his keeping. The curiosity of two men who knew of the deposit was piqued and they set themselves to unravel the mystery. After many inquiries and much study for more than a year, they are convinced that the secret is discovered. Their study of the facts led them to the conclusion that the box contains documents, because if it had contained valuables or jewels, the depositor would naturally have put it in a safe deposit vault. Proceeding on that assumption, inquiries were made for any hints of such a document having been prepared as the author might wish to keep secret. They learned that at a dinner party in Washington seven years ago, a statesman who had spent forty years in the public service mentioned casually that he was engaged in writing the secret history of his time and recording actual facts known only to a few of the very highest officers of the government. When he was asked if he intended to publish his work, he replied that he could not so violate the confidence of his associates, but he hoped that when death had removed them and their children and grandchildren, it might be published, as it could then do no harm to anyone. He said also that he had added to the work some predictions as to the social conditions which would exist in the twenty-first century. Doubtless it is this manuscript that the box in the Congressional Library contains and it would not be difficult to guess the name of the author. The people of that day will find it interesting reading, but if they are as much wiser than we, as we hope they will be, they will not need the warning that the Preacher gave to the men of his day:

Say not thou, What is the cause that the former days were better than these? for thou dost not inquire wisely concerning this (Eccles. 7:10.)

Was this Andre?

A dispatch from Fort William, Ontario, says that Indians hunting on the east coast of Hudson Bay have brought word to the Hudson Bay Company's post on the west coast of James Bay that they found this Spring a vast quantity of wreckage, the bodies of two men, and a man in the last stage of the death struggle. The Indians reported that they could not understand the language he spoke, but that it was not English. He died while they were there, and they returned to the trading post without bringing any evidence of the strange story. It is believed by the officials of the Hudson Bay Company that the Indians witnessed the ending of Andre's attempt to reach the North Pole by balloon. They had never seen a balloon, but from their description and the other circumstances, the officials are firmly convinced that it was the remnants of Andre's airship. A party guided by the same Indians has been sent out by the Hudson Bay Company to find facts to establish the identity of the dead explorers. There is only too much reason to fear that they will prove to be the Andre party. If so, three more lives have been sacrificed in the effort to reach the Pole; but the effort will not be abandoned until success crowns the search, for explorers are not deterred by the death of their predecessors. What a pity it is that there is not the same persistency and determination displayed by men in the effort to attain the eternal kingdom, which is far better worth seeking.

WU TING FANG
The Chinese Minister

This one thing I do, forgetting the things which are behind, and reaching forth unto those things that are before, I press toward the mark for the prize of the high calling of God (Phil. 3:13).

An Anticipatory Default

The United States Supreme Court has recently given judgment on a question that it is believed has never been decided before. It arose on a case of broken contract. One party to the contract notified the second party that it did not intend to carry out the contract. It then became a question whether the second party could sue for damages at once or ought to wait until the breach of contract actually occurred. The Supreme Court decided that there was no need to wait and the party may sue at once. It is, however, careful to warn the public that its decision does not apply to all cases. As, for instance, a promissory note which, even when the maker tells the payee that it will not be honored at maturity, cannot be made the subject of suit until it is actually dishonored. In the case however of a continuing agreement on the withdrawal of one party, the other may sue even though the damages have not all been incurred. It is so with some kinds of sin which bring present condemnation though the consequences stretch out through life and into the lives of others.

Some men's sins are open beforehand, going before to judgment; and some men they follow after (I. Timothy 5:24).

An Unusual Weapon

A strange encounter between a householder and a burglar is reported by the Philadelphia Times. It says that a resident of that city was alone in his house one night, his family being away. Hearing a noise, and thinking he might have left the dog in the dining-room, he went down-stairs where he was met by an ugly burglar, who resented the appearance of the white-robed visitor and started to choke him into subjection. The astonished householder saw that a physical encounter would result sadly for himself, and darted back into the hall for some weapon. The only thing in sight was a basketful of incandescent bulb-lights, which he had brought home the night before. Instinctively he seized one of these and hurled it in the direction of the enemy. His aim was so bad that the bulb struck the door-frame, and broke with a bang that in the stillness of the night sounded like the explosion of a small lyddite shell. The result was surprising. The burglar, no doubt thinking the thing was a hand grenade and that more were coming, fled in all haste, followed by a volley of popping incandescents, which smashed against the walls or the furniture with a noise that sounded deadly. If he had only known how harmless the missiles were he would not have fled, but when men are engaged in lawless business, they imagine more danger than there is.

The wicked flee when no man pursueth; but the righteous are bold as a lion (Prov. 28:1).

"VENGEANCE IS MINE, SAITH THE LORD"

THE FORGIVING SPIRIT

BY DR. AND MRS. WILBUR F. CRAFTS

International Sunday School Lesson for August 12: Matt. 18: 21–35

Golden Text, Matt. 6: 12: "Forgive us our debts as we forgive our debtors"

A LESSON on forgiveness is timely every day, everywhere, for everybody; especially timely in summer days, when the extremes of vexation and temptation and relaxation are in conjunction; but most of all is the teaching of forgiveness needed, as it is also difficult, in war times, such as this international lesson encounters to an unprecedented extent all over the world. The spirit of forgiveness is not easily cultivated amid the overshadowing weeds of militarism, which are now blossoming blood red, for war is organized revenge. The German Emperor sends his troops to China to execute "exemplary punishment and vengeance." It is the duty of nations to see that there is humane and efficient government in every quarter of our crowded world; but let us remember our own sins as Christian nations and as individuals, and in this and every case leave "vengeance" to God, using all human punishments remedially, not vindictively. I have no doubt that many a massacred Christian in China has died with the prayer of Stephen upon his lips, "O Lord, lay not this sin to their charge," and that many a missionary has met a martyr's fate with the prayer of Christ: "Father, forgive them; they know not what they do." Those who feel the full import of that prayer will not only forgive, but also "love their enemies," pitying as one would pity a blind man stepping unconsciously on a child, hostile hearts blinded by a bigotry, though themselves the victims of the blindness.

. . .

How Many Times Have You Been Forgiven? How oft shall my brother sin against me and I forgive him? Strange indeed that Peter should think seven the perfect number in forgiveness! What would have happened to that oft-sinning apostle if Christ had adopted that limit for him? Still less may we adopt that measure and then pray, "Forgive as we forgive." On that basis our probation would end in a week, for who gets through a day without some sin

"LET NOT THE SUN GO DOWN ON YOUR WRATH"

—some unconscious sin—due to conscious sin in the past, if nothing more? "Till seventy times seven," said Christ. But when we have again multiplied by seven we have fallen far short of the number of experiments Edison performed to develop refractory metal into perfect electric light. Shall those who seek moral ends be less patient and persistent with refractory souls that they are helping God to develop into the light of the world and the shining stars of eternity? Christ's "seventy times seven" was no doubt intended to express the unlimited mercy that endureth forever, with which we are to forgive as God forgives. But on another occasion, when Jesus said (Luke 17: 3–5), "If thy brother sin against thee seven times in a day and seven times turn again to thee, saying, 'I repent,' thou shalt forgive him," the apostles were constrained to cry out, "Lord, increase our faith." The remedy for our very limited forgiveness is a clearer vision of the purity of God, and so of our own daily need of forgiveness. We can then scarcely refuse to others the mercy of which we feel the need ourselves.

. . .

Forgiveness Abused Forgiveness, both divine and human, like every good thing, is liable to abuse. Shall we continue in sin because God is merciful? Nay, for forgiveness does not cancel the consequences of sin. Here comes the story of the boy whose father drove a nail into a post for every fault, and took one out for every good action. Once it happened that the post was entirely cleared. "Ah, father," said the boy, in tears, "the marks are left!" Jerry McAuley was forgiven, but died, as he said himself, "at the noon of life, because of the sins of his youth."

A religious paper represents a little girl who had read one morning in her book of daily texts, "If thy brother sin against thee seven times in a day," etc., as being tormented all day by her careless and mischievous brother, who soiled her apron, broke her umbrella, spilled her ink on her copybook, lost her knife and examples, put a toad in her lunch-basket and frightened her kitten into fits. These seven offences she forgave on slight expressions of regret, and was reproved by her mother for refusing to forgive an eighth outbreak of mischief that same day. She finally forgave that also. This made-up story is certainly defective in that the mother did not punish the brother, not in anger, but to accomplish the fundamental purpose of forgiveness, the "remission," that is, the removal of the sin. A shallow view of forgiveness is simply foregoing the penalty, which is what we mean when we say we will "forgive, but can not forget." A deeper forgiveness is the forgiving spirit, that removes from the forgiving one all resentment of feeling. But our forgiveness is like God's when it is chiefly concerned in removing the sin from the offender. In order to do that, we may refuse to remove the penalty. The world is slowly learning that, whether in the family or the State, punishment should be remedial, not punitive, aiming not at revenge, but at reform. Even in dealing with China that spirit should prevail.

. . .

Forgiven and Forgiving Pay what thou owest. We have been forgiven both many and much. "Seventy times seven" would provide forgiveness for us only a year and a half if we sinned only seven times a week. Shall we then limit the forgiveness we will bestow as to number? But the parable Jesus used sets up another contrast: We have been forgiven great wrongs against the great goodness of God, and shall we refuse to forgive the relatively trifling wrongs we think we have suffered from our fellow-sinners? A king is presented, one of whose satraps owed him twelve millions of dollars—probably duties he had collected only to embezzle and squander them. The king ordered the usual penalty of the time and country: the selling of the man and his family into slavery, partly to secure money for restitution, but in the main in this case, no doubt, for punishment and as a warning to others. But the offender pleaded for mercy: "Have patience and I will pay thee all." The merciful king forgave him. Presently, in seeking to collect his own debts, the forgiven man found a man who owed him sixteen dollars. He seized him by the throat, saying: "Pay that thou owest;" and refusing all pleas for mercy, hauled him to prison to be sold for the debt. When the king heard how one he had forgiven so much had refused to forgive even a little, he withdrew his own forgiveness and allowed justice to take its course.

Who is so blind that he cannot see his own picture in this parable? Every one of us has asked and received pardon for great offenses against the love of God, but who has not at some time refused to forgive some lesser offense against himself? God is saying to every one who harbors a grudge "Shouldst not thou also have had mercy on thy fellow servant, even as I had mercy on thee?"

Two Christian men "fell out." One heard that the other was talking against him, and he went to him and said: "Will you be kind enough to tell me my faults to my face that I may profit by your Christian candor, and try to get rid of them?" "Yes, sir," replied the other, "I will do it." They went aside and the former said: "Before you commence telling what you think wrong in me, will you please bow down with me, and let us pray over it, that my eyes may be opened to see my faults as you will tell them? You lead in the prayer." It was done, and when the prayer was over, the man who had sought the interview, said: "Now proceed with what you have to complain of in me." But the other replied: "After praying over it it looks so little that it is not worth talking about. The truth is, I feel now that in going around talking against you, I have been serving the devil myself, and I have need that you pray for me and forgive me the wrong I have done you." How many Christians who are in the habit of criticizing their brethren might be thus cured!

Not Forgiveness, but only Explanation Needed Half the grudges are due to misunderstanding, and call for nothing more than explanation, as in the case of two aged ladies, neighbors and fast friends, who became estranged through the blunder of a stupid servant that was told by Mrs. Hay to go over one morning to her sick neighbor's and inquire "how old Mrs. Jones is." The servant asked instead, "how old is Mrs. Jones?" and got the reply, "Tell Mrs. Hay it is none of her business." Whereupon each cut the acquaintance of the other until a sermon on forgiveness long after led to inquiry and explanation and reconciliation. Whether your grudge is based upon a misunderstanding or started in some real wrong, you cannot afford to use your heart for grudge storage. No matter if the other party is really in the wrong, as you think, and no matter if he is not penitent, God's commandment to you every time you carry your grudge to the altar of prayer is: "If thou bring thy gift to the altar and there remembrest that thy brother hath aught against thee, leave there thy gift before the altar; first be reconciled to thy brother and then come and offer thy gift." "If thy brother sin against thee, go show him his fault between thee and him alone; if he hear thee thou hast gained thy brother." With this second command, there are provisions for discipline when efforts for reconciliation and restoration have been fully tried in vain (Matt. 18: 15-17), but this discipline itself is not to be vindictive, but remedial in its spirit and aim. Discipline will seldom be necessary, if we are ready to forgive as we expect to be forgiven. In the writer's boyhood he took literally the command, "Let not the sun go down upon your wrath." The glory of sunset was a call to reconciliation if the day had brought any quarrel. Certainly that is the meaning of the text that we should nip every grudge in the bud, never allowing anger to harden into hate. When in the year 1838, the slaves in Jamaica were emancipated, the inhabitants of Jamaica were somewhat apprehensive that some sort of revenge upon their former masters might be the outcome of this sudden gift of freedom; and, indeed, there was an act of revenge, but it was not such as was anticipated. They took the lashes of the whips wherewith they had been scourged by their former masters and placing them in a large coffin, buried them in the earth. So let us emancipate ourselves from hate by a burial of all our grudges.

. . .

Forgive as We Forgive

"Forgive us these our debts, dear Lord," we cry,
"Even as we our debtors." Saddest prayer
That ever seeks sweet heaven! With jealous care
We heap the altars of our injuries high,
Fanning with memory lest resentment die,
And searing our own natures unaware.
"As we forgive!" Ah, no, dear Lord, not so!
Turn not the lilies white of God's sweet grace
To aloe-buds like ours! But in the place
Of Thy dread prayer—which only souls of snow
Might dare to proffer, with voices humbled low—
We ask this of Thee ere Thou turn Thy face:
"Help us, dear Christ, since we do hope for heaven;
Help us to so forgive as we would be forgiven."

. . .

An old Spanish writer says: "To return evil for good is devilish; to return good for good is human, but to return good for evil is godlike." Shakespeare says: "To err is human, to forgive divine."

A gentleman who had filled many high stations in public life with the greatest honor to himself and advantage to the nation once went to Sir Eardley Wilmot in great anger at a real injury that he had received from a person high in the political world, which he was considering how to resent in the most effectual manner. After relating the particulars to Sir Eardley, he asked if he did not think it would be manly to resent it. "Yes," said Sir Eardley, "it would doubtless be manly to resent it, but it would be godlike to forget it." The angry man chose to forget.

A story is told of a certain nobleman of Alexandria, who complained bitterly to the bishop of that city of his enemies. While in the midst of his tale the bell sounded for prayers, and bishop and nobleman dropped on their knees, the former leading in the Lord's Prayer, and the latter leaving for the time his story untold. When the bishop came to the petition, "Forgive us our trespasses," he stopped suddenly, leaving the other to go on alone. The nobleman attempted to continue, but, startled by the sound of his own unaccompanied voice, and recalled by his companion's silence to the significance of the petition, stammered, ceased praying and rose from his knees a hopeless man, until he afterwards found hope in a better disposition toward his neighbor.

There was a very naughty little boy named Henry. His mother was not able to make him do anything she told him, and she used very often to say that she would punish him; but as she never put her threats into execution, he became worse and worse. So at last his mother was resolved that she would not keep him at home any longer, but she would try what the schoolmaster and the clergyman of the parish, who always attended the school, could do to make him good. He had not been long at the school before he told a lie and committed other offenses. The clergyman, seeing that he would not mind him nor his mother nor the schoolmaster, resolved to put him to shame before all the other little children in the school; so he placed him upon a chair in front of the school and asked the other boys what should be done to him to make him a good boy. Said one: "Suppose we put him in the corner." The second said: "Suppose we give him a whipping." A third little boy said: "Suppose we pray for him." "You are right," said the clergyman. "He has been whipped and put in the corner, but he is just as bad as ever. But we have not prayed for him yet; we will now do so." So the children knelt down and prayed for their little schoolfellow, and it affected him very much, and God was pleased to bless it, so that in six or seven weeks he was as good a boy as there was in the school.

Lord, have patience with me and I will pay thee all
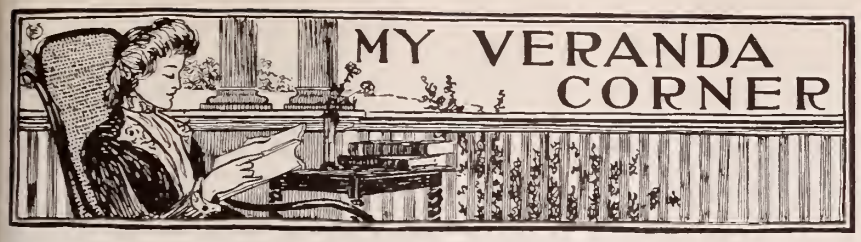
And cast him into prison
And delivered him to the tormentors
Pay me that thou owest

SCENES FROM THE PARABLE OF THE UNMERCIFUL SERVANT

Moravian Missions

At a recent meeting the report presented of Moravian missions showed that they were at work among the Eskimos of Labrador and Alaska, the Indians of North and Central America, the colored population of the West Indies, the Hottentots and Kaffirs of South Africa, the natives of Nyassaland, the lepers of Palestine, the aborigines of Australia and the Tibetan Buddhists of the Himalayas.



BY MARGARET E. SANGSTER

.. A Sunset Talk ..

THE Doctor, the Minister, and the Man-Taking-a-Vacation, were sitting in the porch after supper, and the Farmer who had just finished his evening chores came and joined them. Presently four ladies, their wives, very peaceful and sweet-looking women joined the group.

The Man-Taking-a-Vacation rose politely and stood still as a soldier in parade, until the ladies were seated. Then he resumed the conversation which had been begun before their appearance.

"Women certainly have the easier time in life," he said. "Look at me. I work fifty-one weeks in the year and have one for play. My wife came to this restful place in June and will stay till September. When she is at home, she has only the care of the house and of the children, which is nothing but a pleasure."

"I think, James," said the lady in question, "that you do not understand how much there is to do in a house nor what a deal of care children require. Would you change places, let me go to your office, and look after the work there? I will willingly make the trial if you will stay in the country, and see to Arthur, Louise, Freddie, Will, and Jack, till it is time for school to begin?"

"That means," said the minister's wife, "that you will. Mr. Vacation, look after all the torn trousers, replace the missing buttons, mend the stockings which wear out at the knees, and see to the bathing, the combing, the brushing, and the behavior, the tempers and the morals of your brood. It is no light contract, fifty-two weeks in the year."

"That also means," said the doctor's wife, "that you will make Louise a new set of frocks and aprons, and conduct the whole correspondence with the two grandmothers at a distance who wish to be kept posted as to what the children are doing."

"The question is, ladies, could Mrs. Vacation do her husband's work, even if he gave her the chance." This was said by the minister.

The lady spoke hastily: "My husband's work is selling goods, not only to those who wish to buy, but to reluctant buyers. I am much more persuasive than he is, and I am sure I could do it," said the business man's wife.

"But," asked the doctor, "are you strong enough to stand it, Madam?"

"Modestly speaking," replied the wife, "I am. I was a saleswoman before my marriage. Business life is very simple compared to the complex demands made by a home. Here I am a boarder and comparatively free. At home I do not keep help, though I have my washing and ironing done. Apart from that, I cook and sweep and make beds and dust and do all the sewing for our family, and so manage that my husband sees only results. I am often very tired, but it does not occur to me to complain."

"I must go and set my sponge for tomorrow's bread, or you will have no rolls for breakfast," said the wife of the farmer, who was the summer hostess.

"Well," said the gentle minister's wife in her pleasant way, "if men and women do their duty there need be no question of hard or easy. The proper thing it seems to me is to be contented with one's lot, and to try to lighten each other's burdens as best we may."

"The true philosophy that," said the doctor. "Friends, the mosquitoes are invading this corner. Let us go indoors."

Eating Between Meals

A good deal of difference of opinion exists as to the diet of children, but no one who has given the subject intelligent attention, believes in indiscriminate nibbling all day long. The candy habit of childhood is responsible for a good deal of dyspeptic suffering when persons are grown up. Cookies, crackers, maple sugar and chocolate creams are tempting, but they must be used as parts of a regular meal, or else sparingly allowed. A nervous child is seldom hungry at breakfast time, and food should not be forced upon him if he does not want it. A light breakfast and a hearty mid-day meal are best, with a light supper before going to bed. But I know a very healthy little girl whose only abundant meal is her dinner at night, when she eats soup, meat, vegetables and dessert, and after which she sleeps perfectly, without distressing dreams or nightmare. We must beware of making cast-iron rules in home government. Every mother must leave a loophole for the individual need in her administrative system. But the between-meal eating would best be regulated by the clock.

THE EVENING PRAYER

The Evening Prayer

Many an evening prayer is offered in these days for an absent soldier father; many a time small hands are clasped, while the mother tells the little child what to say to the great God, with whom the loved one is safe, though out of sight and hearing. A sore trial it is to have husband and father in battle, or beleagured in some fort, and to know that earthly love can avail him nothing except as it invokes heavenly aid. But to the trustful heart there is great peace in believing. "I am poor and needy," says the Psalmist, "but the Lord thinketh on me." The lady and the child and the ancient serving-woman who is devoted to them may alike commit their precious one to the Lord Almighty, and have no fear.

Aunt Prudence Payson's Catch-all

—MARIA. To mend a hole in the finger of your kid glove, cut a little piece from the top of one glove, where it will not be missed, and stitch it in very neatly.

—MARGERY. In the circumstances I see no harm in your inviting your boy friends to call. They are your neighbor's sons, and you have known them all your life.

—ELIZABETH. Let a man take care of his own hat when he calls. He is supposed to hang it on a hat-rack or set it on a table without assistance from his hostess, who should not offer to take it.

—WILL the little girl who earned some money for India by washing handkerchiefs, please send her name and address to Aunt Patience? I have her picture, but have mislaid her letter and I wish to hear from her soon.

—INQUIRER. If you do not file your illustrated papers, send them to hospitals, or to prisons, or to some friend who cannot afford the luxury of a weekly or monthly paper. Our soldiers and sailors are glad to receive such papers, and in every city there are committees which receive and distribute literature among our country's brave defenders.

—ADELINE W. For afternoon tea you need only thin sandwiches; cut the crust off, and spread the bread with finely-chopped ham or tongue, with cream cheese, with minced nuts, or with jam. Very dainty little cakes may be served with tea. In hot weather iced tea and iced coffee are very nice and are preferred by many to hot beverages. Lemonade should be made with boiling water in the morning of the day when it is to be served. When quite cold put it on the ice.

—MARTINET. Your young son should take off his hat in bowing to a lady, of course—to his mother or his sister just as to a stranger. He should not interrupt conversation nor keep his seat while a lady is standing. A polite boy or man always rises when a lady enters the room, and, if seated at a desk, he rises when a lady advances to speak to him, resuming his chair when she is seated. To this rule the only exception is when the man is crippled or infirm. If you wish your boy to have good manners, begin to insist upon them from his early childhood. Then they will become as a second nature.

WHEN THE COWS COME HOME

Out in the turbulent world
There are hostile banners unfurled;
There is thunder of cannon and beat of drum,
And the tramp of marching hosts that come
To the crash and the clash of the battle's fray,
'Tis a stormy and lurid world to-day.

But who would dream of the loud alarm
In the peaceful hush of the mountain farm?
Where the pastures wave, and the orchards stand
Laden and rich in the peerless land;
Where the bees dip down to the heart of the rose,
Where the lily buds into bloom unclose,
And oft as the sky grows thick with stars,
The lowing cattle wait at the bars,
Where nothing changes, whoe'er may roam,
And evening by evening, the cows come home.

What People Say

THIS or the other thing cannot be done, not because it is right, or it is wrong, not because it is convenient or otherwise, but simply on account of the tyranny of gossip in small communities. "People will talk" is a phrase frequently heard in little villages or towns where everybody knows everybody else. Independence of this criticism is secured in great cities, where neighborliness hardly exists in the sweet rural sense and sweet old-fashioned fact, and in lonesome tracts where families are widely separated. The fear that retrenchment if we are too expansive in our living, hangs heavily upon many a soul; not that hardship is dreaded, but that comment is. In some places a bar is placed upon individual freedom, because of what people might say. Mrs. R. would like to add to her means by taking boarders, but hesitates lest somebody talk. Miss M. would be more comfortable should she work for wages in another person's home than she is in working for nothing under her stepmother's rule. But she does not wish to start a train of talk on the family's affairs, so she remains at home and frets and grows bitter and hard daily.

We probably grossly exaggerate the interest others have in us and our doings. This is a world of great personal absorption. People are as a rule too much engaged with their own occupations, perhaps too cumbered with the thickly-crowded cares of their own lives to be at liberty to discuss ours. Most neighborly comment is kindly and few censorious words are said unless they are deserved. It is within our power to avoid doing what is wrong or foolish, not because we dread human reproach, but on account of our self-respect and our duty to God. These being satisfied, we should go fearlessly forward, thinking nothing at all of what people may say.

Why?

"Why is Abner so rude to his sister? It makes me ashamed to have him act so before strangers?"

The mother's grieved tones and annoyed countenance showed very plainly how she felt. I could not go to her as I longed to do and say, "Dear lady, if you insist on Abner's treating his sister with politeness when you were at home with your children, you would not be humiliated by his lapses in public. Manners cannot be put off and on at discretion. People unconsciously reveal their breeding when they are away from their usual environment; they show by looks, by tones, by actions what sort of people they are. If you would have your boy do you credit, you must train him in obedience, in gentleness and in courtesy, and insist on considerate conduct to all girls, large and small, his sisters and others, so that it will be habitual with him to be refined and pleasing. The plaintive "why" is easily answered.

This is what I might have said if I had had the right.

—HOUSEKEEPER. Poor people are much more extravagant than rich people. I know many of the latter and can testify to their economy. One should never apologize for a frugality. The thing to be ashamed of is foolish waste.

Helping Men to Better Lives

Springfield's Rescue Mission and the Excellent Work it has Done in Seeking Out and Aiding Fallen Humanity

AN excellent example of what may be accomplished by a resolute effort in a good cause is furnished in the work of the Rescue Mission at Springfield, Mass. It was established eight years ago by Capt. J. L. Cummings and Mrs. Cummings, in a small room. Their only resources were a firm and abiding faith that such a work was needed and that the public would support it. At the outset, they met with many discouragements, but overcame them all in time. Many said there was no need of such a mission in Springfield, and others said that while rescue work "was well enough in its way, it ought to be done by the churches."

Ten years' experience in the Salvation Army had given Capt. Cummings a deep insight into the needs of suffering humanity and a knowledge of the right way to administer help. The work grew, and Springfield's best men and women gradually came forward to help, and to-day the city is grateful for its Rescue Mission and for the blessed work that has been wrought therein. In eight years, the one room has grown to thirty-seven, and the Mission now owns the property at No. 74 Elm street. The rooms are comfortably furnished, the bedrooms are well lighted and well ventilated, and the kitchen and offices are models in their way. Absolute cleanliness pervades everything. The chapel contains seats for 175, has a piano and organ and is lighted by electricity. Services are held here every evening in the year and on Sunday afternoons. All the evangelical churches in the city are represented at these meetings in town, and some wonderful conversions have been made. Sunday afternoons, especially, the meetings have been greatly blessed. The chapel is always thronged on this day.

CAPT. J. L. CUMMINGS

MRS. CUMMINGS

INTERIOR OF THE SPRINGFIELD RESCUE MISSION

The work of the Mission is chiefly among fallen men and boys who have strayed from home. Springfield is a great railroad centre, and while there are no slums, as in the larger cities, a great many men who have lost their grip on life through misfortune or drink, find their way thither. When a man applies at the Mission for assistance, his physical needs are first attended to. If he be hungry, he is fed; if naked, clothed. Dr. Talmage has said that the best tract that can be given a hungry man is a sandwich, and Captain Cummings has acted on this maxim throughout his missionary career.

Captain Cummings, for the past seven years, has also been chaplain of the city jail, and his work among the prisoners there has been wonderfully blessed. His position gives him free access to the men during their confinement, and he thus wins their confidence, so that, when they are released, he is able to assist them towards living a better life. Many a man is to-day leading an honest, useful, upright life who was met at the gate of the city prison by Captain Cummings. But the most satisfactory work of all is with the boys. Mrs. Cummings has made this work her own, and her endeavors have been crowned with success. From boys in knickerbockers, who have left home but a day or two, to the lad who has not seen his mother for a year and is ashamed to go home, all seek out this kind, motherly woman whose influence over them is always productive of good. Captain Cummings once picked up a ragged boy on the streets who had had nothing to eat all day. He took the lad to the Rescue Mission, fed him, and put him to bed. In the morning the boy told his simple story. He was the child of Christian parents, and his sisters in a distant city were active Christian workers. He was kept at the Mission for a few days and then returned to his home. He is at this date a student in a theological seminary, and one of the most pathetic and grateful letters ever received by Mrs. Cummings was from this boy's sister, a missionary in far away India. Another boy, a criminal of eighteen, was taken from the jail to the Mission after his sentence expired. Work was found for him in a distant city; he prospered, and is now married and settled in a home of his own.

One night, a middle-aged man in the last stages of a prolonged debauch, stumbled into the chapel. He seemed to be a sheer moral and physical wreck. At the invitation, he raised his hand for prayer and was persuaded to come forward. Little impression was made upon him that night. He was treated kindly, however, and given a bed. Next day he had a severe attack of illness. For days his mind wandered, but finally he recovered, accepted Christ, and was made happy. That was nearly three years ago, and this penitent has never since missed an opportunity of testifying to what the Mission has done for him. He has since been engaged in business for himself, but never permits his business to interfere with his mission work.

Both Captain and Mrs. Cummings are well fitted for the work in which they are engaged. Captain Cummings is a native of Cornwall-on-the-Hudson. From there he removed to Peekskill and joined the Salvation Army, serving four years as private and six years as an officer. Believing he could be more useful in mission work, he went to Springfield, where he was well known, and in 1892 opened the Rescue Mission.

Mrs. Cummings is also a native of New York, and was educated at Wilbraham (Mass.) Academy and at the Westfield Normal School. She taught school until her marriage with Mr. Cummings, but has always been engaged in Christian work. She gives her services to the Mission gratis. Both are consecrated workers in the vineyard, and have their reward in the joy of uplifting their fallen fellow-creatures. In the eight years that have gone they have received into the Mission men from every walk in life: doctors, lawyers, mechanics of every trade, laborers, and, in short, all classes who have fallen by the wayside, either through misfortune or evil habits. The question is often asked, "Is the work permanent?" and the answer is that a good percentage endures. All the evangelical churches of the city assist the Mission by sending representatives to the meetings and in contributions of money, food and clothing. Nothing is given away at the Mission. Captain Cummings believes that it is better that those requiring help should not lose their independence, and work is provided for those who are willing to perform it.

The Philadelphia Revival

Great Gatherings under Canvas and Excellent Spiritual Results Reported

PHILADELPHIA'S midsummer evangelistic movement has made rapid progress during the past two weeks. These gatherings are held under the auspices of the Presbyterian Evangelistic Committee of Philadelphia. During one week, the meetings were attended by over 11,935 persons. The Children's Meetings alone were attended by 2,190. The cards which were used in connection with the meetings on which is simply stated, "It is my purpose to become a Christian," have been signed by over 184; of this number fifty were young people. Thousands of pages of literature were given out. There is a growing earnestness shown and people are asking for prayers. Large numbers have arisen in meetings, expressing their desire of salvation.

The speakers for the last week have been Rev. Henry M. Morey of Ypsilanti, Mich.; Rev. John Calvin Mead; Mr. L. P. Rowland; Rev. L. W. Munhall, D.D.; Rev. Thomas Needham; Dr. Hunter; Rev. Francis A. Herton, and others.

One of the notable features of the meetings in some sections is the large attendance of men. Children's Meetings are also becoming a special feature.

Endeavorers in London

The American members of the Christian Endeavor Society, who went to London to attend the World's Convention, received a warm welcome. They went to Windsor Castle, where the Queen gave them a cordial greeting. The Bishop of London and other high dignitaries of the church spoke at the meetings, as did representatives of the Nonconformist and Methodist denominations. Dr. F. E. Clark was elected president, and John Willis Baer secretary, of the World's Society.

Bad Blood Is a Bad Thing

It is responsible for most of the diseases from which humanity suffers. It causes scrofula, salt rheum, humors and many other troubles, including rheumatism and that tired feeling. But bad blood is made good blood and all these troubles are overcome by Hood's Sarsaparilla. Do not allow your blood to remain impure. The wise couse is to take Hood's Sarsaparilla at the first indication of impurities.

Hood's Sarsaparilla

Is America's Greatest Medicine.

"Just as Good"

means taking chances. You take no chance in buying a "Beifeld" suit, waist, skirt, cape or jacket. No other ladies' suit the equal of this.

$10

SATIN TRIMMED, —in fine all-wool homespuns—black, oxford, medium gray, blue and brown.

WANTED, A DEALER IN EVERY TOWN TO HANDLE THE LINE

A veritable rainbow of attractive styles and prices for the Fall season—styles to fit every fancy and prices that argue stronger than words. "Beifeld" garments sell themselves because style, quality and price are right. Every one is guaranteed and has THIS LABEL inside the collar.

Terms, catalogue and cloth samples to dealers upon request. We sell to merchants only.

Beifeld

JOSEPH BEIFELD & CO.,
262 Franklin Street, ... Chicago

Right Here!

Look at its working principle and you'll understand the ease and comfort that comes with wearing a

President Suspender
Improved

The most popular suspender made. Refuse imitations. We will give $1500.00 for estimates of the Presidential vote. Full particulars of conditions with each suspender. Book free.

C. A. EDGARTON MFG. CO., Box 209
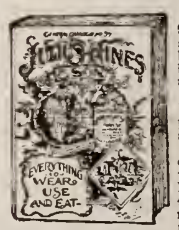
Shirley, Mass.

$1.25 FOR NOTHING.



Our new Mammoth Catalogue No. 99 costs us $1.25 per copy to print and mail—send us 10c in stamps to help pay postage and this wonderful book will be sent free—you deduct the 10c from your first order of $1.00.

This book contains 480 pages, size 14x10½ in., equivalent to over 1000 pages of the ordinary catalogue—it saves from 25 to 75 percent. on everything to Eat, Wear and Use, contains over 13,000 illustrations and quoted wholesale prices to consumers on over 150,000 different articles. It required 47 car-loads of paper to print this enormous edition. With this book in your possession you can buy everything you need, at all seasons of the year, cheaper than the average dealer.

Made-to-order Clothing catalogue with large sample, free. We pay Expressage. Lithographed catalogue of Carpets, Rugs and Draperies for the asking. Carpets Sewed Free, Lining Furnished Free and Freight Prepaid. Address

JULIUS HINES & SON, Baltimore, Md. Dept 218

ROYAL BAKING POWDER IS THE BEST.

A pure, cream of tartar powder.
Greatest in Leavening Strength.
It makes lightest, sweetest, most wholesome food.

ROYAL BAKING POWDER CO., NEW YORK.

HAIR INSOLES keep feet clean and dry. Prevent jar in walking. Relieve Rheumatism, Callous, Tender and Perspiring Feet. 10c., 3 pair 25c., postpaid. The Wm. H. Wiley & Son Co., Box D, Hartford, Ct.

Welch's Grape Juice is just the pure Juice of fully matured Concord Grapes. Without a drop of water or a particle of alcohol, it furnishes the life of the Grape in a most convenient form for use. It is a nourishing food for sick people and well people. Sold by druggists and fancy grocers. Write the Welch Grape Juice Co., Westfield, N. Y., for free Booklet

A GOOD TIME AT DINNER, UNDER THE BIG TENT AT MONT-LAWN

MONT-LAWN'S HAPPY WAIFS

DURING the recent extraordinarily hot weather, when strong men were prostrated by the heat, it is no wonder that many little children in New York's overcrowded, sweltering tenement districts perished, unable to stand the ard condition of their lot. At the Belle- ue morgue, more bodies of children were ceived there, it has been said, during e of these hot spells, than during any ther period of equal length since its es- blishment. One midnight, thirty-three ttle ones lay sleeping their last sleep on e marble slabs. In Hester, Cherry, ullivan, Water, James, Clinton, and any another suffocating, malodorous oroughfare, where the poor live thick as es in a hive, weary mothers sat on side- alks all night that the gasping little ones their knees, or on some improvised sting-place at their sides, might escape e still more evil atmosphere of the living oms inside, and so have a better chance r life. Tenement dwellers who found ace on roofs or fire-escapes were better f, but their good fortune had its perils. or instance: a little lad of eight, sleeping ith his family and the neighbors on a of in Second street, one night when ere seemed absolutely no breeze stirring, his restless slumbers rolled and tossed

On every one of these terrible days the steamer Chrystenah bore large detachments of children from the most dense and wretched districts to Nyack, whence the stage took them by the cool and shady driveway to Mont-Lawn. The Home residence, annex, lodge and dormitories adjoining the chapel have been filled to their utmost capacity with little guests, each coming for ten days: tidy white cots blossomed out in every available spot, and cool, sweet winds from mountain and river, sweeping in through many wide windows, caressed little sleepers back to health. During waking hours, hillsides rang with shouts and laughter of gay finders of wild flowers and berries.

No little applicants are refused the benefits of the Home, so long as there is room for another cot—provided, of course, little ones are free from contagious diseases. If a child has a suspicious sore throat, a skin trouble, or any other affliction which might be communicated to playmates, our examining physician gently explains, advises what can be done for cure, and bids the little man or woman come again. Dr. Loeroy, who has been medical monitor for our tots for a number of years, is in sympathy with the work and anxious to pass children when, in justice to others, she can do so. Her assistant, who is filling her place this summer, is no less interested in the eager little companies coming before her daily. It is amusing and pathetic to watch the excited crowd of tots waiting upon her verdict, and to hear their funny observations. "My throat's all right, she peeked down it," said one small maid as proudly as if a sound throat were a virtue. Another rejoices because the doctor commended him for keeping his face and hair and ears so tidy. The doctor's examination has a moral value in emphasizing to a considerable degree the old saying: "Cleanliness is next to godliness." All the company in our picture passed, having been well looked after by the missionaries.

The return of Dr. Klopsch from India has been a cause of great joy to the little ones. He came in upon the Home unawares, as soon as he reached New York, and loud were the shouts of delight when he walked into the tent while they were at dinner and told them how glad he was that God had granted his safe return from India and this pleasant meeting face-to-face with his little Fresh-Air friends.

Girls' clothing, especially underclothing, is greatly needed at our Children's Home. All gifts of clothing, in good condition, will be welcomed by Matron Collins, to whom they should be addressed (expressage prepaid), at Mont-Lawn, Nyack, N. Y.

"PASSING THE DOCTOR"—WAITING THEIR TURN

til he rolled over the edge and fell e stories on the stone courtyard below. here a policeman found him and notified ose above before the little fellow had en even missed. Infant mortality in ooklyn is greater than it has ever been. uring one week 580 little ones died.

YOU can buy a chimney to fit your lamp that will last till some accident happens to it.

Macbeth's "pearl top" or "pearl glass" is that chimney.

You can have it—your dealer will get it—if you insist on it. He may tell you it costs him three times as much as some others. That is true. He may say they are just as good. Don't you believe it—they may be better for him; he may like the breaking.

Our "Index" describes all lamps and their proper chimneys. With it you can always order the right size and shape of chimney for any lamp. We mail it FREE to any one who writes for it.

Address MACBETH, Pittsburgh, Pa.

DELICIOUS IN COFFEE TEA & CHOCOLATE

BORDEN'S

EAGLE BRAND CONDENSED MILK

SEND FOR "BABIES" A BOOK FOR MOTHERS.

Borden's Condensed Milk Co.,- N.Y.

Support Yourself While Learning a Profession

We can qualify you in a few months to maintain yourself while learning to be a Mechanical Engineer, Electrician, Architect. Write for our new circular, "Support Yourself While Learning a Profession." Sent free.

INTERNATIONAL CORRESPONDENCE SCHOOLS, Box 861 Scranton, Pa.

200,000 students and graduates. Send for circular, stating subject in which interested.

FREE SCHOLARSHIP IN Electrical, Mechanical, Marine, Stationary or Locomotive ENGINEERING

NUMBER LIMITED. WRITE IMMEDIATELY

AMERICAN SCHOOL OF CORRESPONDENCE, Boston, Mass.

FRANKLIN COLLEGE New Athens, O. 76th yr. Sent out U.S.senators, governors and 350 ministers. $135 a year; books free; 8 courses; no saloons; catalog free, with plans to earn funds at home. W. A. WILLIAMS, D.D., Prest.

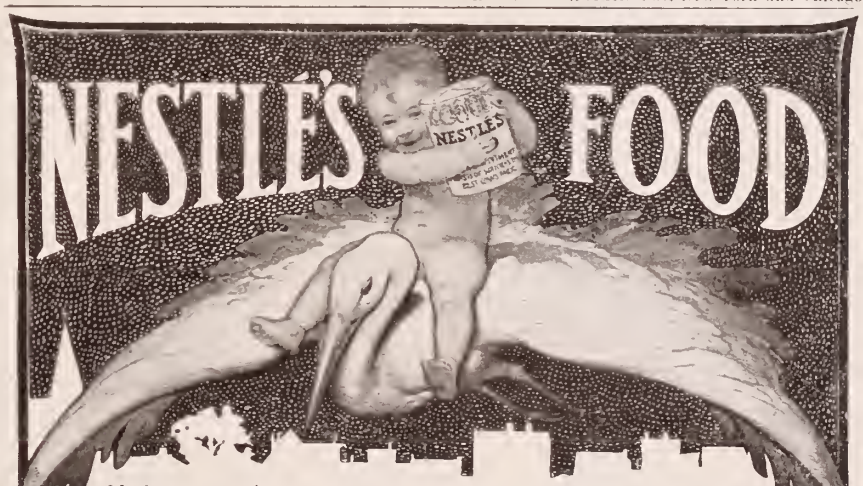
Gospel Hymns for Summer Meetings

THE CHURCH HYMNS AND GOSPEL SONGS.

Sample Music Edition, 20 cts. Words only, 10 cts.

THE BIGLOW & MAIN CO., New York and Chicago.

NESTLÉ'S FOOD



Mothers cannot be too careful, during the hot weather, in the selection of food for their babies. It is no time to experiment. August and September are critical months in the lives of all young children. Cholera Infantum and other dreaded illnesses are chiefly traced to the use of improper food.

NESTLÉ'S FOOD has successfully stood every test of the mother and physician for thirty-five years, and has become a familiar word in the homes of every country and civilized nation.

Thousands of mothers can point to hearty, vigorous children who were nourished, if not saved, by Nestlé's Food, and many mothers, who were themselves raised on Nestlé's Food, are now giving it to their little ones, with the feeling of absolute certainty that they are feeding them upon the one Food which, of all others, will keep them healthy and make them robust and strong.

NESTLÉ'S FOOD is nutritious, wholesome, and easily assimilated by the most delicate stomach, and, above all, Nestlé's Food is SAFE. As the purest of cow's milk is one of its chief ingredients, the addition of fluid milk, with all its attendant dangers, is not needed in preparing Nestlé's Food for use. The addition of water only is required. The price of Nestlé's Food is very reasonable—50c. for a full pound can.

We want every mother in America, who has not already used Nestlé's Food, to try it, feeling confident that they will recognize its merits at once. With this in view, we will send, free for the asking, a sample package sufficient for eight meals. Address HENRI NESTLÉ, 73 Warren Street, New York.

HARDSHIPS AT NOME

Martial Law—Increasing Multitudes — Smallpox and Fever—Rev. Mr. Wirt's Farewell Letter

LATEST reports from Cape Nome more than justify the warnings and fulfil the prediction made in this paper some time ago, that thousands then on their way to the new Eldorado would find instead of the gold they sought, privation, sickness and death. Recent advices show that the Cape Nome district has been placed under martial law, General Randall, commanding the Department of Seattle, having sent further to assume military control. The reason for this lies in the fact that civil authority was powerless to bring order out of the chaotic conditions existing at the Cape; and the Chamber of Commerce, composed of Nome's most prominent and respectable citizens, requested such action on the part of the authorities. Steamers arrive continually, unloading fresh multitudes of gold-seekers on a coast where every available claim has been already staked out. Hundreds of these new-comers are without support. Smallpox has been communicated to the shore from infected ships; a quarantine station has been established on Egg Island; vaccine points and medical aid have been called for. The sanitary conditions of the town are frightful, and typhoid fever, which has long held sway there, threatens to do more deadly work than ever. How to provide food and fuel for the destitute thousands, especially when winter sets in, is a problem which is also to be faced.

DUTCH HARBOR, CAPE NOME

Our readers will recall articles written specially for THE CHRISTIAN HERALD by Rev. Loyal L. Wirt, founder of the Hospice of St. Bernard, which combines the only church for whites and the only hospital, so far as we know, north of the Yukon. Mr. Wirt came by dog team over fields of snow and ice, and then by rail from Seattle to the East to inform the Church here of the desperate needs of Cape Nome, and to enlist aid in the establishment at various points in the district of other institutions like that at Nome, which, as he stated, had been full to overflowing since the day of its opening. The following letter, dated from San Francisco, has just been received from Mr. Wirt:

To-morrow I start on the return voyage to Cape Nome with materials and workers for the enlargement of our work in every department—reading rooms, hospitals and chapels. I hope to overcome in some measure the mischief the saloons, fever, and other conditions are working. I cannot leave until I have gratefully acknowledged my debt of gratitude to THE CHRISTIAN HERALD, and its readers who have substantially aided in the furnishing of our hospital wards.

I thought, by coming to the States and securing reinforcements, better buildings, and better equipment, that responsibilities would be somewhat lessened, and so they have been in that particular direction, thanks to the generosity of God's people; but now I have become a veritable "Bridge of Sighs" over which many a mother's prayer and wife's loving message is passing between anxious homes and a thousand absent boys. Wherever in person I have spoken of our mission in Alaska, parents and sisters and wives have come forward to implore my interest in behalf of loved ones there. And again, by reason of THE CHRISTIAN HERALD'S reference to our mission, many letters continually come to me making like requests.

I look upon these commissions, not as a burden, but as a sacred trust, and shall do everything in my power to seek out and help these men, whatsoever their need may be. Some are dead, some are sick, some are reckless, some have been caught in the snare of the saloon, dance hall and gambling hell, while others are simply indifferent, or ashamed to write home of their failure to "strike it rich." In my note-book I have carefully recorded every name, and these will be given to all our workers, so that we shall be on the lookout all along the line, and when loved ones are found you may trust us to do what we can.

We shall multiply our "Hospices" of St. Bernard in Alaska's new towns just as rapidly as the funds for this three-fold beneficence can be provided. Every dollar sent to Loyal L. Wirt, 515 Bell street, Seattle, will be gratefully acknowledged and be expended directly in giving hospitals, Christian reading-rooms and, above all, the Gospel of Christ to our pioneer brothers who are hewing from the rugged hills and frozen plateaus of Alaska a new commonwealth. Shall it be a Christian commonwealth? Readers of THE CHRISTIAN HERALD, help to make it such.

Gratefully yours,
LOYAL L. WIRT.

Mr. Wirt enclosed this letter as an illustration of many sent him by sorrowing women, asking news of loved ones; it is dated from a town in Massachusetts:

DEAR MR WIRT: I saw in THE CHRISTIAN HERALD of June 6, a brief account of your work at Cape Nome, Alaska. I did not know but possibly you might have come in contact with my son, or know something of him, or be able to give us a clue to his whereabouts and situation. He left us for the gold fields, via Seattle, January 13, 1898. We heard constantly from him once in two or three weeks or so, for more than a year. He was one of a party to Kotzebue Sound, going up, I think, in the schooner Loyal. The last news of him was dated Sept. 9, 1899, "Fort Get There," St. Michaels. Since then not a word of any kind. Have been deeply distressed and anxious; have thought perhaps he was, if alive, at Cape Nome.

If you could only give me, his mother, one word of her only son? If you know nothing of him, for God's sake, when you return, look out for the wanderer. You may find him. Help him to be good. He was trying to live a Christian life when he went away. I know there are thousands of hearts aching as mine does. Have pity and help us. How I wish I could send you thousands of dollars to help in this Christian work, but I am helpless. I would aid you if I could. May heaven open the hearts of those who are able to help. God prosper the St. Bernard Hospices. Is it too much to ask you if you will answer me one word? I would be very grateful.

One of the absent boys' mothers,
MRS. L. V. S.

Fireproof Churches

WHY should not churches, and, indeed, all buildings devoted to public assemblage, be made absolutely fireproof? This is a question which very naturally arises in this age of scientific progress. Hardly a week passes in which the public prints do not contain the record of some costly structure wiped out by conflagration. In one year, it is said, over 600 churches, meeting-houses and places of public assemblage have been destroyed by fire in the United States alone. In a little book, written by John H. Richardson, entitled: Electric Fire proofed Wood, published by Max Bachert, 119 West Twenty-third street, New York, the new method of making buildings fireproof is interestingly described. This method has been adopted here and in Europe, and our government has adopted it in the navy, over seventy American warships of all classes having been built of wood which science declares will defy the flames. Many tests have been made by the Fire and Building Departments of New York and other cities, and it has been generally accepted. Pastors and others interested in building should send for the little book, which will be sent free.

"Out of Sorts" is an expression peculiar to many thousands of people beside printers. Any little weakness, or run down condition of the body, quickly yields to Hood's Sarsaparilla.

CAUGHT THE WORM

That Gnaws Under Cover

"I have had quite an experience with the use of coffee. Without knowing why, I gradually became seriously constipated, with all the usual grievous effects of this most aggravating disease. I was also bilious and stomach badly out of order.

"I had no idea of the cause and kept using coffee every morning.

"One day a friend to whom I spoke of my troubles, remarked that perhaps I would find the cause in the coffee cup, and suggested the use of Postum Cereal Food Coffee. I was impressed with his remarks and made the change from coffee to Postum. The old troubles have nearly disappeared and I am one of the happiest mortals you ever saw. I have proved to my entire satisfaction that coffee was the unsuspected cause of the difficulty and while it nearly ruined my health for a time, I have practically recovered again by the discontinuance of coffee.

"I have known a number of persons who have been driven away from Postum because it came to the table weak and characterless. It simply was not made right, and it would be the same with any other kind of drink, tea, coffee, cocoa, etc. Postum, when made according to directions, is a delightful beverage.

"There are a large number of people in this surrounding country who are using Postum, and their number is increasing daily. It is sort of a stampede. Store after store is putting in a stock of Postum that never thought of such a thing before.

"I enclose a list of twenty or thirty names of those that I know of as users of Postum, among my immediate acquaintances. Do not use my name, please. J. M. G., Box 72, Jefferson, Wis.

Eastman Kodak Co.'s BROWNIE CAMERAS

$1.00

Make pictures 2¼ x 2¼ inches. Load in Daylight with our six exposure film cartridges and are s simple they can be easily

Operated by Any School Boy or Girl

Fitted with fine Meniscus lenses and our improve rotary shutters for snap shots or time exposure Strongly made, covered with imitation leathe have nickeled fittings and produce the best result

Brownie Camera, for 2¼ x 2¼ pictures, - - - $1.0
Transparent-Film Cartridge, 6 exposures, 2¼ x 2¼, - -
Brownie Developing and Printing Outfit, - - -

Ask your dealer or write us for a Brownie Camera Cl Constitution, $500.00 in Kodak prizes to the members.

EASTMAN KODAK CO.,
Rochester, N. Y

STAMMER ING. Most Speedy, Perfec Permanent Educational Re edy Guaranteed. Least E pense. Address, Voice School, Salem, W.V

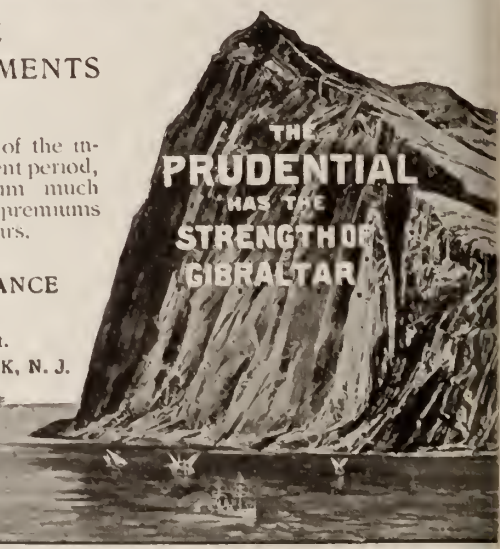
To Clerks, Salesmen and Others on a moderate salary, a vital question is: "How can my savings be invested to bring the greatest returns at middle or old age?"

THE ENDOWMENT POLICY OF

The Prudential

IS ONE OF THE SAFEST INVESTMENTS OBTAINABLE.

It protects the family of the insured during the investment period, and returns a cash sum much in excess of the total premiums paid. Write for particulars.



THE PRUDENTIAL INSURANCE COMPANY OF AMERICA.

JOHN F. DRYDEN, President.

HOME OFFICE : : : NEWARK, N. J.

Dress Without Distress

Health and beauty go together in a Ferris Waist. In the morning you put it on without discomfort. At night you take it off without relief. You can dress in it, rest in it, always look your best in it. There is no restriction in a

FERRIS' GOOD SENSE Waist

Every woman should send for the Ferris Book of living models and realize the comfort and beauty of the Ferris Good Sense Waists.

Ferris' Good Sense Corset Waists are sold by all leading retailers. Do not take substitutes. Ladies', $1.00 to $2.75; Misses', 50c. to $1.00; Children's, 25c. to 50c. Made by

THE FERRIS BROS. CO.,
341 Broadway, New York.

HEALTHY SCHOOLMA'AM

Found Out How to Feed Herself

Many school teachers, at the end of their year's work, feel thoroughly exhausted and worn out, physically and mentally. The demand upon the nerves and brain of a teacher is unusual and unless they are well fed and fed upon properly selected food, it is natural that they should run down.

A little woman teacher at Gobleville, Mich., who has been teaching regularly for a number of years, has always found herself thoroughly exhausted at the end of the session, until within the last year, she has made use of Grape-Nuts Food with the result that she closed the year as a robust, healthy, strong, vigorous woman, having gained in weight from 99 pounds to 126; her nerves strong, face bright and cheery, and really a wonder to all her friends, who constantly comment on her color and strength. She knows exactly to what the change is attributed, for in the years past, living on ordinary food, she has almost broken down before the school year closed, whereas since using Grape-Nuts this change has been brought about—evidence prima facie of the value of Grape-Nuts food for rebuilding the brain and nerve centers.

The name of the teacher can be given by Postum Cereal Co., Ltd., Battle Creek, Mich.

YOUR MONEY WILL

Earn 6 Per Cent.

The earning power of money is greater than 3 or 4 per cent. In perfectly safe, non-speculative business operations we add yearly to our surplus after paying depositors 6 per cent. per annum in regular quarterly dividends.

Assets, $1,150,000. Surplus (accumulated in seven years), $150,000. Our securities are bonds and mortgages on improved real estate in New York and Pennsylvania — non-fluctuating, not speculative. Subject to supervision and regular annual examination by the State Banking department.
We refer, by special permission, to many clergymen and other prominent professional and business men.

Please apply for information in detail.

Industrial Savings & Loan Co.,
1133 Broadway, New York.

10,000 AGENTS WANTED.
FOR LIFE & SPEECHES OF BRYAN

The "Life" is written by Mrs. Bryan. The Speeches revised by Mr. Bryan, but he is not pecuniarily interested in its publication. A golden opportunity for agents. Don't miss it. One agent sold 57 copies in one week; another 67 copies in 10 days; another 17 copies first day. Everybody will buy it: Democrat, Republican, Populist and Prohibitionist. The demand exists. It is only necessary for agents to supply it.

$200.00 GIVEN

for selling 200 books in 8 months. Other liberal inducements. Will guarantee good parties a salary. Distance is no hindrance as freight is paid. Credit given. Circulars, instructions, outfit etc., free, but 25 cents must be sent for mailing. Act quick.

R. H. WOODWARD CO., Baltimore, Md.

NOTICE—We also desire to employ agents for selling our book on the "Paris Exposition", beautifully illustrated. We also publish "Life of McKinley" and other campaign books.

Beautiful Watches:

Stunning effects in all the precious metals, silver, gun metal, etc.

Send for handsomely illustrated "Blue Book"—free.

THE NEW ENGLAND WATCH CO.
37 Maiden Lane, New York 149 State Street, Chicago

It Is a Certainty That Catarrh

can be removed. You will believe it after using a sample of Dr. Blosser's Catarrh Cure. Mailed free. Address Dr. J. W. Blosser & Son, 50 Broad St., Blosser Building, Atlanta, Ga.

The Natural Body Brace advertised in this paper in the first issue of this month, is a delightful, certain remedy for ailments peculiar to women and girls. It makes walking and work easy; gives good figure and light step. Write the Natural Body Brace Co., Box 171, Salina, Kan., for free illustrated book.

DITMAN'S SEA-SALT

The Natural Salt of Pure Sea Water
TONIC, STRENGTHENING, INVIGORATING
Used for Quarter Century
Address Ditman, 2 Barclay Street, New York

OPIUM, MORPHINE and Liquor Habit overcome in 10 to 20 days. No pay till accomplished. Book of particulars free. Address Dr. J. L. Stephens, Dept. R. 5, Lebanon, Ohio.

MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP for children teething should always be used for children while teething. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain, relieves wind colic, and is the best remedy for diarrhœa.

STARK TREES best by test—74 YEARS. WE WANT MORE SALESMEN PAY CASH WEEKLY
Stark Nursery, Louisiana, Mo; Dansville, N.Y.

ZEAL*

Faithful Service in Secular Occupations Consistent with Fidelity to Christ

ONE of the most difficult of all Christ's parables to interpret is this of the Unjust Steward. The conduct of the man was so wicked that it is not easy to understand why Christ used it as an example. Dr. Taylor's illustration probably comes nearer to the spirit of the parable than any other. He represents himself as tracing the means that a burglar took to break into a house, and while feeling indignation at the robbery, admiring the skill displayed by the burglar in picking the locks. Then saying to a lethargic and unambitious workman that if he had half the burglar's energy and dexterity he would soon rise in the world. All that would be perfectly consistent with his wishing to get the burglar behind the bars. Christ was showing his hearers how full of resource and how far-seeing the children of this world were in providing for their worldly welfare, while the good man who had so much nobler and grander an object before him, was dilatory and lukewarm in his efforts. It is important, also, to remember that it was not Christ who commended the steward, but the steward's own lord, who practically said: "What a shrewd fellow this is, who at my expense lays my debtors under an obligation counting on their gratitude."

The closing verse of the parable is one that has occasioned many anxious thoughts. If we cannot serve God and Mammon, must we therefore withdraw from secular occupations and devote ourselves exclusively to Christ's service? For some, that is the path of duty, but not for all, nor even for the majority. Christ's prayer for his people at the close of his ministry did not include this. "I pray not," he said, "that thou shouldest take them out of the world, but that thou shouldest keep them from the evil." This was his desire. He would have them serve him in the world. This is the hard thing, but everywhere we see that it is possible. There are men in all our cities doing good and successful work in our factories, carrying on profitable businesses, pleading in our courts and conducting financial operations, who own Christ as their Master. They are all the better business men because of their unwavering allegiance to him, all the better employees because of their conscientious devotion to him. A leader of one of the revolutionary societies of Europe gave an explanation of the method by which it propagated its doctrines, that illustrates this fact. He said that a certain number of members of the Society learned mechanical trades and became adepts in them. Many of them belonged to noble families, but it was always found that these men became the most skilful watchmakers or shoemakers, or whatever trade they learned. Then one of them would be sent into a large city and he would get work. For a year he would utter no word about the Society or its doctrines, but would make the acquaintance of other workmen, always seeking out the most intelligent. He would win their repect by his good work at his trade, and his general knowledge and affable qualities. He soon became one of the most popular men in the city and had a host of friends. He then began his propaganda. First speaking of the nobility of honest work, the importance of temperance and cleanliness of life, gradually leading up, probably after years of labor, to the enrolment of his friends in the Society for the overthrow of a tyrannical government. Such men served the Society as they could never have served it in any other way. It is so that men may serve Christ in the world. In whatsoever occupation they may be, they may serve him by honest work, by taking a pride in doing well whatever they undertake. They win the respect of all with whom they have to do and therein lie endless opportunities of serving their Master. Their occupation becomes a means to an end. The word they speak for Christ carries a weight that the words of the shiftless never have, and they frequently command the attention that is not given to the preacher. The difficulty, of course, consists in keeping the occupation from engrossing the thoughts, in making it subservient to the main purpose of serving Christ. It is he who is the Master, and while a man may be an honest and faithful employee of another man (indeed, if he is an employee at all he is bound by his service to Christ to be honest and faithful,) his supreme allegiance, with which nothing he does will conflict, will be given unreservedly to Christ.

* Topic of the Christian Endeavor Society, Epworth League and Baptist Young People's Union for Aug. 12. Luke 16: 1-13.

Answered India's Cry

No State has done better work for India than Nebraska, whose great-hearted Governor, early in our relief campaign issued a proclamation, strongly urging

WM. A. POYNTER
Governor of Nebraska

his people to extend aid to the starving. "Our State has been blessed with abundant crops. Through the bounty of an all-wise and generous Providence, hunger and want are unknown within our boundaries. Amid our plenty we should not forget the unfortunate. Sympathy and duty demand that we lend them assistance from our abundance through THE CHRISTIAN HERALD." He was instrumental in the organization of the State Commission, of which Rev. G. L. Hosford has been in charge. Hon. Frank E. Moores, Mayor of Omaha, has also been a strong and influential friend to the cause.

Answered Prayers

Several very interesting letters have been received. E. M. writes from Cambridge City, Ind.:

I promised our Heavenly Father, if he would answer a special plea for the safety of my only brother, I would acknowledge it in THE CHRISTIAN HERALD. A letter came this morning saying he was all right.

M. E., Kingston, N. Y., writes:

Some time ago I was in great trouble and the outlook for the future was very dark. I prayed to God that, if he would help me, I would write to THE CHRISTIAN HERALD and thereby show how he had answered my prayer, and in less than a day everything was changed for the better.

E. B. L., Blanchard, Iowa, writes:

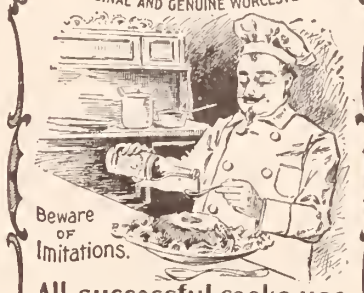
I prayed for my own and my child's recovery from a severe illness, and promised to write immediately to THE CHRISTIAN HERALD if my prayer was answered. I cannot express my gratitude to God, but I want to testify that God answers prayer.

Mrs. J. V. P., Lufkin, Tex., writes:

For two years I have been in great trouble. I have prayed day and night for deliverance. I promised the Lord if he would answer my earnest prayer and deliver us, I would acknowledge the answer in THE CHRISTIAN HERALD. Two months ago we were victoriously delivered from one of the troubles, for which I fervently thanked and praised his holy name, but sickness in my family prevented my writing and acknowledging it until now.

LEA & PERRINS' SAUCE

THE ORIGINAL AND GENUINE WORCESTERSHIRE.



All successful cooks use Lea & Perrins' Sauce to get the most delicious flavor for soups, fish, meats, gravy, game, salads etc.

SIGNATURE ON EVERY BOTTLE
Lea & Perrins
John Duncan's Sons, AGENTS-NEW YORK

Libby's Luncheon Loaf

Ready-to-Serve

It is another purity product from the Libby Kitchens, fully up to the high standard of all the Libby Canned Meats.

Ask your grocer for Libby's new meat dainty, "Luncheon Loaf." It is a deliciously seasoned and appetizingly prepared meat food put up in convenient sized, key-opening cans. New edition of the little booklet "How to Make Good Things to Eat," sent to everyone free.

$250.00 IN CASH PRIZES for Amateur Photographers. Two prizes, $50.00 each, for the most original and best taken photographs, and fifty-eight other cash prizes for amateurs. Write for booklet giving particulars.

LIBBY, McNEILL & LIBBY, Chicago.

KNOX'S GELATINE

is as different from the others as day is from night.

A strong statement, but easily proved this way: Send for my FREE 32-page book "Dainty Desserts for Dainty People"—70 delicious recipes. Or better—Send 5 cents (for postage) for the book and a full pint sample. For 15 cents a full 2-quart package. Makes a tempting jelly without odor, and transparent as sparkling water. Pink gelatine for fancy desserts in every packet.

CHAS. B. KNOX,
55 Knox Ave, Johnstown, N.Y.

Acme Medicine Cover AND Dose Indicator

15c

Keeps medicine free from dust and germs, and tells time to take next dose. Fits any glass or makes stand for bottle. Non-corrosive and anti-septic. If your dealer hasn't it, send 15c. for sample.

SHARON MANUFACTURING CO.
134 South 11th Street, PHILADELPHIA.

PERFECTION CAKE TIN has removable bottom which enables you to remove without breaking the most delicate cake or pie. Bottom fits in groove; will not leak batter. We make ten styles, round, square and oblong. We are the largest manufacturers of Pure Aluminum, Scotch Granite and Tin Ware in the world. AGENTS, write how to get free this and 4 others of our best selling household novelties—Outfit worth $2.00—Express prepaid. Address Dept. T
HOUSEHOLD NOVELTY WORKS, 25 Randolph St., Chicago, Ill., or New York, N. Y.; Buffalo, N. Y.; St. Louis, Mo.; Kansas City, Mo.; Denver, Col.; Seattle, Wash.

THE NEW DUST PAN. Rapid Seller. Exclusive territory. Write for Large Catalogue, 50 other fast sellers and how to get sample outfit free.
Richardson Mfg. Co., 6th St., Bath, N. Y.

$75 Month and Expenses; no experience needed; position permanent; self-seller, PEASE MFG. CO., Stat'n A, Cincinnati, O.

"THE 'SALT' OF SALTS."

That Troublesome Thirst.

Thirst is constant these warm days. It seems impossible to quench it.

Ordinary drinks seem to aggravate rather than satisfy. Too much liquid is bad for the stomach and general health.

Abbey's Effervescent Salt

makes a cooling, refreshing, healthful beverage. Take a teaspoonful in a tumbler of water two or three times a day and you will not be worried by thirst or heat. It is the most healthful and palatable beverage you can use during warm weather.

Abbey's Salt is Nature's remedy for eliminating impurities from the blood and thoroughly cleansing the system. It is made from the juices extracted from pure fresh fruits. It prevents and relieves Constipation, Dyspepsia, Biliousness, Flatulency, Kidney and Liver complaints or any ills caused by impure blood or a constipated condition.

Sold by most druggists, or sent by mail.

25c., 50c. and $1 per bottle.

The Abbey Effervescent Salt Co., 13 Murray St., Room 1, New York.

Booklet free on request.

DR. N. B. SIZER, New York, states: "I am glad to say I find Abbey's Effervescent Salt an excellent laxative and antacid. It gives good results in various forms of Dyspepsia and in constipation. I have often thought the effervescent salines were not half so well-known and used, in this country, as they ought to be."

DR. EDWIN R. BEDFORD, Brooklyn, N. Y., states: "I have used Abbey's Salt in cases of Chronic indigestion with a tendency to Rheumatism, Biliousness, etc., with perfect satisfaction."

DR. J. E. RUSSEL, New York, states: "Abbey's Salt is an ideal preparation, in that it combines laxative and aperient properties in a grateful form and is at the same time palatable. My wife finds it particularly efficacious in Headache, by its gentle action, and the relief thus obtained from congestion."

Importers O'Neill's Retailers

Dry Goods, Fancy Goods, Cloaks, Costumes, Fine Millinery, Men's and Boys' Clothing and Furnishings, House Furnishing Goods, Fine Furniture, Sewing Machines, Bicycles, Cameras, Books, Groceries, etc., etc.

A Handsomely Illustrated Catalogue of the New Fall and Winter Goods Free to Out-of-Towners

Every Spring and every Fall we issue free to out-of-town applicants a handsome catalogue, which describes and illustrates the newest fashions and kinds of merchandise to be popular during the season. It is a very useful book, particularly to those living outside of the metropolis, for it places the reader in touch with the greatest fashion centre in America, and enables he or she to buy the newest merchandise in the market at the regular New York prices, which means at times a great saving.

Our Fall and Winter Edition Will be Ready Sept. 15

If you want a copy send us your name and address as soon as you read this, for the edition will be limited and will go quickly. Mention this paper.

H. O'Neill & Co., 6th Ave., 20th to 21st Street, New York

A Great Remedy for...

Rheumatism

Mr. C. E. CORNELL, New York City, manufacturer of the well known Cornell's Benzoin Soap and Lotion, says:

"TARTARLITHINE is a great remedy. It releived my wife of a severe attack of rheumatism accompanied with neuralgia. I consider it equally as good a remedy fo1 neuralgia as it is for rheumatism. I keep it in the house all the time."

Tartarlithine is supplied in bottles containing 50 doses at $1.00, and can be obtained of all druggists or post-free by mail. Pamphlets with Testimonials sent free.

McKESSON & ROBBINS
91 Fulton Street New York
SOLE AGENTS FOR THE TARTARLITHINE CO.

TARTAN PILLS

For Constipation, Torpid Liver, Bilious Headaches, &c., which often accompany Rheumatic conditions

25c. per Bottle

INVESTIGATE THOROUGHLY BEFORE YOU PURCHASE A TYPEWRITER.

THE SMITH PREMIER

Will merit your approval as it fully meets requirements at every point.

ART CATALOGUE FOR THE ASKING.

THE SMITH PREMIER TYPEWRITER CO.
SYRACUSE, N.Y. U.S.A.

FREE 10 YEARS TRIAL

PIANO $155.00 UP

Money back with interest if not satisfied with your bargain. Write today for our latest catalogue. It is free. It shows you the latest and most up-to-date Organs and Pianos on the market. It tells you all about our patent combination actions and orchestral attachments which imitate a great variety of stringed instruments. Something new and novel that never fails to please. A discount of $10.00 on every Organ and $20.00 on every Piano if you get our catalogue now. We sell for cash or on easy payments. No money in advance required. From factory to home. No agents. No middlemen's profits. Write today.

ORGAN $25.00 UP

BEETHOVEN PIANO & ORGAN CO.
Box 741 Washington, N.J.

Artistic Monuments in White Bronze

COST NO MORE THAN PLAIN ONES

Marble is entirely out of date. Granit soon gets moss-grown, discolored requires constant expense and care, and eventually crumble back to Mother Earth. Besides it is very expensive.

White Bronze is strictly everlasting. It cannot crumbl with the action of frost. Moss-growt is an impossibility. It is more artistic than any stone. The why not investigate it? It has been adopted for nearly on hundred public monuments. We have designs from $4.00 t $4,000.00. Write at once for free designs and information. It put you under no obligations. We deal direct and deliver everywher Over $28,000 worth of work sold to Christian Herald readers in the last few years

The Monumental Bronze Co., 70-90 Howard Ave, Bridgeport, Conn.

Thousands in use in all parts of the world. Is no experiment. A Cyclist using the Morrow for a few weeks would give up cycling rather than give up the Coaster Brake. Ladies' skirts keep down when coasting. Feet always on Pedals. When ordering your new wheel, be SURE to specify the Morrow Coaster-Brake. For sale by all dealers.

Our Acetylene Bicycle Lamp is superior to any yet offered.

Illustrated pamphlet, giving detailed information regarding Brake and Lamp, sent on application.

ECLIPSE BICYCLE CO., Box U, Elmira, N. Y.

$18 to $35 WEEKLY and Expenses. | MEN and WOMEN, At Home or Traveling.

Mr. Smith, of Ind., made $927.50 first 6 months. Albert Hill, of N. J., $238 first month. Mr. Muncy, of Texas, $12.60 first 2 hours. Carrie Williams, clerk, $144 in 6 weeks. Mrs. Hitchcox, $222, besides housekeeping. Lida Kennedy, $84.00 while teaching.

LET US START YOU—No experience needed. Our agents made over $47,000.00 last month supplying the enormous demand for our famous Quaker Bath Cabinet, and appointing agents. Wonderful Seller. Everybody buys—business men, families and physicians. No scheme, fraud or fake methods. WRITE TODAY for Our Proposition, New Plan, etc., FREE. Address, World Mfg. Co., 47 World B'ld'g. Cincinnati, O.

HARTSHORN'S SELF-ACTING SHADE ROLLERS

NOTICE NAME THUS Stewart Hartshorn ON LABEL AND GET THE GENUINE HARTSHORN

WASHBURN

Mandolins and Guitars

and all other musical instruments made by Lyon & Healy are by far the best value. In L. & H. instruments alone you are assured of absolutely correct scales, thoroughly seasoned materials and genuine musical worth. L. & H. musical instruments will outlast a lifetime. Lyon & Healy Sell Everything Known in Music from a harmonica to a piano. If your local dealer will not supply you with L. & H. goods write to them. FREE—A catalog containing hundreds of illustrations. In writing state instrument wanted. LYON & HEALY, 101 Adams St. Chicago, Ill.

RUPTURE

The Improved Elastic Truss is the only Truss in existence that is worn with absolute comfort night and day, and it retains the rupture under the hardest exercise or severest strain, and will effect a permanent and speedy relief. Competent lady always in attendance for ladies, or to answer correspondence from women. Our goods are not sold by agents or druggists. Send for free pamphlets to the Improved Elastic Truss Co., 768 Broadway, New York. ESTABLISHED 18 YEARS.

BICYCLES BELOW COST

5,000 HIGH GRADE guaranteed MACHINES with best equipment must be closed out. 1900 Models, best makes, $11 to $20 '99 & '98 Models, high grade $8 to $13

500 Second hand Wheels all makes and models, good as new, $3 to $10. Great Factory Clearing Sale at half factory cost. We ship anywhere on trial without a cent in advance. EARN A BICYCLE distributing Catalogues for us. Many earned a wheel last year. Our 1900 proposition is even more liberal.

Write at once for our Bargain List and Special Offer. Address Dept. 41 H

MEAD CYCLE CO. Chicago

GOING TO FEED CATTLE

or hogs or both this season? There is no better fence made for surrounding feed lots, barn yards, or the farm in general than

THE ADVANCE FENCE

Perfectly smooth, all interwoven, safe for stock. SOLD DIRECT TO FARMERS AT WHOLESALE. Nobody can buy it any cheaper. Write for circulars and special discounts.

ADVANCE FENCE CO., 149 Old Street, Peoria, Ill.

FENCE! STRONGEST MADE. Bull-strong. Chicken-tight. Sold to the Farmer at Wholesale Prices. Fully Warranted. Catalog Free.

COILED SPRING FENCE CO., Box 47. Winchester, Indiana, U. S. A.

$14 If You Want to SAVE MONEY and get the best machine at lowest wholesale price, now is your chance Buy direct from factory, one profit. All attachments free. 30 days' free trial. WARRANTED 20 YEARS.

$40.00 Arlington for $14.00
$50.00 Arlington for $17.00
$65.00 Kenwood for $21.50
Other Machines at $9, $10.50 & $12

Illustrated catalog and testimonials free. CASH BUYERS' UNION,

158-164 W. Van Buren St., B-18, Chicago, Ill.

6 PIECE PARLOR SUITES
100 PIECE DINNER SETS
COUCHES ROCKERS LAMPS
GUITARS MANDOLINS
BICYCLES, GUNS, ETC:

FREE TO ANYONE

introducing our Soaps and Perfumes among their friends. No money or experience required. We pay cash if preferred. Even Boys and Girls do well. Our offers beat all others. Write for catalog of 100 premiums and particulars Medicated Cream Soap Co., Dept. D, 285 Madison St., Chicago.

CHRISTIAN HERALD

AND SIGNS OF OUR TIMES

OFFICES: BIBLE HOUSE, NEW YORK

REV. T. DE WITT TALMAGE, D.D., Editor

COPYRIGHT, 1900, BY LOUIS KLOPSCH

NEW YORK, AUGUST 8, 1900

VOLUME 23—NUMBER 32

PRICE FIVE CENTS

BOMBAY'S GREETING TO THE "QUITO"

The Impressive Ceremony at Prince's Dock on the Arrival of the Relief Ship

JOHN POLLEN, ESQ., LL.D., I.C.S.
Who presided at the Official Reception

MAILS just arrived from India have brought the detailed account of the arrival and reception at Bombay of THE CHRISTIAN HERALD relief ship Quito with her cargo of life-giving grain for the famine sufferers. News of the Quito's arrival and welcome came by cable some weeks since; but those dispatches furnished only the most meagre hint of the great and spontaneous jubilee that signalized the event—a jubilee in which all classes seem to have taken part enthusiastically and which demonstrated not only the gratitude of the people of India for Christian America's princely gift, but showed the warm and cordial feeling of friendship and brotherhood existing between the people of the two great countries, though divided by thousands of miles of ocean.

Mr. Benjamin Aitken, THE CHRISTIAN HERALD Commissioner in charge of the reception arrangements, has sent this account of the remarkable event: "The Quito arrived in Bombay Harbor on the 25th of June, concurrently with the burst of the monsoon. The rains were two weeks behind time, and the Government and people were in the midst of rejoicing at their advent when the signals announced that the Quito, of which Dr. Klopsch had given notice before leaving India, was approaching. By the exertions of THE CHRISTIAN HERALD Famine Relief Fund Committee, and of Messrs. W. & A. Graham & Co., Bombay

CONTINUED ON PAGE 649

THE HON. MR. JUSTICE CANDY
Acting Chief Justice of Bombay

THE DISTINGUISHED GATHERING ON PRINCE'S DOCK, BOMBAY, ON THE ARRIVAL OF THE "QUITO"

John Pollen Esq., I.L.D., I.C.S., Commissioner of Customs of Bombay Presidency, occupies the chair, with Hon. Mr. Chandavarkar on his right, while around are Rev. Mr. Karmarkar, Hon. Mr. N. Glazebrook (President of Bombay Presidency Famine Relief Fund) and many other high officials, influential natives, missionaries and laymen, with a number of ladies.

Our Mail-Bag

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

1. These questions are printed Four weeks in advance so as to afford all our readers an opportunity to answer them.
2. For answers to the questions which appear below, when accepted, we will allow compensation for the matter used at the rate of One Dollar a hundred words. Answers should so far as possible be limited to one hundred words.
3. Answers must be received at this office two weeks in advance of the date in which they are intended to appear.
4. The editor reserves the right to condense accepted answers when necessary, and compensation will be based on the matter as printed.
5. Do not write inquiring if your material has been accepted. If it appears on this page, you will know that it has been accepted.
6. We cannot return any MSS. sent to the Editor of THE MAIL BAG—not even if stamps accompany them.
7. Write only on one side of the sheet and never send on the same sheet anything intended for any other department of the paper. Correspondents answering more than one question should append their name and address to each answer.
8. Address all communications intended for this department, EDITOR THE MAIL-BAG,
The Christian Herald, Bible House, New York.

These Questions Will be Answered Sept. 5

1. What was the name or character of the dance which Herodias danced before Herod and his court when the king commanded the slaying of John the Baptist?
2. What article formerly in common use in the household is used in the Bible as an emblem of God's favor and of the soul?
3. What American President in an inaugural address made an unconscious rhyme, and what was the language used?
4. Does the New Testament teach that Christ is an advocate of unregenerate sinners or of believers only?
5. What incidents in ancient time tell of two marvelous transformations—the first of stones being changed into human beings, the second of men being turned into stone?
6. Should a person, who has lost faith in the creed of his church, continue his membership in it, if there is no church accessible which does represent his views?
7. What is the origin of the word "turncoat" and when was it first used?
8. What are the best means of getting emancipation from an evil habit?
9. Is it right for a man to relieve the wants of the wife and children of a man who takes advantage of the charitable gifts to use his own earnings in self-indulgence?
10. Was the child Jesus taken to Egypt as Matthew says (2: 14) or to Jerusalem as Luke says (2: 22)?

Questions of the Week

1. Should the "world" be invited to support the church, or should the latter rely upon its own resources as a Christian organization?

The "world" should be invited when in the proper relation of friendliness and moral affinity, but should never be constrained to support Christian institutions. The support given to the church by many outside people becomes a savor in their own lives. The reflex influence of supporting the church increases their real affinity for the church. They feel that this support is rightful, because they are beneficiaries of the church's general conservative force and influence. Unless people do realize that they are rightfully indebted to the church, if not by membership, yet for its moral conservative benefit, they ought not to be constrained to contribute. The church in accepting such grudge-gifts humiliates itself as much as an individual would do in the same conditions. But the church, in assuming any such humiliating position, is really humiliating the Lord. It dishonors God. Really it is never right for the church to seek for contributions, unless there is rightful ground to expect the contribution of material things to be a benefit in spiritual things to the contributor.

C. P. ATKINSON.

. . .

It is doubtless true of churches as of individuals that when self-supporting they are happier, more independent, more truly self-respecting and more truly respected by others than when obliged to solicit aid. Churches, like individuals, should practise reasonable economy and not care unduly for mere outward show or splendor. When this is the case and when the members give in proportion to their means, it will seldom, if ever, be found necessary to seek aid from the world. A church is doubtless in position to exert its strongest influence for good when it can truly say to those outside: "We seek not yours, but you." AMELIA HOYT.

2. Is it probable that the events described in such Parables as the Good Samaritan and the Prodigal Son were actual occurrences?

It is of course not likely that events happened just as they are described in the parables, but it is extremely probable that there were occurrences which suggested to our Lord the general tenor of his sayings. In the long, and at some places, lonely way from Jerusalem to Jericho, we are told that robberies sometimes occurred. So, too, in those days as now, doubtless some young men learned how good a place home is, by making some foolhardy experiments in distant lands.

JOHN D. MEESE.

3. What is the legend of the origin of the cypress tree?

The legend is given by Ovid (Met. 10: 3). Cyparissus, a beautiful youth whom Apollo loved, accidentally killed a favorite stag of the god. In consequence of this he was seized with such immoderate grief that Apollo transformed him into a cypress tree that he might mourn for all time. This tree, which grows no more after being cut down, was regarded as a symbol of the dead, and was held sacred to Pluto, and its branches were used by the Greeks and Romans on the funeral pyres and in the houses of the deceased. G. E. KRAUTH.

4. If a young man had an ambition to spend his life so as to do the greatest possible good to humanity, could he attain his object best in the pulpit, or as a missionary in the slums of an American city, or as a missionary in a heathen land?

The qualifications for these different spheres of work are very different, and the young man in question must consider well which of them he is best adapted for, or if he is specially adapted for either. To all such work there should be a divine call; but as regarded from the human side, such a call consists mainly in having a desire for the work, in having the special equipment for it, and in having the opportunity to prosecute it. These fundamental principles, if faithfully adhered to, will in general guide us safely in regard to our life work, whether it be secular or sacred.

JOSEPH HAMILTON.

5. By what race or nation were wooden swords used in battle and for what reason?

It is recorded of the ancient Mexicans that they fought with wooden swords in order that, while establishing their superior military prowess, they might not kill their enemies.

ROBERT VYSE.

6. In the last verses of the book of Job, the patriarch is represented as being rewarded with double the number of animals that he had at first, but he has only the same number of children? Why was not the number of them doubled, too?

Chrysostom has this to say: "God did not double his children to Job, in order that he might not despair of seeing again the children he had lost; and in order that he might know that, though they were taken from him, they were still alive; and that we also might know that Job, who had buried ten children, and was himself buried by ten others, passed at death, as it were, from one home to another, and all of them will stand by him together at the great day." The doubling of the possessions of Job being something more exact than the mere increase of his fortunes, carries with it more suggestion of the directly miraculous than it would have carried for a broken man to have retrieved his fortunes, and even with indefinitely greater glory. The same is true of the duplicating of his former family. Inasmuch as possessions, with all temporal things, will in the end vanish, and children are immortal, Job will stand at the last actually doubled in that only which will remain to him of all that was destroyed. But this view demands that the author of the book believed in the future state. We think the whole book bears out such a view, and, therefore, there is no difficulty in that conclusion. If we accept radical criticism and view the whole book in the light of it, these conceptions are still tenable as being those in the mind of the author. C. P. ATKINSON.

7. What is the origin of the phrase "to throw dust in one's eyes"?

The allusion is to a Mohammedan practice of casting dust in the air for the sake of "confounding" the enemies of the faith. This was done by Mohammed on two or three occasions, as in the battle of Honein; and the Koran refers to it when it says: "Neither didst thou, O Mohammed, cast dust into their eyes; but it was God who confounded them." But the following incident will suffice: One day the Koreishites surrounded the house of Mohammed, resolved to murder him. They peeped through the crevices of his chamber door, and saw him lying asleep. Just at this moment, his son-in-law, Ali, silently opened the door and threw into the air a handful of dust. Immediately the conspirators were confounded. They mistook Ali for Mohammed, and Mohammed for Ali, allowed the prophet to walk through their midst uninjured, and laid hands on Ali. No sooner was Mohammed safe than their eyes were opened, and they saw their mistake.

MAYNIE HENINGER.

8. Which has the greater influence on the character: heredity or environment?

Which produces the oak, the acorn or the soil and the water and the winds that blow upon it? Which produced the diamond, the carbon or the natural convulsion which made the carbon into diamond? There must be the material, which comes from heredity, in order that environment may mould it. Environment can do wonderful things in developing or checking tendencies, but it cannot create the tendencies. Children of good parents may be made bad by bad environment. Children of bad parents may be trained and become good in good environment. Psychologists of eminence hold that the hereditary taint which they call atavism will disappear in the second or third generation if it is persistently checked. On the whole, given an ordinary character and ordinary intelligence, environment has the greater influence; but when there are strongly marked traits, such as acquisitiveness or sensuality, appearing in two or three generations, the influence of heredity usually survives and is stronger than environment. E. B. WRIGHT.

9. Is a man justified, "for conscience sake," in throwing away his vote on a party which meets his views but which he knows cannot succeed, or should he accept the alternative of giving his support to the better of the two remaining parties?

Of course he is justified. Every time a man throws his vote away by casting it for what he supposes to be the best or the strongest of opposing factions, he weakens his own cause. The Abolitionists were very weak at first, but they kept on voting until they won. Other instances might be cited. There are rare instances where a minority party by holding the balance of power may force stronger parties to nominate their best men. However that may be, a man is always justified in voting for men and measures he deems right.

J. D. MEESE.

. . .

The ballot is a privilege designed to be used intelligently and conscientiously in furthering the interests of the community, the State, the nation. It is not a personal perquisite to be employed for personal gratification, but a public trust to be exercised in the broadest and highest sense, and always with a view to the well-being of the largest number. It is the sacred duty of the voter to remember this. If, therefore, he be convinced that the election or defeat of a certain candidate or candidates would be vital to the welfare of the community, it becomes his duty to so exercise his privilege as to elect or defeat such candidate or candidates, as the case may be. Can he do this by "sulking in his tent," or throwing his ballot at a target which makes no record and is no factor in the fight? Can he not better fulfil his duty to God and the State by manfully taking his share of the burden and heat of the battle, and planting his blows where they will tell in the contest which is to decide whether an upright or a corrupt government shall rule? If all the "conscience voters" would act unitedly on this principle, they ought to wield the "balance of power" in many an election contest, thus deciding it for God and righteousness. ROBERT VYSE.

10. If a Christian saw a man likely to perish by drowning, or burning, or in some other way, and he was morally certain that if the man were saved, he would live so evil a life that his example and his conduct would be mischievous to the community, ought he to risk his own life in trying to save him? Would he not serve society better by letting him perish?

A good man would be better prepared to meet death than such a one as you describe. If a man's life is in a perilous condition, no matter how vile and unscrupulous he may be ("What is that to thee? Follow thou me"), it is a Christian's duty to try and save him, even at the risk of his own life. Christ died—gave up his life, not for the righteous, but for sinners. Are we better than our Master? A Christian refusing to save a human life, however sinful, might be the means of sending a soul (for whom Christ died) into a hopeless eternity. In answer to your second question, I would say no, a thousand times no. While there is life there is hope. You and I know no man's future. A life may appear worthless to us, which in reality may be full of possibilities. There have been hundreds of instances when men, almost lost in the labyrinth of sin, have been touched by the Gospel of Christ, and afterwards have been witnesses for God and righteousness. "Whatsoever ye would that men should do to you, do ye even so to them" meets every trying circumstance in life, and settles beyond a doubt our duty to our neighbor.

MRS. GEORGE W. LYONS.

Miscellaneous Questions

Apropos of a recent question in THE MAIL-BAG concerning the "seven Bibles of the world," Katherine D. Crandall, Brookfield, N. Y., sends these as the "seven modern Bibles."

1. The King James Bible, the standard throughout the Protestant world. 2 Donay Bible, the Catholic English standard. 3. The German Bible, Luther's translation. 4. The Greek Bible, translated by the Jews, which is the version used by the Greek Church. 5. The Latin Bible (St. Jerome's), the authorized version of the Roman Catholics. 6. The Mormon Bible, which is accepted with the Book of Mormon. 7. The Hebrew Bible, translated by their learned men.

S. F. S., Perkaise, Pa. Is a minister of the Gospel justified in attending theatres?

No; if for no other reason than that his example would be injurious to many of his flock, and especially to the young, with whom indiscriminate theatre-going may easily become a passion. While there are, doubtless, good plays, the majority are of the opposite class; and even supposing a clergyman should select only the best and enjoy their presentation, for the sake of others, he should be willing to forego such a pleasure. Theatre-going would greatly impair a pastor's spiritual influence, and detract from his usefulness in religious work. He should deny himself all indulgences which have the slightest tendency of this character.

The poets still write to us in praise of Samantha. Mrs. J. N. Dancer, of Sylvan, Mich., sends these among other verses:

We admire you, dear Samantha,
In all you do and say,
And the way you keep your "pardner"
In the strait and narrow way.

And we also like Josiah;
What a plucky man was he.
To have courted such a woman
And gained the victory.

And Robert Strong—the helpful—
How he wools Miss Meechim's eyes—
But he knows what he is doing,
And is sure to win the prize.

And Dorothy—the lovely—
Who never did a wrong.
We hope in the near future
She may be Mrs. Strong.

A. D., Manton, Mich. Is there any authority for the statement that there was no rain on the earth from the Creation until the Deluge?

There can, of course, be no reliable scientific or historical authority for the statement. It is only a theory, its advocates holding that the earth at that period was shrouded in mist, and did not receive the direct light or heat of the sun, and that such a condition was favorable to longevity of men and beasts and to the development of those gigantic species whose fossil remains are to-day the wonder of naturalists and students generally. It should be remembered that each stage of the earth's development represents a great period of time and that, as La Place explains, the whole solar system was probably originally a mass of vaporous matter.

W. W. K., Flagstaff, Ariz., writes a line in defense of the much-abused sparrow:

The English sparrow is a great blessing to the fruit raisers of Southern California, where I have been engaged for the past twelve years. They will not eat or touch fruit themselves, but live on grain, etc., and they keep the other birds away that destroy fruit.

Young Girl, Hillsdale, Pa. 1. Is anger a sin? 2. Is it wrong for the members of a church to give the church one night for an institute for the benefit of teachers of schools? 3. Does the Lord's Prayer "take in" everything we need ask God for? 4. To what address should one send questions to be answered in "Aunt Prudence Payson's Catch-all"?

1. There is a "righteous anger" or indignation, aroused by any great wickedness, outrage or wrong, which is justifiable, because it is directed against that which is contrary to righteousness and justice (see Eph. 4: 26). Anger against our fellows, or petulance and irritation, and all displays of temper and passion under any other circumstances, must be regarded as unjustifiable and wicked. We may naturally feel anger at times, but it should not be indulged, and a little reflection will show us that it is unreasonable and worse than useless. 2. We see nothing wrong about the matter as you state it. 3. No, nor was it designed to be comprehensive of all our possible wants. It was given by the Saviour as a model of what prayer ought to be and of our attitude toward the Father in making a petition. Thus Christ himself says: "In this manner pray ye," etc. 4. Address, Margaret Sangster, care THE CHRISTIAN HERALD, Bible House, New York.

Mrs. Grace C., East Bramtice, Vt. Please state to whom money is to be sent for each charitable purpose.

Contributions for the various charities mentioned in this paper, should in all cases be sent to THE CHRISTIAN HERALD, 92 Bible House, N. Y., the sender naming the charity for which the gift is intended.

W. S. R., Linwood, N. Y. Is it right for a minister of the Gospel to set himself up as a judge and an offensive critic over a disciple, or over a church? If a disciple can only say "I love Jesus," what right has a minister to call him an ignorant, lazy Christian, thereby driving him wounded from his place of worship?

We cannot believe that any one professing to preach the Gospel of Christ could be so harsh and unjust. There may, however, be some mistake—some misapprehension. Certainly, such a course would tend to alienate many who are young in experience in the Christian life and who may not be able to give utterance to their feelings as eloquently as others.

W. A. P., Tolchester, Md. Imaginary—the work of the artist.

E. L. B., Boston. We know of no use to which they can be put.

A. B. Write to the Signal Service Bureau, Washington, D. C., for all particulars.

Ralph B. D., Rochester, Pa. It is difficult is advise concerning home employment. Many offers of that class, though tempting, are unreliable.

C. D. C., Mentor, O. The religion of the Central and South American races is chiefly Catholic, but in many places it is so mingled with superstition as to be little better than heathenism.

THE WOMAN WHO RULES CHINA

Tsze Hsi An, the Empress Dowager, a Nameless Manchu Woman who has Waded Through Blood to the Supreme Power

IT is impossible to present an absolutely correct view of the present situation in the Middle Kingdom. Candor compels that admission. No white man has ever mastered the ratiocination of the Mongol. The working of the Chinese and panese mind is, and must remain, an solute mystery to us. What we can do to collect facts in their chronological der, and reasoning by analogy, arrive an approximate estimate.

Intercourse, i. e., international inter- urse with China, dates from 1861, the ar of the death of Emperor Hsien Feng. d the regency of the Tsze Hsi An, or "Mother of the Sovereign," the Dow- er Empress as we designate her. Here an important fact. Although until 1881 e regency was conducted jointly with e Eastern Empress, the legal widow of sien Feng, it was the imperious mother the sovereign who held the reins with a m hand. Through palace revolutions and bals, her path strewn with the bloody rpses of her opponents, that woman has ed until the world, with one accord, lls her the One Man in China.

Her past record fully bears out the sus- ion that Tsze Hsi An is at the bottom the present disturbances. There is no son whatever to believe that she op- ses them. Throughout her career she s managed to ride upon the popular ve. Yet from the death of her son, the e Emperor Tung-chih in 1875, she has olated every statute and tradition, and serves every epithet hurled at her head Kang Yu Wei, and his little band of formers.

The history of China since 1861 is con- ined in the biography of Tsze Hsi An, nameless Manchu woman, one of the numerable wives, of the third class, of mperor Hsien Feng, she was one of ose who, with their lord and master fled the summer palace at Yeh ho or Hot prings, upon the approach of the allied itish-French forces, in 1860. There as no ceremony in that hasty flight! ie nameless woman, carrying her baby y, unattended, never forgot the horrors that wild journey. Hsien Feng, remem- ring, but too late, that his grandfather, ia Ching, had died here, and trembling er this violation of China's pet super- tion, the Feng Shui, or Air and Water pirit, drooped and died the following ring. Then the nameless Manchu oman became the vortex of cabals and trigues, for her son was the only male sue of the late Emperor, and conse- ently the only legal heir. After enter- g into an arrangement with the legal dow about joint guardianship, the two omen fled suddenly to Prince Kung, the other of Hsien Feng, who speedily un- veled the threads of conspiracy and sent e participants to the blood pit. Many magnificent fu or princely residence nds to-day, roofless and tenantless, a d witness of the ruthless inauguration Tsze Hsi An's rule.

She was, by law and by right, mother the sovereign, and as such entitled to all respect by the Canons of Filial Piety. Upon her accession to power, the allied forces had wrung from the frightened Hsien Feng the right to have foreign ministers dwell in the capital and to have access to the ruler. How this woman baffled the most astute diplomats! Pleading the privileges of a Chinese woman, she avoided contamination of the "foreign devils," and when they importuned her son, Tung-chih, upon his accession, they were received in the hall of the Tribute-bearers thereby fully satisfying the Chinese mind that these loud-mouthed barbarians were, after all, but uncouth and uncivilized representatives of tributary states. Such mistakes can not be rectified.

But to continue. Tung-chih died in 1875 without issue, hence Tsze Hsi An was no longer the "Mother of the Sovereign," but an ordinary Manchu noblewoman. On the night of his death, the princes known to be favorable to her, were called to a family council and at her instance, Tsai-tien, the three and a half-year-old son of Prince Chung, was selected as successor to the Dragon Seat. This selection violated the canons of Ancestral Worship, since, being a full cousin of the late Tung-chih (Chung was a brother of Hsien Feng), the child was unable to worship at the ancestral tablets. The crafty and unscrupulous woman overcame this obstacle by proclaiming the posthumous adoption of the child by Hsien Feng, who had been dead these fourteen years.

This adoption renewed her claim to the title of Tsze Hsi An, and the regency, scarcely interrupted by the reign of the imbecile Tung-chih, continued for the boy Tsai-tien, who is known by the title of Kuang Hsu or Illustrious Successor. There was some opposition, of course, to these arbitrary proceedings. But Li Hung Chang marched his troops upon Pekin and, supported by the "moral force," another sanguinary orgy stifled all protests. Madame Tsze Hsi An was able to announce the peaceful succession of Kuang Hsu, whose minority once more checkmated every effort on the part of foreigners to arrive at a more appreciated understanding of their position.

TSZE HSI AN, THE NOTED DOWAGER EMPRESS OF CHINA

This Portrait of the Bitter Enemy of the Foreigners is from an Authentic Sketch in Black and White

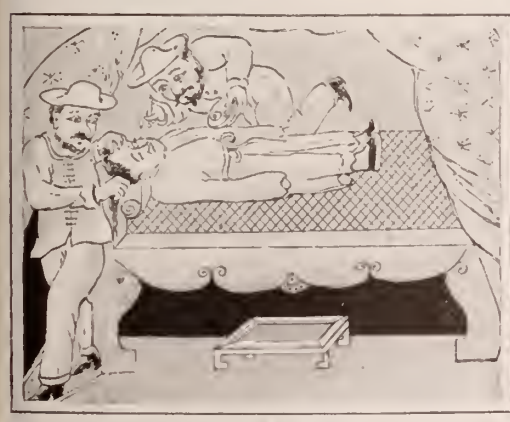
To Li Hung Chang the management of the "foreign devils" was entrusted. This much-overestimated statesman, throughout his official career as Minister of Foreign Affairs, has acted upon the one principle of playing off one Power against the other; in other words, he shielded China's helplessness and corruption by playing upon international jealousy. In 1887 he managed Russia and Great Britain so well that they both withdrew discomfited, the former from China's eastern frontier and England from Port Hamilton. But when he undertook to humiliate Japan, the Chinese bubble burst.

Modern history of China begins with the Japan-China war, or rather with the peace of Shimonoseki in 1895. It is easy now to make the statement that that war was a mistake. There are always prophets of the "I told you so" order. The Japanese victories thoroughly upset Tsze Hsi An, and it was at her behest that Li Hung Chang's chair was seen constantly at the British, Russian, and French Legations. Lord Salisbury's opportunism ended in England's thoroughly exasperating both Japan and China, and in reducing her influence on a level with that of Belgium and Holland. But if the British minister had no policy, Count Cassini had, and he played his cards with a master's hand: witness Russia's appropriation of the fruits of Japan's victories.

When Tsze Hsi An recovered from her panic, she was furious. When Kuang Hsu inaugurated his reform movement, there was, for a few months, no more liberal advocate than Tsze Hsi An. The reformers were all Cantonese, whom the Manchu regard with the most bitter contempt. The emperor announced his intention to open the Pekin Tien-Tsin railway. Immediately it was known that the Dowager Empress intended to visit Tien-Tsin in a private car. She was going to hold receptions to foreign ladies, and while the world was marveling, she collected some faithful Manchu, and suddenly swooped down upon the palace. Poor Kuang Hsu was interrupted in his flight and dragged by the Empress's eunuch's to the island temple in the E-ho Park palace.

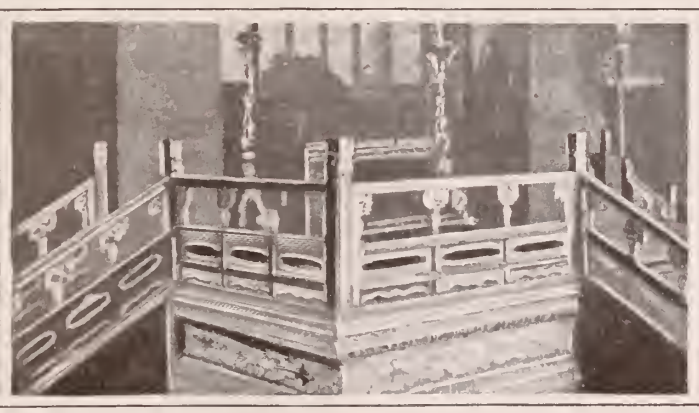
She held her own amid all the clamor provoked by her high-handed proceedings, and duped the acutest diplomats into recognizing her, when she received the wives of the foreign ministers. From that time she began to look for means to expel the "foreign devils." This is ample evidence that the movement emanates directly from the Purple Forbidden City. The disturbances, however, are rapidly assuming a national, or rather a radical, character, and the outlook is not encouraging. Of one thing only we are assured, viz.: that when order proceeds from chaos, a new map of Asia will appear. It is quite evident, however, that Prince Tuan is the cat'spaw of Tsze Hsi An, for it is not likely that the father of P'u Chun should turn against the woman who made his son the heir-apparent.

R. VAN BERGEN.



A CARTOON AGAINST THE MISSIONARIES

They are Represented Gouging Out Converts' Eyes



THE EMPEROR'S THRONE IN THE PALACE, PEKIN

It is One of the Gloomiest Corners of the Great Impérial Palace

A CARTOON AGAINST THE CHRISTIANS

Foreigners Carrying Christianity to the Door of Confucius

THE METROPOLITAN PULPIT.

Straight Up-and-Down Religion

A Sermon by Rev. T. DeWitt Talmage, D.D., on the Text, Amos 7: 8: . . .

And the Lord said unto me, Amos, what seest thou? and I said, A plumb-line.

THE solid masonry of the world has for me a fascination. Walk about some of the triumphal arches and the cathedrals, four or six hundred years old, and see them stand as erect as when they were builded, walls of great height, for centuries not bending a quarter of an inch this way or that. So greatly honored were the masons who builded these walls that they were free from taxation and called "free" masons. The trowel gets most of the credit for these buildings, and its clear ringing on stone and brick has sounded across the ages. But there is another implement of just as much importance as the trowel, and my text recognizes it. Bricklayers and stonemasons and carpenters, in the building of walls, use an instrument made of a cord, at the end of which a lump of lead is fastened. They drop it over the side of the wall, and, as the plummet naturally seeks the centre of gravity in the earth, the workman discovers where the wall recedes, and where it bulges out and just what is the perpendicular. Our text represents God as standing on the wall of character, which the Israelites had built, and, in that way, testing it. "And the Lord said unto me, Amos, what seest thou? and I said, A plumb-line."

What the world wants is straight up-and-down religion. Much of the so-called piety of the day bends this way and that, to suit the times. It is oblique, with a low state of sentiment and morals. We have all been and it is glaringly imperfect and needs reconstruction. How shall it be brought into perpendicular? Only by the divine measurement.

Building a Wall of Character

The whole tendency of the times is to make us act by the standard of what others do. We throw over the wall of our character the tangled plumb-line of other lives and reject the infallible test which Amos saw. The question for me should not be what you think is right, but what God thinks is right. This perpetual reference to the behavior of others, as though it decided anything but human fallibility, is a mistake as wide as the world. There are ten thousand plumb-lines in use, but only one is true and exact, and that is the line of God's eternal right. There is a mighty attempt being made to reconstruct and fix up the Ten Commandments. To many they seem too rigid. My friends, we must have a standard: shall it be God's or man's?

The divine plumb-line needs to be thrown over all merchandise. Thousands of years ago Solomon discovered the tendency of buyers to depreciate goods. He saw a man beating down an article lower and lower, and saying it was not worth the price asked, and when he has purchased at the lowest point he told everybody what a sharp bargain he had struck, and how he had outwitted the merchant. "It is naught, saith the buyer: but when he is gone his way, then he boasteth" (Proverbs 20: 14). Society is so utterly askew in this matter that you seldom find a seller asking the price that he expects to get; he puts on a higher value than he expects to receive, knowing that he will have to drop. And if he wants fifty, he asks seventy-five. And if he wants two thousand, he asks twenty-five hundred. "It is naught," saith the buyer. "The fabric is defective; the style of goods is poor; I can get elsewhere a better article at a smaller price. It is out of fashion; it is damaged; it will fade; it will not wear well." After a while the merchant, from over-persuasion or from desire to dispose of that particular stock of goods, says, "Well, take it at your own price," and the purchaser goes home with light step and calls into his private office his confidential friends and chuckles while he tells how for half price he got the goods. In other words, he lied, and was proud of it.

Nothing would make times so good, and the earning of a livelihood so easy, as the universal adoption of the law of right. Suspicion strikes through all bargain-making. Men who sell know not whether they will ever get the money. Purchasers know not whether the goods shipped will be according to the sample. And what, with the large number of clerks who are making false entries and then absconding, and the explosion of firms that fail for millions of dollars, honest men are at their wits' end to make a living. He who stands up amid all the pressure and does right, is accomplishing something toward the establishment of a high commercial prosperity. I have deep sympathy for the laboring classes who toil with hand and foot. But we must not forget the business men, who, without any complaint or bannered procession through the street, are of circumstances terrific. The fortunate people of to-day are those who are receiving daily wages or regular salaries. And the men most to be pitied are those who conduct a business while prices are falling and are in such fearful straits that they would quit business to-morrow, if it were not for the wreck and ruin of others. When people tell me at what a ruinously low price they purchased an article, it gives me more dismay than satisfaction. I know it means the bankruptcy and defalcation of men in many departments. The men who toil with the brain need full as much sympathy as those who toil with the hand.

Enduring a Stress

The pressure to do wrong is stronger from the fact that in our day the large business houses are swallowing up the smaller, the whales dining on blue-fish and minnows. The large houses undersell the small ones, because they buy in greater quantities and at lower figures from the producer. They can afford to make nothing, or actually lose, on some styles of goods, assured they can make it up on others. This is nothing against the man who has the big store, for every man has as large a store and as great a business as he can manage.

To feel right and do right under all this pressure requires martyr grace, requires divine support, requires celestial reenforcement. Yet there are tens of thousands of such men getting splendidly through. They see others going up and themselves going down, but they keep their patience and their courage and their Christian consistency, and after awhile their success will come. There is generally retribution in some form for greediness. The owners of the big business will die and their boys will get possession of the business, and with a cigar in their mouths, and full to the chins with the best liquor, and behind a pair of spanking bays, they will pass everything on

The Turnpike Road to Perdition

Then the business will break up and the smaller dealers will have opportunity. But perhaps for this generation the struggle of small houses to keep alive under the over-shadowing pressure of great houses will continue; therefore, taking things as they are, you will be wise to preserve your equilibrium and your honesty and your faith, and throw over all the counters and shelves and casks the measuring line of divine right.

In the same way we need to rectify our theologies. All sorts of religions are putting forth their pretensions. Some have a spiritualistic religion and their chief work is with ghosts, and others a religion of political economy, proposing to put an end to human misery by a new style of taxation, and there is a humanitarian religion that looks after the bodies of men and lets the soul look after itself, and there is a legislative religion that proposes to rectify all wrongs by enactment of better laws, and there is an æsthetic religion that by rules of exquisite taste would lift the heart out of its deformities, and religions of all sorts, religions by the peck, religions by the square foot, and religions by the ton—all of them devices of the devil that would take the heart away from the only religion that will ever effect anything for the human race. All religions but one begin at the wrong end and in the wrong place. The Bible religion demands that we first get right with God. It begins at the top and measures down, while the other religions begin at the bottom and try to measure up. Glory be to God for the religion that drops from above, not coming up from beneath!

Care of the Foundation

My text gives me a grand opportunity of saying a useful word to all young men who are now forming habits for a lifetime. Of what use to a stone mason or a bricklayer is a plumb-line? Why not build the wall by the unaided eye and hand? Because they are insufficient, because if there be a deflection in the wall it cannot further on be corrected. Because, by the law of gravitation, a wall must be straight in order to be symmetrical and safe. A young man is in danger of getting a defect in his wall of character that may never be corrected. One of the best friends I ever had, died of delirium tremens at sixty years of age—though he had not since twenty-one years of age, before which he had been dissipated—touched intoxicating liquor until that particular carousal that took him off. Not feeling well in the street on a hot summer day, he stepped into a drug store, just as you and I would have done, and asked for a dose of something to make him feel better. And there was alcohol in the dose, and that one drop aroused the old appetite and he entered the first liquor store and stayed there until thoroughly under the power of rum. He entered his home a raving maniac, his wife and daughters fleeing from his presence, and at last he was taken to the city hospital to die. The combustible material of early habit had lain quiet nearly forty years, and that one spark ignited it.

Remember that the wall may be one hundred feet high, and yet a deflection one foot from the foundation affects the entire structure. And if you live a hundred years and do right the last eighty years, you may nevertheless do something at twenty years of age that will damage all your earthly existence. All you who have built houses for yourselves or for others, am I not right in saying to these young men, you cannot build a wall so high as to be independent of the character of its foundation?

"But," you say, "you shut us young folks out from all fun." Oh, no!

I Like Fun

I believe in fun. I have had lots of it in my time. But I have not had to go into paths of sin to find it. No credit to me, but because of an extraordinary parental example and influence, I was kept from outward transgressions, though my heart was bad enough and desperately wicked. I have had fun illimitable, though I never swore one oath and never gambled for so much as the value of a pin and never saw the inside of a haunt of sin save as when many years ago, with a commissioner of police I explored New York and Brooklyn by midnight, not out of curiosity, but that I might in pulpit discourse set before the people the poverty and the horrors of underground city life. Yet, though I was never intoxicated for an instant, and never committed one act of dissoluteness—restrained only by the grace of God, without which restraint I would have gone headlong to the bottom of infamy—I have had so much fun that I don't believe there is a man on the planet at the present time who has had more. Hear it, men and boys, women and girls, all the fun is on the side of right.

There they go—two brothers. The one was converted a year ago in church one Sunday morning, during prayer, or sermon or hymn. No one knew it at the time. The persons on either side of him suspected nothing, but in that young man's soul this process went on: "Lord, here I am, a young man amid the temptations of city life, and I am afraid to risk them alone; come and be my pardon an my help; save me from making the mi take some of my comrades are making. And God rolled heaven into his soul. H is just as jolly as he used to be, is just a brilliant as he used to be. He can strik a ball or catch one as easily as before h was converted. With gun or fishing-ro in this summer vacation, he is just a skilful as before. The world is brighte to him than ever. He appreciates pic tures, music, innocent hilarity, social life good jokes, and has plenty of fun, gloriou fun. But his brother is Going Down Hill

In the morning his head aches from th champagne debauch. Everybody sees h is in rapid descent. What cares he fo right or decency or the honor of hi family name? Turned out of employmen depleted in health, cast down in spirits the typhoid fever strikes him in the smal est room on the fourth story of a fifth rate boarding-house, cursing God an calling for his mother, and fighting bac demons from his dying pillow, which i besweated and torn to rags. He plunge out of this world with the shriek of destroyed spirit. Alas for that kind o fun! It is remorse. It is despair. It i blackness of darkness. It is woe unend ing and long reverberating and crushin as though all the mountains of all cont nents rolled on him in one avalanche. M soul, stand back from such fun. Youn man, there is no fun in shipwrecking you character, no fun in disgracing your fath er's name. There is no fun in breakin your mother's heart. There is no fun i the physical pangs of the dissolute. Ther is no fun in the profligate's deathbe There is no fun in an undone eternity

Oh, this plumb-line of the everlastin right! God will throw it over all ou lives to show us our moral deflections God will throw it over all churches t show whether they are doing useful wor or are instances of idleness and pretens He will throw that to demonstrate whether their laws ar just or cruel, their rulers good or bad their ambitions holy or infamous. H threw that plumb-line over the Spanis monarchy of other days, and what be came of her? Ask the splintered hulks o her overthrown Armada. He threw tha plumb-line over French imperialism, an what was the result? Ask the ruins of th Tuileries and the fallen column of th Place Vendome and the grave trenches o Sedan and the blood of revolutions a different times rolling through the Champ Elysees. He threw that plumb-line ove ancient Rome, and what became of th realm of the ancient Cæsars? Ask he war-eagles, with beak dulled and wing broken, flung helpless into the Tiber. H threw it over the Assyrian Empire of thousand years, the throne of Semiram of twenty-seven victorious expeditions, th cities of Phœnicia kneeling to the sceptr and all the world blanched in the pre ence. What became of all the grandeur Ask the fallen palaces of Khorsabad an the corpses of her soldiery slain by ange of the Lord in one night and the Assyria sculptures of the world's museums, a that now remains of that splendor befo which nations staggered and crouche God is now throwing that plumb-line ove this republic, and it is a solemn time wit this nation, and whether we keep h Sabbaths or dishonor them, whethe righteousness or iniquity dominate, whet er we are Christian or infidel, whether w fulfil our mission or refuse, whether w are for God or against him, will decid whether we shall as a nation go on i higher and higher career or go down i the same grave where Babylon and Nin veh and Thebes are sepulchred.

Plumb-Line Over All Nations

"But," say you, "if there be nothin but a plumb-line, what can any of us d for there is an old proverb which truth fully declares: 'If the best man's faul were written on his forehead it woul make him pull his hat over his eyes' What shall we do when, according t Isaiah, 'God shall lay judgment to th line and righteousness the plummet?' Ah, here is where the Gospel comes in wit a Saviour's righteousness to make u for our deficits. And while I see hangin on the wall a plumb-line, I see also hang ing there a Cross. And while the o condemns us, the other saves us, if on we will hold to it.

BOMBAY'S · GREETING · TO · THE · "QUITO"

CONTINUED FROM FIRST PAGE

erchants (who had undertaken to unload the ip and despatch the cargo at the mere cost outlay, with the cordial cooperation of the arbor and dock authorities), a most suitable id convenient place had been secured for the uito in Prince's Dock, alongside the vast ilway shed, and into this she came in the ening as soon as the tide permitted it.

Invitations to the reception ceremony had en issued to all the members, European and itive, clerical and lay, of the Bombay Misonary Conference, the members of the Bomy Chamber of Commerce, and to a large mber of the other leaders of the community id heads of several departments of governent. The rains stopped on the night of the 26th, id began again, in the usual monsoon deluge id storm, a few hours after the ceremony.

Punctually at 8 A.M., on the 27th, the people sembled in the shed, with the stone-gray ill of the Quito a few feet in front of them, r rigging gay with bunting, and the cranes derricks swinging the grain bags out of the old and onto the pier. Right in sight of the ompany dozens of coolies hurried to and fro rrying the bags into the shed, and thence to the railway wagons, which stood in a ng line behind. THE CHRISTIAN HERALD g floated gracefully at the masthead.

The assembly was tremely picturesque. indus of several stes, Mahrattas and ujaratees, Parsees d Mohammedans, ingling with the soer-suited Europeans, id the native Chrisn and Parsee ladies their graceful cosmes pointing to a ne when all the womhood of India will be ee and enlightened. hile the ceremony as in progress, news at something unusuwas on spread to the ighboring popula-on, and a whole warm of the common ople perched themlves along the top of e pile of bags, forming a scene which milons in America would ve given much to e.

On the table before e chairman lay two lver dishes containg samples of the uito's cargo, salted nd parched in the merican style. This id been done the preous night by ladies the American Methlist and Alliance issions working in ombay. The corn this style was quite novelty, and was sted and pronounced .1." by most of the mpany. The native ntlemen were particularly struck with the size of the grains, which ere three times as large as the maize grown India.

As soon as John Pollen, Esq., LL.D., of the dian Civil Service, Commissioner of Cusms in the Bombay Presidency, had arrived id surveyed the scene, he took the chair, ving on his right hand the Honorable Mr. stice Candy, Acting Chief Justice at Bomy, the Governor's representative, and on is left, Captain David Baird, commander of e Quito. He opened the proceedings by calling on the Rev. R. M. Gray, minister of the Free hurch of Scotland, to lead in prayer. Mr. ray responded, acknowledging the divine ower and justice in the visitation of famine, id thanking God that he had stirred the heart Christian America to send this relief.

The Acting Chief Justice, appointed to repsent His Excellency, the Governor of Bomy (who was absent in Poona), was the first peaker. He read the following telegram sent y His Excellency to the committee:

"I hear steamer Quito, conveying America's ft of corn, has arrived in Bombay, and dere to offer you, as representing generous sympathizers in America, my warmest thanks for their magnificent contribution in aid of sufferers in India."

The Honorable Mr. Justice Candy left soon after to preside at the criminal sessions of the High Court, which were to begin that morning, and his place on Dr. Pollen's right hand was taken by the Honorable Mr. Chandavarkar, member of the Legislative Council.

The Rev. Richard Winsor followed Mr. Candy, and spoke of the gratification it was to him to be the bearer of such a gift. He said:

"It was my privilege to be a frequent visitor at the offices of THE CHRISTIAN HERALD, and to mention the great good the corn did in 1896-97, during the last famine, and speak of the present distress so widespread, and the great boon it would be to send more corn and money, of what the government was doing and the widespread want; other missionaries from India were also there and cablegraphic communications between Lord Curzon and Dr. Klopsch confirmed the representations made. The whole constituency of THE CHRISTIAN HERALD offices was at once in motion. To see the energy, interest and devotion there manifested was really an inspiration. THE CHRISTIAN HERALD went forth throughout the land, and hearts were moved to send in their offerings with the warmest and widespread sympathy. Here, then, is this magnificent ship-load of corn, brought to these shores through that grand paper, THE CHRISTIAN HERALD, the finest cargo of corn that ever sailed from the port of New York; and as representative of THE CHRISTIAN HERALD I make over to you, the Committee of Distribution, this corn, the gift of American Christians to the destitute in India.

"The Almighty must not be left out of the question, for his hand that moves in controlling the conditions that cause the earth to withhold her increase has touched the heart of the American people, binding the two nations, England and America, together, for purposes that history in the near future will clearly unfold."

The Rev. E. F. Frease, Presiding Elder of the Methodist Episcopal Church at Baroda, Gujarat, and Secretary and Treasurer of THE CHRISTIAN HERALD Famine Relief Fund, made an admirable address. In the name of the Committee he accepted the gift, describing it as the largest present ever carried in a single ship. He said that there were many agencies in America sending relief to the sufferers in India, but that in his deliberate opinion, after all said and done, THE CHRISTIAN HERALD had brought the needs of India before the people all over the United States, and had awakened the sympathies of the people with a result amazing to all acquainted with the facts. Speaking of the suitability of American corn for certain sections of the people of India, he said that when the Bheets in Gujarat saw the great American grains, they exclaimed, "Aray Kalee Mata," that is, "Oh, Goddess Kalee!" He said that, coming from the worst section of the famine region, he knew that the whole cargo of the Quito could be disposed of in Gujarat alone.

There was an impression in certain parts of India that American maize was not a staple food to be distributed in famine time. He would show that it was good food, and one which the people would gladly accept. His experience of the last famine convinced him that people liked the corn sent from America on that occasion, and he was certain it would be acceptable on the present occasion as well. American maize had become more and more widely known in this country; it was superior in flouring quality to Indian maize.

Hon. Mr. Karmarkar next spoke. He gracefully thanked Mr. Winsor, and the captain, officers, engineers, and crew of the Quito. He said:

On behalf of the Indian Christian community, I welcome most cordially the floating edition of THE CHRISTIAN HERALD. The innumerable articles in this edition will be prized very highly, for they will nourish the vital parts of the human organism. When I was in Gujarat, collecting famine children, I observed that corn was greatly appreciated by the people there. An Indian missionary lady disposed of hundreds of bags of corn to the hungry people, who came to her from various villages round Godhra. In that town I also saw grain merchants selling corn. Many missionaries and Indian Christians have been distributing popped corn to hundreds of famine-stricken people. Let me assure you, therefore, that this generous gift from the Christians of America will be greatly valued by my people. May the Lord bless the American nation an hundredfold for its handsome gift.

The Hon. Mr. Chandavarkar spoke with deep feeling and impressed the whole assembly. He is a member of the Governor's Council and one of the most distinguished Hindus in Western India. "Although not a Christian in the popular sense," he said, "I have diligently endeavored to obey the precepts of Christ; and when I have observed what the missionaries are doing in this country, I have said to myself and have told my friends that the spirit of Christ is alive. And now, as I learn here of the principles which prompted this gift of corn, I wish to express my appreciation in the name of all the people of India, and I shall tell my friends that they may set before them the example of Him who bore the sorrows of the world."

Chairman Pollen then made a most brilliant, grateful and complimentary speech. He spoke of the high appreciation of all classes, and said he had received a telegram from the Viceroy's private secretary. He said:

The good ship Quito has just arrived in the nick of time so as to supply the cultivators with food just between seed-time and harvest. It has not only brought grain, but also the most welcome rain, and we are grateful to it for its double cargo. There is a proverbial saying that no one should ever look a gift horse in the mouth. There are reasons, and good ones, for refraining from such inspection in the case of ordinary gift horses, but this particular gift horse cannot only be looked in the mouth with perfect satisfaction, but taken into the mouth with even greater appreciation. It consists of a splendid gift worthy of America, of the very best kind of two-year-old American grain. The Rev. Mr. Frease has alluded in his speech to the fact that I know that inhabitants of Panch Mahals and Gujarat will especially welcome this form of food. This is a fact, but I may add that though accustomed to maize, the Bhils will be simply lost in a maze at this splendid Indian food. They certainly can grow no maize like this on their own hillsides, hence this amazement. It is now my duty to express to the givers the gratitude of a grateful people, for that the Indians are a grateful people no one can justly deny. I speak with considerable experience and I declare that, speaking generally, the people of India are always deeply grateful for even little acts of kindness, and what must they feel in return for this great act of kindness on the part of Christian America you can readily conceive. In the name then, of all present, in the name of the people of India, and especially the famine-stricken and severely tried millions of this presidency, I thank you all most heartily for this splendid gift dictated by the purest motives of Christian love and large-hearted philanthrophy. I have high authority for stating that it is more blessed to give than to receive, and that charity like mercy conveys a double blessing, and blesses him who gives as well as him who takes. May this charity have reflective action on Christian America and bless it as it deserves. Charity such as this helps to the union of the two flags—the Union Jack and the Stars and the Stripes by bringing about a union of hearts—the thing really symbolized by the union of flags.

THE CEREMONY OF "SAMPLING THE CARGO" ON THE "QUITO'S" DOCK, BOMBAY

Before Chairman Pollen are two silver dishes containing corn, salted and parched. Around him are missionaries, officials and native dignitaries.

Mr. Fee, United States Consul at Bombay, replied briefly. He said: "Telegraphic communications had passed between Dr. Klopsch and Lord Curzon as to the form which the gift fom America should take, and the Viceroy expressed his concurrence with the idea that a cargo of corn would be very acceptable, and the sympathy of America would be widely appreciated. Now they have the corn here. There were five thousand tons of it freely given, and if the need existed America would send as much more."

Captain Baird, the commander of the Quito, briefly thanked the assembled company for its evidences of good-will.

The addresses were all of the highest order, and throughout breathed the spirit of profoundest gratitude for, and highest appreciation of, the work of THE CHRISTIAN HERALD and the generous donors. Mention of the action of the United States Government in paying the charter of the vessel was greeted enthusiastically. As a whole, the demonstration was one that Bombay will long remember.

Around the World with Josiah Allen's Wife

COPYRIGHT, 1899, BY MARIETTA HOLLEY

CHAPTER XXXVI.

ILLUSTRATIONS BY H. M. PETTIT

Samantha in Sunny Italy

"I LOOKED FULL IN HIS FACE"

IN the centre of the city of Milan is an artificial lake where the Milanise dearly love to go out in beautiful pleasure yots, and in the winter it serves for a skating rink. Milan is noted for its charitable institutions, which owns property to the amount of forty or fifty millions; it is a honor to her. It has flourishing colleges, lyceums, observatories, gymnasiums, famous libraries, institutes and schools of all kinds, and the Academy of Fine Arts is celebrated all over the world. It has a beautiful triumphal arch, begun in 1807 and finished in 1838. They take their own time, them old Milanise do, but when their work is done, it is done.

Josiah thought most probable they worked by the day. Sez he, "Men are most always more shiftless when you pay by the day."

It has very fine public gardens, and one day we went to the Campo Santo. It is a beautiful spot: they say it has the finest sculpture and statuary in the world. We spent some time wandering around, resting our eyes on the beautiful marble forms on every side.

They wuz a quiet crowd, too; jest as calm and silent as them they kep' watch over.

Some of the most celebrated pictures in the world are to be seen in the picture galleries at Milan, the Marriage of Mary and Joseph, by Raphael, is considered the most valuable. We went to see the fresco of the Lord's Supper, by Leonardo da Vinci, on the walls of an old convent. But the wall is crumbled and the picture is faded and worn; besides artists have tried to retouch it with just about as much success as Josiah would have if he undertook to paint the sky indigo blue, or Ury tried to improve a white lily with a coat of whitewash. But we loved to look on it for what it wuz before Time's hand had laid so heavy on it and artists had tried to protect it.

We wuz in Milan over Sunday and so we went to the Cathedral to service, and agin I realized its marvelous beauty and magnitude. Its ruff is supported by fifty-two columns, and it has eight thousand life-sized statutes inside and outside, plenty enough for comfort even if it wuz over-fond of statutes.

The Lazaretto, once used as a plague hospital, is now used as an apartment-house for the poor; it has one thousand two-roomed apartments in it, a city in itself.

The Discomforts of Iron Crowns

Napoleon, ambitious creeter! wuz crowned king of Italy in Milan. And I guess old Charlemaigne himself wuz, 'tennyrate a good many kings here had the iron crown set on their forwards. I d'no what made 'em have iron crowns, though Josiah said it would be real handy sometimes. He said if a king wuz in a hurry, and you know they are sometimes in a dretful hurry to be crowned before their heads are took off, it would be real handy, for they could take the rim to a stove griddle, and stand up some velvet pints on it and it would fit most any head. He also spoke of a coal-scuttie.

But I said that I guessed they used iron to show that crowns are so heavy and bore down on their heads so.

We visited Lake Como, Dorothy specially wantin' to see the palace of Carlotta. Poor, broken-hearted Carlotta, whose mind and happiness wuz destroyed by the shot that put an end to Maximilian's brave, misguided life.

Poor Maximilian! poor Carlotta! victims of the foolish ambitions of an empress, so they say. I wuz glad to throw the blossom of a pitying thought onto their memory as I passed her house, opposite Belajio, thinkin' that it wuz befittin' a American to do so. Tears stood in Dorothy's eyes as we recalled the sad tragedy.

Lake Como deserves all that has been said of it, and more too. The slopes of the mountains are dotted with vineyards, hamlets and beautiful villas. And we see many little cabins where the familys of organ-grinders live. Mebby the wife and children lived here of some swarthy creeter that I've fed offen my own back steps in Jonesville for grindin' out music for the children.

It is only a journey of eight hours from Milan to Venice, and Verona is about half way. And it is almost like travelin' through a mulberry grove. The valley of Lombardy is a silk-producing country and the diet of silkworms is mulberry leaves and the trees also serve as handsome props to the grape vines that hang from tree to tree.

Fur off, like cold, sad thoughts that will come in warm happy hearts, we see the snow-capped mountains, and bime by it grew so cold that we wuz glad and grateful when we had cans of hot water handed to us at the station.

Josiah thought they wuz full of hot coffee and proposed to once that we should take some to meetin' with us in Jonesville to warm our feet. Sez he. "How delightful it would be, Samantha, to take a good drink of hot coffee in meetin'."

"Yes," sez I, "it would look nice to be drinkin' in meetin'."

"Oh," sez he, "I mean to do it sly: I could scrooch down and pretend to be fixin' my shues." But it proved to be nothin' but hot water in the cans, but real comfortable to our feet. And the mulberry groves put Josiah in mind of another innovation that might be made in Jonesville ways.

Josiah on Caterpillars

Sez he, "These silk raisers git rich as mud and jest see the number of caterpillars we have to hum; they might jest as well be put to work on sunthin' that will pay as to be eatin' up young squashes and cowcumbers for us to plant over."

Sez he, "their work is worse than wasted on us."

Sez I, "These silkworms hain't like our caterpillars, Josiah."

"Well, they may make silk of a different color, but who cares for that when diamond dyes are so cheap, and if we wanted red silk we could try feedin' 'em on red stuff, beets, and red russets and such. Why," sez he, "with Ury's help I could start a caterpillar bizness that would be the makin' of me. And oh, how I would love to robe your figger, Samantha, in silk from my own caterpillars."

"Well, well," sez I, "let's not look ahead too much." Sez I, "Look there up the mountain side and see the different shades of green foliage and see what pretty little houses that are sot there and see that lovely little village down in the valley."

So I got his mind off. The costooms of the peasant wimmen are very pretty, a black bodice over a white chemise with short full sleeves and bright colored shirts and hat trimmed with long gay ribbons.

The men wear short, black trousers, open jackets and gay sashes, broad brimmed white hats with long blue ribbons streamin' down. Josiah sez to me admirin'ly, "How such a costoom would brighten up our corn field if I and Ury appeared in 'em."

Sez I, "Ury would git his sash and hat ribbons all twisted up in his hoe handle the first thing."

"They might be looped up," sez Josiah, "with rosettes."

We read about travel being a great educator, and truly believe that no tourist ever had any more idees about graftin' foreign customs onto everyday life at home than Josiah Allen did. Now at Lake Como where we see washerwomen at their work. They stood in the water with their skirts rolled up to their knees, but they still had on their white chemisettes and black bodices laced over them and pretty white caps trimmed with gay ribbins.

A Novel Suggestion

And Josiah sez, "What a happy day it would be for me and Ury if we could see you and Philury dressed like that for the wash-tub; it would brighten the gloom of Monday considerable."

Well, they did look pretty and I d'no but they could wash the clothes jest as clean after they got used to it, but I shouldn't encourage Philury to dress up so wash-days.

And it wuz jest so when we see on Lake Como its swarms of pleasure gondolas glidin hither and yon with the dark eyed Italian ladies in bright colored costooms and black lace mantillys thrown over their pretty heads and fastened with coral pins, and the gondoliers in gay attire keepin time to the oars with their melogious voices. Josiah whispered to me:

"What a show it would make in Jonesville, Samantha, to see you and me in a gondola on the mill-dam, with long, pale blue ribbins tied round my best beaver hat and you with Mother Allen's long, black lace veil that fell onto you, thrown gracefuI over your head, and both of us singin 'Balermy' or 'Coronation.' How uneek it would be!"

"Yes," sez I, "it would be uneek, uneeker than will ever come to pass."

Copyright, 1900, by Louis Klopsch, N. Y.

FUR OFF . . . WE SEE THE SNOW-CAPPED MOUNTAINS

"Well, I d'no," sez he, "Ury and me could make a crackin' good gondola out of the old stun boat, kinder hist it up in front and whittle out a head on it and a neck come like an old gander's. We could take Old High Horns for a model, and we could make good oars out of old fish-poles and broom-handles, and you own a veil, and blue streamers don't cost much—nothin' henders us from showin' off in that way but your obstinate sperit."

But I sez, "I shall never appear in that panoramy, never."

"Oh, well," sez he, gayly, "Jonesville has other females beside you more tractable and more genteel. Most probable Sister Celestine Bobbett and she that wuz Submit Tewksberry would love to float in a gondola by the side of one of Jonesville's leadin' men."

Samantha Gives Warning

I looked full in his face and sez, "Has foreign travel shook your morals till they begin to tottle? Have I got to see a back-slidden Josiah?"

Sez he, real earnest, "You are the choice of my youth, the joy of my prime of life."

"Well, then," sez I, "shet up!" I wuz out of patience with his giddy idees, and wouldn't brook 'em.

We laid out to go from Milan to Genoa till we changed our plans. I thought it wuzn't no more'n right that we should pay Columbus that honor, for I always wondered, and spoze always shall, what would have become of us if we hadn't been discovered. I spoze we should have got along some way, but it wouldn't have been nigh so handy for us. I presoom mebby Josiah and I would have been war-whoopin' and livin' in tepees and eatin' dogs, though it don't seem to me that any colored skin I might have could have made it a fair seen, and "Jocund day stood tip-toe on the mountain tops."

But to sweet Dorothy and me, and I guess to the most of us, it wuz interestin' because Juliet Montague, she that wuz Juliet Capulet, once lived here. I spoke on't to Josiah, but he sez:

"The widder Montague; I don't remember her. Is she any relation of old Ike Montague of North Loontown?"

But I sez: "She wuzn't a widder for any length of time. She died of love and so did her pardner, Romeo Montague."

Well, said Josiah, "that shows they wuz both sap heads. If they had lived on for a spell they would got bravely over that, and had more good horse sense."

Well, I spoze worldlings might mock at their love and their sad doings, but to me the air wuz full of romance and sadness and the presence of Juliet and Romeo.

The house where she once lived wuz a not over big house of brick, no bigger nor better than Bildad Henzy's over in Zoar, and looked some like it.

Josiah said it wuz so silly to poke clear over to Italy to see this little narrer house when we could see better ones to home any day.

Miss Meechim said that it didn't look so genteel as she expected, and Arvilly made a slightin' remark about it.

But Robert Strong said kinderlow, "He laughs at scars who never felt a wound." His eyes made me relish Snip either in a stew or briled. That dog is most human.

I always felt real grateful to Columbus and knowed he hadn't been used as he ort to be. And then Mother Smith left me a work-bag, most new, made of Genoa velvet, and I awfully wanted to git a little piece more to put with it so's I could make a bunnet out of it. But Dorothy wanted to see Verona and her wish wuz law to the head of our party, and when the head of a procession turns down a road, the rest of the procession must foller on in order to look worth a cent. Miss Meechim said that it wuz on her account that he favored Dorothy so. But it wuzn't no such thing and anybody could see different if their eyes wuzn't blinded with self-conceit and egotism. But take them two together and there is no blinders equal to 'em. They go fur ahead of the old mair's, and hern are made of thick leather.

Well, Robert thought we had better go on to Venice, stopping at Verona on the way and so on to Naples, and then on our way back we could stop at Genoa, and we all give up that it wuz the best way.

I always liked the name of Verona. Miss Ichabod Larmuth named her twins Vernum and Verona. I thought it would be a real delicate attention to her to stop there, specially as we could visit Genoa afterwards.

Well, havin' such a pretty name I felt that Verona would be a real pretty place, and it wuz. A swift flowing river runs through the town and the view from all sides is beautiful. The fur off blue mountains, the environin' hills, the green valleys dotted with village and hamlet, wuz on Dorothy's sweet face as he spoke.

And in her soft eyes as she looked at him I could almost see the meaning of Juliet's vow, "To follow thee, my lord, throughout the world."

We didn't go to Friar Laurence's cell where Mr. and Miss Romeo Montague wuz married and passed away, not knowin' exactly where it wuz, old Elder Laurence havin' passed away some time ago, but we did go to the place they call her tomb; we rung a bell in the iron gate, paid a little fee, and was led by the hired girl who opened the gate to the place where they say she is buried. But I d'no as this is her tomb or not; I didn't seem to feel that it wuz, 'tennyrate the tomb don't look much like what her pa said he would raise above 'em:

As to Romeo and Juliet

"A statue of pure gold; that while Verona by that name is known, there shall no figure at such rate be set as that of true and faithful Juliet." Josiah not havin' come up to the mark in the way of sentiment at the house of Capulet, overdid the matter here; he took out his bandanna, and after flourishing it enough to draw everybody's attention to it, pressed it to his eyes and sort o' sithed.

But I doubted his grief, though he made such elaborate preparations for it, and I told him so afterwards. He acted real puggicky and sez:

"Can't I ever please you, Samantha? At the widder Montague's Pa's you thought I wuzn't sentimental enough, and I thought you would be tickled enough to have me shed tears at her tomb."

"Did you shed tears, Josiah?" sez I.

But he waved the question off and continued, "The guide told me that folks usually wep' some there, and I expected you all would, you are all so romantick and took up with the widder Montague and her pardner. I took the lead but none of you followed on."

Josiah Scorns Romance

"Well," sez I, "if you felt like weepin', Josiah, I wouldn't want to break it up, but to me it looked fur more like a waterin' trough than it did like a tomb."

"Well, you know how it is in the older part of the Jonesville buryin'-ground, the stuns are all tipped over and broke. Mr. and Miss Capulet have been dead for some time and probable the grave stuns have gone down."

Well, bein' kinder rousted up on the subject, I quoted considerable poetry about Romeo and Juliet, and Josiah bein' kinder huffy and naterally hatin' poetry, and real hungry, too, scorfed at and made light on me. He kep' it up till I sez:

"William Shakespeare said there wuz Two Gentlemen of Verona, and I should be glad, Josiah Allen, to think you made the third one; but a true gentleman wouldn't make light of his pardner or slight her reminiscences."

Sez he: "Reminescin' on a empty stomach is deprestin', and don't set well."

Well, it had been some time sence we had eat, and Tommy wuz gittin' hungry, too, so we returned to the tarven.

In the afternoon we went to see the old Roman amphitheatre. It wuz probably built not fur from A.D. Jest think on't! Most two thousand years old, and in pretty good shape yet! It is marble, and could accommodate twenty thousand people. All round and under it is a arch, where I spoze the poor condemned prisoners wuz kep' and the wild beasts that wuz to fight with 'em and kill 'em for the pleasure of the populace. Miss Meechim got dretful worked up seein' it, and she and Arvilly had words, comparin' old times and new, and the different wild beasts they encourage and let loose on the public. Arvilly's views, tinged and shadowed as they always are, by what she's went through, they both got mad as hens before they got through.

There are ruins of a large aqeduct near, which wuz flooded with water, I spoze, for aquatic sports way back, mebby back to Anna D, or before her. Some say that early Christians were put to death in this amphitheatre, but it hain't very clearly proved.

Well, we only stayed one day at Verona, and the next day we hastened on to Venice. (To be Continued).

"JOSIAH TOOK OUT HIS BANDANNA"

"WE VISITED LAKE COMO"

"TAKE THEM TWO TOGETHER," SEZ I

Copyright, 1900, by Louis Klopsch, N. Y.

Rev. Dr. Talmage in Russia

HE AGAIN MEETS THE CZAR AND ENJOYS A PLEASANT INTERVIEW

IN a cablegram to THE CHRISTIAN HERALD, from Moscow, Russia, our editor, Rev. Dr. Talmage, relates an interesting episode during his visit to St. Petersburg. His dispatch says:

"Since arriving in Russia I have had the honor of three interviews with royalty—i. e., with the Emperor, the Empress, and Dowager Empress. I found the Emperor in the enjoyment of splendid health physically. He told me that Russia is at peace with all the world, notwithstanding the present troubles in China.

"He expressed the greatest interest in our coming Presidential election, and talked as one who was a close observer of American events. A pleasant incident of our conversation was when, apropos of the prevailing famine in India, he recalled the great distress in Russia in 1892, and said that he could never forget the kindness of America in sending relief on that occasion—referring to the shipment of food on the Leo, which was the cause of my first visit to St. Petersburg.

"The Czar is a man of 5 feet 10 inches in stature, of blond complexion, and full of animation. His Majesty told me that he is thirty-two years old, but he does not look twenty-five.

"Among other matters of conversation the Hague Peace Convention was mentioned, and the Emperor said he believed that good results would yet come of that gathering.

"'How many things have happened since we last met,' he observed with a reminiscent smile. He mentioned the Spanish-American war, and without hesitancy called the names of our most distinguished naval and military heroes. He spoke cordially of the international friendship that has existed between the two countries, and mentioned, in illustration, the presence of the Russian fleets in the harbors of New York and San Francisco during the Civil War, for the purpose of protecting us from possible interference by foreign nations. Indeed, all through his conversation the tone of international amity was strongly present.

"The Empress is slightly taller than her husband and radiantly beautiful. She expresses her opinions without reserve. The Dowager Empress does not look a day older than when I last saw her. She smilingly reminded me of the flowers which she sent my family when I was in Russia eight years ago and indicated the spot where she had then stood with her children.

"Her beautiful eyes filled with tears and her voice trembled as she referred to the loss of her husband, her son and her mother."

It is expected that Dr. Talmage will sail from Liverpool for New York about October 17th.

Answered Prayers

Reader, Oxford, N. Y., writes: "I prayed for my mother, who was very ill, promising, if my prayers were answered, to acknowledge the same in THE CHRISTIAN HERALD. My mother recovered, and I now write to redeem my promise."

An Idol Temple Given

The Salvation Army has received the offer of an idol temple in the village of Peyoodoo, India, for use as officers' quarters and for the holding of services.

THE CHRISTIAN HERALD

LOUIS KLOPSCH, PROPRIETOR

T. DeWitt Talmage
EDITOR.

B. J. FERNIE AND G. H. SANDISON.
Associate Editors

The Christian Herald is published every Wednesday. The subscription price is $1.50 per year, payable in advance.

Subscriptions may commence with any issue.

Remittances should always be made in the safest manner available to the remitter. Post-office and Express Money Orders are always safe and may be sent at our own risk.

Register your letters when you remit by cash.

Foreign Postage.—For each copy to be mailed outside the United States, the Canadas, and Mexico, foreign postage at the rate of one dollar a year should be added to the regular subscription price.

Renewals.—It is always best to renew two weeks before the date on your wrapper, to ensure uninterrupted service.

Back Numbers.—We cannot undertake to supply back numbers, nor to make good omissions caused by tardy renewals.

Change of Date.—It takes two weeks to change the date, after your subscription is renewed.

Expiration of subscriptions. The date on the wrapper indicates when your paper will be stopped unless promptly renewed.

Change of Address.—Always give both your old and your new address when you ask us to change your address.

The Name of your Post-office and of the State you live in should always follow your own name when writing to this office. We cannot find your name on our books unless this is done.

The Christian Herald will not be responsible for the return of unsolicited manuscripts forwarded to it with a view to publication.

Letters should be addressed

THE CHRISTIAN HERALD,
Bible House, New York City.

Entered at the Post office at New York, as Second-class Matter

Gospel Democracy

LET every man have just what he achieves. There ought to be an aristocracy—not one built upon the accidents of wealth or celebrated ancestry, but an aristocracy of industry and of large-hearted deeds. Meanwhile, let it be understood that sceptre and shovel are brothers. Cathedral must not look down upon sailor's Bethel. The whole Gospel tendency is to bring together what are called the higher and lower classes. Christ came from the throne to a manger to bridge the distance between the two: and this idea of the nineteenth century, which would put the rich in churches by themselves, and the poor in churches by themselves, is an erroneous, unevangelical, heathenish, god-defying plan.

Avoid the Peril

THERE is one word that has dragged down more people into bankruptcy and state prison and perdition than any other word in the commercial world, and that is the word "borrow." That word is responsible for nearly all the defalcations and embezzlements and financial consternations of the last few years. When an executor takes money out of a large estate to speculate with it, he does not purloin it; he only "borrows." When some man of large financial institution, through flaming advertisement in some religious paper or gilt-edged certificate, gets country people to put their money into some enterprise for carrying on an undeveloped nothing, it is not fraud; he only "borrows." When a young man having easy access to a money drawer, or a confidential clerk having easy access to the books, takes a certain amount of money and with it makes a Wall Street excursion, he is going to put it back, he is going to put it all back, he is going to put it back pretty soon; he only "borrows." What is needed is some one with giant limb to stand at the curbstone at the foot of Trinity Church and at the head of Wall Street, and when that word "borrow" comes bounding along, kick it clear to Wall Street Ferry; and if it strike the deck of the ferry-boat and bound clear over to Brooklyn Heights and Brooklyn Hill, all the better for the City of Churches. Why, when you are going to do wrong, pronounce in such hot weather so long a word as the word "borrow," a word of six letters, when you can get a short word, a word more accurate, a word more descriptive of the reality, a word of five letters—the word "steal"?

It is high time that people learn that it is death to borrow for speculative purposes. We all sometimes borrow. We borrow legitimately, and we borrow with the divine favor. Christ, in his sermon on the mount, enjoined: "From him that would borrow of thee, turn not thou away." A young man borrows money to get his education; all right. A man purchases a property and cannot pay all down in cash, and rightly borrows on mortgage. There are crises in business when it would be wrong not to borrow. But here is a warning: Never speculate on borrowed money—not a dollar, not a cent, not a farthing.

Benediction of Flowers

ON this summer morning the aroma of the garden almost bewilders my senses. Flowers seem to me the dividing-line between the physical and the spiritual. The stamen of the honeysuckle is the alabaster pillar at which the terrestrial and the celestial part and meet. Out of the cup of the water-lily earth and heaven drink. May the blessing of larkspur and sweet-william fall upon all dwellers in country and town! Let there be some one to set a tuft of mignonette by every sick man's pillow, and plant a fuchia in every workingman's yard, and place a geranium in every sewing-girl's window, and twine a cypress about every poor man's grave. And above all may there come upon us the blessing of him whose footsteps the mosses mark, and whose breath is the redolence of flowers! Between these leaves I press thee, O "Lily of the Valley!"

The Strength of Silence

SILENCE was never written down, for it expresses emotions of love, joy, sorrow, grief, etc., that have reached heights and depths beyond the power of words. And we are told that even heavenly language may fail to express heavenly feeling; for among the angels there was silence at the opening of the seventh seal and the presentation of "the prayers of all saints upon the golden altar which was before the throne" (Rev. 8: 3). This is that "prayer of union" which the soul longs after but too rarely reaches—when it enters the cloud with Moses, goes into the vast solitude of the Divinity, sees and hears and feels unutterable things, and is penetrated with an unspeakable, sweet sensation of God's love for her.

"Let thy soul walk softly here,
As a saint in heaven unshod;
For to be alone with Silence
Is to be alone with God."

Silence is not only the highest expression of feeling, it is also a great strength. Solomon makes it the mark of a fool, when a man "uttereth all his mind"; and many a brilliant reputation has been ruined by an open mouth. Silent men commit no blunders; for the brain works while the tongue is at rest.

Silence is the divinest wisdom; and the silences of Scripture are so golden that they furnish us with internal evidences for our faith that are better than facts or arguments; being so evidently the divine foresight of him who saw the end from the beginning. These divine silences abound all through the Scriptures, but in the present paper I shall only notice those in connection with the life of Christ.

First, there is the silence in regard to the exact time of his birth. Dr. Adam Clarke says it has been placed in every month of the year; and though Pope Julius fixed it on the 25th of December because, as the sun then begins to return to the northern tropics, so Christ was the emblem of returning life and light. But the spring and summer of one-half the globe are the autumn and winter of th other half; so this reason only answers fo one-half of Christendom.

Why did not the apostles tell us the exac date? They must have known it; and the were not too illiterate to know the importanc of dates. If they had written the Gospels a mere men, this would have been the very firs fact noted. It was not indifference. Nothin in that dear life could be indifferent to th men who had walked by the way, and sa with him at meat, and who loved their Lor even unto prison and to death. No, this silenc is of God, not man. He knew the tendenc of men to observe "times and seasons," an the new dispensation was not to be ritualisti but spiritual. This silence is the more remark able when we consider that no dates are give of any of the great events connected with th rise of Christianity, except the resurrectio morning, which is the central point of our faitl

The silence in regard to the early years o our Lord strikes every one as remarkabl Mary in her age lived with John, and he mus have heard all that the mother had "laid up i her heart." Yet John passes by the entire fan ily life of Christ, and includes the whole firs thirty years in the single sentence, "Th Word was made flesh, and dwelt among us."

How could the four evangelists write fou different narratives and be silent about thos thirty years? Time has interpreted this s lence, and shown the wisdom of it. We hav only to go into the churches, houses, streets o Roman Catholic countries, to see how the wo ship of the Child prevails over the worship o the God-man. If Mary's recollections had bee added to the one incident we have of Christ' youth, how would superstitions have accumu lated, and the spiritual been overlaid by th human!

Another silence still more wonderful a tends the life of Christ—our ignorance as t his personal appearance. What memorial the evangelists have given us of his majesti wisdom, his calm self-possession, his patience his loving, self-sacrificing heart! But who ha told us anything of the figure, complexion eyes, features, voice or manner of him wh was "fairer than all the children of men?"

This silence is also quite contrary to th practice of the writers of the Greek and Ro man world. Plato gives us such a perfect de scription of Socrates—his bald head, his fla nose, his thick lips, prominent eyes, round robust figure, homely dress, and bare feet— that we see the man as he paced the street and highways of Attica twenty-four centuries ago. The evangelists could have describe perfectly the outward appearance of him wh spoke as never man did; but herein their nar ratives are a blank. There is even only on allusion (that I recall) to our Lord's manner 'These words spake Jesus and lifted up hi eyes to heaven" (John 17: 1). Six times in si chapters John tells us he is the disciple whom Jesus loved, and yet no word describing tha dear Presence in its mortal aspect. Two o his disciples met him after his resurrection, and he walked and talked with them until thei hearts burned; but they leave us no word a to his appearance. This silence is the mor suggestive because it is also after the manne of the Old Testament, which says nothing o the bodily presence of its worthies. Of Abra ham, Moses, David, Elijah, etc., etc., we have no pen picture; so that there is a succession of thirty writers, extending over twenty-eigh hundred years, all observing the same reticence on matters treated by human biographers with elaborate diffuseness and interest.

This expressive silence is the veiling of the Christian Shekinah. Alford in his note on John 4: 24, says: "The Word became one flesh with us, that we might become one in spirit with him." This would have been de feated by too full details of his humanity, o by making any other use of that humanity than to raise our spiritual ideal of God. The tendency in all ages has been for men to make a god of any striking object, either in humani ty or nature; and visible presentiments of Christ and of Scripture worthies would have dragged down Christianity from its lofty spir itual character to heathenism with a manifest image and sacrifice.

There is something between God and man more than talk—it is a reverent silence full of holy thoughts and desires. To think much to let our words be few! What protection! What strength! What wisdom is here!—if only we guard well our thoughts, remember ing that our thoughts are heard in heaven—each soul saying for itself,

"Let my soul walk softly here,
As a saint in heaven unshod;
For to be alone with Silence
Is to be alone with God."

Amelia E. Barr

Our India Orphan Roll of Honor

AMERICA'S great heart is now being stirred to its depths by the appeal for the destitute famine orphans of India. Fully 500,000 of these helpless little ones are thrown homeless and friendless upon the world, and must perish like their parents, unless the men and women of Christendom reach out to save them. The first fruits of THE CHRISTIAN HERALD'S appeal are given below:

—THE FIRST ORPHAN BOY was taken by Rev. W. J. Peck, New York, to be educated for the ministry in a Congregational mission.

—THE TWO FIRST LITTLE ORPHAN GIRLS were taken by two girls, Ethel Beatrice Barnard and Mamie Georgia Barnard, of the Grace M. E. Sabbath School, of Buffalo, N. Y. These little girls are saving five cents a day for the support and education of their little orphans in a Methodist mission.

—The Epworth League of the M.E. Church, of Catharine, N. Y., F. Belle Lyon, secretary, assumes the support of ONE ORPHAN.

—Three people of Reedsburg, Wis., per W. F. Seymour, give five dollars each for the support of ONE ORPHAN in a Methodist mission.

—The Epworth League of the M.E. Church of Ellensburg, N. Y., Jerome Hammond, secretary, "assume care of ONE ORPHAN CHILD."

—The Young People's Society of the Second Avenue Baptist Church, New York, through Miss Grace E. McConnell, have sent money for the support of ONE ORPHAN CHILD in the mission of the Baptists in India.

—A letter from Monroe, La., with enclosure for support of ONE ORPHAN CHILD, had the signature "Unnamed."

—A Sabbath School class of boys in the Union Sabbath School of Lampeter, Pa., have taken ONE ORPHAN BOY.

—The members of the Women's Home and Foreign Mission Society of the Advent Christian Denomination, of Rockland, Me., Mrs. Sarah K. Taylor, secretary, join in caring for ONE HUNDRED ORPHANS—the first hundred to be taken.

—Ethel G. Carson, a little girl eight years of age, of Hendersonville, North Carolina, sends one dollar toward the care of AN ORPHAN.

—Mrs. F. C. Terry, Elizabeth, N. J., sends three dollars for ONE ORPHAN.

—Ella Reidy, of Wallaceton, Pa., wishes to adopt and give her own name to AN ORPHAN GIRL, who is to be cared for by a Baptist missionary.

THE CHRISTIAN HERALD has arranged with our good missionaries in India a plan whereby any of our readers may adopt a famine orphan in India and be put in personal and regular communication with the little protege, thus enabling the donor to have a direct, personal, living interest in the object of his or her benevolence. Send your name and address (with your denominational preference) to

INDIA FAMINE ORPHAN RELIEF WORK,
Care of THE CHRISTIAN HERALD, 92 BIBLE HOUSE, NEW YORK CITY

Send also your first contribution toward the support of your protege. As the annual cost of supporting an orphan is $15, you may remit either a quarter's, half year's or whole year's contribution in advance, as you may decide. The names of all who respond favorably to this appeal will appear on the "India Orphan Roll of Honor," to be published from week to week.

CONNECTICUT

Adams, Eleanor .. 50
Aldrich, Mrs F A 05
Aldrich, Fred 10
Allen, Mr & Mrs W C 1 00
Anderson, Anna.. 25
Anthony, E M... 5 00
Armstrong, M S.. 2 00
Arnold, Eleanor.. 50
Atwater, F C.... 2 00
Atwater, Henry..10 00
Avery, Geo 51
Avery, Lily 90
Axelson, Arthur.. 21
Axelson, Olaf ... 15
Bartram, H L.... 2 00
Batley, Mrs F.... 1 00
Benedict, C A, (M D) 1 00
Bennett, Lula M. 05
Bolles, Mrs L A. 1 00
Bottonce, Mrs E.. 1 00
Bradley, Miss C M 2 00
Bradley, Gertie.. 1 00
Bradbury, Nellie.. 50
Brewster, B F... 2 00
Bride, Mrs 50
Brown, Albert .. 1 55
Brown, Mrs A S.. 5 00
Brown, Randall .. 1 00
Buck, J C..... 1 00
Buck, Mrs J C... 5 00
Buck, Kenneth .. 1 50
Burrows, Benj.... 5 00
Bushwell, Mrs H B 1 00
Cadwell, Chas K. 1 00
Camp, Mrs J..... 50
Camp, N P..... 1 00
Camphere, W H.. 2 00
Carlson, Albert... 10
Carlson, Anna .. 10
Carlson, Rose 05
Catlin, Mrs S L.. 5 00
Chapman, Mrs M 1 00
Clift, Will 50
Coates, Miss Mary 2 00
Comstock, Mrs... 50
Connally, M 50
Cook, Albert S... 2 00
Cooley, F R.....25 00
Corson, Wm R C25 00
Costello, Jennie.. 05
Cottrell, N 1 00
Crockett, D T.... 1 00
Curtis, Mary 60
Curtis, Mabred .. 60
Daggett, Mary J 20 00
Darbie, Marjorie. 25
Darbie, M A..... 1 00
Darbie, Mrs M A 25
Darbie, R A..... 25
De Forest, J E.. 1 00
Denison, Mr & Mrs D B 5 00
Denison, Fred ... 1 00
Dey, Miss E M.. 2 00
Elliott, C B..... 25
Ellis, Geo W..... 1 00
Ericson, Mrs 10
Evans, E D..... 2 00
Fish, Mrs H..... 2 00
Fish, Miss Susan. 1 00
Fletcher, B 2 00
Ford, S & M.... 1 50
Fyler, Abbie S & Friends 2 00
Garvie, Lily 1 00
Geddes, Miss A J 3 00
Goodwin, Mrs C S10 00
Griffin, Belle 1 25
Griswold, S E.... 1 00
Guernsey, L M... 2 00
Hawley, Mar & Ed 2 00
Henderson, Alice. 37
Hokanson, Anna.. 05
Hogan, Mrs J.... 05
Hollister, Geo ... 5 14
Hoxie, John 1 00
Hungerford, Mrs M L 7 56
Huntington, Jno T10 00
Hutchinson, A ... 25
Hutchinson, T ... 25
Hyde, E A..... 1 00
Hyde, Elsie 10
Hyde, Burdon ... 75
Hyde, T R, Jr.... 5 00
Hyde, T R, 3d.... 07
Ives, Mrs Levi... 2 00
Janson, B 1 00
Jepson, B 2 00
Jones, May 10
Klug, Mrs C..... 1 00
Lamb, Mrs C W. 2 00
Lamb, Nettie A.. 10
Langdon, Chas S.10 00
Latham, Mrs C... 5 00
Lawrence, R B... 1 00
Lester, Mrs C H.. 50
Lewis, Mrs J E. 3 00
Lewis, R B..... 36
Lewis, W C..... 3 00
Lineburgh, W G. 1 00
Lineburgh, Mr & Mrs W G, Jr... 2 00
Loucke, Mrs E... 1 00
Loveland, B 50
Lucas, Lottie ... 1 00
Lyman, Mrs J T. 5 00
McLean's, M Sch. 1 55
Mansfield, E 2 00
Maryatt, Mrs F A 1 00
Mason, Wm 5 00
Maynard, Mrs L. 1 00
Mellen, Moses ... 2 00
Messenger, Don.. 50
Messenger, F M.. 4 73
Messenger, Harry 20
Messenger, Mabel 50
Messenger, Marion 10
Mills, L H..... 5 00
Miner, Frank S.. 5 00
Miner, H 1 00
Morgan, Mrs F.. 5 00
Morgan, Forest.. 5 00
Moseley, Isabelle. 1 00
Neal, C A..... 1 00
Newbury, Mrs C E 2 00
Newbury, T H.... 1 00
Newkirk, Julia A. 5 00
Newton, E H.... 1 00
Nichols, James... 2 00
Norberry, Mr & Mrs Jno 75
Ockels, Mrs H & children 2 00
Packer, Mrs Thos. 1 00
Park, Carrie 1 00
Phillips, F I..... 1 00
Pitkin, Mrs A P. 2 00
Pope, Theo..... 10 00
Potter, C A..... 25
Potter, Floyd 1 35
Pratt, Mrs J C.. 4 00
Prentice, Elisa .. 2 00
Prentiss, Mrs M R 1 00
Putney, U 10
Rathbun, A 5 00
Redfield, Mrs H A 100 00
Reed, M E..... 1 00
Richards, A 10 00
Riggs, Mr & Mrs W G 2 00
Roberts, Frank S 2 00
Robinson, F W... 2 00
Robinson, Geo ... 1 00
Rogers, Mrs G M 1 00
Ross, Mrs C..... 2 00
Sanduson, R 2 00
Sanford, E L..... 2 00
Sawyer, Mrs J N. 2 00
Scranton, Lucy S. 1 00
Seymour, Mrs E C, Coll by..... 3 00
Sheehan, W 1 00
Shirley, Mrs 25
Silliman, C 1 00
Skow, P 1 00
Slack, A E..... 1 00
Smith, Mr C..... 1 00
Smith, Deacon ... 1 00
Smith, Frank A.. 5 00
Smith, Miss Josie 25
Smith, Miss M... 25
Soenson, Carl ... 03
Stackey, L H.... 5 00
Stoddard, L 16
Stone, Lucy A & J K, Raymond & P Chamberlin 2 25
Stone, Mrs Sarah. 10
Swanson, Alice .. 25
Swanson, Ida 10
Swanson, Ida ... 25
Swanson, Paul .. 50
Sweet, L W..... 5 00
Swift, Stanley ... 30
Taft, Mrs L M... 1 00
Tleegley, Nellie, by 7 25
Tracy, C L..... 4 00
Ward, Mrs G, coll by 5 75
Ward, Mrs Geo.. 1 00
Ward, Mrs J L..10 00
Waters, Allie ... 25
Watrous, Mrs ... 50
Welk, C H & L.. 1 00
Wells, Amy Lee..10 00
White, A & B.... 5 00
White, Edna 27
White, Mrs G L..20 00
Wiggin, Dr 5 00
Wilcox, A E..... 1 00
Wilcox, C ..E.... 5 00
Wilcox, J H..... 2 00
Wilcox, Nelson .. 5 00
Williams, C E.... 2 00
Williams, E 76
Williams, J E.... 1 00
Williams, Jno R.. 50
Williams, O 1 00
Wolfe, Mrs B.... 2 00
Wood, Mrs L L.. 2 00
Woodworth, Mrs B F 1 00
Wright, Mrs O S. 2 00
Young, G L..... 5 00
Mrs D T, Bridgeport 5 00
E B, Hartford....12 00
E R, Fair Haven 1 00
G W O, Shelton.. 2 00
H L F, Nichols..25 00
J H R, Ivoryton. 50
L M P, Ivoryton. 50
M A H, Montville 2 00
M E C, New London 1 00
R T C, Bridgeport 5 00
Mrs R W, Rockville 2 00
W D H, Hartford 2 00
X Y Z, Greenfield Hill 5 00
—, Bridgeport.. 2 00
—, Hartford ... 5 00
—, Hartford ... 1 00
—, Hartford ... 25
—, Hartford ... 5 10
—, Hazardville. 1 00
—, Madison 5 00
—, New Haven.10 00
—, Newtown ... 25
—, Old Saybrook 90
—, Packerville.. 38
—, Redding 1 00
—, S Coventry.. 2 00
—, Stamford ... 1 00
—, Waterbury.. 2 00
Cash, Mystic 49
Cash, Mystic 1 00
Cash, Mystic 2 00
A Friend, Collinsville 1 00
A Friend, Middletown 25
A Friend, Ledyard10 00
Friend, Plainville 1 00
A Friend, Waterbury 5 00
Friend, Colchester 1 00
Friend, Hamden.. 30
Friend, Lakeville 1 00
Friend, (J S F) New London .. 1 00
Friends, Colebrook River 8 75
Friends, E Haddam 80
Friends, New Haven 15
Inasmuch, New Haven 5 00
Friends, Weston.. 6 16
In Christ Name, New Haven 1 00
I H N, Bridgeport 25
In mem of Bessie McCord Jerrington 3 00
Sympathizer, Willimantic 1 00
One who loves the Master, Wethersfield 2 00
An old Snbr, Winsted 1 00
A Sympathizer, Enfield 1 00
Bill the Baptist, So Manchester.. 1 00
Five little Girls & friends, Norwich 6 00
Officers & Crew Ram Isld L V, Noank 3 00
Pupils of Dist Sch 5, Salem 1 50
Cong'l Ch, Nepaug21 25
For the Master, Melrose 5 00
Palm, Thompsonville 4 00
Grace Allen Fund 2 00
New Jersey Teddie 2 00
78, Hartford 1 00
Baptist Ch, Deep River 43 04
Herbert Knapp Ch, Mystic 1 00
2d Bapt Ch, New London 25 00
Swed Bapt S Sch, Bristol 15 50
M E Ch, W Granby 6 00
Iranistan Ave Miss S S, Bridgeport 2 00
S Sch, Hartland. 2 00
Jewett City Jr Y P S C E of Cong Ch 1 00
C E Soc of Cong Ch, Hampton...10 00
Miss Soc of M E Ch, Bantam ... 9 00
Wom Miss Soc'y, Middle Hoddam, Cobalt 3 00
Y P S C E, Middlefield 2 81
Mizpah Cir, K D, Middlefield 2 50
Earnest Workers Soc, K Dr, East Thompson 3 00
C E Soc, Greenville Cong Ch... 5 00
Euphemian Circle, K Ds, Norwich. 5 00
Prim Day School, Grosvenor Dale. 28

DELAWARE

Brackson, M G... 25
Cranor, L M..... 1 00
Harris, Mrs 25
Latavan, Jas 25
Leakyne, Jas..... 25
Lenny, Mrs G W. 25
McBride, Mary E. 2 00
Marcen, Chas 2 00
Marcn, Will S... 4 00
Mearns, H C 25
Mearns, Jessie S.. 1 00
Millard, Wm 3 00
Oenn, Mrs D..... 25
Reynolds, Mrs L.. 25
Warfield, Mrs..... 25
J B B, Jr, —..... 50
W B, Wilmington 2 00
Cash, Clayton.... 10
Cash, Clayton.... 10
Penny Collection, Clayton 2 69
M E Ch, Milton...24 24
St Lukes Ch, Wilmington 4 85
Woman's Home Miss Soc, Mt Salem 5 00

MARYLAND

Akehurst, Mrs D H 1 00
Allers, Dorothy.. 5 00
Anderson, Mrs E M 2 00
Anderson, Mrs W 2 00
Asher, S L..... 2 00
Atkinson, Babies Dolores & Edwin 05
Atkinson, Ella .. 50
Bachrach, M 50
Balthis, Mrs M E 1 00
Barnes, Dr W M 25
Barton, Elsie, coll by 1 00
Bayne, Mary E .. 3 00
Beckett, M A.... 1 00
Benson, Mrs M E 8 00
Berry, Bertha ... 2 00
Bock, Thos H.... 5 00
Brandt, N & J... 1 00
Breckenridge, Mrs 2 00
Brooks, Mrs W B 3 00
Brown, Howard.. 2 00
Brown, Ida 05
Brunce, H M.... 5 00
Brundige, T W... 5 00
Bunting, Mrs J E 2 00
Burghess, Mrs .. 50
Burruss, Harry... 1 00
Chenoweth, E C. 1 00
Carroll, Miss 1 00
Clark, W B..... 2 00
Cole, Miss 5 00
Con, Miss 1 00
Conklin, Mrs H E 2 00
Cooper, J C..... 5 00
Cramer, A Glenn. 50
Cramer, A N..... 50
Crawford, Mrs W 1 00
Davis, Mrs Wm.. 05
Devilliss, Ettie .. 1 00
Donner, Mrs A... 2 00
Donnell, Mrs W.100 00
Dorsey, Martin .. 3 00
Dorsey, Mary ... 10
Dorsey, Nathan .. 05
Dorsey, Perry ... 10
Day, M S..... 1 00
Emmerich, G V, Jr 10 00
Englehart, J L... 2 00
Ewing, Eli E.... 1 00
Feeser, C A.... 3 00
Fisher, Chas D..100 00
Fisher, Wm A...100 00
Fitzhugh, Miss A E 10 00
Frederick, Mrs J N 5 00
Fronnan, E M... 1 00
Galt, Geo W..... 1 00
Gambrill, M C... 5 00
Gambrill, Dr W B 1 00
Gassaway, Helen, Mnneaster 1 00
George, Samuel K 5 00
Gillespie, Miss A. 05
Gordon, Mrs W.. 2 00
Griffith, Mrs R J. 2 00
Grimes, L A..... 5 00
Grafton, C 2 00
Greenway, E W.. 5 00
Griffith, Miss S A 50
Grogan, Chas E.. 5 00
Gue, Collie 25
Gue, W 50
Gue, Mrs W..... 50
Gutman, Mrs J... 2 00
Hagerty, Emily, Henrietta, Helen & Louise 15 00
Hall, I B..... 5 00
Hammill, Edw S 5 00
Hanson, Mrs A J 25
Hanson, Mrs F.. 50
Hanson, J F..... 50
Hanson, Minnie... 10
Harris, James P.. 2 00
Hayward, T J....20 00
Heffner, Sarah .. 50
Henkelman, Mrs J A 5 00
Herman, C C..... 2 00
Hill, Ida M..... 1 00
Hoblitze, Mrs O, Jr 5 00
Hoffman, Geo W. 2 00
Horner, Mrs G A.10 00
Horner, W F..... 5 00
House, Cora F... 50
Howard, Jno D.. 5 00
Hughs, G E..... 2 00
Hughes, M V..... 1 00
Hughes, Thos ...50 00
Hull, Wm J..... 2 00
Hutchinson, H S. 2 00
Hutchins, Miss S C 50
Isaac, J 1 00
Isaac, Miss M E. 1 00
Irving, Carroll M 5 00
Jacobs, Mrs I.... 2 00
Jackson, Emma .. 4 00
Jenkins, Clara ... 10
Johnson, Mrs A.. 1 00
Johnson, Bulah .. 50
Johnson, Jennie.. 2 00
Johnson, R W, (M D) 2 00
Jones, Mrs H.... 10
Key, Edward ... 5 00
Kline, Lucina 1 00
Kneeland, E L... 5 00
Kraft, Mr 50
Lamping, C 1 00
Latrobe, C H....10 00
Lauer, Mrs Levi.. 2 00
Lauer, S 3 00
Leitch, Frank 1 00
Levering, L M... 5 00
Levy, Mrs M S.. 2 00
Lewis, John F... 1 25
Lord, Alexander.. 2 00
Lyon, S H.....25 00
McCardell, Mr ... 50
McComas, Miss M J 1 00
Magruder, R R & Co 5 00
Mahoal, J B..... 1 00
Maslin, P B & K A 2 00
Meyer, M J & L Cobbens 2 00
Miller, J H..... 5 00
Miller, Lizzie ... 25
Mitchell, Levin .. 4 00
Moale, Geo N....10 00
Moore, G W..... 1 00
Montgomery, Annie 25
Mordecai, Mary B 1 00
Morgan, Henry & John 2 00
Morris, Mrs T H. 1 00
Moxley, Z 25
Munoz, Dr E A.. 5 00
Murray, The Misses 14 00
Newlee, Mrs E C & Wm Dukes.. 2 00
Norfolk, Miss M. 25
Orr, Mrs E J.... 1 00
Osborne, Ingle ... 1 00
Owings, T & fam 2 00
Parks, Mrs Thos. 3 00
Parr, G H..... 5 00
Peters, Geo W... 1 00
Phillips, Mrs T R 20
Phillips, Mae 1 00
Pole, Miss Jennie 1 00
Power, Miss H... 40
Power, Miss V... 25
Price, Isabelle B. 1 00
Randall, J R H.. 5 00
Roberte, Mrs C.. 25
Robinson, Mrs E A 6 00
Robinson, Wm J.. 1 00
Rush, Mary E... 1 00
Schenck, Mr & Mrs E 1 00
Shoemaker, Mrs S25 00
Skinner, Mrs Susie 1 00
Sloan, Robt N... 1 00
Shriver, Mrs J A & Clarina.....10 00
Smith, Mrs E..... 5 00
Smith, Etta 05
Smith, Mrs J.... 50
Smith, J P..... 10
Smith, L R..... 10
Snook, Abbie B.. 50
Snook, Bessie.... 50
Snook, Chas S... 50
Snook, Mary 50
Soper, M E..... 1 00
Sprigg, Miss S C. 6 00
Steele, Wm H... 1 00
Stewart, M B.... 1 00
Stotler, Mrs R.... 1 10
Stowe, T G..... 2 00
Swingley, J A... 5 00
Swomley, Danl .. 25
Symp, L P M 1 00
Taylor, Clara, Coll 1 25
Taylor, Elnora .. 1 00
Thomas, A 1 00
Thomas, Eliza ... 10
Thomas, J M.... 5 00
Thomas, Jno 10
Thomas, Jos 05
Thompson, Mrs E 1 00
Toukin, Mrs K.. 05
Tickner, W J.... 2 00
Travers, Mrs L D 1 00
Travers, Mrs & Mr Lee 3 10
Tucker, Wesley . 27
Tyler, Robt L.... 1 00
Veale, E R..... 1 00
Waltemeyer, M S 2 00
Wamsley, John & Carroll 75
Ward, Minnie E. 50
Warfield, Mrs H M 5 00
Waruee, Mary F. 2 00
Weston, H B.... 3 00
Weston, Laura A 1 00
Wetherall, Mrs.. 9 00
White, Agnes V.. 1 00
Whittingham, G H 5 00
Williams, Mrs E C 5 00
Winiams, Hy B. 2 00
Wilson, J D..... 95
Wood, Mrs Harry 1 00
Woods Ione..... 25
Woods, Misses .. 3 00
Wyatt, Mrs E R 2 00
Young, Misses E & R 1 00
Zepp, Sarah 1 00
Zielman, Mable.. 05
Louise, Balto ... 50
Paul, B, Elk Neck 1 00
Mrs C A S, Baltimore 2 00
E R W, Jr, Catonsville 1 00
E T J, Mt Washington 70
M C M, Baltimore 1 00
R V & C B, Balto. 2 00
Mrs S K, Balt... 1 00
W B F, Galeua. 1 00
W F W, Dar.... 1 00
W T, Baltimore.. 1 00
—, Baltimore .. 15
—, Baltimore .. 1 00
—, Baltimore .. 2 00
—, Baltimore .. 2 00
—, Baltimore .. 5 00
—, Baltimore .. 2 00
—, Baltimore .. 1 00
—, Baltimore .. 5 00
—, Baltimore .. 5 00
—, Baltimore .. 5 00
—, Baltimore .. 4 00
—, Baltimore ..26 00
—, Baltimore .. 1 00
—, Baltimore .. 1 00
—, Glenwood .. 5 00
Cash, Baltimore..15 00
—, Mountain Park Lake 1 50
—, Myersville .. 5 00
—, Roland Park & St Helena.. 2 00
—, Roland Park & St Helena... 2 00
—, Woodbrook.. 2 00
Friend, Balto ... 1 00
A Friend, Balto.. 2 00
A Friend, Balto.. 1 00
Friend, Johnsville 1 00
A Friend, Laurel 1 00
Friend, Libertytown 05
A Friend, Ridgely 25
Friend, Walkersville 1 00
Friends, Balto .. 5 00
I H N, Williamsport 1 00
P O Box 6, Brunswick 1 00
Ladies of Royal Oak 45 00
Result of Coll'n, Sparrows Pt....17 20
Mem of Household of Faith Ch, Aiken 6 50
Childrens M B of Trin E L Ch, Smithsburg 3 65
Presby Ch, Pocomoke 5 00
M E Ch South, Church Hill'.... 7 00
Cong Sassafras & Salem M P, Warwick 5 00
Union S Sch, Baltimore 12 29
Union S Sch, Garret Park 7 00
Pleasant Hill Un S Sch 1 56
Lafayette Sq Pres S Sch, Balto... 2 00
Roland Park Sch, Baltimore 3 00
Un Ch & S Sch, Dickens 7 00
M E S Sch, Eckhart Mines 2 00
M E Fletcher Chap Soc, Balto 6 50
Ep Lea, Belaire..10 00
Ep Lea, Ellicott City 1 03
Fairplay Uu Needlework Guild & W C T U..... 6 50

MASSACHUSETTS

Abbe, F R..... 2 00
Aborn, H W.....10 00
Adams, C L..... 1 50
Adams, G 1 00
Aldrich, C H..... 2 00
Allen, Francis R. 5 00
Allen, Mr L B.. 1 00
Ames, C G.....10 00
Andrew, Helen L. 2 00
Annis, E M & fam 6 00
Appleby, Ruth M 5 00
Arms, O S..... 1 00
Ashley, W F..... 10
Atkins, L A..... 2 00
Atwood, Mrs A B100 00
Bacon, P C..... 1 00
Bailey, H R..... 2 00
Baker, C F.....10 00
Barker, Julia S.. 3 00
Batcheller, J H.. 2 00
Bechtil, A A..... 1 00
Bell, J T..... 60
Bennett, Gilbert. 2 00
Bernstein, L T.. 2 00
Berthoff, C E.... 2 00
Best, T H.....10 00
Bigelow, R P.... 5 00
Blake, C J, (M D) 5 00
Blake, Mrs E J.. 1 00
Bogart, Mrs 1 00
Boland, Dr E S... 5 00
Bond, C H..... 5 00
Bontwell, E 30
Boutwell, L M... 25
Boutwell, R S.... 15
Bowles, Mrs E R 1 00
Bowman, Dr W H10 00
Brandon, E M.... 1 00
Bremer, Mrs S P 5 00
Brewer, Mr & Mrs 1 00
Briggs, Lloyd ... 2 00
Brcoker, Mrs H J 25
Brooks, Mr 10 00
Brown, A M..... 2 00
Brown, Geo W...25 00
Brown, H T..... 1 00
Brown, S A.....10 00
Buckmaster, Mrs C J 1 00
Bullard, Mrs J E. 25
Burns, Blanche.. 10
Burns, Clarence.. 10
Burns, David ... 15
Burns, Mrs David 20
Burns, Eva 10
Burpee, Miss D.. 1 00
Canfield, A L.... 4 00
Carbone, G L..... 5 00
Carew, Mrs A.... 50
Carson, E H..... 2 00
Cassidy, Katie .. 25
Chapin, Mrs W G 5 00
Cheney, R F..... 3 00
Chipman, J K... 2 00
Church, L E..... 20
Churchill & Bean 2 00
Clapp, Mrs A S... 1 00
Clark, Miss A J.. 5 00
Clarke, Miss H G 2 00
Clark, J P..... 5 00
Clifford, Mrs A.. 2 00
Cobb, I P..... 2 00
Coit, Mrs E..... 1 00
Cook, Mrs Lyman 1 00
Cooley, E J..... 3 00
Coon, Marion, (M D) 1 00
Cooper, Mrs C E. 5 00
Cram, Rufus ... 1 00
Crane, Mrs S M. 2 00
Crowell, M L.... 1 00
Cudworth, Mrs L H 2 00
Curtis, C M..... 2 00
Curtis, Henry P..10 00
Davis, Chas Edw. 2 00
Davis, Mrs E.... 2 00
Davis, Engenie E 1 58
Davis, H P W.. 5 00
Davis, L 2 00
Davis, Osie B.... 2 00
Davis, P H.....10 00
Decker, M H.... 1 00
Dewick, Chas F.10 00
Dexter, C W..... 5 00
Dickey, H A..... 2 00
Dight, Alex 5 25
Dillingham, Mrs. 2 00
Dixon, Mrs Jas H 3 00
Dolloff, Bessie .. 5 00
Dolloff, Jennie M 3 00
Drape, E 2 00
Dresser, H W.... 6 47
Dunbar, W H....10 00
Dunn, Mrs T..... 4 00
Durocki, W 1 00
Duston, Mrs P M 50
Easton, Mrs D M 1 00
Edwards, E 2 00
Eiseman, J 1 00
Ely, Edward F..10 00
Emerson, N W... 5 00
Emery, B T..... 5 00
Enegren, Emma C, & Chas E.... 2 00
Etheridgfie, J M.. 1 00
Fairbanks, Mrs J C 2 00
Fells, Mrs F E N 1 00
Ferguson, Mrs A 3 00
Fiske, C H, Jr.. 1 00
Ford, F 2 00
Flanders, Mrs L.. 1 00
Forbes, Mrs W.. 5 00
Forsyth, Jas B.. 5 00
Foster, G M..... 45
Foster, R & D.. 2 00
Frost, W E..... 2 00
Fuller, Mrs J B. 2 00
Gardner, Geo A.50 00
Gaston, Louisa B10 00
Garrett, A C.....10 00
Geer, H D..... 1 00
Gilmour, W G... 5 00
Glazier, F N..... 1 00
Gordon, Miss A.. 2 00
Gracie, C 25
Graham, Mr & Mrs 1 00
Graves —, ... 25
Graves, Mrs G N 25
Graves, L M..... 05
Graves, Mrs M.. 25
Graves, S S..... 25
Gray, Mr & Mrs R 25 00
Green, G P.....10 00
Greenwood, A S.. 5 00
Grimes, Annie.... 25
Grimmes, H 1 00
Hagar, L M..... 1 00
Haigh, Miss..... 2 00
Hale, Frank W... 5 00
Halls, Mrs, S Sch class of Beth Ch 1 50
Hall, Mrs E J.... 2 00
Hammond, Mrs L E 1 00
Hanns, P H..... 5 00
Hapgood, H..... 1 00
Hapgood, Mrs M W 5 00
Hardiug, E W.... 5 00
Hardy, Dr & Mrs J R..... 2 00
Hare, Thomas.... 5 00
Harney, Marie.... 2 00
Harris, E A.....25 00
Haskins, D G Jr.. 2 00
Haynes, J O..... 1 00
Haywood, Mrs J L W 1 00
Henshaw, Mrs G B 1 00
Heywood, E W.. 2 00
Hollingsworth, Mrs G..... 5 00
Holmes, Edgar M. 5 00
Holmes, Evelyn... 5 00
Hooker, L H.....25 00
Howlett, Miss E.. 25
Hubbard, Mrs L L 5 00
Jameson, Mrs H.10 00
Jethas, Louise.... 1 00
Jewett, Mrs J N.. 5 00
Johnson, Agnes...20 00
Johnston, Mrs H M 1 00
Jones, Mrs J E... 5 00
Kelly, Catherine.. 1 00
Kemalyan, Araxie 25
Kemalyan, Edw.. 5 00
Kempton, J B.... 2 00
Kendall, A C..... 1 00
Kern, F..... 1 00
Kettle, C L..... 2 00
Khotter, Rev Jas G 3 00
Kibbie, Miss C.... 25
King, Mrs S F....10 00
King, Sara B..... 1 00
Knapp, F A..... 2 00
Koetter, Mrs H... 1 00
Kurtz, F P..... 5 00
Lamb, V..... 1 00
Lane, Mrs F H. 5 00
Lauman, Chas R.. 5 00
Larkin, Geo..... 50
Law, E W..... 2 00
Lawrence, C G... 2 00
Leath, Johnnie.... 05
Legg, W E A..... 5 00
Levy, Solomon.....5 00
Lewis, E J, Jr.... 5 00
Lincoln, A V.....10 00
Lond, Mrs A J.... 5 00
Lowell, W.....10 00
Lyman, Geo H...100 00
McCarty, Essie... 1 00
McCurdy, Miss A H 2 50
MacKenzie, C K.. 2 00
Mackie, A H.....12 00
McMunison, A.... 50
Maier, Flora B... 1 00
Maltby, Mrs E B.. 1 00
Manley, Mrs..... 1 00
Manning, J..... 2 00
Margesson, H P.. 1 00
Markham, Mrs E. 2 00
Mason, Miss A... 1 00
Mason, Mrs H C.. 6 00
Mason, H E..... 5 00
Matthews, Alice.. 5 00
May, Mrs Wm... 2 00
Maynard, M..... 25
Merrill, Joshua...20 00
Merrill, S.....10 00
Meserve, M A.... 1 00
Messinger, S D... 1 00
Mills, Frank P...20 00
Moore, Chas H... 5 00
Morrison, M..... 50
Morrison, W L....10 00
Morse, Robt M...10 00
Mottez, E P.....10 00
Moyes, Mrs A A. 2 00
Newman, M L.... 2 00
Newton, Eunice.. 5 00
Ohlson, A..... 1 00
Orton, Mrs N R.. 75
Olsson, Emma P.. 2 00
O'May, Mrs..... 1 00
O'Neil, R F..... 5 00
Parker, F J..... 5 00
Perry, M D, & M D Packard..... 2 00
Perry, M J..... 3 00
Peterson, A..... 5 00
Pierce, F H..... 5 00
Pierce, Mrs H.... 2 00
Pilsbury, M L & E L 2 00
Piper, Mrs F K... 2 00
Pollar, Inez M.... 1 00
Porter, Mrs A.... 25
Porter, Alansou... 1 00
Porter, H C..... 1 00
Pugh, M..... 25
Pugh, Marie..... 25
Pugh, Nellie..... 25
Pugh, Pansy..... 25
Putnam, N A..... 5 00
Reed, C W..... 3 00

MASSACHUSETTS.—Con.

Reed, Joshua..... 1 00
Reed, M S..... 2 00
Remick, L S..... 4 00
Reynolds, Mrs N F 1 00
Rice, Cyrus..... 1 00
Rice, Edw D.....10 00
Rice, Mrs M E....10 00
Richard, Lottie... 10
Richards, Miss C. 5 00
Richards, Mrs F.. 10
Richardson, N.... 5 00
Richardson, W W 2 00
Ripley, W H..... 50
Ritz, Mr & Mrs J. 2 00
Robbins, Albert... 1 00
Robbins, C L.... 1 00
Robbins, Mrs E D 5 00
Roberts, Mrs..... 50
Robinson, H S.... 5 00
Rolfe, J W..... 5 00
Rood, R B..... 1 00
Runnoel, Mr O... 10
Russell, Lewis.... 1 00
Salter, R J..... 2 00
Saunders, Bessie. 25
Sawyer, Mrs A M 5 00
Sawyer, Mary A.. 1 00
Sewall, Miss L... 2 00
Sharkey, R..... 2 00
Shaw, Mrs..... 25
Shick, E F..... 5 00
Silva, T P, M D.. 2 00
Sinner, Mrs..... 10
Skelton, G E..... 1 00
Smart, Mrs Geo.. 1 00
Smith, Mary..... 2 00
Soule Dr G W.... 2 00
Spaulding, L 25
Spaulding, D W.. 25
Sprague, Mrs C F.20 00
Sprague children. 1 50
Sprague, J Wm R 1 00
Stearns, C C..... 2 00
Stevenson, Guy... 2 00
Stewart, Mrs C F. 1 00
Stewart, M S....25 00
Stone, Mr & Mrs 3 00
Stowell, M A.... 3 00
Snmner, C O..... 2 00
Talbot, J..... 1 00
Tarbell, Emeline.. 1 00
Temple, Mrs E H 2 00
Thresher, Mrs O.. 50
Tilton, B L..... 5 00
Todman, Julian... 5 00
Tolman, M C.... 2 00
Trautman, M..... 4 00
Turner, Mrs A S.. 1 00
Upham, J H..... 5 00
Vinson, Mrs C S.. 5 00
Wagner, H..... 2 00
Walling, Sadie H. 5 00
Wash, Mrs L..... 2 00
Wells, Mrs W H, coll by..... 2 00
Wheeler, C E....10 00
Whipple, C & S.. 20
White, E W..... 1 00
Whitmore, J C.... 1 00
Whitney, C A, coll by 16 15
Whittemore, Rev C F.....10 00
Williams, W B Jr. 2 00
Winlock, A & L.. 2 00
Wolcott, J A..... 5 00
Wood, R J..... 2 00
Woodbury, Mrs J. 25
Woodhull, C E.... 5 00
Wright, Mrs S A.. 2 00
Albert, Boston Highlands 50
Alise, Boston Highlands 50
Charlie, Boston Highlands 50
Cowen, Boston Highlands 50
Gertrnde, Boston Highlands 25
Hanry, Boston Highlands 50
Harper, Boston Highlands 50
Harry, Boston Highlands 50
Henry, Boston Highlands 50
Herman, Boston Highlands 25
Hugh & Ella, Worcester 1 00
Hugo, Boston Highlands 50
Jennie, Boston Highlands 25
Joe, Boston Highlands 25
John, Boston Highlands 50
Lizzie, Boston Highlands 50
Margaret, Boston Highlands 25
Minnie, Boston Highlands 25
Ned C, Boston Highlands 50
Nellie, Boston Highlands 25
Rita, Boston Highlands 25
Sablin, Boston Highlands 25
Sadie, Boston Highlands 25
Shone, Boston Highlands 50
A B, sister & niece, New Dorchester 2 10
C A M, Three Rivers 1 00
E & P, Boston.... 1 00
E I K, Boston.... 1 00
E L A, No Cambridge 50
E N J, Boston.... 2 00
E T W, Boston... 1 00
E W L, Beach Bluff 5 00
F C P, Winchester 1 00
J A M P, Haydenville 1 00
J S B, Boston... 20 00

MASSACHUSETTS.—Con.

J L W, G H W, I W, Jamaica Plains 12 00
L & S E B, Hingham 1 00
L B R, Haverhill 1 00
M A G, Boston... 1 00
M L G & E P H, Boston 2 00
M M M, Jamaica Plain 1 00
N M, Cambridge.. 1 00
Mr. & Mrs E W M 2 00
—, Back Bay.... 2 00
—, Boston..... 2 00
—, Boston..... 2 00
—, Boston..... 2 00
—, Boston..... 1 00
—, Boston..... 1 00
—, Boston..... 2 00
—, Boston..... 1 00
—, Boston..... 2 00
—, Boston..... 2 00
—, Boston..... 1 00
—, Boston..... 2 00
—, Boston..... 1 00
—, Boston.....100 00
—, Boston 25
—, Boston..... 1 25
—, Boston..... 5 00
—, Boston..... 2 00
—, Boston..... 5 00
—, Boston..... 1 00
—, Boston.....12 00
—, Boston..... 5 00
—, Boston.....10 00
—, Beverly..... 1 00
—, Cambridge...10 00
—, Cambridge... 2 00
—, E Bridgewater 1 00
—, East Northfield 1 00
—, Jamaica Plains 2 00
—, Montague.... 65
—, No Falmouth. 1 00
—, No Leverett. 25
—, No Leverett. 25
—, Roxbury..... 5 00
—, Vineyard Haven 30
—, Ware..... 1 00
A friend, Boston. 2 00
A friend, Bay View 1 00
A friend, Bay View 50
A friend, Boston.. 4 00
A friend, Boston.. 2 00
A friend, Boston.. 1 00
A Friend, Saunderville 3 20
A friend, Whitman 2 00
A friend, Worcester 10 00
Friend, Boston.... 2 00
Friend, Boston... 1 00
Friend, Boston... 2 00
Friend, Boston... 1 00
Friend, Boston... 2 00
Friend, Belchertown 3 00
Friend, Clinton... 5 00
Friend, Essex..... 1 00
Friend, Maynard. 1 00
Friend, Roslindale 25
Friend, Webster.. 2 00
Two friends, Haverhill 50
A friend of the cause, Roxbury. 2 00
Friends, Easton.112 00
Friends, Boston.. 2 00
Friends, Vineyard Haven 3 00
Two friends, Boston 15 00
Two friends, Salem 5 50
Several friends, Middleton 1 00
Friend & reader, Webster 1 00
Friends in Ludlow, thro W C T U.. 7 50
"Inasmuch," No Attleboro 2 00
I H N, Boston...20 00
In His Name, Boston 1 00
A reader, Athol... 6 00
Reader of the Wellspring Palmer 2 00
Sympathizer, Boston 2 00
Two sympathizing friends, Dighton 7 00
In memory of C A J, Boston..... 5 00
Mother & daughter, Halifax.... 1 00
Cl of boys Stoughton St S S, Dorchester 1 04
In the name of four Edgartown friends 1 00
Ashmont, Boston. 3 00
Boss, Boston Highlands 10 00
Catholic, Boston.. 20
Bankers, Boston..31 00
Willingly, Springfield 2 00
Thank offering, Wilmington 1 00
Stowell & Rose... 1 00
A Widow's Mite, No Leverett..... 10
A daughter of the covenant, Boston 2 00
A mite for starving India, Boston 25

MASSACHUSETTS.—Con.

S S Cl of 1st Bapt Ch, Billerica.... 2 00
A Jew, a Welshman & 2 Yankees, Boston ... 1 00
Little Margnerite, Rosliudale 25
A few nurses in the S Hospital, Taunton 4 10
Occupants suite 21 Hotel Westland, Boston ... 5 00
Little Boy & Girl in Boston..... 1 18
Infant S S Cong Ch, Monson..... 3 00
Marstons Mills Ch 7 00
M E Ch, Webster.33 00
Belmont M E Ch, S Sch, Malden. 1 60
Union ent given by the Prot chs, of Lawrence & vicinity 635 70
Summer Sch Gr, V L, Hollbrook.. 50
Primary Dept of 1st Trin Cong S Sch, Lowell..... 4 00
Prim Dept of Plymouth Cong S S, Framingham ... 2 25
Teacher & pupils of Boys' S S Cl Cong Ch, So Dennis 2 00
Belmont M E S Sch, Malden....40 00
Bapt Sch, Athol.. 1 80
S Sch, Marston's Mills 1 00
C E Soc, Peru... 5.53
Epw Leag, Marston's Mills..... 2 00
"Sunshine Club," Arlington Hgts. 5 00
Children's Flower Club, Springfield 1 00
C E Soc, Forest Dale, Malden .. 3 05
K D Dudley St Bapt Ch, Roxbury 5 15
S Sch, Unionville.. 2 00
M E S Sch, Locks Village 3 25
Coll at Children's Day Ex, Cong S Sch, Tewksbnry.25 97
Prim Dept Cong S S, So Braintree, 1 00
Bapt S Sch, & Y P S C E, Shirley 3 00
Bapt Sunday Sch, Carver 3 50

NEW HAMPSHIRE

Austin, Mrs 1 00
Ballard, J H.... 50
Ballard, Marion.. 50
Berry, James M. 2 00
Bickford, L K.... 2 00
Blair, Wm 25
Brooks, Levi & family 1 00
Brown, H W.... 1 00
Burbank, Mrs G W 1 00
Caverly, Mrs A A 1 50
Davis, Miss L.. 1 75
Davis, Mrs W D 5 00
Davison, E F.... 5 00
Dementt, A B... 1 00
Dinsmore, Mrs D 25
Dow, John A.... 5 00
Dustin, Mrs A J 1 00
Fall, E E..... Libby, Mrs V.. Gendro, Mrs C. Shannon, Mrs A E 1 00
Folsom, Rev J D 2 00
Gond, Elmer ... 25
Gond, Mrs E J.. 50
Gond, Geo S.... 1 00
Gond, P L..... 50
Greengrass, R G.. 1 00 Hall, Mrs ..... Blood, Mrs .... Fletcher, Mrs.. 3 00
Holt, Eddie 50
Horne, Mrs J N. 1 00
Knights, Mrs T F 50
Lary, Mrs Lucy. 25
Loring, Roy E... 25
Miltimore, S L.. 1 00
Paige, S A..... 2 00
Perry, Mrs G W 1 00
Pettengill, Mrs R 30
Poor, M A..... 5 00
Reed, Ethel M & Everett 75
Rigford, S E.... 1 00
Rogers, Blanche. 1 00
Sawyer, Alvah .. 1 00
Simmons, C L & friends 5 50
Sisco, Gordon .. 25
Smith, W S..... 1 00
Stevens, N P....10 00
Stevens, P 1 00
Towle, Mildred.. 2 00
Vickery, Mrs E.. 1 00
Whitney, Nathan25 00
Wight, D R..... 25
Wight, Mrs Emma 36
Wight, Mrs P L.. 50
Willis, Mrs Nancy 25
E F A, Marlboro 2 00
L G, Colebrook.. 1 00
S D T, Concord.. 1 00
—, Dover 2 00
—, Goffstown .. 10
—, Laconia 1 00
—, Manchester.. 1 00
—, Portsmouth. 8 00
—, Sanbornville 1 00
Friend, N Hampton 1 00
Friends of the Needy, E Tilton.30 19

N. HAMPSHIRE—Cont'd.

Friends, So Ackworth 7 00
Few Chr Scientists, Jackson.. 3 00
Mother & Dan, Loudon 5 00
Dist No 4 Sch, Londonderry .. 1 00
Queechy, Hollis Depot 1 00
A Sister in Him, N Londonderry 3 00
Friends M E Ch, Coll by, E Columbia 10 00
Centre Cong Ch, Gilmanton 5 65
First Cong'l Ch, Barnstead 3 47
Ossipee & Wakefield Free Bapt Ch 3 25
S Sch, Hillsboro.. 1 50
M E S S, Brookline 4 50
Children of Cong S Sch, Pittsfield 43 15
Ep Lea, M E Ch, Enfield 6 50
Y P S C E, Goshen 1 00
Jr Ep Lea, Swift River 1 00
C E Soc, West Canaan 3 00
Ep Lea, N Grantham 4 00
W Cong Soc & C E S, Oxford... 19 30
W T C Soc, Northwood Ridge 1 00
Y M C A, Dummer 1 50
Ch End Soc, Dummer 3 09
C E Soc, Ackworth 1 00
C E Soc, S Ackworth 3 00

NEW JERSEY

Adams, James ...10 00
Adams, Somers .. 25
Augel, Geo W... 2 10
Baker, Mrs F R. 1 00
Blackman, Jno... 25
Blank, Susan 25
Bocken's, Mrs P L, S S Cl, 1st Pres Ch, Cape May.. 1 00
Boice, Edgar J... 1 00
Bonagraver, Emma 36
Bostich, May & Gertrnde 1 00
Brands, Rnsling, Coll by 2 00
Brown, Jas G....10 00
Brown, Mattie ... 75
Burtis, R 2 85
Burtnett, C L.... 2 00
Carew, Ella 25
Carson, Miss B.. 5 00
Cole, Anna I..... 1 10
Cook, Elizabeth S 1 00
Conche, Lula 1 00
Craig, C E..... 3 25
Croot, J W..... 2 00
Crowell, H 2 00
Crowell, Mrs S.. 1 00
Davis, Olden 1 50
Dennis, Carrie .. 1 95
Dey, Mrs Chas... 1 00
Durand, E ..... Neuffer, M .... Gallagher, B .. Hollier, I ..... Davis, F ..... Culberly, J 11 50
Dye, Raymond... 10
Eldridge, Horace. 16
Eldridge, May ... 60
Eliott, Thos 5 00
Fagans, Laura .. 41
Fine, Mrs P G... 2 00
Floto, Miss H A. 1 00
Flumerfelt, Eva.. 1 00
Gandy, Nettie ... 2 00
Gillem, Sarah 1 00
Hankins, A W... 1 00
Harrison, Mrs C D 2 00
Heath, Mrs H.... 1 00
Hendershot, J H.. 5 00
Heninger, Danl... 50
Hepburn, Mrs W.. 2 00
Hile, Geo 5 68
Holley, Miss H.. 2 00
Holton, M E.....10 00
Holton, Mary 1 00
Horter, Rev G C. 2 73
Hortes, Rev G C 3 83
Hunt, Mrs G E & friends 3 00
Ingersoll, Rich'd. 25
Jeffries, Jos 25
Jeffries, Lovina .. 25
Joslin, E N..... 2 00
Joslyn, M C..... 2 00
Kinney, C 2 00
Knipe, S W..... 2 00
Lanning, Mrs J S & Mrs E Wolfe 2 00
Lear, Lizzie 1 00
Lewis, Miss C.... 25
Ligget, E L..... 5 00
Locke, John 10
Longstreet, D T H 1 00
Lund, Herman .. 5 00
Lyon, Grace V... 2 50
McCabe, Fred ... 35
McCabe, Lillie ... 1 02
Moore, G P..... 2 00
Muller, Lizzie 5 00
Murphy, John .. 15
Murphy, Lester .. 25
Murphy, Lizzie .. 56
Nixon, Mabel 12 00
Poole, Katie 25
Post, Miss Etta.. 1 00
Potter, F W..... 2 00
Price, J T..... 50
Price, Mrs John.. 1 00
Reinheimer, D .. 25
Robotham, R 1 00

NEW JERSEY—Cont'd.

Runyan, Alonzo D 1 00
Saxton, Mrs 1 00
Scull, Mrs A..... 50
Scull, Miss H..... 50
Scull, H L..... 25
Scull, John B.... 25
Sharp, Samuel .. 2 00
Shepherd, Emma. 1 00
Shinn, Mrs A B.. 1 45
Shimer, J M R.. 2 00
Smith, C H..... 1 00
Smith, Richard .. 2 00
Somers, Chas B.. 2 00
Steelman, C H... 25
Steelman, J L.... 25
Steele, W L..... 1 00
Steelman, J B.... 25
Stryker, Martha.. 1 00
Stryker, Sarah... 69
Swain, Millicent Y10 00
Titns, Mrs Jno M 5 00
Uhl, F C..... 2 00
Van Dillen, L.... 2 00
Walling, Mrs C.. 1 25
Ward, Miss H M. 1 00
Welch, Katie 31
Welch, E D..... 24
West, Percy 35
Wheaton, Miss S 50
Winans, Alfred.. 2 00
Woodlin, Miss B E 15
Zabriskie, Mrs T 1 00
Arthur, Newark.. 1 00
A J, Jersey City 1 00
B S, Camden 2 00
Mrs C A V & Mrs I E H, Bayonne 2 00
C E, Griggstown 1 00
E E E & G, Clifton 5 00
E M D, Plainfield 1 00
E Z, Annandale.. 55
F H M, Jr, Plainfield 1 00
F W P, Elberon.. 2 00
G E J, Rahway.. 1 00
G H W, Hazlet.. 1 00
G W M, Kearney 2 00
I B H, Lebanon. 20
J D H, Summit.. 1 00
J F C, Cedarville 5 00
M F N, Rockaway 2 00
M R T, Atlantic Highlands 1 00
N D, Cedar Lake 1 00
W H B, Rahway.. 1 00
X Y Z, Montclair 1 00
—, — 25
—, Englewood .. 25
—, Mauricetown. 2 00
—, So Orange... 1 00
Cash, Steelmanville 25
Cash 25
Friend, Bloomfield 100 00
Friend, Dias C'k. 10
Friend, E Orange 2 00
A friend, New Brunswick 2 00
Friend, Ramsey.. 2 00
A Friend, Union Hill 1 00
Sympathizer, Centreton 2 00
A Subr, Merchantville 2 00
Subr, West Long Branch 2 00
I H N, Heislerville 2 50
I H N, Hillside.. 1 20
I H N, Ocean City 1 00
Abiding in Him Circle, Bayonne. 1 00
Public Sch, Marlboro 2 00
Citizens, Newark300 00
Inter Dept, Woodbury 3 00
2 Sisters, Swartswood 2 00
Lea Chap No 7172, Sayreville 6 00
Franklin Chapel, Caldwell 11 13
From a woman, Lumberth 1 00
Peoples Bapt Ch & S S, Bayonne..100 00
Olivet M E Ch & S S & Greenville S S, Centreton.29 00
Union Service of Pres & M E Chs, Absecon 20 00
Citizens, Newark.150 00
From a little band, of Christians, Plainfield 3 15
Class of Young Girls, Woodbury 2 00
Rio Grange M E Ch, Green Creek14 00
L S of Norwegian Cong Ch, Hoboken 5 00
1st Ref Ch, Ridgewood 2 00
Bapt Ch, S Plainfield 4 10
Sower Valley Pres Ch, Califon 45 00
Bapt Ch, Westfield25 00
M E Ch, Farmingdale 3 90
Union Mtg in Cal M E Ch, Keyport 117 50
Central M E Ch, Newark 10 00
Meml Presby Ch, Newark 169 12
Cl No 30 1st Bapt S S, Burlington 1 50
S Sch, Copper Hill 5 50
New Market S D B S S, Dunellen.10 45
S S & Prayer Mtg, Grand View 2 50
Pleasant Valley S S, Washington..15 00
N Caldwell S Sch, Coll by 2 00
Ref Ch S S, High Bridge 7 00

NEW JERSEY—Cont'd.

Friends 1st Day Sch, Hancocks Bridge 2 00
Farmingdale & W Farms M E Ch & S Sch.....16 10
2d Pres S School, Cranbnry 6 25
Vreeland Ave M E S S, Paterson..13 25
Hawthorne S Sch 8 12
Compromise S S, Mannington 3 00
Mt Ephraim Bapt S Sch 9 70
Prim S S, M E Ch, Ocean Grove ... 2 50
Ocean Port M E S Sch 7 21
S Sch Miss Soc 1st Ref Ch, Patterson 47 84
Thompson Grove Un S Sch..... 2 00
Welchville S Sch. 2 75
Afton Pub Sch... 8 00
Y P S C E of 1st Bapt Ch, Atlantic Highland ...15 00
Jr C E Soc of Bergen Pt Ref Ch..30 00
C E Soc, Branchville 28 00
The Steady Workers, Clifton 5 50
Y M C A, Hudson City Br, Jersey City Hghts.....10 00
Ladies Miss Soc, Liberty Corner. 1 50
Y P S C E, Morristown, A M E Ch 5 00
Jr C E Soc, Shiloh 11 00
C E Soc, M P Ch, Westville 6 00
M E Ep League, Aldine 3 00
Jr End Soc, 1st Bapt Ch, Bloomfield 2 50
Junior C E Socy, Branchville 4 00
Jr Epw Lea, 4th M E Ch, Bridgeton 1 50
Aid Soc, Baptist Ch, Canton 2 00
Y P S C E of Deerfield St.... 5 00
Ep Lea, Hedding M E Ch, Hinkoro 7 25
Ep Lea, Pemberton 5 00
No End For Miss Soc, Phillipsburg35 00
Jr C E Soc, 1st Bapt Ch, Roselle11 30
Armor Bearers Miss Band, Pres Ch, Stewartsville 5 00
Ladies Miss Soc, Three Mile Run.30 00
Y L H Miss Cir, Pres Ch, Woodbury 10 00
Y P S C E, West Milford 10 50
Jr C E Soc, West Milford 1 50
Jr Ep Lea, Whitehall 1 00
Young People Soc M E Ch, Fieldsborough 8 00
Finesville, C E.. 1 50
Hammonton Bapt Jr C E 1 00
Hancocks Bridge M E Y P S C E. 7 00
C E Soc Pres Ch, Kingsland 8 30
Y P S C E, Lakewood 3 85
Moravian C E.... 7 00
Newark 1st Pres.43 60
1st Ref C E, No Brnnswick 4 00
2d Ref'd C E, No Brunswick 16 00
New Vernon Y P S C E 31 85
New Vernon Pres C E 3 00
Opportunity Circle of King's Daughters, Nutly 5 06
Orange Valley Cong Y P S C E 5 00
Y P S C E of Pres Ch, Parseppany. 5 00
Clover Leaf Circle of K D's of Market St M E Ch, Paterson 10 00
Mt Pleasant Y P S C E, Pleasantville 50
Ridgefield Park Jr C E 5 00
Pres Y P S C E, Riverside 1 80
Moravian Y P S C E, Riverside 5 00
Jr C E Soc Presby Ch, Toms River. 80
Sen C E Soc Pres Ch, Toms River 4 36
Jr C E Soc, Trenton 2 75
Sr C E Soc, Trenton 5 00
Verona Pres Soc.. 5 00
W Hoboken Pres C E 49 65
W Hoboken Pres Jr C E 1 00
E P McN, Afton.. 1 00
Potterstown C E. 5 25
Steam, New Village 25
Frankie, New Village 75

NEW YORK

Abby, Geo 25
Acker, Mae 3 55
Ackerman, Mark. 25
Adair, Mr A 3 00
Adams, Mrs S.... 1 00
Adams, Susan ... 1 00
Agard, Jno 1 00
Akin, Mrs G..... 1 00
Alexander, Mrs E. 2 00
Allen, W C & E M 1 00
Anderson, Mrs F A 5 00
Anderson, O E ... 25
Andrews, Mr 1 00
Andrews, Mrs R E 1 00
Andrews, Mrs Wm 50
Atwater, E S ... 1 00
Atwell, Carrie ... 10
Austin, Mrs M.... 25
Avery, Mrs S 25
Axtel, Mrs M R.. 1 00
Axtell, Seth 1 00
Ayers, Mrs Elmer. 25
Abbey, Mrs A.... 25
Abbey, Mrs H...10 00
Ackerman, D B.. 5 00
Adebahs, L C W. 1 55
Allen, Mrs C M & Miss A Nellenbach 1 45
Allen, Harry I V 25
Allen, Mrs I H.. 50
Allen, J C..... 50
Allen, Mrs J C.. 50
Allen, Mrs L..... 1 00
Altro, Mrs J..... 25
Ambler, Mrs H S 1 00
Anderson, Mrs B & friends 8 00
Anderson, G F.... 50
The Anderson fam, Middletown 3 00
Andrews, Kate R 5 00
Angell, Mrs E.... 15
Angell, Mrs L K. 1 00
Antes', Miss, Class 2 00
Armstrong, Frank 25
Arnold, A J..... 1 00
Arnold, H W & friends 3 00
Arnold, Mrs 3 00
Arnott, Mrs J S.. 1 00
Arthurs, W F.... 25
Ash, J H..... 5 00
Ashley, Mrs F A 2 00
Atherton, Geo ... 05
Atwood, Mrs J H 2 00
Avery, Anna E.. 2 00
Ayen, Miss B..... 1 00
Bacher, Mrs A... 50
Backus, Sidney... 50
Bacon, J 1 00
Bailey, J C 1 00
Baker, Mrs 1 00
Baker, A & L..... 2 00
Baker, A A 3 00
Baker, Mrs J H.. 1 00
Ball, Clarisa 1 00
Ball, Mrs F S ... 50
Ball, Geo 1 00
Ball, Melvin 1 00
Ball, Susan 50
Ballsmith, Mrs F. 25
Ballsmith, Miss H 25
Banard, Mrs 50
Bander, Mrs D... 1 00
Barnard, J 2 00
Barnes, Mrs G... 1 00
Barnhart, C 1 00
Barrett, Miss M.. 1 00
Barrow, Mrs 75
Bartlett, Mrs H.. 20
Bartlett, Mrs L... 25
Barton, Mrs A A. 1 00
Bates, Mary 10
Beardslee, L 25
Beardsley, A 10
Bedford, Emma G 3 50
Beecher, Jno S... 2 00
Beeman, Mrs, Coll by 2 25
Beldin, Mrs M.... 50
Bell, Chas 10
Bell, Mrs Wm 25
Bemus, Mrs Chas. 1 00
Bennett, Mrs H... 50
Benson, Bert 25
Beran, Birdella .. 10
Bettinger, A 2 00
Birdseye, Mrs G.. 1 00
Bishop, F M, M D 1 00
Bissell, Mrs W W 1 00
Bixby, Mrs 10
Blanchard, Mrs E 1 00
Blanchard, John.. 2 00
Blanchard, Mrs J. 2 00
Bland, H A & Mrs Geo 3 00
Blinco, Frank 1 00
Blodgett, Mrs L.. 50
Blood, Mrs A M.. 1 00
Blume, Theo 25
Boand, Mrs O T.. 1 00
Boice, Mrs Mary.. 2 00
Bonnell, Mrs H... 50
Brenenstuhl, Flora 1 00
Brewer, Abel C.. 2 00
Brewster, John .. 2 00
Brierly, A 10
Brierly, D 05
Bristol, Mrs E... 10
Brooker, Carl 1 00
Broughton, Mary J 1 00
Broughton, Russell 05
Brown, Mrs A... 1 00
Brown, Mrs C.... 2 00
Brown, M E 2 00
Brown, P C 1 00
Brown, Mrs P.... 1 00
Brownell, Mrs G C 1 00
Bnddery, F 10
Bugbee, L H 1 00
Bulmore, Mrs G B 1 00
Burgin, Geo M.... 5 00
Burhans, Mrs J W 25
Burhans, Mrs K A 25
Burnham, Miss E. 2 00
Burns, Mrs A K.. 2 00
Burns, J D 10
Bush, R L 2 00
Bush, Mrs W W.. 1 00
Bntcher, Ursula.. 07

NEW YORK—Cont'd.

Butcher, Mr and Mrs M 1 00
Babcock, Mrs D E 1 00
Bachus, Anna ... 30
Backus, Wm 25
Badford, C 50
Bailey, C A..... 1 00
Bailey, Mrs N.... 25
Baker, Mrs Chas. 25
Baker, Mrs Chas. 1 00
Baker, Edna 50
Baker, Mrs H.... 2 00
Baker, Mr J E... 10
Baker, Mrs Laura 25
Baker, Mrs S..... 1 00
Baldridge, Mrs A 1 00
Band, D 05
Banker, L J..... 60
Barber, Amy J... 2 50
Barber, C E..... 50
Barden, Mrs H.. 1 00
Barden, Mrs W.. 25
Barker, Alta 1 00
Barker, Geo 1 00
Barker, Nina 1 00
Barkley, Mary .. 05
Barnes, G A..... 50
Barney, F L.....10 00
Barrett, E P..... 1 00
Barringer, Mrs G P 10
Barrows, G S.... 1 00
Barton, Edw 05
Barton, L 05
Bartlett, L J.... 1 00
Beach, Mrs A.... 15
Beeker, Mrs Aaron 1 00
Beeker, Mrs B.... 20
Becker, Miss Etta 05
Beckwith, T G.... 1 00
Beebe, Mr & Mrs A J 1 00
Beech, Mr & Mrs H 1 00
Beecher, Chas.... 24
Belden, M A..... 6 25
Bell, R H..... 5 00
Bellamy, Miss ... 1 00
Bellamy, Edith .. 25
Bellamy, Ethel .. 25
Bellinger, A 25
Bennett, Flora B 2 00
Bennett, H O.... 1 00
Bennett, Lena ... 1 00
Bennett, Loren .. 25
Bentley, Ann 25
Bently, Mrs G.... 25
Bentley, Morris .. 5 00
Beshgetour, Ruth & Helen 1 00
Betsinger, I H.... 5 58
Bibble, Byron ... 1 00
Billings, Mrs B.. 25
Bisgrove, Sidney.. 1 35
Bishop, E J..... 2 00
Bishop, Mrs S A. 25
Blackwell, Mr & M A..... 5 00
Blauehard, M A.. 2 00
Blauey, Mrs D W 2 00
Blasdell, L 2 00
Blodgett, M M... 50
Bockmier, Willie. 05
Bogart, Miss E R 5 00
Bogert, Mrs P A.12 00
Boileau, Cora G.. 2 00
Borlitt, Mrs S.... 10
Bounefond, Mrs A 25
Bowman, Mrs L E 10
Bowyer, Mrs S... 3 11
Bradt, Mr & Mrs R A 1 00
Brady, R E..... 25
Brans, Geo 1 00
Brewster, Miss B 2 00
Briggs, Mrs 50
Briggs, Mrs L W 1 00
Bristol, J E..... 1 00
Britten, Mr 50
Brooda, G 50
Brooda, W 35
Brooks, Mrs I D. 1 00
Brown, Alice 25
Brown, Chas 50
Brown, Mrs D E.. 2 00
Brown, Ethel 2 02
Brown, Mrs Geo. 1 00
Brown, Geo N.... 1 00
Brown, Mrs G R. 50
Brown, Mrs H... 50
Brown, J G..... 1 00
Brown, L 50
Brown, Mrs P & Emma A 2 00
Browne, E 1 00
Browne, E 25
Brunck, A C..... 5 00
Brundage, W C... 50
Brunner, Anna...10 00
Brush, Miss N.... 25
Buchman, Mrs J. N 50
Bull, A 25
Bundy, Mrs G W 1 00
Burlingame, Mrs L M 25
Burns, Mrs A.... 25
Burpee, Mrs O H 1 00
Burr, Miss J L.. 50
Burroughs, Mrs S H 25
Burroughs, Mrs... 1 00
Burt, Chas, Jr... 5 00
Burt, Mr & Mrs Zina H 50
Burton, Emma .. 1 00
Burton, Mrs H.... 25
Busfield, Miss L.. 50
Bushnell, Ellen A & M A..... 1 00
Butler, May E.... 1 00
Buttolph, Mrs A 20 00
Button, Mrs E L 25
Button, R W..... 50
Bylngton, Mrs M J 1 00
Byod, R J..... 25
Camp Brook Aid.. 2 00
Campbell, Rev E A 1 00
Campbell, Edith.. 10
Campbell, M A... 1 00
Card, Adelia 1 00
Carlton, Mrs 20
Carlton, Clayton.. 05

NEW YORK—Cont'd.

Carlton, Marcus.. 05
Carpenter, E W.. 1 25
Carpenter, Mrs E M 5 00
Carpenter, Mrs J T 1 00
Carter, Mrs M.... 25
Cass, Mrs E A & friends 4 50
Caverly, Nora ... 1 00
Chamberlin, A ... 2 00
Champlen, Mrs N 50
Chandler, Mrs S L 1 00
Charles, Mrs L... 1 00
Charles, Miss M.. 25
Chavalier, O E ... 1 00
Cheeney, S N 10
Cheesebrough, S.. 25
Chew, Mrs G E.. 1 00
Chittenden, G G.. 1 00
Christopher, A 1 00
Christy, Mrs E... 1 00
Church, W M..... 6 50
Churchill, Mrs E. 1 00
Clark, Mrs A..... 25
Clark, Miss E.... 1 00
Clark, Edward ... 5 00
Clark, Mrs G & R 2 00
Clark, John and family 5 00
Clark, Mrs S B... 25
Clarke, L E 1 00
Clayton, Mrs S B 50
Cleaman, C 1 00
Cluncy, T E..... 50
Coats, J M 5 00
Cody, Annie 25
Coggshall, Mrs M. 1 00
Cole, C 2 00
Coleman, Daniel.. 5 00
Comestock, Mrs D 25
Cooper, Mrs F B. 25
Cooley, F C 50
Cooper, Fannie .. 25
Cooper, Rev G W. 50
Cooper, Mrs J J.. 25
Cooper, John 50
Cooper, Joseph ... 2 00
Cooper, Mrs M... 50
Cornelius, Maggie, Alice Wood, Jennie Hopkins and Grace Cornellus, Coll by 5 25
Cornwell, C 10
Cornwell, G 10
Cowen, Reella and Losee Reelia ... 2 00
Cromle boys, little, Coll by 58
Cremme, Miss J.. 6 00
Crook, Edgar 50
Crowell, Mrs C... 10
Crowell, Miss C E 20
Crowell, D 1 00
Crowell, Earle ... 50
Crowell, Edith ... 25
Crowell, G 25
Crowell, Geo 10
Crowell, S 50
Crowell, Miss V.. 50
Crum, Mort 1 00
Cuffman, Fred S.. 5 00
Calkins, L B..... 50
Camp, Miss H.... 25
Campbell, Emma. 2 00
Campbell, F B.... 2 00
Campbell, Mrs M. 10
Carlson, Eric 1 00
Carlson, Angusta. 2 50
Carney, Mrs W S 1 00
Carpenter, Lucy.. 1 00
Carpenter, Mrs S M 1 00
Carr, Mrs F..... 25
Carr, Mrs J..... 25
Carragan, Jas ... 10
Carl, Mrs Ellz.... 1 00
Carle, Elizth 5 00
Carswell, Cora E. 1 00
Carthell, Mrs A W 1 00
Case, Winnlfred.. 3 00
Casler, Isaac 2 00
Caster, Mrs Geo.. 1 00
Carvins, H 25
Celgler, Berton .. 10
Chaddock, S 1 00
Chamberlin, Mrs Wm 50
Champ, W A..... 1 00
Chaplu, Mrs J G 4 00
Chappel, M 1 25
Chassa, Jas 58
Christman, Mrs J 25
Chittenden, B ... 9 00
Churchill, Mrs V B 1 00
Chusman, Clide... 25
Clark, Asa S..... 1 00
Clark, Elasha ... 1 00
Clark, Hattle 10
Clark, Mrs H L.. 2 00
Clark, N 1 00
Clark, Mrs Rose.. 1 00
Clark, Mrs Thorn 25
Clark, Vina 25
Clarke, Ethel 10
Clarke, E A..... 25
Clarke, Mrs G H.10 00
Clay, Mrs A..... 25
Clements, Mrs S. 1 00
Cole, Mary 05
Coleman, Miss I.. 25
Colgate, Mable .. 1 14
Close, Edward ... 25
Coddington, Mr A 10
Coe, Mrs H..... 1 00
Coke, M W..... 50
Cole, Mrs R, coll by 3 85
Collins, M E..... 10
Collins, Sarah W.20 00
Colson, Mrs P L. 40
Colton, John 25
Conger, Emnice & sister Ellz'th... 1 00
Conger, Mrs M A 3 00
Conklin, Y 34
Connell, A 2 00
Connell, Sarah & Vera 28
Cook, Emma C... 1 00
Coon, Mrs DeF... 5 00
Coon, Geo 1 00
Countryman, Levi 1 00

NEW YORK—Cont'd.

Coushafter, W ... 25
Covey, Miss Grace 2 30
Courad, Rev E H 1 00
Cox, Mrs J 50
Cox, Mrs Wm.... 50
Cramer, Mrs A... 1 00
Cramer, Annie E 3 00
Cramer, Reuben C 1 00
Crane, Cassius .. 50
Crane, Sarah F.. 1 00
Crawford, Claud.. 07
Crawford, Miss, N Y 4 00
Crosbar, M 1 63
Crosber, A 74
Crosby, Mrs E & daughters 5 00
Crosby, Harry .. 1 50
Crooks, Miss H... 15
Cross, Mrs H K. 1 00
Crowell, A C, Brooklyn 25 00
Cudney, Ger 2 00
Culver, E E..... 30
Culver, Mrs M L. 50
Culverwell, Mrs W 1 00
Cummiugs, A J.. 3 00
Curtis, E 25
Curtis, Geo S....10 00
Curtis, Mr W F.. 50
Cumunings, Mrs M 75
Curtis Hazel & Carrie 50
Curtis, Mrs J..... 25
Cushman, M 1 00
Cutler, B H..... 1 00
Cutler, Emma 25
Dailey, Mrs D L. 1 00
Daniels, Geo 2 25
Darbee, Mrs L.... 1 00
Darling, Mrs G W 1 00
Dater, Clara E... 1 00
Dater, Mrs H N.. 1 00
Davis, Edgar 02
Davis, Eva W.... 20
Davis, Everil 10
Davis, Mrs H L.. 1 00
Davis, M E 2 00
Davis, M I 1 00
Davis, M R..... 2 00
Day, R & R B.... 2 00
Dayton, R B 1 00
Dean, C 2 00
Deats, Mrs W.... 1 00
De Graff, Mrs A.. 1 00
De Lamater, Dora W 2 00
Delaney, Sarah... 45
De Melt, Mrs D.. 1 00
Denniston, Mrs G S 1 00
Denton, Clara ... 3 00
Denton, M E 1 00
Diffin, Nellie, Coll 8 00
Dewitt, Fred 25
Dominick, J G.... 1 00
Doney, E 1 00
Doty, Lillie E.... 1 00
Drum, Mrs A..... 20
Drum, Geo 10
Drum, Mrs J..... 25
Dunham, Mrs D A 1 00
Dunham, Mrs L.. 1 00
Dutton, Mrs H H. 1 00
Dake, C E..... 3 18
Dakin, E T..... 5 00
Dana, Prof 1 00
Danielsen, Miss J 2 00
Daniels, L 25
Daris, Mrs J H & S S Class..... 4 00
Davenport, Mrs C S 15
Davis, H A..... 15
Davis, H H..... 50
Davis, Harriet J. 1 05
Davis, L A..... 5 00
Davis, N 07
Davis, Sarah C... 2 00
Davy, Ralph 1 00
Dawley, Mrs N J. 25
Dawly, Mrs H.... 1 00
Dawly, W J..... 10
Dean, Mrs F N.. 10
Dean, Mrs John.. 50
De Baum, M 28
Decker, Walter H 25
Deltze, Miss I.... 25
Deep, Mrs John.. 25
Degolia, Mrs E... 50
Degolia, Mr Jno.. 50
Demlar, Katie ... 50
Demlar, Mrs 50
Deneshil, Mrs ... 25
Denison, Mrs A.. 50
Denton, F M..... 3 00
Depfer, Ellz & M 1 00
De Smith, Abr... 25
Dewey, Miss E.. 1 00
DeWitt, J M..... 25
Dingonan, Mrs N. 1 00
Dodds, Thos 1 00
Dollenger, Mrs J.. 1 00
Donlin, Mrs F.... 10
Dormandy, J G... 2 00
Doyle, Mrs Jas J 25
Drake, A M..... 1 00
Drake, Mrs A M. 1 00
Drake, Floyd 25
Drake, Mrs Fred. 25
Drake, Mrs L M.. 1 00
Drake, Mr & Mrs M 5 00
Drew, Grace E... 1 00
Dublin, J E & fam 5 00
Dulton, Miss A... 1 00
Durham, Mrs H.. 25
Dye, Susle..... 10
Eastman, E, Coll by 1 00
Eastman, J P.'... 2 00
Edler, M D 50
Edmonds, Miss H. 25
Edmund, W H.... 1 00
Edwards, Bertha. 10
Edwards, Mr D H 50
Edwards, Frank.. 10
Edwards, Mrs H D 1 00
Edwards, Mr Jno. 50
Edwards, Mrs Jno 50
Edwards, Mirian.. 10
Eisenhart, Catherine 3 00
Embt, Mrs 1 00
Emerick, B L 2 00

NEW YORK—Cont'd.

Ensign, J O 1 00
Erskine, E H 25
Evaus, John 50
Everest, B F 05
Everest, Mrs B F. 20
Faucher, I M 1 25
Earl, Charlie 1 00
Eastman, Mrs A.. 25
Eastmau, Mrs Ira 1 00
Easton, S B.....10 00
Eames, Isabella.. 2 00
Eeker, Mr Chas.. 10
Eckert, Mr J W.. 10
Eddy, Mrs B.... 3 00
Edwards, Mrs H D 1 00
Edward, Mrs L.. 1 00
Edwards, O C.... 5 00
Eggert, Mrs C J.. 50
Egglestou, Mrs N B 1 00
Ellard, T 2 00
Ellettson, Job ..100 00
Ellis, Ralph T... 1 00
Elmer, Fred, G W & Son 1 00
Emery, John W...50 00
Emery, Lee 1 00
Emmons, Miss M. 1 00
English, Mrs S... 1 00
Ennis, Mrs E & M Leneges 2 00
Evans, Mrs J..... 1 00
Evans, Jennie 25
Evans, Mrs John. 50
Evans, T 50
Fairfield, Chas ... 1 00
Fairfield, Mrs C. 1 00
Farnham, Mrs C M 1 00
Farrell, Bridget.. 50
Fay, Mrs A W.... 1 00
Fenton, Robt E, Coll by 60
Ferguson, F H... 5 00
Ferguson, Mrs S A 3 00
Field, Mrs C D.. 50
Files, Norman ... 87
Fish, Lore 11 11
Fisler, Sal 2 00
Fling, Mrs A A.. 1 00
Foley, Mrs M.... 15
Forbes, Mrs H... 25
Fosgate, Miss ... 1 00
Fosmer, Mrs 05
Foster, Geo D... 50
Foster, Mrs W L. 20
Fowler, Lucy N.. 25
Franklin, Mrs P.. 1 00
French, Mr & Mrs W P..... 1 00
Frink, Chester ... 15
Frink, Mrs C.... 15
Frink, Harley 10
Frink, Mrs O.... 50
Frink, Miss V.... 10
Frisbee, Mrs L R. 1 00
Frost, Mrs E L..15 00
Frost, May 5 00
Fuller, Bertha M. 2 00
Fuller, Geo 25
Fuller, G A..... 1 00
Fulton, Chas 50
Fults, Jacob 1 20
Fcro, Mrs John .. 15
Field, Josephine, Brooklyn 1 00
Fillmore, Mrs 1 00
Filson, J P 7 00
Finley, G 2 00
Fish, Mrs Geo ... 20
Fish, Raymond.... 10
Fisher, Mrs M D.. 1 00
Fitch Praying Band 4 50
Flanders, Mrs M.. 1 00
Fleming, Johu B.. 1 00
Flynn, Geo 15
Flynn, Mrs Mary.. 10
Gaddis, Chas E... 2 00
Gallagher, Rodney 05
Gallagher ,Mrs W C 50
Gardner, H G.... 2 35
Gardner, Leta M. 1 00
Gay, Mrs L..... 25
Garlock, Arthur & Grace 1 00
Gillette, Mrs J & May Louusbery. 1 00
Gilliugs, Mrs J...10 00
Gleason, Ersula .. 05
Gleason, Sarah... 05
Gloyd, Ralph 05
Gonzales, Mrs M. 1 00
Goodman, Juliet, Coll by 3 25
Goodrich, C V.... 5 00
Gordon, Mrs G, Jr 2 00
Gordon, Jennie .. 6 00
Gott, Ella..... 10
Gough, Mrs C B. 2 00
Gough, M E..... 25
Gracy, Mrs 75
Graham, Miss S.. 5 00
Granby, Wm 1 00
Grant, V M..... 3 00
Green, C F..... 1 00
Green, Jas T.....10 00
Gregor, C A..... 1 00
Gregory, Miss F M 5 00
Gregory, Magdalene Ogden, Hortense Stenz, Emma .. Senior, Margarite Sutton, Elsie .. Cornell, Gladis.. Geddes, Edith.. Weiss, Graee ..16 00
Griffin, Mrs W H 1 00
Griffith, Geo 2 00
Griffith, Miss M E 50
Griffiths, Mrs W W 2 00
Griswold, C E... 1 00
Guest, Myrtie J.. 15
Gunn, Mrs 25
Gurnee, H 14
Haas, Miss 50
Hagaman, C A... 2 00
Hagaman, C A... 1 00
Hagaman, C A.... 2 00
Hagaman, C A... 1 00
Hagaman, C A... 1 00
Hall, Mrs Alfred. 1 00
Hall, Bertha 25

NEW YORK—Cont'd.

Hall, Miss Cora.. 35
Hall, Edna 05
Hall, Estus 25
Hall, Gleeu 05
Hall, Mrs Jas.... 1 00
Hall, James S.... 2 00
Hall, Laura 15
Hall, W R..... 1 00
Hall, Mrs 50
Hallam, Mr & Mrs John 1 00
Hamliu, D H..... 1 00
Halliugsworth, O A 5 00
Halstead, H E.... 1 00
Hammond, Sarah. 25
Hanmer, Minnie.. 50
Haud, Augusta ... 25
Hankin, R E..... 87
Hanor, Nellie 10
Harues, Miss M.. 25
Harris, Abut 25
Harris, Mr Jas... 1 00
Harriugton, L 1 00
Harrison, Miss E. 30
Harrisou, F L.... 30
Hart, Godfrey.... 5 00
Harvey, Mrs M... 05
Harbrouck, W D. 5 00
Haskell, Mrs F E. 50
Haskins, L N.... 1 00
Hastes, L 10
Hastiugs, Mrs L. 1 00
Hauxhurst, C T... 1 00
Haveu, Clara B.. 1 00
Havens, Mrs R... 1 00
Hawkins, Rev L T 50
Hawland, L M....15 00
Hayhurst, E E... 1 00
Hazelton, E J.... 1 00
Heald, Mrs L E.. 50
Heilbroun, A W.. 1 00
Henry, Mr & Mrs T 2 00
Hess, Frauk..... 2 00
Hewitt, R J..... 1 00
Hickey, Mrs Jno.. 50
Hickox, Geo B... 50
Hickox, M D..... 1 00
Higgins, C D..... 25
Hill, Mrs M..... 1 00
Hilmer, Franeis .. 25
Hilmer, J A..... 25
Hilmer, Lenard .. 25
Hilmer, P L..... 25
Hiuekley, S H & M E 1 00
Hind, Mrs T M.. 2 00
Hitchcock, L L... 1 00
Hitchcock, Miss M T 50
Hitchcoek, Mrs M T 25
Hitt, Mrs Lewis.. 2 00
Hizer, Miss Maria 1 00
Hoag, Mrs Chas.. 50
Hodge, Mrs Grant 25
Hodgkins, M E... 1 00
Hodgland, Flo ... 25
Hodgland, Rob .. 50
Hoffman, Mrs M.. 1 00
Hogg, Mr & Mrs. 5 00
Holburton, J A... 5 00
Holmes, Mrs A A 25
Holmes, Mrs B... 25
Holt, Mrs Juliet.. 1 00
Hooker, Mrs 3 00
Hommell, Ford .. 50
Horu, Ella M.... 25
Horton, Miss E G 2 00
Horton, Mrs Mary 1 00
Honck, Mrs Mary. 1 00
Honstou, Mr Jno. 05
Hotchkiss, Geo .. 10
Howard, Mrs Jas. 1 00
Howard, M A.... 10
Hoyt, Mrs Belle.. 50
Hubbard, A G.... 50
Huff, Mr 50
Hughes, Miss A.. 50
Hultslander, Mrs R J 5 00
Hunt, Mrs DeF... 1 00
Hunter, Mrs M E 1 00
Huritenburg, J M 50
Ingrahaui, Anna.. 1 00
Ireland, Miss M.. 60
Jackson, Mrs C A 1 00
Jackson, Mr & Mrs J W 10 00
Jackson, Mrs S.. 25
Jamersou, C 1 00
Jaquay, E 1 00
Jardeson, A, B, E, L & E..... 1 00
Jaycox, Mrs W... 1 00
Jefts, F 1 00
Jefts, Mrs F..... 25
Jenkins, Frances. 10
Jenks, A H..... 1 00
Jennings, E 1 00
Johnson, Mrs A D 1 00
Johnson, Mrs I..| 25
Johnson, Rebecca. 2 00
Johnson, Wm 1 00
Jolls, N S..... 25
Jones, Charles ... 2 00
Jones, Ella 1 00
Jones, Mrs M L.. 2 00
Jones, S M..... 2 00
Joy, Mrs F L.... 1 00
Judson, Miss M L 5 00
Kafod, May 50
Kasbeth, Miss F.. 50
Kaufmau's, Miss L S S Class..... 11
Kaufman, Mrs W J 1 00
Kaveny, Mrs J... 15
Kazer, W W..... 50
Kelley, Mrs W.... 2 00
Kelley, Miss 25
Kellogg, Mr F... 1 00
Kellogg, Mrs G R 1 00
Kellogg, Mrs Wm. 2 00
Kendall, A 1 25
Kennedy, E R... 82
Kerr, Mrs & Mr.. 50
Kind, N J..... 1 00
King, Gertrude .. 05
King, Luman 1 00
King, Mrs P..... 1 00
King, Mrs R..... 2 00
Kipp, Edith, A... 30
Kirby, Mr E M & fam 87
Klein, Clara 1 00
Kline, Nellie 25

NEW YORK—Cont'd.

Knapen, A D.... 1 00
Knapeu, Mrs A D 1 00
Kuapp, J W.....10 00
Kuight, A J..... 3 00
Knight, Mrs A J & W A..... 2 00
Kratt, F 25
Kuhn, Mrs 75
Kuuyon, Mrs I... 50
La Dow, C 35 00
Laidler, Miss M.. 50
Laidler, Miss N H 50
Laire, Mrs Wm.. 1 00
Lakiu, Earl 25
Lakiu, Miss Grace 15
Lakin, H D..... 25
Lakin, J L..... 25
Lakin, Jas 50
Lakiu, Mrs Jas... 25
Lakin, Miss M... 25
Lakin, Mrs P..... 1 10
Lancaster, Aliee.. 2 00
Lane, Lulla 10
Langtree, Snsie.. 50
Lanphere, Mrs A L 2 00
Lausing, Mrs D.. 1 00
Larned, J D..... 20
Lasher, Cora 10
Lasher, Mary H.. 1 00
Lay, Louise A....10 02
Layton, E 1 00
Lawton, Mrs H.. 6 00
Leaeh, Mrs L.... 1 00
Leadbetter, Mrs E 2 00
Learned, Miss M. 1 00
Le Clar, Miss G.. 25
Lehman, R 1 00
Lehr, Miss Maude 1 60
Lehr, Miss Susie. 25
Leonard, Oliver.. 1 00
Lewis, Caroline .. 1 02
Lewis, Mrs H.... 25
Lewis, Mrs W F 25
Levee, Mrs Chas.. 25
Lewis, Frauk 1 00
Leworth, H 50
Linderman, Mrs J 2 00
Livingstou, J T.. 3 00
Lloyd, G & Jas Cox 2 00
Locke, Earl 50
Lockie, G F..... 5 00
Lockman, Mrs N. 25
Lont, Miss Mary. 25
Loomis, Mrs F C. 10
Losie, Jno H.... 2 00
Lounsbery, Anna. 1 00
Loveland, Mrs S, Coll by 3 70
Lyke, John 1 00
Lyke, Mrs S T... 50
Lyle, R W..... 5 00
McAfee, H U.... 2 00
McArthur, Mrs J. 5 00
McBride, R 3 00
McCabe, H 25
McDonald, Blanche 25
McDonald, Johu.. 1 00
McDonald, M 8 00
McGerald, A 25
McGeoch & family 3 00
McGovern, Mrs... 25
McIntosh, M..... 5 00
McKeuon, Mrs W 1 00
McLeau, Mrs A... 1 50
McManes, Jas ... 3 00
McMillau, Miss C 2 00
McNall, Mrs J H 1 00
McWethey, Mrs J P 2 00
Malcome, Mrs H. 1 00
Maugles, Mr Jno 05
Manniug, Mgt A.. 2 50
Manzer, K..... 1 00
Markle, Dien A.. 1 00
Marsh, Sarah ... 1 00
Marshall, Mr Geo 75
Martin, Mrs H... 25
Martin, Wm R... 3 50
Martin, Mrs 3 00
Mason, A J..... 25
Masou, Carl J.... 15
Mason, E J..... 25
Mason, Eulalia A 15
Mason, L A..... 1 00
Mason, Mary 10
Mason, Susie 10
Mathews, Mrs J.. 5 00
Mattesou, K 05
Mattison, Mrs C M 25
Maxwell, A 1 00
Maxwell, A 50
Mead, Geo E & S D 2 00
Mead, Geo N..... 1 00
Meade, Mr & Mrs K E 25
Meaker, W H.... 5 00
Meheir, Mrs Elleu 1 00
Merrill, E C..... 25
Merrill, Mrs D... 1 00
Merring, M 10
Mesick, Dr 10
Miekens, Mrs F.. 1 00
Middlebrook, H... 25
Middleton, Mrs A 50
Middleton, Arthur 25
Millard, Mrs F... 25
Miller, Miss E... 25
Miller, Floyd 05
Miller, Miss M... Guimarats, M... Thompson, B .. Tuttle, D 15 00
Miller, M O..... 30
Mills, Laura May, thro 10
Mitchell, H G.... 2 00
Mitchell, J S.... 2 00
Mitchel, Mrs O C 15
Mocline, Miss C.. 5 00
Moffett, Flora A. 1 00
Montauuy, M E.. 25
Montgomery, Mrs C T 5 00
Montgomery, Mrs R 1 00
Montross, Julia .. 10
Morris, Mrs 25
Morrison, Mrs A. 25
Morrison, Mrs N. 1 00
Morrow, Wm J... 10
Morse, Eliz A.... 25
Morse, Jane E... 25
Morse, L 1 00

NEW YORK—Cont'd.

Morse, Mrs L..... 30
Morse, May 50
Morse, Thos 50
Morse, Wm 1 00
Mott, J C..... 1 00
Moon, Mr & Mrs L, F, Mrs Wm, Wm S & Mrs H Hasbrouck 4 75
Moone, Ed 25
Moore, Fred 25
Moore, G L..... 25
Moore, Mrs S E. 50
Moore, Willie.... 19
Moot, Allen 1 00
Moultou, Mrs E.. 25
Mulhuron, Kattie. 10
Mulhuron, Mrs... 25
Mullen, Mrs W F 50
Mulligan, B 1 00
Munson, Dr & son 5 00
Murphy, Mrs D.. 10
Near, C C..... 2 00
Neff, Miss Carrie. 05
Neff, Mr 05
Neitchy, E 1 07
Nelson, Amanda.. 1 00
Nelson, A E..... 3 00
Nelson, Rev C... 10
Nelson, M..... 1 05
Neville, Frank ... 1 00
Newey, Miss L... 25
Nichman, Fred... 1 50
Nichols, Mrs H W 60
Niehols, Mrs O... 25
Niles, Mrs C N.. 25
Niles, Emily A... 20
Niles, Florence W 25
Niles, Mrs T F.. 10
Niles, Mrs T P... 10
Noel, Mr & Mrs.. 50
Norris, J M..... 50
Northrop, Mrs F. 1 00
Nottingham, Wm.10 00
Oberlie, Lawreuee 25
O'dell, Ellen 1 23
O'Hara, Mrs 1 00
Ohm, Miss M.... 30
Oles, Mira 25
O'Neil, Mrs W... 25
Osborn, Mrs O.... 1 00
Oswald, Mr & Mrs L G 1 00
Palmer, Ira 10
Pangburu, Lucia R 1 00
Parker, Diaua ... 10
Parker, Miss K.. 50
Parker, Miss M.. 50
Parker, Mrs M... 1 00
Parker, R 1 00
Parker, W A..... 1 00
Paton, Mrs Ida.. 20
Paul, Jennie H... 10
Payue, Charles... 10
Payue, Frank ... 50
Payne, Mrs J H.. 50
Peacey, Mrs H E 1 00
Pearce, Dr G S.. 1 00
Pease, E J..... 50
Peck, Mrs L W.. 25
Pedro, Jos H..... 1 00
Penny, J H..... 1 00
Perkins', Mrs, Sch.25 00
Perkins, Mrs Bert 1 00
Persous, L F..... 1 00
Peter, Herman... 10
Peterson, Mrs ... 25
Petrie, Miss M... 25
Philps, Mrs Julia. 5 00
Phenney, Mrs W. 25
Phillipi, L 1 00
Phillips, L 72
Pickard, A J..... 25
Piekles, Miss Mary 3 00
Pierce, Mrs Bert. 1 00
Pierce, G A..... 50
Pierce, Leon 10
Pierce, Miss M... 10
Pierce, Mrs Wm.. 1 00
Piney, Claude ... 25
Pinuey, Mrs N.... 25
Pinuey, Mrs Fred 25
Pinney, Mrs H... 25
Pintler, C & C... 1 00
Pluff, Lewis 2 00
Pomeroy, Amy C. 1 00
Porter, Mrs C S.. 5 25
Porter, E B..... 25
Porter, Mrs E B. 25
Porter, Jas 10
Post, Arthur 15
Possiuo, Geo 02
Potter, Charles... 1 00
Potter, C J..... 25
Potter, Mrs H M. 25
Potter, Joseph.... 50
Potter, L H..... 25
Potter, L Mae... 1 00
Potter, Wm 1 00
Powell, M C..... 50
Powers, R A..... 50
Powers, Sarah .. 2 00
Praseer, W A.... 50
Prehu, Thomas, N Y 5 00
Preston, Henry .. 15
Prime, Clyde 1 00
Prime, Raymond. 1 00
Prime, Mrs S W.. 2 00
Pulver, Mrs M E 2 00
Pulver, Mrs M E. 35
Purce, Miss J.... 10
Purdy, Reed 50
Purdy, W H..... 50
Purdy, Mrs 50
Purhamus, Mr B. 15
Pye, R H..... 1 00
Quiek, Mrs S A.. 2 00
Quiek, Miss 25
Ralph, David 5 00
Raudalls, Wm ... 25
Rathbun, Ward... 50
Ray, Mrs O F... 5 00
Raynor, Ellen A.. 3 00
Read, Miss E A.. 1 50
Reed, Mrs Julius. 1 00
Reed, Jno A..... 10
Reed, Mary E.... 10
Reed, Robert 1 00
Reed, S P..... 5 00
Reger, Eliza 15
Reger, W M..... 70
Reger, Mrs W M. 25
Reichel, E A..... 1 00
Rellim, H 5 00
Relong, Mrs H W 10

NEW YORK—Cont'd.

Reynolds, A 1 00
Reynolds, Mrs B F 1 00
Reynolds, G E... 5 00
Rice, Edw N..... 1 00
Rice, M T..... 1 00
Richardson, Mrs C 25
Richardson, Mrs M 10
Richardson, Mrs S 50
Richardson, S M. 1 00
Riker, Miss M S, Coll by 6 00
Rikley, Violet ... 1 00
Ringers,' Mrs, S S Class 1 90
Rippey, H L..... 1 00
Ritch, Mrs H.... 1 00
Roach, Albert 25
Roberts, Chas ... 25
Robinson, Mrs J A 10 00
Roe, Mrs J B.... 5 00
Roe, Mrs P & Son 50
Rogers, W H..... 5 00
Rood, A B, (M D) 5 00
Rood, Mrs B..... 5 00
Rose, L M..... Thompson, Mrs O & Murray Thompson & Banter, M 5 00
Rosebrook, Mrs S 50
Rondolph, A F... 25
Rouse, N & fam. 1 00
Rowe, Winnie E.. 3 43
Rowen, Mrs D.... 25
Rowley, Henry .. 5 00
Rowley, Jennie A 25
Roys, Lena 2 00
Rnseo, Geo 1 00
Rnshmore, Mrs R 2 00
Rnssell, Mrs E... 50
Sackett, Mrs C C 1 00
Sackett, Mrs F A. 1 00
Sage, L T..... 1 00
Sanders, Mrs M.. 1 00
Sanford, Mrs 50
Sargent, E L..... 5 00
Sargent, Mary M. 1 00
Savage, Mrs R... 1 00
Sawyer, Ida E... 10
Sawyer, M J..... 05
Schmidt, Susie .. 10
Schoonmaker, Miss D 10
Scofield, Miss E.. 05
Scott, M C..... 10
Sears, Mr & Mrs E R 2 00
Seeber, J L..... 1 00
Seeley, Mrs Ella. 1 00
Severance, F B.. 8 00
Seyfang, Mrs J & Mrs J M..... 2 00
Seymonr, Elton... 25
Shannon, E J.... 1 00
Shannon, F 1 00
Shaw, C M..... 1 00
Shaw, Dan 10
Shaw, Mrs 10
Shedd, Dr 25
Sheldon, Albert .. 1 00
Sheldon, Mrs N T. 20
Shepard, Mrs S..15 00
Sherman, Mrs Ed. 50
Sherman, Wm ... 25
Sheufelt, Mrs P.. 25
Sheufelt, Roys ... 10
Sherwood, Frank. 1 00
Shippee, Nathan.. 50
Shoemaker, Mrs M A 15
Shopin, Ethel 05
Shumway, Miss C 25
Shute, Mrs Hy... 15
Sievers, C M A.. 15
Silsbee, Luciuda.. 1 00
Simons, Mr & Mrs W 2 00
Simpson, Fanny.. 5 00
Sisson, Mrs B F.. 50
Sisson, B S..... 50
Sisson, Harry ... 10
Skiff, Mrs E & Mrs L Sylvester. 2 00
Skiff, Glen 1 00
Skiff, Russell 1 00
Skinner, Pauline.. 09
Slingerland, H ... 2 00
Slocum, Thomas.. 10
Smiley, Mrs Clara 25
Smith, Mrs A.... 25
Smith, Mrs Ann.. 1 00
Smith, A L..... 25
Smith, Chas..... 10
Smith, Esther.... 40
Smith, E O.....10 00
Smith, Mrs Fred.. 1 00
Smith, F A..... 5 00
Smith, Geo 10
Smith, Mr & Mrs H 45
Smith, Mrs I 10
Smith, John 2 00
Smith, Mrs Jos... 1 00
Smith, Mrs K A. 2 00
Smith, Mrs L.... 5 00
Smith, Mrs Laura 05
Smith, Mrs Lillian 1 00
Smith, Mrs M.... 25
Smith, Mattie A.. 3 25
Smith, M C..... 1 00
Smith, May & F.. 50
Smith, M P..... 1 00
Smith, Mrs P 10
Smith, Mrs Robt. 05
Smith, Mrs R R.. 2 00
Smith, T A, Coll by 5 00
Snedeker, A 45
Snook, Miss J.... Mott, K ..... Cowles Mrs C V. 50
Snow, H N.....25 00
Snow, Mrs S J & Miss Ella Smith. 1 00
Snyder, Martin .. 5 00
Southard, F L.... 1 00
Sommers, F 25
Sparrowhawk, Mr G 25
Spaulding Mrs S. 25
Spear, Miss R J.. 50
Spence, E M.....10 00
Spencer, Mrs I... 50
Speir, Miss A L. 1 00

NEW YORK—Cont'd.

Spinhern, Martin. 5 00
Sprague, T 2 00
Sprague, Mrs H E 2 00
Sprague, Mr & Mrs S H 2 00
Sprague, W D.... 3 00
Spraker, Mrs J E10 00
Stafford, Hattie .. 10
Staley, Mrs E.... 05
Stanton, Huldah.. 05
Stearns, Mrs W E 1 00
Steele, Mrs A.... 2 00
Stemhilber, Mrs G 1 00
Steitz, Will 10
Stephens, A 1 00
Stephens, C H.... 25
Stevens, Anna B. 2 50
Stevens, Mrs L M 2 00
Stever, Sara 15
Steward, Chas .. 1 00
Steward, Mrs E.. 25
Stewart, Mrs H L 1 00
Stewart, A E.... 05
Stewart, Mrs C.. 50
Stewart, W L.... 05
Stickles, May 01
Stickles, Mrs Will 25
Stilson, D E..... 3 00
Stoddard, Mrs M C 1 00
Stone, Mrs T.... 25
Stone, Wm D.... 1 00
Story, G A & wf. 1 00
Stove, R C..... 1 00
Strail, H 25
Strait, Bernard .. 10
Streeter, Jessie... 2 05
Stricklaud, Mrs T A 2 00
Strong, B E.....25 00
Sturges, D M..... 1 00
Sullivan, Mrs 25
Sumner, Miss L.. 50
Sutherland, Mrs H 1 00
Sutherland, Mrs L 2 28
Sutherland, Mrs T 25
Swartwout, R ... 59
Swartz, Mrs Wm. 25
Swigert, F W.... 1 00
Swinton, Mr & Mrs R W..... 25
Symonds, Mrs J.. 10
Teetsel, Esther & Belva ..... Deriuger, Susie & Lillie ..... Cooke, Florence. & Effie ..... Wolven, Laura.. Smith, Stella ... Miller, Jane .... Saxe, Ethel 1 00
Temple, Mrs G B. 1 00
Tenner, M M..... 50
Thayer, Orin 5 00
Thayer, Mrs O C. 25
Thomas, Mrs Kate 50
Thomas, Mrs Lena 2 00
Thompson, Miss A 1 00
Thornton, Julins.. 25
Thornton, Mrs S.. 50
Thornton, Mrs W 25
Thurston, Nellie.. 1 00
Tibbetts, Mrs E B 1 00
Tidel, Mrs E S.. 25
Tilton, R J..... 1 00
Tisdole, Mr C.... 25
Titus, Mrs P..... 50
Titus, Stanley.... 26
Tolles, Miss E A.. 1 00
Torrance, Cortis.. 1 00
Torrance, E L.... 1 00
Towne, Mrs C.... 20
Towne, H E..... 25
Towne, Mrs L.... 05
Townsend, Mrs A. 50
Townsend, Geo .. 50
Townsley, Mrs G L 50
Townsley, Mrs S. 25
Trenham, Carrie.. 25
Trotter, Miss K.. 1 00
Tuck, H J..... 1 00
Turner, W C.... 1 00
Tuthill, Mrs Jas.. 50
Tyler, Mrs E A.. 1 00
Tyler, E J..... 1 00
Tyler, Mrs M E. 2 00
Tynan, E 1 63
Underhill, Mrs E A 1 00
Upham, M K & wf 2 00
Van Antwerp, Mrs 30
Van Buskirk, Mrs J 1 00
Van Court, Mrs D P 1 00
Van De Mark, V. 25
Van Loan, E 2 00
Van, Mrs Lonera. 25
Vail, Sarah 5 00
Van Sickle, S E.. 1 00
Van Wagner, Mrs 1 00
Van Vaulkenburg, Mrs R A..... 25
Vann, Mrs I G..10 00
Vann, R Y.....10 00
Vanname, E F... 1 00
Vannatta, Mrs L. 1 00
Van Valkenburg, Mrs T 10
Vedder, Mrs P... 05
Veeder, Mr & Mrs Edw 2 00
Veley, Burte 50
Veley, M E..... 3 00
Very, Mr John.... 1 00
Vincent, Hattie D 25
Voorhees, Mrs M. 2 00
Wade, Betsey ... 1 00
Wade, True 10
Wager, L G..... 1 00
Wagman, Mr & Mrs 2 00
Wagoner, Mrs M. 25
Waldron, C 10
Waldron, Mrs C. 25
Waldron, G 10
Waldron, Mrs R.. 55
Walker, Rev G F. 50
Wallace, Mrs Inez 25
Walsh, W 25
Waltermire, Minnie 25
Wancy, Miss J... 25
Ward, D W..... 25
Ward, T E & wf. 2 00
Ward, Willie 50

NEW YORK—Cont'd.

Warfield, Mrs Z.. 50
Washbnn, M 25
Washington, Miss 25
Washington, Mrs 25
Washington, W G P 75
Washington, W J 25
Wastie, Clara ... 15
Waterman, A M.. 50
Waters, B F..... 1 00
Watkins, Mrs 50
Watrous, Mrs D S 04
Watson, Mrs G W, Coll by 6 08
Wattles, Herbert.. 10
Way, Mrs Henry. 1 00
Weast, Mrs 25
Weaver, Rev E, Coll by 3 25
Weber, E 1 00
Webster, Mrs D J 1 00
Welch, J S..... 50
Weld, Clyde A.... 50
Weller, W J..... 2 00
Welles, M B & family 9 00
Wells, Erma.....10 69
Wells, M F..... 10
Wells, Mrs W.... 2 00
Wert, Mrs Jno.... 15
Westermayr, Miss F, Coll by 3 20
Westermayr, R J. 2 00
Weyant, E 1 16
Whaley, Edw & frds 4 50
Whaling, Mrs J... 2 00
Wheeler, Mrs E.. 1 00
Wheeler, Mrs F H 10
Wheeler, Mr 50
White, Miss E M 50
White, J 05
White, Mrs T R.. 15
Whittiug, Mrs E.. 20
Whitwood, Chas.. 50
Widger, Mrs Jas.. 1 00
Wiest, Lizzie 1 00
Wilber, Mrs J.... 25
Wilber, Sarah ... 10
Wilbur, F H..... 2 00
Wilder, Fannie M 1 10
Wilkeson, Elleu A 5 00
Wilkinson, C 75
Wilkinson, Geo L 1 00
Willard, Miss J.. 05
Williams, Mrs A L 1 00
Williams, Mrs C.. 5 00
Williams, Mrs J M 1 00
Williams, Mary E 2 00
Wilson, Alice 1 00
Wilson, Beecher.. 40
Wilson, Mrs Lucy 1 00
Wilson, Sarah E. 2 00
Wilson, Mrs W H 1 00
Wiltse, Clarence.. 25
Wing, P R..... 2 00
Wing, W T..... 50
Wisterman, Mrs M 1 00
Witbeck, Mrs J H 2 00
Witherill, J N.... 1 00
Witzig, Beuj 1 00
Winters, Mrs A M 50
Wolfenden, Mrs E 1 00
Wood, A 10
Wood, Francis E. 10
Wood, John C.... 1 00
Wood, Mrs M.... 1 00
Woodham, H 1 00
Woodmanser, O L 1 00
Woolrich, Mrs E. 10
Woolrich, Mrs G. 10
Wright, C W..... 50
Wright, Carrie M. 25
Wright, Mrs E H 1 00
Wright, Jos T.... 3 00
Wright, S H..... 1 00
Wrigut, Mr V T.. 12
Yeager, Robt E.. 1 50
Young, David A.. 5 00
Young, H W..... 1 00
Young, Mrs R G.. 40
Youngman, C D.. 2 00
Bertha K, Northport 1 00
Morris P——, Jamaica 10 00
A & C, N Y C... 4 00
A C H, Otego.... 1 00
A H, Rose.....15 00
A R, N Y City... 1 00
C F D, Wayland. 1 00
E J H, Brooklyn.. 1 00
E K L, Upper Red Hook 2 00
E M H P, Willsboro 1 00
E P W, E Avon.. 1 00
Mrs G A R, Troy25 00
G S P, Mountainville 2 00
H A E, Lansingburg 1 00
Mrs H C A, Hamilton 1 00
H L H, East Patchogue 1 00
H W C, Brooklyn 10
H F C, Minerva.. 1 00
I A H, Hopkinton 50
J M, Eagle Mills. 3 00
J M, Rhinebeck... 1 00
J S G, Clifton Park 1 00
L J T, Portland.. 50
L O T M, Bemus, Point 3 00
M C, Newark.... 1 00
M E & Anna T, Newburgh 1 00
M E C, Glencove. 1 00
Mrs M E C, Brooklyn 1 00
M F P, Sherman. 10
M J W, N Y C.... 1 00
P per C G A, Auburn 1 00
P J C, Spafford.. 1 00
P O, Delhi..... 50
R B S, Rochester 50
S B, Watertown.. 5 00
S P, Troy..... 1 00
S S P, Bath-on-the-Hudson 5 00
W W S, Poughkeepsie 100 00
——, Baldwinsville. 2 00

NEW YORK—Cont'd.

——, Cambridge .. 5 00
——, Centreport .. 1 00
——, Fair Haven.. 1 15
——, Flanders 25
——, Gardiner 3 00
——, Gorham 25
——, Hempstead .. 10
——, Homer 1 00
——, Hndson 25
——, Ithaca 5 00
——, Little Falls.. 5 00
——, Maloue 10
——, Medusa 1 00
——, Moira 2 00
——, Moriah 50
——, N Y C..... 5 00
——, N Y C..... 2 00
——, N Y C..... 1 00
——, N Y C..... 1 00
——, Nnnda 5 00
——, Park 1 00
——, Rural Grove.. 6 00
——, Schachticoke . 2 00
——, S W Oswego.15 00
——, Spg Valley...20 00
——, Syracuse 1 00
——, Utica 1 00
——, Warwick 1 00
——, W Seneca...400 00
Anon, Fernwood.. 2 00
Cash, N Y C..... 1 00
Cash, Ella, Reamsenburg 1 00
A Friend, Albany. 2 00
A Friend, Clayton 50
A Friend, Duanesburgh 2 00
A Friend, Dundee 2 00
A Friend, Montgomery 2 00
A Friend, N Y C. 2 00
A Friend, N Y C. 1 00
A Friend, N Y C.36 00
A Friend, Lansingburg 1 00
Friend, New Woodstock 50
A Friend, Bklyn.. 2 00
A Friend, Southhampton 2 00
A Friend, —.... 10
Friend, Barkerville 50
Friend, Crown Pt 04
Friend, Crown Pt 25
Friend, Crown Pt 05
Friend, Fredonia.. 1 50
Friend, Hancock. 50
Friend, Jasper....28 00
Friend, Johnstown 26
Friend, N Y C.... 2 00
Friend, N Y C.... 3 00
Friend, N Y C....10 00
Friend, Lockport. 1 00
Friend, Olean ...11 00
Friend, Paines Hollow 1 00
Friend, Randolph. 1 00
Friend, Shortsville 1 00
Friend, Yonkers-on-Hudson 1 00
Friend, S Livonia. 1 00
Friend, Wolcott .. 75
Friend, Canaedea. 3 00
Friends, Albion... 6 00
Friends, Saugerties 3 00
Friends, Caledonia 1 25
Friends, Dnnton.. 7 50
Friends, Schenectady 1 00
Friends, Shortsville 1 30
Three Friends, Aftou 2 00
Friends I H N, Crown Point ... 45
Friend E, Bklyn..15 00
Little Friends, Wakefield 5 75
Friends of the Miss spot-box, Bklyn. 2 00
Friends & Neighbors, S W Oswego 3 40
I H N, E Pembroke 50
I H N Club, Jamestown 1 10
I H N, N Y C... 8 58
I H N, Johnstown 2 00
I H N, Moravia.. 1 00
In His dear Name, Valatie 2 00
In Jesus Name, Barre 2 00
In the Name of Jesus, Ogdensburg 1 00
For Jesus Sake, Hancock 1 00
A Reader, Jamestown 1 00
A Reader, Liberty 1 00
Reader, Medina .. 1 00
Subr, Delanson... 3 00
Subr, Glens Falls. 1 00
Subrs of Greens Fruit Grower, Rochester 9 35
Subr, Eagle Bridge 2 00
A few Sympathizers, N Barton... 5 60
A Lady, Walker Valley 05
One who loves Jesus, Machias 2 00
People of Cazenovia 17 20
People of Bucks Bridge 17 00
People of Ontario13 72
People of Spring Valley 200 00
Citizens, Arcade. 31 52
Box 224, Trumansburg 1 00
W M S of Pt Tampa 15 00
Un Grange No 244 of Jamestown ..50 00
Infant Class, M E S Sch, Arcade.. 1 25
From E Randolph 7 70
Members & frds of M E Ch, N Sanford 23 09

NEW YORK—Cont'd.

From Raudolph .. 8 00
Excelsior Grange No 456, Navarino10 00
Children of P S No 3, Yonkers..18 00
Coll'n at M E Ch, Somers Centre, 11 00
Coll'n Bapt & Un Pres Chs, Burlington 20 00
Coll by 3 C E girls, Clancy, Miss J.. Latta, Eva .... Moss, Alberta .. 3 55
From a Shut-in, W Nyack 20
1st & 2d Prim Dpt High Sch, Cuba. 2 60
Sch District No 9, Wayne Co, Hnron 1 58
Rescue Mission, Syracuse 5 00
3 Kinderhookers.. 5 00
Millers Mills Grange Millers Mills ... 5 00
Clymer Grauge No 169 .....10 00
2 Canadian Frds, N Y C.....20 00
Class Inarta Trinity Sch 3 13
Member of Ascension Bapt Ch... 1 00
Chapel of the Nativity, Vanderveer Park, L I.. 5 35
Quartet, N Y C... 3 50
Coll from Lecture Wellsville 75 00
Voluntary Conts, Wellsville 10 90
Hawks Cl of Volney 9 45
Ladies of Vernon.10 00
A Presbyteriau, N Y City 2 00
Employees of Dnncan Co, Mechanicville 28 00
3 X, Esperance.. 2 00
Carpenters Cors Sch, Edinburgh. 25
One of Christs followers, Chenango 1 00
Another, Allegany 06
Altmar Village, Altmar 20 00
Chr People, Piue Woods 1 00
Box 430, Albion.. 1 00
Invalid, Greenbank 35
Whatsoever Cl of Trin M E S Sch, Newburgh 5 00
Prim Dept of M E S Sch 4 00
7th Day Bapt Ch, Nile 9 00
German Bapt Ch, N Y City 3 00
Lefferts Park Bapt Ch, Brooklyn....10 00
1st Bapt Ch, Stanford 8 00
M P Ch, So Bates 6 05
Cong Ch, Rushville10 20
M E Ch, Rossville 1 00
Bapt Ch, Plymouth 3 45
M E Ch, Plattekill 1 00
Pres Ch of Oyster Bay 10 00
Cong Ch, Moriah. 3 50
Welch Presby Ch, Remsen 17 00
Bapt Ch, Conkin Centre 13 83
M E Ch & Citizens N Western 5 00
M E Ch, Chatham Centre 5 50
Cross River Bapt Ch, Katonah ... 5 00
Marcellies Baptist Ch, Thorn Hill.. 8 50
Pres Ch, Hoosick Falls 11 45
Hopewell Pres Ch, Thompson Ridge 4 60
First Presby Ch, Aubnrn 20 00
Bapt Ch, Farmer.29 00
Ch of the Ascension Gloucester.15 00
M E Ch, Dexter.. 3 15
Bapt, Meth & Pres Chs of Gates Ctr 1 35
M E Ch, Greenville 3 81
The Bapt Church, Grapeville 7 50
Pres Ch, Conklin.10 00
First Presby Ch, Brockport 19 25
First Presby Ch, Augusta 5 65
Pine Woods S S, 2 50
Hope Chapel S S, White Plains .. 1 00
Olivet M E S Sch, Syracuse 8 00
1st Ger Bapt S S, N Y C..... 5 00
Un Breth Bapt S, Rapids 5 00
S S & Y P C E, Spring Brook.... 9 00
Boys S Sch Class, 1st W Pres Ch, Syracuse 2 50
1st Meth S Sch, Stockton 68
Bapt Ch, S Sch, Stockton 3 11
Un S Sch, South Grauby 3 18
Union S Sch, Jamaica So 6 00
M E S Sch, Jackson C'ner..... 2 75
Mendon Pres Soc.14 06
Scribner Hollow S Sch, Hunter.... 4 00
Mission S Sch, Hudson 3 24

NEW YORK—Cont'd.

All Saints S Sch, Great Neck.....39 02
All Saints S Sch, Great Neck.....10 00
Pres S Sch SS Cl, E Hampton..... 3 00
Jr Cla Bapt S Sch, Frewsburg 1 65
East Freetown S School 2 60
Class No 8 Bapt S Sch, Delevan. 2 00
Pres S Sch, Camillus 7 00
Ref Ch S Sch, Alexandria Bay. 5 00
Maple Grove S School, Pratt's Mill 8 75
Lower Fairfield M E S Sch, Candor 3 50
Oak Grove Un S Sch, Infield.....17 00
Willow Grove S Sch, Thiells 5 00
S Sch, Model City. 1 00
Union Evan S S, Corona 25 00
Johnson S Sch, Minisink 3 50
M E S Sch, Cherry Creek..... 5 00
C S School, Westbury 2 15
United Breth S Sch, Buffalo.... 2 50
E Williamsburg Ref'd S School, Brooklyn 3 28
New England Con S S, Long Island City..... 9 00
S Sch Children, Hannibal 18
S S Class, Brooklyn 60
Lakeville School, Thomastou 6 75
Wallkill Public School 6 15
Pupils of Intermediate Sch, Lyon Mountain 1 25
Home & Training Sch for Christian Workers, Albany23 00
Sch Dist No 19, C P Sherman, teacher 5 00
I O G T Lodge No 567, West Eaton 2 00
C E Soc 1st Bapt Ch, Whitehall... 9 45
Hopeful Circle K D, Watkins 10 00
Moravian Sr, Miss Y P S C E, Utica 5 00
Olivet M E, Y P S C E, Syracuse.10 00
Ladies' Aid Soc, Pierrepont 5 10
Sunshine S Soc of Woodhaven, Con S Sch, Ozone Park 5 00
Y P S C, Irondequoit 5 00
C E Soc of Clintou Coruers..... 3 00
K'sdau Presby S Sch, Camillus... 1 00
Leila Ep League, No Western..... 5 00
St Agnes Guild, Gouveneur 50 00
Miss Band, Burlington 7 00
Farther Light Cir of Bapt Ch, Burlington 4 00
C E Soc, Springtown 2 10
W C T U, of Cohoes, Albany.... 2 00
Grace Chapel Soc, Long Island City 5 00
Epworth League, Sinclairville 2 00
K'sdau Cir ofBapt Ch, Sennett..... 7 00
W C T U, Sing Sing 5 00
Ladies' B Class, Westminster Ch, Utica 6 00
Ladies' Aid Soc, M E Ch, Northampton 2 00
W S, of the West End Pres Ch, Albany 5 00
Helpiug Hand, Schenectady ... 2 00
C E Soc, Model City 2 00
Soc of Willing Workers of 1st Pres Ch, Sag Harbor 35 00
Y P Guild, Randolph 3 00
W C T U, Richford 1 00
Junior League of M E Ch, New Berlin 3 50
Education Soc, Munnsvule 12 00
W M Soc of Madison Bapt Ch....10 00
C E Soc Pres Ch, Hempstead 5 25
King's Dau, Great kills 1 00
Woman's Guild St Paul's Ch, Charlton 1 00
The Decatur Sewiug Club, Brooklyn 5 00
Epw Leag, M E Ch, Caldwell....12 77
Young People's Alliance 1st Evan Ch, Albany.....10 00

NEW YORK—Cont'd.

C E Union, Brooklyn 9 50
C E Soc, Cong'l Church 2 00
Ellicott Aid Soc, Dis No 4, Jamestown 8 75
The Lifters Clnb, Brooklyn 3 00
Ever Active Cir King's Daughters, Brooklyu.. 5 50
Y P S C E, Friends Ch, Elba 6 45
Young Ladies' Mission Cir, Hannibal 3 50
Y P S C E, Pres Ch, Northampton 2 00
Jr C E Soc, Livingston Manor.. 1 50
Helping Hand, Lansingburg 1 00
W C T U, Addison 20 00
W C T U, Philadelphia 29 00

MISCELLANEOUS

Barton, Ada 15
Castleman, Addie.. 25
Catharine, —.... 30
Duell, Christine... 03
Duell, Mrs Julia.. 10
Elliott, Annie 05
Farrar, Florence.. 05
Garrett, Alice 25
Glenham, T P..... 2 10
Grant, Geo H..... 25
Hadden, Alice ... 15
Harrington, Edna. 15
Harriugton, Silas. 10
Higgins, W, Neelysville 1 00
Hill, Myrtle E.... 1 00
Hubbard, Ed S... 05
Hubbard, George.. 05
Hubbard, John ... 10
Hubbard, Mary... 05
Hubbard, Sarah J 25
Isham's, Mrs E C, Social 4 10
Jewell, Beckie D 10
Johnson, Dr & Mrs 2 00
Johnson, F E..... 25
Johnson, Rev C A 15
Labrnn, Edna..... 15
Main, Miss E G.. 2 00
Mallenauer, H P & H L.....100 00
Middleton, Monga. 25
Moss, Alice 1 00
Mrs E K B, Kewanee 75
Nicholas, Lanra... 25
Pettit, Millie 1 50
Reed, Mrs Albert. 1 00
Richards, A M.... 1 00
Shaw, Ethel 10
Streeter, Ray 05
Swan, Jno 25
Walters, Annie M. 05
Walters, Rosa A. 05
Webber, Esther... 50
West, Mary 10
Young, Mrs P..... 1 00
——, —— 1 00
——, —— 5 00
——, —— 2 00
——, —— 1 00
——, Belfast 25
——, Brisbine 1 00
——, Brooksville... 2 50
——, Chester 2 50
——, Lake Comfort 25
——, Le Marshowa 2 00
——, Lorimer 1 00
——, New Plymouth 5 00
——, Olean 1 00
Anon, —— 1 00
Anon, —— 10
Anon, —— 25
Anon, —— 30
Anon, —— 30
Anon, —— 75
Anon, —— 1 00
Anon, —— 1 00
Anon, —— 1 00
Anon, —— 10
Anon, —— 1 00
Anon, —— 2 00
Friend, —— 25
Friend, —— 50
A Friend, —..... 1 00
Friend, —— 1 00
Friends, Akron ... 48
Friend, W Kiugston 1 00
Friends, —— 2 00
I H N, Middle Hope 1 00
Loaves & Fishes 30
Widow's Mite, Plainfield 2 00
An Interested Girl 11
A Little Girl, —— 25
S S Cl, No 2, Bapt, Warrensburgh .. 47
M E Ch, Hopewell 8 00
Beaver Ch Fund, Loyal 5 00
The Church at Raudallsville ... 4 54

FOREIGN

M E S Sch & Ch, Monterey.....97 00
Shaw, Isabella C.. 1 06
Waller Joseph 10 00
Alligator Pond Cong, Watson's Hill 10 00
Industrial Home, Matanzas 2 62
Jun E Soc, Portugnese Ev Church, Honolulu 2 00
Friends, Cape Haitien 5 00

Assassination of a King

A THRILL of horror went through the civilized world on July 29, when the news came that the King of Italy had fallen by the hand of an assassin. There had been a festival at Monza, near Milan, and the King, who had been staying at his summer palace there, had attended, to distribute the prizes of an athletic competition. In the evening he entered his carriage, when three shots were heard in quick succession. An assassin was firing at the King, and each bullet told. One of them pierced his heart, and he fell back and died in a few minutes. The assassin was immediately arrested and was with difficulty saved from the fury of the populace. He gave his name as Angelo Bresci, and said he came from Prato in Tuscany. It was learned, however, that he had recently been living at Paterson, N. J. King Humbert was fifty-six years of age, and was the eldest son of Victor Emmanuel, the first King of united Italy. He ascended the throne in January, 1878, on the death of his father. He had already made a military reputation in the campaign against Austria, but was said to have been wild and erratic in private life. He was married to Princess Margherita, of Savoy, one of the most beautiful women in Europe. On his accession he found that he had undertaken one of the most difficult tasks which could fall to the lot of man. The enemies of his house were numerous. There were the clericals who could not forgive the stripping of the Pope of the temporal power; there were the adherents of the kings and princes who had been expelled that Italy might be united in one kingdom; and there were the republicans who had hoped to see Italy a republic, not a kingdom. Besides this, there was popular discontent owing to the heavy burden of taxation which pressed most heavily on the common people, while the nobles and the wealthy classes escaped their share of the burden. King Humbert, consequently, had a troubled reign. He strove manfully, however, to conciliate his people. The palace expenses were reduced, various economies instituted, and when any public calamity occurred in any part of the kingdom, he was always to the fore in efforts to alleviate it. The Italians never forget that when the nobles fled from Naples in 1884, during the ravages of the cholera, King Humbert went down to the afflicted city, personally inspected the slums and the hospitals and remained there, directing remedial measures until the scourge had subsided. But while the Italians admired his personal courage, they groaned under the load of taxation that his policy involved. King Humbert's ambition to make Italy a powerful nation entailed expenses too heavy for the resources of the country. The army and the navy were far too costly and the burden of debt threatened national bankruptcy. His successor is his only son, the Prince of Naples, who is thirty-one years of age. He is said to be a fine scholar, but his private life has made him unpopular. He is married to Princess Helene of Montenegro, who being a Slav Princess, is little liked by the Italian people. It is difficult to understand the motive for the crime that brings him to the throne, unless it is, as has been suggested, part of a general plot of anarchists to kill all kings and rulers, of which the murder of the Empress of Austria and the recent attempt to kill the Prince of Wales were parts. It was predicted that in the latter days of this dispensation such men would arise.

Them that walk after the flesh in the lust of uncleanness and despise government. Presumptuous are they, self-willed, they are not afraid to speak evil of dignities (II. Peter 2:10).

The Envoys Alive

Although the civilized nations are still kept in ignorance of what is passing in Pekin, they have learned, with a satisfaction that is mingled with sadness, that the foreign envoys are still living, but are securely held as hostages. This information came through a runner whom the Japanese Consul at Tien-Tsin sent to Pekin, and who returned safely in the latter part of July, with the news that the legations were still standing, and that attacks upon them had ceased, although they were in continuous hourly peril. A dispatch subsequently received from the British minister, corroborates this report. This news, taken in connection with the repeated assurances of their safety given by Sheng, the Chinese Director of Telegraphs, and also with Li Hung Chang's ominous warning that an advance on Pekin by the allies would be instantly followed by the death of the envoys, proves China's purpose to be a dark and sinister one. Her imperial troops and the Boxers have already slaughtered thousands of native Christians; and in all probability many hundreds of non-combatant Europeans and Americans, including missionaries and their families, have also perished. Nameless atrocities have been committed, which would not have been possible had the government been sincere in its efforts to crush the rebellion and protect foreigners. It remains to be seen whether the allied powers will bow to the will of China, which now threatens to add to her crimes by exterminating the envoys if any attempt be made to interfere with her affairs by invading her capital. It is evident from her deep dissimulation in the negotiations thus far, that she cannot be trusted, and that she must be dealt with as a barbarian power. She is probably now about to face the bitterest experience of her history—an experience in which she must reap the fruits of her long series of crimes against humanity, her religious intolerance, her duplicity at home and abroad, and her disdain of the diplomacy of the civilized world and of that intercourse between nations which tends to the peace and security of the human race. No nation can set God at defiance as China has done and escape his indignation, of which the civilized powers may be the instruments.

VICTOR EMMANUEL III., KING OF ITALY QUEEN MARGHERITA THE LATE KING HUMBERT

Shall I not visit for these things? saith the Lord: and shall not my soul be avenged on such a nation as this? (Jer. 5:9).

Warned by Birds

The captain of the Norwegian steamer Panan while at Philadelphia after a voyage from Cape Breton, told the correspondent of a Boston journal a remarkable experience which had occurred to him shortly after sailing. The captain said: "While moving along at an eight-knot speed, and with the assurance that the land was no more to oppose us, the man on the lookout forward suddenly heard a confusion of sounds resembling the humming of millions of bees. The headway of the vessel was at once checked, and then the noise resolved itself into the voices of birds. In the succeeding moments of fear and doubt, the Panan was allowed to drift, while we sought anxiously to pierce the intense gloom of the night. Then the anchor was dropped. When morning broke, an astonishing spectacle greeted us. Scarcely a quarter of a mile away was an immense towering rock, which, had the vesssl struck it, would have dashed her to fragments in an instant. Stranger than all, the vast granite pile was inhabited by myriads of white birds, which reposed on its barren pinnacles and fluttered about the lonely apex. It was their warning cries, resounding through the night, which had saved the steamer." How thankful the captain must have been that he heeded the warning so strangely given! If men were as ready to heed the warnings of God's Word, how many might be saved from eternal destruction!

He that taketh warning shall deliver his soul (Ezekiel 33:5).

Insanity or Paralysis

An extraordinary case is interesting the surgeons of Bellevue Hospital, New York. A man was taken there on June 28 who was violently insane. It had required the united efforts of four policemen to get him into the ambulance. The next day he was unable to rise, and on examination he was found to be paralyzed from the waist down. His wife, who came to inquire about him, told a strange story. She said that some months ago her husband was stricken with paralysis. He had been unable to use his legs, and had lain day and night on a sofa in their rooms. For a week past he had been very gloomy and morose, muttering to himself continually. On the day he was taken to the hospital she had been at her work in another room, when, to her amazement, her husband, who had not been able to stand on his feet for months, walked in, and, seizing hold of her, tried to murder her. She shook him off, but he followed her, and was so quick in his movements that she had great difficulty in escaping to the street. There the police came to her assistance. The surgeons say that the man is not shamming; but when he is violently insane the paralysis leaves him, and when his lucid intervals come the paralysis returns. It is an awful condition to be in, when the man oscillates between two conditions, in one of which he is powerless, and in the other mischievous and murderous. There are some whose spiritual condition seems almost as hopeless, yet for them there is the offer of deliverance.

To will is present with me, but how to perform that which is good I find not; for the good that I would I do not; but the evil which I would not, that I do (Rom. 7:18).

BRIEF NOTES

The new president of the British Christian Endeavor Society in succession to Rev. F. B. Meyer is Rev. J. D. Lamont, a Dublin Methodist minister.

A cablegram from India, received as we go to press, contains the welcome intelligence that there has been general rain in both Gujarat and Rajputana, the two provinces in which the famine has been most severe. The prospect of a harvest in October is now much brighter.

The General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church of Canada reports that every Church fund had closed the year with a credit balance, and that contributions had been larger than ever before.

Wherever Lord Roberts, the commander-in-chief of the British Army in South Africa, may be, he always attends the services of the Baptist Church, if there is one within reach, and the stricter the church the better it suits him.

The attempt to foment anti-Chinese disturbances in our cities should receive the severest reprobation from all Christians. It would be a most disgraceful thing if the innocent Chinamen among us were to suffer for the wrongs inflicted by others in China.

The New York federation of churches has lately issued a report of their canvass carried on in the fourteenth assembly district. There are 50,000 people in this section, of whom 38,000 or thereabouts are foreign born. Nearly one-half are Germans, while ten per cent. are Italian. Twenty-five nationalities in all are represented.

.. COMMON SENSE AGAINST SOPHISTRY ..

JESUS THE LIGHT OF THE WORLD

BY DR. AND MRS. WILBUR F. CRAFTS

International Sunday School Lesson for August 19: John 9: 1-17

Golden Text, John 9: 25: One thing I know, that, whereas I was blind, now I see.

LINCOLN had great faith in the "plain people." Gladstone declared that the scholarly class, with individual exceptions, have always opposed progress. This lesson presents a fine sample of unlettered common sense cutting learned sophistry to pieces as with a Damascus blade.

. . .

Brighter Days for the Blind As he passed by he saw a blind man from his birth. Because Jesus of Nazareth has passed by, what light has come into the life of the blind, not alone by the wonderful cures which Christ inaugurated miraculously, and which Christian civilization has multiplied through the growth of medical science, but light also for the incurable, who no longer need to beg, for they are now taught to read and write and work with skill! The American Cyclopedia gives a list of fifty-one blind people who became eminent as musicians, sculptors, painters, philosophers, preachers, mathematicians and mechanics. In heathen lands blind people are helpless dependants, mostly living by wayside begging, like the man of this lesson. To-day, in Christian lands, no blind man needs to beg, nor should he be allowed to, for asylums stand ready to teach him a trade, providing for him meantime if his friends cannot do so.

. . .

Blessings of Adversity That the works of God should be made manifest. The Jewish theory that every sickness was due to sin anticipated modern studies in heredity; but the root of the disease may go back beyond either the sufferer or his parents, and is often due to unconscious sins of ignorance rather than to wilful disobedience of the laws of nature. Children should be early taught that such laws are the laws of God, not less binding than those of Sinai, and that happiness as well as holiness depend upon keeping them. But God overrules for the Christian, not only his misfortunes, but his mistakes, making blindness and other dark experiences opportunities for manifesting such works of God in man as sympathy and patience and "other-worldliness." A man who had been indifferent to religion until blindness cut him off from amusements and shut him in with God, exclaimed gratefully in after years of inward light: "I could never see till I was blind." (See Matt. 18: 9). Another, saved from a life of selfishness by financial failure, said: "I should have perished if I had not been ruined." See Coligny, the great Protestant Admiral of France, finding Christ through the leisure of sickness, which gave him time to read the Bible. Hear that one-armed soldier of our Civil War as he says to the agent of the Christian Commission: "It seems to me I can't be grateful enough for losing my arm. It made me thoughtful and opened the way for your delegates to visit me, and ended in my finding Christ. 'It is better to enter into life halt or maimed, rather than, having two hands or two feet, to be cast into everlasting fire.'"

And sorrow touched by Him grows bright
With more than rapture's ray,
As darkness shows us worlds of light
We never saw by day.

. . .

How Christ Has Brightened the World I am the light of the world. Even in the Old Testament the Divine One is named "Light." David in exile, persecuted and hunted, yet dwelling in the radiance of God's indwelling presence, exclaims: "The Lord is my light" (Ps. 27: 1). What David meant has been expanded by Dr. Thomas Hill, one of our modern poets, thus:

Thou art the only source of day;
Forgetting thee alone is night:
All things for which we hope or pray
Flow from thine everlasting light.

The Old Testament is full of promises of a fuller revelation of the divine light. The prophesies are made up largely of the shadows of present sin illumined by the promise of a sin-dispelling Sun of righteousness that is to rise upon the world.

THE POOL OF SILOAM

THE LIGHT OF THE WORLD

"HE ANOINTED THE EYES OF THE BLIND MAN"

. . .

Christ's Way of Doing Good Go and wash in the pool of Siloam. In this story we go back to the small beginnings of Christ's world-wide work, and study his methods when as yet he could deal only with individuals. He who had reminded his apostles that his mission was to lighten the world did not scorn the opportunity to brighten the life of a wayside beggar. He reminded those about him that every such opportunity to gladden and help others should be seized upon, because life's day with each of them would soon pass into the night of death, when such service would be no longer possible.

Note that he used miracle only where it was necessary, reminding us that to-day our prayers should ask God to do only what we cannot do. The standard treatment for sore eyes was spittle-moistened clay. He put that upon the blind man's eyes. Washing would also be beneficial, and so he bade him go to the pool of Siloam and wash. Christ might have transported him by miracle, but it is always God's plan to make a man use his own feet when he can. There are many who need to be reminded to-day that they are not using their feet enough on God's errands. The blind man went to the pool, and in obedience found healing, like the ten lepers of whom it was said, "As they went they were cleansed." In both cases sceptical hearts would have said, "What is the use of going?" Or in each case they might have said to Christ, "You have healed others by a touch or two, or a word; why not give us the same experience?" (See Matt. 8: 22-26; 9: 27-31; 20: 29-34). They were wise enough to let Christ have his own way instead of seeking their own. Doubts were dispelled by doing.

And then the blind man told his neighbors how he had been brought out of darkness into light. No wonder they thought he was another man. In a sense he was, and in a deeper sense those whom Christ has enlightened in their hearts, not their eyes only, are new men. Often a beggar, made so by sin, has become rich every way because Jesus passed by and opened his eyes to nobler things. And even the rich man who has not obeyed Christ's call to "go and wash" is in God's sight still a beggar, "poor and blind and naked" (Rev. 3: 17).

. . .

Miracles of the Sceptics How can a man that is a sinner do such miracles? Christ had performed a great miracle, but the Pharisees, the sceptics of that day, preferred to invent greater miracles by way of explaining it away rather than to accept it. They examined the man and his timid parents, covertly suggesting connivance, hoping to disprove the miracle, but only confirmed it. Then they invented amazing explanations, that could only be accepted by a credulity far beyond the faith that believed in the miracle. "This man is not from God," they said, "because he heals on the Sabbath"—something God had never forbidden, but only themselves. "We know that God hath spoken unto Moses," they continued, "but as for this man, we know not whence he is." Some of the sceptics themselves saw the folly of these desperate explanations. They said, "How can a man that is a sinner do such miracles?" The blind man, the eyes of his mind looking straight to the mark, exclaimed in satire that cut these proud sophists to the bone: "Now herein is a marvelous thing that ye know not whence he is, and yet he hath opened my eyes. Since the world began was it not heard that any one opened the eyes of one born blind. If he were not of God he could do nothing."

Modern infidelity has invented miracles to explain away Bible miracles as absurd as those of the Pharisees, because an "evil heart of unbelief" prefers to exercise the most extreme credulity rather than simple faith. Here is one example of it: Renan, the most renowned of French infidels, in speaking of the raising of Lazarus, tells us that both Christ and the family at Bethany were "persons of the purest motives," and then suggests this explanation of the story: Lazarus, being very sick and pale, knowing that Christ was coming, allowed himself to be put into a tomb that he might seem to rise from the dead, and thus give great glory to Christ.

. . .

Knowledge is Power One thing I know. Nothing can stand before the man who knows one thing, and knows that he knows it; whose mottoes for head, heart and hand are:

"ONE THING I KNOW."
"ONE THING HAVE I DESIRED."
"ONE THING I DO."

The Pharisees were agnostics. What they "knew not" about Christ would have filled a volume. In heart and soul they were blind beggars, but were unwilling to be healed (vers. 40, 41). They were know-nothings and do-nothings, because both head and hand were paralyzed by proud, hypercritical, covetous hearts. In the blind man, we see that better than wealth or learning are knowledge and assurance, with courage to turn knowledge into speech and action.

. . .

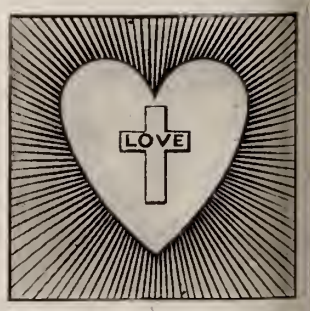
The First to Suffer For Christ They cast him out.—The learned sophists, beaten by a plain man's common sense, fell back on the coward's argument of force. It had been agreed that if any one should accept Jesus as the Messiah he should be cast out of the synagogue. In its extremest form, and that is probably the one used here, expulsion from the synagogue was not only a religious, but a social and commercial boycott. No Jew was to eat with him or to buy of him, or to sell anything to him except food. This is the first man in the New Testament to suffer for his faith, and it was only intellectual faith as yet. He was willing to suffer for free speech,

Rather than in silence shrink
From the truths he needs must think.

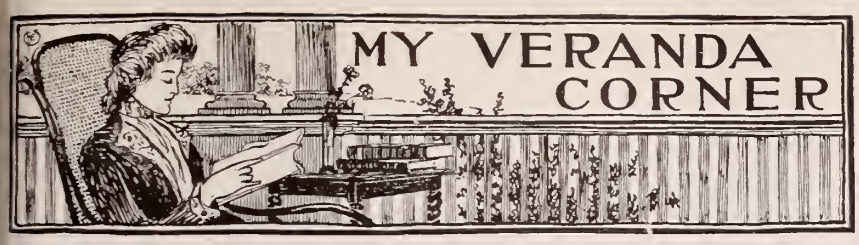
But soon his faith went deeper and laid hold on Christ as Saviour and Lord (verses 35-38).

. . .

To hearts in the midnight of sin comes Christ to-day to dispel the darkness with the "life that is the light of men," and night turns to day at his coming. Even persecution such as came to the blind man cannot darken the heart which has opened to Christ, the Light-bringer, as John Hay has beautifully shown in a poem on our lesson story:



He told the story o'er and o'er;
It was his full heart's only lore:
A prophet, on the Sabbath day,
Had touched his sightless eyes with clay
And made him see who had been blind!
Their words passed by him like the wind,
Which raves and howls, but cannot shock
The hundred-fathom-rooted rock.



BY MARGARET E. SANGSTER

GARMENTS OF PRAISE

THE loneliest crest of the desolate upland
Is blooming and royal in purple and gold.
The lap of the beautiful, brave old mother
Is fuller of flower than it can hold.

She drinks of the fountain of youth, dear Nature,
And summer by summer her face is bright
With the blush it wore in her days of Eden,
Ere the serpent had touched her fields with blight.

The child's hand gathers a sheaf of sweetness;
The bees are drunk with the honey-dew;
Pasture and hill in their rare completeness
Are perfect as when the world was new.

Everywhere summer and grace and perfume;
Everywhere beauty, broadcast and fair;
The year is crowned with the wealth of harvest,
And byre and bin are as answered prayer.

—MARGARET E. SANGSTER.

IN THE "FAR EAST"

THE heart of the Christian world beats responsive to the woe and the sadness of China, and in thousands of homes the first and last thought of these summer days is with our heroic missionaries and with the native Christians, the latter exposed like lambs to the fury of savage wolves. By the time you who read shall see this page, more and fuller information may be ours as to the precise state of affairs at Pekin, and rumors which now are heartbreaking may be modified. As I write there is still great apprehension that the worst is true, and that the yellow race rising in wrath against the white, has already martyred a host of men and women, diplomats, merchants and missionaries.

One day this week the mail brought me a letter from Tien-Tsin, with a little picture of a Chinese girls' school. The letter was dated June 8th, and the writer, Miss Frances B. Patterson, is a dear friend who three years ago went out as a missionary to North China from the American Board. A cablegram to her friends in Chicago has assured them and us of Miss Patterson's safety, concerning which anxiety has been felt. She has gone with Rev. George D. Wilder, his wife and children, to Kobe, Japan. This is what she said in her letter: "These are trying, troubled days here. The Boxers are raging and destroying all about us. Our compound is filled with refugees from our out-stations, where the Boxers have burned the chapels and looted and destroyed all the property of Christians. Our poor people have barely escaped with their lives, being warned by friends. There have been two dreadful massacres of Chinese Catholics, a party of Belgian engineers were killed on their way here from Pao-ting-fu, and two splendid missionaries of the English Church were murdered a few days ago. An attack on Tien-Tsin is expected at any moment. This place has nearly 1,000 foreign soldiers, and more coming. There are 150 Americans here, and more coming soon. A gun firing 400 shells a minute is in our front gate, and the benches from our chapel are piled up there to be used for barricades if necessary. The Chinese troops are mostly in league with the Boxers, and cannot be trusted. Pray for our poor people that the Lord may soon bring peace and light out of all this turmoil.

F. B. PATTERSON."

Since this was written, Tien-Tsin has fallen into the hands of the Allies. Much may happen before the little magic types translate it into print. But one feature will shine out star-like in memory: the absolute unselfishness of our missionaries and their care for the "poor people," helpless in the tempest of heathen wrath.

We, at home, think of the converted idolaters of Japan, China, Korea and Siam in a mass. To the missionaries the thought of them comes one by one; they are not a class of persons to be set down in a census; they are friends, each one of whom has been brought in childlike submission to the Cross, and many of whom have shown a faith heroic under persecution, and willing to yield property, home and life itself for the Master, whose cross they share. The little picture shows the girls' school at Tien-Tsin, broken up by the troubles now existing.

Small Children in Summer

Of course the baby is fretful after a torrid night. What else can you expect? You are fretful, too, but you are too big to cry, and so you scold, and nobody can reprove you, or tell you that you are unreasonable and disagreeable and out of sorts.

Let the baby be dressed as lightly and as loosely as possible in the hot days, and bathe him frequently. A sponge bath when he is very uncomfortable, with a dash of cooling powder after it, will make him happy and contented. He cannot be bathed too often. Do not overfeed him. Let the older children play in the shade, and persuade them to try their quietest plays. Above all things, do not allow yourself to be irritated or cross, or to speak impatiently, when the little ones are trying. These small vexations pass, and it is the joy of your life that you have the babies after all. What would life be worth without them?

A MARKET-PLACE AT VIGAN, PHILIPPINE ISLANDS

Market-day in the Philippines

American children in the early years of the twentieth century will learn geography in a more interesting fashion than their parents did. To us, the Philippines were a cluster of far-away islands on the map, and China was remoter than the planet Mars. To them the distance is nothing, for modern inventions have in a way annihilated space; we hear the news of the whole world at our breakfasts and dinners. Our friends and neighbors are going to the Philippines. Teddy and Tommy, in the first primary with our boys, are going there with their mother this autumn to join the Colonel, who has been there on business for Uncle Sam for the last twelve months.

Our picture shows a market at Vigan. It is, as markets always are, a place for friendly meeting, for barter and exchange, for neighborly gossip. Human nature the globe over has certain qualities in common, and one of them is to be fond of a crowd. The inhabitants of Vigan are not all pure Philippines: many of them are half-castes, partly Chinese or Spanish. They sit on the ground to sell their fruit and vegetables and their other wares, and the large calabash, which is a favorite utensil, is much in evidence. The market is surrounded by a stone wall, and protected from sun and rain by a roof.

CHINESE GIRLS AT A CHRISTIAN MISSION SCHOOL, TIEN-TSIN

Aunt Prudence Payson's Catch-all

—MY LADY. Pay more attention to the guest's comfort than to mere show in the spare chamber. See that the toilet facilities are right—have plenty of water, good soap and a sufficient number of clean towels. Change the towels every day. It is an unimportant matter to have a lace spread, or pillow shams, but try to have a good spring and a luxurious mattress.

—INQUIRER. There is no harm in a low-necked gown, unless it is so cut as to be indelicate. It is perfectly appropriate for a Christian woman to have her picture taken in one, if it be a modest fashion. Queen Victoria and the Princess of Wales and all the court ladies wear low-necked gowns on ceremonious occasions, and many American women in dressing for dinner always wear such a costume.

Let me say, also, that personally I do not admire low-necked dresses, but think high-necked and long-sleeved gowns in better taste. A thin lining, with a little lace to veil the neck, is always pretty.

—A COUNTRY BRIDE. Small tables for refreshments at the wedding breakfast will do very well and be very social. Or, you may have one large table, in which case let the guests be seated around the room, and pass the viands to them, giving each a plate and a napkin, and changing the plates for the second course. Small sandwiches, salad, cake, ice cream and coffee are enough for a bill of fare. Cucumber sandwiches are very dainty. The cucumbers are sliced very thinly and are left for an hour or two in a French dressing, made with oil, vinegar and salt. The bread is cut in tiny squares, with the crust, and is spread with a mayonaise dressing, after which the cucumber is placed between two bits of bread.

The Duty We Owe to our Animal Friends

DURING the last heated term, horses, dogs and cats in New York suffered severely from the tropical sun, and many of them died. The society which tries to prevent cruelty to animals had its hands full in alleviating the sufferings of those which did not die, but which were found panting and exhausted in the intolerable heat. If those who drive horses in very hot weather would arrange some sort of protection for their heads, and if owners of dogs and cats would provide them abundantly with water to drink, the number of animal prostrations would be lessened. We abate no jot of interest in and compassion for human beings who suffer in extreme temperatures, either hot or cold, but, as a rule, they can speak for themselves. For the dumb friends of man we must speak.

One poor man, on a very hot July day, when the thermometer registered 100° in the shade, stepped into his ice house to get cool, and his clerk, not dreaming that he was there, shut him in and went off to luncheon. The prisoner could not get out, and when the clerk came back and released him, he was badly frozen and almost insensible. The situation was an uncommon one and not to be envied.

A Mooted Point

A mother was talking in the veranda last evening about the girls of to-day and their great anxiety to have careers. "It is," she said, "the exceptional young woman who is contented to stay at home with her parents, and attend to domestic duties. The parents have been separated from her more or less during the years of school and college, and they are entitled to the pleasure of her company, but she is restless and longs to get away and to earn money for herself."

"You would not object to her marrying and leaving you, nor to her brother's going into business and becoming independent. Can you not look at the matter in that way?" The person who answered was a thoughtful, elderly woman.

"I don't know," the mother replied. "I wish Elsie would take what we are so glad to give until she marries, or at least for a few years. Certainly we do not ask John to stay at home, but a man's place and work are outside the household. We expect our daughters to remain under our care and to repay our love with their presence: not to have them needlessly plunge into the world's fight."

What do the daughters think about it? We should like to hear from them.

A Hearty Laugh

"The merry heart doeth good like a medicine." Is there anything more delightful than to hear a hearty laugh?—not a giggle, but a good sonorous, musical laugh, which means that the person is amused and wishes to make others glad, too.

THREE MARTYRS OF THE FAMINE

Missionaries who have laid Down their Lives in India in the Service of God and Humanity : : : : : :

IT was said of the mother of our Lord that the Disciple whom Jesus loved "took her unto his own home." There are some whose lives have been so devoted and consecrated that when they die it would seem that no other words so appropriately describe their leaving us. Christ takes them to his own home. To us, who recognize the value of their work, their death appears mysterious, and we wonder that God did not give special protection to servants who were laboring for him so zealously; but to them there is doubtless neither mystery nor regret. The "Well done good and faithful servant: enter thou into the joy of thy Lord," would not fall upon their ears as a sentence of doom that needed explanation, but as glorious promotion in which they pass from labor to reward. The three missionaries whose portraits appear on this page have thus quitted their spheres of labor, worn but not weary, physically enfeebled but spiritually vigorous, eager for further service, but obedient to the will of Him in whose cause they were ready to live or die.

REV. CHARLES S. THOMPSON

The death of Charles Stuart Thompson was singularly pathetic. He had been untiring in his efforts to relieve the suffering of the people of Rajputana, where the famine has been most severe. He never thought of sparing himself, and though he had felt premonitory symptoms of illness, he could not be dissuaded fron setting out on his accustomed journey. But he had not gone far when the cholera which was raging in the district declared itself. He could proceed no further, and, throwing himself on the ground under the shade of a tree, he bore his agony in patience His sole companion, seeing how serious was his condition, ran back to bring Mr. Outram, a brother missionary, to his help. With all speed Mr. Outram responded, but it was too late. Quite alone, with no friend to comfort him, no kindly hand to minister to him. Mr. Thompson had passed away.

REV. THOMAS HUDSON

It was a peculiarly difficult work in which he had been engaged. One of the most unpromising and degraded tribes of India are the Bhils of Rajputana. Nothing had been done to evangelize them when Mr. Thompson went to India in 1880. He was drawn to them by a yearning which only the whole-souled missionary knows. The Church Missionary Society, under whose auspices he went out, consented to his becoming a pioneer missionary in the neglected field. He found them reluctant to receive a missionary and averse to Christian teaching. Few know what he suffered during the early years of his solitary service. For fifteen years he devoted himself wholly to the work. He moved from place to place, occasionally getting some one to carry his traveling bed for him, but more frequently sleeping on the bare ground, or in any shelter he could find. How he won the confidence of the shy, hostile people, is not known, but when, early in 1896, completely worn out with labor, he went home for a brief rest, they lamented his departure as that of a dear friend. They were a different people then from the people as he had found them. He had established schools in their villages, had opened dispensaries for the sick, had visited almost every home and had done such deeds of kindness and spoken such words of love as had won their hearts. Various causes combined to prevent his return to his people at the time fixed, and it was not until November last that he was back among them. The horrors of the famine were then upon them and Mr. Thompson set himself immediately to the task of alleviating the suffering. He turned all his schools into relief centres and opened new ones. With his colleague, Mr. Outram, who had been laboring there during his absence, he superintended fifteen centres at which more than five thousand children and infirm people received two meals a day. It was in going from one of these centres to another twenty miles distant that he was seized with the disease which ended his life of usefulness.

JENNIE E. FULLER

Mrs. M. B. Fuller

Very sad indeed will many a home in this country be, when the tidings of the death of this consecrated Christian worker are read. During her recent brief visit to her native land, she endeared herself to thousands who listened to her enthusiastic talks and read in her earnest, joyous face the passion for souls which filled her heart. In one of her recent letters to this journal, she graphically described her emotions when, burdened with sorrow for the hungry people whom she had no money to feed, she went to the home of her friend, Rev. E. S. Hume, in Bombay, to ask if anything could be done for them. He was absent when she arrived, but she waited for him and presently he returned with the news that filled her heart with joy, that he had received $5,000 from THE CHRISTIAN HERALD, of which $1,000 was for her use. Her letter of thanks to our readers, published at the time, was the outflow of a heart full to overflowing with gratitude for the privilege of ministering to the people whom she loved. A subsequent remittance enabled her to carry on the work, which she continued with unfaltering courage until prostrated by the sickness that on June 21 closed her life of service.

Mrs. Fuller went to India in 1877, so that she had given nearly a quarter of a century to the cause of Christ in that land. She was a native of Ohio and had enjoyed the privilege of sitting under the ministry of Charles G. Finney. She was studying at Oberlin College when the call to missionary work in India came to her heart. Without waiting to graduate, waiting only to see by Providential dealings that there was no mistake in the reality of the call, she went out. She had no commission from any Board or Society, no pledge of support, but unbounded faith in Him who had called her into his service. She settled at Berar, where for upwards of three years she labored among the people with success. Rev. M. B. Fuller was also doing independent work in Akola, and the similarity of their aims brought them into acquaintance that ripened into love and marriage. They continued their labor of love and faith, looking to God alone for support, until an offer reached them from the Christian and Missionary Alliance to work under its auspices. They accepted it, and Mr. Fuller was intrusted with the superintendence of the entire field, which comprised seventeen mission stations in Akola, Khandesh and Gujarat. Since that time Mr. Fuller has directed the work with marked success, having always the active cooperation and assistance of his beloved wife. During the famine, Mrs. Fuller has been indefatigable and has labored unceasingly to provide the missionaries under her husband's charge with funds ror the relief of the sufferers and in initiating and advising measures of aid for them. Dr. Klopsch was particularly impressed during his visit with the wisdom and devotion with which the missionaries were laboring in the various enterprises which Mr. and Mrs. Fuller had inaugurated. It was doubtless a consequence of the exertions Mrs. Fuller had made in this work of famine-relief that she was unable to recover when the cholera seized her. For a time the physicians who strove to save a life so precious, had hopes that she would live, but other maladies developed in her enfeebled frame, and on June 21 she passed away, leaving a host of friends to lament her loss,

Rev. Thomas Hudson

A brief letter from Rev. E. F. Frease, the Secretary of THE CHRISTIAN HERALD Inter-denominational Committee in Bombay, announces that on his return to his station at Baroda, from the reception of the Quito with its cargo of corn, he was shocked to learn that his valued helper, Rev. Thomas Hudson, had been stricken with cholera. Mr. Frease says: "All that human skill could do was done, but he passed away an hour after my arrival. How great a shock it was to us, Dr. Klopsch, who has been so recently among us and saw Brother Hudson and his family, will readily understand. His heart will beat in sympathy for the widow and her three fatherless children." Mr. Hudson had been active in famine-relief and had, with the other missionaries at Baroda, assisted in distributing food to the starving. One of the last letters he ever wrote was one to this journal, thanking its readers for their generous gifts and describing the boys and girls in the school under his charge who had been rescued from starvation by the funds which THE CHRISTIAN HERALD had forwarded.

Good Appetite

Comes by Toning the Stomach with Hood's Sarsaparilla.

A good appetite is essential to good health. Strength, vigor and endurance are imparted to the body by the nourishment derived from plenty of well digested food. Hood's Sarsaparilla is a wonderful medicine to create an appetite and give strength. It gently tones the stomach, overcomes dyspepsia symptoms and builds up the whole system.

Hood's Sarsaparilla

Is the Best Medicine Money Can Buy. Prepared by C. I. Hood & Co., Lowell, Mass.

10,000 AGENTS WANTED.
FOR LIFE & SPEECHES OF BRYAN
The "Life" is written by Mrs. Bryan. The Speeches revised by Mr. Bryan, but he is not pecuniarily interested in its publication. A golden opportunity for agents. Don't miss it. One agent sold 57 copies in one week; another 67 copies in 10 days; another 17 copies first day. Everybody will buy it: Democrat, Republican, Populist and Prohibitionist. The demand exists. It is only necessary for agents to supply it.
$200.00 GIVEN
for selling 200 books in 3 months. Other liberal inducements. Will guarantee good parties a salary. Distance is no hindrance as freight is paid. Credit given. Circulars, instructions, outfit etc., free, but 25 cents must be sent for mailing. Act quick.
R. H. WOODWARD CO., Baltimore, Md.
NOTICE—We also desire to employ agents for selling our book on the "Paris Exposition", beautifully illustrated. We also publish "Life of McKinley" and other campaign books.

6 Per Cent. Principal .... Amply Secured.
The non-speculative character of this Company's operations, and its record of successful work, are the features that recommend it. We pay 6 per cent. per annum in quarterly dividends on sums of $50 or more.
Assets, $1,200,000. Surplus (accumulated in seven years), $150,000. Our securities are bonds and mortgages on improved real estate in New York and Pennsylvania — non-fluctuating, not speculative. Subject to supervision and regular annual examination by the State Banking department.
We refer, by special permission, to many clergymen and other prominent professional and business men.
Please apply for information in detail.
Industrial Savings & Loan Co.,
1133 Broadway, New York.

MONEY MAKER For AGENTS
MEN or WOMEN
OUR ALL METAL NEW STYLE PASTRY BOARD is perfect. Can be sold at sight to every housekeeper. Dough wont stick to it. Has 20 advantages over others. W. H. Oniel, Homestead, Pa., writes, "I made $106.50 in 17 days selling your board." Other agents are doing as well. Write quick for territory, terms and model. METALLIC BREAD BOARD CO., 105 2nd St., Cambridge, O.

ELECTRIC HANDY WAGONS
excel in quality, strength, durability. Carry 3000 lbs. They are Low priced but not cheap. Electric Steel Wheels—straight or staggered oval spokes. Any height, any width of tire to fit any wagon. Catalogue FREE.
ELECTRIC WHEEL CO., Box 186. Quincy, Ills.

The Natural Body Brace advertised in this paper in the first issue of this month is a delightful, certain remedy for ailments peculiar to women and girls. It makes walking and work easy; gives good figure and light step. Write the Natural Body Brace Co., Box 171, Salina, Kan., for free illustrated book.

2.50 For a corner wardrobe with patent revolving hooks—write for catalogue.
ANDERSON & QUIMBY,
111 South 8th St., Philadelphia, Pa.

OPIUM, MORPHINE and Liquor Habit overcome in 10 to 20 days. No pay till accomplished. Book of particulars free. Address Dr. J. L. Stephens, Dept. R. 5, Lebanon, Ohio.

Catalogue of Famous Maryland made-to order clothing free. Lithographed Catalogue of Famous Maryland Carpets free. Freight paid on carpets, expressage on clothing. Julius Hines & Son, Baltimore, Md.. Dept. 218.

A Summer Necessity.
Makes the food more appetizing and digestible.
ROYAL BAKING POWDER
Absolutely Pure
ROYAL BAKING POWDER CO., NEW YORK.

...A REVIVAL IN COLLEGE

How a Whole College was Permeated with the Revival Spirit and Many Souls were Won....

BY REV. J. W. WEDDELL, D.D.

EVERY minister of experience finds on turning over the pages of memory some passages which stand out from the ordinary ministerial life with special prominence, causing him to thank God for the privilege of witnessing some scenes and having had a part in some momentous events. They may not have appeared particularly important at the time, but some subsequent occurrences have shown that influences now potent in other spheres took their rise in that time of blessing. Such a passage lives in my recollection in relation to a revival in a certain large college in Pennsylvania. And let me say at the outset that I believe there is no part nor parcel of ground in the great outlying world so ripe for the reaping of spiritual fruitage as the college campus and its surroundings. I want to tell the story of that revival to encourage every minister who has a similar opportunity, to avail himself of it and put his whole soul into it.

One morning a letter reached me from the president of the college, telling me that he was devoting a week to a distinctive religious effort among the students and inviting me to come and help in any way that might open. I went and I shall never forget that delightful week as long as I live. No effort was made at the time to tabulate results, but at the closing service there were forty students who came forward openly in the college chapel and gave their testimony for Christ, and in all the institution, in which there were in the various departments about four hundred young men and women, it was said afterward that there were not more than ten who could not be reckoned positively on the Lord's side.

Such expectations of the work as I had on my way, were not fulfilled on my arrival. I found that there was to be no interruption to the ordinary course of study. It was not to be a vacation. Studies and class-room appointments were kept up; the calendar and curriculum were maintained; but the main interest centred in the chapel services. The president and professors were there every evening on the platform and during the day, as I learned, they paid visits to certain students, whom one or other of them had reason to believe were susceptible to his respective influence. The object of these private interviews was to bring the men to righteous and rational decision on personal religion, and the visitors had special qualifications for the task through their personal observations of the individual character of each student.

The themes for contemplation in the addresses in the chapel were those prominent in the Scriptures, for, after all, the human heart is one, and no new or more strenuous appeal can be found than that voiced in the word of inspiration, profitable in all times and all circumstances, "for doctrine, reproof, correction; for instruction in righteousness"; but the presentation was such as would naturally accord with the collegiate spirit and the trend of a student's thinking. The rationality of the Gospel; the simplicity and yet manliness of faith and trust; Jesus the young man's friend; the courage of the Cross; the felt aid of the Spirit; the naturalness of God in the soul-life; the hatefulness of sin in the moral universe, and the necessity of righteousness for wholesome thinking as well as noble living and doing—this, with a frank, open grapple with the problems and queries incident to youth, made up the staple of discourse. A prudent, consecutive current of thought and appeal being, so far as possible, maintained—the old Gospel, that was all, which, as Dr. Henson has well said, was "the newest thing out."

It was the students' work especially that told. Promptly after the first service a conference of the Christian constituency was held. Endeavor was made to put at the front those who for scholarly or forensic or even athletic abilities commanded the largest respect of their fellows. Men previously prominent in stated religious services or endeavors, voluntarily stepped back and put others to the fore. Classmen organized and canvassed and divided up the lists of matriculates. Fraternities put their heads together and marked their men. Each man was given an object to bring about or a case to deal with, a friend to win. There were councils of war in each club-room. Every man's attitude was learned and studied: the best and wisest approach was carefully discussed. The leader of the meetings was at some designated building in residence or for conference each hour of the working afternoon. There were meetings, interviews, circles of prayer, men going out by twos or threes or singly to accost or bring in, hurrying feet in every direction, picket duty, advance, skirmish, charge—it became an investment, a veritable siege of souls.

The results might be anticipated. When the daily public meetings were held, no great words needed to be spoken—merely the presentation of the old-time persuasion of the everlasting Word. Fruits showed themselves at once. A man could not help being interested and indeed, impressed, in such an alert atmosphere: eager brotherly helpers on either side of him, beset behind and before, himself perhaps brought in of four, like the palsied man of old—four invitations, four custodians.

And then the after-meeting! Have you ever been in a students' inquiry meeting? A clinic there, indeed. The habits of the class-room make the work very explicit and direct. It is short-sword parrying for a moment or two, and then some one goes down—goes down to come up again and go after some one else. The vocabulary is different from the ordinary ecclesiastic formularies, but they know what they are talking about. "What do you think about it?" "Where are you today?" "Do you want to know how to get out of this?" "Let me tell you what settled the matter with me." "Here's my hand for it." Oh, it is lovely fighting when once the lads get down to it. And the beauty of it is that every man won here in the college arena is a doughty warrior on other fields and a leader in religious and revival work in every home that is represented, and perhaps in other fields and other lands. Already we have heard of the outreach of it, and it is blessed. To God be the glory!

A Consecrated Voice

A FEW months ago, THE CHRISTIAN HERALD told its readers the story of Miss Ruth Cordis Long, the accomplished niece of the Hon. John D. Long, Secretary of the Navy, who had cast aside the attractions of an operatic career, and consecrated her wonderful gift of song to the service of the Master. Another young gospel singer, whose rare vocal talent has already won her high recognition, and for whom a brilliant operatic career had been predicted, has taken a similar step. Miss Grace D. Hildebrand, the latest accession to the ranks of sacred song, has a voice of remarkable power and sweetness, which has earned for her the title of "The Gospel Nightingale." Her thorough musical education might have fitted her for a stage career, had not her religious convictions been early and deeply awakened. She has a mezzo-soprano voice of extraordinary compass and quality, to which she adds a power of expression in the rendering of gospel hymns that penetrates the hearts of her auditors. During the past three years she has been the leading soloist at Rev. Dr. Cadman's Metropolitan Temple, and her voice has been heard during that time at many New York churches and missions. She has sung the songs of salvation to the wanderers in the Bowery Mission, and she has also sung in the little chapel at our Children's Home at Mont-Lawn, delighting the city waifs. Recently she sang to great audiences at the services conducted in the Gospel tent, "Glad Tidings," in New York City. The hymns she sings are individualized by her in a manner that gives them a new and eloquent interpretation which never fails to move those who hear her. Great gatherings listen with rapt attention to the beautiful rendering of the familiar Gospel songs: "The Life Line," "Saved By Grace," "I'll Go Where You Want Me To Go," "The Dark Valley," "My Wandering Boy," and others of the same class. She is equally effective in compositions of a higher order; but she invariably prefers the simple Gospel songs, which the multitude love and understand.

Two years ago, Ira D. Sankey heard this delightful singer at the head of a chorus of sixty voices, and, at the close of the exercise, talked with her and obtained her promise to devote her voice and talent to the Lord. She has faithfully kept her pledge, and her energies ever since have been confined exclusively to Christian work. Her highest ambition is that her wonderful talent of song may be made instrumental in leading others to the Cross, and to

MISS GRACE D. HILDEBRAND
"The Gospel Nightingale"

Think, speak and sing of nothing now
Save Christ, the first and last.

MUSTERED OUT

WRITTEN FOR THE CHRISTIAN HERALD

BEYOND this mortal strife I view
Their white tents stretch away:
No bugle-calls or war's alarms
Or muster for the fray:
The Christian soldier rests, at last.
The night's dark work is done—
"Guard-mount," "relief" and "sentry-go"—
Life's battles fought and won.

Here every call to arms affrights
The worn and sin-scarred soul;
The reveille awakes; the drums
Beat loud the long, long roll:
There we shall halt by waters sweet
And "ground-arms" evermore,
And Peace keep guard eternally
Around our barrack-door.

On guard or march, O Prince of Peace,
My martial steps keep true,
And grant that I may answer "Here!"
At "roll-call" and "review."
Be thou my Captain and my Guide
And in the conflict shield;
Dismiss me to the warrior's rest
On Heaven's white-tented field.

—MAJOR JOHN B. KETCHUM.

The Gospel in the Canaries

Dr. T. MacKnight, Las Palmas, Canary Islands, writes:

There are great Gospel openings here in every town and village, an immense reception of the Word of God, and no opposition to speak of. We are opening as a witness in Las Palmas a "Christian Depot" for all sorts of Christian literature in Spanish, and for all pictures, or CHRISTIAN HERALD'S (old ones), and any illustrated books and papers, Bible pictures and alphabets for teaching, reading, etc. We read and sing with them and give to each a Bible picture for their walls, thus teaching them at home. Pray for these people.

Catarrh of the head, throat, stomach, bowels or bladder is effectually relieved by Hood's Sarsaparilla, which is a constitutional remedy, working through the blood. Begin to take it to-day.

SOUTHERN GIRL

Visiting Friends in Knoxville.

"I have been greatly troubled by being kept awake at night whenever I drank coffee. It also disagreed with my digestion. Last summer I was visiting a friend in Knoxville who had been suffering from rheumatism, caused by coffee drinking. She had quit using coffee and was using Postum and had recovered; also her delicate daughter, who had been an invalid for a long time, was greatly benefited by the use of Postum Food Coffee.

"I found while I was there and using Postum regularly that I slept much better and grew so strong in my nerves that the change was wonderful. I trust my testimonial will be the means of inducing others to try your magnificent beverage. These are true and honest facts."—Miss Frances Smith, 632 Douglas St., Chattanooga, Tenn.

The reason Miss Smith and her friends improved in health is that coffee acts as a poison on many delicate organisms. When it is left off, the cause of the trouble is removed; then if Postum Food Coffee is taken, there is a direct and quick rebuilding of the nerve centers all through the body, for Postum Food Coffee contains the elements needed by the system to rebuild the nerve centers.

Made at the pure food factories of the Postum Cereal Co., Ltd., Battle Creek, Mich., and sold by all first-class grocers.

10 YEARS FREE TRIAL
THE UNIQUE CORNISH PLAN
OF SELLING PIANOS and ORGANS has spread over the entire civilized world and has been the means of building up a vast business
Over a Quarter of a Million Satisfied Customers
PIANOS $155
All latest Musical Attachments.
attest the honesty of this modern method of piano selling. We Warrant our Pianos and Organs for 25 Years. Back of that Warranty is a business worth over a million dollars.
FREE Our Souvenir Catalogue for 1900 is one of the most comprehensive musical books in the trade. The frontispiece is a masterly reproduction in colors of an oil painting representing St. Cecilia and the Angelic Choir. This catalogue is sent, postpaid, together with a novel reference book—"The Heart of the People"—and our latest special offers, free. The catalogue describes all our pianos and organs. It tells about
The Cornish Patent Musical Attachment for Pianos, Imitates ACCURATELY Harp, Banjo, Guitar, Zither, Mandolin, etc., while the famous patent Combination Multitone Reed Action make the CORNISH Organs unequalled in tone—reproduce the power of a full orchestra.
A prompt response to this advertisement will secure a DISCOUNT of $10 on the list price in our 1900 Catalogue on any CORNISH ORGAN or $20 on the list price of a CORNISH PIANO.
Send for particulars of the Cornish Co-operative Plan showing how you can make money working for us, or a
Cornish Piano or Organ Free
References: Your bank, our bank, any bank.
ORGANS $25
Cash or Easy Payments.
CORNISH & CO.,
WASHINGTON, N. J.
ESTABLISHED 50 YEARS.

Beautiful Watches:
Stunning effects in all the precious metals, silver, gun metal, etc.
Send for handsomely illustrated "Blue Book"—free.
THE NEW ENGLAND WATCH CO.
37 Maiden Lane, New York 149 State Street, Chicago

How a Gospel Seed Grew : :

The Story of the Founding and Progress of the Tremont Mission, New York ... Consecrated Efforts Greatly Blessed

A FEW years ago Tremont was merely a little village north of Harlem; but the steady growth of New York, and the advance of population northward made the pretty suburban village a part of the greater city, even before its formal annexation and incorporation in the Borough of the Bronx. The village, even in its earlier days, found ample spiritual help in its various churches, and its citizens would have smiled at the suggestion of a Gospel Mission being started among them. But with annexation to the metropolis came problems which every city must solve, and which—for the present, at least—seem best solved by the Mission. A large foreign population settled in Tremont, to whom the Bible was unknown and religious services little more than a curiosity. A thoughtful Christian resident—Mr. P. N. Gardner—realizing the great need of Christian teaching among a people who would not attend any church, began a series of cottage prayer meetings, and later secured the use of a little lodge room at 719 Tremont avenue, on Sunday afternoons and evenings, for the purpose of holding regular religious services. Then he and his devoted wife, together with other Christian residents, visited hundreds of people living in old Tremont village and vicinity and invited them to the services, furnishing them with Bibles where none were found in the homes, securing permission to hold cottage prayer meetings wherever they could and organizing a mothers' meeting.

As time passed, attendance at the Sunday services increased until the little room was all too small to hold those who wished to come. Now, on pleasant summer evenings, the service is held out-of-doors.

A representative of THE CHRISTIAN HERALD, who recently visited this little Mission, found the deep earnestness of both superintendent and people most impressive. Many pastors of much larger congregations would rejoice to find pews so well filled on an oppressively warm Sabbath, and would gain strength and inspiration from a visit to these people. The services are purely evangelistic, and Superintendent Gardner reports a number of conversions recently. The attendance averages from seventy-five to a hundred at the Sunday services, while about forty attend the weekly cottage prayer meeting. At the mothers' meeting, from ten to twenty women may be found, and here garments are made for the worthy poor, of whom there are many in the neighborhood.

Mr. Gardner organized the Mission in November, 1898, and for a time personally bore almost the entire expense of conducting it. Now the work has grown to such proportions that he finds his own means too limited. The people who attend are not blessed with a superabundance of this world's goods. The majority of those converted at the Mission promptly unite with some of the various churches of Tremont.

The Mission is conducted on undenominational lines, and is wholly dependent upon voluntary contributions for its support. Superintendent Gardner is anxious to rent a house near the present location, using the first floor for general meeting and reading-rooms, and the remainder of the house as dormitories, where temporary lodgings may be given to homeless people while endeavoring to find employment for them. There are no lodging-houses in the neighborhood at present. This struggling little Mission is well deserving the support of Christian people who are interested in home work of this character.

A GOSPEL SERVICE AT THE TREMONT MISSION, NEW YORK

The Woes of the Drunkard*

The Victim of an Insidious Foe Whose Bonds he has Lost the Power to Shake Off

MANY a laugh has there been at the drunkard. It is amusing to watch his staggering steps and his efforts to maintain the perpendicular. His silly talk and his exuberant hilarity are always ludicrous. But it is not so amusing for his wife and children and those who love him. Neither is it pleasant for the man himself when he is getting sober. His headache and nausea and nervous tremors are a heavy price to pay for his indulgence. Solomon was right when he said that "at the last it biteth like a serpent." It does not often wait till "the last" to make its fangs felt. The drunkard has to bear many a pang before the last comes, when delirium tremens seizes him and he begs with tears and cries, to have the snakes that are so real to him, but so unsubstantial to his nurse, removed from his bed. Yet, knowing that such a fate is before him, the fascination of the indulgence holds him a helpless captive. Solomon must have known such men before he could have written a paragraph so true to life as that in which even in his misery, the drunkard longs to resume his debauch. He is suffering now, but he remembers that when he was drunk he did not feel it, even when he was beaten. He will get back to that blissful indifference; when he awakes he will seek it yet again.

The wretched condition of the man who is giving up health, property and the welfare of those he is pledged to love and protect, is sufficiently perceived by everyone. There are none so happily situated as to have escaped altogether from the curse. Some relative or friend has fallen a victim, and in trying to rescue him from his bondage his friend has seen how strong are the chains which strong drink binds around its slave. All this is well known, and it is not in warning others of the woes of the drunkard, that any good can be done. The opportunity of usefulness occurs at a much earlier stage. No one who begins to drink expects to become a drunkard. If he were assured that he would be a victim, he would never begin to drink. Every one has the belief that he can stop drinking whenever he so decides. And so he can at that stage. The crisis comes later on, when, having realized that the time has come for him to stop, he makes the attempt. But that time does not come until stopping has become almost impossible. So insidious is this enemy that the victim does not feel the bonds it has woven around him until they are strong as iron bands. That is why it is so suicidal to make a beginning. There is no drunkard staggering along our streets to-day who did not believe that he could stop whenever he wanted. The mischief of this conviction is fostered by the example of the moderate drinker. Every respectable Christian who drinks in moderation and never gets drunk, confirms the weak man in that fatal belief. He takes no account of his own weakness, but adduces the example of this and that man, who is a sober man yet drinks his glass of wine on occasion, to every one who warns him of his danger. Therefore the Christian does right in insisting on the duty of every follower of Christ being a total abstainer, lest by his example he cause one of these weak ones to stumble.

There are a few examples of the drunkard reforming, such as the late John B. Gough, as if God willed to give all the encouragement that was possible to the poor victim, but they are so rare that the hope they inspire is feeble. The real hope of saving the world from the curse lies with the children and young people. If the children who are growing up around us were encouraged to like water as a beverage and were taught that the stimulants were evil we might hope that the next generation would be a sober one.

* Topic of the Christian Endeavor Society, Epworth League and Baptist Young People's Union for Aug. 19. Prov. 23: 29-35.

On Jellies
preserves and pickles, spread a thin coating of refined
PARAFFINE WAX
Will keep them absolutely moisture and acid proof. Paraffine Wax is also useful in a dozen other ways about the house. Full directions in each pound package.
Sold everywhere.
STANDARD OIL CO.

Church Furnishings
Pulpits, Pulpit Chairs, Communion Tables, Seating, etc. Send for catalogue.
G. W. PERKINS, Mgr., Grand Rapids School Furniture Works. Eastern Office, 814 Constable Bldg., New York Western Office, Corner Wabash Avenue and Washington St., Chicago.

...State Manager...
WANTED—Ladies or Gentlemen to appoint and manage agents for our Bibles and other books and attend to collections. Fair salary and expenses advanced to the right party. Work can be done at home or by traveling. No snap. Permanent. No investment required. Apply with self-addressed stamped envelope and references to
PROVIDENCE PUBLISHING CO.,
59 C, 334 Dearborn St., Chicago.

FREE SCHOLARSHIP IN Electrical, Mechanical, Marine, Stationary or Locomotive ENGINEERING
NUMBER LIMITED. WRITE IMMEDIATELY
AMERICAN SCHOOL OF CORRESPONDENCE, Boston, Mass.

BLYMYER CHURCH BELLS. UNLIKE OTHER BELLS SWEETER, MORE DURABLE, LOWER PRICE. OUR FREE CATALOGUE TELLS WHY.
Write to Cincinnati Bell Foundry Co., Cincinnati, O.

Individual Communion Outfits. Send for free catalogue and list of users.
SANITARY COMMUNION OUTFIT CO., Dept. 6, Rochester, N. Y.

New York University Law School Sixty-sixth year opens Oct. 1, 1900. Day Classes with sessions from 3:30 to 6 P.M. (LL.B. after two years.) Evening Classes, sessions 8 to 10 P.M. (LL.B. after three years.) Graduate Classes lead to LL.M.
Tuition, $100. For circulars address L. J. TOMPKINS, Registrar, Washington Square, N. Y. City.

Students and Retired Ministers find the introduction of the Moody Colportage Library affords pleasant and remunerative employment. Unsolicited testimonials from those at work convincing. No previous experience essential; only intelligent application of our suggestions to insure success. A. P. FITT, SUPT.,
254 LaSalle Ave., CHICAGO. or EAST NORTHFIELD, MASS.

FRANKLIN COLLEGE New Athens, O. 76th yr. Sent out U.S. senators, governors and 350 ministers. $135 a year; books free; 8 courses; no saloons; catalog free, with plans to earn funds at home. W. A. WILLIAMS, D.D., Prest.

Gospel Hymns for Summer Meetings
THE CHURCH HYMNS AND GOSPEL SONGS.
Sample Music Edition, 20 cts. Words only, 10 cts.
THE BIGLOW & MAIN CO., New York and Chicago.

GENUINE Original Steel-plate Engravings for $2, generally sold for $6. Hand-printed on plate paper from original steel plates. Illustrated catalogue free.
NATIONAL ART SOCIETY, 20 East 42d Street, New York.

"Seven days of wash-day"—so somebody has called house-cleaning—seven days of rasping hard work. This person didn't know anything about Pearline.
House-cleaning with Pearline doesn't mean the usual hard work.
Neither does washday. And what would ordinarily take seven days ought to be done in three.
Try Pearline and see for yourself the saving in time and work and rubbing. 588
Millions NOW USE Pearline

RUPTURE The Improved Elastic Truss is the only Truss in existence that is worn with absolute comfort night and day, and it retains the rupture under the hardest exercise or severest strain, and will effect a permanent and speedy relief. Competent lady always in attendance for ladies, or to answer correspondence from women. Our goods are not sold by agents or druggists. Send for free pamphlets to the Improved Elastic Truss Co., 768 Broadway, New York. ESTABLISHED 18 YEARS.

CHILD-CRIMINALS REDEEMED

THE EXCELLENT REFORMATORY WORK OF THE MINIATURE REPUBLIC AT FREEVILLE, N. Y.

MANY readers of this journal remember the description of a "Children's Republic," which appeared in these columns several years ago. It was the George Junior Republic, and was founded in 1895 by a young Christian lawyer of New York, who took 140 "fresh-air children" out to Freeville, N. Y., to spend three months. Self-government was established in the little community, and a system of labor was arranged whereby each child might feel that he was earning his own living. By degrees the scheme expanded. It was found practicable to make a permanent home for such of the children as had no other home. As the number of regular citizens increased, the number of summer citizens necessarily diminished, until in 1898 the practice of inviting visitors for the summer was abolished.

THE BOY JUDGE OF THE SUPREME COURT

Meanwhile the principles of self-government had taken firm root in the minds of the young citizens, and Mr. George was enabled to leave more and more of the direction of affairs in their hands. The president of the Republic is now a bright lad of eighteen, who was elected to the office by his fellow-citizens. Mr. George, the founder, retains merely a general oversight and the title of "Daddy." The government of this miniature Republic is modeled largely after the United States Government. Citizens over twelve years of age have the right to vote and hold office. The laws are based primarily on those of New York State, but the citizens hold frequent meetings, at which are passed many new laws suited to the needs of the community. It is remarkable how clever the little fellows have become in constructing bills to meet their various needs. A custom house has been established, and a ruinous tariff is imposed on all unripe fruit imported. A store is kept by certain citizens, and here are sold all sorts of things, from candy to clothing. In the early days of the Republic, a speculative youngster fresh from New York acquired a capital of a few dollars, bought the entire stock of candy and proceeded to speculate on the corner thus created. Others followed suit, and in a day or two there were corners on every available article.

Mr. George and his friends watched the affair with interest. Perhaps they hoped in this small society to find a remedy for the speculation in the big world outside. The children showed themselves fully able to cope with their own troubles. They passed a law limiting the purchases of individuals to what was demanded by their own personal needs.

Not long ago the citizens, after a heated discussion, passed an eight-hour labor law. This was at 3 P.M. At 5 P.M. the girls who work in the restaurant formed in procession and marched around the Republic, bearing a banner on which was printed, "Hurrah for the eight-hour day!" As they marched they chanted:

Yous don't git no supper any more—
Our eight hours ended at four!

IN THE LIBRARY OF THE REPUBLIC

This caused consternation among the boys. A meeting was hastily called, but after a stormy debate adjourned, having accomplished nothing. The Republic went supperless to bed that night. On the following day the law was repealed.

More important than self-government is the independence, self-reliance and thrift that life in the Junior Republic teaches. Each citizen is thrown on his own responsibility. Work is supplied for every one, and all labor is paid for in the aluminum coin of the Republic. Food, clothing and shelter are to be had in exchange for this money. The citizen who refuses to work must go without. He may even be arrested for vagrancy and placed in the prison, where he will be compelled to work. United States money is of no value there. A dollar in the Republic currency represents an actual value of twenty cents.

An active police force insures obedience to the laws. All transgressors are promptly arrested and brought before the court, which sits in the schoolhouse on Saturday morning. The judge, a bright little fellow of fifteen, presides with dignity and shows a surprising knowledge of legal technicalities.

A glance at the prisons is enough to convince one that the life of a criminal in the George Junior Republic is not over pleasant. Culprits are dressed in striped ticking and confined in small wooden pens in the state house. They are placed in charge of boy keepers, who are responsible for them and without whom they never leave the prison. They are fed on bread and water and compelled to work at digging ditches or cracking stone. There are over seventy-five boys in the Republic and only about one third as many girls. Consequently, girl prisoners are not very numerous, and one keeper suffices for them. She superintends their labors and accompanies them wherever they go.

School, taught by competent teachers, is held daily. Citizens are not compelled to attend, but most of them do, and they are paid for their work while there. There is a good library of over 2,000 books and an excellent collection of law books. A literary society has been formed, and the members are encouraged to deliver lectures, read papers and discuss questions at the weekly meetings. There is a printing office in which several boys are employed. A bright little paper is published monthly. It is managed entirely by the children. The carpenter shop, the farm, the laundry and the restaurant provide employment for the majority.

The work of the Republic is supported mostly by voluntary contributions. The children's work counts for something, but they cannot by any means pay for their maintenance. They come from the slums of the great cities, for the most part. Many are children who have been arrested several times and were considered incorrigible—too bad for the reform schools.

"We take the worst—children of whom the judges despair"—said Founder George, "those who have been sent to reform schools and have been returned worse than before. To such our doors open readily. We have never yet had to pronounce a child a hopeless criminal. I have yet to see the boy or girl in whom there is not some spark of good that can be fanned into a flame by kind, firm, judicious treatment. Their past history is never alluded to. They start here with a clean record. We aim to make good citizens of them—to let all the sin and sorrow of the past be forgiven and forgotten—to show them a future bright with hope and possible good. They learn gradually that it is possible for them to lead honorable and upright lives, and to win all things that are good and desirable by honest toil and square dealing. It is a work of patience and of time, but in its results we believe it to be one of eternity."

ELIZABETH M. BRAINE.

GIRL CULPRITS WITH KEEPER

KNOWLEDGE OF FOOD

Proper Selection of Great Importance in Summer.

The feeding of infants in hot weather is a very serious proposition, as all mothers know. Food must be used that will easily digest, or the undigested parts will be thrown into the intestines and cause sickness.

It is important to know that a food can be obtained that is always safe; that is Grape-Nuts.

A mother writes: "My baby took the first premium at a baby show on the 8th inst., and is in every way a prize baby. I have fed him on Grape-Nuts since he was five months old. I also use your Postum Food Coffee for myself."—Mrs. L. F. Fishback, Alvin, Tex.

Grape-Nuts food is not made solely for a baby food by any means, but is manufactured for all human beings who have trifling or serious difficulties in stomach and bowels.

One especial point of value is that the food is predigested in the process of manufacture, not by any drugs or chemicals whatsoever, but simply by the action of heat, moisture, and time, which permits the diastase to grow and change the starch into grape-sugar. This presents food to the system ready for immediate assimilation.

Its especial value as a food, beyond the fact that it is easily digested, is that it supplies the needed elements to quickly rebuild the cells in the brain and nerve centers throughout the body.

Cream of Wheat

For a good, hearty, nourishing, winter breakfast, to fit for school or office, try this:

Breakfast Porridge

To one quart of boiling water add one-half teaspoon full of salt and three-fourths of a cup of Cream of Wheat. Stir it in slowly and cook fifteen minutes or longer, in a covered dish set in boiling water. Cooking one-half or three-quarters of an hour increases its delicacy of flavor. Serve hot with cream and sugar. Many prefer it to stand until it jellies, as this adds somewhat to its delicacy.

Ask your grocer to show you the beautiful Cream of Wheat pictures.

Cream of Wheat Co., Minneapolis, Minn.

The IDEAL Steam Cooker

Cooks a whole meal over one burner, on gasoline, oil, gas, or common cook stove.

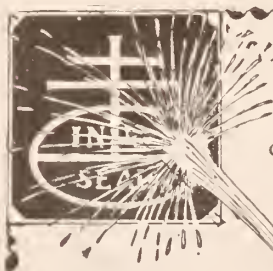
Reduces Fuel Bills One-half

Makes tough meats tender. Prevents steam and odors. Whistle blows when cooker needs more water. Dinner Sets, Bicycles, Watches, and other Valuable Premiums given with order for Cookers. Send for illustrated catalogue. We pay express. Agents Wanted.

TOLEDO COOKER CO., Box 16, Toledo, O.

Young and old appreciate Welch's Grape Juice. There's no other beverage like it—but it is more than a beverage—it is food and drink in one. The Grape sugar and the delicate acid of the Concord Grape are found unchanged in Welch's Grape Juice, and are readily absorbed by the system, producing an immediate vigor from which there is no reaction. Write the Welch Grape Juice Co., Westfield, N. Y., for free Booklet.



Water will not Hurt It

Moisture cannot affect, odor cannot penetrate, dust cannot enter the "In-er-seal Patent Package." Get it when or where you will, its contents will be dry, clean, crisp and fresh. The "In-er-seal Patent Package" helped to make Uneeda Biscuit famous. It proved so popular that it is now being used for Soda Biscuit, Milk Biscuit, Butter Crackers, Graham Biscuit, Oatmeal Biscuit, Ginger Snaps, Handmade Pretzelettes and Vanilla Wafers baked by the National Biscuit Company. You will find it at all grocers and will recognize it by the seal on the end.

National Biscuit Company.

"Brevity is the Soul of Wit."
Good Wife, You Need SAPOLIO

Importers O'Neill's Retailers

Dry Goods, Fancy Goods, Cloaks, Costumes, Fine Millinery, Men's and Boys' Clothing and Furnishings, House Furnishing Goods, Fine Furniture, Sewing Machines, Bicycles, Cameras, Books, Groceries, etc., etc.

A Handsomely Illustrated Catalogue of the New Fall and Winter Goods Free to Out-of-Towners

Every Spring and every Fall we issue free to out-of-town applicants a handsome catalogue, which describes and illustrates the newest fashions and kinds of merchandise to be popular during the season. It is a very useful book, particularly to those living outside of the metropolis, for it places the reader in touch with the greatest fashion centre in America, and enables he or she to buy the newest merchandise in the market at the regular New York prices, which means at times a great saving.

Our Fall and Winter Edition Will be Ready Sept. 15

If you want a copy send us your name and address as soon as you read this, for the edition will be limited and will go quickly. Mention this paper.

H. O'Neill & Co., 6th Ave., 20th to 21st Street, New York.

RUBIFOAM

for the TEETH

has won the approval of a host of users. It's good as it looks, and gives results — that's why.

25 Cents.

E. W. HOYT & CO. LOWELL, MASS.

TRADE RUBIFOAM MARK
RUBIFOAM
A DELIGHTFULLY FRAGRANT AND HEALTHFUL LIQUID SUBSTITUTE FOR TOOTH POWDER
THE TEETH WHITE THE BREATH AND THE GUMS HEALTHY
THERE'S NO GRIT IN IT

Sample Vial for 2 ct. Stamp

TRICYCLES

for Cripples and

Wheel Chairs

for Invalids

built to order. Special designs prepared for special cases. Our goods give universal satisfaction. Prices quoted on request. Send for free catalog.

B. A. FAY IRICYCLE & INVALID CHAIR CO., Elyria, O.

It Is a Certainty That Catarrh

can be removed. You will believe it after using a sample of Dr. Blosser's Catarrh Cure. Mailed free. Address Dr. J. W. Blosser & Son, 50 Broad St., Blosser Building, Atlanta, Ga.

STARK TREES SUCCEED WHERE OTHERS FAIL.

Largest Nursery. Fruit Book Free. Result of 76 years' experience.

STARK BROS., Louisiana, Mo.; Dansville, N.Y.

A Remarkable Remedy for

Rheumatism

Mr. J. F. Brookfield writes from Salisbury, N. C.: "While in Knoxville, Tenn., last December, I met an elderly gentleman, a professor of music, who had been troubled for several years with rheumatism. I told him I would send down, before I left town, a bottle of Tartarlithine, which I believed would help him if it didn't entirely relieve him. While in Montgomery, this trip, his son told me it did his father so much benefit that they had written to you to send their father half a dozen bottles. The benefit given to the old gentleman is very remarkable, after exhausting all the physician's skill, and the legion of remedies advertised for his complaint had been used."

Tartarlithine is supplied in bottles containing 50 doses at $1.00, and can be obtained of all druggists or post-free by mail. Pamphlets with Testimonials sent free.

McKESSON & ROBBINS
91 Fulton Street New York
SOLE AGENTS FOR THE TARTARLITHINE CO.

TARTAN PILLS

For Constipation, Torpid Liver, Bilious Headaches, &c., which often accompany Rheumatic conditions.

25c. per Bottle

FURNISH YOUR HOME

WITHOUT COST TO YOU.

You Can Earn This Elegant Couch in a Few Hours by our new plan of selling to your friends our fine Toilet Soaps, Flavoring Extracts, Perfumes, Complexion Powders, etc. No Money Required. 30 Days Trial Free. All goods guaranteed. Write for particulars and catalogue of this and other home premiums including Ladies Desk, Rocker, Sideboard, Lamp, Extension Table, White Enameled Bed, Mackintosh, Watch, Camera, etc. Ladies, Boys and Girls here is a big chance for you. Don't delay.

CROFTS & REED, 842-850 Austin Ave., B-85 Chicago, Ill.

HAIR INSOLES keep feet clean and dry. Prevent perspiring in walking. Relieve Rheumatism, Callous, Tender and Perspiring Feet. 10c., 3 pair 25c., postpaid. The Wm. H. Wiley & Son Co., Box D, Hartford, Ct.

$75 Month and Expenses; no experience needed; position permanent; self-seller, PEASE MFG. CO., Stat'n A, Cincinnati, O.

A Remarkable Book by a Remarkable Woman

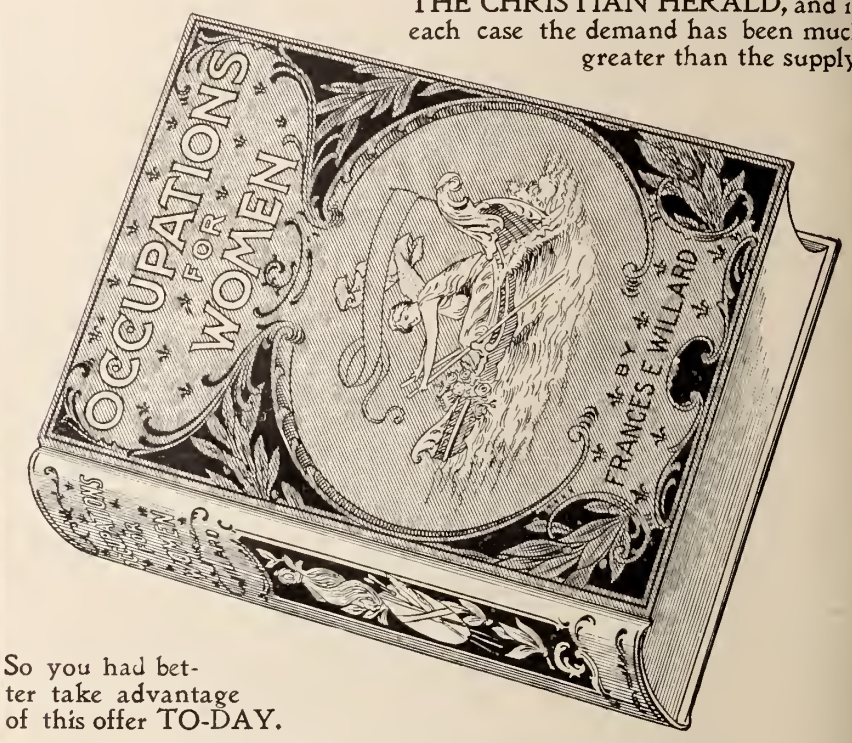
FRANCES E. WILLARD'S

"OCCUPATIONS FOR WOMEN"

The latest and greatest work from the pen of the woman who did more to elevate her sex than any woman that ever lived.

This exceedingly practical volume shows the tremendous strides already made by women, points out many new fields and opportunities for them, and shows what feminine persistence, push and energy can accomplish.

We have from time to time offered special bargains to the readers of THE CHRISTIAN HERALD, and in each case the demand has been much greater than the supply.



So you had better take advantage of this offer TO-DAY.

SPECIAL BARGAIN OFFER

By the purchase of the entire stock of the above book: "OCCUPATIONS FOR WOMEN," we are enabled to put this wonderful book within the reach of every woman reader of this paper. It contains 500 royal quarto pages, elegantly printed on fine toned paper with 100 illustrations; Size 7 x 9 inches when closed and is Bound in Cloth, Illuminated Cover.

Regular Price, = = = $3.75

Special Bargain Price, $1.00

Remember... this special price pays all express charges and delivers this magnificent book weighing 3 lbs., 4½ ounces, size when closed 7 x 9 inches, absolutely free of expense. If the stock is exhausted when your order is received, we will return the money at once, and as we only have sufficient copies to supply a small percentage of the subscribers of "The Christian Herald," we trust you will be fortunate enough to avail yourself of this exceptional offer. Send money by P.O. money order or registered letter. Write name and address plainly, giving nearest express office.

P. B. BROMFIELD & CO., Bible House, New York City

Cheaper than wood. Special Prices to Churches and Cemeteries. Strong, Durable and Cheap. Catalogue Free. COILED SPRING FENCE CO. Box D. Winchester, Indiana.

BLUE FLAME

Sell the best. BIG MONEY in it. The U. S. OIL GAS BURNER is the best. Guaranteed heat, cook and bake. No smoke, ashes or dirt. TRY IT, THEN PAY FOR IT. Write for special offer. U. S. HEAT & LIGHT CO., Washington, D. C.

BOYS PAPER FREE if you will send names of 5 boy friends over 12 years of age we will send you the Star for 3 months free. Greatest boys' paper published. Address with stamp, THE STAR, Dept. 30, OAK PARK, ILLS.

ANY MAKE BICYCLE

you want at one-fourth price. 600 Second-hand Bicycles, all makes, good as new $3 to $10
NEW 1899 and 1898 MODELS, High Grade, 1900 Models, best makes $8 to $13 all styles, fully guaranteed $11 to $20

Great Factory Clearing Sale. We ship anywhere for inspection. Send your address. If you are UNABLE to BUY we can assist you to EARN A BICYCLE distributing catalogues for us. Write for agency and commence work at once.

MEAD CYCLE CO., Dept. 41H Chicago.

Pain you to walk? Corns? Remove them with A-CORN SALVE. Trial box for nothing.

Giant Chemical Co., Philadelphia.

CHRISTIAN HERALD

AND SIGNS OF OUR TIMES

OFFICES: BIBLE HOUSE, NEW YORK

REV. T. DE WITT TALMAGE, D.D., Editor

COPYRIGHT, 1900, BY LOUIS KLOPSCH

NEW YORK, AUGUST 15, 1900

VOLUME 23—NUMBER 33

PRICE FIVE CENTS

THE NEW COUNCIL OF THE WORLD'S SOCIETY OF CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR

From a Photograph taken at the recent Convention in London expressly for THE CHRISTIAN HERALD. For other portraits see page 667

Our Mail-Bag

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

1. These questions are printed Four weeks in advance so as to afford all our readers an opportunity to answer them.
2. For answers to the questions which appear below, when accepted, we will allow compensation for the matter used at the rate of One Dollar a hundred words. Answers should so far as possible be limited to one hundred words.
3. Answers must be received at this office two weeks in advance of the date in which they are intended to appear.
4. The editor reserves the right to condense accepted answers when necessary, and compensation will be based on the matter as printed.
5. Do not write inquiring if your material has been accepted. If it appears on this page, you will know that it has been accepted.
6. We cannot return any MSS. sent to the Editor of THE MAIL BAG—not even if stamps accompany them.
7. Write only on one side of the sheet and never send on the same sheet anything intended for any other department of the paper. Correspondents answering more than one question should append their name and address to each answer.
8. Address all communications intended for this department, EDITOR THE MAIL-BAG, The Christian Herald, Bible House, New York.

These Questions Will be Answered Sept. 12

1. When do the "dog days" begin and how did the term originate?

2. When a boy or girl of fifteen years old or more, is persistently disobedient, say for example in staying out until a late hour at night, and kindly entreaty, remonstrance, and affectionate warning have all failed to effect reform, what step ought the parent to take?

3. If a man defraud another in a business deal, without the latter's knowledge, and after conversion, seeks to make restitution, is he justified in doing it secretly, in order to avoid forfeiting the good-will of the man he defrauded, or must he confess his fault, while restoring what he had dishonorably acquired?

4. Among the metaphors of the Bible, what article of common use is so prominent that it is mentioned in references to death, to ruin, to union, to extension, to affection, to desertion, and to the tyranny of bad habits?

5. What is the earliest record of a system of grammar being used by any nation?

6. What are the "ways" to which the Psalmist refers as being in the heart of man (Psalm 84: 5)?

7. What is the explanation of China's extraordinary survival, throughout a period extending over thousands of years, when all other nations that have arisen in that time have passed away?

8. If there are two applicants for a vacant position in a Christian merchant's service and one of them is a Christian and the other not, ought the merchant to give the Christian the preference, if the other is a much more capable man?

9. Who was the first visitor to Niagara Falls who wrote or published a description of the Falls?

10. If a man pays a high rent for a pew in a church because that pew is more comfortable or in a better position, is he entitled to reckon the pew-rent as part of the tenth which he sets aside for Christ's cause?

Questions of the Week

1. When did missionary work begin in China? Who were the pioneers? To what extent is the country evangelized?

According to tradition, the Gospel was first preached in the Chinese Empire by the Apostle Thomas. In historical times, the Nestorians came early in the sixth century, and by the seventh had considerable influence. Marco Polo, in 1278, found Nestorian churches newly erected, but they gradually disappeared under persecution. The Roman Catholics first sent missionaries at the close of the thirteenth century. The Greek Church was established in Pekin in 1685. The Moravian attempt in 1742 to send missionaries was a failure. The London Missionary Society sent the first Protestant missionary, Robert Morrison, in 1807. After working six years alone, Rev. William Milne joined him, and together they issued the New Testament in Chinese. In 1814 the first convert was baptized. Dr. Morrison worked twenty-six years in China, making but few converts, but laying a splendid foundation for future work. The present number of Protestant converts is estimated at fifty thousand in a population of over three hundred millions. In 1865, eleven of the eighteen provinces were practically untouched by Christianity. The vast populations of the interior had not been reached. Since that time, the China Inland Mission has devoted itself systematically to the work, with the result that the Gospel has been preached in every province, though not in every part of each province.

EDITH G. BRAKENSIEK.

2. What is the best method of making a prayer-meeting interesting and spiritually helpful?

The good prayer-meeting, like the poet, cannot be made. It is a product of certain well defined conditions. Material must be at hand—a company of humble, earnest Christians, seeking spiritual uplift for themselves, and also the coming of the Kingdom. A good leader, of deep piety, of large Christian experience, and much knowledge of Scripture, is desirable, but not indispensable. A spirit of true Christian fellowship must pervade the company—a spirit of sympathy for each other in all each other's needs, a spirit of unity of desire, of unity of consecration, of unity of faith. Coming together "with one accord" in such conditions, forms and external circumstances count for nothing; but prayer, heartfelt, earnest, effectual, will ascend to the edification of all. A prayer-meeting is no place for display of eloquence, learning, nor even of spiritual gifts; but where the children of God come together for communion with him. To make it "interesting and spiritually helpful," abolish everything inconsistent with this ideal. The desired result will follow as naturally and as surely as sunshine produces light and warmth.

JOHN G. OSBORNE.

3. Does not the statement of Peter (II. Peter 1: 20) that no prophecy of Scripture is of private interpretation conflict with the Protestant favorite doctrine of private judgment?

This verse has long been famous as the "cross of commentators." Three explanations worth notice are given: 1. Some scholars refer the word "private" to the prophecy itself, i.e., no prophecy of Scripture interprets itself; prophecy, before fulfilment, is only be-wildering. God and time alone can interpret it. 2. Most Protestant and all Roman Catholic commentators refer "private" to the readers of the prophecy, i.e., no prophecy is to be interpreted according to the individual's private judgment. But the Romanist insists that the consent of the Church is necessary, while the Protestant relies upon the enlightenment given by the Holy Spirit and the general teaching of Scripture. 3. Others refer "private" to the prophets themselves, meaning the prophets could not interpret their own prophecies. This view finds support in I. Peter 1: 10-12. However, the best interpretation seems to be that the word "private," while referring to the prophets, relates not to the explanation but to the origin of the prophecy. The thought of Peter is: No prophecy is of the prophet's own (private) interpretation; not the result of his own calculations in regard to the future. This is the view of Bengel, Huther, Alford, Sadler, Lillie, Plumptre and others.

G. E. KRAUTH.

4. Explain the adjustment of the calendar?

The Julian year, that is, the year adopted by Julius Cæsar, consisted of 365 days for three years in succession, and 366 days for the fourth, and so had a mean length of 365 days, 6 hours. But in reality a year, meaning by this term the time of the earth's revolution from the vernal equinox to the same equinox again, is 365 days, 5 hours, 48 min., 46.04 sec. Thus it is apparent that the Julian year contained about 11 minutes in a year too much; or in other words, about 44 min. too many were added with every 29th of February in leap-year. In the course of centuries the error obviously would become very considerable. In October, 1582, it had amounted to ten days, which Pope Gregory XIII. retrenched and so reformed the calendar, bringing things back to the status in which they were at the time of the council of Nice, A.D. 325. In order to avoid error in the future, Pope Gregory directed that leap-year occur less frequently; so according to new style, leap-year does not occur in centennial years unless they are divisible by 400. Accordingly, this year of 1900 is not a leap-year.

AMELIA HOYT.

5. In view of David's very imperfect life, how could he be said to be "a man after God's own heart?"

David, though he often fell into sin, yet did not delight in sin, and forsook the sin as soon as he realized that it was sin. He was "a man after God's own heart," because he hated sin, which God also abhors. His experience is recorded for our encouragement so that, though we too often yield to temptation we need not despair if we truly repent, as David did.

J. G. OSBORNE.

To this may be added that he was a man after God's own heart in his submission. When he was punished for his sins he did not rebel, but admitted that his punishment was deserved and humbled himself. This attitude which God delights to see, is so rare that it is not surprising that David, who took it, was characterized as "a man after God's own heart."

ED. MAIL-BAG.

6. What is the origin of the Chinese queue or pigtail?

The odd fashion which the Chinese have of dressing their hair did not originate among themselves, but is a foreign innovation. Before its introduction by the Tartars, the Chinese wore their hair much as we do, not shaving the head. In 1644, A.D., when Shunche, the Tartar conqueror, was proclaimed Emperor of China and became the founder of the present dynasty, he commanded his subjects to shave their heads and adopt the queue. This stirred up great opposition, for the Chinese considered it degrading to wear the symbol of Tartar sovereignty. The new ruler, however, quietly settled the trouble by issuing another edict forbidding those convicted of crime to wear the queue or to shave their heads. By thus making the new custom a mark of respectability, the people were soon eager to adopt it. The Chinese now have almost a superstitious reverence for the queue, and treat it as an object of dignity and honor.

ALICE L. FREESE.

7. What is the best answer to the Catholic taunt: "Where was your church before Luther?"

There have been many famous answers to this question. Sir Henry Wotton, when at Rome, having gone to hear vespers, the priest, with whom he was acquainted, sent to him by a boy of the choir a small piece of paper on which was written: "Where was your religion to be found before Luther?" Sir Henry immediately wrote under it: "My religion was to be found then where yours is not to be found now—in the written Word of God." When the same question was propounded to Joseph Mead, a man of great learning, he facetiously answered: "Where was the fine flour when the wheat went to the mill?" And on another occasion: "Where was the meal before the corn was ground?" A still more pointed answer was given more recently when the old taunt was launched by an American priest in Rome at a Protestant fellow-countryman. The Protestant answered by pointing to a cleanly worshiper, whom he and the priest had met earlier in the day, with his face begrimed with soot. "Where," he asked, "was that man's face before it was washed?"

ISABEL HOLLAND.

8. What was the highest price ever offered for a book, as far as recorded?

The highest recorded price ever offered for a book was $96.000, which was tendered in 1512 by a number of wealthy Jews of Venice for a Hebrew Bible of great age and value in the possession of the Vatican. Julius II., however, declined to part with the volume. Probably the next highest price ever offered was for the Missal, given by Leo X. to Henry VIII., for which the German government paid $50,000.

ROBERT VYSE.

9. Should a Christian who has failed in business, give money to the church before he has paid his creditors in full?

Should he pay money for rent, food and clothes before he has paid his creditors in full? Of course he must, and so a portion of his earnings should be put aside as due to God. The balance of his income, after paying necessary expenses, which in the circumstances ought to be rigidly kept to the lowest possible amount, ought to be laid aside to pay the obligations from which he has been legally, but not morally released. In order to do this at the earliest moment, he should economize, but his economies should be in matters of personal indulgence, not in defrauding God of the proportion of the income which is due to his Lord.

EDWARD WRIGHT.

10. What are the legal holidays in the different States of the Union?

January 1—New Year's Day: In all States except Massachusetts, Mississippi and New Hampshire. January 8—Anniversary battle of New Orleans: Louisiana. January 19—Robt. E. Lee's birthday: Georgia, Florida, Virginia, North and South Carolina. February 12—Lincoln's birthday: Connecticut, Illinois, Minnesota, New Jersey, New York, North Dakota, Pennsylvania and Washington. February 22—Washington's birthday: All States except Mississippi. February 27—Mardi Gras: Alabama and parish of Orleans, La. March 2—Anniversary of Texan Independence: Texas. April 19—Patriots' Day: Massachusetts. April 13—Good Friday: Alabama, Louisiana, Maryland, Pennsylvania, Tennessee. April 21—Anniversary battle of San Jacincto: Texas. May 20—Anniversary of signing of Mecklenberg Declaration of Independence: North Carolina. June 3—Jefferson Davis' birthday: Florida and Georgia. July 4—Independence Day: All States. July 24: Pioneers' Day: Utah. August 16—Anniversary, battle Bennington: Vermont. September 3—Labor Day: All States and Territories except Arizona, Arkansas, Louisiana, Mississippi, Nevada, New Mexico, North Carolina, North Dakota, Oklahoma, Vermont. Observed in Wyoming, but not as a legal holiday. September 6—Labor Day: North Carolina. September 9—Admission Day: California. November 1—All Saints' Day: Louisiana. November 29—Thanksgiving, in all States. December 25—Christmas, all States. Decoration Day is observed in most of the States and Territories, and various dates are appointed, ranging from April to June. Arbor Day is observed in a number of States on different dates. State and general election days are legal holidays in various States. After 12 M. on Saturdays is generally observed by banks throughout the country.

J. V. BLACKWELL.

[A number of answers, more or less full and accurate, have been received to this question, but we believe the above to be at once the most accurate and condensed. Among those who sent excellent answers are Rev. P. W. Finger, W. Getty, E. S. Damon, K. D. Crandall, Mabel Wherry, F. J. Strayer, Mrs. M. Wyant, H. R. Dietterich, Mrs. F. P. Gittinger, J. M. Hackett, D. A. Magill, C. D. Hanger, R. E. Criswell, A. M. Hare, G. D. Anthony, W. C. Gaddis, Mrs. A. R. Marsh, L. V. See, F. M. Hewlett, O. Carson, Gertrude Birdsall, Anna E. Walker, Miss Edith G. Brakensiek, Ola L. Brooking, Florence E. Hay.]

Subscriber, Bassetts, Va. You will find the information in almost any good newspaper almanac.

F. A. S., Lynn, Pa. Write to the Secretary, Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children, New York City.

H. We have never heard of any effective remedy for snoring, though lying with face well toward the pillow will, in many cases, help to abate it.

Mrs. M. M. W. The photographs are actual representations of the places mentioned in the story; the portraits are those of living people.

E. C., Dayton, O. If he loves you, he will forgive your fault, if you tell it frankly. If you do this, we can see no reason why you should not take the other step.

K. W. D., Canton, O. 1. All at Chefoo are safe; some have gone to Japan. 2. It is filed as part of the Court records. 3. Write to the editor, American Agriculturist, New York. 4. Havana is a United States colony, but at present its people have no vote in our affairs. 5. We have not the information.

Our India Orphan Roll of Honor

The following have undertaken the support of India Famine Orphans, in addition to the list published in last week's issue:

—Mrs. S. S. Thompson, Lyndonville, N.Y., A Girl Orphan.

—J. W. B., Warrenton, Va., One Orphan. Will renew until the orphan is self-supporting.

—Mrs. Clark L. Van Allen, Schenectady, N. Y., One Orphan.

—R. B. L., Wabaunsee, Kans., One Orphan Boy. To be under care of Rev. Mr. Hume.

—W. Black, Dunseith, N. D., One Orphan.

—Warcissa M. Kinney and her husband, Portland, Ore., will support One Orphan Child. To be trained for a mission worker.

—Mrs. Susan Simpson, York, Pa., One Orphan.

—Mrs. E. S. Clark, Buffalo, N. Y., One Orphan.

—M. Louise Sturtevant, Norwich, Conn., Two Orphans.

—The King's Daughters, through Mrs. Mary Lowe Dickinson, Forty Orphans.

—Miss Mary Galloway, Brooklyn, N. Y., One Orphan.

—Mary C. Gaston, Munnsville, N. Y., in memory of dear ones, One Orphan.

—First Presbyterian Church, Erie, Pa., are arranging to support One Hundred Orphans in a mission of that denomination.

—Mrs. W. B. Heigdon and Miss Kathleen Heigdon, Gainesville, Fla., One Orphan Girl. In a Presbyterian mission.

—Laura G. Pennel, Austin, Tex., One Orphan Girl. To be cared for by Rev. M. B. Fuller, Girgaon, India.

—Mrs. E. M. Willis, Louisville, Ky., A Girl Orphan. To be cared for in a Presbyterian mission.

—F. O. Lendgren, Fairhaven, Wash., One Orphan. In Baptist Mission.

—Prospect Heights Presbyterian Church, Missionary Society and Sunday School, Brooklyn, One Orphan. Under Rev. Mr. Wilson.

—Sewing Society, C. E. of Reformed Church, and Miss Laura Gemherling, Selins Grove, Pa., One Orphan.

—Young People of Swedish Mission Church, Brantford, Kansas, One Orphan.

—Mrs. M. E. Wales, Sargents, Colo., One Orphan.

—S. S., Second Baptist Church, Sherman, Texas, Two Famine Orphans. In a Baptist school.

—Mr. and Mrs. W. O. Sturgeon, Riley, Kan., Thirty Orphans. To be trained for evangelistic work.

* * * * * *

THE CHRISTIAN HERALD has arranged a plan whereby any of our readers may adopt a famine orphan in India and be put in personal and regular communication with the little protege. Send your name and address (with your denominational preference) to

INDIA FAMINE ORPHAN RELIEF WORK,
Care of THE CHRISTIAN HERALD, 92 BIBLE HOUSE, NEW YORK CITY

Send also your first contribution toward the support of your protege. As the annual cost of supporting an orphan is $15, you may remit either a quarter's, half year's or whole year's contribution in advance, as you may decide. The names of all who respond favorably will appear on the "India Orphan Roll of Honor," from week to week.

WORLD-WIDE CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR

A Great Cosmopolitan Gathering in London of Representatives of the Society from Many Lands

...SEE PICTURE ON FIRST PAGE

NEVER, probably, were the citizens of London more astonished than they were by the Christian Endeavor Convention, which has ust closed its sessions in that city. The 3ritish metropolis has seen many huge atherings—political, social and religious; ut nothing approaching this Convention n size, enthusiasm and devotion to a piritual ideal was ever witnessed there. he British papers speak with amazement ot only of the numbers present, but of he earnestness of speakers and hearers, nd seem at a loss to understand what ould have brought them together. The bject lesson will have an excellent effect proving that there is more union be- ween the churches than was supposed, nd that Christian opinion and principle s a force to be reckoned with when it can uster so large a host and bring them ogether from distant lands. In that great eeting, to answer the roll-call of the ations, there were representatives from ustralasia, Canada, United States, West ndies, Mexico, South Africa, Egypt, hina, India, Germany, Spain, France, witzerland, Turkey, Samoa, Japan, Ire- nd, Scotland, Wales and England. They ad not come for gain; not to secure

DR. F. E. CLARK
President of the World's Christian Endeavor Union

REV. J. W. LAMONT
President of the British Christian Endeavor Union

than a thousand of whom stood throughout the exercises. Rev. J. W. Lamont, the new President of the British United Society, presided, and welcomed the foreign delegates. Mrs. F. E. Clark responded for the United States. Canon Richardson of London, Ontario, for Canada; "Sister Lizzie" answered for Australia; Dr. D'Aubigne spoke for France.

There were special services in many London churches on Sunday, and huge assemblages in Alexandra Hall, at which Rev. Theo. Parr, of New South Wales, preached in the morning, and Rev. W. Knight Chaplain in the evening. The Convention began in earnest on Monday. The morning topic was "The Dawning Age and Its Problems." Denominational rallies were held in the afternoon and two great public meetings in the evening.

On Tuesday, Rev. F. E. Clark delivered his Presidential address, and Mr. Baer read his report. Dr. Clark received an ovation that will never be forgotten by any one who witnessed it.

Wednesday, the topic was "The Messages of the Churches." Rev. Hugh Price Hughes, as one of the speakers, referred to the Epworth League in America and the Wesley Guild in Great Britain which olitical concessions; not for any material dvantage of any kind, but to join forces nd consider means for the extension of he kingdom of Christ.

MEETING IN THE QUADRANGLE OF WINDSOR CASTLE OF THE DELEGATES TO THE WORLD'S CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR CONVENTION IN LONDON

The Convention proper was preceded y a day of prayer, beginning at seven in he morning and continuing until nine in he evening. It was held in the historic Vesley Chapel, and the great building vas thronged all day. Leaders were hanged every hour, some being London astors, and others, among whom were Rev. Robert F. Y. Pierce, Herbert J. Vhite and F. W. Wilson, came from this ide the Atlantic.

On the following day, Saturday, July 14, wo great meetings were held simultan- ously in the Royal Albert Hall and Alex- ndra Hall for welcome and response. Rev. F. B. Meyer, the outgoing President of the British United Society, was the chief speaker at the former. He gave this brief summary of the principles of Christian Endeavor, which deserves to be made a manifesto for world-wide use: "Christian Endeavor," he said, "stands for five great principles: (1) Personal devotion to the Divine Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ, so that we do not simply rely on his work of propitiation, finished on the cross, but view him as our living King, whose will is law in every department of life. (2) The covenant obligation embodied in our pledge, without which there can be no true Society of Christian Endeavor. Covenant, mark you, as the President of Scottish Endeavor insists, which implicates the help of the Spirit of God as the only source and inspiration of our Endeavor. (3) Constant religious training for all kinds of service involved in the various committees, which are, equally with the prayer-meeting and the covenant, essential parts of every Society of Christian Endeavor. (4) Strenuous loyalty to the local church and denomination with which each society is connected. (5) Interdenominational spiritual fellowship, through which we hope, not for organic unity, but to realize our Lord's Prayer for spiritual unity, that all who believe in him may be one. In these five points the heart and soul of the Christian Endeavor movement is concentrated.

At the Alexandra Hall meeting fully ten thousand persons were present, more seemed to separate Methodism from the Christian Endeavor movement, but he was instructed in the name of the Guild to give the delegates cordial welcome and he expressed the opinion that the sooner the Guild was associated in closer fellowship with the Endeavor movement the happier it would be all round. The Bishop of London, Dr. Joseph Parker and other eminent speakers also addressed the Convention. The closing meeting in the evening was the usual consecration meeting.

Interesting excursions were made by the delegates during their stay. One was to Windsor Castle, where they were gratified by a sight of the Queen, who appeared exceedingly glad to see them. She gave orders to have them taken into the quadrangle and all attention paid to them.

THE METROPOLITAN PULPIT.

Cities the Birthplace of Civilization

A Sermon by Rev. T. DeWitt Talmage, D.D., on the Text, Zech. 1: 17: . . . "My cities through prosperity shall yet be spread abroad."

THE city is no worse than the country. The vices of the metropolis are more evident than the vices of the rural districts, because there are more people to be bad, if they wish to be. The merchant is as good as the farmer. There is no more cheating in town than out of town—no worse cheating; it is only on a larger scale. The countryman sometimes prevaricates about the age of the horse that he sells, about the size of the bushel with which he measures the grain, about the peaches at the bottom of the basket as being as large as those at the top, about the quarter of beef as being tender when it is tough; and to as bad an extent as the citizen, the merchant prevaricates about calicoes, or silks, or hardware.

And as to villages, I think that in some respects they are worse than the cities, because they copy the vices of the cities in the meanest shape; and as to gossip, its heaven is a country village! Everybody knows everybody's business better than he knows it himself. The grocery store or the blacksmith shop by day and night is the grand depot for masculine tittle tattle; and there are always in the village a half dozen women who have their sun-bonnets hanging near, so that at the first item of derogatory news they can fly out and cackle it all over the town. Countrymen must not be too hard in their criticism of the citizen, nor must the plow run too sharply against the yardstick.

Cain was the founder of the first city, and I suppose it took after him in morals. It takes a city a long while to escape from the character of a founder. Where the founders of a city are criminal exiles, the filth, the vice, the prisons, are the shadow of those founders. It will take centuries for New York to get over the good influence of the pious founders of that city—the founders whose prayers went up in the streets where now banks discount and brokers bargain, and companies declare dividends, and smugglers swear Custom House lies; and above the roar of the wheels and the crack of the auctioneer's mallet ascends the ascription, "We worship thee, O thou almighty dollar!" The old church that used to stand on Wall street is to this day throwing its blessing on the scene of traffic, and on all the ships folding their white wings in the harbor.

Cities are not evil necessarily as some have argued. They have been the birthplace of civilization. In them, popular liberty has lifted its voice. Witness Genoa and Pisa and Venice.

But while there are great differences in some respects, I have to tell you that all cities impress upon me, and ought to impress upon you, three or four very important lessons, all of them agreeing in the same thing. It does not make any difference in what part of the country we walk the streets of a great city, there is one lesson I think which ought to strike every intelligent Christian man, and that is, that the world is a scene of toil and struggle. Here and there you find a man in the street who has his arms folded and who seems to have no particular errand; but if you will stand at the corner of the street and watch the countenances of those who go by, you will see in most instances there is an intimation that they are on an errand which must be executed at the earliest moment possible; so you are jostled hither and thither by business men, up this ladder with a hod of bricks, out of this bank with a roll of bills, digging a cellar, shingling a roof, binding a book, mending a watch. Work, with its thousand eyes and thousand feet and thousand arms, goes on singing its song: "Work! work! work!"

Again, in all cities I am impressed with the fact that all classes and conditions of society must commingle. We sometimes cultivate a wicked exclusiveness. Intellect despises ignorance. Refinement will have nothing to do with boorishness. Gloves hate the sunburned hand; and the high forehead despises the flat head; and the trim hedgerow will have nothing to do with the wild copsewood; and Athens hates Nazareth. This ought not so to be. I like this democratic principle of the Gospel of Jesus Christ which recognizes the fact that we stand before God on one and the same platform. Do not take on any airs. Whatever position you have gained in society, you are nothing but a man, born of the same Parent, regenerated by the same Spirit, cleansed in the same blood, to lie down in the same dust, to get up in the same resurrection. It is high time that we all acknowledged not only the Fatherhood of God, but the brotherhood of man.

Again, in all cities I am impressed with the fact that it is a very hard thing for a man to keep his heart right and to get to heaven. Infinite temptations spring upon us from places of public concourse. Amid so much affluence, how much temptation to covetousness and to be discontented with our humble lot! Amid so many opportunities for over-reaching, what temptation to extortion! Amid so much display, what temptation to vanity! Amid so many saloons of strong drink, what allurement to dissipation! In the maelstroms and hell-gates of the street, how many make quick and eternal shipwreck! They never had any peace. Their dishonesties kept tolling in their ears. If I had an axe, and could split open the beams of that fine house, perhaps I would find in the very heart of it a skeleton. In his very best wine there is a smack of poor man's sweat.

Again, in all these cities I am impressed with the fact that life is full of pretension and sham. What subterfuge, what double-dealing, what two-facedness! Do all people who wish you good-morning really hope for you a happy day? Do all the people who shake hands love each other? Are all those anxious about your health who inquire concerning it? Do all want to see you who ask you to call? Does all the world know half as much as it pretends to know? Is there not many a wretched stock of goods with a brilliant store window? Passing up and down the streets to your business and your work, are you not impressed with the fact that society is hollow, and that there are subterfuges and pretensions? Oh! how many there are who swagger and strut, and how few people who are natural and walk! While fops simper and fools snicker and simpletons giggle, how few people are natural and laugh! I say these things not to create in you incredulity or misanthropy, nor do I forget there are thousands of people a great deal better than they seem; but I do not think any man is prepared for the conflict of this life until he knows this peril.

Again, in all cities I am impressed with the fact that there is a great field for Christian charity. There are hunger and suffering and want and wretchedness in the country; but these evils chiefly congregate in our great cities. On every street crime prowls and drunkenness staggers and shame winks and pauperism thrusts out its hand asking for alms. Here want is most squalid and hunger is most lean. A Christian man going along a street in New York saw a poor lad, and he stopped and said: "My boy, do you know how to read and write?" The boy made no answer. The man asked the question twice and thrice: "Can you read and write?" and then the boy answered, with a tear plashing on the back of his hand. He said in defiance: "No, sir; I can't read nor write neither. God, sir, don't want me to read and write. Didn't he take away my father so long ago I never remember to have seen him? And haven't I had to go along the streets to get something to fetch home to eat for the folks? And didn't I, as soon as I could carry a basket, have to go out and pick up cinders, and never have no schooling, sir? God don't want me to read, sir. I can't read nor write neither."

Oh! these poor wanderers. They have no chance. Born in degradation, as they get up from their hands and knees to walk, they take their first step on the road to despair. Let us go forth, in the name of the Lord Jesus Christ, to rescue them.

In all cities, East, West, North, South, I notice great temptations to commercial fraud. Here is a man who starts in business. He says: "I'm going to be honest;" but on the same street, on the same block, in the same business are Shylocks. Those men, to get the patronage of any one, will break all understandings with other merchants, and will sell at ruinous cost, putting their neighbors at great disadvantage, expecting to make up the deficit in something else. If an honest principle could creep into that man's soul it would die of sheer loneliness! The man twists about, trying to escape the penalty of the law, and despises God, while he is just a little anxious about the sheriff. The honest man looks about him and says: "Well, this rivalry is awful. Perhaps I am more scrupulous than I need be. This little bargain I am about to enter is a little doubtful; but then I shall only do as the rest." And so I had a friend who started in commercial life, and as a book merchant, with a high resolve. He said: "In my store there shall be no books that I would not have my family read." Time passed on, and one day I went into his store and found some iniquitous books on the shelf, and I said to him, "How is it possible that you can consent to sell such books as these?" "Oh!" he replied, "I have got over those puritanical notions. A man cannot do business in this day unless he does it in the way other people do it." To make a long story short, he lost his hope of heaven, and in a little while he lost his morality, and then he went into a madhouse. In other words, when a man casts off God, God casts him off.

One of the mightiest temptations in commercial life in all cities to-day is in the fact that many professed Christian men are not square in their bargains. Such men are in Baptist and Methodist and Congregational churches, and our own denomination is as largely represented as any of them. Our good merchants are foremost in Christian enterprises; they are patronizers of art, philanthropic, and patriotic. God will attend to them in the day of his coronation. I am not speaking of them, but of those in commercial life who are setting a ruinous example to our young merchants. Go through all the stores and offices in our cities, and tell me in how many of those stores and offices are the principles of Christ's religion dominant? In three-fourths of them? No. In half of them? No. In one-tenth of them? No. Decide for yourself. The impression is abroad somehow that charity can consecrate iniquitous gains, and that if a man give to God a portion of an unrighteous bargain then the Lord will forgive him the rest. The secretary of a benevolent society came to me and said: "Mr. So-and-So has given a large amount of money to the missionary cause," mentioning the sum. I said: "I can't believe it." He said: "It is so." Well, I went home, staggered and confounded. I never knew the man to give anything. But after a while I found out that he had been engaged in the most infamous kind of a swindle, and then he promised to compromise the matter with the Lord, saying: "Now, here is so much for thee, Lord. Please to let me off!"

I want to tell you that the church of God is not a shop for receiving stolen goods, and that, if you have taken anything from your fellows, you had better return it to the men to whom it belongs.

But if you have been much among the cities you have also noticed that they are full of temptations of a political character. It is not so more in one city than in all the cities. Hundreds of men going down in our cities every year, through the pressure of politics. Once in a while a man will come out in a sort of missionary spirit and say: "I am going into politics now to reform them, and I am going to reform the ballot-box, and I am going to reform all the people I come in contact with." That man in the fear and love of God goes into politics with that idea, and with the resolution that he will come out uncontaminated, and as good as when he went in. But generally the case is, when a man steps into politics, many of the newspapers try to blacken his character, and to distort all his past history, and after a little while has gone by, instead of considering himself an honorable citizen he is lost in contemplation and in admiration of the fact that he has so long been kept out of jail! If a man shall go into politics to reform politics and with the right spirit, he will come out with the right spirit and unhurt. That was Theodore Frelinghuysen, of New Jersey. That was George Briggs, of Massachusetts. That was Judge McLean, of Ohio.

Then look around and see the allurements to dissipated life. Bad books, unknown to father and mother, vile as the reptiles of Egypt, crawling into some of the best of families of the community, and boys read them while the teacher is looking the other way, or at recess, or on the corner of the street when the groups are gathered. These books are read late at night. Satan finds them a smooth plane on which he can slide down into perdition some of your sons and daughters. Reading bad books—one never gets over it. The books may be burned, but there is not enough power in all the apothecary's preparations to wash out the stain from the soul. Fathers' hands, mothers' hands, sisters' hands will not wash it out; none but the hand of the Lord can wash it out.

And what is more perilous in regard to some of these temptations we may not mention them. While God in his Bible from chapter to chapter thundered his denunciations against these crimes, people expect the pulpit and the printing press to be silent on the subject, and just in proportion as people are impure are they fastidious on this theme. They are so full of decay and death they do not want their sepulchres opened. God will turn into destruction all the unclean, and no splendors of surrounding can make decent that which he has smitten. God will not excuse sin merely because it has costly array and beautiful tapestry and palatial residence, any more than he will excuse that which crawls, a blotch of sores, through the lowest cellar. Ever and anon, through some lawsuit, there flashes upon the people of our great cities what is transpiring in seemingly respectable circles. You call it "high life," you call it "fast living," you call it "people's eccentricity." And while we kick off the sidewalk the poor wretch who has not the means to garnish his iniquity these lords and ladies, wrapped in purple and in linen, go unwhipped of public justice. Ah! the most dreadful part of the whole thing is, that there are persons abroad whose whole business it is to decoil the young. What an eternity such a man will have! As the door opens to receive him, thousands of voices will cry out: "See here what you have done;" and the wretch will wrap himself with fierce flame and leap into deeper darkness, and the multitude he has destroyed will pursue him and hurl at him the long, bitter, relentless, everlasting curse of their overanguish. If there be one cup of eternal darkness more bitter than another, that will have to drink it to the dregs. And in all the ocean of the lost world that comes billowing up there be one wave more fierce than another, it will dash over them. But there is hope for all who will turn. I stood one day at Niagara Falls, and I saw what you may have seen there—six rainbows bending over the tremendous plunge. I never saw anything like it before or since. Six beautiful rainbows arching that great cataract. And so over the rapids and angry precipices of sin, where so many have been dashed down, God's beautiful admonitions hover, a warning arching each person—six of them, fifty of them—a thousand of them. Beware! beware! beware!

Young men, while you have time to reflect upon these things, and before the duties of the office and the store and the shop come upon you again, look over the whole subject, and after the day has passed, and you hear in the nightfall the voices and footsteps of the city dying from your ear, and it gets so silent that you can hear distinctly your watch under your pillow going, "tick, tick," then open your eyes and look out upon the darkness and see two pillars of light, one horizontal, the other perpendicular, but changing their direction until they come together, and your enraptured vision beholds it is the Cross.

The Story... ...of a Hero

.....How Carl H. Barends risked his Life for the Sailors of the "Saale" and Rescued Nearly Forty Persons

AIR-haired and blue-eyed, like a viking, with aquiline nose, ruddy complexion, a mouth both firm and kind, and a sturdy, well-knit frame, a young man in officer's uniform stood on the deck of the steamer, Kaiser Friedrich, as she lay near her pier in the Hudson river a few days ago. He was Carl Hermann Barends, chief engineer of the vessel, and the hero of the memorable steamship fire at the North German Lloyd docks, Hoboken, on June 30, when he personally led a rescue party and was instrumental in saving many lives.

Engineer Barends dislikes to talk of the gallant rescue in which he took so prominent a part. Desirous of laying before the readers of THE CHRISTIAN HERALD all the facts concerning this remarkable incident, the writer talked with the engineer, who reluctantly told the tragic story of his terrible experience.

Here is the narrative as it fell from his own lips:

"My assistant told me that a terrible fire was raging on the Bremen pier—this was in the afternoon, about four o'clock. We summoned our crew and they stood at their fire stations, prepared to protect their own ship—the Kaiser Friedrich, if she should be in danger. As I stood on the after-deck, I saw the burning Saale, driving along the river, a mass of flame and smoke from fore-part to aft. Suddenly, between the smoke-rifts we saw the face of a man in agony, as though it were framed in one of the port-holes of the burning Saale, and near the water. We could see he was suffering terribly.

CARL HERMANN BARENDS

"I called for volunteers among our own crew, to help me in getting the man out, and nearly all the brave fellows responded. Then I sent Second Officer Hohlfertt to the chief officer with the request that he give us a boat. Five minutes later we pulled up alongside the Saale. Coming alongside the vessel, we made an effort to cut out the brass coping around the port-hole. While we worked at it, the poor fellow cried aloud in agony, 'Water! water!' and we filled our buckets and dashed the water upon him to cool him, working all the time frantically but unavailingly to reach him. It was impossible to get him out of his blazing prison, and he soon perished.

"Almost immediately after this we were shocked to see the faces of some thirty more men looking at us from behind port-holes in the after part of the burning steamer. We rowed over toward them and tried in every way that could be thought of to get them out. At the same time we saw the poor stewardess, Mrs. Colberg, and she was crying terribly. Do what we could, we found it impossible to reach her to save her. For the rest, we called out to them encouragingly, promising that help would reach them in a short time. While we did this, we used a hose from a tugboat in cooling them and keeping off the scorching fire.

"I asked one of the stewards, Mr. Uhlrich, who was among the imprisoned unfortunates behind the port-holes, if he could tell me of any way to get at them, so that we could save them. He said: 'There is a little hatch in the aft part of the steering-house.' Taking the hose from the tugboat, I jumped on the Saale's deck and soon came to the place indicated. Raising the hatch, I shouted down to the imprisoned men. At this moment the tugboat took the hose away, because they had to save themselves, the fire coming very close. Some of the officers set up a ladder and I climbed down.

"About fifteen minutes later, a New York fire-boat came and I jumped on her, with some of my engineers and officers. We got the hose and once more returned to the deck of the Saale, resolved to make another effort to save the poor fellows who were roasting to death below. The fire was so hot that it burned our clothing. I then went to the engine-house to find out if anyone had been left alive in the engine-room. Getting the hose from the fire-boat, I took it through a little window in the deck-house and tried to cool off the top of the cylinders. There we got the first man out—Assistant Engineer Kosma of the Saale, who was frightfully burned on the face and hands. He told me there were about forty men below.

"When we knew that so many others were down there, we felt that, at whatever cost, we must save them. I climbed through the little window, where the cylinders were, to be nearer the fire, and there I found three more men and got them out safely. At this moment, the water was shut off from the hose and I lost consciousness. The engineers and assistants pulled me out of the place and through the little window and back to the deck again, where I soon recovered. Next, I tried to find my way through to the stoke-hole, but could not open my eyes, owing to the dense, blinding smoke. Coming to a flight of steps, I jumped down and called out loudly:

"'Come up! Here's a hose! You will be saved if you come up!'

"There was a confused shout in answer, and then up they came swarming—about thirty-three of them in all. There were twenty-nine Germans and four Italians, and all were about half suffocated. They had seemingly given up hope, and were still confused when we got them out. At this time the flames and smoke were pouring across a part of the Saale's deck and shutting us off from the boat. The rescued men, to reach the tug, had to go through this belt of fire, and they shrank from it; so we took them by force and thrust them through to the clear deck beyond. There they were safe; and we could see the poor fellows' faces brighten as they realized that, though still on the burning ship, they were no longer in danger of death.

"The vessel was now listing, her port-holes were under water, and it was evident that she was sinking, and that all who were below, alive at that moment, would die by drowning. Poor fellows! there were about sixty who so perished. We were compelled to leave them to their fate. After all, it is some consolation to think that it was a more merciful end than if they had met their death in the fire."

Such is the story of the blue-eyed engineer and it is one to thrill the heart of all who admire human bravery and that divinely-inspired courage which holds life as nothing, when it is risked for others. Surely such heroism deserves fitting recognition. It furnishes an example that should stir other souls to noble deeds, and it recalls, more vividly than a thousand sermons, that beautiful passage in John 15:13: "Greater love hath no man than this, that a man lay down his life for his friends."

THE RITTARHAUS, OR HOUSE OF ASSEMBLY, AT STOCKHOLM, SWEDEN

· DR. · TALMAGE · IN · SWEDEN ·

EDITORIAL CORRESPONDENCE

ON seven islands sits this "Venice of the North," appropriately so called because of its watery inlets and tongues of land, leaving one in doubt as to whether the city belongs to the land or the sea. From a visit to the regions of the "midnight sun," we came directly to this capital of Sweden. The first impression you get of this city is that of the picturesque. It is so embowered in foliage, so solid of architecture, and so surcharged with stirring history that its present attractiveness joins with its antiquities in making it a place where one wants long to stay. It has a church called "the Westminster Abbey of Sweden," for kings and mighty men of the past are there in sarcophagus. The city has a museum of armor and sculpture and paintings, and containing, with how much good taste I say not, the bloody garments of Gustavus Adolphus and the winding-sheet in which he was wrapped after Lutzen. Near by the museum is a bronze representation of the duels of olden time when the two combatants were bound together at the waist, and held knives with which the two fought until one or both were dead. It was said that when men went to a banquet where there might be angry disputes, the wives of the banquetters would carry blankets in which to wrap the bodies of their husbands in case of fatal duello. But the days of such savagery are forever gone. The characteristic of these Scandinavians, whose ancestors used to drink wine out of the skulls of their enemies, is now kindness, conspicuous kindness, a kindness that seems to exceed that of all other nations. But I suppose that all of us could go back far enough in our different nationalities to find barbarism appalling to our modern tastes and theories. Gospelization has made the only difference between "the dark ages" and this irradiated century, whose last chapter is now being written. And nothing more impresses me in Norway and Sweden than the devoutness of the people. Of course, vice and crime curse these lands as they curse all. But there is a high tone of morals as compared with other countries. There are large churches, and thronged assemblages, and although I could not understand a word of their sermons, or songs, there was an earnestness in the faces and demeanor of their preachers and their audiences, which could not have been assumed or dramatized.

We love these Scandinavian countries. They are very near to America, for hardly a family in Sweden or Norway but has son or daughter, or sister or brother in our country. There are only two cities of Sweden which have more Swedes than Chicago. And then were not some of us in our boyhood days thrilled with Jenny Lind's Swedish voice, as in Castle Garden she sang "Comin' Through the Rye," or did not we in later years sit transfixed with Ole Bull's matchless sweep of bow across the strings in our academies of music, the great Norwegian causing his violin to laugh and cry and worship, until entranced audiences laughed and cried and worshiped with it? As we looked at the bronzed statue of Linnæus, the botanist, in one of the parks of Stockholm, and saw him suggestively holding in his hand a flower, we remembered how he, though so long ago dead, taught us, and will teach all coming ages, as no man ever did or could, the glories of the floral kingdom.

Last Sabbath, in Stockholm, was to me a day of much interest. Before leaving London I accepted an invitation to preach here in a church of vast proportions. "Would I have an audience?" was the wonder with me when I could not speak a word of the Swedish language. But a publisher of Stockholm put upon my table in the hotel ten different books of mine, all in Swedish, and that prepared me for the greeting I received in The Immanuel Church at eleven o'clock Sabbath morning. All must be done through an interpreter. I asked him before entering the pulpit if we would translate sentence by sentence or would take each idea after it was uttered. He preferred sentence by sentence, and so it was done. Only three times had I ever attempted to address an audience through the brain and lips of another: once when a theological student, standing before a congregation of American Indians; once in a church at Hawaii, and once in Ceylon, an interpreter standing on the right of me to translate what I said into Cingalese, and the other on my left side to translate into Hindustani, my interpreters taking two-thirds of the time, while I took one-third. In the Stockholm church last Sabbath—an immense church, with two galleries on three sides—the pastor had first to request two very deaf people who, with ear-trumpets, sat in the pulpit, to remove, as otherwise there would not be room for the preacher of the day and his interpreter. The hymns were given out, the Scriptures were read and the prayer was offered by the Swedish interpreter. The service was not embarrassing; the audience were very sympathetic; the translator was alert and fluent, and the people seemed to understand, for the emotions of joy and sadness and sympathy and devotion were easily seen in their countenances. Whether I did them any good or not, they did me good, for it is impossible to stand in an audience of five thousand, the most of them good people, without being in body, mind and soul advantaged But we realized as never before what a comparatively easy thing it is to preach in one's native tongue the glorious Gospel, the language in which we spoke our first word and will probably speak our last.

May the blessing of God be upon the Christian ministers of religion! Theirs is a life of limitation and sacrifice. For the first few years the salary of these men is what we would call seventy-five dollars per annum. After they take a fixed pastorate the salary is three hundred dollars a year. The most eminent of these ministers receive one thousand dollars. Worldly motives could hardly tempt any one here into evangelism. But the church is favored by the State, and the Queen is a godly woman, interested deeply in all religious movements, and frowning upon all dissipation and frivolity. The throne is on the side of righteousness. But when yesterday we saw the invalided Queen of Sweden and Norway, by the aid of three servants, dismount from a little white pony that had been led through the king's park to give her a healthful airing, the Queen unable to take a step without assistance, and each step a positive suffering, we thought how gladly she would, if possible, exchange throne and crown and palace for the blooming cheeks and the easy walk and the bounding pulses of the humblest peasant woman in yonder market-place, who hands a basket of berries to her customer, and who, with pleased look, makes the change for a silver "kroner." T. DE WITT TALMAGE.

Stockholm, Sweden.

THE OPEN DOOR OF THE CROSS

JESUS THE GOOD SHEPHERD

BY DR. AND MRS. WILBUR F. CRAFTS

International Sunday School Lesson for August 26: John 10: 1-16. | Golden Text, John 10: 11: The good shepherd giveth his life for the sheep.

A LITTLE SYRIAN SHEPHERDESS

WHEN the American corn-ship entered the harbor of famine-stricken India, bearing the generous gifts of another race, it seemed to be indeed a "Christian Herald" of the era of universal brotherhood. But the very numerous utterances of late in our country in favor of withdrawing the Christian bread of life from China because of the disorder it is alleged to have caused, show that we, as a people, have not yet learned from Christ that the worst famine is that of souls blighted by superstition and bigotry. The Good Shepherd is not content to lose one of his flock (Luke 15: 4), much less one-third of it all. The disturbance in China is due chiefly to bigotry revolting at progress. It is in part due also to the unchristian conduct of so-called "Christian nations," whose Christian citizens have allowed unchristian merchants to dominate politics in the supreme interest of trade. So far as missionaries have abetted the disorders, it has been those that have succeeded to the Pharisees' heresy of civil domination by the Church. It was chiefly to rebuke this propaganda of force that Jesus gave the allegory of the cross as the only door to his sheepfold to those misleaders of the Jewish Church who had just thrown the blind man that Christ had healed out of the fold. That story of the preceding chapter is the key of the allegory of our lesson.

It was no new thing to call the divine and human leaders of God's Church "shepherds." It was almost as common among the Jews as our word "pastor," which means the same. Indeed, nearly all the divine names used in the New Testament were first applied in the Old, as any one can see by turning to his concordance. The Bible was not built like a house, adding room to room, uninhabitable until nearly complete; but grew like a tree, whose years of growth are shown by rings when its trunk is sawed across. In the very first year the tree had every element which has been more fully developed in its growth. In the Pentateuch God is presented as both "King" and "Father," both "Shepherd" and "Lamb." He is also "Bridegroom" and "Refuge," and is at least dimly foretold as "God-man," when it is said of the Coming One, "God shall dwell in the tents of Shem."

. . .

The Cross the Only Door He that entereth not by the door. As Christ is elsewhere both "Shepherd" and "Lamb," he is here both "Shepherd" and "Door." "Shepherd" stands for his leadership or Lordship; "Lamb" and "Door" both refer to his cross; that is, his Saviourship. The Jewish leaders thought to develop the kingdom of God in pride and selfishness by conquering the world. Jesus also expected to cement that kingdom with blood, but it was his own and that of the martyrs who should catch his spirit.

Jesus won the world through shame
And beckons thee his road.

It is amazing to hear Christians, after all the blundering wars in behalf of religion that have checkmated the benefits of long years of suffering, talking of wars now in progress as if they were almost to be welcomed as likely to open the way for the Gospel. The one sure thing is that they open the way to vice. God does indeed overrule the wrath of man, but let us beware of "the wrath of the Lamb," which fell like lightning in this lesson on those Pharisees who thought to substitute the sword for the cross. By suffering and the relief of suffering, how greatly has the kingdom of God been advanced! It grew faster under Nero than under Constantine.

. . .

The Severity of Christ A thief and a robber. We hear much of the patience and gentleness of Christ, but too little of his courage and severity, which must be included in any true following "in his steps." We are told we must not speak out against the sins of public officers, but rather reverence them for the places they occupy, however unfaithfully. But it was the Jewish leaders that in this story Jesus called thieves and robbers. It was these same men at whom he hurled the sevenfold lightning of his "Woe unto you Scribes and Pharisees, hypocrites, covetous! Ye serpents, ye generation of vipers, how can ye escape the damnation of hell?" (Matt. 23: 13-33). That is but one stroke of the "two-edged sword in his mouth" (Rev. 1: 16). Gladstone urged that ministers should do more "plain preaching." Especially is this needed in congregations of influential people. The idea prevails that well-dressed people can not really do wilful wrong. They only "make mistakes." But it was to the rich and powerful that Amos and Nathan and Elijah and John and Jesus and Paul preached so fearlessly. Why is it our theological seminaries do not teach this Biblical homiletics? And teachers also need to combine the gentleness and severity of Christ. His severest and gentlest sayings are yoked together (Matt. 11: 20, 28; 23: 33, 37).

All who profess to be shepherds that do not come by the way of the cross Jesus declares to be not merely false shepherds, but thieves and robbers. An ex-preacher, now a lawyer, who gave up evangelical faith to preach doubt for a while, told this story on himself in a Philosophical Association: "When I left the ministry I soon became one of the most unhappy men living. I had many of the congregation follow me when I left the church until I got too radical. Then they left me, with the exception of one couple. When their boy was taken from them in death, they didn't send for me to preach the funeral services, but sent for another minister. After that boy had been buried the man came to me and said: 'It is no use. This doctrine of yours is all right when we are in good health and prosperity, but now in my sorrow you can do no good for me.' That couple then returned to the church." And the preacher gave up preaching.

To him the porter openeth. A flock usually had two shepherds, one of whom guarded the gate at night. This "porter" welcomes the other true shepherd and admits him by the door. The "porter" in this allegory is clearly the Divine Father, who welcomed Christ as the promised Shepherd in the voices that fell from the sky at the baptism and transfiguration, and sealed this commission with many miracles. "Behold the Lamb," said John at the baptism. Jesus "spake of his decease" at the transfiguration. As he thus in both cases entered the door of the cross, the voice came from above, "This is my Son"; and to man God says, "Behold, I have set before thee an open door."

. . .

Christian Unity There shall be one flock. No theme in the Ecumenical Missionary Conference, except the removal of opium and liquors from mission fields, aroused such interest as Christian comity. Some dared to utter the higher word, "unity," and it was received with a cordial welcome. We are many flocks in many folds to-day—the Church of God in the United States more divided in its 156 denominations than anywhere else in the world. If the time is not ripe for one church, it is ripe for consolidation as in Canada, where, with exceptions scarcely worth mentioning, all Christians are concentrated in six denominations, all Methodists one, all Baptists one, all Presbyterians one, all Episcopalians one, who with Congregationalists and Roman Catholics make up the list. Temperance and the Sabbath are stronger in Canada than anywhere else in the world, partly because the energy wasted in maintaining superfluous churches is there set free for the usually neglected work of making a safe place for saved souls. Surely, in view of the great disadvantages of division, especially in missionary fields, we ought to set ourselves more seriously to the task of federation of churches as a step toward the unity for which Christ prayed, and surely not in vain.

. . .

Value of One Soul That Christ knows his sheep by name shows the value he sets on each individual soul. This is more fully brought out in the parable of the ninety and nine (Luke 15: 4-7), where the shepherd is not content that ninety-nine are safe in the fold, but goes at great effort on a long search for the one lost sheep, picturing the solicitude of God over every lost soul—its love lost to God; its life lost here as well as hereafter. The spirit of this parable is beautifully expressed in the following dialect poem, which recited in a missionary meeting, led one who felt as she listened, that no one had ever gotten an upward impulse from her life, and who could not remember of ever bringing a soul to Christ, to dedicate herself to the effort to bring back some one lost lamb.

Po' lil' brack sheep what strayed away
Done los' in de win' an' de rain,
An' de Shepherd, he say, "O hirelin',
Go fin' my sheep ergain."

An' de hirelin' frown: "O Shepherd,
Dat sheep is brack an' bad."
But de Shepherd, he smile laik dat lil' brack sheep
Is de onlies' lam' he had.

An' he say: "O hirelin', hasten,
For de win' an' de rain am col',
An dat lil' brack sheep be lonesome
Out dere, so far from de fol'."

An' de hirelin' frown: "O Shepherd,
Dat sheep it weak and po'."
But de Shepherd, he smile laik dat lil' brack sheep
He lub it des all de mo'.

An' de hirelin' frown: "O Shepherd,
De res' ob de sheep am hare."
But de Shepherd, he smile laik dat lil' brack sheep
He hol' it de mos'es' dear.

An' he wander out in de darkness,
Where de night was col' an' bleak,
An' dat lil' brack sheep, he fin' it,
An' lay it ergains' his cheek.

The same great love that cannot willingly allow one to be lost that is seen in the parable of the lost sheep, is also beautifully pictured in the story of the dying mother, nearly one hundred years old, her children long since gone from her home and into the upper hon As death approached she revived a mome opened her eyes and said to her husband:

"Why, it is dark."
"Yes, Janet, it is dark."
"Is it night?"
"Oh, yes; it is midnight."
"Are all the children in?"

Father, mother, you are God's undersh herds—are all the children in the fold, Jo and Mary and Frank and Alice?

Teacher, you too are a shepherd—are the children in?

. . .

Safe in The Fold By me if any m enter in he shall saved. As the flo passes in at the door, the sh herd's rod is stretched acr above them that he may co each one and make sure all safely folded. To "pass un the rod," then, should never spoken of as a symbol of sorr but rather of safety. Those w have passed under the rod h been individually recognized the Shepherd as his sheep.

. . .

Blackboard Out of Fold How are men sa in the church th out of it? Not t joining the church is any savi charm, but because church me bership makes it as hard as p sible to do wrong and as e as possible to do right. T four walls of the church f are: Christian companionshi Christian vows, Christian struction, Christian sacrame By all these means the chu makes it easier to do right a harder to do wrong. The pro ises a man makes in his b moments are like anchors hold him in his worst hours. is yet more benefited by companionships into which church brings him. Its instr tions mean more when he i member, and sacraments oaths of loyalty that bring quickening thoughts of the Ki

. . .

No One Should Be a "Hireling" The good shepherd giveth life for the sheep. The g shepherd is set in contr with the "hireling," who has no love for sheep and will make no sacrifices for their fense. When he sees a wolf coming he tal to his heels. Christ saw that the Pharis were not only too proud to come to the fl by the way of the cross, but also too self to be true shepherds. Let no one supp that to be a "hireling" is wrong only ir preacher. We would not go across the str to hear one that we thought cared more his salary than for service. We would have a doctor that seemed to care more his fee than his patient. This attitude putting service above salary we expect artists, statesmen—professional men ge ally. But a little thought will show that ought not to stop there. The tradesman the workman has no more right to be an h ling than the preacher. Every Christian every line of work should put, first of all, wages, but a desire

To serve the present age,
My calling to fulfill.

More and more it grows difficult to get Ch tian work done without paying for it just wl there are more people at leisure than ever fore. We must even hire visitors to call the poor, when the poor and rich both need Christians that neighborly fellowship that come only from purely voluntary associati

"HE SHALL FEED HIS FLOCK LIKE A SHEPHERD; HE SHALL GATHER THE LAMBS WITH HIS ARM"

THE BIBLE AND THE NEWSPAPER

Famous Exposition Buildings

AMONG the buildings which attract visitors at the Paris Exposition, two of the most prominent are the Pavilion of the Steamship Companies and the Pavilion of Servia, of which pictures are given on this page. There is a general feeling that we are on the eve of great developments in navigation, and visitors therefore throng the Marine Building to see the latest improvements in the art of construction both of hulls and machinery. The Servian Pavilion, though not of so great general interest, impresses the spectator by its architectural beauty and the fine interest of its contents. An interesting fact in connection with this building is the sudden withdrawal of its chief exhibit—the throne of the King. When the Exposition was opened, the King apparently supposed he could get along for a few months without this symbol of royalty, so he sent it with other Servian exhibits. But he decided on getting married, and he wanted the throne for the ceremony. So he sent for it in all haste and postponed the wedding until it arrived. The Exposition, as a whole, is said to be a disappointment to the French people, and it is predicted that this will be the last that will ever be held in Paris. The chief reason for this prediction is that such an exposition does more injury than good to French trade. As an instance in point, it is stated that at the last exposition the Russians observed the French method of silk-weaving and adopted it, with the result that Russia is now a formidable rival to France in all the markets of the world. The financial results also are disappointing. The discourtesy of the French people to English visitors, for a year past, has had the effect of deterring English people from going to see the Exposition, and as they have heretofore been the best paying guests, their absence is felt. Germany, however, has sent a larger contingent than formerly, and it is noticed that the two peoples are on more cordial terms than they have been at any time since the war of 1870. Visitors report that the buildings far surpass in beauty any exposition that has been held anywhere in the past; but as they are built of staff they cannot be permanent, and when the end of the exhibit comes they will be broken up and destroyed. It seems scarcely credible that a collection of buildings so beautiful will pass away without leaving a trace of its existence, yet it will eventually be so, not only with this Exposition, but with edifices which we are accustomed to regard as abiding.

Thou hast made of a city a heap; of a defended city a ruin; a palace of strangers to be no city (Isaiah 25:2).

A Temporary Lamp

A time-limit incandescent lamp, which will burn for a predetermined number of hours and then go out, has been invented in Germany. It is exceedingly simple in construction and entirely self-contained. In the base of the lamp is mounted a copper tube in which is contained a solution of sulphate of copper. Into this dips a copper wire which is so connected that the current feeding the lamp flows through it and the solution to the tube and thence to the lamp filament. An electrolytic action is set up by this arrangement, the wire dissolving in the fluid and copper being deposited on the walls of the tube. After a certain length of time, depending upon the size of the wire, the wire is completely dissolved and the circuit broken. There are many lives like that wire. They are spent in giving light and are eventually exhausted in the process: but as the apostle said, it is a willing sacrifice.

I will very gladly spend and be spent for your souls (II. Cor. 12: 15. R. V.).

War in China

After many delays, the advance on Pekin was begun by the allies on Aug. 2, the force of all nationalities in the field against China aggregating 20,000 men. Opposing their advance were imperial troops and Boxers fully 45,000 strong and formidably posted. Immediately on learning of the advance of the allies, the Chinese broke the bank of the great canal and flooded a large section of the country between Tien-Tsin and the capital. Early on the 5th of August, it is reported, the allies encountered a strong Chinese force at Peitsang, ten miles from Tien-Tsin. Soon the fighting became general, and the allies, with 16,000 men, chiefly Japanese and Russians attacked the Chinese position resolutely, carrying it after a fierce fight, in which it is said the allies lost 1,200 men in killed and wounded, the Russians and Japanese sustaining the heaviest casualties. It is evident that the Chinese mean to contest every foot of the way to Pekin, being aware that the seizure of the capital by a foreign foe would mean the downfall of the present dynasty. It is learned that the success of the advance has greatly impressed the Pekin rebels, and they now realize that to kill the Envoys and other occupants of the Legations would result in bringing down upon themselves a terrible vengeance, from which they could hardly hope to escape. Having provoked the anger of the civilized powers, China, like an ancient heathen outlaw, is making a last desperate stand to save throne, idols, superstitions and national integrity. Having outlasted all other nations, she may now in her turn be destined to meet the common fate of all who have outlived their usefulness and become a stumbling-block in the path of the world's progress. The God whose religion they have rejected and whose messengers they have murdered, will bring upon them the judgments with which of old he theatened the rebellious nation.

The king shall mourn, and the prince shall be clothed with desolation, and the hands of the people shall be troubled: I will do unto them after their way, and according to their deserts will I judge them, and they shall know that I am the Lord (Ezek. 7:21).

Husband and Wife Unrecognized

A pathetic story of dementia comes from Wilkesbarre, Penn. On a little farm near Stillwater, Columbia county, lived a childless couple who were devoted to one another. They seldom went far from home, but were always to be seen together at church and prayer-meeting, whenever the church building was open. Of late it had been noticed by the neighbors that the old man had become very eccentric, and one day he went violently insane and had to be removed to the asylum. His wife took his affliction so much to heart that she became melancholy and has now also lost her reason. She was taken to the asylum of which her husband is an inmate. The doctors thought it might do both patients good if they were brought together, so it was arranged that they should meet in the corridor. The attendants watched them, and to their surprise the old couple, who had been all in all to one another for fifty years, met without recognition. Since then every day they have been brought together, but neither knows the other. It is marvelous that the habits and associations of half a century should be so completely effaced by the cloud now on their minds. What a comfort it is to the Christian to know that no circumstance can ever come between him and the Being to whom he has given his love to produce such forgetfulness!

Can a woman forget her sucking child? Yea, they may forget, yet will I not forget thee (Isa. 49:15).

A Perilous Ride

A young lady living in New Jersey had a narrow escape from a terrible death a few days ago. She had been to Philadelphia and was returning to her home. She had only just time to catch the vestibule train by which she intended to travel and as she hurried through the station and on to the platform, she saw the train just moving out. She sprang on the steps and was about to enter, when she discovered that the door was locked. She beat on the glass with her umbrella, but the train was making too much noise for her knocks to be heard. It was quite dark so that no one saw her perilous situation. Gradually the train increased its speed and she had great difficulty in maintaining her standing on the narrow ledge. Soon it was going at a speed of nearly a mile a minute and then she began to lose all hope. Clinging with all her might to the bar, she crouched low on the steps, while smoke and cinders almost blinded her. Just as the train was passing Bristol someone inside the car stood for a moment at the window. The terrified girl saw the shadow and again knocked on the glass. In a few moments the door was opened and the passenger whose notice she had attracted by her knock, was there, with the conductor whom he had summoned, helping her into the car. She had ridden thirty miles in constant danger of being swept to her death. We may be quite sure that if the young lady should ever again be late for a train, she will not attempt to enter it after it has started, lest again she find the door shut. One experience of that kind is enough. Unhappily, ministers and Christian workers who try to induce people to turn to Christ before it is too late, find too many of them willing to take an infinitely greater risk.

Many I say unto you will seek to enter in and shall not be able, when once the Master of the house is risen up and shut to the door (Luke 13:24).

THE PAVILION OF STEAMSHIPS AT THE PARIS EXPOSITION

PAVILION OF SERVIA AT THE PARIS EXPOSITION

BRIEF NOTES

The special attention of our readers is directed to the article on "Missionaries as Grain Merchants" on page on 682 of this issue.

Japan has given a voluntary pledge that the number of emigrants from that country to Canada shall not in future exceed ten a month.

An appeal for 100,000 volunteer workers has been issued by the Commission appointed by the recent General Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church. They are to pledge themselves to labor for a year in soul winning and lay preaching.

Dr. Talmage preached on Sunday, Aug. 5, to a large congregation in Berlin. The service was held in the American church and was in English. To a press correspondent Dr. Talmage expressed his pleasure at preaching without the aid of an interpreter, whose services had been necessary in his meetings in Norway, Sweden and Russia.

The Philadelphia Evangelistic Committee of the Presbyterian Churches is conducting another earnest systematic campaign this summer. The city has been mapped out in districts, tents located at suitable points and arrangements made for holding meetings on the piers. Rev. L. P. Rowland, of Grand Rapids, Mich., has been invited to assist in the work.

The reports of the Presbyterian Church for 1900, show that the number of communicants has increased by 23,782 since the corresponding period of last year. The whole number is now 1,007,689. There are 7,467 ministers, an increase of 155. The total contributions have been $15,054,301, of which the various Boards of Home and Foreign Missions, Church Erection, etc., received $2,551,170, and all these Boards begin their fiscal year free of debt.

A FAMINE MOTHER'S PLEA, GODHRA

CROWDS OF SUFFERERS WAITING FOR RELIEF, AHMEDNAGAR

A PITIFUL APPEAL FOR FOOD

MY TOUR THROUGH FAMINE-STRICKEN INDIA

.. BY LOUIS KLOPSCH ..

III.

THE Christian missionary is the bright and shining light that penetrates the present gloom of India and inspires the heart with hope for the future. Wherever his abode may be, there the sick, the troubled and the hungry flock, and there they get comfort, help and food according to their necessities and the missionary's means. If a hundred thousand consecrated missionaries could be promptly sent to India, supplied with sufficient means, the three thousand souls who would constitute each missionary's parish would be brought into the marvelous light of the Gospel within a very few years. At the present time, there is but one missionary to every 200,000 souls, a ratio which would give Greater New York only seventeen pastors; Chicago, six; Boston, two; and San Francisco, one. But the time will come when, through the efforts of the heroic band of self-denying men and women now laboring for Christ in that benighted land, India will raise her own home missionaries, and by the very children to which she herself gave birth, be led to accept Jesus of Nazareth as Saviour and King. And the present famine is paving the way — for the children left without father or mother, home or friends, will be gathered into Christian orphanages, educated by Christian teachers, surrounded by Christian influences, become Christians themselves, and eventually go forth to tell the glad tidings of a free and a full salvation.

It was my good fortune, during my brief sojourn in that unhappy land, to be thrown into closest contact with a number of the godly men and women, who, full of faith, leaving the comforts of civilization behind them, answered the Divine call to uphold the standard of the Cross among an interesting but an exceedingly superstitious people, and who to-day, far away from their native land, are brightening and cheering countless lives and leading them out gradually, slowly but surely, step by step, into that blessed faith that shall yet bring peace to their troubled souls, and joy and happiness to their sad and now hopeless hearts. I congratulate myself on having for a while been permitted to mingle with them and to draw encouragement and inspiration from their presence and their lives.

* * *

Pundita Ramabai had been seriously ill and confined to her bed for over two weeks, when she received my telegram from Bombay, inquiring whether it would be convenient for her to have me spend a day at Khedgaon on my way to Ahmednagar. Without regard for her own physical comfort, she immediately responded, cordially welcoming me to India and promising to meet me at Poona on the arrival of the seven o'clock train any morning I might designate. That same evening we started. It was our first trip through the famine district. We took the train at 19.30 (half-past seven, P.M.), and the next morning, at the appointed hour, we glided noiselessly into Poona Station. On the platform, dressed in spotless white, stood the Pundita. She looked very pale and feeble, but she greeted us cordially with a pleasant smile. In her hand she held a diminutive bouquet of sweet-smelling flowers, which she gracefully presented and I gratefully accepted. Flowers in India are always used on every joyous or festive occasion. The train halted only ten minutes. There was no time for exchange of protracted courtesies. I invited her into the car, which the railway company had placed at my disposal. She begged to be excused. She would go into the ladies' compartment and rest while the journey continued. She was right. A two hours' conference would have exhausted her. The signal to get aboard was given and we separated. The train started just as we boarded it, gliding out of Poona as noiselessly as it had glided in.

NOON HOUR IN A GOVERNMENT CAMP—THE WELCOME SIGNAL TO CEASE WORK

We had not yet breakfasted, and another two hours' journey was before us. But the Pundita, anticipating our requirements, had thoughtfully ordered a breakfast placed in the car. It consisted of bananas, tea, buffalo milk, bread and buffalo butter as spotlessly white as the Pundita's dress. It was my first introduction to white butter, and though strange to my taste, no breakfast was ever more welcome.

At a little after nine we reached Khedgaon. A multitude of men and women and children had gathered at the station. They had heard that the Pundita had recovered and was coming. She was the benefactress. Many of them but for her help would not have been alive. They owed everything to her. So they gathered to welcome her. They flocked around her. They embraced her. The young folks kissed her. Tears of joy were in their eyes. The Pundita was affected. She could hardly restrain her emotion. She almost wept. She returned the embraces and she looked happy. The scene was a very touching one and this spontaneous manifestation of gratitude very pathetic. It came from the heart, went to the heart and Ramabai found full compensation for a thousand cares and anxieties in that one welcome.

Thus escorted we walked over the buffalo car which was to take us to the Mukti Mission, where Ramabai is carrying on successfully her greatest work among orphan girls and child widows. After a drive — I cannot say how long, for every moment was taken up with serious conversation — we reached a rectangular compound in the centre of which extensive building operations were in progress. Here another crowd greeted us with demonstrations of joy. We alighted, and again Ramabai was speedily encircled and the scene at the railway station was repeated.

Space will not permit me here to repeat the story of the happy day I spent with her and the 700 bright-eyed, lovely girls and young women under her care (see CHRISTIAN HERALD of July 4th), but it was a red letter event which I shall never forget. The magnitude and superi uality of the work were a veritable revelation to me, and I am happy to know hat the generous readers of THE CHRISIAN HERALD have enabled me to lift iany a burden from the shoulders of this Divinely-called and heaven-ordained disiple.

. . .

I was sound asleep when our car was etached at Ahmednagar at 23.30, half n hour before midnight. Dr. R. A. Hume and a few of his missionaries were waiting us at the station, and Mr. Benamin Aitken received them at the rear latform and arranged for a meeting at ix o'clock the next morning. Another lorious day awaited us, full of hope, ncouragement and inspiration. Where n the missionary world can Dr. Hume's ork at Ahmednagar be surpassed? Weeks could be spent there and every day ould develop new surprises of the most elightful character. Every phase of hissionary work, spiritual, physical, menal and industrial, sympathetic and pracical, is here developed into full fruition. Orphans, widows, families, workers, invaids and dependents, all cared for accordng to their needs, and success stamped learly and unmistakably on every branch f the work.

That afternoon, while on our way to he Government Relief Works at Kapurvadi, we came to what is known as the Wellesley Tree. We got out of the hot arriage and rested a few moments under s leafless branches. On that spot the ative fort of Ahmednagar capitulated in 803 to Lord Wellesley, Commander of he British forces, and as a memorial he lanted the tree. Dr. Hume and I disussed the future of Christianity in Inand at this very place the fort of Hinduism will capitulate to the Captain of our Salvation and yield its sword to the man who then stood at my side, the constant aim of whose life is, "To make my God appear great and good and near."

THE GOVERNMENT RELIEF WORKS AT NADIAD—BUILDING WATER TANKS

With an intense devotion to the cause, an untiring activity, a surpassing talent for organization, the sagacity and wisdom of a trained diplomat, the generalship of a Napoleon, and withal the simplicity of a child, Dr. R. A. Hume is unmistakably a man chosen of God to bring things to pass that shall shake to the very foundations the strongholds of superstition and darkness which now enthrall the myriad population of the Indian Empire.

. . .

The Berachah Home, on Grant Road, in Byculla, an outskirt of Bombay, is the headquarters in India of the Missionary Alliance. It was there where the meeting of THE CHRISTIAN HERALD Interdenominational Committee was held on the day of my arrival. Rev. M. B. Fuller, a member of the Executive Board of our Inter-denominational Relief Committee, resides there. It is the centre of a tremendous influence in the right direction. Complete consecration and concentrated vital religious energy are at home there. It was a good place at which to plan what may yet prove the mightiest missionary effort of the century. For who can measure the far-reaching results of that meeting? It brought Christian America in contact with idolatrous, poverty-stricken India as never before. It revealed possibilities never dreamed of. It may eventuate in results that will surpass the fondest hopes of the most optimistic believer in missionary effort.

A FAMINE WAIF JUST RESCUED

THE PUNDITA, DRESSED IN SPOTLESS WHITE

A SECTION OF RAMABAI'S FAMILY

Would the cablegram guaranteeing the support of 5,000 and possibly 10,000 orphans ever have been sent had that meeting not taken place? Where in the history of Christian charities has this proposition ever been paralleled? "India for Christ," at that meeting and in that house suddenly developed from the range of possibilities into the realm of probabilities. These 10,000 orphans will before many years be torch-bearers in the triumphal procession which shall take possession in the name of Christ of every inch of land touched by the sole of the missionary foot.

Mrs. Fuller, (since then passed to her eternal reward) was ill—too ill to be seen. Cholera and pneumonia were doing their deadly work, and though brave and heroic her struggle, she yielded at last and went up and into the presence of her Lord pleading, perhaps, for the land and the people to which she had dedicated her life. But the work Brother Fuller has in hand will not lag. Single-handed, but sustained by the Master, he will carry it on, and victory after victory shall be his. May God comfort him in this his hour of sorrowful bereavement, and strengthen him for the days of trial and of triumph yet to come! . . .

Nobler specimens of Christian missionaries than Dr. G. P. Taylor and his devoted wife, of Ahmadabad, cannot be found anywhere. Irish Presbyterians, consecrated, intelligent, industrious, self-denying, they are working on broad lines, and the souls born at their mission into the Kingdom are not apt to be neglected nor to remain spiritual babes. Their Christianity is of the sturdy kind that will not tolerate rice-converts. Heart-conviction and heart-conversion are what they aim at and with nothing short of that will they be satisfied. We remained with them a day or so while visiting relief camps and poor-houses in the vicinity of Ahmadabad, and learned to love them as wholehearted, earnest, faithful workers in the Lord's vineyard, whose mission is to love Christ and win souls for their Divine Master. They gather the hungry and the destitute around them and by kindness and practical Christian benevolence lead them one by one to a knowledge of the greater love that brought Christ from heaven to their own continent, there to give his life as a ransom for as many as shall receive him, regardless of sect, color or condition.

It was at this mission that we found a girl of about ten years fast asleep on the floor of the parlor. She had come in, asking the privilege to die there. Without a friend in the world, exhausted from lack of food, just able to keep on her feet until she reached the door, she had no other wish than to die among people who perhaps would be kind enough to bury her after she was dead. They took her in and let her sleep on a rug. After awhile they aroused her and gave her a glass of milk, then she went to sleep again and she was still sleeping when we went away. Mrs. Taylor assured me that with proper care she would soon recover, although, except when taking an occasional mouthful of food, she might sleep for a week to come.

My traveling companion and guide on our second journey through the famine field was Rev. E. F. Frease. He is the Methodist Presiding Elder of the Gujarat District, and one of the most promising Christian workers in India. He was born in Ohio, is brimful of energy and contagious enthusiasm, a man of extraordinary executive ability, and one who "when duty calls, or danger, is never wanting there." Full of faith and in closest touch with the progress of Christianity in India, he believes that the day is now at hand when great things may confidently be looked for. His solicitude for the orphans is exceedingly touching. All over his great district he is superintending the erection of orphanages. He is planning far ahead. "These children," said he, "must be saved, body and soul, and we Christian missionaries must do it. May God graciously help us to prove equal to this tremendous responsibility." He believes in pushing ahead on industrial lines, and has developed a weaving industry that now furnishes the government with canvas. When the orphans under his charge grow up, he will put them to work and make of them sterling Christian men and women. Bro. Frease is the Treasurer of the Inter-denominational Committee, and the head of the press propaganda of the Famine Work. I met him oftener than any of the other missionaries, and consider him an exceedingly important factor in the great work of winning this empire for Christ.

. . .

My time in India was short. It was a physical impossibility to visit more than a mere fraction of the land. But missionaries came from the East and from the West, from the North and from the South to welcome me, and from their lips I heard heart-cheering reports of gigantic progress on spiritual lines. One and all referred feelingly to the great assistance which THE CHRISTIAN HERALD and its vast army of sympathetic readers afforded them in 1897, at a time when, without that help, they would have been absolutely helpless. Thousands of lives had thus been saved, and thousands of conversions have resulted from this marvelous manifestation of international Christian charity. And what a mighty impression the present munificent missionary relief operations must make on India's three hundred millions, representing one-fifth of the population of the entire world! It is simply beyond the grasp of mortal mind. If we take full advantage of this, the greatest missionary opportunity of the century, the indications are that within a few years India will realize in her own spiritual experience the opening lines of that majestic missionary hymn:

"The morning light is breaking, the darkness disappears."

GROUP OF FAMINE SUFFERERS, AHMADABAD

NEW YORK

Abbott, Mrs F... 1 00
Abbey, L E & G Palmer 1 00
Abott, Nancy.... 1 00
Abbott, Walter .. 60
Abell, Mrs J H.. 50
Abraham, Anna.. 25
Abrahams, Mrs S M 1 00
Ackley, S H..... 1 00
Ackron, B I..... 10
Adams, Mrs C W. 1 00
Adams, Mrs E... 25
Adams, Mrs F... 1 00
Adams, Mrs Geo. 25
Adams, John ... 05
Adams, M L & Class 2 00
Adamy, Mrs M... 25
Ades, Miss F.... 50
Adriane, Mrs Geo 2 00
Adsit, Mrs M... 1 00
Ahern, W..... 50
Akeson, Ellen... 1 00
Albertson, L 1 00
Alderman, Edw.. 2 00
Alderman, H V.. 10
Aldrich, L S.... 3 00
Allen, Mrs D J... 1 00
Allen, Edw 25
Allen, Mrs Edw.. 25
Allen, Mr & Mrs E 5 00
Allen, Fannie T.. 5 00
Allen, J G..... 1 00
Almy, Edna 60
Alsop, Mrs 1 00
Alsop, E F..... 1 00
Alsop, G F..... 2 00
Alsop, Mary 1 00
Alsop, Reese F... 1 00
Alsop, Reese D... 1 00
Althouse, S B.... 10
Alton, Anne 1 00
Alton, Anne 1 00
Amer, L Lottie.. 2 00
Ames, Mrs E.... 50
Ames, Mrs M E.. 1 00
Amsbury, Mrs A. 2 00
Andersdobben, M 20
Anderson, Mrs... 05
Anderson, A 50
Anderson, A 10
Anderson, Miss A 25
Anderson, Alma.. 1 00
Anderson, A..... 1 00
Anderson, C E... 1 00
Anderson, E..... 25
Anderson, E 1 00
Anderson, Miss E 1 00
Anderson, Emily. 1 00
Anderson, G P... 25
Anderson, H 10
Anderson, H..... 15
Anderson, Miss H 50
Anderson, Miss H 1 00
Anderson, Miss H 1 00
Anderson, Hilma. 10
Anderson, Ida ... 1 00
Anderson, J 10
Anderson, J T... 10
Anderson, Joel... 1 00
Anderson, Lina . 1 00
Anderson, Lois E. 10 00
Anderson, O 1 00
Anderson, Sven.. 25
Anderson, Mrs T. 05
Andrew, J G.... 25
Andrews, Mrs A C 1 00
Andrews, H S... 1 00
Andrews, W H.. 1 00
Andrus, E Y ...20 00
Angell, L 50
Angell, Mary ... 50
Angell, W G.... 50
Angus, Mrs F T. 2 00
Anstice, Mrs I..10 00
Anstice, M 2 00
Apelt, Chas 50
Archer, Mr 25
Archer, Mrs M J 1 00
Armstrong, G & M 1 00
Arnold, Mrs A J. 25
Ashby, Mrs J H. 1 00
Ashley, Paul ... 25
Atherton, A E... 1 00
Atkins, Mrs A... 1 00
Austin, Amelia.. 1 00
Austin, Mrs M B 1 00
Averill, H E.... 25
Averill, Mrs H C 10
Avery, M & G, B Sperry 1 00
Avery, Wm 50
Ayer, F F.....500 00
Ayres, Mrs A.... 1 00
Babcock, Miss M. 4 00
Bachelor, Mrs D D 5 00
Backman, Mrs M J 25
Backus, Mr and Mrs B 50
Backus, Mrs M.. 50
Bagg, J C..... 10
Bagwell, Mrs C T 2 00
Bailee, Mr and Mrs J W..... 2 00
Bailey, Mr LeR.. 1 00
Baker, Mrs A... 10
Baker, Chas H.. 5 00
Baker, Ellen L.. 1 00
Baker, Jennie R. 2 00
Baker, R E..... 25
Baker, Mrs S J... 1 00
Baker, Wm..... 25
Balcom, Mrs M H 4 00
Baldwin, C L.... 1 00
Baldwin, Miss H 50
Baldwin, O 50
Balfour, Jessie . 1 00
Ball, N 1 00
Ballon, Mrs A H.10 00
Ballon, C O..... 25
Ballon, D L..... 25
Baltz, A B..... 2 00
Balz, Mrs J..... 4 00
Banks, Mr 1 00
Barber, Miss A F 98
Barber, J S..... 1 00
Barber, Miss M W 1 00
Bard, Mauritz... 10
Barker, A 50
Barker, Ellen ... 1 00
Barker, H C.... 1 00

NEW YORK—Cont'd.

Barker, Julia A. 3 00
Barlow, Geo 1 00
Barnes, C E.... 10
Barnes, Mrs E.. 3 00
Barnes, C L.... 2 00
Barnes, O C.... 76
Barnett, A Wm and T 3 00
Barney, Mrs L.. 50
Barr, Catherine . 20
Barr, H 50
Barrows, F W... 2 00
Barrett, Mr 10
Barrows, S A...20 00
Barry, L 50
Bassett, C & H.. 15
Bassett, Mrs W H 1 00
Bastian, E P.... 1 00
Bate, Anne 1 00
Bates, Chas 1 00
Bates, Mrs D.... 25
Beach, F G..... 1 00
Beach, Mrs G... 25
Beagle, Mr and Mrs M..... 2 00
Beale, Mrs F L.. 1 50
Beardsley, A ... 1 00
Beardsley, G W.. 1 16
Beardsley, L ... 1 05
Beck, A 05
Beck, W 50
Becker Children. 5 00
Becker, Mrs John 20
Becker, Wm 10
Beckman, Aug .. 1 00
Beckwith, Miss E R 5 00
Bedell, Mrs J P. 1 00
Bedient, Ellen L. 2 00
Beebe, C 50
Beebe, Mrs C D. 5 00
Beebe, Mrs J H. 2 00
Beebe, Mrs N... 10
Beech, Mrs L... 10
Beers, Mrs 1 00
Befroy, Mrs I... 25
Belais, S, Coll... 6 00
Bell, Florence... 50
Bell, Ida 50
Bellengrew, Aug. 25
Bellinger, Mrs N 25
Benedict, Mrs C M 1 65
Benedict, Mrs L. 10
Benedict, Mrs L B 25
Benedict, M F... 2 30
Bengtson, K 1 00
Bennett Co, Hunt 1 00
Bennett, C B and family 25
Bennett, G M and Mrs M J..... 1 00
Bennett, J 25
Bennett, Mrs O.. 50
Bennett, J L.... 1 00
Benschoten, R .. 50
Bensen, Hilmer . 50
Benson, Miss C.. 1 00
Benson, Mrs N.. 2 00
Beuten, LeRoy & family 4 00
Berglund, Anna . 10
Berns, E J..... 50
Berray, Mrs C... 1 00
Berry, Mrs M... 2 00
Bess, L W..... 25
Bess, Miss N.... 1 00
Betzhotz, G S... 25
Betzhotz, J B... 25
Beyer, J W..... 4 00
Bigart, John ... 1 00
Billings, Mrs A H 1 00
Bingham, C L... 1 00
Bingham, M C...1 00
Bingham, Mrs E. 25
Bingham, H L... 1 00
Bingham, Wm .. 55
Binguist, I E.... 50
Bink, Alice 20
Bink, Buckles ... 25
Bird, Mrs C A... 20
Bishop, Willie .. 2 00
Bissell, Miss D.. 1 68
Bissell, T J..... 1 00
Bixby, M J..... 1 00
Bjerregaard, Mrs W P 2 00
Bjorck, Fred ... 1 00
Black, R 25
Blackburn, Mrs J 25
Blackman, Kate . 25
Blad, Mrs C.... 15
Blaisdell, B W.. 2 00
Blaisdell, M.. .. 2 00
Blake, G H..... 50
Blakeslee, Mrs H A 1 00
Blanchard, Mrs F 15
Blanchard, Mrs G 35
Blanchard, Miss H 2 33
Blanvelt, F M... 4 00
Bliss, Mrs Emma 25
Bliss, G A..... 50
Bliss, Nelson ... 25
Bliss, Miss P.... 25
Blood, Mrs E.... 25
Blossom, F W... 1 00
Blonnt, Miss J M 26
Blume, Fredk ...10 00
Boak, R N..... 1 00
Boehl, Mary 1 00
Bodley, A D.... 10
Bogart, W B.... 1 00
Bollar, Mrs Jno. 25
Bolles, Mrs J H. 1 00
Bomun, Dick ... 10
Bolt, Fred 20
Bolt, Lamont ... 25
Borroughs, Chas. 2 00
Bott, Wm 25
Boulter, Mrs S I. 1 00
Bouton, Cora ... 02
Bovard, G W....10 00
Bowden, Mrs H.. 1 00
Bowen, Miss C E 2 00
Bower, Mrs Jane 1 50
Bowler, Rev J.. 2 00
Boyce, G W 1 00
Boyd, Mrs M J.. 3 00
Boynton, E E... 1 00
Bozard, A J..... 1 00

NEW YORK—Cont'd.

Bradley, Mrs D.. 3 00
Brainard, Mildred 25
Brainard, R 1 00
Brainerd, G G... 5 00
Braman, C L.... 1 00
Braman, S S.... 1 00
Branch, Mrs E... 25
Brand, Sarah ... 1 00
Brash, Mrs J.... 1 00
Brate, D W..... 1 00
Bray, Mrs A J... 50
Brayer, Mr and Mrs J F..... 5 00
Brayton, Mrs E J 2 00
Brienly, Mattie.. 25
Brigham, H W.. 50
Brightman, C ... 1 00
Briggs, A M..... 50
Briggs, Edw 25
Briggs, Mrs M... 10
Briggs, Wilma .. 05
Brittian, Rev J M 1 00
Broberg, M 10
Brockway, Mrs S S 2 00
Brogan, P 50
Brong, Mrs Jacob 25
Bronk, Lucele ...15 00
Brooker, Mary A. 1 00
Brooks, Mrs E A. 50
Brooks, O L..... 25
Brooks, Mrs O L. 25
Brooks, Mr and Mrs S 2 00
Brower, Mrs M T 1 00
Brown, Mrs 15 00
Brown, Mrs A M 1 00
Brown, Mrs A M 2 00
Brown, Mrs A... 2 00
Brown, Miss B.. 50
Brown, Burton .. 25
Brown, C 1 00
Brown, E 2 00
Brown, Mrs E... 25
Brown, Dr E W. 25
Brown, Edna ... 1 00
Brown, Frank .. 50
Brown, Mrs H.. 1 00
Brown, Mrs H L. 2 00
Brown, Mrs H N. 1 00
Brown, Mrs H W. 3 00
Brown, H L..... 25
Brown, J G..... 1 00
Brown, Mrs J S. 2 00
Brown, J S..... 2 00
Browning, Mrs J W 25
Brown, L H..... 5 00
Brown, Mrs M... 25
Brown, M A..... 5 00
Brown, N H..... 25
Brown, Nellie ... 10
Brown, Mr and Mrs S S..... 2 00
Brown, Sarah ... 20
Brown, W 10
Brownell, C H... 2 00
Brownells, Mrs, dau 5 00
Brownsey, R 10 00
Bruen, P & J.... 50
Bryan's, Miss S S Cl 1st Pres Ch, Cohoes 5 00
Bryson, Mrs J...10 00
Buchanan, And . 10
Buck, Mrs G.... 1 00
Buck, Mrs J L.. 50
Buckley, W H... 25
Buell, Mrs D.... 11
Buell, G C..... 5 10
Buerman, M M.. 2 00
Bull, Miss 1 00
Bump, B N..... 2 00
Bunn, Mrs 10 00
Burch, Mrs 15
Burch, M, Coll by 1 35
Burd, Rev N S... 5 00
Burden, Fred ... 1 00
Burdsall, E 10 00
Burgess, Mrs J C 50
Burgess, S 1 00
Burges, W E.... 1 00
Burhans, David . 05
Burhans, G A... 1 00
Burkart, John .. 05
Burleigh, Lulu .. 1 00
Burnet, Jennie .. 05
Burns, Andrew .. 5 00
Burns, Mrs C S.. 2 00
Burns, D 25
Burns, F M..... 1 00
Burns, Mrs J.... 2 00
Burow, Mrs 50
Burr, Miss G.... 21
Burr, Leona 10
Burr, Mrs M.... 1 00
Burr, Mr 1 00
Burrows, Mrs E. 1 50
Burt, Mrs J..... 1 00
Burt, J L..... 25
Burton, T Wm.. 50
Bushnell, F 25
Bushnell, Mrs H. 25
Butcher, Mrs S.. 1 00
Butler, Mrs D... 2 25
Butler, R W..... 1 00
Button, Mrs T... 2 00
Butts, M 25
Cabble, Emma ...10 00
Caldwell, Mrs F C 1 00
Caldwell, S E... 2 00
Caldwell, W H.. 2 00
Calderwood, Mrs H W..... 2 00
Calizen, Mr 05
Calkins, C R.... 1 00
Calkins, Taylor.. 1 00
Callaway, T B... 2 00
Calvelli, Dr G... 4 00
Calvert, Mrs S E 90
Camerson, Mrs P 1 00
Campbell, Miss P 1 00
Carbeck, H 50
Carier, Miss 1 03
Carl, Eliza 1 00
Carley, E 1 00
Carley, Mabel ... 10
Carlson, Mrs ... 10
Carlson, Alvida.. 1 00
Carlson, C 04
Carlson, C J.... 2 00
Carlson, E G.... 1 00

NEW YORK—Cont'd.

Carlson, Ellen .. 25
Carlson Eric ... 2 00
Carlson, Joslin .. 50
Carlson, M 1 00
Carman, Miss D. 1 00
Carman, Geo 1 00
Carman, Mrs Jas 5 00
Carner, H B and others 4 27
Carpenter, Fred . 25
Carpenter, Mrs W 50
Carson, Elmore.. 25
Carter, Mrs 25
Case, Dick 50
Case, Mrs R..... 25
Casewell, E 1 00
Casn, Wm C..... 25
Casler's, Anna D, S S Cl 1 45
Casper, Frank .. 05
Casper, Geo 05
Cathers, A W.... 5 00
Catle, Geo D.... 25
Catlin, Lora, and Richmond H .. 1 00
Cederberg, J 25
Chace, Clara B.. 2 50
Chace, Geo H.... 2 00
Chace, John H... 1 00
Chadeayne, G D. 5 00
Chamberlain, C & J 20
Chamberlain, Mrs O 10
Chamberlain, T W 20 00
Champlain, Alex. 50
Champlin Sisters. 50
Champlin, Earle . 1 00
Chapman, Dr C F 50
Chapman, D C Jr 50
Chapman, Mrs E O 50
Chapman, Mrs F. 25
Chapman, J C... 5 00
Chapman, M M.. 1 00
Chappell, Mr and Mrs C E 5 00
Charlton, John .10 00
Charets, J S.... 1 00
Chase, Mrs H... 1 00
Chase, M M..... 2 00
Chassel, Mrs E.. 25
Chelberg, Mrs .. 05
Cherry, Miss ... 1 00
Cherry, Jno 25
Cherry, May 20
Chittenden, C M. 2 00
Christianson, Mr. 10
Church, Miss L J 2 00
Church, M E & Katharine ...50 00
Churchill, Mrs J. 1 00
Clark, Mrs Ada.. 50
Clark, Mrs B W.. 1 00
Clark, C G..... 5 00
Clark, E 10
Clarke, Mrs E... 2 00
Clark, Miss E S.. 1 00
Clark, Mrs G L.. 1 00
Clark, G T..... 5 00
Clark, Mrs H.... 2 00
Clark, J 02
Clark, Jas 1 00
Clark, L 25
Clark, L V 1 00
Clark, Mrs M... 50
Clark, Mary 25
Clark, Mrs O C.. 1 00
Clark, Mrs P.... 05
Clark, Mrs R.... 1 00
Clark, Richard .. 50
Clark, Mrs S M.. 1 00
Clark, Mrs W J, in mem of little Willie 5 00
Clarke, H S..... 50
Clarke, Mr and Mrs J H..... 1 00
Clarke, Mill.... 50
Clarke, Mrs M F 25
Clark, Wm 2 00
Classon, E W.... 35
Claucy, J R..... 5 00
Clay, Edw 25
Clegg, Thos 2 00
Cleveland, Mrs J A 1 00
Clews, Natalie .. 2 00
Clindsay, W 25
Cline, Mrs A E.. 25
Cline, Mrs J B & dau 2 00
Cline, Mrs W.... 1 00
Clius, Miss 50
Clinzburg, Mrs .. 05
Clother, Mr & Mrs W M 1 00
Clough, Mrs 25
Cobb, Mrs Sarah 25
Coble, Aggie 25
Coburn, C 1 00
Cock, C M..... 1 00
Cockfair, G A.... 2 00
Cockfair, M F... 1 00
Cockfair, Olive J. 50
Cooley, Mrs H L. 2 00
Coffin, Mrs F D.. 1 00
Coffin, J 30
Colby, Alice and Mary Donohue . 1 75
Cole, Madeline .. 1 00
Cole, Mrs Seth . 1 00
Collins, J N..... 1 00
Collins, Mrs Jas. 10
Collow, Sarah ... 10
Colson, A G..... 1 00
Combes, A C....10 00
Condon, Mr and Mrs. Wm 1 00
Conger, Mr and Mrs Jery 1 00
Conkling, D L... 1 00
Conklin, M J.... 25
Conkling, E E... 5 00
Connell, Miss A.. 1 00
Connelly, Miss L 10
Consalns, J H... 5 00
Converee, A F... 2 00
Cook, Mrs A B.. 1 00
Cook, Mrs E..... 25
Cook, H C..... 2 00
Cook, Mrs J..... 1 00
Cook, John J.... 2 00
Cook, Mary F... 1 00
Coolis, Amelia .. 2 00
Coonley, Mrs ... 1 00

NEW YORK—Cont'd.

Coots, Mrs J H. 1 00
Cornell, S B.....10 00
Cornell, Thos W 1 00
Correr, Fred 50
Corrier, Julia ... 25
Cossentine, J C.. 5 00
Cost, Ida 1 00
Courbat, Mrs F.. 20
Courtney, T Geo. 2 00
Coventry, Mr and Mrs W A..... 1 00
Coving, K 10
Cox, A 35
Cox, Mrs D..... 25
Coy, Mrs E O.... 1 00
Craft, Mrs A B.. 1 00
Crafts, J W..... 1 00
Crago, David ... 1 00
Cramer, Mrs C.. 1 00
Crandall, Caroline 1 00
Crandall, Mrs H L 2 00
Crandall, Mrs J.. 50
Crandall, L P.... 25
Crandell, Jos B.. 2 00
Crane, Mrs 3 00
Crane, Mrs Ella.. 15
Crane, Mrs L.... 25
Crawford, Mrs S. 25
Crawley, Mrs S J 25
Creagern, Miss M 25
Creighton, Miss N 50
Creighton, S 1 00
Crittenden, Robt.. 25
Crocker, L B.... 2 00
Cronk, Alf 35
Crosby, E H.....25 00
Crosby, M S.....10 00
Cross, F J..... 2 00
Crouse & Brandeger 25 00
Crouse, Jacob ...100 00
Crowell, Miss B.. 1 00
Crowley, F & S.. 50
Crum, Miss A M. 1 00
Cudaback, Mr and Mrs C G..... 2 00
Culver, Mrs E F. 2 00
Culver, Mrs H... 5 00
Cummings, Bert.. 25
Cummings, Mrs C 2 00
Cummings, G ... 25
Cummings, Geo .. 50
Cumpson, Mary.. 65
Cunningham, I H 50
Cunningham, Mrs J 1 00
Currie, Mrs E J.. 1 00
Currier, P 15
Currier, P J..... 30
Curtis boys 20
Curtis, Mrs L.... 1 00
Curtis, Miss P A. 5 00
Curvy, W V F... 3 50
Cutter, Mrs W B. 2 00
Czar, Mrs C..... 25
Czar, Mary 25
Dagles, D 15
Dahler, J A..... 05
Dahlgren, Mr and Mrs 50
Dahlgren, Edla .. 25
Dahlgren, Nora .. 50
Dahlgrist, Mrs E 25
Dailey, Mrs 50
Daily, John 15
Daily, Mrs W H. 45
Dakin, Frank ... 25
Dakin, Mary O... 2 00
Dakin, Mrs Wm.. 25
Dale, Mrs R..... 5 00
Daley, Mrs C.... 10
Dalrymple, Mrs L 25
Damie, C 25
Daniel, Mrs C L. 1 00
Daniels, Mrs V H 1 00
Dann Any & Hazel Hinkly 50
Darbee, Mrs D W 1 00
Darling, A 25
Darling, J A..... 25
Darrell, Mrs E R 1 00
Darrolk, J 1 00
Dart, Miss Jane.. 2 00
Davidson, M 2 00
Davie, Mrs M J. 5 00
Davies, B 25
Davies, D J..... 1 00
Davies, Mrs Edw I 00
Davies, Emily .. 25
Davies, Henry .. 25
Davies, Mrs J S.. 1 00
Davies, L & J... 1 00
Davies, Mr and Mrs R D..... 50
Davis, Alf 10
Davis, Mrs A.... 1 00
Davies, Mrs R P. 50
Davis, C F..... 20
Davis, Chas 25
Davis, E T..... 5 00
Davis, George ... 1 00
Davis, Joe J..... 2 00
Davis, Mrs J M. 1 00
Davis, M E..... 2 00
Davis, Nannie ... 05
Davis, Olive 2 00
Davis, Mrs P M.. 1 00
Davis, S E..... 2 00
Davis, Sara 50
Davison, J M.... 5 00
Day, Mrs B..... 10
Day, E G..... 3 00
Day, H L..... 1 00
Day, Peter 1 00
Deake, Mrs A M. 2 00
Dealing, Mrs W E 1 00
Dean, Bert 1 00
Dean, Mrs J R... 1 00
Debble, S 25
Decker, Geo P... 1 00
Decker, Mrs J H 1 00
DeGroff, A S.... 1 00
Delamater, M J.. 1 00
Delmos, Jno D...75 00
Demon, Mrs M T 1 00
Dempster, Mrs W 1 00
Dence, Mrs J.... 10
Dennis, Miss K T 1 00
Dento, Jno 50
Denton, R 5 00
Depen, Mrs P.... 50
Desbecker, Mrs B 1 00
Devall, Dora 1 00
Devereaux, J R.. 1 00
Devereaux, L F. 1 00

NEW YORK—Cont'd.

Devereaux, M W. 1 00
Dewey, E F..... 48
Diamond, P 50
Dibilles, Tony ... 10
Dickens, D 10
Dickens, Linda... 50
Dickie, Mrs J J.. 2 00
Dickinson, Fay .. 50
Dickinson, W 10
Dickson, Frank . 25
Diddell, J S..... 2 00
Dildine, Mrs Dr.. 1 00
Dimond, Robt ... 1 00
Dixon, Dr E H... 25
Dixon, F G..... 25
Doane, Mary E... 1 00
Doane, Sophia J.. 1 00
Dodge, Mr and Mrs C C.....50 00
Dodge, Mrs M.... 15
Dodge, Mrs O D.. 1 00
Dolson, Mrs 25
Donty, Mrs M.... 25
Doolittle, O 10
Dormandy, Mrs M F 1 00
Dormer, A D.... 1 54
Dossenbach, H .. 5 00
Doty, Dr G H.... 50
Dougall, Mrs J.... 50
Douglass, Mrs F.. 50
Dow, Mr J..... 1 00
Downum, Miss M. 1 00
Downs, A 1 00
Drake, Mrs K.... 1 00
Dresser, Miss Eva 15
Dresser, Mrs Jas. 25
Driver, A W..... 2 00
Driver, B 1 00
Drogemuller, H .. 50
Dublin, S S..... 44
Dubois, Ella 1 00
DuBois, Mrs F & S S Cl..... 1 00
DuBois, Mr and Mrs Wm H..... 1 00
Dudley, Chas 25
Duell, Mrs C A.. 1 00
Duell, H E..... 50
Dugan, B 55
Dugan, M 1 28
Dunbar, C F.....20 00
Duncan, A 25
Dunham, Mrs ... 25
Dunham, H C.... 10
Dunlap, A M..... 2 00
Dunham, Mrs M.. 10
Dunham, Miss R M 1 00
Dunning, H 2 40
Durand, Hannah. 3 00
Durham, Wm 1 00
Durland, Mrs S.. 2 00
Duryea, S L..... 1 00
Dwyer, Mrs W... 1 00
Dye, R G..... 3 00
Earl, J C..... 5 00
Earll, Mrs J L... 1 00
Easterly, Mrs M.. 50
Easton, B 25
Easton, H 25
Easton, L 25
Easton, L 12
Easton, R 13
Eaten, H N..... 1 00
Eddy, Mrs M..... 25
Edy, M E..... 2 00
Eddy, M K..... 3 50
Edgerton, Robt .. 1 00
Edinger, Alfred . 25
Edinger, F 10
Edinger, H 1 00
Edinger, Marcus.. 2 00
Edinger, U 1 00
Edmunds, Libbie. 25
Edrall, M B..... 2 00
Edwards, Mrs I J 2 00
Edwards, O M...100 00
Edwards, Will .. 50
Effner, Ada R.... 1 30
Egleston, Sarah.. 1 50
Ehlen, Mrs. Louis 1 00
Eich, Florence ... 1 00
Eichel, Lena 25
Eichler, David .. 25
Eiss, A G..... 3 00
Eiss, Mr and Mrs Geo 5 00
Ekberg, S A & Betty Akeson .. 1 00
Elbridge, Miss C. 5 00
Eldredge, Mrs F. 10
Eldrett, G 1 00
Eldridge, M 25
Elfast, Mrs 17
Elford, E & G... 1 00
Elkins, Miriam .. 10
Ellenwood, Mrs F F 10 00
Elliott, Martha A 1 00
Ellis, Mrs J..... 2 00
Ellis, Mrs J..... 2 00
Elsass, Mrs N E.. 50
Ellwanger, Geo .. 5 00
Elman, Mr 10
Elmer, Frank 25
Elwood, Fred 10
Elwood, L & L... 1 00
Emansyn, A S... 05
Emgren, J 1 00
Emmons, Mrs A.. 50
Emmons, Mrs J.. 10
Engelhart, Mrs L. 50
Engelhart, Wm .. 25
Engsteen, Mrs ... 10
Enander, Mrs ... 50
English, Mrs A T 1 00
Erbson, A M..... 50
Erickson, John .. 2 25
Erickson, L J.... 1 00
Ericson, H 05
Erikson, F 50
Erikson, Maria .. 50
Erkenbrack, Jas.. 2 00
Ernst, J R..... 1 00
Erskine, C W.... 2 00
Essetsbrom, J .. 3 00
Estus, A 25
Evans, Chas 25
Evans, Geo 25
Evans, Miss M.. 1 00
Evans, R J..... 1 00
Evans, Mrs Thos. 1 00
Evans, Z R..... 2 00
Eversen, M 25
Everett, D W.... 2 00

NEW YORK—Cont'd.

Ewold, Geo 50
Fagerhurd, Mrs .. 50
Failing, Mrs A R. 5 00
Fairchild, Mr 25
Fairchild, L C.... 25
Fanar, Geo E.... 4 00
Farlinger, Mrs C M 1 00
Farrar, Mary 1 00
Farrell, Miss 25
Farrell's, P Sons. 50
Farsberg, Olaf ... 50
Fasbury, Mrs E.. 50
Faser, Mrs A.... 1 00
Fay, Flora 25
Fellows, H C..... 5 00
Felt, Miss 50
Fenton, Miss M C 15
Fern, Julia A.... 1 07
Ferren, Mrs M... 50
Ferris, Mrs 10
Ferris, Mrs G.... 10
Field, Miss J..... 2 00
Field, W E..... 2 00
Filkins, D M..... 1 00
Finch, Mrs S A.. 2 00
Finch, W F..... 25
Fink, Mrs Chas... 25
Firman, Mrs M D. 25
Fischer, Katie ... 25
Fish, Mrs E B... 1 00
Fish, Mrs Ed..... 50
Fisher, E C.....10 00
Fisher, Jake 25
Fitch, Mrs 50
Fitus, Mrs S..... 25
Fitus, Mrs S J.... 25
Flin, Minnie 1 00
Flint, Simeon ... 1 00
Flinter, Mrs A C.. 1 00
Florence, L L .. 25
Foote, Mrs Levi.. 25
Forbes, J 10
Ford, G G..... 2 00
Forsyth, Jas G..100 00
Fosbury, J M..... 1 00
Fowler, E 2 00
Fowler, Mrs W. 10
Fox, A H..... 1 00
Francis, Miss J G 5 00
Francis, Mrs J G 3 00
Francis, M E.... 2 00
Frank, Mrs 20
Frank, Mrs A A. 1 25
Franklin, E Mae 05
Franklin, Nora . 05
Frary, Mrs J A.. 1 00
Fraser, Mrs T.. 1 00
Frederick, C C.. 5 00
Frederick, T H.. 5 00
Freeman, H 10
Freeman, M 1 00
Freer, Clarence . 2 00
French, Miss C.. 25
French, Mrs Celia 1 00
French, Mark ... 15
French, Myrtle . 50
French, Mr & Mrs W R 1 00
Frew, Mrs C..... 25
Fribey, Mrs 1 00
Friend, Channcey 1 00
Frines, Mr 10
Frisbee, E L.... 9 83
Fross, F L..... 2 00
Frost, J 05
Fuller, Mrs 25
Fuller, F M..... 1 00
Fuller, Frank ... 25
Gabinckon, J 50
Gage, O C..... 2 00
Gale, Mrs 10
Gallup, L B & Ivy 25
Ganse, Dr C H, through 100 00
Garatt, Jennie R 48
Garre, Mrs M.... 2 00
Garrett, Mrs N P 2 00
Gasline, Miss M.. 1 00
Geiger, Mrs C F. 1 00
Geis, Mrs N P... 2 00
Georga, Miss ... 25
George, Mrs E J. 1 00
George, H K E..10 00
Gibson, Dr W M..10 00
Giesler, Wm H.. 1 00
Giffin, Mrs E.... 1 00
Gilbride, Katie . 25
Gilchrist, E T .. 5 00
Gile, Mrs Chas.. 25
Gillen, Rose ... 25
Gillette, Miss D B 50
Gillings, E 20 00
Glancy, Mrs C.. 25
Glover, Mrs Geo 1 00
Gob, G 10
Godfrey, Mrs A.. 2 00
Goeller, Chas J. 25
Goff, Mrs O..... 10
Goff, W H..... 30
Goff, Walter ... 10
Goff, Willie 10
Goldsmith, Max.. 50
Goldthwait, Mrs J O 1 00
Goodwin, Mrs W F 2 00
Gordon, F M.... 2 00
Gordon, Sarah T. 1 00
Gorham, Mrs J F & S S Class of Presb Ch 1 00
Goshorn, Nellie . 1 00
Goth, C H..... 1 00
Goutermout, B I 25
Goutermout, M... 25
Graham, Mrs C S 1 00
Graham, Lilly... 50
Gran, Agnes 50
Grant, Lizzie ... 1 00
Grant, Mrs Lula. 1 00
Granther, Gus .. 10
Graves, C H.... 1 00
Graves, Mrs C H 50
Graves, Mrs Chas 50
Graves, E 50
Graves, Jane ... 2 00
Graves, Mrs W C 25
Graves, Mrs Wm 25
Gray, M E..... 1 00
Gregory, Mrs J H 2 00
Green, Ben H... 5 00
Green, E A 1 00
Green, Mrs L A.. 1 50
Green, Mrs M E. 1 00
Green, Mrs S.... 25

NEW YORK—Cont'd.

Greene, Mrs E A 25
Greene, S F.... 2 00
Greene, Mrs F.... 1 00
Greenought, M .. 1 00
Griffin, Jennie .. 10
Grimes, A E.... 1 00
Griswold, R S.... 2 00
Gritmon, Frank.. 1 00
Gronquist, I 25
Gross, Fred L, Brooklyn 1 00
Group, W H 2 00
Grove, Mrs B H & children 5 00
Grove, H A..... 25
Gruhe, Mrs J.... 25
Guerin, M 25
Guerrlich, F..... 5 00
Guile, H D..... 2 00
Gulbransen, Lina. 10
Gunther, Mrs W C 25
Gurnee children, Garnerville 2 00
Gustafson, Mr & Mrs 2 10
Gustafson, Alma. 25
Gustafson, M.... 25
Guy, Mrs B..... 2 00
Haas, F V..... 45
Hadley, Mrs A... 2 00
Hafile, H 10
Hafile, J..... 25
Hafile, L C..... 10
Hagaman, C A.. 2 00
Hagaman, C A... 1 00
Hagaman, C A... 1 00
Hagaman, C A... 1 00
Hagaman, C A... 1 00
Hagaman, C A.. 5 00
Hagaman, F R.. 1 00
Hahn, E C 25
Hahn, Henry.... 3 85
Haight, Mrs A.. 25
Haight, Wm 25
Haines, A 1 00
Hale, Mrs S A.. 1 00
Hall, Mr & Mrs B 5 00
Hall, Elnora A.. 1 00
Hall, Mrs F S.. 2 00
Hall, Mrs Jas .. 1 00
Hall, John L.... 2 00
Hall, Mrs Lizzie. 17
Halliday, E 1 00
Halstead, Mrs W I 1 00
Halsted, C S, thro 29
Hamacher, Mary.. 50
Hamacher, Sarah. 1 00
Hamblin, A D... 1 00
Hamblin, B E.... 75
Hamblin, H C... 25
Hamilton, L A... 1 00
Hamilton, Mrs L M 50
Hammack, T J..10 70
Hammerstein, A E 25
Hammerstin, E A 25
Hammerstin, J A 50
Hammersten, O.. 75
Hammersten, V E 1 00
Handerson, K .. 25
Hannahs, Mrs H E 1 00
Hannon, Miss B. 1 00
Hansen, Mrs 25
Hansen, E 25
Hansen, H 25
Hanson, Kann... 10
Hanson, T 1 00
Harcourt, Mrs J 3 00
Hare, J K 5 00
Hare, N H..... 10
Harles, W 1 00
Harling, Beda .. 25
Harling, C E.... 25
Harmon, Viola A 5 00
Harrer, Katherine 10
Harrington, Mrs H 1 00
Harris, Miss B.. 1 00
Harris, Geo P... 1 00
Harris, H J.....10 00
Harris, J 1 00
Harris, Jas K .. 25
Harris, Thos 20
Harris, Wm 1 00
Harris, W H.... 1 00
Hart, Miss M.... 50
Hartell, A & S.. 50
Hartman, C A... 2 00
Hartson, Mr & Mrs S 1 00
Hartwell, Mrs F M 1 00
Hartwell, Mrs W R 1 00
Harvey, Mr 25
Haskell, Mrs N D & her Music Cl 5 00
Haskins, Mrs F H25 00
Haskins, L D.... 32
Haskins, L N... 1 00
Hastings, Mrs G. 5 00
Hastlugs, H F... 2 00
Hatch, J C..... 10
Hatfield, Chas .. 25
Hatfield, R 15
Hatfield, Miss M. 10
Haugh, J B..... 50
Hause, T P.....10 00
Hawes, H 2 00
Hawley, C H....20 00
Hawley, C W.... 2 00
Hay, D M..... 2 00
Hayden, Mrs L... 10
Hayden, Mrs M E 1 00
Hayes, Rev & Mrs C H 2 00
Haynes, Mrs 10
Hazard, F M.... 2 00
Heady, Mrs M... 10
Heald, L & B.... 2 00
Heath, Helen, & Butler, Stella .. 75
Heaton, Mrs S... 25
Hebard, Mrs B S. 2 00
Hebhlethwait, A. 25
Hedln, Chas E... 1 00
Hedln, E 06
Hebner, Vina ... 05
Heckman, A 05
Hedstrau, L & E. 10
Helmgartner, F.. 10
Helmgartner J .. 10
Helenius, A 1 00
Helfman, L M... 2 00
Helgrist, Mrs C.. 25
Heller, Miss 10
Hellgren, C G... 50
Hellgren, F 1 00

NEW YORK—Cont'd.

Hellman, Esther. 1 00
Helmer, Maud L. 35
Henderson, Floyd. 05
Henderson, R J.. 1 00
Henderson, S S.. 1 50
Hendricks, R.... 25
Henne, Mrs W.... 10
Henry, Mrs 1 00
Heric, Mrs 20
Herman, G D.... 1 00
Herman, K 1 00
Hern, Mrs M A... 5 00
Herrick, H P.... 25
Herrick, W Lila.. 1 00
Hess, Eliz 26
Hess, H & G.... 4 15
Heth, Mrs H.... 10
Hewitt, F E..... 1 00
Heyden, Robt ... 50
Hickey, L 25
Higbie, G K & Co 5 00
Higbie, Mrs L... 1 00
Higgerson, Mrs C 1 00
Hill, Mrs 25
Hill, Mrs W C & G Wilson 1 00
Hills, Mrs Alfred 25
Hills, Mrs R.... 5 00
Hilma, L 10
Himrod Bapt S S.20 00
Hine, Mrs M A D & Mrs S P Howard 2 00
Hinkley, E R ... 10
Hirsch, D 10
Hoadley, Miss E. 25
Hoadley, Mrs E L 50
Hoag, Mrs H.... 25
Hoag, Miss J A, H L Faulds, C E Smellie, S Holleran, Master A Smellie..10 00
Hoag, Phœbe.... 15
Hoghaman, C A..10 00
Hodder, R 50
Hodges, Mrs S... 20
Hoffman, E M... 2 00
Hoffman, Wm F. 2 00
Hogan, Bros 2 25
Hogle, Mrs Benj. 1 00
Holbrook, Mrs C E 10
Holcomb, Mrs L. 1 25
Holcomb, W E.. 2 00
Holden, Chas ... 50
Holden, Eliza ... 1 00
Holliday, Mrs L. 1 00
Hollister, Wm E. 1 00
Holloway, Miss F 25
Holm, Ed 25
Holmes, Mrs B.. 1 00
Holmes, Fred C.. 2 00
Holmstrom, Mr.. 1 00
Holnes, A 2 50
Holt, H 25
Holt, L 25
Holton, Mrs U... 1 00
Hompe, A P..... 2 00
Homsby, C C.... 10
Homsby, Violette. 10
Hooker, C G..... 2 00
Hopkin, Abbie .. 50
Hopkins, Mrs ... 15
Hopkins, Mrs H. 10
Horsey, M 25
Horton, Kate M. 2 00
Horton, Mrs L M 25
Horton, Mrs M.. 50
Horton, Mildred. 05
Horton, Mrs W.. 1 00
Hoss, Mrs T M.. 50
Hotaling, Mrs C. 1 00
Houck, A 25
Houck, I 2 00
House, Mrs F G.. 1 00
Houston, Rev H. 1 00
Hover, Mrs R W. 5 00
Howard, E D.... 10
Howard, Gibson.. 5 00
Howard, Isaac... 2 00
Howard, Mrs M.. 2 00
Howard, W P.... 25
Howe, Jennie ... 10
Howe, Luclen ... 5 00
Howe, Marg 1 00
Howell, Donald S 50
Howell, N W.... 25
Howell, Wm L.. 5 15
Howles, Arthur.. 25
Howles, Clyde ... 10
Howles, D 1 00
Howles, James .. 25
Howles, Jennie .. 25
Howles, Lester... 10
Howles, M 25
Howland, Mrs N. 1 00
Hoyt, Mrs C E, Mrs M D Montsgill, Miss F E Chapin 3 00
Hoyt, M 2 00
Hubbell, C, Jr... 5 00
Hubbell, O R... 5 00
Hubbs, Jane 5 00
Hudson, Miss J L 1 00
Huff, Mrs Lewis. 1 00
Hughes, Hugh T. 25
Hughes, Robert.. 25
Hughes, Wm B... 20
Hull, B 25
Hull, E 25
Hull, L 10
Hultgrew, H G.. 1 00
Humphrey, E.... 2 28
Humphrey, G B..10 00
Humphreys, J B. 1 00
Hunt, C & family 80
Hunt, Dr M W.. 10
Hunter, Miss.... 50
Hunter, A H.... 2 00
Huntley, D B.... 25
Hurchey, Mary A 2 00
Hurlburt, A R... 1 00
Hurlburt, H H..10 00
Hurley, T 10
Hurtin, A B..... 1 00
Hutchinson, Mrs A 05
Hutchinson, J.... 2 00
Hutchinson, M C 1 00
Hyatt, Louise ... 1 00
Icka, Maria 3 00
Ingalls, Mrs Geo. 15
Ingersoll, Robt.. 10
Ingraham, H G.. 15

NEW YORK—Cont'd.

Ireland, Mrs C E 25
Irwin, D M..... 5 00
Ives, Mildred C..15 00
Ives, Mrs M..... 2 00
Jackson, J 25
Jackson, Mrs J.. 1 00
Jackson, R H... 1 30
Jacobs, H C.... 25
Jacobs, Myron .. 25
Jacobs, Miss S... 1 00
Jacobus, Emma H 1 00
Jaeger, H F..... 1 00
Jakohls, J..... 05
Jameison, David. 25
James, E H..... 5 00
Jamison, Mrs.... 25
Jamison, Jessie.. 10
Jamison, Lloyd .. 05
Jane, Mrs W.... 25
Jaquish, Andrew. 25
Jenny, Jos..... 05
Jenny, Mrs J.... 05
Jenny, Master... 10
Jensen, Mrs Eva. 25
Jockey, Miss 25
Johanson, Anna.. 50
Johanson, Mrs J. 25
Johanson, John P 25
Johnson, Mr 05
Johnson, Mrs ... 10
Johnson, Mrs ... 05
Johnson, Mrs A D 50
Johnson, Mr & Mrs A L..... 1 00
Johnson, Mrs A S 1 00
Johnson, Miss A. 1 00
Johnson, Miss C. 1 00
Johnson, C A... 15
Johnson, Dina ... 1 00
Johnson, Dwight. 50
Johnson, E 50
Johnson, Ellen... 55
Johnson, Emily.. 50
Johnson, Frank.. 50
Johnson, H A... 25
Johnson, H J.... 5 00
Johnson, Hilma.. 10
Johnson, I 1 00
Johnson, I W.... 1 00
Johnson, Miss Ida 1 00
Johnson, Jenny.. 25
Johnson, John .. 1 00
Johnson, John A 1 00
Johnson, Lars ... 2 00
Johnson, Lewis.. 25
Johnson, M 1 50
Johnson, O P.... 1 00
Johnson, P 50
Johnson, Mr & Mrs R 1 00
Johnsson, Anna.. 25
Johnston, Bella . 1 00
Jones, B L..... 1 00
Jones, B L..... 1 00
Jones, D S, coll by 2 00
Jones, David 50
Jones, E L..... 50
Jones, Mrs E S.. 15
Jones, Edward F.10 00
Jones, Edward .. 50
Jones, Emma A.. 25
Johnston, R A... 6 00
Jones, Mrs J.... 2 00
Jones, J H.....25 00
Jones, John R... 25
Jones, Lillian ... 25
Jones, Lewis 25
Jones, Maggie .. 50
Jones, Mattie J.. 25
Jones, Newton... 25
Jones, Richard .. 50
Jones, Mrs T A.. 1 00
Jones, Mrs W N. 2 50
Jones, S 25
Jordan, Mrs F... 2 00
Josleyn, Mrs C.. 1 00
Joslin, Mrs G F.. 1 00
Joycox, Mrs Chas 1 00
Juno, Geo W.... 50
Karlen, Mrs D... 1 00
Karlstet, Mr 25
Kaufelt, Mrs H.. 10
Keating, G 20
Keator, Jay 25
Keaveney, Miss.. 1 00
Keefer, Miss M.. 2 00
Keeton, F A & D B 2 00
Keevey, Mrs W W & Mrs M Corey 3 00
Kelgard, Mrs C.. 2 00
Kelley, Mrs C... 3 00
Kelley, Mrs D... 50
Kelley, Mrs David 10
Kelley, Fred 2 00
Kelley, Mrs W... 1 00
Kellogg, E B....10 00
Kellogg, Mrs C.. 30
Kellogg, F E.... 10
Kellogg, Mrs H.. 1 00
Kellogg, Mrs R.. 10
Kellogg, Mrs R.. 25
Kelsey, Miss D E 2 00
Kelsey, John 1 00
Kennedy, A G... 1 00
Kenny, M 25
Ker, James 1 00
Ketcham, T N... 1 00
Kiebourn, R 5 00
Kilburn, P C.... 25
Kilander, Mrs ... 25
Kilham, Mima .. 25
Killpatrick, John. 1 00
Kilton, A 25
Kimmouth, Mrs M D 20 00
Kling, Mrs A 25
Klingsley, E H... 63
King, Mrs F.... 25
Kinzel, Geo 2 00
Kipp, Mrs E.... 1 00
Kirk, Mr 5 00
Kirk, Andrew ... 1 00
Kirkpatrick, Mrs S 1 00
Klasi, A F..... 2 00
Kline, Mrs Mary 25
Klock, Mrs Ed.. 50
Knapp, Mrs B... 1 00
Knapp, Mrs C G. 1 25
Knapp, Mrs H W 1 00
Kneeland, Frances 1 00
Knight, E P.... 3 75
Kriley, Harry ... 10
Kohler, Ed 25

NEW YORK—Cont'd.

Knights, Geo D, through 5 00
Kriley, Arthur .. 05
Kriley, Pearl 10
Krohn, O W..... 10
Krum, Alicia.... 35
Krum, Seward E 10
Krum, Mrs W J.. 90
Kuenze, H G.... 1 00
Kurtz, E F A, through 1 00
La Bush, Mrs B.. 20
La Bush, Mrs W H 10
Lacey, Mrs F.... 2 00
Lacey, Mrs Jos.. 5 00
Ladd, Mrs 05
Ladd, Mrs Cha.. 50
Ladwith, E 25
Lager, J W..... 10
Lake, Addie E... 50
Lake, Eugene ... 1 00
Lakin, Edgar ... 1 00
Lakin, Emma.... 1 00
Lakin, Leonie ... 50
Lamh, J B..... 1 00
Lambley, E 1 00
Lamy, Ethel M.. 1 00
Landers, B 25
Landrine, A 1 00
Lane, Burt 10
Lane, Chas 40
Lang, E M..... 50
Lantz, Malchen.. 1 00
Lape, Ruth M... 20
Lapier, H 50
Larkin, J F..... 50
Larkin, Mrs J W 1 00
Larmore, J 20
Larrensen, Miss A 10
Larsen, O C..... 25
Larsen, P 25
Larson, Anna.... 50
Larson, Hilda ... 10
Larson, Mrs Hilda 25
Larson, Ida 50
Larson, Miss M.. 1 00
Larzalere, H L.. 2 00
Lathrop, Miss R. 1 00
Laud, C L.....25 00
Laurie, Mr & Mrs Geo 2 00
Lauer, F C.....10 00
Lautz, Fred C M .25 00
Lawson, Mrs T C 10
Leahlom, J A... 25
Leader, Lois W.. 5 00
Learned, Mrs W H 2 00
Leary, Mrs F T.. 25
Leavett, Mrs 25
Leavy, John 25
Lee, Anna L..... 25
Lee, Mrs C S.... 25
Lee, F W..... 25
Lee, Geo 25
Leete, F D..... 1 00
Le Fever, L..... 1 00
Leichvallis, Mary. 30
Leiterman, Anna. 10
Leo, Matilda 15
Leonard, Mrs R C 5 00
Levy, Mrs 25
Letts, Mrs Geo .. 1 00
Leverinze, Mrs F. 10
Lewis, Miss 10
Lewis, Mrs Dr .. 25
Lewis, Mrs E A & dau 2 50
Lewis, George ... 25
Lewis, Geo H.... 1 00
Lewis, J J..... 25
Lewis, Mrs L J.. 50
Lewis, Mrs M.... 15
Lewis, Mr 10
Lewis, Mary L.. 50
Lewis, Miss N... 50
Levy, M 10
Lewthwaite, G W 5 00
Lewthwaite, Mrs G W 5 00
Lick, Mrs Phebe. 1 00
Lick, Mrs Rosa.. 1 00
Lick, Sophronia.. 35
Liddle, Hattie .. 1 00
Lienhart, Mrs ... 10
Lienhart, F C... 50
Lienhart, Libbie.. 50
Light, Mrs A J.. 1 00
Light, W E..... 1 00
Lilley, Sarah S.. 1 00
Lincoln, Mrs G.. 10
Lincoln, R E.... 50
Lindat, O..... 25
Lindberg, O 1 00
Lindblad, C A... 1 00
Linden, K J..... 2 00
Linder, Geo A... 2 00
Lindmack, Ernst. 50
Lindsker, Aug ... 1 00
Liscomh, Jno ... 1 00
Livingston, Mrs A 1 00
Livingston, C ... 25
Livingston, E ... 25
Livingston, E C.. 5 00
Livingston, H ... 50
Livingston, Mrs J E..... 25
Livingston, M ... 10
Ljerngberg, Carl. 50
Lockwood, Miss A 8 00
Lockwood, M J.. 2 00
Loder, Mrs Eliza 2 00
Lombard, Mrs .. 1 00
Long, Mrs H W.. 6 10
Loomis, Mrs A S.20 00
Lonly, Danl 1 00
Losee, Henry 25
Losee, Peter 25
Loungien, A..... 1 00
Lowe, Mrs 25
Lowery, H T.... 1 00
Lown, Mrs A....10 00
Lown, S R..... 5 00
Lowndes, Mrs F. 50
Ludington, M B.. 25
Lumley, Miss M.. 1 00
Lundahl, O 1 00
Lundguist, Emma 15
Lundin, Aug 1 00
Lundster, Bernie. 10
Lunt, Prescott .. 5 00
Luxford, Rev F W 25
Lyon, Mrs 10
McArthur, M J.. 1 25

NEW YORK—Cont'd.

McBath, Rev Phil.. 50
McCall, Erwin .. 10
McCall, Miss G.. 25
McCall, Mrs G... 2 00
McCall, Mrs T... 50
McCarthy, Miss Kate 25
McCern, Mrs 25
McChesney, G G. 25
McClane, James.. 25
McClellan, C L, Sr 5 00
McConnell, Miss G E 5 00
McCluskey, J L.. 50
McCoffey, Mr 25
McCracken, R W. 5 00
McCreedy, K.... 1 00
McDonald, Amos. 2 00
McDowell, Mr & Mrs J 2 00
McElroy, Anna S 1 00
McFadden, Mrs J B 18 75
McGranaghan, E. 1 00
McGraw, Dell ... 25
McGraw, Mrs L H 1 00
McGreshen, Katie 50
McIntosh, J H... 2 00
McKane, Mrs ... 10
McKee, Geo C... 5 00
McKee, Miss M.. 1 00
McKeown, L J.. 1 00
McKinley, Mrs G. 25
McLean, Mrs J E 5 00
McMinn, Mrs J N 25
McMullen, Mrs H 1 00
McMullen, C M.. 2 00
McNeill, Miss E. 1 00
McNeilly, Miss A 1 00
McQuire, Mrs Jno 15
McRorie, Mrs G W 2 00
Macaney, J B.... 2 00
Mack, Mrs Wm & Arline M.... 2 00
Mackenzie, M F. 2 00
Mackeown, Mrs.. 2 00
Mackmer, Mahel. 1 00
Madison, A 15
Madison, F 10
Mahan, H W.... 1 00
Mahoney, Mrs.... 05
Mahring, Mary .. 10
Maine, C G..... 1 00
Mallett, Mr & Mrs 10
Malone, Joe 25
Maminaig, F 50
Manchester, C M 80
Manning, Rev S.. 2 00
Mapes, S S..... 1 00
Marion, Mrs 25
Marks, Mrs 10
Marsh, M R, F, & Miss I Hallett 7 00
Marsh, O E..... 1 00
Marshall, C 1 50
Martin, Mrs 1 00
Martin, A W.... 5 00
Martin, B M.... 1 00
Martin, C B..... 2 00
Martin, E M..... 1 00
Martin, Miss R.. 1 00
Martin, Mrs R... 2 00
Martin, T S..... 1 00
Marvin, Mrs M A 1 00
Marston, Mrs M A 50
Martell, L..... 2 00
Mason, Mrs 1 00
Mason, Ida 5 00
Mason, Amanda.. 1 00
Mather, Mrs Seth 2 00
Mathias, Jennie.. 7 00
Mathson, Amelia. 25
Mattern, O 1 00
Matterson, Mrs J G 50
Matthews, Mrs L J 5 00
Mattson, Annett. 50
Maus, Mrs L M.. 4 00
Maxson, H I.... 3 00
Maynard, Miss I. 3 00
Maynard, Mr & Mrs R S..... 1 00
Mee, Hattie 3 75
Meeder, U 5 00
Meekes, Mrs C... 4 00
Melen, C 05
Melen, Chas 1 00
Mellin, A 10
Mellin, A 10
Melvin, E A..... 10
Merrihin, Mrs E. 1 00
Merrill, Bertha . 2 00
Merrill, Maria . 1 00
Merritt, G S.... 1 00
Merritt, Mrs M.. 1 00
Merwin, Mrs E M 5 00
Mestley, J..... 6 00
Meyers, D B..... 1 00
Michel, Miss E... 5 00
Miles, Mrs 1 00
Miles, Ethel 10
Miles, M R & F S Walcott 2 00
Miles, Mrs Mary. 50
Millage, Sue 1 00
Millar, Wm 50
Miller, A & E.... 10
Miller, Miss B..12 85
Miller, Bertha .. 10
Miller, Blandina. 1 00
Miller, Chas 1 00
Miller, Chas 2 00
Miller, Mrs Chas. 2 00
Miller, Clara ... 1 00
Miller, Mrs Edw. 50
Miller, Ezra 1 00
Miller, F G..... 25
Miller, Geo 1 00
Miller, Ira 1 00
Miller, Mrs J.... 10
Miller, Mrs J C.. 50
Miller, John 2 00
Miller, M J 25
Miller, Maggie, coll by 45
Miller, Nat 1 00
Miller, P 25
Miller, Rodney... 10
Mills, Mrs Edw H 1 00
Mills, Minard ... 1 00
Milton, Mr 1 00
Milton, J E..... 50
Mincher, E S.... 5 00
Miner, H G..... 2 00

NEW YORK—Cont'd.

Miner, Rev Phil.. 50
Mingas, Mr & Mrs C 50
Mingas, Henry .. 25
Mingas, Monroe . 25
Mingas, Mrs R.. 25
Minneah, Bessie. 25
Mitchell, A 2 00
Mitchell, Mr & Mrs C G..... 2 00
Moaboy, Mrs 10
Mock, Marie 25
Moffatt, F M, Jr. 50
Moffatt, Jean R.. 50
Moffett, Jennie .. 2 00
Montgomery, Mrs G 1 00
Montgomery, R H 1 00
Moouey, Mariah.. 25
Moore, Edua A.. 25
Moore, Geo F.... 50
Moore, H S..... 5 00
Moore, Jas M.... 5 00
Moore, Leon 1 00
Moore, M C & A. 2 00
Moore, Oliver....10 00
More, Mrs G E. 2 00
Morey, Clate 10
Morey, G & H.... 50
Morey, H 25
Morgan, Miss C..20 00
Morgan, Miss J.. 1 00
Morrison, Miss C. 2 00
Moseley, Mrs I... 2 00
Mosher, Mrs Lidia 50
Mosher, May 10
Mosher, R C.... 1 25
Moss, Mrs C.... 10
Moullon, G..... 50
Mowers, J 25
Mowers, Mrs Ph 1 25
Muir, M E..... 5 00
Mullen, Marie ... 10
Muncey, Mrs W A 1 00
Munsou, B 2 00
Murfitt, A C.... 2 00
Murphy, M 25
Murray, C W.... 5 00
Murray, S, W, M Ruth 1 00
